THE PREFACE:

WHEREIN

The Authors of the enſuing Annotations (Supplemental to Mr. Poole) preſent to the Reader an Hiſtorical Account of the Tranſlation of the Scriptures into our Engliſh-Tongue, the mighty Workings of Divine Providence conducive to it, and the ſeveral Notes or Annotations which have been publiſhed, and a particular Account of the Reverend Mr. Poole's, and Their preſent Undertaking, with the Reaſons of it.

THE ſame Reaſon which teacheth us to conclude that there is a Firſt Being, and muſt be a Firſt Cauſe and Mover (whom we call God) That it is he who hath made us, and not we our ſelves, and that we are his people and the ſheep of his paſture, will alſo oblige us To enter into his gates with thankſgiving, and into his courts with praiſe, and to be thankful unto him, by fulfilling his Will; which we cannot do without ſome Revelation of it to us. God therefore having ceaſed to ſpeak to Men face to face, as to Abraham, and Moſes, &c. (which he never ordinarily did but to ſome particular Favourites) we are by Reaſon inforced to conclude, that there are ſome Books in the World in which this Revelation is to be found.) The Church of God (the Mother of us all) hath conſtantly held forth the Books of the Old and New Teſtament, (which we have in our Bibles) for this Sacred Revelation, which hath juſtly obliged all her Children to look upon them, as hung out to them for that uſe, upon that Noble Pillar the Church. Looking into them upon the Churches notice (as the Child does upon the Mother's telling it, That is the Sun) every reaſonable Man finds them of ſo venerable Antiquity, and diſcerneth in them ſuch Stamps of Divinity, in the Majeſty of their Style, the Purity of the Matter, the Sublimeneſs and Spirituality of the Propoſitions contained in them, the Self-denial of the Penmen, the Heavenlineſs of the Scope and End of thoſe Sacred Writings, the Harmony of the Parts, the Seal of Miracles, and principally in the mighty Power and Efficacy of them upon the Souls and Conſciences of Multitudes, both for Conviction, and for Support, and Conſolation; that he eaſily concludes, This is the voice of God, and not of man; and looks back upon his Mother the Church (as a Child upon his Nurſe) thanking her for ſhewing him ſuch a Treaſure, and ſaying as the Samaritans to their Countrey-woman, John 4. 42. Now we believe theſe Books are the Word of God, not becauſe of thy ſaying ſo, but becauſe we have looked into them our ſelves, and find them of a different Style, Nature and Matter, and to have a different Scope, End, Power and Efficacy upon the Souls of Men, from what any other Writings in the World have. Though the truth is, that until a Man comes to be fully perſwaded of the Truth of them from the ſame Spirit that dictated them, every Soul will be as apt to waver in his Faith, concerning their being the Word of God, as he in Tully, who only believed the Immortality of the Soul from the reading of Plato's Book, which (if I remember right) the Roman Orator expreſſeth in Words to this Senſe; I have read over Plato's Book again and again; but I know not how it comes to paſs, ſo long as I am reading, I agree with it; but no ſooner is the Book out of my Hands, but De immortalitate animæ dubitare cœpi, I begin to doubt whether the Soul be immortal yea or no. But however, in one Degree or other every Chriſtian makes that the Principle of his Religion, That the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament are the Word of God. Some believe it more faintly and incertainly; ſome more fixedly and firmly; and accordingly the Faith of Perſons, as to them, is more or leſs Operative.

This Revelation of the Divine Will was made perfect gradually (as it pleaſed God in ſucceeding times to reveal what was his Secret Will before, but hid from Ages.) So as (if Chronologers compute right) there were more than 1500 Years paſſed betwixt the writing of the firſt Book of Geneſis by Moſes, and the Revelation (which was the laſt) by John; and Divines generally judge that be Sealed up the Book, by thoſe words, Revelations 22. 18, 19. So that, as to things to be believed or done, we are to expect no further Revelation.

When the Mighty God, even the Lord, had thus ſpoken, and God had thus ſhined out of Sion the perfection of Beauty, it was but reaſonable that his People ſhould come to the knowledge of what he had ſaid, that they might anſwer the end of the Revelation both by Believing and Obeying.

The Old Teſtament being written in the Hebrew Tongue, when great multitudes of the Hebrews or Jews, by their Captivity in Babylon, had much forgotten, or corrupted their own Language, it was thought reaſonable there ſhould be a Caldaick Paraphraſe; and the Wiſdom of Divine Providence provided a Septuagint Verſion, as for the benefit of others, ſo poſſibly of the Jews themſelves, the moſt of whom before Chriſt's time were more Greeians than Hebricians; and it is generally thought that all the Books of the New Teſtament were written in the Grecian Language.

When it pleaſed God that the Goſpel ſhould be preached to all Nations, and the ſound of it go to the ends of the Earth, he ſo ordered it alſo, that ſoon after true Religion came into any place, ſome were ſtirred up to Tranſlate thoſe Holy Books into the Language of that Countrey; and he ſo far aſſiſted them, that tho' in many leſſer things they failed through want of a knowledge of the juſt propriety of ſome Words in Hebrew or Greek, or the uſe of Particles in thoſe Languages, yet they failed not in any thing whereby the Reader might be led into any pernicious Error touching his Salvation. And we ſhall obſerve the Penmen of the New Teſtament, giving ſuch a deference to the commonly received Verſion in their times, that although the Septuagint Verſion which we have, appears to us more diſſonant from the Hebrew than any other; yet moſt of the Quotations of the Old Teſtament which we have in the New, are apparently from that Verſion; which teacheth us, that it is not every private Miniſter's work to make a new Verſion of the Scripture, but he ought to acquieſce in the Verſion which God hath provided for the Church wherein he lives, and not ordinarily, or upon light grounds to enter into a diſſent to it; and if in any thing he ſees it neceſſary to do it, yet not to do it (as to a particular Text) without great modeſty, and a Preface of Reverence.

The PREFACE.

This Translation of the Scriptures into a Language understood by all people in that Countrey into which the Church came, was lookt upon so reasonable and necessary, as it was opposed by none, till the Papists had patched up a Religion, for the upholding of which, it was necessary for them to maintain, That Ignorance was the Mother of Devotion: after which it was very difficult in any places where these Spiritual Tyrants had a dominion, to get the Scriptures translated into the Language of that Country. Not to instance in other places, we shall give some short account of England. Our Records tell us of a Translation of some part of them into the Saxon Language (which was then a great part of ours) within 700 years after Christ: and of the Translation of the whole, into the same Language by Beda within 40 years after. Beda was himself a Papist, but the mystery of iniquity grew up gradually to its height. Soon after, Bibles which the people could understand, were very scarce commodities in England, and thus it continued for 600 years. Wickliff, who lived in the time of Richard the 2d. and died 1384. being the first we know of afterward, who Translated the Scriptures into a Language understood by any who were not skilled in some or other of the three learned Languages. That great man easily understood, that without the Scriptures in their own Language the people must take all for the Will of God, that their Priests told them was so, and that the Popish Priests were generally persons of ignorance, and impudence enough to entitle God to any of their own blasphemies and superstitions. But within thirty years after the death of Wickliff, viz. Anno 1414, the Council, (or Conventicle rather) of Constance, Decreed all Wickliffs Books to the Fire; and though some were spared, yet the battel was so hard, that there were very few that escaped. This was our state till the year 1527 (in all which years the poor people of the Land of our Nativity, were without a teaching Bible (as to the common people) and indeed without a teaching Priest) yea and for sometime after this, as we shall hear.

1527. In the Year 1527, God put it into the heart of Mr. Tindall to Translate the New Testament into English; as also the Five Books of Moses. (He being then an exile in Germany for his Religion.) But he lost all his Papers by a Shipwrack, in his passage to Hamborough, and had his work to begin again: which yet that faithful, and most unwearied servant of God did accomplish, adding some Prefaces to the several Books, and some Notes to the particular Chapters and Verses. The publishing of which much netled the Popish Bishops in England, and all means were then used to suppress it. Amongst others, the then Bishop of London advised with one Packington a Merchant of that City, concerning the most accommodate mean to that design. The Merchant could think of none so probable, as with a sum of money to buy up the whole Impression. The Bishop approving it, furnished him with a round sum to that purpose; which the Merchant (being more a Friend to Mr. Tindall than the Bishop knew) sent to Mr. Tindall, and had the Impression sent him, (some few Copies being (as we must imagine) first sold off.) With his Money Mr. Tindall supported himself in his exile, and was also enabled to go on with his Translation of the other part of the Bible, and to prepare a perfect English Bible. In the mean time a passage happened so pleasant, that I shall think it worth the while here to relate it; Sir Thomas Moore being Lord Chancellor, *and having several Persons accused for Heresie, and ready for Execution, offered to compound with * one of them for his Life, upon the easie terms of his discovery to him who they were in* London that maintained Tindall beyond Sea. After that the poor man had got as good a security for his Life, as the Honour, and Truth of the Chancellor could give him, he told him, It was the Bishop of London maintained him, by sending him a sum of money, to buy up the Impression of his Testaments. The Chancellor smiled, saying, That he believed he said true. Thus was this poor Confessor's Life saved. But to return to our story. In the Year 1536. Mr. Tindall was Martyred at Villefort in Flanders, For Translating into English the New Testament and part of the Old, (saith Sir Richard Baker.) But his great Adversary, Sir Thomas Moore, was the Year before gone to his own place, being executed for Treason. Mr. Tindall and Mr. Coverdale, (as Mr. Fox telleth us) before Mr. Tindalls death, had Translated the whole Bible. But it came not out till after his death, under the Name of Thomas Matthews, (with the addition of the Apocrypha, Translated by John Rogers.) The Lord Cromwel, with Archbishop Cranmer, presented it to the King, and obtained an Order from His Majesty for leave for any of his Subjects to read it; but this was not without the great regret of the Bishops.

Bakers Chronicle p. 282.

1540. About thirteen Years after this (or not so much) the Lord Cromwel obtained Letters from King Henry VIII. for a Subject of his to Reprint at Paris the Bible in English; the King also wrote a Letter to Bonner (at that time his Embassador in France) to further it. Grafton and Whitchurch undertook the work, upon what seeming encouragement from Bonner may be read in Mr. Fox's 2d. Vol. of his Martyrology, Pref. 1641. pag. 515, 516. But how it came to pass I cannot tell (though Bonner's Treachery was suspected in the case) when it was upon the point finished, the Copies were seized, and ordered to be burnt, and the Work had wholly ceased, but for the Covetousness of the Officer, who sold four great dry fatts filled with them to an Haberdasher to lay Caps in. By this means having recovered some Copies, they came to London, and there made a new Impression.

But after this my Lord Cromwel being put to death, the Bishops and Popish-party made so great complaint to the King, (whose warmth for the Reformation much abated in the latter part of his Life) that the Sale of the English Bible was again prohibited, and the Printer imprisoned; and although the Bishops promised the King they would make a more correct Translation, yet it was never done during that King's Reign.

But in the Year of our Lord 1577. which was the 19*th. or* 20*th. of the Reign of* Queen Elizabeth, some Bishops published a new Translation; but till that time, the Bibles used in Churches were Tindalls and Coverdales, being allowed by the publick Authority of King Edw. 6. 1549, 1550, 1551, 1552. And to this day, the Psalms in our Service-Book are according to Tindalls and Coverdales Bibles; which should make us wary in our Censures of that Translation, tho' we see reason in many things to dissent from it. Only we having a more correct Translation Established by Authority, why (for the avoiding the offence of the less knowing people) we have not made use of that, but retained a Translation not undertaken by any publick Authority, and confessed to be more imperfect, is what I cannot, nor count my self obliged to account for. Possibly God for the honour of his Martyr hath so ordered it.

After this, King James coming to the Crown, being a Prince of great Learning and Judgment, and observing the different usage of some words in his age, from the usage of them in K. Hen. 8. or in Q. Elizabeth's time, and also the several mistakes (though of a minute nature) in those more ancient Versions, was pleased to employ diverse learned men in making a New Translation, which is that which at this day is generally used. With what Reverence to former Translators, what labour and care and pains they accomplished their work, the Reader may see at large in their Preface prefixed to those Copies that are Printed in Folio, and in their Epistle to K. James in our Bibles of a lesser form; of which Translation (though it may not be without its more minute Errors) yet I think it may be said, that it is hardly exceeded by that of any other Church.

By this History (Reader!) thou mayest understand the mighty workings of Divine Providence, and wonderful goodness of God to this Nation in the plenty we have of Bibles, and that of a very correct Translation, (though possibly not in every little thing perfect). Mr. Fox (if we remember right) tells us a story of two Maids in Lincolnshire, that in Q. Maries time parted with a considerable part of their estate for a few leaves of the Bible. How good is God to us, that we for a few shillings can have the whole Revelation of the Divine Will? Upon which account, we offer it to the consideration of any thinking English Man or Woman, what he or she will answer for his or her ignorance in the Holy Scriptures, or for the ignorance of his or her Children if (having so much means as we have, to learn to Read) any shall neglect the Teaching of their Children to Read it, or Learning themselves, in case their Parents have neglected them: or being able to Read, shall neglect the practice of it, in exercising himself in the Law of the Lord day and night, and living up to the Rule of it. The English Bible is come to us at the price of the Blood of one Martyr, and the unwearied Labour of a multitude of Holy and Learned Men succeeding one another for more than Sixty years, before we had the Translation so perfect as now it is, in all hands.

Poor Christians in Popish Countries either have not this Pot of Spiritual Food, or must cry out, Death is in the pot. Our English Translators in their Preface observe, that of late the Church of Rome would seem to bear something of a Motherly Affection to her Children, and allow them the Scriptures in the Mother-Tongue; But it is indeed a gift gift not worthy of its Name. They must first get a License in Writting before they use them; and to get that, they must approve themselves to their Confessors, to be such as are, if not frozen in the dregs, yet sowred with the leaven of their Superstition. Yet this seemed too much to Clement the Eighth, who therefore frustrated the Grant of Pius the Fourth. They will allow none to be read but the Doway Bibles, and the Remish Testaments, (the Corruptions of which have been sufficiently manifested by many Learned Men) nor will they trust their People with these, without the License of their own Bishops and Inquilitors. This is the liberty they boast of giving to any of their Religion to Read the Scriptures in English. What it is worth, let any Man judge.

In the mean time, those who are not affected with the Mercy of God to us in this particular, must declare themselves neither to have any just value for God, in the mighty workings of his Providence to bring this about, nor yet for the Blood of Holy Mr. Tindall, who died in his Testimony to this Truth, That no People ought to be deprived of so great a good; nor for the labours and pains of those many Servants of God, who travelled in this great Work, and thought no labour in it too much, nor indeed for their own Souls, to the Salvation of which, if the Holy Scripture in our own Language doth not highly contribute, we must lay the blame upon our selves.

But altho we have the Bible in a Language we understand, yet we may see reason to cry out as Bernard does with reference to the Song of Solomon; Here is an excellent Nut, but who shall crack it? Heavenly Bread, but who shall break it? For tho' the Papists and such as have ill will to the good of Souls make too great an improvement of the difficulties in Holy Writ, in making them an Argument against the Peoples having them in a Language which they can understand, (for Augustine said true when he said, there are Fords in them wherein Lambs may wade, as well as Depths in which Elephants may swim) and what others observe, is as true, That things necessary to be believed, or done in order to Salvation, lie plain and obvious in Holy Writ: yet it is as true, that there is much of Holy Writ, of which the generality of People must say as the Eunuch, How can I understand, except some man should guide me? Acts 8. 31. (not to mention the seeming Contradictions that are betwixt the Holy Penmen of those Sacred Books) and indeed it is hard to say, what Book of Scripture is so plain that every one who runneth can read it with understanding; (such a vast difference there is betwixt the Capacities of those who yet have the same honest hearts.) This hath made Wise and Learned Men not only see a need of larger Commentaries, but also of shorter Notes, Annotations, and Paraphrases, &c. Nor is this a late discovery. It is upward of three hundred years since Lyra wrote his short Notes upon the whole Bible. What Vatablus and Erasmus (tho' all of them Papists) have done since, is sufficiently known; to say nothing of many others of that Religion. Amongst the Reformed Churches, there hath been a Learned Piscator in Germany, Junius and Tremellius elsewhere, who did the same things: But all these wrote their Notes in Latin, not in the peculiar Language of any Country. The ancientest Notes we have in English were those ordinarily known by the Name of the Geneva Notes, after two years labour finished 1560. by those good Men who flying from Queen Maries Persecution, took Sanctuary there. A Work so acceptable to Protestants in the beginning of our Reformation, that their Bible with those Notes annexed was (as is observed by the Authors of our late English Annotations) Printed above Thirty times over by Queen Elizabeth's Printers and their Heirs and Succeffors. There wanted not one indeed, who Fifty years after boldly reflected on that excellent Work in the most Publick Pulpit of our University of Oxford; but how grateful his Reflections were to the University at that time, may be read in the Preface to the English Annotations: he was in the same Pulpit choakt and confuted by the Doctor of the Chair, and suspended by the Governors of the Universtity. The labours of Erasmus in his Paraphrafe on the New Testament were so acceptable, that by Publick Order they were to be in every Church exposed to Publick View, and Use, and (if we mistake not) ought to be so still. After these, were published Diodates Notes written in Italian, since translated into English. About the year 1640. some Deliberations were taken for the Composing and Printing other English Notes, (the old Geneva Notes not so well fitting our new and more correct Translation of the Bible) Those were at first intended to be so short, that they might be printed together with our Bibles in Folio or Quarto. But, those Divines who were ingaged in it found, this would not answer their end; it being not possible by so short Notes, to give People any tolerable light into the whole Text; yet they so contracted their Work, that it was all dispatched in one Volume: Which tho it were at first greedily bought up, yet we cannot say it gave so general a Satisfaction (by reason of the shortness of it) as was desired and expected. So as upon the Second Edition, it came forth quite a new thing, making two just Volumes. This was so acceptable to the World, that within sixteen Years it was ready for a Third Edition, with some further Enlargements. Before which also were published the Dutch Annotations Translated into our Language.

So that at this day (beside the shorter Geneva Notes) we have three sorts of Annotations in our own Language; Those of famous Diodate; the Dutch Annotations; and those of our own Divines. (Originally so wrote.) After which, New Annotations may seem superfluous. It seems therefore reasonable that we should give our Readers some short account of our undertaking. We dare say, nothing could be further from the Thoughts of our Reverend Brother (now at rest with God) who first began this Work, than to reflect any dishonour upon those Eminent Persons who laboured before in Works of this Nature, nor is any thing further from our thoughts. (They all of them did famously in their Generations.) And if it should appear to any of our Readers, that any of us have seen further into any particular Texts than those did who went before us, yet we hope all our Readers will undestand there is little Honour due to us upon that account, because we had all their Shoulders to stand upon.

The Pains which our Reverend Brother, (ὁ μακαρίτης,) took in his Synopsis Criticorum, is such, as not only will make his Name live in the Churches of Christ, but also eminently fitted him for giving the Sense of the whole Scripture in Annotations of this Nature, which he undertook and carried on by his own Hand to the Fifty eighth of Isaiah, designing that Two Volumes should comprehend the Whole, and that the first should determine with his Notes upon the Song of Solomon. What occasioned his first Thoughts and Undertaking, himself tells us in his Paper of Propofals published with reference to that Work, in these words. "But altho there are many excellent Comments upon divers parts of the Scripture, and "some intire Comments, or large Annotations upon the whole in the English Tongue; yet because of the too "much brevity of some, and the unequal Compofure of others, as being done by divers Hands, and the Pro- "lixity of those that have been written upon particular Books, it hath been often and earnestly wished that there "were some short and full Comment, wherein all those Passages which need the help of an Interpreter, might "be sufficiently cleared, &c. As the first Edition of our English Annotations, after which followed the Translation of those of the Learned Diodate into our Language, and then those of the Low-Country Divines of Holland (tho all of them deservedly valuable) seemed much too short to satisfy the Thirst of many Pious Souls after the fuller knowledge of the Scriptures, so the larger Edition of our English Annotations, seems capable of some Amendments by which they might be made more serviceable to those that use them, especially in these particulars.

1. The whole Text is not Printed in them, so as those who will use them must make use of a Bible also, for the understanding of them. Our Reverend Brother (with whom also we concur) rightly judged, that it would be of more advantage to have the entire Text in the Reader's Eye, while he is seeking the Sense of any particular place, and while he reads a Chapter, to have a Commentary under his Eye in which he might find the Sense of any part of it, and satisfy himself as to any difficulty occurring in it.

2. As some (very eminently Learned Men) had been too large in those Annotations (saying almost all that hath been said by any upon the Texts they handled) so others had been as much too short, and that especially in the New Testament (which seems to Christians to need the fullest Explication) and others, from their variety of Learning, had mixed several Quotations out of the Fathers, and Critical, and Philological Notions, possibly not so proper for the end for which such

The PREFACE:

Annotations are designed, which is to give the unlearned Christians the true Sense of the Holy Scriptures; That those who can, might read and understand the Will of God.

That our Reader may not mistake our design or undertaking, we desire that he should know, That we do not pretend (as some have vainly fancied) to translate Mr. Poole's Synopsis Criticorum (that would have asked six Volumes instead of two), and when it had been done would have signified very little, unless for those who (being Learned Men) needed no such Translation: possibly in a whole Leaf of that Book six Lines would not serve our purpose. Nor have we had any Ambition either to say something that none had said before us (we have observed that those who have had such an Itch, have for the most part happened to say, what those who came after them would not subscribe) nor yet to say all that we knew was said before us, (that had been to have confounded our Readers only with a variety of Senses) we have only hinted the Senses which in our Judgment have seemed fairest, and least constrained, and shortly shewed the Consonancy of them to other Scriptures. We have avoided all Polemical Discourses as no way proper to our design, and very rarely hinted those Practical Conclusions which have arose from the Text when opened, (the most we have done of that nature is in our Discourses upon the Parables.)

Our Reverend Brother (designing but Two Volumes, and the first to end with the Song of Solomon, tho since it hath been determined to conclude it with the Prophet Isaiah, that all which he lived to finish might be comprehended in one Volume) had an hard Task to contract his Discourses so, as to bring them within that compass, and thereby was necessitated not to give the entire Sense of each Verse in his Notes, but only of those Words or Terms in the Verse which he conceived to stand in need of Explication, referring by Letters in the Text to the parts of the Commentary. This was not necessary in such parts of the Scripture where the entire Sense of the whole Text is given. Nor indeed as to some parts is it possible (such we mean as are opened harmonically); of which nature are the Three first Evangelists. It is confessed by all, that the Evangelists make up but one entire History, tho some of them have some things which the others have not, and they seldom agree in the Phrases and Circumstances of any one piece of History. This made it reasonable, that with the Interpretation of one Evangelist should be joyned what the others had, with reference to the same piece of History. Which Method hath been accordingly pursued (being the same in which the most Judicious Mr. Calvin and others have gone before us); nor indeed could any other course have been taken without a needless writing the same things over again, so as that in our Notes upon Mark, we have only enlarged in the Explication of what he hath, which we did not meet with before in Matthew; and in the Explication of Luke we have only opened what he hath, which was not in Matthew or Mark. Where they all three concurred, or but two of them concurr'd in any Story, we have opened what they all or both say, in our Notes upon the first of them; and when we have come to it again in one or both the other, we have only referred to our former Notes. John (having little which the other Evangelists have) we have considered by himself mostly, yet sometimes taking in something from him, where we found it Completory of any thing related by the other Evangelists.

In magnis voluisse sat est. We cannot say that we have left no room for others to come after us, and add to or correct what we have said. But this we can say in truth, That we have not willingly baulked any obvious Difficulty, and have designed a just Satisfaction to all our Readers; and if any Knot remain yet untied, we have told our Readers what hath been most probably said for their satisfaction in the untying of it.

If it had pleased God to have lent a little longer Life to our Reverend Brother, the Work had very probably been done to greater advantage, and more general satisfaction. We are but entred upon his Harvest, and have wanted his Sickle; we cannot pretend to any double Portion of his Spirit. His Mantle dropt from him before he was Translated (we mean his Synopsis.) We have taken that up; out of that great Work of his we have taken so much as we judged proper for his design in this Work, and made use of a great number of other Authors, some of which he left out, or very little considered in his Synopsis, upon design to make a further use of them in this English Work, as thinking their labours more proper for this, than his other Work.

Our design, good Reader, was not to tell thee how the Fathers interpreted Texts, (Aquinas, Justinianus, and others, have done that Work) nor yet to tell thee any Grammatical Niceties, or what Learned Men have critically noted upon Terms or Phrases, (that is done in the Synopsis Criticorum) Nor yet to tell thee what Conclusions of Truth may be raised from the Verses (that hath been done profitably upon many Books of Scripture by Mr. Dickson, Hutchinson, Fergusson, Guild, Durham, and some others), much less to handle the Controversies that have risen from any portion of Scripture. Our Work hath been only to give thee the plain Sense of the Scripture, and to reconcile seeming Contradictions where they occurred, and as far as we were able to open Scripture by Scripture, which is its own best Interpreter, comparing things Spiritual with Spiritual, That thy Faith might not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the wisdom and power of God. If we have reached this end, it is all we aimed at; if thou gettest any good by what we have done, Remember thy Sacrifice is due at another Altar, even his who ministreth seed to the sower, who both watereth the furrows of the field, and blesseth the springing of the Corn; let him have the Praise, and we only thy Prayers, that we may live an useful and blessed life, and dye an happy Death, and attain to the Resurrection of the Dead, in which we shall all see and understand more perfectly than we yet do.

Mr. POOL'S English SYNOPSIS OF Annotations upon the Holy Bible:

Collected out of the Latin Synopsis Criticorum, and divers other Learned Interpreters; and Accommodated to the use of Vulgar Capacities.

GENESIS.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Book is called Genesis, i. e. Generation, or Birth, giving an accompt of passages during 2300 years, and upwards, viz. From the creation of all things, to the death of Joseph. In which History Moses by Divine inspiration, treats of the Creation of the World, with all the parts, and uses in it, and of it, but chiefly of Man, who alone was made in God's Image; where he lays down God's Concessions, and Prohibitions to him; and Man's Transgression, together with the sorrowful effects, and the remedy of them in the promise of a Saviour; the Original, Progress, and Preservation of, for the Church springing from Abel, and carried on by Seth, Enoch, &c. and the ground and rise of Apostacy begun in Cain, and carried on by his Posterity, separating themselves from the Holy Seed, till by their monstrous Provocations they had brought an universal Deluge to destroy all mankind from off the Earth, excepting only Noah, and his Family; out of which, as the Church did again spring forth, so another cursed Race carrying on the former enmity to a greater height, not only fell into Idolatry, after it had continued a considerable time in Sem's Race, but breaking out into all Outrages, and Tyrannical Oppressions, it was almost extinct among those numerous Nations that Noah's Posterity sprang out into. But God calling Abraham into the Land of Promise, who was an Idolater in Chaldea, and giving him Temporal and Spiritual Promises, and especially that of the Messiah coming out of his Loins, and assuring it by a special Covenant sealed by Circumcision, the Church began now to take root, and to be imbodied in Jacob's Family under the name of Israel; and here God undertook the protection of his People and Worship, by the visible presence of Christ her Head, that Angel of the Covenant, going continually with them, comforting and defending them, till they came into Egypt, where the Church continued until Joseph's Death; where this Book ends.

CHAP. I.

The whole visible Creation asserted in general, v. 1. Shewed in particular the condition of the rude matter of it, v. 2. The formation of the several Creatures on the several days. (1.) Light produced by the powerful word of God, v. 3. approved and separated from the darkness, v. 4. named, and the first day declared, v. 5. (2.) The Firmament formed, its use, name and time, v. 6, 7, 8. (3.) The waters separated from the earth; sea and dry land named and approved, v. 9, 10. The earth brings forth grass, herbs and trees; approved, and time declared, v. 11, 12, 13. (4.) The Firmament furnished with sun, moon and stars; their uses assigned, their names, with approbation, and time of doing declared, v. 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19. (5.) Waters and air furnished, approved, blessed, and time of it declared, v. 20, 21, 22, 23. (6.) The earth furnished with living creatures sensitive, and approved, v. 24, 25. Rational man in both sexes created upon consultation, according to God's Image, with dominion over the other creatures; and blessed, v. 26, 27, 28. food appointed for man, v. 29. for beasts, v. 30. the whole approved on the sixth day.

* Psal. 33. 6. 102. 25. 136. 5. 146. 6. Isa. 44. 24. Jer. 10. 14. 51. 15. Zech. 12. 1. Acts 14. 15. 17. 24. Heb. 11. 3.

IN * the beginning a God created b the heaven and the earth c.

a To wit, Of Time and Things, in the first place, before things were distinguished and perfected in manner hereafter expressed. Or, the sense is this, The beginning of the World was thus. And this Phrase further informeth us, That the World, and all things in it, had a beginning, and were not from eternity, as some Philosophers dreamed. b Made out of nothing. c Either 1. The Heaven and Earth as now they are with their Inhabitants. So this Verse is a Summary or Brief of what is particularly declared in the rest of this Chapter. Or, 2. The substance and common matter of Heaven and Earth. Which seems more probably by comparing this Verse with the next, where the Earth here mentioned is declared to be without form, and the Heavens without light; as also with Gen. 2. 1. where the heavens and the earth, here only said to be created, are said to be finished or perfected. Yet I conceive the third Heaven to be included under the Title of the heaven, and to have been created and perfected the first day, together with its blessed Inhabitants the Holy Angels, as may be collected from Job 33. 6, 7. But the Scripture being written for men, and not for Angels, the Holy Ghost thought it sufficient to comprehend them and their dwelling-place under that general term of the heavens, and proceedeth to give a more particular account of the visible Heavens and Earth, which were created for the use of man. In the Hebrew it is, The heavens and the earth. For there are three Heavens mentioned in Scripture, The Aereal; the place of Birds, Clouds and Meteors, Mat. 26. 64. Rev. 19. 17. & 20. 9. The Starry; the Region of the Sun, the Moon and Stars, Gen. 22. 17. The highest or third Heaven; 2 Cor. 12. 2. the dwelling of the Blessed Angels

2 And the earth e was without form and void f, and darkness was upon the face g of the deep: and the Spirit of God h moved upon the face of the waters *.

e The same confused mass or heap is here called both Earth, from its most solid and substantial part; and the deep, from its vast bulk and depth; and Waters, from its outward face and covering. See Psal. 104. 6. 2 Pet. 3. 5. f (i. e.) Without order and beauty, and without furniture and use. g The Surface or uppermost part of it, upon which the light afterward shone. Thus not the Earth only, but also the Heaven above it was without light, as is manifest from the following verses. h Not the Wind, which was not yet created, as is manifest, because the Air, the matter or subject of it, was not yet produced: But the Third Person of the glorious Trinity, called the Holy Ghost, to whom the work of Creation is attributed, Job. 26. 13. as it is ascrib'd to the Second Person, the Son, Joh. 1. 3. Col. 1. 16, 17. Heb. 1. 3. and to the First Person, the Father, every-where. (i. e.) Upon the waters, to cherish, quicken, and dispose them to the production of the things after mentioned. It is a Metaphor from Birds hovering and fluttering over, and sitting upon their Eggs and young Ones, to cherish, warm, and quicken them.

3 And God said i, * Let there be light: and there was light k. * 2 Cor. 4. 6.

i (i. e. Commanded, not by such a word or speech as we use, which agreeth not with the spiritual nature of God; but either by an Act of his powerful will, called the word of his power, Heb. 1. 3. Or, by his substantial Word, his Son, by whom he made the worlds, Heb. 1. 2. Psal. 33. 6. who is called, The word, partly, if not principally, for this reason, Joh. 1. 1, 2, 3, 10. k Which was some bright and lucid Body, peradventure like the fiery Cloud in the Wilderness, giving a small and imperfect Light, successively moving over the several parts of the Earth; and afterwards condensed, encreased, perfected, and gathered together in the Sun.

4 And God saw l the light, that it was good m: and God divided † the light from the darkness n. † Heb. Between the light, and between the darkness.

l (i. e.) Observed with approbation. m (i. e.) Pleasant and amiable, agreeable to God's purpose and Man's use. n Made a distinction or separation between them in place, time and use, that the one should succeed and shut out the other, and so by their vicissitudes make the day and the night.

5 And God called the light day, and the darkness he called night: † and the evening and the morning o were the first day p. † Heb. And the evening was, and the morning was, &c.

o It is acknowledged by all, that the Evening and the Morning are not here to be understood according to our common usage, but are put by a Synecdoche each of them for one whole part of the natural day. But because it may be doubted which part each of them signifies, some understand by Evening, the foregoing day; and by the Morning, the foregoing night, and so the natural day begins with the morning or the light, as it did with the ancient Chaldeans. Others by Evening understand the first night or darkness which was upon the face of the Earth, ver. 2. which probably continued for the space of about twelve hours, the beginning whereof might fitly be called Evening, and by Morning the succeeding light or day, which may reasonably be supposed to continue the other twelve hours, or thereabouts. And this seems the truer Opinion. 1. Because the darkness was before the light, as the Evening is put before the Morning, v. 5, and 8. and afterwards. 2. Because this best agrees both with the vulgar, and with the Scripture-use of the terms of Evening and Morning. 3. Because the Jews, who had the best opportunity of knowing the mind of God in this matter by Moses and other succeeding Prophets, begun both their common and sacred days with the Evening, as is confessed, and may be gathered from Levit. 23. 32. p Did constitute or make up the first Day; Day being taken largely for the natural Day, consisting of 24 hours. There were the parts of the first Day; and the like is to be understood of the succeeding days. Moreover, God who could have made all things at once, was pleased to divide his work into six days, partly to give us occasion more distinctly and seriously to consider God's works; and principally to lay the foundation for the weekly Sabbath, as is clearly intimated. Gen. 2.2,3. and Exod. 20. 9, 10, 11.

*Psal.*136. 6. *Jer.*10.12. & 51. 15. † Heb. expansion.

6 ¶ And God said, * Let there be † a firmament q in the midst of the waters r, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

q Or, An Extension, or a Space or place extended, or stretched out, and spread abroad like a Tent, or Curtain. r (i.e.) Between the Waters, tho' not exactly in the middle place; as Tyrus is said to sit, or be scituated in the midst of the Seas, Ezek. 28. 2. tho' it was but a little space within the Sea. But of these things see more in the next verse.

7 And God made the firmament s, and divided the waters which were under the firmament, from the waters which were above the firmament t, and it was so u.

s The firmament here is, Either. 1. The Starry Heaven; so called, not from its solidity, but from its fixed, durable, and in a sort incorruptible and unchangeable nature. Or, 2. The Air; called here, The expansion, or extension; because it is extended far and wide, even from the Earth to the third Heaven; called also, The Firmament, because it is fixed in its proper place, from whence it cannot be moved, unless by force. t The waters under the Firmament are Seas, Rivers, Lakes, Fountains, and other Waters in the bowels of the Earth. The waters above the firmament, or above the Heavens, as they are called, *Psal.*148.4. are either, 1. A Collection or Sea of Waters placed by God above all the visible Heavens, and there reserved for ends known to himself. Or rather, 2. The Waters in the Clouds; for the Clouds are called Waters, Psal. 18. 11. and 104. 3. and are said to be in Heaven, 2 Sam. 21. 10. Matth. 24. 30. and the production thereof is mentioned as an eminent work of God's Creation, Job 35. 5. and 36 29. Psal. 147. 8. Prov. 8. 28. which therefore it is not credible, that Moses in his History of the Creation would omit, which he doth, if they be not here meant; and these are rightly said to be above the Firmament, i.e. the Air, because they are above a considerable part of it. u As God commanded and ordered it, so it was done and settled.

8 And God called the firmament heaven: And the evening and the morning were the second day.

*Job 26. 10. & 38. 8. Psal. 33.7. & 104.9. & 136. 6. Prov. 8. 29. Jer. 5. 22.

9 ¶ And God said, * Let the waters under the heaven x be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry-land appear y: and it was so.

x Both the great Abyss, or deep of Water which is shut up in the bowels of the Earth, Gen. 7. 11. Psal. 24. 2. and 33. 7. and 136. 6. as also the Sea and Rivers, all which are here said to be gathered together into one place, because of their communication and mixture one with another. y For hitherto it was covered with water, v. 2. 2 Pet. 3. 5.

10 And God called the dry-land earth, and the gathering together of the waters he called seas z: and God saw that it was good a.

z Nor Sea, but Seas; because of the differing quantity and nature both of several Seas, and of the Rivers, and other lesser collections of Waters, all which the Hebrews call Seas. a The separation of the Waters was begun on the Second day, v. 6, &c. but not perfected till this Third day: Therefore God's approbation of that work is not mentioned there, but here only.

11 And God said, Let the earth bring forth b † grass c, the herb yielding Seed d, and the fruit tree yielding fruit after his kind e, whose Seed is † in it self g, upon the earth: and it was so.

b The sense is, For the present let it afford matter, out of which I will make Grass, (as man's rib afforded matter, out of which God made Woman): and for the future let it receive vertue or power of producing it out of that Matter which I have made, and suited to that end. c That which groweth of it self without Seed, or manuring, and is the food of Beasts. d For the propagation of their several kinds, to wit, mature and perfect Herbs, which alone yield Seed. So afterwards God made man, not in the state of childhood, but of grown and perfect Age. e i.e. According to the several kinds of Fruits. f Now is by my constitution, and shall be for the future. g i.e. In some part of it self, either in the root, or branch, or leaf, or bud, or fruit. The sense is, Which is sufficient of it self for the propagation of its kind, without any conjunction of Male and Female.

12 And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind; and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in it self, after his kind: And God saw that it was good h.

h This clause is so often added, to shew that all the disorders, evil and hurtful qualities that now are in the Creatures, are not to be imputed to God, who made all of them good; but to man's sin, which hath corrupted their nature, and perverted their use.

13 And the evening and the morning were the third day.

14 ¶ And God said, Let there be * lights i in the firmament of the heaven, to divide † the day k from the night: And let them be for signs l, and for seasons m, and for days n, and years o.

* Deut. 4. 19. Psal. 136. 7. † Heb. between the Day and Night.

i To wit, more glorious Lights than that created the first Day, which probably was now condensed and reduced into these Lights; which are higher for place, more illustrious for Light, and more powerful for influence than that was. Note here, That Herbs and Trees were created before the Sun, whose influence now is necessary for their production, to shew that God doth not depend upon the means, or upon the help of the Creatures in his Operations. k i.e. The artificial day reaching from Sun-rising to Sun-setting. l For the designation and distinction of times, as months, weeks, &c. as also for the signification of the quality of the Weather or Season by the manner of their rising and setting, Matth. 16. 2. By their Eclipses, Conjunctions, &c. And for the discovery of supernatural and miraculous effects; of which see *Jos.*10.13. *Isa.*38.8. Luke 21. 25,26. Act 2.19,20. m By their Motions and Influences to produce and distinguish the four Seasons of the year, mentioned Gen. 8. 22. And to shew as well the fit Times and Seasons for Sowing, Planting, Reaping, Navigation, &c. as for the Observation of set and solemn Feasts, or other times for the ordering of Ecclesiastical or Civil Affairs. n By their diurnal and swift motion to make the days, and by their nearer approaches to us, or further distances from us, to make the Days or Nights either longer, or shorter, or equal. He speaks here of natural days consisting of 24 hours. o By their annual and slower motion to make years.

15 And let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven, to give light upon the earth: And it was so.

16 And God made † two great lights p, the greater † light p † to rule the day q, and the lesser light to rule the night: He made the * stars also.

† Heb. the two great, &c. † Heb. for the rule of the day,

* Or, Enlighteners, as the word properly signifies. p The Sun, which is really and considerably greater than the Moon, or any of the Stars, or the whole Earth. And the Moon, called here the lesser Light is greater than any of the Stars, not really, but in appearance, and in clearness and light, in respect of which it is called great in this place, and both are much greater in efficacy and use, than any of the Stars. q Either, 1. To influence the Earth and its Fruits with heat or moisture, and to govern mens actions and affairs, which commonly are transacted by day: For the word Day is sometimes put Metanymically for the events of the Day, as Prov. 27. 1. 1 Cor. 3. 13. Or, 2. To regulate and manage the day, by its rise to begin it, by its gradual progress to carry it on, even to the mid-day, and by its declination and setting, to impair and end it. Which seems most probable, because the Moon is in like manner said to rule the night, which is meant of the time, and not of the actions or events of the Night.

17 And God set them in the firmament of the heaven, to give light upon the earth:

18 And to * rule over the day, and over the night, and to divide the night from the darkness: And God saw that it was good r.

* Jer. 31. 35.

r This Clause was omitted in the first day's work, but is added here, because the Light was then but glimmering and imperfect, which now was made more clear and compleat.

19 And the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

20 ¶ And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly † the moving creature s that hath life, and † fowl that may fly t above the earth, in the † open firmament of heaven.

† Heb. The creeping swimming Creature, a living soul. † Heb. Let move in: Hence it is used both of Birds which fly in the Air, Lev. 11. 20. and of things creeping upon the Earth, as v. 24. of this Chapter, and of Fishes that swim in the Sea, as here. s The particle that or which is oft wanting, and to be underflood in the Hebrew Language, as Gen. 39. 4. Job 41. 1. Isa. 6. 6. according to this Translation the Fowl have their matter from the Water as well as the Fishes; which seem most probable, as from this, so also from the following Verses, in which they are both mentioned together as made of the same materials, and as works of the same day, and both are blessed together, and both are distinguished and separated from the production of the Earth, which were the works of the sixth day, v. 24, &c. And whereas it is said, Gen. 2. 19. Out of the ground the Lord God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air; It may be answered, That the word Ground or Earth may be there understood more largely, as it is confessedly in some other places of Scripture, for the lower part of the World consisting of Earth and Water. For it is most reasonable to expound that short and general passage from the foregoing Chapter, wherein the original both of Beasts and Fowls are largely and distinctly described. Moreover the Fowl seem to have been made of both these Elements, viz. of soft and moist Earth, possibly taken from the bottom of the Water, in which case they were brought forth by the Water, as is said here, and formed out of the ground, as there. As Eve is said to be made of Adam's Bone and Rib. Gen. 2. 21. and of his Flesh, v. 23. Which shews that with the Rib, Flesh was taken from Adam, tho it be not said so, v. 21. So here, the Fowl were made both of Water and Earth, as their Temper and Constitution shews, tho but one of them be here expressed. But these words are by some Translated thus, And let the fowl fly. But according to that Translation, the mention of the Fowl, both here and in the following Verse, seems to be very improper and forced. For it is preposterous and contrary to the method constantly used in this whole Chapter, Chapter, to speak of the motion of any living Creature, and the place thereof, before its original and production be mentioned. Besides, either the original of the Fowls is described here, or it is wholly omitted in this Chapter, which is not credible.

*Psal.104. 26. † Heb. Living Soul. *Or, Swimmeth.

21 And God Created u great * Whales x, and every † living Creature that * moveth, which the Waters brought forth abundantly after their kind, and every winged Fowl after his kind y, and God saw that it was good.

u i.e. Produced out of most unfit matter, as if a man should out of a Stone make Bread, which requires as great a power as that which is properly called Creation. x Those vast Sea-Monsters known by that Name, though elsewhere this word be applied to great Dragons of the Earth. y In such manner as is declared in the first Note upon Verse 20.

22 And God blessed them z, saying, * Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the Waters in the Seas a, and let Fowl multiply in the Earth b.

z Gave them power of procreation, and fruitfulness, which is justly mentioned as a great blessing, Psal. 128. 3, 4. a And consequently in the Rivers, which come from the Sea, and return into it. b Where they shall commonly have their Habitation, though they had their original from the Waters; of which see on v. 20.

23 And the Evening and the Morning were the fifth day.

† Heb. Living Souls.

24 ¶ And God said, Let the Earth bring forth † the living Creature c after his kind, Cattle d, and creeping thing e, and the Beast f of the Earth after his kind: And it was so.

c i.e. Those living Creatures heresafter mentioned, whose original is from the Earth, and whose Habitation is in it. d i.e. Those tame Beasts, which are most familiar with, and useful to men for Food, Clothing, or other service. e To wit, of the Earth, of a differing kind from those creeping things of the Water, v. 20. f i.e. The wild Beast, as the Hebrew word commonly signifies, and as appears further, because they are distinguished from the tame Beasts, here called Cattle.

25 And God made the Beast of the Earth after his kind, and Cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth upon the Earth after his kind: And God saw that it was good.

* Chap. 5. 1. & 9. 6. 1 Cor. 11. 7. Eph. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10. *Psal. 8. 6.

26 ¶ And God said g, * Let us make man h in our Image, after our likeness i: and * let them k have dominion over the Fish of the Sea, and over the Fowl of the Air, and over the Cattle l, and over all the Earth m, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the Earth.

g Having prepared all things necessary for mans use and comfort. h The plurals us, and our, afford an evident proof of a plurality of persons in the Godhead. It is plain from many other Texts as well as from the Nature and Reason of the thing, that God alone is mans Creator; the Angels rejoyced at the work of Creation, but only God wrought it, Job 38. 4, 5, 6, 7. And it is no less plain from this Text, and from divers other places, that man had more Creators than one Person. See Job 35. 10. John 1. 2, 3. &c. Heb. 1. 3. And as other Texts assure us that there is but one God, so this shews that there are more Persons in the Godhead: Nor can that seeming contradiction of one and more being in the Godhead be otherwise reconciled, than by acknowledging a plurality of Persons in the Unity of Essence. It is pretended that God here speaks after the manner of Princes in the plural number, who use to say, We Will and Require, or, It is Our Pleasure. But this is only the invention and practice of latter times, and no way agreeable to the simplicity either of the first ages of the World, or of the Hebrew Style. The Kings of Israel used to speak of themselves in the singular number, 2 *Sam.*3. 28. 1 Chron. 21. 17. and 29. 14. 2 Chron. 2. 6. And so did the Eastern Monarchs too, yea, even in their Decrees and Orders, which now run in the plural number, as Ezra 6. 8. 1 (Darius) make a Decree, Ezra 7. 21. I, even I Artaxerxes the King, do make a Decree. Nor do I remember one example in Scripture to the contrary. It is therefore a rash and presumptuous attempt, without any warrant, to thrust the usages of modern Style into the sacred Scripture. Besides, the Lord doth generally speak of himself in the singular number, some few places excepted, wherein the plural number is used for the signification of this Mystery. Moreover, this device is utterly overthrown by comparing this Text with Gen. 3. 22. The Lord God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us. Therefore there are more Persons than one in the Godhead. How many they are, other Texts plainly inform us, as we shall see in their proper places. And whereas he saith not now as he did before, Let the Earth or Waters bring forth, but Let us make; this change of the phrase and manner of expression shews, that man was, as the last, so the most perfect, and the chief of the ways and works of God in this lower World. i Image and likeness are two words noting the same thing, even exact likeness. For both of them are used of Adam, Gen. 5. 3. He begat a Son in his own likeness, after his Image; and they are separately and indifferently used in the same sence, man being said to be made in the likeness of God, Gen. 5. 1. and in the Image of God, Gen. 9. 6. Quest. Wherein doth the Image of God in Man consist? Answ. 1. It is in the whole Man, both in the Blessedness of his Estate, and in his Dominion over the rest of the Creatures. 2. It shines forth even in the Body, in the Majesty of mans Countenance, and height of his Stature, which is set towards Heaven, when other Creatures by their down looks bow the lowness and meanness of their Nature, as even Heathens have observed. 3. It principally consists and most eminently appears in mans Soul. 1. In its Nature and Substance, as it is, like God, Spiritual, Invisible, Immortal, &c. 2. In its Powers and Faculties, Reason or Understanding, and freedom in its choice and actions. 3. In the singular endowments wherewith God hath adorned it, as Knowledge, Righteousness, and true Holiness, in which St. Paul chiefly placeth this Image, Eph. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10. k The Male and Female, both comprehended in the word, Man, as is expressed v. 27. together with their Posterity. l By which he understands either, 1. Both tame and wild Beasts, the same word being used here in a differing sence from what it hath v. 25. as is frequent in Scripture. Or, 2. Tame Beasts, which are particularly mentioned, because they are more under mans Dominion than the wild Beasts, and more fitted for mans Use and Benefit, though the other be not excluded, but comprehended under the former, as the more famous kind, as is usual in Scriptures and other Authors. m Over all other Creatures and Productions of the Earth, and over the Earth it self, to manage it as they see fit for their own comfort and advantage.

* Mal. 2. 15. Matth. 19. 4. Mar. 10. 6.

27 So God Created man in his own Image, in the Image of God Created he him. * Male and Female Created he them n.

n Not both together, as some of the Jews have Fabled, but successively, the Woman after and out of the Man, as is more particularly related, Gen. 2. 21, &c. which is here mentioned by anticipation. Albeit the Woman also seems to have been made upon the sixth day, as is here related, and as the following blessing thereto, which is common to both of them, though the particular History of it is brought in afterwards Chap. 2. by way of recapitulation, or repetition.

* Chap. 9. 1.

28 And God blessed them o, and God said unto them, * Be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the Earth p, and subdue it, and have dominion over the Fish of the Sea, and over the Fowl of the Air, and over every living thing that † moveth upon the Earth.

o Having blessed them with excellent Natures, and heavenly Gifts and Graces, he further blesseth them with a special and temporal blessing expressed in the following words. p With inhabitants to be begotten by you. Quest. Whether this be a command obliging all men to Marriage and Procreation? So the Hebrew Doctors think. It may be thus resolved. 1. It is a command obliging all men so far as not to suffer the extinction of mankind: Thus it did absolutely bind Adam and Eve, as also Noah, and his Sons and their Wives after the Flood. 2. It doth not oblige every particular person to marry, as appears both from the example of the Lord Jesus, who lived and died in an unmarried State, and from his commendation of those who made themselves Eunuchs for the Kingdom of God, Matth. 19 12. And from St. Pauls approbation of Virginity, 1 Cor. 7. 1, 8, 26, 27, 32, &c. 3. It is here rather a promise or benediction, than a command, as appears both from v. 22. where the same words are applied to the brute Beasts, who are not subject to a command; and because if this were a command, it would equally oblige every man to exercise dominion over Fishes and Fowls, &c. which is absurd. It is therefore a permission rather than a command, though it be expressed in the form of a command, as other permissions frequently are, as Gen. 2. 16 Deut. 14 4.

29 ¶ And God said, Behold, I have given you every Herb † bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the Earth, and every Tree in the which is the frui of a Tree yielding seed, * to you it shall be for meat q.

q It is neither affirmed nor denied that Flesh also was granted to the first men for food, and therefore we may safely be ignorant of it. It is sufficient for us, that it was expressly allowed, Gen. 9. 2.

30 And to every Beast of the Earth, and to every Fowl of the † Air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the Earth, wherein there is † Life, I have given every green Herb for meat: And it was so.

† Heb. Heb. ven. † Heb. Living Soul.

31 And God saw every thing that he had made: And behold it was very good. And the Evening and the Morning were the sixth day.

CHAP. II.

The Sabbath instituted and Blessed, 2, 3. A rehearsal of the Creation; and (1*st.*) of Vegetables, 4, 5. The Earth watered, 6. (2.) of Man, 7. His Habitation, 8, 9. Trees for his delight and Food: as also the tree of Life and Knowledge, 9. Its pleasant Situation and Riches, 10——14. Mans Employment, 15. Every tree given him but that of Knowledge, 16. This denied on pain of Death, 17. A purpose to create the Woman, and the Reason thereof, 18. Beasts and Fowls named by Adam, 19, 20. The Woman made of Adam's Rib presented to him, 21, 22. And owned by him, 23. Marriage Ordained, 24. Their state whilst innocent, 25.

THus the Heavens and the Earth were finished, and * all the Host of them a.

* Psal. 33. 6.

a All the Creatures in Heaven and Earth are called their Hosts, for their multitude, variety, order, power, and subjection to the Lord of Hosts. Particularly the Host of Heaven in Scripture (which is its own best interpreter) signifies both the Stars, as Deut. 4. 19. and 17. 3. Isa. 34. 4. and the Angels, as 1 Kings 22. 9. 2 Chron. 18. 18. Luke 2. 13. Who from these words appear to have been Created within the compass of the first six days, which also is probable from Col. 1. 16, 17. But it is no wonder that the Scripture saith so little concerning Angels, because it was written for the use of men, not of Angels; and God would hereby take us off from curious and impertinent speculations, and teach us to employ our thoughts about necessary and useful things.

* Exod. 20 11. 31. 17. Deut. 5. 14. Heb. 4

2 * And on the seventh day God ended b his work which he had made: And he rested c on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

b Or rather had ended or finished, for so the Hebrew word may be rendred, as all the Learned know; and so it must be rendred, else it doth not agree with the former Chapter, which expressly saith, that all these works were done within six days. c Not for his own need and refreshment, for he is never weary, Isa. 40. 28. but for our example and instruction, that we might keep that day as a day of Religious rest.

3 And God Blessed the seventh day d, and sanctified it e: because that in it he had rested from all his Work †, which God * Created and made †.

d By conferring special Honours and Priviledges upon it above all other days, that it should be a day of solemn rest and rejoycing and celebration of God and his Works, and a day of Gods bestowing singular, and the best blessings upon his Servants and Worshippers. e Separated it from common use and worldly employments, and consecrated it to the Worship of God, that it should be accounted an Holy day, and spent in Holy works and Solemn exercises of Religion. Some conceive that the Sabbath was not actually blessed and sanctified at and from this time, but only in the days of Moses, which they pretend to be here related by way of anticipation. But this opinion hath no foundation in the Text or Context, but rather is confuted from them: for as soon as the sacred Penman had said that God had ended his work and rested, &c. he adds immediately in words of the same tense, that God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it. And if we compare this place with Exod. 20. we shall find that Moses there speaks of God's blessing and sanctifying of the Sabbath, not as an action then first done, but as that which God had done formerly upon the Creation of the World, to the end that men might celebrate the praises of God for that glorious work, which as it was agreeable to the state of innocency, so was it no less proper and necessary a duty for the first ages of the World after the fall, than it was for the days of Moses, and for the succeeding Generations. * Because he would have the memory of that glorious work of Creation, from which he then rested, preserved through all Generations. † Either 1. Created in making, i. e. made by way of Creation. Or rather, 2. Created out of nothing, and afterwards out of that Created matter made or formed divers things, as the Beasts out of the Earth, the Fishes out of the Water. He useth these two words possibly to shew that God's Wisdom, Power and Goodness, was manifest not only in that which he brought out of meer nothing, but also in those things which he wrought out of matter altogether unfit for so great works.

4 ¶ These f are the Generations g of the Heavens, and of the Earth, when they were Created, in the day h that the LORD God made the Earth and the Heavens.

f i. e. These things mentioned in the 1 chap. g i. e. A true and full relation of their Generations, i. e. Of their Original, or Beginnings. h Not strictly so called, but largely taken for the time, as it is v. 17. Ruth 4. 5. Luke 19. 42. 2 Cor. 6. 2.

5 And every Plant of the Field, before it was in the Earth i, and every Herb of the Field before it grew k: for the LORD God had not caused it to rain upon the Earth, and there was not a man to till the ground l.

i i. e. When as yet there were no Plants, nor so much as Seeds of them there. k To wit, out of the Earth, as afterwards they did by Gods appointment. l The two great means of the Growth of Plants and Herbs, viz. Rain from Heaven, and the labour of man, were both lacking, to shew that they were now brought forth by Gods Almighty power and word.

6 * But there went up m a mist o from the Earth, and watered the whole face of the ground p.

m To wit, from time to time by Gods appointment. o Or, Vapour, or, Cloud, which going up into the Air, was turned into Rain, and fell down again to the Earth from whence it arose. p Whereby the Earth was softned and disposed both to the nourishment of these Plants or Trees that were Created, and to the production of new Plants in a natural and ordinary way. But these words may be otherwise understood, the Copulative, and, here rendred but, being put for the Disjunctive, or, as it is Exod. 21. 15, 17. Job 6. 22. and 8. 3. and in other places. Or, the Negative particle, not, may be understood out of the foregoing clause, as it is usual in the Hebrew Language, as Psal. 1. 5. and 9. 17. and 44. 19. and 50. 8. and Isa. 28. 27, 28. And so these words may be joyned with the foregoing, and both Translated in this manner, There was no Rain, nor a Man to till the ground, or, (or, nor, for both come to one thing) so much as a mist which went up from the Earth, and watered (as afterwards was usual and natural) the whole face of the ground.

†Heb. dust of the ground. 7 And the LORD God formed man † of the * dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils q the breath of Life r: and * Man s became a living Soul t.

*1 Cor. 15. 47. *1 Cor. 15. 45.

q And by that door into the Head and whole man. This is an emphatical phrase, fitly implying that the Soul of man was of a quite differing Nature and higher Extraction and Original than the Souls of Beasts, which together with their Bodies are said to be brought forth by the Earth, Genesis 1. 24. r Heb. Of Lives: Either to shew the continuance of this breath or soul both in this Life, and in the Life to come; or to note the various degrees or kinds of Life, which this one breath worketh in us, the Life of Plants, in growth and nourishment; the Life of Beasts, in sense and motion; and the Life of a Man, in Reason and Understanding. s Who before this was but a dull lump of Clay, or a comely Statue. t i. e. A living Man: The Soul being oft put for the whole Man, as Gen. 12. 5, 13. and 46. 15, 18. 1 Pet. 3. 20, &c.

8 And the LORD God Planted u a Garden x East-ward y in Eden z: And there he put the man whom he had formed a.

u Or, had planted, viz. on the third day, when he made the Plants and Trees to grow out of the ground. x A place of the choicest Plants and Fruits, most beautiful and pleasant. y From the place where Moses writ, and the Israelites afterwards dwelt. z Eden here is the name of a place, not that Eden near Damascus in Syria, of which see Amos 1. 5. but another Eden in Mesopotamia or Chaldea, of which see Gen. 4. 16. 2 Kings 19. 12. Isa. 37. 12. Ezek. 27. 23. There are many and tedious disputes about the place of this Paradise: of which he that listeth may see my Latin Synopsis. It may suffice to know that which is evident, that it was in or near to Mesopotamia, in the confluence of Euphrates and Tigres. a To wit, in another place.

9 And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow every Tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for Food, the Tree of Life b also in the midst of the Garden *, and the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil c.

b So called either symbolically, and sacramentally, because it was a sign and seal of that Life which man had received from God, and of his continual enjoyment of it upon condition of his Obedience: Or, effectively, because God had planted in it a singular vertue for the support of Nature, prolongation of Life, and the prevention of all Diseases, Infirmities and decays through age. * Or, within the Garden, as Tyrus is said to be in the midst of the Seas, Ezek. 28. 2. Though it was but just within it. c So called with respect, either, 1. To God, who thereby would prove and make known mans Good or Evil, his Obedience and Happiness, or his Rebellion and Misery. Or rather, 2. To Man, who by the use of it would know to his cost, how great and good things he did enjoy and might have kept by his Obedience, and how evil and bitter the fruits of his Disobedience were to himself and all his posterity. So it seems to be an ironical denomination, q. d. You thirsted after more knowledge, which also the Devil promised you, and you have got what you desired; more Knowledge, even dear bought Experience.

10 And a River d went out of Eden e to water the Garden, and from thence † it was parted, and became into four heads f.

d Or, Rivers, by a common Enallage. e The Countrey in which Paradise was; where those Rivers either arose from one spring, or met together in one channel. † (i. e.) From the Garden. f It was divided into four principal Rivers. Concerning which there are now many disputes. But it is no wonder if the rise and scituation of these Rivers be not now certainly known, because of the great changes, which in so long time might happen in this, as well as in other Rivers, partly by Earth quakes, and principally by the general Deluge. And yet Euphrates and Tigris, the chief of these Rivers, whereof the other two are branches, are discovered by some learned men, to have one and the same original or spring, and that in a most pleasant part of Armenia, where they conceive Paradise was. See my Latin Synopsis.

11 The name of the first is Pison g; that is it which compasseth h the whole Land of Havilah i, where there is Gold.

g An eminent branch of the River Tigris, probably that called by others Pasi-tigris, or Pise-tigris. h i. e. With many windings and turnings passed thorough; as this word is used, Jos. 15. 3. Mat. 23. 15. i Either that which is in those parts of Arabia which is towards Mesopotamia, so called from Havilah the issue of Cham, Gen. 10. 7. Or that which is nigh Persia, and in the borders of India, so called from another Havilah of the Posterity of Sem, Gen. 10. 29. To either of these following the description agrees well.

12 And the Gold of that Land is * good k: there is Bdellium l, and the Onyx-stone m.

*2 Chron. 3. 5.

k i. e. Better than ordinary. l Which signifies either a precious gumme, of which see Numb. 11. 7. or Gems and Pearls. Once for all observe, that many of the Hebrew words or names of Stones, Trees, Birds, and Beasts, are even to the Hebrew Doctors and others both ancient and modern Interpreters, of uncertain signification, and that without any considerable inconvenience to us who are free from the obligations which the Jews were formerly under of procuring such stones, and abstaining in their Diet from such Beasts and Birds as then were sufficiently known to them; and if any were doubtful, they had one safe course, to abstain from them. m A kind of precious stone, of which see Exod. 25. 7. and 28. 9, 20.

13 And the name of the second River is Gihon n: The same is it that compasseth the whole Land of † E- †Cush. thiopia o.

n Not that River in the Land of Israel so called, 1 Kings 1. 33. 2 Chron. 32. 30. But another of the same name, which in Hebrew signifies, the branch of a greater River: Here it is a branch either of Euphrates, as most think, or of Tigris, as some late Writers conceive. o Not that Countrey in Africa above Egypt, commonly so call'd; but either Arabia, which in Scripture is frequently called Cush or Ethiopia. Of which see the notes upon 2 Kings 19. 9. Job 28. 19. Ezek. 29. 10. and 30. 8, 9. Heb. 3. 7. or rather a Countrey adjoyning to India, and Persia, with which Cush is joyned, Ezek. 38. 5. See also Isa. 11. 11. and Ezek. 27. 10. And about which place the Ethiopians are seated by Herod. l. 7. Homer, Hesiod, and others. Of which see my Latin Synopsis.

14 And the name of the third River is Hiddekel p: That is it which goeth * toward the East of Assyria. And the fourth River is Euphrates.

p (i. e.) Tigris, or an eminent branch of it. See Dan. 10. 4.

15 And the LORD God took † the Man, and put him q into the Garden of Eden, to * dress it r, and to keep it s.

†Or, Adam. * Or, till.

q (i. e.) Commanded and enclined him to go. r (i. e.) To prune, dress, and order the Trees and Herbs of it. s From the annoyance of Beasts, which being unreasonable Creatures, and allowed the use of Herbs, might easily spoil the beauty of it. See Chap. 3. 23.

16 And the LORD God commanded the Man t, †saying, Of every Tree of the Garden † thou mayest freely eat u.

t And the Woman too (as appears both from the permission for eating Herbs and Fruits given to her, together with her Husband, Gen. 1. 28, 29. and from Gen. 3. 1, 2, 3. and from Every punishment) and that either immediately, or by Adam whom God enjoyned to inform her thereof. u Without offence to me, or hurt to thy self. The words in Hebrew have the form of a command, but are only a permission or indulgence, as 1 Cor. 10. 25, 27.

17 But of the Tree of the Knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: For in the day that thou eatest thereof, † thou shalt surely dye x.

x With a threefold death. 1. Spiritual by the guilt and power of sin: at that instant thou shalt be dead in trespasses and sins, Eph. 2. 1. 2. Temporal, or the death of the Body, which shall then begin in thee, by decays, infirmities, terrors, dangers, and other harbingers of death. 3. Eternal, which shall immediately succeed the other.

18 And the LORD God said y, It is not good z that the man should be alone: I will make him an help † meet for him a.

†Heb. as before him, or, as it were comparable to him, If 40. 22.

y To wit, Had said, to wit, upon the sixth day, on which the Woman was made, Gen. 1. 27, 28. z Not convenient either for my purpose of the increase of mankind, or for mans personal comfort, or for the propagation of his kind. a A most emphatical phrase, signifying thus much, one correspondent to him, suitable both to his nature and necessity, one altogether like to him in shape and constitution, disposition and affection; a second self; or one to be at hand and near to him, to stand continually before him, familiarly to converse with him, to be always ready to succor, serve, and comfort him; or, one whose eye, respect, and care, as well as desire, (Gen. 3. 16) should be to him, whose business it shall be to please and help him.

19 And out of the ground the LORD God formed every Beast of the Field, and every Fowl of the Air, and brought them b unto * Adam c, to see d what he would call them: And whatsoever Adam called every † living Creature, that was the name thereof e.

*Or, the Man.

b Either by Winds, or Angels, or by their own secret instinct, by which Storks, and Cranes, and Swallows change their places with the season. c Partly to own their subjection to him; partly that man, being recreated with their prospect, might adore and praise the Maker of them, and withal be sensible of his want of a meet companion, and so the better prepared to receive Gods mercy therein; and partly for the reason here following. d Or, make a discovery, not to God, who knew it already, but to all future Generations, who would hereby understand the deep wisdom and knowledge of their first Parent. e To wit, in the primitive or Hebrew Language. And this was done for the manifestation both of mans Dominion over the Creatures, and of the largeness of his understanding; it being an act of authority to give names, and an effect of vast knowledge to give convenient names to all the Creatures, which supposeth an exact acquaintance with their Natures.

20 And Adam † gave Names to all Cattel, and to the Fowl of the Air, and to every Beast of the Field: but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him f.

f q. d. But though, in giving them names, he confidered their several natures and perfections, it was evident to himself, as well as to the Lord, that none of them was an help meet for him.

21 And the LORD God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam g, and he slept: and he took one of his Ribs h, and closed up the Flesh i instead thereof k.

g That he, who was without sin, might feel no pain in the taking away of his Rib. And in this deep some think Adam was in an extasie, wherein he saw what was done, together with the reason and mystery of it. h Together with the Flesh upon it, v. 23. Or, one of his sides, for the Hebrew word signifieth a Side as well as a Rib, which may be taken Synecdochically, for a part of one of his sides, viz. a Rib and the Flesh upon it: Or, for one part out of each of his sides; as if the two Ribs clothed with Flesh were taken out of the man, because he saith, verse 23. This is Bone of my Bones, not, of my Bone. The Woman was taken out of this part, not out of the higher or lower parts, to shew that she is neither to be her husbands Mistress, to usurp authority over him, 1 Tim. 2. 12. Nor yet to be his Slave, to be abused, despised, or trampled under his feet; but to be kindly treated, and used like a companion, with moderation, respect, and affection. Quest. How could a Rib be taken from Adam, but it must be either superfluous in Adam, while it was in him, or defective afterwards, both which reflect upon the Creator? Answ. 1. It was no superfluity, but a conveniency, if Adam had at first one Rib extraordinary put into him for this purpose. 2. If Adam lost a Rib upon so glorious an occasion, it was but a fear or badge of honour, and no disparagement either to him, or to his Creator. 3. Either God created him a new Rib, or hardned the Flesh to the Nature and Use of a Rib, and so there was no defect in him. i Together with another Bone or Rib. k (i. e.) Of that Rib and Flesh which he took away from him, which was ease for God to do.

22 And the Rib, which the LORD God had taken from Man, † made he a Woman, and brought her unto the Man m.

l From some place at a little distance, whither he first carryed her, that for the decency of the action he might bring her thence. m A Bride to a Bridegroom to be married to him: the great God being pleased to act the part of a Father to give his Daughter and workmanship to him, thereby both teaching Parents their duty of providing Marriages for their Children, and Children their duty of expecting their Parents consent in Marriage.

23 And Adam said n, This is now o Bone of my Bones, and Flesh of my Flesh p: She shall be called † Woman, because she was * taken out of man.

†1 Cor. 11. 8. *Or, Man.

n Eg. How knew he this? Answ. Either 1. By his own observation: For though it be said that he was asleep till the Rib was taken out and restored, yet he might awake as soon as ever that was done, the reason of his sleep ceasing, and so might see the making of the Woman. Or, 2. By the Revelation of God, who put these words into Adams mouth, to whom therefore these words of Adam are ascribed, Matth. 19. 5. o Or, For this time the Woman is made of my Bones, &c. but for the time to come the Woman as well as the Man shall be produced another way, to wit, by Generation. p Made of my Rib and Flesh, i. e. God hath provided me a meet help and Wife, not out of the brute Creatures, but nearer hand, a part of my own Body, and of the same nature with my self.

24 * Therefore q shall a man leave his Father and his Mother r, and shall cleave unto his Wife s: And they t shall u be one Flesh x.

*Matth. 19. 5. Mar. 10. 7. 1 Cor. 6. 16. Eph. 5. 31.

q These are the Words of Moses by divine instinct, or his inference from Adam's words. r In regard of Habitation and Society, but not as to natural duty and affection. s In Conjugal relation and highest affection, even above what they owe to their Parents. t Or, they two, as it is in the Samaritan, Syriack, and Arabick Translations, and Matthew 19. 5. u (i. e.) Shall be esteemed by themselves and others to be as intirely, and inseparably united, and shall have as intimate and universal communion, as if they were x (i. e.) one Person, one Soul, one Body. And this first institution shews the sinfulness of Divorces, and Polygamy, however God might upon a particular reason for a time dispence with his own institution, or remit the punishment due to the violaters of it.

25 And they were both naked, the Man and his Wife; and were not ashamed y.

y To wit, of their nakedness, as having no guilt, nor cause of shame; no filthy or evil inclinations in their Bodies, no sinful Concupiscence, or impure motions in their Souls, but spotless innocency and perfection, which must needs exclude shame.

CHAP. III.

The Serpent's subtilty, and ensnaring Question, 1. The Woman's Answer, 2. The Serpent denies the certainty of the threatning, 4. Suggests a Benefit by Eating, 5. The Woman looks on the Fruit, takes, eats, gives to the Man, who also eats of it, 6. The consequence of their sin, 7, 8. Adam's summons, 9. Appearance, 10. Examination, 11. Excuse, 12. The Woman examined, excuses, yet confesses the fact, 13. Sentence upon the Serpent the instrument, 14. Upon the Devil the chief agent, with the first Gospel Promise, 15. Upon the Woman, 16. Upon the Man, 17——19. Adam names his Wife, 20. God clothes them, 21. They are thrown out of Paradise, 22. to till the Ground, 23. Their return impossible, 24.

NOw the Serpent a was more subtile than any Beast of the Field b, which the LORD God had made: and he said c unto the Woman d, † Yea, e hath God said f, Ye shall not eat of every g Tree of the Garden?

a Or, rather, this or that Serpent: For here is an emphatical article, of which more by and by. b The Serpents eminent subtilty is noted both in sacred Scripture. Gen. 49. 17. Psal. 58. 5. Matth. 10. 16. 2 Cor. 11. 3. and by Heathen Authors, whereof these instances are given; that when it is assaulted, it secures its head; That it stops its ear at the Charmer's voice; and the like. If it be yet said, that some Beasts are more subtile, and therefore this is not true; it may be replied. 1. It is no wonder if the Serpent for its instrumentality in mans sin hath lost the greatest part of its original subtilty, even as mans sin was punished with a great decay both of the natural endowments of his Mind, Wisdom, and Knowledge, and of the beauty, and glory of his Body, the instrument of his sin. But this Text may, and seems to be understood not of the whole Kind of Serpents, but of this individual, or particular Serpent; for it is in the Hebrew Hannachash, that Serpent, or this Serpent, to signifie that this was not only an ordinary Serpent, but was acted and assisted by the Devil, who is therefore called that old Serpent, Rev. 12. 9. And this seems most probable, partly from the following discourse, which is added as a proof of that which is here said concerning the Serpents subtilty; and that surely was not the discourse of a Beast, but of a Devil; and partly from 2 Cor. 11. 3. which hath a manifest reference to this place, where the Apostle affirmeth that the Serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty: not surely through that subtilty which is common to all Serpents, but through that subtilty which was peculiar to this, as it was possessed and acted by the Devil. There seems indeed to be an allusion here to the natural subtilty of all Serpents; and the sense of the sacred Penman may seem to be this, as if he said, The Serpent indeed in its self is a subtile Creature, and thought to be more subtile than any Beast of the Field; but how fewer this be in other Serpents, it is certain that this Serpent was more subtile than any Beast of the Field, as will appear by the following words. If it be said, the particle this, or that, is relative to something going before, where as there is not a word about it in the foregoing words: I answer, That relative particles are often put without any antecedents; and the antecedents are left to be gathered not only out of the foregoing, but sometimes also out of the following passages, as is apparent from Exod. 14. 29. Numb. 7. 19. and 24. 15. Psal. 87. 2. and 109. 29. and 114. 2. Prov. 7. 8. and 24. 26. So here, that Serpent, that of which I am now to speak, whose discourse with the Woman here followeth. c Quest. How the Serpent could speak, and what the Woman conceived of his speech, and why she was not affrighted, but continued the discourse with it? There be two satisfactory answers may be given to these questions. 1. The Woman knew that there were Spirits, and did freely and frequently converse with Spirits or Angels, who also did appear in some visible shape to her, which seems very credible; because in the following Ages not only the Angels, but even the blessed God himself did in that manner converse with men. And as they afterwards used to appear in the shape of men, why might not one of them now appear to her, and converse with her in the shape of a beautiful Serpent? And why might she not freely and sinfully discourse with this which she thought to be one of these good Angels, to whose care and tuition both She and her Husband were committed? For I suppose the fall of the Angels was yet unknown to her; and she thought this to be a good Spirit, otherwise she would have declined all conversation with an Apostate Spirit. 2. A late ingenious and learned Writer represents the matter thus, in which there is nothing absurd or incredible: The Serpent makes his address to the Woman with a short speech, and falutes her as the Empress of the World, &c. She is not affrighted, because there was as yet no cause of fear, no sin, and therefore no danger, but wonders and enquires what this meant, and whether he was not a brute Creature, and how he came to have speech, and understanding? The Serpent replies, that he was no better than a brute, and did indeed want both these gifts, but by eating of a certain fruit in this Garden he got both. She asked what fruit and Tree that was? Which when he shewed her, she replied, This, no doubt, is an excellent fruit, and likely to make the eater of it wise; but God hath forbidden us this Fruit: To which the Serpent replies, as it here follows in the Text. It is true, this discourse is not in the Text; but it is confessed by Jewish, and other Expositors, that these words, Yea, hath God said, &c. are a short and abrupt sentence, and that they were but the close of a foregoing discourse; which might well enough be either this now mentioned, or some other of a like nature. And that expression which follows v.6. When the Woman saw, i. e. understood, that it was a Tree to be desired to make one wise. may seem to imply, both that the Serpent told her, and that she believed, that the speech and understanding of the Serpent was the effect of the eating of that Fruit; and therefore that if raised him from a brute Beast to the degree of a reasonable Creature, it would elevate her from the humane to a kind of divine nature or condition. d Who had upon some occasion retired from her Husband for a season; an advantage which the crafty Serpent quickly espieth, and greedily embraceth, and assulteth her when she wanteth the help of her Husband. e Or, Why, or, Is it so, or, indeed, or of a truth. f It is scarce credible that God, who is so bountiful, and the sovereign Good, and so abhorring from all parsimony, and envy, should forbid you the enjoyment of any part of those provisions which he hath made for your use and comfort. g Or, of any; for the word is ambigious, which therefore the cunning adversary useth to hide the snare which he was laying for her.

2 And the Woman said unto the Serpent, We may eat of the Fruit of the Trees of the Garden:

3 But of the Fruit of the Tree, which is in the midst of the Garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it h, lest ye dye i.

h To wit, in order to the eating of it: Or, the touch might be simply forbidden, or the might reasonably understand it to be forbidden in and by the prohibition of eating, because it was an occasion of sin, and therefore to be avoided. For it is not probable that the Woman being not yet corrupted, should knowingly add to God's Word, or maliciously insinuate the harshness of the Precept. i Others, lest peradventure ye dye, as if she doubted of the truth of the threatning: Which seems not probable, the Woman yet continuing in the state of innocency, and such doubting being evidently sinful; and the Hebrew particle Pen, doth not always imply a doubt, as appears from Psal. 2. 12. Isa. 27. 3. and 36. 18. compared with 2 Kings 18. 3.

4 *And the Serpent said unto the Woman, Ye shall not surely dye k.

k It is not so certain as you imagine, that you shall dye. God did say so indeed for your terrour, and to keep you in awe; or, he had some mystical meaning in those words; but do not entertain such hard and unworthy thoughts of that God who is infinitely kind and gracious, that he will for such a trifle, as the eating of a little Fruit, undo you and all your Posterity, and so suddenly destroy the most excellent work of his own hands.

5 For God doth know l, that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened m: and ye shall be as Gods n, knowing Good and Evil o.

l If you would have the whole truth of the matter, and God's design in that Prohibition, it is only this. m He knoweth that you shall be so far from dying, that ye shall certainly be entred into a new and more noble kind of Life; and the eyes of your minds, which are now shut as to the knowledge of a World of things, shall then be opened, and see things more fully and distinctly. n Or, as God, like unto God himself in the largeness of your knowledge. o As the very name that God hath put upon the Tree may teach you. But this is a priviledge, of which, for divers causes best known to himself, some of which your own reason will easily guess at, he would not have you partake of.

6 And when the Woman saw p that the Tree was † good for Food, and that it was † pleasant to the Eyes *, and a Tree to be desired to make one Wise q; she took of the Fruit thereof, * and did eat, and gave also unto her Husband r with her s, and he did eat t.

p By curious and accurate observation, and gazing upon it, or perceiving it by the Serpents discourse, as was observed on ver. 3. * To wit, in an eminent degree; for otherwise so were all the rest. q Which she might know by the Serpents information. See the Notes on ver. 1. r Who by this time was returned to her. s (i. e.) Who now was with her; or, that he might eat with her and take his part of that Fruit. t By her perswasion and instigation. See 1 Tim. 2. 14.

7 And the Eyes of them both u were opened x, and they knew * that they were naked, and they sewed † Fig-leaves z together, and made themselves † Aprons a.

u Of their Minds and Consciences, which hitherto had been closed and blinded by the arts of the Devil. x As the Devil had promised them, though in a far differing, and sadder sense. 'They knew it before, when it was their glory, but now they knew it with grief and shame, from a sense both of their guilt for the sin newly past, and of that sinful Concupiscence which they now found working in them. y Or, tyed, twisted, or fastned. z The lesser branches or twigs, upon which were also the leaves of a Fig-tree, which peradventure was then neat them, and which because of its broad leaves was most fit for that use. a To cover their nakedness.

8 And they heard the voice b of the LORD God c walking in the garden in the cool † of the day d: and † Heb. wind. Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the LORD God e, amongst the trees of the garden.

b Mentioned ver. 9. or rather the sound, as the word voice is often taken in Scripture, as Psal. 93. 3. Rev. 10. 3. and 19. 6. c Either God the Father, or rather God the Son, appearing in the shape of a man, as afterwards he frequently did, to give a foretaste of his incarnation. d About Evening, the time when men use to walk abroad to recreate themselves, when there was a cool and refreshing Wind, whereby also the voice of the Lord was more speedily and effectually convey'd to Adam and his wife. e Being sensible of God's approach, and filled with Shame and Conscience of their own Guilt and dread of Judgement, instead of flying to God for Mercy, they foolishly attempted to run away from him, whom it was impossible to avoid.

9 And the LORD God called f unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou g?

f With a loud voice. g Thou whom I have so highly obliged, Whither and wherefore doest thou run away from me thy Friend and Father, whose presence was lately so sweet and acceptable to thee? In what Place, or rather in what Condition art thou? What is the cause of this sudden and wonderful Change? This he asks, not that he was ignorant of it, but to make way for the following Sentence, and to set a pattern for all Judges, that they should examine the Offender, and enquire into the Offence before they proceed to Punishment.

10 And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden: and I was afraid, because I was naked h; and I hid my self i.

h He confesseth his nakedness, which was evident, but saith nothing of his sin; which, if possible, he would have hid. See Job 31. 33. And is grieved for the shameful effects of his sin, but not yet sincerely penitent for his sin. i Out of reverence to thy glorious Majesty.

11 And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked *? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee k, that thou shouldest not eat?

* Or, that thy nakedness, which lately was thy glory, was now become matter of shame. k Concerning which I gave thee so severe a charge upon pain of death.

12 And the man said, The woman l whom thou gavest to be with me m, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat n.

l I have eaten, not by my own choice and inclination, but by the perswasion of this woman. m As a meet help, a faithful friend and constant companion, supposing that it was not good for me to be alone, which the event shews would have been much better for me. Thus Adam excuseth himself, and chargeth God foolishly with his sin. n Out of complacency to her, nor from any evil design against thee.

13 And the LORD God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done o? And the woman said, The Serpent p beguiled me q, and I did eat r.

o How heinous a crime hast thou committed? What a World of mischief hast thou, by this one act, brought upon thy self and all thy posterity? Or, Why hast thou done this? What causes or motives couldst thou have for so wicked an action? What need hadst thou of meddling with this forbidden fruit, when I had given thee so large and liberal an allowance? p A Creature which thou hast made, and that assisted by an higher Power, by an evil Angel, for such I now perceive by sad experience there are. q A weak and foolish Woman, whose seduction calls for thy Pity, not thine Anger. r Being surprized, and over-perswaded against my own Judgment and Resolution.

14 And the LORD God said unto the Serpent s, Because thou hast done this s, thou art u cursed above all cattel, and above every beast of the field x: upon thy belly shalt thou go *, and dust shalt thou eat y all the days of thy life.

s Or rather this, or that Serpent, which as was said before on v. 1. was no ordinary Serpent, but a Serpent acted and assisted by the Devil; and therefore this sentence or curse is pronounced against both of them; 1. Against the Serpent it self, which though an unreasonable Creature, and therefore not subject to a Law, and consequently not capable of guilt or sin, Rom. 4. 15. yet, being the instrument of the Devils malice, is rightly punished, as other Beasts being abused by man's sin did suffer together with him, Exod. 32. 20. Levit. 20. 15, 16. not for their crime, but partly for the punishment, and partly for the benefit of man, who is their Lord and Owner, Psal. 8. 6. for whose sake seeing they were made, it is not strange if they be punished for his use, that in their punishment man might have a demonstration of God's anger against sin, and a motive to Repentance. See on c. 6, 7. 2. Against the Devil, who is here principally intended, though as he lay hid in the body of the Serpent which he possessed and used; so his curse is here mentioned under the cover of the Serpent's curse, and under the disguise of such terms as properly and literally agree to the Serpent, but are also mystically to be understood concerning the Devil; with whom the Lord entertaineth no conference, as he did with Adam and Eve, whose sin was less than his, and whom God meant to bring to repentance; but immediately denounceth the curse against him, as one that sinned against much greater Knowledge, and from far worse Principles, not from mistake or misinformation, but from choice and rebellion, from hatred of God, and from meer envy, and implacable malice against men. t Deceived ceived the woman, and tempted her to this sin. u Or, shalt be from henceforth, both really and in the opinion of all mankind: Or, Be thou. x As in other respects, so particularly in that which here follows. † If the Serpent did so before the fall; what then was natural, is now become painful and shameful to it, as nakedness and some other things were to man. But it seems more probable, that this Serpent before the fall either had Feet, or rather did go with its Breast erect, as the Basilisk at this day doth; God peradventure so ordering it as a Testimony that some other Serpents did once go so. And so the sense of the curse being applied to this particular Serpent, and to its kind, may be this; whereas thou hadst a priviledge above other kinds of Serpents, whereby thou didst go with erected Breast, and didst feed upon the fruits of Trees and other Plants; now thou shalt be brought down to the same mean and vile estate with them, upon thy Belly, (or rather Breast, as the word also signifies) shalt thou go, &c. as they do. y Dust is the food, as of Earth-worms, Scorpions, and some other Creatures; so also of some Serpents, as appears both from Isa. 65. last. Mic. 7. 17. and from the Testimony of Nicander, Theriac. verse 372. and Philo an Arabick Writer. Or, the dust is the Serpent's sawce rather than his meat, whilst creeping and groveling upon the Earth, and taking his food from thence, he must necessarily take in dust and filth together with it. These two clauses being applied to the Devil, signifie his fall from his noble State and Place to Earth and Hell; the baseness of his Nature and of his Food, his delight being in the vilest of men and things, it being now his Meat and Drink to dishonour God, and destroy Mankind, and promote the esteem and love of earthly things.

15 And I will put enmity z between thee and the woman a, and between thy * seed b, and her † seed c: it shall * bruise thy head e, and thou shalt bruise his heel f.

* Mat. 3 7. and 13. 38. † Gal. 3. 16. and 23. 33. John 8. 44. Acts 13. 10. 1 John 3. 8. † Psal. 132. 11. Ro. 7. 14. Mic. 5. 3. * Rom. 16. 20. Heb. 2. 14. † John 5. 5. Rev. 12. 7, 17.

z Though now ye be sworn Friends, leagued together against me: a And the man too, but the woman alone is mentioned, for the Devils greater confusion. 1. The woman, whom as the weaker Vessel, thou didst seduce, shall be the great occasion of thy overthrow. 2. Because the Son of God who conquered this great Dragon and old Serpent, Rev. 12. 9. Who came to destroy the works of the Devil, 1 John 3 8. was made of a woman, Gal. 4. 4. without the help of man, Isa. 7. 14. Luke 1. 34, 35. b Literally, this Serpent, and for his sake, the whole seed or race of Serpents, which of all Creatures are most loathsome and terrible to mankind, and especially to women: Mystically that evil Spirit which seduced her, and with him the whole Society of Devils (who are generally hated and dreaded by all men, even by those that serve and obey them, but much more by good men,) and all wicked men; who, with regard to this Text, are called Devils, and the Children, or seed of the Devil, John 6. 70. and 8. 44. Acts 13. 10. 1 John 3. 8. c Her off-spring; first and principally, the Lord Christ, who with respect to this Text and Promise is called, by way of eminency, the seed, Gal. 3. 16, 19. whose alone work it is to break the Serpent's head, i. e. to destroy the Devil, Heb. 2. 14. Compare John 12. 31. Rom. 16 20. Secondly, and by way of participation, all the members of Christ, all Believers and holy Men, who are called the Children of Christ, Heb. 2. 13. and of the Heavenly Jerusalem, Gal. 4 26. All the Members whereof are the seed of this Woman; and all these are the implacable Enemies of the Devil, whom also by Christ's merit and strength they do overcome. e The principal instrument both of the Serpent's fury and mischief, and of his defence, and the principal seat of the Serpent's life, which therefore men chiefly strike at; and which being upon the ground, a man may conveniently tread upon, and crush it to pieces. In the Devil this notes his Power and Authority over men; the strength wherof consists in Death, which Christ, the blessed seed of the Woman, overthrowth by taking away the sting of death, which is sin, 1 Cor. 15. 55, 56. and destroying him that had the power of death, that is, the Devil, Heb. 2. 14. f The part which is most within the Serpent's reach, and wherewith it was bruised, and thereby provoked to fix his venomous Teeth there: But a part remote from the Head and Heart, and therefore its wounds, though painful, are not deadly, nor dangerous, if they be observed in time. If it be applied to the seed of the Woman, Christ, his heel may note either his humanity, whereby he trod upon the Earth, which indeed the Devil by God's permission, and the hands of wicked men, did bruise and kill: Or his Saints and Members upon the Earth, whom the Devil doth in diverse manners bruise, and vex and afflict, while he cannot reach their head Christ in Heaven, nor those of his Members who are or shall be advanced thither.

16 Unto the woman he said, I will greatly g multiply thy sorrow, and thy conception h: in sorrow i thou shalt bring forth k children l: and thy desire † Or, submission shall be † to thy husband, and he shall rule * over thee m.

* 1 Cor. 14. 34.

g Or, certainly, as the repetition of the same word implies. h In diverse Pains and Infirmities peculiar to thy Sex, (i. e.) Thou shalt have many, and those oft-times false and fruitless Conceptions, and abortive Births; and whereas thou mightest commonly have had many Children at one Conception, as some few Women yet have; now thou shalt ordinarily undergo all the troubles and pains of Conception, Breeding and Birth, for every Child which thou hast. Or, thy Sorrows and thy Conception, by a figure called Hendiadys, are put for thy sorrows in Conception, or rather in Child-bearing, which the Hebrew word here used signifies, Gen. 16. 4. Jud. 13. 3. i Aristotle in his Histor. Animal. 7. 9. observes, that Women bring forth young with more pain than any other Creatures. k Or, bear, for the word notes all the pains and troubles which Women have, both in the time of Child-bearing, and in the act of bringing forth. l Heb. Sons and Daughters too, both being comprehended in that word, as Exod. 22. 24. Psal. 128. 6. m Thy desires shall be referred, or submitted to thy Husbands will and pleasure to grant or deny them, as he sees fit. Which sense is confirmed from Gen. 4. 7. where the same phrase is used in the same sense. And this punishment was both very proper for her that committed so great an errour, as the eating of the forbidden fruit was, in compliance with her own desire, without asking her Husband's advice or consent, as in all reason she should have done in so weighty and doubtful a matter: And very grievous to her, because Womens Affections use to be vehement, and it is irksome to them to have them restrained or denied. n Seeing, for want of thy Husband's Rule and Conduct, thou wast seduced by the Serpent, and didst abuse that Power I gave Thee together with thy Husband, to draw him to sin; thou shalt now be brought down to a lower degree, for he shall rule thee; not with that sweet and gentle hand which he formerly used, as a Guide and Counsellor only, but by an higher and harder hand, as a Lord and Governour, to whom I have now given a greater Power and Authority over thee, than he had before, (which through thy Pride and Corruption will be far more uneasie unto thee, than his former Empire was) and who will usurp a further Power than I have given him, and will by my permission for thy Punishment rule thee many times with Rigour, Tyranny and Cruelty, which thou wilt groan under, but shalt not be able to deliver thy self from it. See 1 Cor. 14. 34. 1 Tim. 2. 11, 12. 1 Pet. 3. 6.

17 And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkned unto the voice of thy wife o, and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it, * Curfed is the ground p for thy sake q, in sorrow r shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life.

* Is. 24. 5, 6. Rom 8. 20.

o (i. e.) Obeyed the word and counsel, contrary to my express command. p Which shall now yield both fewer and worse fruits, and those too with more trouble of mens Minds, and labour of their Bodies. q (i. e.) Because of thy sin; or, to thy use; or, as far as concerns thee. r Or, with toil, or, grief.

18 Thorns also and thistles a, shall it † bring forth b to thee c: and thou shalt * eat the herb of the field d.

* Psal. 104. 14.

a And other unuseful and hurtful Plants, Synecdochically contained under these. b Of its own accord. c Not to thy benefit, but to thy grief and punishment. d Instead of those generous and delicious fruits of Paradise, which because thou didst despise, thou shalt no more taste of. See Gen. 1. 29.

19 In the sweat of thy face f shalt thou eat bread g till thou return unto the ground: for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return h.

f (i. e.) Of thy Body: He mentions the Face, because there the sweat appears first and most. Or, with labour of Body or Brain, Eccles. 1. 13. and vexation of mind. g (i. e.) Get thy food and livelihood: Bread being put for all nourishment, as Gen. 18. 5. and 28. 20. i As to the constitution and original of thy Body. See Gen. 18. 27. Job 1. 21. Psal. 103. 14. h Though upon thy obedience I would have preserved thy Body no less than thy Soul from all Mortality; yet now having sinned, thou shalt return unto dust in thy Body, whilst the immortal Spirit shall return unto God who gave it, Eccles. 12. 7. Thus thy end shall be as base as thy beginning.

m Which signifies either Living, or, the giver, or preserver of Life. n Though for her sin justly sentenced to a present death, yet by God's infinite Mercy, and by vertue of the promised Seed, was both continued in Life her self, and was made the Mother of all living Men and Women, that should be after her upon the Earth; who though in and with their Mother they were condemned to speedy Death, yet shall be brought forth into the state and land of the Living, and into the hopes of a blessed and eternal Life by the Redeemer, whose Mother or Progenitor she was.

21 Unto Adam also, and to his wife did the LORD God p make coats of skins q, and clothed them r.

p Either by his own Word, or by the ministry of Angels. q Of Beasts slain either for sacrifice to God, or for the use of Man, their Lord and Owner. r Which he did, partly to defend them from excessive heats and colds, or other injuries of the Air, to which they were now exposed; partly to mind them of their sin which made their nakedness, which before was Innocent and Honourable, now to be an occasion of Sin and Shame, and therefore to need covering: And partly to shew his care even of fallen Man, and to encourage his hopes of God's mercy through the blessed Seed, and thereby to invite him to Repentance.

22 And the LORD God said s, Behold, the man is become t as one of us u, to know good and evil x: and now left he put forth his hand y, and take also a of the tree of life, and eat and live for ever b:

s Either within himself, or to the other persons of the Godhead. t (i. e.) Adam and Eve both are become such according to the Devil's promise, and their own expectation. This is an holy Irony, or Sarcasm, like those, 1 Kings 18. 27. Eccles. 11. 9. q. d. Behold! O all ye Angels, and all the future generations of Men, how the first man hath over-reached and conquered us, and got the Divinity which he affected; and how happy he hath made himself by his Rebellion! But this bitter scorn God uttereth not to insult over man's misery, but to convince him of his sin, folly, danger and calamity, and to oblige him both to a diligent seeking after, and a greedy embracing the remedy of the promised Seed which God offered him, and to a greater watchfulness over himself, and respect to all God's commands for the time to come. u i. e. As one of the divine Persons, of infinite Wisdom and Capacity. Here is an evident proof of a plurality of Persons in the Godhead, compare Gen. 1. 26. and 11. 7. If it be said, God speaks this of himself and the Angels; besides that as yet not one word hath been spoken concerning the Angels, it is an absurd and unreasonable conceit that the great God should level himself with the Angels, and give them a kind of equality with himself, as this expression intimates. x To know all things; both both good and evil. y The speech is defective, and to be supplied thus, or some such way; but now care must be taken, or man must be banished hence, lest he, &c. a i. e. As he did take of the tree of Knowledge. b (i. e.) And thereby prophane that Sacrament of eternal Life, and fondly perswade himself that he shall live for ever. This is another Scoff or Irony, whereby God upbraideth man's presumption, and those vain hopes wherewith he did still feed himself.

23 Therefore d the LORD God sent him forth e from the garden of Eden, to till f the ground, from whence he was taken g.

d For prevention thereof. e Or, expelled him with shame and violence, and so as never to restore him thither: For it is the same word which is used concerning divorced Wives. f To wit, with toil and sweat, as was threatned, verf. 17. g The ground without Paradise: For he was made without Paradise, and then put into it, as was noted before.

24 So he drove out the man: and he placed at the

b Where the enterance into it was, the other sides of it being inclosed or secured by God to preserve it from the entrance and annoyance of wild Beasts: Or, before the Garden, i. e. Near to the Garden; before any man could come at the Garden any way. i (i. e.) Angels, so called from their exquisite Knowledge, and therefore fitly here used for the punishment of man who sinned by affecting divine Knowledge. k In the Cherubims hands, as it was upon other occasions, Numb 22. 23. Jos. 5. 13. 1 Chron. 21. 16, 27. And this was either a material Sword, bright, and being brandished, shining and glittering like a flame of fire; or flaming fire, in the shape of a Sword. Or, flaming Swords, because there were divers Cherubims, and each of them had a Sword. The singular number for the plural: Or, a two-edged Sword. l Was brandished and nimbly whirled about by the Cherubims; which posture was fitteſt for the preſent ſervice. m The way that leads to Paradiſe, and ſo to the tree of Life; that man might be deterred and kept from coming thither.

CHAP. IV.

The birth of Cain and Abel, and their employment, 1, 2. Cain's offering, 3. Abel's ſacrifice, and God's acceptance, 4. Cain's rejected; his diſcontent, 5. God expoſtulates it with him, 6, 7. He murthers Abel, 8. God makes enquiry after Abel, 9. The cry of his blood, 10. God's curſe upon Cain, 11, 12. His complaint, 13, 14. God mitigates it, 15. Its execution, 16. Cain's poſterity, 17, 18. Lamech's two wives, 19. They bear unto him ſons who dwell in tents, 20. Invent muſical inſtruments, 21. Have skill in braſs and iron, 22. His boaſting, 23, 24. The birth of Seth, 25. His ſon; the revival of religion, 26.

AND Adam knew a Eve his wife, and ſhe conceived and bare Cain b, and ſaid, I have gotten a man from the LORD d.

a This modeſt expreſſion is uſed both in Scripture and other Authors, to ſignifie the conjugal Act, or carnal Knowledge. So Gen. 19. 8. and 24. 16. Numb. 31. 17. Matth. 1. 25. Luke 1. 34. b Whoſe name ſignifies a poſſeſſion. c A male Child, as Gen. 7. 2. which was moſt welcome. d Or, by or with the Lord, (i. e.) by vertue of his firſt Bleſſing, Gen. 1. 28. and ſpecial favour. Or, a Man the Lord, as the words properly ſignifie, q. d. God-man, or the Meſſias, hoping that this was the promiſed Seed.

† Heb. Hebel. † Heb. a feeder. 2 And ſhe again bare his brother † Abel e: and Abel was a † keeper of ſheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground f.

e Signifying vanity, a vain, mortal, miſerable Man, whereas ſhe thought Cain to be more than an ordinary Man: Or this name might prophetically deſign his miſerable Life, and untimely and unnatural Death. f Which was eſteemed a more honourable calling than that of a Shepherd, and therefore either choſen by the elder Brother, or allotted to him by his Father.

† Heb. at the end of days. Exod. 2. 23. Or, of the year. 2 Sam. 15. 26. Neh. 13. 6. Iſa. 24. 22. Ex. 2. 23. 3 And † in * proceſs of time g it came to paſs, that Cain brought h of the fruit of the grounds an offering unto the LORD.

g Either 1. In general at the return of the ſet time then appointed, and uſed for the ſolemn ſervice of God. Or, 2. At the end of the year, when there might be now, as there was afterward among the Jews, more ſolemn Worſhip and Sacrifices: The word days, being often put for a year, as Levit. 25. 29. 1 Sam. 1. 3. and 27. 7. Or, 3. More probably at the end of the days of the week, or upon the ſeventh and laſt day of the week, Saturday, which then was the Sabbath day, which before this time was bleſſed and ſanctified, Gen. 2. 3. h Either to the place appointed for the ſolemn Worſhip of God: Or, to his Father, who at that time was both King, and Prophet, and Prieſt. Or brought, i. e. offered.

† Heb. ſheep or goats. * Heb. 11. 4. 4 And Abel, he alſo brought of the firſtlings i of his † flock, and of the fat thereof k: and the LORD had * reſpect l unto Abel m and to his offering.

i Either 1. The firſt-born, which God reſerved to himſelf both at this time, and afterwards by an expreſs Law, Exod. 13. 2. Numb. 3. 13. Or, 2. The choiceſt and moſt eminent of the Flock: For the beſt of any kind are oft called firſt-born, as Job 18. 13. Jer. 31. 19. Heb. 12. 23. k Either 1. Properly, the fat being properly now required by God, as afterwards was expreſſed, Ex. 29. 13, 22. Levit. 3. 3. Or, 2. The beſt of them, as the word fat is often uſed, as Gen. 45. 18. and 49. 20. Numb. 18. 12. Nehem. 8. 10. Pſal. 147. 14. * Or, looked to him with a gracious eye, kindly accepted and owned him and his Sacrifice, and reſtified this, Heb. 11. 4. to Cain and all there preſent, either by expreſs word, or by ſome viſible ſign; probably by conſuming his Sacrifice by fire from Heaven, as the Fathers generally think; whereby alſo God did afterwards frequently ſignify his acceptance of Sacrifices, as Levit. 9. 24. Judg. 6. 21. 1 Kings 18. 38. 1 Chron. 21. 26. 2 Chron. 7. 1. m Unto Abel's perſon, who was a truly good Man; and then to his Sacrifice, which was offered with Faith in God's Mercy, and in the promiſed Mediator, Heb. 11. 4.

5 But unto Cain and to his offering he had not reſpect: and Cain was very wroth n, and his countenance fell o.

n Partly with God, who had caſt ſo publick a diſgrace upon him, and given the preference to his younger Brother; and partly with Abel, becauſe he had received more Honour from God, and therefore was likely to have more reſpect and priviledge from his Parents than himſelf. o Whereas before it was lifted up and chearful, now it fell down through ſenſe of guilt, diſappointment of his hope, ſhame and grief, and envy at his Brother.

6 And the LORD ſaid unto Cain p, Why art thou wroth? And * why is thy countenance fallen q? * Job 29. 24.

p That he might bring him to repentance, and the knowledge of his Sin. q The cauſe of this dejectedneſs is not from me, but from thy ſelf.

7 If thou doeſt well r, ſhalt thou not † be accepted? and if thou doeſt not well, ſin lieth at the door: and † unto thee ſhall be his deſire, and thou ſhalt rule over him u. † Or, here the excellency. † Or, ſubject unto thee.

r Or, for the future ſhalt do well, (i. e.) repent of thy Sin, amend thy Life, offer thy Offerings with a willing and chearful Mind, and honeſt Heart, in Faith and Love, as Abel did. s Or, pardoned, received into favour. Or, exalted, and either preferred in, or reſtored unto thoſe rights of the firſt-born, which thou art conſcious to thy ſelf that thou haſt forfeited? Or, elevated, in thy looks, i. e. would not, or ſhould not, thy Countenance have been upright and pleaſant, which now is ſad and dejected? t Sin is here taken, either 1. Properly; ſo the ſenſe is, Sin will be growing upon thee; one Sin will bring in another, and that malice and purpoſe of revenge againſt thy Brother, which now lies hid in the ſecret Chamber of thy Mind and Heart, lies at the Door ready to break forth into the view of the World in open Murder. Or, 2. For the puniſhment of Sin, as it is taken Gen. 19. 15. Levit. 5. 1. and 20. 20. Numb. 18. 1. 2 Kings 7. 9. Zech. 14. 19. So the ſenſe is, if thou wilt go on in Sin, and execute thy wicked purpoſe, which I perceive lies working in thy Heart, be ſure thy ſin will find thee out, as it is ſaid Numb. 32. 23. Thou ſhalt not long enjoy the fruits of thy Wickedneſs, but a dreadful Judgment ſhall tread upon the heels of thy Sin, and lie like a furious Maſtive Dog at the very door of thy houſe, to ſeize upon thee at thy firſt coming in or going out. For that perſon or thing which is very near to us, or at hand, is ſaid to be at the doors, Matth. 24. 33. James 5. 9. u Thoſe two clauſes may relate either 1. To Sin, which may be here ſpoken of as a perſon, as it is Rom. 7. 8, 9, 11, &c. So the place may be rendred and expounded thus, The deſire of ſin is to thee, (i. e.) to aſſault, ſeduce, conquer and deſtroy thee: As it is ſaid, Luke 22. 31. Satan hath deſired to have you, that he may ſift you, &c. Or thus, its deſire, objectively, not ſubjectively taken, (i. e.) thy deſire, intention, or reſolution of Sinning; that evil motion of thy Heart againſt thy Brother, ſhall be againſt (as the Hebrew particle el oft ſignifies) thee, (i. e.) howſoever at preſent it pleaſeth thee, yet it is really not only againſt him, but againſt thy ſelf, and will certainly turn to thy own ruine: But (for ſo the particle and is commonly taken) If thou be wiſe, give no place to it, but reſiſt it, do thou rule (for the future Tenſe is oft put Imperatively, as in the Ten Commandments, and it frequently ſignifies not what a Man can or ſhall do, but his duty or what he ought to do, as is evident from Gen. 20. 9. Mal. 1. 6. Luke 3. 14.) over it, i. e. conquer and ſubdue it, which is thy duty: Or, thou ſhalt rule over it, (i. e.) by my grace aſſiſting thy endeavours, thou ſhalt be enabled to ſubdue thy evil Concupiſcences and Paſſions, and ſo over-rule, prevent, or remove thoſe Puniſhments, which otherwiſe Sin will infallibly bring upon thee. Or, 2. To Abel, and ſo the ſenſe is, and (as for thy Brother Abel, to whoſe Faith and Piety I have given this publick and honourable Teſtimony, which thy naughty Heart makes an occaſion of envy and malice, and intention of Murther, that thou mayſt not by a miſtake be led to the perpetration of ſo horrid a Crime; know, that this favour of mine concerns only his ſpiritual Priviledge, and the happineſs of the Life to come, which thou deſpiſeſt; but it makes no change in civil Rights, nor doth it transfer the Dominion from thee, whoſe it is by Birth, unto him; nor doth he ſo underſtand it; for notwithſtanding this) unto thee ſhall be his deſire, ſubject, (i. e.) he ſhall and will nevertheleſs yield to thee as his Superiour, and thou according to thy own Hearts deſire, ſhalt rule over him. If it be ſaid, the name of Abel is not here mentioned, it may be anſwered, that this is ſufficiently included in the Pronouns his and him, and it is not unuſual to put thoſe relative Pronouns alone, the antecedent being not expreſſed, but to be gathered either from the foregoing or following Words; of which ſee my Notes on Gen. 3. 1.

8 And Cain † talked with Abel his brother x: and it came to paſs, when they were in the field y, that Cain roſe up againſt Abel his brother, and * ſlew him z. † Heb. ſpake to, &c. Mat. 23. 35. 1 John 3. 12. Jude 11.

x Either 1. Familiarly and friendly, as he uſed to do, thereby to make him ſecure and careleſs: Or by way of expoſtulation and contention. y Into which Abel was led, either by his own employment, or by Cain's perſwaſion; this being a fit place for the execution of his wicked purpoſe. z Poſſibly with Stone or Club, or with ſome Iron Tool belonging to Husbandry.

9 And the LORD ſaid unto Cain, Where is Abel a thy brother b? And he ſaid, I know not: Am I my brothers keeper c?

a Not that God was ignorant where he was, but partly to convince him of his Sin, and to lead him to Repentance, and partly to inſtruct Judges to enquire into Cauſes, and hear the accuſed ſpeak for for themſelves, before they paſs Sentence. b Whom Nature and near Relation obliged thee to love and preſerve. c Why doſt thou enquire of me concerning him who is of age to look to himſelf? Is he ſuch a ſtripling that he needs a Guardian? Or didſt thou ever make me his Guardian?

10 And he ſaid, What haſt thou done d? the voice of thy brothers † blood e * crieth unto me from the ground f. † Heb. bloods. * Rev. 6. 10.

d I hear thy Words, but what ſay thy Actions? What an hideous Crime haſt thou committed? In vain doſt thou endeavour to hide it or deny it. e In the Hebrew it is Bloods, either to aggravate the Crime; or, to ſhew the plenty of the Blood ſpilt; or, to charge him with the Murder of all thoſe that might naturally have come out of Abel's loins; which was a far greater Crime in the nonage of the World, when the World greatly wanted People. f Upon which it was ſpilt by thy bloody Hands.

11 And now art thou curſed g from the earth h, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brothers blood from thy hand i.

g As the earth was curſed for thy Father's ſake, ſo now art thou curſed in thy own Perſon. h Or, in regard of the Earth, which ſhall grudge thee both its Fruits, and a certain Dwelling-place. i Which had more humanity to thy Brother than thou haſt; for it kindly received and covered that Blood which thou didſt cruelly and unnaturally ſhed upon it.

12 When thou tilleſt the ground k it ſhall not henceforth yield unto thee her ſtrength l. A fugitive and a vagabond m ſhalt thou be in the earth.

k Or, That ground, which doth or ſhall fall to thy ſhare; which beſides the firſt and general Curſe inflicted upon the whole Earth, ſhall have this peculiar Curſe added to it. l (i. e.) Its Vertue, and Fruit, in ſuch proportion, as it hath hitherto done. m Baniſhed from thy own Land and Kindred, and Father's Houſe, and from the whole Society of the Faithful, and wandring hither and thither. Others render the words mourning and trembling; or, trembling and wandring. Theſe two words note both the unquietneſs and horrour of his Mind and Conſcience, and the unſettledneſs of his Habitation and Condition, and as ſome add, the trembling of his Body.

† Or, mine iniquity is greater than that it may be forgiven. 13 And Cain ſaid unto the LORD, † My puniſhment n is greater than I can bear.

n Heb. My Sin: But Sin ſeems here to be put for puniſhment, as before verſe 7. and Gen. 19. 15. Levit. 5. 1. Pſal. 69. 27. Prov. 12. 21. For Cain was not ſo ſenſible of his Sin, as of the ill effects of it, as himſelf ſhews verſe 14.

14 Behold o thou haſt driven me out p this day from the face of the earth q: and from thy face r ſhall I be hid, and I ſhall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth, and it ſhall come to paſs, that every one that findeth me, ſhall ſlay me s.

o Conſider how ſeverely thou uſeſt me. p With publick infamy, as the word ſignifies. q Or, this Earth, my native Land. r (i. e.) Favour and Protection. s As the publick Enemy of Mankind, and as one devoted by thee to deſtruction. Queſt. Whom did Cain fear, when it appears not that there were any but his Father and Mother? Anſw. So ignorant People conceive; but it is a fond conceit to think, that there were no more Men than are expreſſed in this Book, where God never intended to give a Catalogue of all Men, but only of the Church, or thoſe who had ſome relation to, or concern with it. Nay, that there were very many thouſands of Men now in being, is very credible upon theſe rational grounds and ſuppoſitions. 1. That Adam and Eve did according to God's precept and bleſſing, Gen. 1. 26. procreate Children preſently after the fall, and God's gracious reconcilement to them; and conſequently their Children did ſo, when they came to competent age. 2. That thoſe firſt Men and Women were endowed by God with extraordinary Fruitfulneſs, and might have two, three, four or more at a time, (as divers Perſons long after had) which was then expedient for the replenihing of the World; and the like may be judged of their Children, during the World's infancy. 3. That this Murder was committed but a little before the Hundred and thirtieth year of Adam's age, which appears by comparing Gen. 4. 25. and 5. 3. Before which time, How vaſt and numerous an off-ſpring might have come from Adam, none can be ignorant that can, and ſhall make a rational computation.

15 And the LORD ſaid unto him, Therefore t whoſoever ſlayeth Cain, vengeance ſhall be taken on him ſeven-fold u. And the LORD ſet a mark upon Cain x, leſt any finding him ſhould kill him.

t Or, Aſſuredly, as the word ſignifies, Jer. 2. 32. and 5. 2. Zech. 11. 17. That thou mayſt ſee how I hate Murther, and how impartially I ſhall puniſh all Murtherers; and that thou mayſt be unhappily free from this fear, that thou mayſt live for an example to Mankind, for a terrour to thy ſelf and others. u (i. e.) Abundantly; he ſhall be plagued with many and grievous Puniſhments, as the phraſe is uſed, Levit. 26. 28. Pſal. 12. 7. and 79. 12. and in many other places. x What this was, whether a trembling of his Body, or a ghaſtlineſs of his Countenance, or what other viſible token of the divine Diſpleaſure, God hath not revealed, nor doth it concern us to know.

16 ¶ And Cain went out from the preſence of the LORD y, and dwelt in the land of Nod z, on the eaſt of Eden.

y (i. e.) Was baniſhed from the place of God's ſpecial Preſence and Habitation, from the Society of his Father, and of the only Church which God had upon Earth. z In the Land which was afterwards called Nod, from Cain's unſettled Condition, becauſe he continued wandring hither and thither in it.

17 And Cain knew his wife a, and ſhe conceived and bare † Enoch, and he built a city b, and called the † Heb. Chanoch. name of the city, after the name of his ſon, Enoch c.

a Of which phraſe ſee on chap. 4. 1. b Partly to divert his troubled Mind with Buſineſs and Pleaſure, and partly for his own ſecurity againſt the Enemies and Evils which his guilty Conſcience made him fear, notwithſtanding the aſſurance which God had given him. And this he did as ſoon as he was in capacity for it, either by the increaſe of his own Poſterity, or by the acceſſion of other degenerate Sons of Adam to him, who either being baniſhed, or having departed from the Church, willingly aſſociated themſelves with their Brethren in iniquity. c Not after his own name, which he knew to be infamous and hateful.

19 ¶ And Lamech d took unto him two wives e: the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other Zillah.

d The wicked Branch of that curſed Root of Cain. e Againſt God's firſt inſtitution, Gen. 2. 24. Mal. 2. 15. and without God's leave.

20 And Adah bare Jubal: he was the father of ſuch as dwell in tents f, and of ſuch as have cattel g.

f He taught Shepherds to dwell in Tents, and to remove them from place to place, for conveniency of Paſture. The firſt Authors or Inventers of any thing, are commonly called its Fathers. g Heb. And of Cattel, i. e. The Inventer of the art of keeping and managing Cattel.

21 And his brothers name was Jubal: he was the father of all ſuch as handle the harp and organ h.

h Or, The lovely inſtrument; But what kind of inſtrument this was, even the Jews do not underſtand. The meaning is, he was the Inventer of Muſick and muſical Inſtruments.

22 And Zillah ſhe alſo bare Tubal-Cain i, an † inſtructer of every artificer in braſs, and iron k: and the ſiſter of Tubal-Cain was Naamah l. † Heb. Whetter.

i Whom (as the learned conceive, and the agreement of the name and function makes probable) the Heathens worſhipped by the name of Vulcan, the God of Smiths; and his Siſter Naamah, by the name of Venus. k Who firſt taught Men how to make Arms and other inſtruments of Iron. l So called from her Beauty, which her Name ſignifies.

23 And Lamech ſaid unto his wives, Adah and Zillah m, Hear my voice, ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my ſpeech: for * I have ſlain a man to my wounding, and † a young man * to my hurt n. * Or, I would ſlay a man in my wounds, &c. † Heb. a Child. * Or, in my hurt.

m Who, obſerving his fierceneſs and cruelty, feared that the Vengeance of God or Men would fall upon him, and upon them for his ſake. n (i. e.) Be it ſo that I have ſlain a Man, and that a young Man, Why do you contern your ſelves in it? It is to my own wound-ing and hurt, not to yours; I muſt ſuffer for it, not you. Some take this to be a forrowful Confeſſion of his bloody Crime, q. d. I have murdered a Man, to my wounding, &c. (i. e.) to my utter ruin, or to the wounding and grief of my Heart and Conſcience. But this ſeems not to agree either with the quality of Cain's Family, or with the temper of Lamech's Perſon, or with the ſcope of the Holy Ghoſt in this place; which is to deſcribe not the Vertues, but the Crimes of that wicked Race. According to the marginal Tranſlation, the ſenſe may be this, Fear not for me; for if any Man, though in his youth and ſtrength, ſhould aſſault me, and give me the firſt wound, he ſhould pay dearly for it; and though I were wounded and weakned, the remainders of my ſtrength would be ſufficient to give him his deaths Wound. The words alſo may be otherwiſe rendred; the Particle chi being taken interrogatively, as it is Iſa. 29. 6. and 36. 19. and elſewhere, Have I ſlain a Man to my wounding, and [or, or] a young Man to my hurt? (i. e.) That thereby I ſhould deſerve ſuch a mortal Wound or Hurt to be inflicted upon me by way of retaliation? You have therefore no cauſe of fear either for my ſake, or for your own.

o If the ſlaughter of Cain ſhall be puniſhed in him that ſhall kill him, whoſoever he be. p (i. e.) My death ſhall be much more certainly and ſeverely revenged by God upon any Man that ſhall murder me. Theſe words may be either 1. A profane ſcoff. q. d. Since Cain, my Father and Pattern in murther, was ſo far from being puniſhed by the Hand of God, that he had a ſpecial Protection from him, that no Man ſhould dare to touch him; I (whoſe murther is not ſo hainous as his was) ſhall not fare worſe than he, and therefore have no reaſon to fear either God or Men. Or 2. An argument or ground of his Security, q. d. I am not only ſecured by my own Puiſſance, but by God's Providence; which certainly will be more watchful over me, who have not committed any ſuch horrid Crime, than over him that killed his own innocent Brother.

25 ¶ And Adam knew his wife again, and ſhe bare a ſon, and called his name † Seth q: for God, ſaid ſhe r, † Heb. Sheth. hath appointed me another ſeed s inſtead of Abel, whom Cain ſlew.

q She gave the name, but not without Adam's conſent, Gen. 5. 3. r By divine Inſpiration. s Note that the word Seed is uſed of one ſingle Perſon here, and Gen. 21. 13. and 38. 8. Which confirms the Apoſtle's argument, Gal. 3. 16. t To ſucceed his Father Adam, as Abel ſhould have done in the Prieſthood, and adminiſtration and care of holy Things in the Church of God.

26 And to Seth, to him alſo there was born a ſon; † Heb. muſt. and he called his name † Enos u: then began men * to call upon the name of the LORD x. * Or, to call themſelves by the name of the Lord.

u Which properly ſignifies a miſerable Man, to note the great wickedneſs and wretchedneſs of that Generation; which the Holy Ghoſt knew brew Writers generally observe. x To pray unto God, to worship God in a more publick and solemn manner: Praying being here put for the whole Worship of God, as Gen. 12. 8. and 26. 25. and in many other places. According to the marginal Version, the sense is this; then when the World was universally corrupt, and had forsaken God and his Service, good Men grew more Valiant and Zealous for God, and did more publickly and avowedly own God. and began to distinguish and separate themselves from the ungodly World; and to call themselves, and one another by the name of God, (i. e.) the Sons, Servants, or Worshippers of God, as they are expressly called; and that, as it seems, upon this occasion, Gen. 6. 2. And in this sense this phrase is elsewhere taken, as Isa. 43. 7. and 44. 5. and 65. 1. Some render the place thus, Then began Men to profane the name, (i. e.) the Worship of the Lord, by Idolatry or Superstition. But this seems neither to agree with the Hebrew phrase, nor to suit with this place, where he speaks of the Posterity of Seth; who were the holy Seed, and the only Church of God then in the World.

CHAP. V.

The manner of man's creation repeated, 1, 2. The genealogy, age, and death of the fathers from Adam to Noah, in the line of Seth. Seth begotten of Adam after his image, 3. The piety and translation of Enoch, 24 Lamech's prophesy of his son Noah, 29. Sons born to Noah, 32.

* 1 Chron. 1. 1. THis is the * book a of the generations of Adam b: in the day that God created man c, in the likeness of God made he him d.

a (i. e.) The List or Catalogue, as this word is taken Nehem 7. 5. Matth. 1. 1 as it is also put for any short writing, as for a bill of Divorce, as Deut. 24. 1, 2. b (i. c.) His posterity begotten by him; the word being passively used. But he doth not here give a compleat List of all Adam's Children, but only of his godly Seed, which preserved true Religion and the Worship of God from Adam to the Flood, and from whose loins Christ came, Luke 3. c This is here repeated to note the different way of the production of Adam and of his Posterity; his was by Creation from God, theirs by Generation from their Parents. d See Gen 1. 26.

2 Male and female created he them e, and blessed them f, and called their name Adam g, in the day when they were created.

e See Gen. 1. 26. Matth. 19 4. Mark 10. 6. f With Power to propagate their Kind, and with other Blessings. See Gen. 1. 28. g Which name is given both to every Man, as Gen. 9. 6. Psal. 49 20. and to the first Man, as Gen. 2. 23. and to the whole kind, both the Man and the Woman, who are called by one name, to shew their intimate Union and Communion in all things.

3 And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years h, and begat a son in his own likeness, after his image i, and called his name Seth.

h After he was created, in which time he begat other Sons and Daughters, as appears from what was said before. i Either 1. In regard of the natural frame of his Body and Soul: But this was so evident of it self, that the mention of it had been frivolous. Nor is there any reason why that should be said of Seth, rather than of Cain, or Abel Or 2. In regard of his Corruption, q. d. a weak, sinful, mortal Man, like himself: For Adam's Image is here plainly opposed to the likeness of God, wherein Adam is said to be created, verse 1. And this is fitly said of Seth to signifie, that although he was a worthy and good Man, and, Adam excepted, the most eminent Person of the whole Church of God; yet he, no less than wicked Cain, was begotten and born in Sin; and that all the difference which was between him, and consequently between other good Men, and the wicked Progeny of Cain, was not from the nature which they received from Adam, but from the grace infused into them by God.

* 1 Chron. 1. 1, &c. 4 * And the days of Adam, after he had begotten Seth, were eight hundred years: and he begat sons and daughters k.

k Whose names and numbers are here passed over in silence, as not belonging to the Genealogy of Christ, nor to the following History.

5 And all the days that Adam lived, were nine hundred and thirty years l, and he died.

l The long lives of Men, in ancient times here noted, are also mentioned by Heathen Authors. And it was wisely so ordered by God, both for the more plentiful encrease of Mankind in the first age of the World, and for the more effectual Propagation of true Religion, and other useful Knowledge to the World. And many natural Reasons might be given why their lives were then longer than afterwards.

6 And Seth lived an hundred and five years, and begat Enos.

7 And Seth lived after he begat Enos, eight hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters.

8 And all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years, and he died.

† Heb. Kenan. 9 And Enos lived ninety years, and begat † Cainan.

10 And Enos lived after he begat Cainan, eight hundred and fifteen years, and begat sons and daughters.

11 And all the days of Enos were nine hundred and five years, and he died.

† Gr. Malaleel. 12 And Cainan lived seventy years, and begat † Mahalaleel.

13 And Cainan lived after he begat Mahalaleel, eight hundred and forty years and begat sons and daughters.

14 And all the days of Cainan were nine hundred and ten years, and he died.

15 And Mahalaleel lived sixty and five years, and begat † Jared.

† Heb. Jered. 16 And Mahalaleel lived after he begat Jared, eight hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters.

17 And all the days of Mahalaleel, were eight hundred ninety and five years, and he died.

18 And Jared lived an hundred sixty and two years, and he begat Enoch.

19 And Jared lived after he begat Enoch, eight hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

20 And all the days of Jared were nine hundred sixty and two years, and he died.

21 And Enoch lived sixty and five years, and begat † Methuselah m.

m Whose name is thought by some learned men to contain a Prophesy of the Flood, which was to come a thousand Years after; for it signifies, He dies, and the Dart or Arrow of God's Vengeance comes. Or, He dies, and the sending forth of the Waters comes.

22 And Enoch * walked with God n, after he begat Methuselah, three hundred years, and begat sons and daughters o.

* Chap 24. 40. Psal. 16. 8. and 116. 9.

n (i. e.) He lived as one whose Eye was continually upon God; whose care and constant course and business it was to please God, and to imitate him, and to maintain acquaintance and communion with him; as one devoted to God's service, and wholly governed by his will. He walked not with the Men of that wicked age, or as they walked, but being a Prophet and Preacher, as may be gathered from Jude, ver. 14, 15. with great Zeal and Courage he protested and preached against their evil Practises, and boldly owned God and his Ways in the midst of them. Compare Gen. 6 6 Jer. 12. 3. Mic. 6. 8. o Hence it is undeniably evident that the state and use of Matrimony doth very well agree with the severest course of Holiness, and with the office of a Prophet or Preacher.

23 And all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty and five years.

24 And * Enoch walked with God: and he was not p, for God took him q.

* Heb. 11. 5.

p (i. e.) He appeared not any longer upon Earth, or amongst mortal Men. The same phrase is in Gen. 42. 36. Jer. 31. 15. q Out of this sinful and miserable World unto himself, and to his heavenly Habitation. See Luke 23. 43. And he took either his Soul, of which alone this phrase is used, Ezek. 24. 16. or rather both Soul and Body, as he took Elias, 2 Kings 2. 11. because he so took him that he did not see death, Heb 11. 5.

26 And Methuselah lived after he begat Lamech, seven hundred eighty and two years, and begat sons and daughters.

27 And all the days of Methuselah, were nine hundred sixty and nine years r, and he died s.

r The longest time that any Man lived. But it is observable that neither his, nor any of the Patriarch's Lives reached to a thousand Years, which number hath some shadow of perfection. s But a little before the Flood came, being taken away from the evil to come.

28 And Lamech t lived an hundred eighty and two years, and begat a son.

t Not that wicked Lamech mentioned chap. 4. for he was of the Family of Cain, but this was descended from Seth.

29 And he called his name † Noah u, saying x, This same shall comfort us concerning our work, and toil of our hands y, because of the ground which the LORD hath cursed.

u Which signifies rest. x By the Spirit of Prophesy. y (i. e.) Concerning the hard labour and manifold troubles to which we are Sentenced, chap. 3 19. And this he did either 1. By the invention of Instruments of Husbandry, whereby Tillage was made more easy. Or 2. By removing in some part the Curse inflicted upon the Earth, and reconciling God unto Mankind. Possibly he might suppose that this was the Messias, or promised Seed, and the Saviour of the undone World: As it was frequent with the ancient Fathers, through their earnest desire of the Messias, to expect him long before he came, and to mistake other Persons for him. Or 3. By preserving a remnant of Mankind from that Deluge, which he by the Spirit foresaw would come, and re-peopling the emptied Earth with a new Generation of Men, and by restoring and improving the Art of Husbandry. See Genesis 9. 20.

30 And Lamech lived after he begat Noah, five hundred ninety and five years, and begat sons and daughters.

31 And all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy and seven years, and he died.

32 And Noah was five hundred years old: and Noah begat z Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

z (i. e.) He began to beget; God in mercy denying him Children till that time, that he might not beget them to the destroyer, that he might have no more than should be saved in the Ark: Or,

Or, having before that time begotten others who were now dead, and having the approaching Flood in his view, he began again to beget a Seminary for the World. Of these three Sons here following, the eldest seems to be Japhet, Gen. 10. 21. The second was Sem, as appears because he was but an Hundred years old two years after the Flood, Gen. 11. 11. The youngest Ham, Gen. 9. 24. But Sem is first named in order of dignity, as being the Progenitor of the Church, and of Jesus Christ; and because he and his progeny is the principal subject of this whole History.

CHAP. VI.

Unlawful matches of the sons of God with with the daughters of men, 1, 2. Grieve the spirit of God, who threatens their destruction, 3. Giants and mighty men born; a general degeneracy of mankind, 4, 5. God repents that he had made man, and resolves to destroy that world, 6, 7. Noah is excepted, and finds favour with God, 8. His character, 9. The earth corrupt and filled with violence, 11, 12. God declares to Noah his purpose to destroy it, 13. Directs him to make an ark, 14—16. Mentions a deluge, 17. His covenant with Noah to preserve a seed, 18—21. Noah's obedience, 22.

AND it came to pass when men a began to multiply b on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them c, a (i. c.) Wicked men, the posterity of Cain, as appears from the following verse; who are here called men, and the sons of men, by way of contempt, and of distinction; meer men, such as had only the natures and qualities of corrupt men, without the image of God. b To wit, more than ordinarily; or more than the sons of God, because they practised Polygamy after the example of their Predecessor, the ungodly Lamech, Gen. 4. 19. c So doubtless were Sons also; but their Daughters are here mentioned, as one principal occasion of the sin noted in the next verse, and of the following deluge.

† Or, of Man. 2 That the sons of God d saw e the daughters † of men f, that they were fair g, and they took h them Wives i of all which they chose k.

d Either 1. Persons of greatest eminency for place and power, for such are called Gods, and Children of the most High, Psal. 82. 6. Where also they are opposed to Men, verse 7. i. e. to meaner Men. And the most eminent things in their kinds are attributed to God, as Cedars of God, Hill of God, &c. But it is not probable, that the Princes and Nobles should generally take Wives or Women of the meaner rank, nor would the Marriages of such persons be simply condemned, or at least it would not be mentioned as a crying sin, and a great cause of the deluge. Or rather 2. The Children of Seth, and Enos, the professors of the true Religion. For 1. Such, and only such, in the common use of Scripture, are called the Sons and Children of God, as Deut. 14. 1. and 32. 19. Isa. 1. 2. and 45, 11. Hos. 11. 1. Luke 17. 27, &c. 2. This title manifestly relates to Gen. 4. 26. where the same Persons are said to be called by the name of the Lord, i. e. to be the Sons and Servants of God. 3. They are opposed to the Daughters of Men, the word Men being here taken in an ill sense, for such as had nothing in them but the nature of Men, which is corrupt and abominable, and were not Sons of God, but Foreigners and Strangers to him, and Apostates from him. 4. These unequal matches with Persons of a false Religion, are every where condemned in Scripture as sinful and pernicious, as Gen. 26. 35. Exod. 34. 16. 1 Kings 11. 2, 3. Ezra 9. 12. Nehem. 13. 23, &c. Mal. 2. 11. 1 Cor. 7. 39. 2 Cor. 6. 14. and therefore are fitly spoken of here, as one of the sins which brought the Flood upon the ungodly World. e (i. e.) Gazed upon and observed curiously and lustfully, as the sequel sheweth. f Of that ungodly and accursed race of Cain. g (i. e.) Beautiful, and set off their beauty with all the allurements of Ornaments and Carriage; herein using greater liberty than the Sons and Daughters of God did, or durst take, 1 Pet. 3. 3. and therefore were more enticing and prevalent with fleshly-minded Men. h Either 1 By force and violence, as the word sometimes signifies. Or rather 2. By consent; for the Sons of God were so few, in comparison of the wicked World, that they durst not take away their Daughters by force; which also proves that they did not take them for Harlots, but for Wives. i Possibly more than one for each of them, after the example of those wicked Familes into which they were matched. k (i. e.) Loved and liked, as the word choosing is taken, Psal. 25. 12. and 119. 173. Isa. 1. 29. and 42. 1. compared with Matth. 12. 28. This is noted as the first errour, that they did promiscuously choose Wives, without any regard to their Sobriety and Religion, minding only the pleasing of their own Fancies and Lusts, not the pleasing and serving of their Lord and Maker, nor the obtaining of a godly Seed, which was God's end in the institution of Marriage, Mal. 2. 15. and therefore should have been theirs too l Either 1. To the men of that age by the mouth of Noah. Or, 2. within himself; (see Psal 14. 1.) he determined. m Or, Contend, or, Debate in or against men; as it hath hitherto done, by inward motions and suggestions in the Minds and Consciences of wicked Men, or by the Mouths and Ministry of that small remnant of holy Men, and particularly of Noah, who protested against, and contended with the World of the ungodly, and by their Doctrines, Admonitions, Threatnings and Examples, endeavoured to bring them to Repentance, 1 Pet. 3. 18. or dispute with, or concerning, or because of Men, i. e. Whether I should destroy or save him, as God disputes with, or about Ephraim, Hos. 11. 8. n (i. e.) Even the Seed of Seth, or the Sons of God also; no less than the off-spring of Cain: The Pronoun being here put for the foregoing Noun, and the singular Number put for the plural, he, i. e. they, to wit, the Sons of God. Both which Figures are frequent in the use of Scripture. Or, he, i. e. Man, all Mankind, the Sons of God not excepted. o Not only fleshly in part, or in some actions, but altogether, in regard of Soul as well as Body, minding nothing but making provision for the flesh to fulfil its Lusts, Rom. 13. 14. Not having the Spirit, Jude verse 19. nor heeding its good Motions, but suppressing and resisting them. Flesh not only in the condition of their Nature, but in the baseness and corruption of their Hearts and Lives; as the word Flesh is commonly used when it is opposed to the Spirit, as John 3. 6. Rom. 7. 18. and 8. 5, 7. Gal. 5. 17. p Though he deserve a speedy destruction q (i. e.) The time allowed him for Repentance, and the prevention of his Ruine. r During which time Noah was preaching, and to assure them of the Truth of his Doctrine, preparing the Ark. See 1 Peter 3. 20. 2 Peter 2. 5. Quest. How did God perform this Promise, when there were but an hundred years between this time and the Flood, by comparing Gen. 5. 32. with Gen. 7. 11? Answ. 1. The encreasing wickedness of Mankind might justly hasten their ruine, and forfeit the benefit of this indulgence. 2. This Promise, though mentioned after that, Gen. 5. 32. yet seems to have been made twenty years before it; for that verse is added there out of its proper place, only to compleat the Genealogy; and therefore, after this Narration, it is repeated here in its due order, verse 10. And such Hysteron Proteron are frequently noted in Scripture.

3 And the LORD said l, My spirit shall not always strive with man m, for that he also n is flesh o, yet p his days q shall be an hundred and twenty years r.

4 There were giants s in the earth in those days: and also after that t, when the sons of God came in u unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them, the same became mighty men, which were of old x, men of † renown.

s Men so called, partly from their high stature, but principally for their great strength and force, whereby they oppressed and tyrannized over others: For this is mentioned as another Sin, and cause of the Flood; and therefore they seem to be here noted, not for the height of their stature, which is no crime, but for their violence, which also is expressed beneath, verse 11, 13. t After that time there arose a new Generation or Succession of that sort of Men. u Were united and incorporated with them. x Which were proper to the first ages of the World; for the succeeding Generations were generally less in stature and strength of Body, and therefore not so famous for personal Exploits. Or these words may be thus joyned with the following. Which were of old, (i. e.) among the Men of that first and wicked World, men of renown, (i. e.) famous in their Generations; when indeed they should have been infamous for the abuse of their stature and strength to tyranny and cruelty.

† Or, the whole imagination. 5 And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that † every imagination of the thoughts of his * heart y was only evil † continually a.

* Heb. word signifies both not only the inward purpose, and also the outward act.

y To which the Scripture commonly ascribes all Men's actual wickedness, as Psal. 41. 6. Prov. 4. 23. and 6. 14, 18. Jer. 17. 9. Matth. 15. 19. Rom. 3. 10, &c. Thereby leading us from acts of Sin to the original Corruption of Nature, as the cause and source of them. a (i. e.) That Man was perpetually either doing or contriving wickedness; that not only his Actions were vile, but his Principles also; his very Soul, yea the noblest part of it, which might seem most free from the contagion; his Mind and Thoughts were corrupt and abominable, and so there was no hopes of amendment.

imagination, i. e. the purposes and desires. * Chap. 8. 21. Matth. 25. 11.

6 And it repented the LORD b that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his † heart c.

b Properly God cannot repent, Numbers 23. 19. 1 Samuel 15. 11, 29. because he is unchangeable in his Nature and Counsels, Mal. 3. 6. Jam. 1. 17. and perfectly Wise, and constantly Happy, and therefore not liable to any Grief or Disappointment: But this is spoken of God after the manner of Man; by a common Figure called Anthropopathia, whereby also Eyes, Ears, Hands, Nose, &c. are ascribed to God; and it signifies an alteration of God's Heart and Affections from Men for their wickedness, whereby God carries himself towards them, like one that is truly penitent and grieved, destroying the work of his own Hands. c Or, at his very Soul, i. e. exceedingly.

† Heb. from man unto beast. 7 And the LORD said, I will destroy man, whom I have created, from the face of the earth: † both man and beast d, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air: for it repenteth me that I have made them.

d For as the Beasts were made for Man's use and service, so they are destroyed for Man's punishment, and to discover the malignity of Sin; and God's deep abhorrency thereof, by destroying those innocent Creatures that had been made instrumental to it.

8 But Noah found grace e in the eyes of the LORD.

e (i. e.) Obtained Mercy and Favour; which is noted to shew that Noah was so far guilty of the common Corruption of humane Nature, that he needed God's Grace and Mercy to pardon and preserve him from the common Destruction.

* Ezek. 14. 14. 2 Pet 2. 5. † Or, upright. 9 These are the generations of Noah f: * Noah was a just man, and † perfect h in his generations i, and 14, 20. Noah walked with God k.

f Either 1. Properly the posterity of Noah, as the word is commonly used; and as it is explained verse 10. So the rest of this verse comes in by way of Parenthesis, which is frequent. Or, 2. The events or occurrences which befel Noah and his Family, as the word is taken, Gen. 37. 2. Prov. 27. 1. h These words are to be taken either 1. Joyntly, q. d. he was Righteous, not only in appearance, or in part, but perfectly, in all respects, towards God and Men; or sincerely and truly. Or, 2. Distinctly, q. d. he was for his state and condition just before God, which was by Faith, Heb. 11. 7. by which every just man lives, Rom. 1. 17. and perfect, i. e. upright and unblameable unblameable in the course of his Life among the men of his Age, as it follows. i This is spoken either 1. Diminutively; he was so comparatively to the men that then lived, who were very bad; though otherwise even Noah had many infirmities, so that he also had not been saved but for God's Grace and Mercy, v. 8. Or, 2. By way of amplification and commendation; he was good in bad times, in spight of all evil Counsels or Examples. He saith Generations in the plural Number, to shew that as he lived in two Generations, one before the Flood, and another after it, so he continued uncorrupted in both of them. k See on Gen. 5. 22.

l See the Note on Gen. 5. 32.

11 The earth m also was corrupt before God n, and the earth o was filled with violence p.

m Which is here put for its Inhabitants, as † Kings 10. 24. Ezek. 14. 13. n Or, Before the face of God, q. d. in despight and contempt of God, and of his Presence and Justice. Compare Gen. 10. 9. and 13. 13. q. d. They sinned openly and impudently without shame, boldly and resolutely without any fear of God. o Here put for the place, or the inhabited parts of it. So the same word is twice used in a differing sense in one and the same verse. See the like Matth. 8. 22. p Or, Injustice, Fraud, Rapine, Oppression: For all these this word signifies. Some conceive that these two Branches note the universal Corruption of mankind, in reference to all their Duties. 1. Towards God and his Worship, which they corrupted by horrible Superstition, and by Idolatry, which is called Corruption, Exod. 32. 7. Deut. 32. 5. Jud. 2. 19. 2 Chron. 27. 28. 2. Towards Men, in the Duties of Righteousness.

12 And God looked upon the earth, and behold, it was corrupt: for all flesh q had corrupted his way r upon the earth.

q (i.e.) All Men, as the word Flesh is taken, Psal. 78. 39. Isai. 40 5. and oft elsewhere. r Either 1. God's way, his precepts concerning Religion and Righteousness. Or, 2. Their own way, or manner of living.

13 And God said unto Noah, The end s of all flesh t is come u before me x; for the earth is filled with violence through them z: and behold, I will destroy s (i.e.) The time of ruine, as this word is used, Ezek. 7. 2, 3, 6. Amos 8. 2. t (i.e.) Men, as ver. 12. though the Beasts also were involved in the same destruction. u (i.e.) Is approaching and at the very door, and shall as certainly come as if it were actually come. x (i.e.) In my purpose and decree: Howsoever vain men flatter themselves with hopes of longer impunity. z (i.e.) By their means; so that the Earth even groans under them. a (i.e.) With the Fruits and Beauty, though not the Substance of the Earth. Or, From the Earth, as ver. 7. The Hebrew eth being oft put for min or meëth, as Gen. 44. 4. Deut. 34. 1. and 1 Kings 8. 43. compared with 2 Chron. 6. 33.

* Or, from the Earth. them * with the earth a.

† Heb. Nests. 14 Make thee an ark b of gopher-wood c: † rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and shalt pitch it within and without with pitch e.

b A little Ship made in the form of an Ark or Chest, but probably sloping at the bottom for conveniency of Navigation, as it was for another reason sloping at the top. c This word is but once used in Scripture, and therefore it is diverily rendred by the Learned; by some Pine, by many Cedar, but by others Cypress, a Tree very proper and usual for Ships, and of a firm and durable Substance, and much abounding in those parts; all which appears from ancient Authors. e Or rather, with some kind of Bitumen, of the same nature and use with pitch, to cement the parts of the Ark together, and to preserve it from the injuries of the Sun, and Water, and Worms; but more odoriferous to correct the unpleasant scent of some of the Creatures.

15 And this is the fashion which thou shalt make it of f: the length of the ark shall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits g.

f Or, This is the measure, or the manner according to which thou shalt make it. g A just and regular proportion, the length being six times more than the breadth, and ten times more than the height. There is no need to understand this of Geometrical cubits, which are said to have contained nine ordinary cubits; nor of sacred cubits, which were an hands breadth longer than the ordinary, Ezek. 43. 13. Nor to suppose the stature of men at that time to have been generally larger, and consequently their cubit much longer. For the ordinary cubit consisting of a common foot and a half, is sufficient for the containing of all the Kinds of living Creatures and their Provisions, which was to be put into the Ark, as hath been at large demonstrated by learned Men. Nor is there any considerable difficulty in the point, but what is made by the ignorance of Infidels, and aggravated by their malice against the holy Scriptures. Especially if these things be considered; 1. That the differing kinds of Beasts and Birds, which unlearned Men fancy to be innumerable, are observed by the learned, who have particularly searched into them, and written of them, to be little above three hundred, whereof the far greatest part are but small; and many of these which now are thought to differ in kind, in their first original were but of one sort, though now they be so greatly altered in their Shape and Qualities; which might easily arise from the diversity of their Climate and Food, and other Circumstances, and from the promiscuous Conjunctions of those lawless Creatures. 2. That the brute Creatures, when they were enclosed in the Ark, where they were idle, and constantly under a kind of horror and amazement, would be contented with far less Provisions, and those of another sort than they were accustomed to, and such as might lye in less room, as Hay, and the fruits of the Earth. God also, who altered their natures, and made the savage Creatures mild and gentle, might by the same powerful Providence moderate their Appetites, or if he pleased have increased their Provision whilst they did eat it, as afterwards Christ did by the Loaves. So vain and idle are the Cavils of wanton Wits, concerning the incapacity of the Ark for the food of so many Beasts. 3. That supposing the ravenous Creatures did feed upon Flesh, here is also space enough and to spare, for a sufficient number of Sheep, for their food for a whole year, as upon computation will easily appear; there being not two thousand Sheep necessary for them, and the Ark containing no less than four hundred and fifty thousand solid Cubits in it. But of this matter more may be seen in my Latin Synopsis.

16 A window h shalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit shalt thou finish it above i, and the door of the ark shalt thou set in the side thereof: with lower, second and third k stories shalt thou make it.

h Or a Light: Or Lights, or Windows: The singular number being put for the plural, which is most frequent: Or it might be one great Light or Lanthorn, by which light might be derived and distributed into several rooms. i (i.e.) Either 1. The Window, which was to be a Cubit square. Or rather 2. The Ark; as appears 1. From the Gender of the Hebrew affix, which is feminine, and therefore agrees with the Ark, which in the Hebrew is of the feminine Gender, not with the Window, which is masculine. 2 From the nature of the thing, the Ark requiring a roof, and that sloping, that the Rain might slide off from it, and not sink into it; for which end the roof in the middle was to be higher than the Ark by a Cubit. And as the other parts of the Ark were made with exquisite contrivance, so doubtless this was not defective therein. k Whereof the highest story for Men and Birds; the second for Provision for the brute Creatures; the lowest for the Beasts, under which was the sink of the Ark, which most probably was made sloping at the bottom, as all Ships and Boats are, where Serpents and such like Creatures might be put, with their proper Provisions.

17 And behold I, even I l, do bring m a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh n, wherein is the breath of Life, from under Heaven: and every thing that is in the earth o shall dye.

l Which is thus emphatically repeated, to signify that this flood did not proceed from natural causes, but from the immediate hand and judgment of God. m (i.e.) Will assuredly and speedily bring. n (i.e.) All Men, Birds and Beasts. o This limitation is added to shew that the Fishes are not included in the threatned destruction, either because they did not live in the same Element wherein Man lived and sinned; or because they were not so instrumental in Mens sins, as the Beasts might be; or because Man had a greater command over the Beasts than over the Fishes, and greater service and benefit from them; and therefore the destruction of the former was a greater and more proper Punishment to Man than the latter.

18 But with thee will I establish my covenant p: and thou shalt come into the ark; thou, and thy sons, and thy wife, and thy sons wives with thee.

p Either 1. My promise to preserve thee and thine, both till the Flood and in it, notwithstanding all the scoffs and threats of the wicked World against thee all the time of thy Preaching and Building of the Ark. The word Covenant being here understood, not of a mutual compact or agreement, but of a single and gracious promise, as it is also used, Numb. 18. 19. and 25. 12. and in other places. Which promise though only here mentioned, was doubtless made before, as may easily be gathered both from these words, and some foregoing passages, and from the need which Noah had of such a support and encouragement, during all the time of his Ministry. Or 2. My Covenant concerning the sending of the promised Seed, and the Redemption of Mankind by the Messias, who shall come out of thy Loins, and therefore thou shalt be preserved.

19 And of every living thing of all flesh two q of every sort shalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee: they shall be male and female.

q (i.e.) Either 1. By Couples, or Male and Female: But this is mentioned as a distinct thing in the close of the verse. Or rather 2. Two at least of every sort, even of the unclean; but of the clean more, as is noted ch. 7. 2.

20 Of fowls after their kind r, and of cattel after their kind, of every creeping thing of the earth after his kind: two of every sort shall come unto thee s, to keep them alive.

r (i.e.) According to their several kinds. s Of their own accord, by my impulse, or by the conduct of Angels, as Gen. 2. 19.

21 And take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten t, and thou shalt gather it to thee, and it shall be for food for thee, and for them.

t Of which see Gen. 1. 29, 30.

manded him, so did he u.

u Both for the matter and the manner of it; although the work of building the Ark was laborious, costly, tedious, dangerous, and seemingly foolish and ridiculous; especially when all things continued in the same posture and safety for so many scores of years together: Whereby Noah, without doubt, was all that while the Song of the Drunkards, and the Sport of the Wits of that Age. So that it is not strange that this is mentioned as an heroick Act of Faith in Noah, Heb. 11. 7. whereby he surmounted all these difficulties.

CHAP. VII.

God commands Noah to enter into the ark; the reason of it, 1. Directs him as to the manner and time, 2—4 Noah's obedience in all things, 5. His age, 6. His entrance with his Family, &c. into the ark, 7—9. The day in which the flood began, 10, 11. Its continuance, 12. Noah and his Family, &c in the ark, 13—16. The flood encreases and destroys all living substance, 17—24.

* Mat 24. 38. Luke 17. 26. 2 Pet 2. 5. * Cap 6 9.

AND the * LORD said a unto Noah, Come b thou and all thy house c into the ark: for * thee have I seen righteous d before me e in this generation f.

a When the Ark was finished and furnished, and the time of God's patience expired, Gen. 6. 3. b (i.e.) Prepare to enter. c (i.e.) Thy Family; which consisted only of eight Persons, 1 Pet. 3. 20. To wit, Noah and his three Sons, and their four Wives, Gen. 6. 18. Whereby it appears that each had but one Wife, and consequently it is more than probable that Polygamy, as it began in the posterity of wicked Cain, Gen. 4. 19. so it was confined to them, and had not as yet got footing amongst the Sons of God. For if ever Polygamy had been allowable, it must have been now, for the repeopling of the perishing World. d With the Righteousness of Faith, as it is explained, Heb. 11. 7. evidenced by all the fruits of Righteousness and true Holiness. e Not only before Men, and seemingly, but really, and to my all-seeing Eye. f Of which expression, see Notes on Gen. 6. 9.

2 Of every clean beast g thou shalt take to thee † by sevens h, the male and his female: and of beasts that are not clean, by two, the † male and his female.

g Obj. The distinction of clean and unclean Beasts was not before the Law. Answ. Some legal things were prescribed and used before the Law, as abstinence from the eating of Blood, Gen. 9. 4. and among other things, Sacrifices, as learned men have sufficiently proved; and consequently the distinction of Beasts to be Sacrificed was then, in some measure, understood, which afterwards was expressed, Levit. 1, &c. Nor is this a good argument, This was not written before; therefore it was not commanded and practised before, especially concerning a time when no commands of God were written, but only delivered by tradition. h Either 1. Seven single, as most think. Or rather 2. Seven couples, as may be gathered, 1. From the duplication of the word in Hebrew. If it be said seven seven, signifies only seven of every kind, then it would have been said concerning the unclean Beasts, two two, (i.e.) two of each sort: Whereas now there is an apparent difference; there it is said only by two, but here, by sevens, or seven seven, which difference of the phrase suggests a difference in the things. 2. By the following words, The male and his female, which being indifferently applied to the clean and unclean, plainly shews that none of them entred into the Ark single, and therefore there was no odd seventh among them, but all went in by couples, which was most convenient in all for the propagation of their kind, and in the clean for other uses also; as for Sacrifices to God, if not for the sustentation of Men in the Ark, and after they came out of it. Which gives us the reason why God would have more of the clean than of the unclean put into the Ark, because they were more serviceable both to God and Men.

* Ch. 13. 65. 9.

3 Of fowls i also of the air by sevens k, the male and the female, to keep * seed l alive upon the face of all the earth.

i (i.e.) Of clean Fowls; which he leaves to be understood out of the foregoing verse. k And of the unclean by two; as before of the Beasts. l (i.e.) The issue, or breed of them.

4 For yet seven days m, and I will cause it to rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights: and every living substance n that I have made, will I † destroy from off the face of the earth.

m Or, After seven days, the Hebrew Lamed being put for after, as it is Exod. 16. 1. Psal. 19. 3. Jer. 41. 4. Or, within seven days, which time God allowed to the World as a further space of Repentance, whereof, therefore it is probable, Noah gave them notice; and it is not unlikely that many of them who slighted the threatning, when it was at 120 years distance, now hearing a second threatning, and considering the nearness of their danger, might be more affected and brought to true Repentance: Who though destroyed in their Bodies by the Flood for their former and long impenitency, which God would not so far pardon, yet might be saved in their Spirits. See 1 Pet. 4. 6. And as some preserved in the Ark were damned, so others drowned in the deluge might be eternally saved. n All that hath in it the breath of Life, as was said ch. 6. 17.

5 And Noah did according unto all that the LORD commanded him o.

o Which was said chap. 6. 22. and is here repeated, because this was an eminent instance of his Faith and Obedience.

6 And Noah was † six hundred years old, when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

† Heb. son of, &c.

7 And Noah went in, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons wives with him into the ark, because of p the waters of the flood.

p Or, For fear of: For fear is ascribed to, and commended in Noah, Heb. 11. 7. Or, From the face of.

8 Of clean beasts, and of beasts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of every thing that creepeth upon the earth.

9 There went in q two and two r unto Noah into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded Noah.

q By the secret impulse of their great Creator and Governour. See Gen. 2. 19. and 6. 20. r Of which see above verse 20.

10 And it came to pass † after seven days, that the waters of the flood were upon the earth.

11 In the six hundredth year of Noahs life s, in the second month t, the seventeenth day of the month, the same day were all the fountains of the great deep u broken up x, and the * windows of heaven were * Or, Floodgates. opened y.

s Either compleat: Or rather current or begun; otherwise he had lived three hundred fifty one years after the Flood, not three hundred fifty only, as it is written, Gen. 9. last. t Either 1. Of that year of Noah's life. Or 2. Of the year. Now as the year among the Hebrews was two-fold; the one sacred, for the celebration of Feasts, beginning in March, of which see Exod. 12. 2. The other civil, for the better ordering of Men's political or civil Affairs, which began in September. Accordingly this second month is thought, by some, to be part of April, and part of May, the most pleasant part of the year, when the Flood was least expected or feared: By others part of October, and part of November, a little after Noah had gathered the fruits of the Earth, and laid them up in the Ark. So the Flood came in with the Winter, and was by degrees dried up by the heat of the following Summer: And this opinion seems the more probable, because the most ancient and first beginning of the year was in September; and the other beginning of the year in March, was but a later institution among the Jews with respect to their Feasts and sacred Affairs only, which are not at all concerned here. u (i.e.) Of the Sea, called the deep, Job 38. 16, 30. and 41, 31. Psal. 106. 9. and also of that great Abyss, or Sea of Waters, which is contained in the Bowels of the Earth. For that there are vast quantities of Waters there, is implied both here and in other Scriptures, as Psal. 33. 7. 2 Pet. 3. 5. and is affirmed by Plato in his Phædrus, and by Seneca in his Natural Questions, 3. 19. and is evident from Springs and Rivers which have their rise from thence, and some of them have no other place into which they issue themselves, as appears from the Caspian Sea, into which divers Rivers do empty themselves, and especially that great River Volga, in such abundance, that it would certainly drown all those parts of the Earth, if there were not a vent for them under ground; for other vent above ground out of that great Lake or Sea they have none. Out of this deep therefore, and out of the Sea together, it was very easie for God to bring such a quantity of Waters, as might overwhelm the Earth, without any production of new Waters, which yet he with one word could have created. So vain are the cavils of Atheistical Anti-Scripturists in this. x The Fountains are said to be broken up here, also Psal. 74. 15. by a Metonymy, because the Earth and other Obstructions were broken up, and so a passage opened for the Fountains; as Bread is said to be bruised, Isa. 28. 28. and Meat to be ground, Isa. 47. 2. Because the Corn, of which the Meal and Bread were made, was bruised and ground. y Which some understand of the Waters, which from Gen. 1. 7. they suppose were placed by God above the visible Heavens, and reserved and kept, as it were in Prison, for this very purpose; and now the Prison-doors were opened, and they let loose and sent down for the Destruction of the World: But others more fitly understand it of the Clouds, which are called the windows of Heaven, Mal. 3. 10. So 2 Kings 7. 2, 19. Psal. 78. 23. Isa. 24. 18. Which then grew thicker and bigger with Waters; nor is there any inconvenience in it, if we say that God created a great quantity of Waters for this end, which afterwards be annihilated.

12 And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights z.

z God by this gradual proceeding both awakened to repentance, and gave them space for it.

13 In the * self same day a entred Noah, and Shem, * Job 21. 25.
and Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noahs wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark.

a On which the Flood began by that terrible shower. Heb. In the Body, or Essence, or Strength of the Day, as Gen. 17. 26. Levit. 23. 14. Jos. 10. 27. q. d. Not in the dark or twilight, like one ashamed of his Action, or afraid of the People, but when it was clear Day, or about Noon-tide, in the publick view of the World.

14 They, and every beast after his kind, and all the cattel after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird b of every † sort c. † Heb.

b The first word signifies the greater, the second the less sort of wing. Birds, as appears from Gen. 15. 9, 10. Levit. 14. 4. Psal. 104. 17. c Heb. Of every kind of Wing, whether Feathered, as it is in most Birds, or Skinny and Grisly, as in Bats.

15 And they went in d unto Noah into the ark, two and two of all flesh wherein is the breath of life e.

d See on ver. 9. e (i.e.) All living Creatures forementioned, v. 14.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all flesh, as God had commanded him: and the LORD shut him in f.

f Or, shut the door after him, or upon him, or for him, i. e. his good and safety, against the fury either of the Waters, or of the People. This God did in some extraordinary manner.

17 And the flood g was forty days upon the earth: and the waters encreased i, and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

g Or, that Flood of Waters, which was poured down in that shower mentioned, verse 12. otherwise the Flood was one hundred and fifty days upon the Earth, verse 24. i By the accession of more Waters from above and beneath.

18 And the waters prevailed, and were encreased greatly upon the earth k; and the ark went upon the face of the waters.

k Overthrowing Men, and Houses, and Trees, where possibly they did, or thought to secure themselves.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth, and all the high hills that were under the whole heaven were covered m.

m Profane Wits pretend this to be impossible, because of the vast height of divers Mountains. But 1. This cannot be thought impossible by any Man that believeth a God; to whom it was as easy to bring forth a sufficiency of Water, for this end, as to speak a word. And if we acknowledge a Miracle of the Divine Power and Providence here, it is no more than even Heathens have confessed in other cases. 2. Peradventure this Flood might not be simply universal over the whole Earth, but only over all the habitable World where either Men or Beasts lived; which was as much as either the Meritorious cause of the Flood, Men's sins, or the end of it, the destruction of all Men and Beasts, required. And the or that whole Heaven, may be understood of that which was over all the habitable parts of it. And whereas our modern Heathens, that mis-call themselves Christians, laugh at the History of this Flood upon this and the like occasions, as if it were an idle Romance; they may please to note, that their Predecessors, the ancient and wiser Heathens, have divers of them acknowledged the Truth of it, though they also mixed it with their Fables, which was neither strange, nor unusual for them to do. Lactantius appeals to the Heathen of his age concerning it. Nay there is not only mention of the Flood in general, but also of the Dove sent out of the Ark, in Plutarch, and Berosus, and Abydenus. And the memory of this general Flood is preserved to this day among the poor ignorant Indians, who asked the Christians who invaded their Land, whether they ever heard of such a thing, and whether another Flood was to be expected? And the Chinese Writers relate, that but one Person, whom they call Puoncuus, with his Family, were saved in the Flood, and all the rest perished.

20 Fifteen cubits upwards did the waters prevail n; and the mountains were covered.

n Which was sufficient for the Destruction of the highest men, or other Creatures, though placed upon the highest Mountains.

21 And all flesh died that moved o upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattel, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man.

o (i.e.) Lived; for motion is a sign of Life.

† Heb. the breath of the spirit of life, Sam. 22. 16.

22 All in whose nostrils was † the breath of life p, of all that was in the dry land, died q.

p Of which phrase see the note on Gen. 2. 7. q Whether Men or Beasts, &c. all that breathed the same Air with Man, all that lived in the same Element, which Man by his sins had infected; whereby the Fishes are excepted, as living in another Element.

23 And every living substance was destroyed, which was upon the face of the ground, both man and cattel, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven, and they were destroyed from the earth: and * Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

* 2 Pet. 2. 5.

r This is so often repeated, that it may be more deeply ingrafted into the dull Minds and hard Hearts of Men, to teach Men that they ought again and again to consider this dreadful instance of God's justice against sin, and incorrigible sinners.

24 And the waters prevailed s upon the earth an hundred and fifty days t.

s (i.e.) Either grew higher and higher, or rather continued to prevail, and did not decrease. t In all, whereof one part was the forty days mentioned, ver. 17. as appears from chap. 8. 4.

CHAP. VIII.

The waters abate, 1—3. The ark rests on mount Ararat, 4. The day on which the tops of the mountains were seen, noted, 5. Noah opens the window of the ark, 6. Sends forth a raven, 7. After that a dove, 8. Which returned, 9. He sends the dove out a second time, 10. Which returns with an olive leaf, 11. He sends her out again, and she returns not, 12. The earth dry, 13, 14. God commands Noah and his family to come out, 15—17. Waits they do, 18, 19. Noah builds an altar, and sacrifices, 20. God accepts it, and promises not to drown the world again, 21. But to continue the seasons of the year, 22.

AND God remembred Noah a, and every † living thing b, and all the cattel that was with him in the ark: and God made a wind c to pass over the earth, and the waters asswaged.

a (i.e.) He shewed by his actions that he minded and cared for him; or pitied and succoured him. God is said to remember his People when after some delays or suspensions of his favour, he returns and shews kindness to them. as Gen. 19. 29. and 30. 22. Exod. 32. 13. Job 14. 13. Psal. 132. 1. b As God punished the Beasts for Man's sin, so now he favours them for Man's sake. c A drying or burning Wind, like that of Exod. 14. 21. which had a natural power to dry up the Waters; but that was heightned by the assistance of an higher and miraculous operation of God.

2 The fountains also of the deep, and the windows of heaven were stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained.

† Heb. in going and returning.

3 And the waters returned from off the earth † continually: and after the end of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

4 And the ark rested in the seventh month d, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ararat e.

d From the beginning, not of the Flood, but of the Year, as appears by comparing chap. 7. 11. and chap. 8. 13, 14. e (i.e.) Upon one of the Mountains of Ararat; by a frequent Enallage of the Number as Jud. 12. 7. Matth. 21. 5. And by Ararat is here commonly and rightly understood Armenia, as appears both by comparing Isa. 37. 38. Jer. 51. 27. and by the Testimony of ancient Writers, produced by Josephus and others to this purpose; and by the great height of those Mountains, and by its nearness to the place where the first Men lived; this great Vessel not being fitted for sailing to remote places, but only for the receit and preservation of Men and other Creatures in it.

5 And the waters † decreased continually until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.

6 And it came to pass at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made.

7 And he sent forth a raven f, which went forth † † to and fro g, until the waters were dried up from off the earth h.

f A fit Messenger for that purpose, because it smells dead Carcases at a great distance, and flies far, and then returneth to its former Habitation with something in its Bill. g Heb. Going and returning. (i.e.) went forth hither and thither, now forward, then backward, sometimes going from the Ark, and sometimes returning to the Ark, though never entring into it again. h Not as if she returned afterwards; but the phrase implies, that she never returned. And so the word until is often used, as 2 Sam. 6. last. Michal had no Child until the day of her death, i.e. never had a Child. See also Psal. 110. 1. Matth. 1. 25.

8 Also he sent forth a dove i from him to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground.

i Which flies lower and longer than the Raven, and is more sociable and familiar with Man, and more constant to its accustomed dwelling, and more loving and faithful to its Mate, and therefore more likely to return with some discovery.

9 But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot k, and she returned unto him into the ark: for the waters were on the face of the whole earth. Then he put forth his hand, and took her l, and † pulled her in unto him into the ark.

k Because the tops of the Hills which then appeared, were either muddy, and dirty; or unobserved by the Dove, as not soaring so high: Whence the Doves are emphatically called the Doves of the Vallies, Ezek 7. 16. l Her former acquaintance with Noah, and her present necessity making her more tractable.

10 And he stayed yet other seven days, and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark.

11 And the dove came in to him in the evening m, and lo, in her mouth was an olive-leaf n pluckt off: So Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

m As the manner of Doves is, partly for better accommodation both for food and lodging, than yet he could meet with abroad; and partly from his love to his Mate. n Quest. Whence was this leaf, when Trees had been so generally overthrown and rooted up by the deluge? Answ. 1. Many Trees might be preserved by an advantageous scituation, between the Rocks or Hills which broke the force of the Waters. 2. It is probable that God, by his powerful Providence, preserved the Plants and Trees for future ages; and therefore there is no mention of any of their Roots or Seeds preserved in the Ark. 3. The Olive-tree especially will not only stand, but live and flourish under the Waters, as Pliny l. 13. c. 25. and 16. 20. and Theophrastus 4. 8. observe. Add, that the word here rendred, leaf, signifies also a tender branch.

12 And he stayed yet other seven days, and sent forth the dove, which returned not again unto him any more o.

o Finding convenient food and resting place upon the Earth, and preferring her freedom before her Mate. Possibly she might lose the sight of the Ark, and forget or mistake the way to it.

13 And it came to pass in the six hundredth and one year, in the first month, the first day of the month, p the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and behold, the face of the ground was dry.

p The words month and day are oft-times, for brevity sake, omitted by the Hebrews, as being easily understood. Thus the first of the Feast, Matth. 26. 17. is the first day of the Feast, Mark 14. 12.

14 And in the second month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month was the earth dried q.

q Not only from water, as it was ver. 13. but from mud and dirt also. So the Flood continued ten days more than a year, by comparing this with chap. 7. 11.

15 And God spake unto Noah, saying,

16 Go forth of the ark r, thou, and thy wife, and sons, and thy sons wives with thee.

r As Noah expected the command of God for his going into the Ark, chap. 7. 1, 2. so for his coming forth of it.

17 Bring forth with thee every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattel, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and * be fruitful and multiply upon the earth s.

* Chap. 1. 22.

s Quest. How could these Creatures which came out of the Ark in Asia, get thence to America, or to the Illands remote from the Continent? Answ. 1. As for America, it is thought by divers learned Men Men, that it is either joyned to this Continent, or separated from it only by a Narrow Sea, which divers living Creatures could easily swim over. 2. Many living Creatures are, and always were transported by Men in their Vessels, either for their supply, or profit, or diversion, or other ends, and thence might easily be propagated there. 3. The same God who made all these Creatures, and caused them to come first to Adam, and afterwards to Noah, could afterwards both encline and impower them to go whither he pleased, without the advice of these vain Men, who will believe nothing of God which themselves either do not see, or cannot do.

18 And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons wives with him.

19 Every beast, every creeping thing, and every fowl, and whatsoever creepeth upon the earth after their † kinds, went forth out of the ark.

20 And Noah built an altar unto the Lord t, and took of every clean beast, and of every clean fowl, and offered burnt-offerings on the altar u.

t The first Altar we read of, but not the first which was built: For the Sacrifices which were offered before, Gen. 4. 3, 4. presuppose an Altar. Therefore it is no sufficient evidence, that such things were not done, because they are not said to be done in Scripture: Which will be an useful consideration for the understanding of many passages in Scripture hereafter. u The first thing Noah doth, is to pay his debt of Justice and Gratitude to that God which had so miraculously preserved him, and restored him to his ancient and proper Habitation. God expects to be served in the first place. What Beasts were clean and what unclean, see chap. 7. 2. Levit. 11. 2, &c.

21 And the Lord smelled † a sweet savour x, and the Lord said in his heart y, I will not again curse the ground z any more for mans sake, for the * imagination of mans heart is evil a from his youth †: Neither will I again smite b any more every thing living as I have done.

x (i.c.) Graciously accepted the Person and Faith and Praise-offering of Noah, and was as well pleased therewith, as Men use to be with a sweet smell. y (i.e.) Determined within himself, and expressed so much to Noah. The Hebrew Preposition el, sometimes signifies in, as Gen 6. 6. 1 Sam. 27. 1. Others, said to his Heart, i.e. Spake to the Heart of Noah, who is mentioned ver. 20. To speak to the Heart, in Scripture use, signifies to comfort. z (i.e.) To speak to the Heart, in Scripture use, signifies to comfort. z (i.e.) The whole Earth with this kind of Curse, with another deluge. Otherwise God doth not hereby tye his Hands, that he may not either destroy a particular Land by a deluge, which hath been done since, or destroy the World by Fire when he sees fit, as he hath declared he will do. a The reason contained in these words is this; Since all Men's Hearts are naturally corrupt, and from that filthy Spring wicked Actions will be continually flowing forth into the World; and consequently, if I should be severe to punish Men according to their Sins, I should do nothing but send one deluge after another. Or these words may be joyned with the former, and the sense may be this; I will not again destroy the Earth with a deluge for Man's sake, or for Man's Sin, or because of the imagination, &c. (i.e.) because his Heart is corrupt, and his Actions are agreeable to it, which was the cause of the last deluge. Or the Particle chi, may be rendred, although, as it is frequently taken, as Exod. 5. 11. and 13. 17. and 34. 9. Jos. 17. 13. Psal. 25. 11. and 41. 5. and so the sense is plain, I will not again destroy the Earth, although the imagination, &c. i.e. Although I have just cause to do so. † Or, From his very childhood and infancy, as the Chaldee and Greek Interpreters translate it. b i.e. Kill or destroy, as the word smiting is taken, Exod. 21. 18. Numb. 14. 12. and 35. 16. Deut. 28. 22, 27. Amos 4. 9.

22 † While the earth remaineth c, seed-time, and harvest, and cold, and heat, and summer, and winter, and day and night d shall not cease.

c Viz. In this estate: For though it seems probable that the substance of the Earth will abide for ever, after the dissolution of the World by Fire; yet that will be in another manner, and for other purposes, and then there will be no need of Seed-time, or Harvest, &c. d Which distinction in a manner ceased in the Ark, the Heavens being covered, and all its lights eclipsed by such thick and black Clouds, as never were before nor since.

CHAP. IX.

God renews his blessing, 1. And confirms our dominion over the creatures, 2. Grants flesh for food, but with the blood forbids it, 3, 4. The penalty of murther, 5, 6. God repeats his blessing, 7. His covenant with Noah, and all his creatures, 8—11. Confirms it by the rainbow as his token, 12——17. Noah's three sons, 18, 19. His employment, 20. He is drunk and uncovered, 21. Ham sinfully reveals it, 22. His other two sons, going backwards, covered him, 23. Noah knows it, 24. Curses Canaan, 25. Blesses Shem first, 26. And then Japhet, 27. His age and death, 28, 29.

* Chap. 1. 28. and 8. 17.

AND God blessed a Noah, and his sons, and said unto them, * Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth.

a (i.e.) Renewed the old blessing and grant made chap. 1. 28. which might seem to be forfeited and made void by Man's Sin, and by God's Judgment consequent upon it.

2 And the fear of you, and the dread of you shall be upon every beast of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fishes of the sea †; into your hand are they delivered *.

† Before they loved and reverenced you as Lords and Friends, now they shall dread you as Enemies and Tyrants. * For your use and service. I restore you in part to that Dominion over them which you for your Sins have forfeited.

* Chap. 1. 29.

3 Every moving thing b that liveth c, shall be meat for you d, even as the * green herb have I given you all things †.

b Which is wholesome and fit for food, and clean: An exception to be gathered both from the nature of the thing, and from the distinction of clean and unclean Beasts mentioned before and afterwards. c This is added to exclude the use of those Creatures, which either died of themselves, or were killed by wild Beasts, which is here forbidden implicitely, and afterwards expressly. See Exod. 22. 31. Levit. 22. 8. d It is not a command that we must, but a permission that we may eat of them. A grant possibly given before the Flood, but now expressed, either because the former allowance might seem to be forfeited, or because as Men now grew more infirm and needed better nourishment, so the Earth was grown more feeble by the Flood, and its Fruits yielded less and worse nourishment. † Understand this with the limitation above-mentioned. The green Herbs were given before, chap. 1. 29.

* Levit. 17. 14. Deut. 12. 23. Acts 15. 20. † Heb. Soul.

4 * But flesh with the † life thereof e, which is the blood thereof f, shall you not eat g.

e (i.e.) Whilst it lives, or taken from the Creature before it be quite dead: Which was an ancient practice, and an effect either of luxury or cruelty. f (i.e.) Which life or soul hath its seat in, and its support from the Blood, and the Spirits contained in it. It is certain Blood is the thing which is here principally minded and forbidden, and so the words may be thus translated and understood, But Flesh, (i.e.) the Flesh of living Creatures hereby allowed you with the Life thereof, that is to say, with the Blood thereof, wherein its Life consists. Or, But Flesh whilst it hath in it its Life or Soul, or, which is all one, its Blood. g God thought fit to forbid this, partly that by this respect shewn to the Blood of Beasts it might appear how sacred a thing the Blood of Man was, and how much God abhorred the Sin of Murther; and principally because the Blood was reserved and consecrated to God, and was the means of atonement for Man; (which reason God himself gives, Levit. 17. 11, 12.) and did in a special manner represent the Blood of Christ, which was to be shed for the redemption of Mankind.

5 And surely your blood of your † lives h will I require i: at the hand of every beast will I require it, and at the hand of man; at the hand of every mans brother l will I require the † life of man.

† Heb. Soul.

* Or, For, as the Particle is oft taken: This being the reason of the foregoing prohibition. h Or, Of your Souls, i.e. Of your persons; the word Soul being oft put for person. Or, your Blood, which is for your Lives, (i.e.) which by the Spirits it generates is the great preserver and instrument of your Lives, and of all your vital Actions, and the great bond which ties your Souls and Bodies together. The sense of the place is; If I am thus careful for the Blood of Beasts, be assured I will be much more solicitous for the Blood of Men, when it shall be shed by unjust and violent hands. i I will make inquisition for the Author of such bloodshed, as I did after Cain, and consequently punish him: For this phrase of requiring implies Punishment. See Gen. 42. 22. Deut. 18. 19. compared with Acts 3. 23. Psal. 9. 13. If Magistrates neglect this Duty, I my self will avenge it by my own Hand. k Not for the Punishment of the Beast, which being under no Law, is not capable of Sin, nor Punishment; but for caution to Men, for whose use seeing they were made, it is no abuse of them if they be destroyed for Man's benefit. Compare Exod. 21. 28. Levit. 20. 15. l This is added, either 1. as an aggravation of the Crime, because the Man slain was the Brother of the Murtherer; all Men being made of one Blood, Acts 17. 26. And having one Father, even God, Mal. 2. 10. and Adam too. Upon which account all Men are frequently called one another's brethren, as is manifest from Gen. 26. 31. and 29. 4. Levit. 19. 17. and 25. 14. and 26. 37. and from many other places of Scripture. Or, 2. As an assurance of the Punishment of the Murtherer, without any exception of the nearest Relation; which, though it makes the Sin greater, yet many times is a security against Punishment, the Murtherer easily finding Favour and Pardon from his Parents and dear Friends. But the former sense seems the better. *

* Matth. 26. 52. Revel. 13. 10.

6 * Whoso sheddeth † mans blood m, by man * shall his blood be shed *: for in the image of God made he man o.

m Wilfully and unwarrantably. For there is a double exception to this Law, 1. Of casual Murther, expressed Numb. 35. blood of 31. Deut. 19. 4. 2. Of death inflicted by the Hand of the Magistrate for Crimes deserving it, mentioned in the following words, and elsewhere. n (i.e.) By the Hand of Man, namely the Magistrate, Rom. 13. 4. Who is hereby impowered and required upon pain of my highest displeasure to inflict this Punishment. See Exod. 21. 12. Levit. 24. 17. Matth 26. 57. Or, For that Man, i.e. For that Man's sake, whose Blood he hath shed, which cries for Vengeance. o So that Murther is not only an offence against Man, but also an injury to God, and a contempt of that image of God which all Men are obliged to reverence and maintain, and especially Magistrates, who being my Vicegerents and Servants, are therefore under a particular obligation to punish those who deface and destroy it.

* Chap. 1. 27.

7 And you, be ye fruitful, and multiply p, bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

p (i.e.) As for you, I do not repent of that former Blessing I give gave to your Parents, Gen. 1. 28. but do hereby renew it to you and your Seed after you.

8 ¶ And God ſpake unto Noah, and to his ſons with him, ſaying,

9 And I, behold, I eſtabliſh my covenant q with you, and with your ſeed r after you;

q (i. e.) My promiſe: For the Beaſts included in this Covenant, verſe 10. are not capable of a Covenant properly ſo called. And the word Covenant is oft uſed for a ſimple Promiſe; as we ſhall ſee hereafter. r (i. e.) Your Poſterity, as that word is frequently taken, as Gen. 12. 7. Exod. 28. 43, &c.

† Heb. Living Soul. 10 And with every † living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattel, and of every beaſt of the earth with you, from all that go out of the ark, to every beaſt of the earth *.

* To wit, which ſhall hereafter be in the Earth. So they are diſtinguiſhed from thoſe which were now with them.

Iſa. 54. 9. 11 And * I will eſtabliſh my covenant with you, neither ſhall all fleſh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood, neither ſhall there any more be a flood s to deſtroy the earth.

s (i. e.) An univerſal deluge: For particular inundations there have been, whereby Towns and Countries have been overwhelmed with all their Inhabitants.

12 And God ſaid, This is the token of the covenant t which I make between me, and you, and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

t This, (i. e.) The bow mentioned in the next verſe; I appoint to you for a ſenſible ſign and evidence to aſſure you, that I ſhall perform this Covenant or Promiſe.

13 I do ſet † my bow u in the cloud x, and it ſhall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

† Heb. I have given, (i. e.) I will from time to time give and place. u God calleth it his Bow, partly becauſe it was his workmanſhip, and chiefly becauſe it was his pledge and the ſeal of his promiſe. x A proper ſeat for it: That they might now fetch an Argument of Faith from thence, whence before they had matter of juſt fear; and that which naturally was, and is a ſign of Rain, might by this new appointment of God be turned into an aſſurance, that there ſhould be no ſuch overflowing Rain as now had been.

* Eccleſ. 43. 11, 12. 14 * And it ſhall come to paſs, when I bring a cloud over the earth y, that the bow ſhall be ſeen in the cloud:

y Not always, but very frequently, which is ſufficient for this purpoſe.

15 And I will remember my covenant, which is between me, and you, and every † living creature of all fleſh; and the waters ſhall no more become a flood to deſtroy all fleſh.

16 And the bow ſhall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlaſting covenant z between God and every living creature of all fleſh that is upon the earth.

z (i. e.) This Covenant made with all ſucceeding Generations of Men and Beaſts. This and the like ſpeeches are oft aſcribed to God after the manner of Men, who being forgetful, need helps for their Memory.

17 And God ſaid unto Noah, This is the token of the covenant a, which I have eſtabliſhed between me and all fleſh that is upon the earth.

a The ſame thing is ſo oft repeated for the ſtrengthing of the Faith of all Men, and eſpecially of Noah and his Sons, whom the remembrance of that dreadful deluge, which they had experience of, had made exceeding prone to fears of the like for time to come.

18 ¶ And the ſons of Noah that went forth of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Japheth: and Ham † Heb. Chenaan. is the father of † Canaan b.

b Which is here mentioned to make way for the following relation.

19 Theſe are the three ſons of Noah: and of them was the whole earth overſpread c.

c A Truth which the old Heathens were not ignorant of, though they changed the Names, and mixed their Fables with it; for they tell us that Saturn and his three Sons divided the World among themſelves. And it is apparent, That their Saturn was no other than our Noah, becauſe they tell us he was the common Parent and Prince of all Mankind, alſo an Husbandman and Vine-dreſſer, all which Noah was. They ſay he was born of the Sea, becauſe Noah came out of the Waters: That he devoured all his Children except three, becauſe Noah condemned and foretold the deſtruction of all the reſt of the World.

20 And Noah began to be an husbandman d, and he planted a vineyard.

d (i. e.) Was an Husbandman, as he had been before. The Verb, to begin, doth oft abound; and is applied to him that continueth, or repeateth an Action begun before. Thus Chriſt is ſaid to begin to caſt out, Mark 1. 15. and to begin to ſpeak, Luke 13. 1. For which in the parallel places he is ſaid only to caſt out, Matth. 21. 12. and to ſpeak, Matth. 16. 6.

21 And he drank of the wine, and was drunken e, and he was uncovered f within his tent.

e Either through ignorance and inexperience of the nature and ſtrength of that Liquor, or through the infirmity of the Fleſh, which was tempted by its great, and, to him, new pleaſantneſs, and by the refreſhment he found in it, under the weary labours of his Body, and the ſad thoughts of his Mind, for the deſolate condition of the World. f Either to relieve himſelf againſt the heat of the Climate and Seaſon, or from his Negligence and Careleſneſs; which might eaſily happen, becauſe Men's Garments, at that time, were looſe, as they were in the following ages, when Breeches were not in common uſe, and therefore were peculiarly preſcribed to the Prieſts, Exod. 28. 42. Ezek. 44. 18, 19.

22 And Ham g the father of Canaan h ſaw the nakedneſs † of his father and told his two brethren without *.

g Whoſe grown age was a great aggravation of this Sin. h This is here added as a reaſon of Canaan's Curſe, verſe 25. † (i. e.) The ſecret parts, oft ſo called, as Levit. 18. and elſewhere. * (i. e.) Who were then without the Houſe or Room where their Father lay in that poſture, whom he invited to that proſpect.

23 And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their ſhoulders, and went backward and covered the nakedneſs of their father; and their faces were backward, and they ſaw not their fathers nakedneſs.

24 And Noah awoke from his wine †, and knew i what his younger ſon k had done unto him.

† (i. e.) From his Drunkenneſs, or from his Sleep, the effect of it. i Either by the information of his Sons, or by divine Inſpiration. k Or, His little Son, either Ham mentioned, verſe 22. or Canaan mentioned in the next verſe; by comparing of which places it may be gathered, that Canaan firſt ſaw it, and told his Father Ham of it, and he told it to his Brethren. The latter ſeems here principally intended, 1. Becauſe the Curſe following is appropriated to him. 2. Becauſe of the title of younger or little Son, which ſeems not to be ſo properly added if Ham was meant; both becauſe it doth not appear that he was the youngeſt, for wheresoever theſe three Brethren are mentioned, he is always put in the middle place, and becauſe that addition ſeems to be unneceſſary and impertinent to the preſent buſineſs, which if Canaan be intended, is proper and pertinent, by way of diſtinction, to ſhew that he ſpake of his Grandſon, or his Sons Son. Object. He calleth him his Son. Anſw. Grandchildren are frequently called their Grandfather's Sons in Scripture, as Geneſis 29. 5. 2 Samuel 19. 24. 1 Chron. 1. 17.

25 And he ſaid l, Curſed m be Canaan n; a ſervant of ſervants o ſhall he be unto his brethren.

l Not from the paſſion of Revenge, but by divine Inſpiration, and the ſpirit of Propheſy. m (i. e.) Hateful to God, abhorred by Men, miſerable in his Perſon and Poſterity. n Queſt. Seeing Ham committed the Crime, Why is the Curſe inflicted upon his Son Canaan? Anſw. 1. When Canaan is mentioned, Ham is not exempted from the Curſe, but rather more deeply plunged into it, whilſt he is pronounced accurſed, not only in his Perſon (which is manifeſtly ſuppoſed by his commiſſion of that Sin for which the Curſe was inflicted) but alſo in his Poſterity, which doubtleſs was a great aggravation of his Grief: As on the contrary Joſeph is ſaid to be bleſſed, when his Children are bleſſed, Gen. 48. 15, 16. 2. It ſeems therefore very probable from theſe Words, and the Hebrew Doctors, and others affirm it, that Canaan did partake with his Father in the Sin, yea, that he was the firſt diſcoverer of his Father's Shame. 3. Canaan is particularly mentioned by the ſpirit of Propheſy, in regard of the future extirpation of that People; and this is here remembred for the encouragement of the Iſraelites, who were now in their expedition againſt them. 4. This may be an elliptis, or defect of the word Father; for ſuch relative words are oft-times omitted and underſtood in Scripture, as Matth. 4. 21. James of Zebedee, for the Son of Zebedee. John 19. 25. Mary of Cleopas, for the wife of Cleopas. Acts 7. 16. Emmor of Sychem, for the Father of Sychem, as our Engliſh Tranſlation rightly ſupplies it from Gen. 33. 19. Thus Goliah is put for Goliah's Brother, as is evident by comparing 2 Sam. 21. 19. with 1 Chron. 20. 5. So here Canaan may be put for the Father of Canaan, as the Arabick Tranſlation hath it, that is, Ham, as the Seventy here render it. And though Ham had more Sons, yet he may be here deſcribed by his relation to Canaan, becauſe in him the Curſe was more fixed and dreadful, reaching to his utter extirpation, whilſt the reſt of Ham's Poſterity as after ages were bleſſed with the ſaving knowledge of the Goſpel. o (i. e.) The vileſt and worſt of Servants; as Vanity of Vanities, is the greateſt Vanity, Eccleſ. 1. 2. and great Wickedneſs, Hoſ. 10. 15. is in the Hebrew Wickedneſs of Wickedneſs, and King of Kings is put for the chief of Kings.

26 And he ſaid, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Shem p; and Canaan ſhall be † his ſervant. † Heb. Shall want to them.

p Queſt. What is this to Shem? For it is not Shem, but God who is here bleſſed. Anſw. 1. Shem alſo is here bleſſed, and that in the higheſt degree, becauſe the Lord hath here declared himſelf to be Shem's God. Now for God to be ſaid to be any Man's God, is every where mentioned as the height of Bleſſedneſs. See Gen. 17. 7. Pſal. 144. 15. Jer. 31. 33. Matth. 22. 32. But the phraſe is here juſtly varied. The Curſe is fixed upon Ham, becauſe Man alone is the Author of his own Sin, and the cauſe of his Ruin: But becauſe God is the Author and Fountain of all the Good that Man either doth or receiveth, therefore the Bleſſing is emphatically given to God, who only doth the Work, and of right is to receive all the Glory, yet ſo as it redounds to Shem alſo. And Shem is here peculiarly mentioned, not Japheth, both for the comfort of the Iſraelites, whoſe Progenitor he was, and becauſe this Bleſſing was firſt ſeated and long continued in Shem's Poſterity alone, Japheth's phetth's Poſterity being for a long time excluded from it; and becauſe the Lord Chriſt, who is often called the Lord and God in Scripture, did take Fleſh from Shem; and ſo the Incarnation of Chriſt may be here foretold; and Shem highly honoured and bleſſed in this, that he ſhould be the Father of Chriſt according to the Fleſh, Rom. 9. 5. Anſw. 2. This may be a ſhort and abrupt manner of Speech, which is frequent in the Hebrew Tongue; and it may ſignify that Shem ſhould be ſo eminently bleſſed, that men beholding it ſhould be wrapt up into Admiration, and break forth into the Praiſes of that God who gave ſuch gifts unto men, and did ſo great things for Shem. Anſw. 3. The words may be otherwiſe rendred, either thus, bleſſed, O Lord God, let Shem be, i. e. do thou bleſs him. So it is only the conſtruct from Elohe, for the abſolute Elohim, which is nor unuſual in Scripture: Or thus, Bleſſed of the Lord God be Shem, or ſhall Shem be. So here is only a defect of the Hebrew Particle min, which is oft wanting.

q Or, Enlarge to Japheth, underſtand here his place, as Gen 26. 22. Pſal. 4. 1. or his border: Which was very literally made good to him, becauſe he had a very numerous Poſterity; and by them he poſſeſſed the largeſt part of the World, even all Europe, a great part of Aſia, and as it is probable America alſo. Or, God ſhall perſuade Japheth, to do what follows, to dwell in Shem's Tents, where God dwelleth; and ſo to be re-united to his Brother Shem both in Affection and in Religion, in both which the Gentiles, the greateſt part of whom were Japheth's Poſterity, were for a long time at an irreconcileable diſtance from the Jews. r (i. e.) Shall be of the ſame Church with Shem, i. e. of the Church, which is called in Scripture the Tents or Tabernacles of Judah, or of Jacob, or in general of the Saints, Zech. 12. 7. Mal. 2. 12. Revel. 20. 9. and here of Shem, in whoſe Poſterity the Church was firſt and longeſt ſeated. And to dwell with another, notes friendly Aſſociation and Communion with him, as when God is ſaid to dwell with Men: And when the Wolf is ſaid to dwell with the Lamb, Iſa. 11. 6. Poſſibly this may note Japheth's Succeſſion into Shem's Tents, or coming into their place and ſtead, or the calling of the Gentiles, together with the rejection of the Jews; as the Reubenites are ſaid to dwell in the Tabernacles of the Hagarites, whom they ſubdued and expelled, 1 Chron. 5. 10. s This was eminently accompliſhed; for though Shem and Japheth, in their Poſterity, did ſucceſſively conquer and rule one over the other, yet none of Ham's Poſterity did ever bear rule over Japheth; but Ham, though for a time he bore ſway in his Son Nimrod; yet that Dominion ſoon expired, and the Aſſyrians, Chaldeans, Grecians, and Romans ruled the World for a ſucceſſion of many Ages; and Ham's People were conſtantly their Servants and Subjects.

28 And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years t.

t Which reacheth to the fifty eighth Year of Abraham's age, as the Jews note. And ſo we have a manifeſt Account of the Propagation of Religion, from the beginning of the World to this Day. Noah received it from his Parents, who had the account of it from their firſt Father Adam's own Mouth, and tranſmitted it to Abraham; and its deſcent known. Within this time alſo Noah ſaw the Building of Babel's Tower, the horrid Wickedneſs and Idolatry of his Children, and the bloody Wars which even then aroſe between ſome of them.

29 And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years u, and he died.

u Here is an omiſſion of that ſolemn clauſe uſed in all the preceding Generations, And he begat Sons and Daughters; which implies that Noah had no more than theſe three Sons, which alſo appears from the 19th. verſe of this chapter.

CHAP. X.

Noah's poſterity, 1. Sons of Japhet, 2——5. Of Ham, 2——14. Among whom Nimrod the firſt monarch and tyrant; he reigns in Babel, &c. 10. Aſſher builds Nineveh, &c. 11. Sons of Canaan, 15. Their border, 19. Of Shem, 21——31.

THis Chapter, though it may ſeem to ſome unprofitable, as conſiſting almoſt wholly of Genealogies, yet hath indeed great and manifold uſes. 1. To ſhew the true Original of the ſeveral Nations; about which all other Authors write idely, fabulouſly and ſillly, and thereby to manifeſt the Providence of God in the Government of the World and Church, and the Truth and Authority of the Holy Scriptures. 2. To diſcover and diſtinguiſh from all other Nations, that People or Nation in which God's Church was to be, and from which Chriſt was to come. 3. That Noah's Propheſy concerning his three Sons might be better underſtood, and the accompliſhment of it made evident. 4. To explain divers prophetical Predictions and other paſſages of Scripture, as will appear in the ſequel. For the better underſtanding of this Chapter, compare with it 1 Chron. 1. from verſe 4. to 24. And conſider theſe three things. 1. In the ſearch of theſe Genealogies, we muſt avoid both Careleſneſs for the reaſons now mentioned, and exceſſive Curioſity about every particular Perſon here named, and the People ſprung from him; which is neither neceſſary, nor profitable, nor indeed poſſible now to find out, by reaſon of the great changes of Names through length of time, loſs of ancient Records, differences of Languages, extinction of Families, conqueſt and deſtruction of Nations, and other Cauſes. It may ſuffice that divers of them, and thoſe the moſt eminent, are evident and diſcernable at this day, as will appear in the progreſs, by which we may and ought to preſume the Truth of the reſt, whoſe Names are loſt in the publick Confuſions of the World in former Ages, of whom I ſhall therefore be ſilent, and only ſpeak of the principal Perſons, and that briefly. 2. The ſame People which were originally ſeated in one place, did oft-times ſhift their places, or at leaſt ſent forth Colonies; and that ſometimes into places far diſtant from their Brethren, as appears from the ancient and famous Expeditions mentioned in Sacred and Prophane Story. So you muſt not wonder if you meet with the ſame People in divers Countries. 3. In general, the World was divided into three Parts, whereof the more Eaſtern parts were allotted to Shem and his Iſſue, the more Southern parts to Ham, and the more Northern parts of it to Japheth.

NOW theſe are the generations of the ſons of Noah; Shem, Ham, and Japheth: and unto them were ſons born after the flood.

2 * The ſons of Japheth a; Gomer and Magog c, * 1 Chron. and Madai d, and Javan e, and Tubal f, and Meſhech g, and Tiras h. 1. 5.

a Whoſe Portion was at firſt Aſia the leſs, and afterwards by degrees all Europe, and the Northern parts of Aſia. This is he ſo much celebrated among the Greeks, by the name of Japetus. b Whoſe Poſterity are reckoned among the Northern People, Ezek. 38. 6. and were ſeated in the Northern parts of the leſſer Aſia, and afterwards about Thracia; and from him were called Gomari, and by an eaſy change Cimbri, or Cimmerii. c The Father of the Scythians, as may be gathered from Ezek. 38. 2, 3, 15. and 39. 3, 6. d Whoſe Poſterity, wheresoever they were firſt placed, in Macedonia, or elſewhere, afterward were fixed in Media, and were called Medes, and in the Hebrew by the Name of their Father Madai, as appears from 2 Kings 17. 6. Iſa 13. 17. Jer. 13. 17. and 25. 25. Dan. 5. 28. and 6. 8. e Of whom came the Grecians, who are called by themſelves Ioanes or Ones, and in the Hebrew Jeuanim, and their Countrey Greece, Javan. See Iſa. 66. 19. Ezek. 27. 13, 19. Dan. 8. 21. and 10. 20. f Of whom came the Iberi, anciently called Thobeli, a People of Aſia, near the Euxine Sea. See Ezek. 27. 13. and 32. 6. and 38. 2, 3. g The Father of the Moſchi, i. e. the Moſcovites, or rather as others think, the Capadocians, who were anciently called Moſchini, and Moſchi, and their chief City Maraca. h The Father of the Thracians; amongſt whom is a River and Haven called Athyras, and who worſhipped their God Mars, under the Name of Thuras.

3 And the ſons of Gomer; Aſhkenaz i, and Riphath k, and Togarmah l.

i Whoſe Seed poſſeſſed Pontus and Bithynia, and the Neighbouring parts, from whom they took the Names of the Lake and Haven called Aſcanius, and the Sea called Axenus, or Euxinus. k Called Diphath, 1 Chron. 1. 6. The Letters Daleth and Reſh being oft interchanged, as we ſhall ſee in other inſtances. His Poſterity dwelled in or near Pontus and Bithynia, where Melo and Pliny and Solinus place the Riphai, or Riphaces, and the Paphlagonians, who were anciently called Riphatæi. l Whoſe Poſterity are joyned with Gomer's. See Ezek. 27. 14. and 38. 6. and were, as ſome think, the Phrygians and Galatians, and of them the Gauls and Germans; or, as others, the Armenians, and of them the Turks.

m The Father of the Grecians properly ſo called, who have preſerved his Name and remembrance in the Cities, Elis, and Eliſſus, in a tract of ground called Eliæ, and in the Elizian Fields. And from theſe came the Æolians, a People of the leſſer Aſia, where many of the Grecian Colonies were ſeated. n The Father of the Cilicians, from whom their chief City Tarſus, in Hebrew Tarſhiſh, took its Name. See Ezek. 27. 12. Jon. 1. 13. Acts 22. 3. and from whom the whole Mediterranean Sea is called Tarſhiſh, becauſe the Ciliceans were in a great degree Maſters of that Sea. o Or, Chittim, the Father of the Macedonians, and Italians too, as may be gathered from hence, becauſe both their Countries are called by the Name of Chittim; Macedonia, 1 Mac. 1. 1. and 8. 5. and Italy, Numb. 24. 24. Dan. 11. 30. See alſo Iſa. 23. 1. Jer. 2. 10. Beſides that there are other Evidences in prophane Writers that the Italians came from the Grecians. p Called alſo Rhodanim, 1 Chron. 1. 6. See Riphath in the former verſe. His Poſterity is uncertain, Moſt probably he was ſeated near his Brethren in ſome part of Greece. And the Greeks ſeem to have worſhipped him under the Name of Jupiter Dodonæus, whoſe famous Oracle was in the City Dodona.

5 By theſe were the iſles q of the gentiles divided r in their lands; every one after his tongue s, after their families t, in their nations.

q Not Iſles properly ſo called: For why ſhould they, having their choice, forſake the Continent for Iſlands, and thereby cut off themſelves from their Brethren? And where had they Ships to tranſport them? But the word Iles here and elſewhere ſignifies all thoſe Countries that had the Sea between them and Judea, as it doth Iſa. 11. 10, 11. and 40. 15. Jer. 2. 10. and 25. 22. Ezek. 27. 3. Zepha. 2. 11. And Iſles are here put for the Inhabitants, as the words Earth and Land are commonly uſed. r This diviſion of the World among them being a work of great weight, was doubtleſs managed with great Care and Conſultation, and the advice of their Heads and Governours, and above all by the wiſe and ſpecial Providence of God, which at this time did particularly determine the bounds of their ſeveral Habitations, as it is Recorded, Acts 17. 26. s (i. e.) According to their ſeveral Languages, into which they were divided at Babel. By which it appears that this diviſion, though mentioned before, was not executed till after the confuſion of Languages at Babel. t Here obſerve the Wiſe and Gracious Providence of God mixed with this judgment, that God diſtributed the Languages according to the difference of Families and Nations, that each ſeveral Nation, and all the Families, or Branches of that Nation ſhould have one and the ſame Language; whereby both Union and Love were preſerved among themſelves, and the ſeveral Nations were diſtinguiſhed one from another; which was very fit and neceſſary for many Reaſons: As that the Church of God, which was confined to the Hebrew Nation, might neither be mixed with, nor infected by the Idolatrous Nations; and that it might be evident to the World, that the Meſſias was born of the Seed of Abraham according to God's promiſe, &c.

6 ¶ * And the sons of Ham u; Cush x, and Mizraim y, and Phut z, and Canaan a.

* 1 Chron. 1, 8.

u Whose Posterity were disposed into the parts South from Babel, both in Asia and Africa. See 1 Chron. 4. 40. Psal. 105. 27. x The Father both of the Æthiopians and the Arabians: Who, as it seems, sent forth a Colony from themselves more Eastward, even near to India. See Gen. 2. 13. 2 Kings 19. 9. Job 28. 19. Jer. 13. 23. and 46. 9 y The Father of the Ægyptians, who are generally known in Scripture by that Name. z Of whom sprung the Libyans, among whom is the River Put, and the Moors. See Jer. 46. 9. Ezek 27. 10. and 30. 5. Nahum 3. 9. a The cursed Parent of that accursed Race of the Canaanites, well known in Scripture, Gen. 10. 25.

7 And the sons of Cush; Sheba b, and Havilah c, Sabtah d, and Raamah e, and Sabtecha f: and the sons of Raamah; Sheba g, and Dedan h.

b Or, Seba, or Saba, whose Seed were the Sabeans in Arabia the Defart. See Psal. 72. 10. Isa. 43. 3. and, as some think, the Assyrines in Africa. c The Father of the Inhabitants of the Land of Havilah, mentioned Gen. 2. 11. a Land in the most Eastern part of Arabia, this being opposed to Sur, a Defart near Egypt, as the two remotest bounds of Arabia, Gen. 23. 18. 1 Sam. 15. 7. d The Father of those People who were seated in the lower part of Arabia the happy, near the Persian Gulf, who also sent forth a Colony into Persia. For in those parts we meet with the Sabateni in Josephus, the Scabai, and Messabachi in Ptolomy and Pliny. e From whom descended another People dwelling in the same Arabia. See Ezek. 27. 22. f The Father of another People adjoyning to them. g The Father either of that People which inhabited Æthiopia, who were known by that Name. See 1 Kings 10. 1, 4. Ezek. 27. 22. Matth. 12. 42. Acts 8. 27. Or rather of another People in Arabia: So the several Sons of Cush are conveniently seated one near another. And those Æthiopians in Africa might be a Colony either of these, or rather of the Posterity of the former Seba. h Of whose Posterity, see Ezekeil 27. 15. and 38. 13.

8 And Cush begat Nimrod i: he began to be a mighty one in the Earth.

i Whom he placeth last of all his Sons, because he was to say more of him.

9 He was a mighty hunter k, before the LORD l: wherefore it is said m, Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the LORD.

k First of Beasts, and by that occasion of Men. For when Men were few, and lived dispersedly, and wild Beasts abounded, and most of all in those parts, by Hunting and Destroying of those Beasts, he got much Reputation and Favour with Men, who thereby were secured in their Dwellings. In confidence hereof, and having this occasion to gather great Companies of the youngest and strongest Men together to himself, by their help he established a Tyranny and Absolute Power over Men, Enslaving, Hunting after, and Destroying like Beasts, all those Men who opposed his Dominion. Tyrants and Persecutors are oft in Scripture called Fowlers and Hunters, as Psal. 91. 1. Jer. 16. 16. Lament. 3. 52. and 4. 18. l An aggravation of his Crime, that it was done in God's presence, impudently and in contempt both of God, who had so lately manifested his detestation of this Sin by the destruction of the World, amongst other Sins, for this very Sin of Violence, Gen. 6. 13. and of his great Grandfather Noah then Living and Preaching, who probably did admonish him of the wickedness and danger of this practice. Thus he shewed that he neither feared God nor reverenced Man, if they withstood him in his Usurpation of Dominion. m It became a Proverb, when any Man was haughty, and cruel and tyrannical, and that joyned with impudence and obstinacy, That he was another Nimrod.

10 And the beginning of his kingdom n was † Babel o, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh p, the land of Shinar q.

n (i. e.) Either his Chief and Royal City, or the place where his Dominion began, and from whence it was extended to other parts. o Which being not built till the confusion of Languages, chap. 11. 4. sheweth that this, though here mentioned upon occasion of the Genealogy, was not executed till afterward; it being very usual in Scripture to neglect the order of time in Historical Relations. p Called Calne, Isa. 10. 9. and Canne, Ezek. 27. 23. and as it is here, Calneh, Amos 6. 2. Where it is mentioned amongst the eminent Cities. q (i. e.) In Mesopotamia. This calse belongs to all the Cities here named; and is added for distinction sake, because there is a Babylon in the Land of Egypt, and there might be other Cities of the same Name with the rest in other Countries.

* Or, he went out into Assyria.

11 Out of that land * went forth Ashur r, and built Nineveh s, and * the city Rehoboth t, and Calah.

* Or, the streets of the City.

r A Man so called, either 1. Ashur the Son of Shem, who forsook the Land, either being forced by, or weary of Nimrod's Tyranny and Impiety, and erected another Kingdom. But it is not probable either that Moses would here relate an exploit of a Man whose Birth is not mentioned till verse 22. or that one single Son of Shem would be here disorderly placed among the Sons of Ham. Or, 2. Another Ashur of Ham's race. But it seems most likely that Ashur is the Name of a Place or Countrey, even of Assyria, which in the Hebrew is called Assur; and that the words should be thus rendred, he, i. e. Nimrod went forth, out of his own Land to Ashur to war against it, and add it to his Empire: For to go forth is commonly ascribed to those that go to war, or to battle, as Jud. 2. 15. and 11. 3. 2 Sam. 11. 3. Psal. 60. 12. and the Particle to is here understood, as it is 2 Sam. 6. 10. and 10. 2. compared with 1 Chron. 13. 13. and 19. 2. s A famous and vast City near the River Tigris, but so ruined by time, that the Learned are not agreed about the place where it was scituate. t Of which see Gen. 36. 37. 1 Chron. 1. 48.

12 And Resen between Nineveh and Calah: the same u is a great city.

u Either 1. Nineveh, which is called a great City, Jonah 3. 3. and 4. 11. and indeed was so, being Sixty Miles in compass. Thus it is a trajection, and the relative is referred to the remoter Noun, as sometimes is done, though this seems to be a little forced. Or, 2. Resen; so the meaning is, though this City be much inferiour to Nineveh, yet this also, if compared with most others, is a great City.

* Jer. 46. 9.

x Of this and the following Names here, and verse 14. observe two things, 1. They are not the Names of Persons, but of People or Nations; and the word Father is here understood Ludim, for the Father of the People called Ludim, and so the rest. 2. That they are the several Nations dwelling in Africa, springing from the Egyptians, which, as they multiplied, went further and further Westward and Southward from Egypt.

14 And Pathrusim y, and Casluhim (out of whom came Philistim z) and Caphtorim.

y The Inhabitants of Pathros, of which see Isa. 11. 11. Jer. 44. 1, 15. Ezek. 29. 14. z The meaning is, they came out of his Loins, or were his Off-spring, which might be true; though afterwards we find them seated amongst the Off-spring of Canaan, having driven out the former Inhabitants, as was usual in those ancient times. Object. The Philistines are elsewhere said to come from Caphtorim. See Jer. 47. 4. Answ. Therefore some make a trajection here, which is not unusual; and read the words thus, and Casluhim, and Caphtorim, out of whom came Philistim. But this seems forced, nor is it necessary: For the place may be thus read without any Parenthesis; And Casluhim, out of whom came the Philistim, and Caphtorim, which two latter were Brethren, both the Sons of Casluhim; and so might at first dwell together, whence their Names are promiscuously used one for another; and the Caphtorims are said to dwell in Azzah, or Gaza, the known seat of the Philistines, Deut 2. 23. Afterwards they might be divided first in their Dwellings, then in their Affections, and War one against another, and the Caphtorims seem to have subdued and enslaved the Philistines, and carried them into their Countrey, whom therefore God is said to bring and deliver from Caphtor, Amos 9. 7. and the Caphtorims either then or afterward might be destroyed and extirpated by the hand of God or Men, whence the Philistines, in after times, are called The remnant of the Countrey of Caphtor, Jer. 27. 4.

a The Father of the People, and builder of the City of Sidon, Jos. 11. 8 and 19. 28. 4 Of whom came the Hittites, Jos. 1. 4. and 9. 1, &c.

16 And the Jebusite *, and the Amorite, and the Girgasite,

* Of this and the other People following See Jos. 18. 22, 28. 2 Chron. 13. 4. Isa. 49 12. Ezek. 27. 8, 11. Amos 6. 2, 14. &c.

17 And the Hivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite, 18 And the Arvadite, and the Zemarite, and the Hemathite: and afterward were the families of the Canaanites spread abroad c.

c Dispersed in the several quarters of the Land, who, before they grew so numerous, dwelt together in the same place.

19 And the border of the Canaanites was from Sidon d, as thou comest to Gerar, unto † Gaza e; as † Heb. Azzah. thou goest unto Sodom and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim f, even unto Lasha g.

d (i. e.) The City and Countrey of Sidon, on the North-west. e On the South-west. f On the South and South-east. g On the North-east.

20 These are the sons of Ham, after their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their Nations.

21 Unto Shem also the father of all the children of Eber h, the † brother of Japheth i the elder k, even to him were children born.

h (i. e.) Of the Hebrews, the only Church and People of God when Moses wrote, who are called Ebri, Numb. 24. 24. as here, The Children of Heber. And he is here called the Father of them peculiarly, though he had other Children, because he was their Father not only by natural Generation, but also in respect of the Promise of God, which was conveyed to them through Shem's Hands, and of that Faith and Holiness, wherein he was their Predecessor and eminent Pattern: Even as Ham, though he had other Sons, is specially called the Father of Canaan, Gen. 4. 22. Because his Father's Curse rested upon him, verse 25. Object. Eber had many other Children here Recorded, and therefore in that Sense Shem was not The Father of all the Children of Eber. Answ. Though Eber had other Children, yet none are called in Scripture The Children of Eber, or which is all one, the Hebrews, but Abraham's Posterity: Even as though Abraham had divers other Children, yet the Israelites are in many places peculiarly called the Children of Abraham. And the ungodly Jews, when they degenerate from God and Godliness, God takes away their Name, and denieth them to be Jews, Rom. 2. 28. and calls them Sodomites, Isa. 1. 10. And therefore no wonder, if Joktan and his Posterity having, as it is probable, forsaken their Father's God, and turned Idolaters, be here disowned as Bastards, and blotted out of the honourable Catalogue of The Children of Heber. See Rom. 9. 8. i Japheth alone is here mentioned as his Brother, and not Ham, because he was deservedly deservedly shut out from Shem's Blessing pronounced by Noah, and was accursed of God, whereas Japheth was partaker with Shem, both in the Piety exercised towards their Father, and the Blessing thereupon pronounced: The word Brother being often applied to Persons alike in Condition, Disposition, or Manners. See Gen. 49. 5. k Though the words in Hebrew may seem ambiguous, yet other Texts make it probable that Japheth was the Elder. For Noah began to beget Children in his five hundredth Year, Gen. 5. 32. And Shem was but a hundred Years old two Years after the Flood, Gen. 11. 10. Therefore he was not the Eldest. And Ham is concluded not to be the Eldest from Gen. 9. 24. Of which see the Notes there; if so, Japheth must be the Eldest. And Shem is generally named first, not because he was the First-born, but because he had the Priviledges of the First-born, and was chief in Dignity and Authority in the Church of God.

22 The * children of Shem; Elam l, and Ashur m, and † Arphaxad n, and Lud o, and Aram p.

l Of whom came the Elamites or Persians. See Gen. 14. 9. Isa. 22. 21. Jer. 49. 34. Dan. 8. 2. Acts 2. 9. m The Father of the Assyrians. See verse 11. n Of whom the Chaldeans, as many the Assyrians. See verse 11. n Of whom the Chaldeans, as many conceive; or, as others, the Inhabitants of that part of Assyria, from him called Arphaxitis; which Ptolomy corruptly calls Arrapachitis. o The Father of the Lydians, a well-known People in Asia the less. p Of whom the Syrians, known by the Name of Aramites both in Sacred and other Authors. Compare with this Gen. 22. 21.

24 And Arphaxad begat † * Salah; and Salah begat Eber.

* Cap. 11. 12.

25 * And unto Eber were born two sons: and the name of one was Peleg, for in his days q was the earth divided r, and his brothers name was Joktan.

* 1 Chron. 1. 19.

q Either 1. In the time of his Birth, whence he was so called. Or, 2. Afterwards in the time of Life: So his Father gave him this Name by the Spirit of Prophesy, fore-seeing this great Event, and the time of it. This being no unusual thing in Scripture, as we shall hereafter see, to give Prophetical Names to Children. And thus there is a longer and more convenient space left for the Peopling of the World, and Ripening of things for the general Dispersion and Habitation of the Earth. r First in Language, and then in Habitations.

26 And Joktan begat Almodad s, and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah, s From him and the rest of Joktan's Sons here mentioned, come either 1. The various Nations of India, as most think. Or rather 2. The several People that live in the innermost parts of Arabia, who profess themselves the Posterity of Joktan, and have a City near Mecca, called Jesam. And the Homerites, one sort of them, are deduced from him by divers Writers.

27 And Hadoram, and Uzal, and Diklah,

28 And Obal, and Abimael, and Sheba t, t A different Person from him verse 7. and the Father of another People, having only the same Name with him.

29 And Ophir u, and Havilah x, and Jobab: all these were the sons of Joktan.

u Either that in India, of which see 1 Kings 9. 28. and 10. 11. and 22. 49. Or the other in Arabia, of which see Job 22. 24. and 28. 16. See also Psal. 45. 10. Isa. 13. 12. x A distinct Person from him, verse 7.

30 And their dwelling was from Mesha as thou goest unto Sephar y, a mount of the east.

y These places were either 1. In India, where there are places called by Ptolomy and Pliny, Mosæ, and Saparum and Sabara. Or rather 2. In Arabia, where there was a noted Port called Musa; and near it, and Eastward from it, a People called Saphorite, and a Royal City called Saphar; from whence this famous and long Mountain doth here receive its Name. If it be said, Arabia is not East but South from Judæa, it may be answered, 1. That Arabia, as it is East in respect of Egypt, where the Jews long dwelt, and part of it is so to Judæa also; so it is not seldom in Scripture reckoned as a part of the East Countrey, as appears from Gen. 25. 6. 18. Judg. 6. 3. 1 Kings 4. 30. Job 1. 3. Isa. 11. 14. Jer. 49. 28. And Tacitus describing Judæa, saith, It is bounded on the East by Arabia. 2. That this Mountain is said to be Easterly, not simply, but in respect of the City Musa, on the East whereof Ptolomy placeth this Mountain, though he call it by another Name Climax; add to this, that Moses speaks of these places as known to the Jews, and therefore not so far distant from them as India, a place wholly unknown to them, and wherewith, as yet, they had no Communication. If it be further objected, That if these People had been so near and well known to the Jews, we should have had more mention of them in Scripture. I Answer, There is mention of some of them; and for others, it is no wonder if by the following Wars among Nations, and mixtures and confusions of People, some of them were extirpated, and others lost their Names, though not their Beings, as oft hapned.

31 These are the sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, after their nations.

32 These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations, and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

CHAP. XI.

One language in the earth, 1. They journey from the east, settle in a plain in the land of Shinar, 2. Make bricks which they burn and use with slime, 3. Build a city and tower that they might not be scattered, 4. God sees it, 5. Disapproves their design, 6. Disperses it, and scatters them by confounding their language, 7, 8. For which reason the place called Babel, 9. The posterity of Shem to Abram, 10—26. Abram takes Sarai to wife, 29. She is barren, 30. He removes from Ur to Haran, 31. Where his father dies, 32.

a Earth is oft put for its Inhabitants, as Gen. 6. 21. 1 Chron. 16. Words. 23. Psal. 33. 8. b Which even Heathen Writers acknowledge; and that probably was the Hebrew Tongue.

2 And it came to pass, as they † journeyed from the east c, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar *, and they dwelt there.

† (i. e.) Nimrod and the rest of his Confederates of Ham's Posterity. c Not from Armenia, where the Ark rested, which was North from Babel, and is called North in Scripture, as Jer. 25. 9, 26, &c. But from Assyria, into which they had before come from the Mountains of Ararat for more convenient Habitation, It may be rendred to the East: But that manner of Translation is neither usual, nor necessary here. * Where Babel was, Genesis 10. 10.

3 And † they said one to another, Go to, let us † Heb. a man said to his neighbour. make brick d, and † burn them throughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime e had they for morter.

d For in that low and fat Soil they had no Quarries of Stones. The Heathen Writers agree that Babylons Walls were made of Brick. e A kind of Clay called Bitumen, which, as Pliny testifieth, is Liquid and Glutinous, and fit to be used in Brick-buildings, as Strabo, Diod. and others note. And that Babylon was built with this, as is here said, we have the joynt and express Testimony of Berosus, Ctesias, Diod., Curtius, and many others.

4 And they said, Go to, let us build us a city and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven f, and let us make us a name g, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth h.

f (i. e.) A very high Tower. An usual Hyperbole both in Scripture, as Deut. 1. 28. and 9. 1. and in other Authors. This Tower and its vast height is noted by Herodotus, Diodorus, and others. g (i. e.) A great Name, as the phrase is elsewhere used. Compare also 2 Sam. 7. 9. with 1 Chron. 17. 8. See also Isa. 63. 12, 14. Dan. 9. 15. They take no care for God's Name, and the defence and propagation of the true Religion, as duty bound them, but meerly out of Pride and Vain glory labour to erect an everlasting Monument of their Wit, and Wealth, and Magnificence to all Posterity. h Their design was not to secure themselves against a Flood, which they well knew Brick-buildings were no fence against; nor would they then have built this Tower in a Plain, but upon some high Mountain; but rather to prevent a total and irrecoverable dispersion. They sought therefore to bind themselves together in one glorious Empire, and to make this glorious City the capital Seat of it, and the place of Refuge and Resort upon any considerable Occasion.

5 And the LORD came down i to see the city, and the tower k which the children of men l built.

i Not by local descent, for he is every where; but by the manifestation of his Presence and the effects of his Power in that place. k (i. e.) To know the truth of the Fact, thereby setting a Pattern for Judges to examine Causes before they pass Sentence; otherwise God saw this in Heaven; but in these Expressions he condescends to the capacity of Men. l So called emphatically, 1. For distinction of them from the Sons of God, or the Race of Shem, who were not guilty of the Sin, and therefore did not partake in the Curse, the confusion of their Language, but retained their ancient Tongue uncorrupted for a good while. 2. To note their rashness and folly, who being but weak and silly Men, durst oppose themselves to the infinitely Wise and Powerful God, who did (as they might easily gather both from his Words and Works) intend to disperse and separate them, that by degrees they might possess the whole Earth, which God had made for that purpose.

6 And the LORD said †, Behold, the people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have imagined to do.

† In way of Holy Scorn and Derision. Compare Gen. 3. 22.

7 Go to, let us m go down, and there confound their language n, that they may not † understand one † Heb. hear. another's speech o.

m (i. e.) The Blessed Trinity. See Gen. 1. 26. n By making them forget their former Language, and by putting into their Minds several Languages, not a distinct Language into each Person, but into each Family, or rather into each Nation. o And thereby be disenabled from that mutual Commerce, which was altogether necessary for the carrying on of that Work.

8 So the LORD scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth p: and they left off to build the city.

p Thus they brought upon themselves the very thing they feared, and that more speedily and more mischievously to themselves: For now they were not only divided in places, but in Language too, and so were unfitted for those Confederacies and Correspondencies which they mainly designed, and for the mutual Comfort and Help of one another, which otherwise they might in good measure have enjoyed.

* That is, confusion.

9 Therefore is the name of it called * Babel, because the LORD did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the LORD scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth.

*Chap. 10. 32. 1 Chron. 1. 17.

10 ¶ * These are the generations of Shem q: Shem was an hundred years old, and begat Arphaxad two years after the flood.

q Not all of them, as appears both from the next verse, and from the former chapter; but of those who were the Seminary of the Church, and the Progenitors of Christ.

11 And Shem lived after he begat Arphaxad five hundred years r, and begat sons and daughters.

r So that he lived almost all the time of Abraham; which was a singular Blessing both to himself, who hereby saw his Children of the tenth Generation; and to the Church of God, which by this means enjoyed the Counsel and Conduct of so great a Patriarch.

12 And Arphaxad lived five and thirty years, and begat Salah.

13 And Arphaxad lived after he begat Salah, four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

14 And Salah lived thirty years, and begat Eber.

15 And Salah lived after he begat Eber four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

* 1 Chron. 1. 19.

16 * And Eber lived four and thirty years and begat * Peleg.

* Called Luk. 3. 35. Phalec.

17 And Eber lived after he begat Peleg, four hundred and thirty years s, and begat sons and daughters.

s So that he was the longest liv'd of all the Patriarchs which were born after the Flood.

18 And Peleg lived thirty years, and begat Reu.

19 And Peleg lived after he begat Reu, two hundred and nine years, and begat sons and daughters.

20 And Reu lived two and thirty years, and begat

* Luke 3. 35. Saruch.

* Serug.

21 And Reu lived after he begat Serug, two hundred and seven years, and begat sons and daughters.

22 And Serug lived thirty years, and begat Nahor.

23 And Serug lived after he begat Nahor, two hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

24 And Nahor t lived nine and twenty years, and

* Luke 3. 34. Thara.

begat * Terah.

t The first Patriarch who fell to Idolatry.

25 And Nahor lived after he begat Terah, an hundred and nineteen years, and begat sons and daughters.

* Josh. 24. 2. 1 Chro. 1. 26.

26 And Terah lived seventy years, and * begat u Abram x, Nahor, and Haran.

u (i. e.) Began to beget, as Gen. 5. 32. x Who is first named in order of Dignity, (for which cause Shem is put before Ham and Japheth, and Moses before Aaron) not in order of time, which seems to be this; Haran probably was the eldest, because Nahor married his Daughter; Nahor the second; and Abram certainly was the youngest, because Terah, Abram's Father lived two hundred and five years, verse 32. and Abram after his Father's Death, Acts 7. 4. went out of Haran, when he was seventy five years old, Gen. 12. 4. 5. therefore he was not begotten in Terah's seventieth Year, when Terah began to beget his Sons, as here is said, but in his one hundred and thirtieth Year, and so there remains seventy five Years precisely to Abrams departure. And Sarai, Haran's Daughter was but ten Years younger than Abram, Gen. 17. 17. and therefore Haran was Abram's elder Brother.

27 ¶ Now these are the generations of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran: and Haran begat Lot.

28 And Haran died before his father Terah y in the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Caldees.

y (i. e.) In the presence and during the life of his Father.

29 And Abram and Nahor took them wives: the name of Abrams wife was Sarai; and the name of Nahors wife, Milcah, the daughter of Haran z, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah a.

z Such Marriages of Uncles and Nieces being permitted then, Exod. 6. 20. (as in the beginning of the World, the Marriages of Brethren and Sisters were) though afterwards, the Church being very much enlarged, they were severely forbidden, Levit. 18. 12, 14. a Who is either Sarai, as the Jews and many others think, or rather another Person. For 1. Why should Moses express Sarai thus darkly and doubtfully? Had he meant her, he would have added after Ischa, this is Sarai, according to his manner in like cases, Gen. 14. 2, 7. and 35. 8. 2. He elsewhere calleth her, the Daughter, not of his Brother, as he should have done, had she been Ischa, but of his Father by another Mother.

b See Gen 16. 1, 2. and 18. 11, 12.

31 And Terah took Abram his son c, and Lot the son of Haran, his sons son; and Sarai his daughter in law, his son Abrams wife; and they went forth with them † from * Ur of the Caldees, to go into the land of Canaan; and they came unto Haran d, and dwelt e there.

c See Jos. 24. 2. Nehem. 9. 7. 1 Chron. 1. 26. Being informed by his Son of the command of God, he did not despise it, because it came to him by the hands of his inferior, but chearfully obeyeth it; and therefore he is so honourably mentioned as the Head and Governour of the Action. † (i. e.) Terah and Abram went with Lot and Sarai, as their Heads and Guides. d Called Charran, Acts 7. 4. and by the Romans Carræ, a place in Mesopotamia strictly so called, in the way to Canaan, and near to it, well known by Crassus his defeat there. See Gen. 24. 10. and 28. 10. and 29. 4. e Or, rested or abode, being detained there for a season; peradventure by Terah's disease, which begun there, for the next verse tells us of his death.

32 And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years: and Terah died in Haran.

CHAP. XII.

God calls Abram from his own country and kindred to Canaan, 1. Promises to make of him a great and flourishing nation; and to bless in Christ his seed, 2, 3. Abram obeys, 4—6. God appears to him, and promises to give Canaan to his seed; he builds an altar, 7. He removes to Bethel and there builds an altar, 8, 9. There being a famine moves to Bethel and there builds an altar, 8, 9. There being a famine he goes down to Egypt, 10. He advises Sarai to equivocate, 11—13. She is taken into Pharaoh's house, 15. Pharaoh kind to Abram for her sake, 16. God plagues him because of Sarai, 17. He calls Abram and expostulates with him, 18, 19. Sends him safely away, 20.

NOW the * LORD had said a unto Abram, † Get thee out of thy country, * and from thy kindred, and from thy fathers house b, unto a land c that I will shew thee c.

a To wit, in Ur of the Chaldees, by comparing Gen. 11. 31. with Acts 7. 3, 4. or, did say, again, i. e. renewed the command in Haran, whilst Abram might possibly linger there, as afterwards Lot did in Sodom, longer than he should. But the former interpretation is more probable, because Moses speaks here of that command of God which came to Abram before he was gone from his kindred and father's house, and therefore before he came to Haran. And this command was given to Abram either immediately, or by Sem, then the Governour of God's Church. b From the Family of Nachor, which was now become Idolatrous, Gen 31. 30. Jos. 24. 2. and consequently, their Society was dangerous and pernicious; and therefore God mercifully snatcheth him as a brand out of the Fire. c Which as yet he nameth not, for the greater tryal and exercise of Abram's faith and patience, compare Isa. 41. 2. Heb. 11. 8.

2 And I will † make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee d, and make thy name great, and thou shalt be a blessing e.

d With all my Blessings, Spiritual, Temporal, and Eternal. See Deut. 7. 13. and 28. 2, &c. and Eph. 1. 3. e (i. e.) Both a pattern and instrument of Blessedness to others; to thy Posterity who shall be blessed for thy sake; to thy Servants and Friends who shall be blessed by thy instruction and help; and to all the World, as it follows.

3 And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee f: * in thee g shall all families b of the earth be blessed i.

* Chap. 18. 18. and 22. 18. Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8.

f Those that are Friends or Enemies to thee, shall be the same to me. A marvellous condescension and priviledge. g (i. e.) In thy Seed, as it is explained Gen. 22. 18. and 26. 4. and 28. 14. (i. e.) in and through Christ, Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 9, 16, 28, 29. or for thee, as the Chaldee hath it, i. e. for thy sake; or, by thee, i. e. by thy means; or with thee, by comparing this with Gal. 3. 8, 9. i. e in the same way and manner in which thou art blessed, that is, by a fruitful Faith. Compare Rom. 4. 11, 12, 16. b (i. e.) All Nations; which is to be limited to the Believers of all Nations, by the whole current of the Scriptures. i All that shall be blessed, shall be blessed by this means, and no other way.

4 So Abram departed k as the Lord had spoken unto him, and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.

5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brothers son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls l that they had gotten m in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan: and into the land of Canaan they came.

l (i. e.) The persons, as the word Souls is oft used, as Gen. 14. 21. and 17. 4. Exod. 12. 15. Levit. 2. 1. Numb. 23. 10. Deut. 24. 7. Mark 3. 4, &c. m Heb. made, (i. e.) either 1. begotten; for though Abram had yet no Children, Lot had, and both their Servants had Children by their Fellow-servants born in their House, which might well be numbred among Abram's and Lot's persons, which might well be numbred among Abram's and Lot's persons, because they had an absolute Dominion over them. Or, 2. Instructed, (i. e.) turned from Idolatry, and taught in the true Religion, as the Chaldee expounds it: For such were most proper for Abram to take along with him out of his Father's House in this Expedition. Or, 3. Gotten, (i. e.) procured either by conquest or purchase, or any other lawful and usual way.

6 ¶ And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Sichem n, unto the plain of Moreh. And the Canaanite o was then in the land p.

n Heb. Sechem, a place afterwards so called in the Mountains of Ephraim, Jos. 21. 21. Judg. 8. 31. and here so called by anticipation. o Properly so called; that cursed, cruel, impious, and idolatrous Nation. See Zech. 14. 21. This is added as an aggravation of Abram's Faith and Obedience, that he durst and did profess the true Religion in the midst of such a People; which could not be without great danger both of his Estate and Life. p As a settled Inhabitant to continue there for a long time; whereas now in Moses his time, he was forthwith to be expelled out of it.

7 And the LORD appeared unto Abram q, and said, * Unto thy seed will I give this land r: and there built he an * altar s unto the LORD, who appeared unto him.

* Chap. 13. 15. * Chap. 13. 4.

q To encourage and comfort him against his wicked neighbours. See Gen 13. 15. and 15. 18. and 17. 8. and 24. 7. Deut. 34. 4. r A place for Sacrifice, and other parts of Divine Worship, erected by him both to keep his Family in the true Religion, and to separate himself and them from that idolatrous neighbourhood.

8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el t, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west u, and Hai x on the east: and there he built an altar unto the LORD, and called upon the name of the LORD.

t A known place, which afterwards was called Beth-el, but now Luz, Gen. 28. 19. An usual prolepsis, or anticipation, as before, verse 6. u Or, On the Sea; which is all one, because the Sea was on the West part of the Land. See Gen. 13. 14. and 28. 14. Num. 3. 23. Deut. 3. 27. x Or Ai, as it is called Jos. 7. 2. Jer. 49. 3. Isa. 10. 28.

9 And Abram journeyed y, † going on still towards the south z.

y Removing from place to place, still hoping to meet with better Neighbours, and to free himself from that perpetual Vexation which he had in beholding their Wickedness. z (i. e.) The Southern part of the Land of Canaan towards Egypt.

10 ¶ And there was a famine in the land a: and Abram went down into Egypt to sojourn there: for the famine was grievous in the land.

a Or, In that Land of Canaan, a Land eminently fruitful, Deut. 8. 7, 8. This was partly to punish that Peoples Sins, Psal. 107. 34. partly to try Abram's Faith.

11 And it came to pass, when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, Behold now, I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon b.

b Quest. How could she be so fair, when she was above sixty Years old? Answ. She was so both comparatively to the Egyptians, and simply in her self, and that might be from divers causes: 1. From the greater vigour of Nature in that Age of the World. 2. Because her Beauty was not diminished by Childbearing. 3. From God's singular Providence, ordering it thus for Abram's tryal, and for the manifestation of his special Providence, watching over him and his.

12 Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians † shall see thee, that they shall say, This is his wife: and they will kill me, but they will save thee alive.

† Who were a very lustful People; which made Abram more cautious.

13 Say, I pray thee, thou art my sister c: that it may be well with me for thy sake; and my soul shall live because of thee.

c So she was either, 1. More generally, as his Niece; for Nephews and Nieces are in Scripture called Brethren and Sisters, as Gen. 13. 8, 11. Or rather, 2. Properly, (i. e.) by the Father's side, Gen. 20. 12. So this expression was true, but ambiguous, and intended to deceive the Egyptians, and therefore unwarrantable. And here Abram, the Father of the Faithful, elsewhere celebrated for the strength of his Faith, betrays his Infirmity and distrust of God's Providence and Promise, and this Fact was not without great danger both to himself and Sarai.

14 ¶ And it came to pass, that when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman, that she was very fair.

15 The Princes d also of Pharaoh e saw her, and commended her before Pharaoh: and the woman was taken f into Pharaohs house g.

d (i. e.) The Officers and Courtiers; whose great design was to gain their Princes favour by gratifying his Lusts. e A name common to all the Kings of Egypt now, and for many Ages after. f (i. e.) Taken and brought, one word for two. So the word take is used, Gen. 15. 6, 10. Exod. 18. 2. and 27. 20, &c. g Not to his Bed, but the House of his Women, where they were purified and prepared for the King's Presence and Society, as Est. 2. 8, 9. that in due time he might be his Concubine or Wife. Thus even the Ceremonies of Courts serve the Providence of God, and give opportunity for working her deliverance.

16 And he entreated Abram well for her sake: and he had * sheep, and oxen, and he-asses, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and she-asses, and camels.

* To wit, by Pharaoh's gift over and above his own. Elsa it had been impertinent to mention it in this place.

17 And the LORD * plagued Pharaoh b and his house i with great plagues, because of Sarai Abrams wife k.

* Chap. 20. 18.

b Most probably with some notable Distemper of his Body, which did both chastise him for, and hinder him in the execution of his Lust. i (i. e.) His Servants; who being some one way, some another, partners of his Sin, are justly made partners in his Plagues. And if any were innocent in this matter, they were obnoxious to God for other Sins. Besides, as they were punished upon the occasion of Pharaoh's Sin, so Pharaoh was punished in their Punishments. k (i. e.) For the act of Violence towards her: For the word taken, verse 15. implies, that it was by constraint, and not with Abram's and with her consent; which it is not probable that either of them would give in that case. 2. For an intention of uncleanness. For God who is the searcher and judge of Mens Hearts, may justly, and doth often punish Men for their evil purposes. Compare Gen. 20. 3, 4.

18 And Pharaoh called Abram, and said, What is this that thou hast done unto me? Why didst thou not tell me that she was thy wife?

l How great an injury hast thou done to me in concealing this from me that she was thy Wife? How knew Pharaoh this? Answ. 1. He guessed it from the quality of his Plague; which also awakened his Conscience. 2. Upon a serious enquiry into the Cause of this Plague, he understood it either by Divine Instinct, as Gen. 20. 3. or by Sarai's Confession, whom doubtless he severely examined about it. And she, being awakened by this warning, durst no longer conceal her self, and thought she might securely make her self known.

19 Why saidest thou, she is my sister? so I might have taken her to me to wife m: now therefore behold thy wife, take her, and go thy way.

m Though he had another before; Polygamy being then commonly practised.

20 And Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him n: and they sent him away, and his wife, and all that he had.

n (i. e.) Gave them a charge concerning him for his safe conduct whither he pleased.

CHAP. XIII.

Abram returns from Egypt to Canaan with Lot, 1. He comes to Bethel; calls on the Lord, 3, 4. Abram and Lot being both very rich are obliged to part. Lot goes to Sodom, 5—12. The vein of Sodom exceeding wicked, 13. God renews his promise to Abram concerning Canaan, and a numerous issue, 14—17. Abram removes to Mamre, and there builds an altar, 18.

AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him into the south a.

a (i. e.) Into the Southern part of Canaan, from whence he came, Gen. 12. 9. and which in Scripture is called simply the South, Jos. 10. 40. and 11. 16. Otherwise he went rather into the North: But the Scripture, being written for the Jews, doth frequently accommodate the Names of the quarters of the World to them.

2 And Abram was very rich in cattel, in silver, and in gold.

3 And he went on his journey b from the south, even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai.

b Or rather, according to his journeys which he took as he came, going in the same Road, and resting in the same place, of which he had experience.

4 Unto the * place of the altar c which he had made there at the first: and there Abram called on the name of the LORD d.

* Chap. 12. 7.

c (i. e.) Where the Altar was; for the Altar it self was either fallen down, as being probably built of Earth, as afterwards, Exod. 20. 24. or overthrown by the wicked Canaanites. d (i. e.) Worshipped God by Prayer, and Preaching to his Family, Gen. 18. 19. and offering Sacrifices. See Gen. 4. 26. and 12. 8.

5 ¶ And Lot also which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents.

6 And the land was not able to bear them, that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

7 And there was a strife between the herds-men of Abrams cattel, and the herds-men of Lots cattel: and the Canaanite e and the Perizzite dwelt then in the land f.

r (i. e.) The Canaanites, as Gen. 12. 6. the singular number for the plural, as Psal. 78. 45. and 105. 33, 40. f (i. e.) Were the Lords and Owners of it, and therefore Abram and Lot could not take what Pastures they pleased, but such as the others left them, which was not sufficient for their convenience. It may also be added as a reason of Abram's following motion, because that Idolatrous People were present, and diligently observed all their Contention and other Miscarriages; and would, doubtless, take occasion thence to disparage the true Religion. And it must be remembred, that these are the words not of Abram, but of Moses; who, knowing that the Canaanites were then speedily to be turned out of the Land, intimates that the case was otherwise in Abram's days days, when the Canaanites were possest, and were likely to continue the Possessors and Lords of the Land.

8 And Abram said unto Lot g, Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and h between my herds-men and thy herds-men, for we be †Heb. men brethren. See chap. 11. 27. Exod. 2. 13. Act. 7. 26.

g The elder, and wiser, and worthier person relinquisheth his own right to his inferiour for peace sake, leaving us a noble example for our imitation. h Or; or, between, &c. and for or, as Exod. 21. 17. and Psal. 8. 5. compared with Matth. 15. 14. Heb. 2. 6. for there was no strife between Abram and Lot; though he feared it might pass from the feet to the head. i (i.e.) Both by nature near Kinsmen, as the word Brother is oft used; and in the Faith and Religion too; amongst whom Contentions are very Indecent and Scandalous.

9 Is not the whole land before thee k? Separate thy self, I pray thee, from me: if thou wilt take l the left hand, then I will go to the right: or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left.

k (i.e.) Open to thy view, and free to chuse which part thou pleasest, as thou canst agree with the Owners: I give thee full power to chuse before me. See a like phrase, Gen. 20. 15. and 34. 10, 21. and 47. 6. l This and the following Supplement are easily gathered both from the words of this and the 11 verse, and from the nature of the thing. And the Hebrew Language being a concise or short Language, such Supplements are frequently necessary, and very usual. Compare 2 Chron. 10. 12. with 1 Kings 12. 11. 2 Sam. 23. 8. with 1 Chron. 11. 11.

10 And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan m, that it was well watered every where, before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrha, even as the garden of the LORD n, like the land of Egypt o, as thou comest unto Zoar p.

m A great Plain so called, because there the pleasant River Jordan divided it self into divers little Streams or Rivulets, which having no visible out-let into the Sea, by degrees, and in several places insinuated themselves into the Earth, which made it very fruitful and excellent for Lot's purpose. But this lovely Plain was afterwards transformed by Divine Vengeance into a filthy Lake or dead Sea, Gen. 19. n (i.e.) Either 1. Like that famous Garden of Eden which God himself planted, Gen. 2. 10. The like comparison we meet with, Isa. 51. 3. Ezek. 28. 13. and 31. 8. Or, 2. Like some excellent Garden: For excellent things are thus expressed, as the host of God, 1 Chron 12. 22. i.e. a great host: Cedars of God, Psal. 80. 10. o A Land of eminent fertility by the influence of that great River Nilus; anciently celebrated as the Granary of other Countries See Exek. 31. p (i.e.) To Bela, Gen. 14. 2. afterwards called Zoar, Gen. 19. 22. and here so called by a Prolepsis. But these words are not to be joyned with the words immediately going before, as if Egypt was commended for its fertility in that part of it, from which men go to Zoar, but with the more remote words, and the sense is, as the words of the Text are transplaced and rendred by some, that The plain of Jordan was (before the Lord destroyed it and its Cities Sodom and Gomorrha) watered every where, even to Zoar; or, even until thou comest, i.e. till a man come to Zoar, i.e. all the way which leads from the place where Abram then was, to Zoar. And such transpositions are not unusual, as we shall see hereafter.

11 Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed east q: and they separated themselves

q Heb. From the East, or, Eastward, as the Hebrew particle min, is sometimes used. See Gen. 2. 8. 2 Sam. 2. 2. compared with 1 Chron. 13. 6.

12 Abram dwelt in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelt in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent toward Sodom.

13 But the men of Sodom were * wicked, and sinners before the LORD r, exceedingly.

r Eminent, noted and impudent Sinners. See Gen. 18. 20. Ezek. 16. 49. which is here added, as a secret reproof to Lot, who was either careless in his enquiry into the dispositions and manners of those among whom he intended to fix his abode; which for many reasons he should have searched out: Or he was willing to expose himself to all the hazards which he might incur by their Neighbourhood and familiarity, for the sweetness and fertility of the Soil. An errour which is frequently committed by Men in the choice of their Habitations, and which oft costs them dear, as it did Lot in the following Story.

14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him s, Lift up now thine eyes, and look from the place where thou art, northward, and south-ward, and east-ward, and west-ward.

s To comfort him now when he was alone, and in a worse Soil than Lot had chosen.

*Chap. 12. 7. and 26. 4. Deut. 34. 4.

15 For all the land which thou seest t, * to thee u will I give it, and to thy seed for ever x.

t Object. Abram could see but a little part of the Land. Answ. 1. He might now possibly be upon a Mountain, from whence he might have a large prospect every way. 2. He gave him all that he saw, but not only that, but also the rest of the Land, and therefore he bids him walk through and view the whole Land, verse 17. u Quest. How was the Land given to Abram, when it is expressly said, He, i.e. God gave him none Inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on, Act 7. 5. Answ. 1. God gave Abram the right to it, though not the actual possession of it, until the time that God appointed; as God gave the right of the Kingdom to David, but not the possession till Saul's Death. 2. God explains himself, To thee and to thy seed, i. e. to thee, that is, to thy Seed, and that for thy sake; the particle and being put oft for that is, as 1 Chron. 21. 12. compared with 2 Sam. 24. 13. Eph. 1. 3. and in many other places, as we shall see. x Quest. How [for ever] when after some hundreds of Years they were turned out of it? Answ. 1. This promise was made to them upon condition of their Obedience, which is oft expressed in other places, as Levit. 18. 26. Deut. 4. 25, 26. Isa. 48. 18, 19. 2. The word Olam, rendred for ever, doth not always signify Eternity, but a long continuance, as is evident from Gen. 17. 13. and 48. 4. Exod. 21. 6. Psal. 132. 14. and many other places of Scripture; and in particular, when it is applied to the Jewish Rites and Priviledges it commonly signifies no more, than during the standing of that Commonwealth, or until the coming of the Messias; and so it may here be understood.

16 And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbred.

17 Arise, walk through the land, in the length of it, and in the breadth of it: for I will give it unto thee.

18 Then Abram removed his tent, and came and dwelt in the † plain of Mamre y which is in * Hebron z, and built there an altar unto the LORD.

CHAP. XIV.

Several kings wage war against the king of Sodom, &c. Lot is taken prisoner, 1—12. Abram rescues him, 13—16. The king of Sodom congratulates him his victory, 17. Melchizedek king of Salem blesses him; to him Abram gives Tithes, 18—20. The king of Sodom offers to give Abram the goods taken in victory, 21. Which Abram refuses to accept, 22—24.

AND it came to pass in the days of Amraphel king of Shinar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of * Nations a:

* Josh. 12. 23.

a i. e. Of a People which came to him out of several Nations, (being allured possibly by his Fame, or by Promises and Priviledges granted to them) and put themselves under his Government. Or Goim is the name of a certain place or Countrey, so called from the confluence of divers People or Nations thither, as Tyrus is called the Mart of Nations, Isa. 23. 3. upon the same account.

2 That these made war with Bera king b of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, and Shemeber king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela which is * Zoar.

*Chap. 19. 22.

b Once for all, observe that the name of Kings is here and elsewhere given by Moses to the chief Governours of Cities or little Provinces. Compare Jos. 12. 9, &c.

3 All these were joyned together in the vale of Siddim, which is † the salt sea.

† Which now is, though when this Battel was fought it was not so.

4 Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer c, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

c Who was their Lord, either 1. By Inheritance, as the issue of Elam, Sem's Son, Gen. 10. 22. Or, 2. By Conquest, having subdued those People in a former War, which Josephus speaks of.

5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him d, and smote the Rephaims e in Ashtaroth-Karnaim f, and the Zuzims in Ham, and the Emims g in † Shaveh-Kiriathaim h,

It is surnamed Carnaim, q. d. Two horned, like a half Moon, either from the situation and form of the place, or from the Goddess Diana, or the Moon, which usually was painted with two horns, whom they worshipped. g A People in Canaan of Giant-like stature, Deut. 2. 10, 11. h Kirsathaim is a noted City in Gilead, and Shaveth may be either the ancient name of that City, or the present name of the Countrey adjoyning and belonging to it.

6 And the Horites i in the mount Seir, unto † El-paran k, which is by the wilderness.

i The ancient Inhabitants of Seir, of whom see Gen. 36. 20. and Deut. 2. 12. k El signifies a Plain, and Paran is the name of a known City and Mountain. See Numb. 13. 3. Deut. 33. 2. 1 Sam. 25. 1, &c.

7 And they returned and came to En-mishpat, which is Kadesh l, and smote all the countrey of the Amalekites m, and also the Amorites, that dwelt in Hazezon-tamar.

l (i.e.) Which after that time was called Kadesh, of which see Numb. 20. 1, 14, &c. m (i.e.) Which afterwards was possessed by the Amalekites, Gen. 36. 12. A known Figure called Prolepsis.

8 And

8 And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (the same is Zoar) and they joyned battel with them in the vale of Siddim;

9 With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar: four kings with five.

10 And the vale of Siddim † was full of slime-pits n; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah o fled, and fell p there: and they that remained, fled to the mountain.

n And therefore chosen by those five Kings for the place of Battel, that their Adversaries being ignorant of the place might unawares fall into those Pits, which they by their knowledge of it thought to escape. o (i.e.) Their Armies; a figurative Speech frequent in Scripture, and other Authors; for their persons escaped, see verse 17. p Either 1. Fell into the Pits which they designed for others. Or rather 2. Were slain; as this word is oft used, as Jos. 8. 24, 25. Judges 8. 10. and 12. 6. and here too; for those that fell are here opposed to those that remained.

11 And they took all the goods of Sodom, and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way.

12 And they took Lot q Abrams brothers son (who dwelt in Sodom) and his goods, and departed.

q Who now suffered for his Co-habitation with bad Neighbours.

13 And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram the Hebrew r; for he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol; and brother of Aner: and these were confederate with Abram s.

r So called, either 1. From his great and good Predecessor Eber, Gen. 10. 24. and 11. 14. in and by whom the Primitive Language and true Religion were preserved; and therefore, though Abram had five other Progenitors between Eber and him, which were persons of less note, he is rightly denominated from Eber, the Hebrew, because he was the first that revived the Memory and the Work of Eber, that kept up the same Language, and eminently propagated the same true Religion. Or 2. As others think, from his passing over the River Euphrates, from beyond which he came into Canaan. s i. e. Had entred into a League for their mutual Defence against common Enemies. Whence we learn that it is not simply and universally unlawful to make a League with persons of a false Religion.

14 And when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he * armed his † trained t servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them unto Dan.

* Or, led forth. † Or, instructed.

t (i.e.) Whom he had Disciplined and Instructed both in Religion and in the Military Art too, both which were necessary to make them good soldiers, that they might both fight with Skill and Courage, and also rely upon God, and engage his Assistance; which was now especially necessary, when so small a party were to engage against so numerous an Army. u This is commonly thought to be a Town then called Leshem, Jos. 19. 47. or Laish, Judg. 18. 7. and afterwards Dan. See Judg. 18. 7, 29. so it is an anticipation. But it may be doubted whether this was a City; or if it were, whether it were not another Town called by the same name, which was frequent in those parts. And some think this is not a Town, but the very Fountain of Dan, whence Jordan had its name.

15 And he divided himself x against them, he and his servants by night, and smote them, and pursued them unto Hoba, which is on the left hand of Damascus.

x (i.e.) His Forces into several parties, that coming upon them from several quarters he might strike them with greater terrour, whilst they thought his Army far more numerous than it was.

16 And he brought back all the goods y, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.

y Which the victorious Kings had taken from the Princes and People mentioned before in this Chapter.

17 ¶ And the king of Sodom went out to meet him (after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him) at the valley of Shaveh, which is the * kings dale z.

* 2 Sam. 18. 18.

z So called either upon this occasion of the meeting of divers Kings here; or because King Melchizedek either had his Habitation, or was much delighted with it, and conversant in it. See 2 Sam. 18. 18.

†Heb. 7. 1.

18 And † Melchizedek a king of Salem b brought forth bread and wine c: and he was the priest d of the most high God e.

a Quest. Who was this? Answ. 1. Sem, as the Jews and many others think, who probably was alive at this time, and, no doubt, a great Prince. But neither is it probable that Sem should be a King among the cursed Race of Ham; nor will this agree with the Apostle's description of Melchizedek, Heb. 7. 3. Without Father and Mother, &c. Whereas Sem's Parents, and the beginning and end of his days, are as expresly mentioned by Moses as any other. 2. A Canaanitish King by the Divine Providence made both a King over Men, and Priest unto the true God, brought in here in this unusual manner, without any mention of his Parents Birth or Death, for this end, that he might be an illustrious Type of Christ. Of this matter see more upon Heb. 7. 3. b (i. e.) Of Jerusalem, called elsewhere Jebus, and Salem, Psal. 76. 2. c Not for Sacrifice to God; for then he had brought forth Beasts to be slain, which were the usual and best Sacrifices: But partly to shew the respect which he bore to Abram, and principally to refresh his weary and hungry Army, according to the manner of those times. See Deut. 23. 3, 4. and 25. 18. Judg. 8. 5, 6, 15. 1 Sam. 17. 17. d Thus in succeeding Ages the same persons were often both Kings and Priests, as the learned note out of Virgil, and other Authors. And this clause is here added, as the Cause and Reason, not for his bringing forth, or offering Bread and Wine, as some would have it, (for that is ascribed to him as a King, as an act of Royal Munificence) but of the following Benediction and Decimation. e For in those times God had his remnant scattered here and there even in the worst Places and Nations.

19 * And he blessed him, and said, Blessed be f Abram of the most high God, possessour of heaven and earth.

* Or, Therefore (as the particle is oft taken, (i. e.) because he was a Priest of God) he (i. e. Melchizedek) blessed him (Abram) which was one act of the Priestly-Office. See on Heb. 7. 6, 7. f So it is a Prayer for him, that God would confirm and increase the blessing which he had given him. Or, Blessed is; so it is an acknowledgment of God's blessing conferred upon Abram both formerly, and in this late and great Victory. Or, Blessed shall be; so it is a prediction concerning his future and further blessedness, whereof this was only an earnest.

20 And blessed be the most high God, which hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he gave * tithes g of all h.

*Heb. 7. 4.

g Not Melchizedek gave to Abram, as some Jews foolishly understand it; for Abram swears that he would not keep, nor take any of the recovered Goods of the Kings of Sodom, or his Brethren, verse 23. But Abram gave to Melchizedek, as appears both from Heb. 4. 7. and from the nature of the thing; for the Tithes confessedly belong to the Priest, such as Melchizedek, and not Abram, is here described to be. h Not of all the recovered Goods, but of all the Spoils taken from the Enemies.

21 And the king of Sodom said unto Abram, Give me the † persons, and take the goods to thy self.

22 And Abram said to the king of Sodom, I have lift up my hand i unto the LORD, the most high God, the possessour of heaven and earth, i (i.e.) Swore; for this was the ancient manner of swearing. See Exod. 6. 8. Numb. 14. 30. Deut. 32. 40. Ezek. 20. 5, 6.

23 That I will not take k from a thread even to a shoe-latchet *, and that I will not take any thing that is thine, lest thou shouldst say, I have made Abram rich l.

k Heb: If I shall take. Understand, God do so and so to me, which is expressed 1 Sam. 14. 44. A defective manner of swearing used amongst the Hebrews, either to maintain the reverence of Oaths, and the dread of Perjury, seeing they were afraid so much as to mention the Curse which they meant; or to shew that they were willing to submit to any punishment which God should inflict upon them without exception, if they violated their Oaths. * (i. e.) Any thing though never so small or mean. l (i. e.) Left thou shouldst claim a share with God in the Honour due to him, to whose blessing alone I do, and I will owe my riches. Or, lest thou shouldst say, Abram is enriched with my Spoils; and however he pretended Kindness and Charity, yet indeed it was his Covetousness that put him upon this Work.

24 Save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me m, Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre; let them take their portion.

m For as Abram had a right to Spoils, so had they, whether they joyned with him in the Battel, as it is conceived they did, or only abode by the Stuff, 1 Sam. 30. 24. and therefore though he might, and did give away his own right, he could not give away other mens.

CHAP. XV.

A comfortable promise to Abram, 1. His prayer for an heir, 2, 3. The promise of an answer to his prayer, 4, 5. Abram's faith, 6. He desires a sign, 7, 8. God gives him one, 9. He observes it, 10, 11. God appears to him when in a deep sleep, 12. A prediction of evil to befal his posterity, 13. Their deliverance, 14—16. The covenant concerning Canaan renewed, 17—21.

AFter these things the word of the LORD came unto Abram in a vision a, saying, Fear not, Abram b: I am thy * shield and † thy exceeding * great reward c.

*Psal. 3. 3. and 5. 12. 91. 4 11. and 84. 11. † Or, thy reward shall be so to an Extasie, wherein his senses are idle, but his mind is active and elevated to the contemplation and understanding of what God reveals, a God anciently revealed himself to Men two ways, Either 1. When the Man was asleep, in a dream: Or 2. In a Vision, Numb. 12. 6. when he was awake; and this either 1. When he was wrapt into an Extasie, wherein his senses are idle, but his mind is active and elevated to the contemplation and understanding of what God reveals, Psal. 36. 5.

reveals. See Numb. 12. 6, 7, 8. and 24. 4. Isa. 1. 1. Acts 10.10,11. Or 2. When the thing was manifested by an external representation. So here, God seems to have appeared to Abram in the shape of a Man, as he did Gen. 18. as may be gathered from v. 5, 10. b Neither the return of those Enemies whom thou hast smitten and provoked, nor the envy of thy Neighbours for this glorious Victory, nor for thy own desolate condition. c Seeing thou didst trust to my protection, I will be a shield or a protector to thee; and seeing thou didst so honourably, and for my sake reject other rewards, taken by thy self, and offered by the King of Sodom, thou shalt be no loser by it; I will abundantly recompence all thy piety to me, and charity to thy afflicted kinsman Lot, and thy liberality towards others: I will bless thee with all sorts of good things, as well as defend thee from all evil; which two things make a Man compleatly happy.

2 And Abram said, Lord God, what will thou give me, † seeing * I go d childless e, and the steward of my house f is this Eliezer of Damascus g?

† What pleasure can I take in any other gifts, so long as thou dost withhold from me that great and promised gift of that blessed and blessing Seed, in the giving of whom, thy honour and the World's happiness is so highly concerned, Gō. 12. 3. d Either 1. I pass the time of my life, going on and growing in years, and hastning to my long home. Or 2. I die, i. e. am about to die, or likely to die. Going is oft-times put for dying, as 1 Chron. 17. 11. compared with 2 Sam. 7. 12. Job 10. 21. and 14. 20. Matth. 26. 24. e What good will the World do me, if I have no Heir to possess it? if God lose the Glory of his Truth in making good his promise, and I lose the comfort of my long hoped for Child, and that such a Child, the effect of a Divine Promise, one out of whose Loins he must come, in whom all Nations shall be blessed? f Heb. The Son of the care, or Government, or Management of my House, i. e. he who manageth the Affairs of my House. An usual Hebraism, as captives are called children of captivity, Ezra 4. 1. and afflicted Persons, children of affliction, Prov. 31. 5. Others read the verse thus, And the steward of my house, this Eliezer of Damascus, understand, shall be my Heir; which words may easily be supplied out of the following verse. And such supplements of a word, or short sentence out of a member or verse either foregoing or following, are frequent in Scripture, as Numb. 24. 22. Zech. 14. 18. Nehem. 5. 2. Habak. 2. 3. Eph. 2. 1. g This may be the name either of a Man, or of a Place so called.

3 And Abram said, Behold, to me thou hast given no seed: and lo, one born in mine house h is mine heir i.

h Of such see Gen. 14. 14. and Eccles. 2. 7. And these are opposed to them that are born of a Man's body, Job 19. 17. Prov. 31. 2. Jer. 2. 14. i Either 1. By nearness of relation, being as some conceive, descended from Aaron the eldest Son of Sem. Or 2. For a recompence of his fidelity, compare Prov. 17. 2. Or 3. Because he only had the exact knowledge and absolute power of all his Master's estate, Gen. 24. 10. and therefore could easily keep all after his Master's death. All which reasons concurring, might give occasion for this Speech.

4 And behold, the word of the LORD came unto him, saying, This shall not be thine heir: but he that shall come forth out of thine own bowels k shall be thine heir.

k (i. e.) Out of thy own body, see Gen. 35. 11. 2 Sam. 7. 12. 2 Chron. 6. 9.

5 And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now towards heaven, and tell the stars l, if thou be able to number them m: and he said unto him, * So shall thy seed be.

l Qu. Seeing the Sun was not yet going down, v. 12. how could he see the Stars? Anſ. 1. He might see them by representation in a Vision, or by a Divine Power ſtrengthning his Eyes to behold them. 2. It was not neceſſary he ſhould then actually ſee them. He bids him make trial when he pleaſed, if he could number the Stars which were now preſent to his mind, and would ſhortly be preſent and viſible to his bodily Eye. m Which thou art not able to do; for tho Aſtronomers have preſumed to give us the number of thoſe Stars which are diſtinctly viſible to the Eye, wherein yet they vary one from another, yet there are other Stars innumerable, appears confuſedly to the Eye, and evidently by the help of Glaſſes.

6 And he * believed in the LORD n; and he counted it to him for righteouſneſs o.

n (i. e.) He was fully perſwaded that God was able to fulfil, and would certainly fulfil the promiſe made to him concerning a Child, and eſpecially concerning the Meſſias, who ſhould come out of his Loyns by that Child, and that both himſelf and all People ſhould be juſtified and bleſſed in and through him. * Or, reckoned or imputed, as this word is tranſlated, Rom. 4. 10, 22. o (i. e.) For a righteous and worthy Action, as Pſalm 106. 31. and further, in reſpect of this action and grace of Faith, whereby he relied upon God for the promiſed Seed, and upon the promiſed Seed too, he pronounced him a juſt and righteous Perſon notwithſtanding his failings, which even this Hiſtory acquaints us with; and graciouſly accepted him as ſuch. Which ſence is eaſily gathered from St. Paul's Explication and Accommodation of this paſſage, Rom. 4. 9, 18, 22.

7 And he ſaid unto him, I am the LORD that brought thee out of Ur of the Chaldees, to give thee this land to inherit it.

8 And he ſaid, Lord GOD, whereby ſhall I know p that I ſhall inherit it?

p He asks a ſign, not out of diſtruſt of God's promiſe, for he was ſtrong in faith, Rom. 4. 20. but for further aſſurance and confirmation of it. And ſuch an asking of a ſign was not an unuſual practice with good Men, as Judg. 6. 37. 2 Kings 20. 8. nor are they reproved for it; but on the contrary, Ahaz was commanded to ask a ſign, and reproved for not asking it, Iſaiah 7.

9 And he ſaid unto him, Take me † an heifer of three years old, q and a ſhe-goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtle-dove, and a young Pigeon r.

† Take and offer at my command, and for my ſervice. q At which time it is perfect in ſtature and ſtrength, and therefore fitteſt for God's Service. r This and the other Creatures here following, and Sacrifices, are the ſame which afterwards were preſcribed in the Levitical Law.

10 And he s took unto him all theſe, and divided them in the midſt t, and laid each piece one againſt another u: but the birds divided he not x.

s (i. e.) Abram, who by divine inſtinct and precept did all this which here follows. t Into two equal Parts. This was done for two Reaſons. 1. To repreſent the torn and diſtracted condition in which his Seed was to lie for a ſeaſon. 2. To ratifie God's Covenant with Abram and his Seed; for this was a rite uſed in making Covenants, as appears both from Scripture, Jer. 34. 18. and other Authors. u Partly to encourage hope, that God would in his time put thoſe Parts together, and unite thoſe dry Bones (to which the Iſraelites are compared, Ezek. 37.) and clothe them with Fleſh; and partly, that the Perſons entring into Covenant, might paſs between thoſe parts, and ſo teſtify their Union and Conjunction in one and the ſame Sacrifice. x Either becauſe there were two Birds, and the one was laid againſt the other, which anſwered to the diviſion of the larger Creatures; or becauſe they belonged not to the Ceremony of the Covenant, but were for the Uſe of Sacrifice, wherein they were to be offered whole, as afterwards was preſcribed, Levit. 1. 15, 17.

11 And when the fowls came down upon the carcaſſes y, Abram drove them away z.

y To devour them: whereby is ſignified, either 1. The diſturbance and diſtraction which good Men are expoſed to in the Service of God from evil Spirits and Men: or rather 2. The great peril of Abram's Poſterity, who were not only torn in pieces like theſe Sacrifices, but even the remainder of them were likely to be devoured by the Egyptians, whoſe King is compared to an Eagle, the chief of the Birds of prey, Ezek. 17. 2. By the blaſt of his Mouth, as the Hebrew word ſignifies; repreſenting Abram's Conqueſt over all his Enemies by Faith and Prayer, whereby he engaged God to be the Preſerver and Deliverer of his People.

12 And when the ſun was going down, a deep ſleep fell upon Abram a; and lo, an horror of great darkneſs fell upon him b.

a Partly natural from his labour in killing and ſacrificing thoſe Creatures; and partly ſent upon him from God, to make way for the following Repreſentation. b (i. e.) He ſeemed to be covered with a dreadful darkneſs, which was, either 1. A Token of God's ſpecial preſence; compare 1 Kings 8. 12. Or, 2. A ſignification of the diſtreſſed and doleful condition of Abram's Seed; for darkneſs in Scripture is frequently mentioned as an emblem or ſign of great Miſery, as Pſalm 88. 6. and 107. 14, &c.

Sarai is barren, 1. She gives Hagar, her ſervant, to Abram to be his wife, 2, 3. Hagar conceives and deſpiſes her miſtreſs, 4. Sarai complaint of it, 5. Abram leaves her to Sarai's diſpoſal, who deals hardly with her: Hagar runs from her, 6. The angel of the Lord meets her, commands her to return and ſubmit, 7——9. Promiſing her a numerous ſeed, 10. Names the child, 11. Foretels his diſpoſition, 12. God's looking on her in her affliction, comforts her, 13, 14. Her ſon born and named, 15. Abrams age.

NOW Sarai Abrams wife bare him no children: and ſhe had an handmaid an Egyptian, whoſe name was * Hagar.

* Gal. 4. 24.

2 And Sarai ſaid unto Abram, Behold now, the LORD hath reſtrained me from bearing: I pray thee † go in unto my maid; it may be that I may † obtain children by her a: and Abram hearkned to the voice of Sarai b.

a She reckons the Children of her Bond-woman, (as Hagar was Gal. 4. 22.) would be accounted her Children. See Gen. 30. 3. Exod. 21. 4. 2 Sam. 21. 8. Eſth. 2. 7. b Supposing that God would accompliſh his promiſe of a Seed to come out of his Loins by this way; and knowing that Sarai was not yet mentioned in the promiſe, as the Perſon by whom he ſhould have that Seed; and not conſulting with God, which he ſhould have done.

3 And Sarai Abrams wife took Hagar her maid the Egyptian, after Abram had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife c.

c (i. e.) His Concubine, or ſecondary Wife. Polygamy, though it was forbidden by God's firſt Inſtitution, Gen. 2. 24. compared with Matth. 19. 5. and brought into the World by wicked Lamech, yet it was ſometimes practiſed by the Patriarchs, either by God's permiſſion, who could rightly diſpence with his own Laws when and where he pleaſed; or by their miſtake about the lawfulneſs of it. As for the preſent caſe, it is moſt evident this Action was not the effect of an inordinate Luſt, but of an earneſt deſire of having Children, and eſpecially of obtaining the bleſſed and promiſed Seed.

4 ¶ And he went in unto Hagar, and ſhe conceived: and when ſhe ſaw that ſhe had conceived, her miſtreſs was deſpiſed in her eyes d.

d For barrenneſs in it ſelf was a reproach, and eſpecially to Sarai, who ſeemed to be a Perſon rejected by God, as one whom he would not honour with being the Mother of that Seed; and Hagar being ſuddenly made Sarai's Partner in the priviledge of Abram's Bed, and ſuperior to her in reſpect of that great bleſſing of Child-bearing, it is no wonder if ſhe grew inſolent upon it, eſpecially being advanced ſo highly from ſo low a condition.

5 And Sarai ſaid unto Abram, My wrong be upon thee e: I have given my maid into thy boſom; and when ſhe ſaw that ſhe had conceived, I was deſpiſed in her eyes: the LORD judge between me and thee f.

e (i. e.) The injury done to me by Hagar, who thus wickedly requires my kindneſs to her, be upon thee; i. e. is to be imputed to thee; thou art the cauſe of it, becauſe thou doſt not maintain my Reputation, and repreſs her Arrogancy. f (i. e.) give forth a righteous Sentence between us, and deal with each of us according to our guilt or innocency in this matter. Compare 1 Sam. 24. 13, 16.

6 But Abram ſaid unto Sarai, Behold, thy maid is in thine hand g; do to her † as it pleaſeth thee h. † And when Sarai † dealt hardly with her i, ſhe fled from her face k.

g (i. e.) Subject to thy Power and Authority, as the phraſe is taken, Gen. 24. 10. and 39. 4, 6, 8. Numb. 31. 49. For though ſhe be my Concubine, yet ſhe is thy inferiour: and therefore if ſhe exalt her ſelf above her miſtreſs, I give thee Power to exerciſe thy Authority over her. But whether this was not one of Abram's Infirmities to give up his ſecond Wife into the hands of the firſt, may well be queſtioned. h Uſe whatſoever Power God hath given thee over her: For we muſt not think that Abram gave her Power of Life and Death over her, eſpecially now when ſhe was with Child. Therefore here, as often elſewhere, the general words muſt be limited from the nature of the thing, and from other Texts of Scripture, which forbid Cruelty even to our Servants. i Either by impoſing Labours upon her above her Strength, or by grievous Stripes which ſhe could not bear. k Contrary to God's command, Eccleſ. 10. 4. and to the Laws of Juſtice, becauſe both her Perſon and the Fruit of her Body were not her own, but Abram's right in Poſſeſſion.

7 ¶ And the Angel of the LORD l found her by a fountain of water in the wilderneſs, by the fountain in the way to Shur m:

l The Son of God, who oft appeared in Man's Shape before he took Man's Nature, who is called an Angel or Meſſenger, becauſe he was the angel of the covenant, Mal. 3. 1. and was ſent upon divers meſſages to Men in the Old Teſtament, and at laſt was to be ſent in the Fleſh as God's great Embaſſador, or Meſſenger of Peace and Reconciliation. m A place near Egypt, Gen. 25. 18. 1 Sam. 15. 7. being her Native Country, Exod. 15. 22.

8 And he ſaid, Hagar, Sarai's maid n, whence cameſt thou? And whither wilt thou go o? And ſhe ſaid, I flee from the face of my miſtreſs Sarai.

n By which Title he admoniſheth her, that tho ſhe was Abram's Wife, yet ſhe was Sarai's Maid, to whom ſhe owed Subjection and Service, from which ſhe could not lawfully withdraw her ſelf. o Conſider with thy ſelf what thou art doing; what a fad exchange thou art making. Thou forſakeſt not only an excellent Maſter and Husband, but alſo me and my worſhip, which thou wilt not find in any other Family, and ſo caſteſt thy ſelf out of the true Church, and art running headlong into a place of all Idolatry and Impiety, to thy utter undoing; and this meerly through Pride and Impatience.

9 And the Angel of the LORD ſaid unto her, Return to thy miſtreſs, and ſubmit thy ſelf under her hands.

10 And the Angel of the LORD ſaid unto her, I will multiply thy ſeed exceedingly, that it ſhall not be numbred for multitude.

11 And the Angel of the LORD ſaid unto her, Behold, thou art with child, and ſhalt bear a ſon, and ſhalt call his name † Iſhmael; becauſe the LORD hath heard thy affliction *.

† That is God ſhall hear.

* Hath heard thy Cry in thy Affliction.

12 And he will be a wild man p; his hand will be againſt every man, and every mans hand againſt him q: * and he ſhall dwell in the preſence of all his brethren r.

See Gen. 25. 18.

13 And she called the name of the LORD that spake unto her, † Thou God seest me s: for she said, Have I also here looked after him that seeth me t?

† Heb. El-roi, thou art a God that seest me.

s Thou hast been pleased to take notice and care of me, and graciously to manifest thy self unto me. t (i. e.) After that God whose eye is upon me for good? So she chides her self for her neglect of God, and of his Providence, and that not only in her Master's House, but even here in the Wilderness, where her desolate and miserable Condition should have made her look after, and call upon God for help. Or rather, these are words of admiration, q. d. Have I also here, i. e. in this desolate Wilderness, looked after him that seeth me, i. e. seen the face of my gracious God! That God should appear to me in my Master's House, where he used to manifest himself, was not strange; but that I should have such a favour here, that God should not only look upon me, but admit me to look upon him, and visibly appear to me after I had run away from him, and from my godly Master, this was more than I could hope or expect! Others thus, Have I here seen after him that sees me, i. e. after the Vision of him that hath appeared to me! i. e. Do I yet see and live, after I have seen God! She wonders at it, because it was then the common Opinion, that an appearance of God to any Person was a fore-runner of Death. See Gen. 32. 30. Exod. 33. 20. Jud 6. 22. and 13. 22. And seeing is here put for living, one function of Life for Life it self, as Exod 24. 11. Eccles. 11. 7, 8. But the word seeing, put by its self, as here it is, is neither in those places, nor elsewhere, used for living. And had that been her meaning, she would have expressed it plainly, as they do in the places alledged, and not have used so dark and dubious a Metaphor, nor would have said, after him that sees me, but rather, after I have seen him.

*Chap.24. 62. † That is, the well of him that liveth and seeth me.

14 Wherefore the well was called * † Beer-lahai-roi u; behold, it is between Cadesh and Bered.

u This name may have respect, either 1. To God, The well of him that liveth, (i. e. of the true and living God) and seeth me, i. e. taketh care of me. Or, 2. To Hagar, The well of her that liveth, (i. e.) who tho she gave up her self for dead and lost, yet now is likely to live, both in her Person, and in her Posterity, and seeth, or did see, namely, God present with her.

15 ¶ And Hagar bare Abram a son †: and Abram called his sons name, which Hagar bare, Ishmael.

† To wit, after her return and submission to her Mistress, which is evident from the following History.

16 And Abram was fourscore and six years old, when Hagar bare Ishmael to Abram.

CHAP. XVII.

God renews his covenant with Abram, 1——4. His name in token hereof changed, 5. Kings shall be born of him, 6. The covenant established with his seed, 7. The promise of Canaan to him and his seed repeated, 8. Circumcision instituted, 9, 10. The part to be circumcised, 11. The time and persons, 12, 13. The punishment on neglecters of it, 14. Sarai's name changed, 15. A son by her promised, 16. Abrahams surprize, 17. His prayer for Ishmael, 18. The promise of a son by Sarah confirmed, his name, 19. Abrahams prayer for Ishmael answered, 20. But the covenant established in Isaac, 21. Abraham is circumcised; as is also Ishmael, and all his House, 23——27.

AND when Abram was ninety years old and nine, the LORD appeared to Abram, and said unto him, I am the † Almighty God a, * walk before me b, and be thou † perfect c.

a Who can do all that I have promised, or shall promise to thee, and whatsoever pleaseth me; and therefore do thou firmly believe all my words. b As becomes one in the presence of thy Lord, and Judge, and Rewarder, being careful to please and obey me in all things, and depending upon me for thy well-doing and well-being. See the same phrase, Gen. 48. 15. 1 Kings 8. 25. Psalm 116. 9. c (i. e.) Sincere, universal, and constant in thy belief of my promises, and obedience to my commands. See Gen. 6. 9.

2 And I will make my covenant between me and thee d, and will multiply thee exceedingly.

d I am come to renew, establish, and enlarge that Covenant which I formerly made with thee.

3 And Abram fell on his face e: and God talked with him, saying, e Partly in self-abasement, and an humble sense of his own undeservedness of such favours; and partly in Reverence and Worship to God, and a thankful acknowledgment of his marvellous kindness. Compare Levit. 9. 24. Ezek. 43. 3.

4 As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of † many nations f.

f Both literally, or after the Flesh, of the Israelites, Ismaelites, Edomites, &c. and spiritually, of all Believers of all Nations, to whom Abram hath in some sort the place of a Father, Rom. 4. 12, 17. Not only as he was the great Example and Teacher of that Faith by which they are all saved (as the Instructers of others are called their Fathers, both in Scripture, as Gen. 4. 20, 21. and in profane Authors) but as he was made by God the head of the Covenant, by, or through whom the Covenant-right was conveyed to all his natural Seed, and afterwards to the spiritual Seed, all Gentile-Believers.

5 Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram; but thy name shall be Abraham g, * for a father of many nations have I made thee.

* Rom. 4. 17.

g (i. e.) The Father of a Multitude, Ham in the Hebrew being put for Hamon, which signifies a Multitude, by a figure called Apocope, which is usual in proper Names.

† Heb. I will make thee Nations. *Chap. 35. of thee b. 11.

6 And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and † I will make * nations of thee, and kings shall come out

b So did the Kings of Israel and Judah, of Edom, of the Saracens, and the Messias, who is King of kings, and Lord of lords.

7 And I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee, in their Generations, for an everlasting covenant; to be a God unto thee i, and to thy seed after thee.

i (i. e.) Whatsoever I am or have, all that shall be thine, and shall be employed for thy Protection, Consolation, and Salvation. This Phrase contains in it the confluence of all blessings, Temporal, Spiritual, and Eternal. See Levit. 26. 12. Psalm 33. 12. and 144. 15. Jer. 31. 33.

8 And * I will give unto thee, and to thy seed † after thee, the land † wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession k; and I will be their God.

* Chap. 12. † Heb. of thy sojournings.

† Unto thee, not in thy own Person, but in thy Seed. See Gen. 13. 15, 17. k Upon condition of their Obedience to God, as is oft expressed: Wherein seeing they so notoriously failed, it is no wonder if they possessed it but a little while, as the Prophet complains, Isaiah 63. 18.

9 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou l, and thy seed after thee, in their generations.

l The agreement is mutual: My part was expressed before; now follows thy part, and the condition to which my promise and blessing is annexed.

10 This is my covenant m which ye shall keep between me and you, and thy seed after thee; Every * man-child n among you shall be circumcised.

m Circumcision is here called the Covenant by an usual Metonymy, because it is the Condition, Sign, and Seal of the Covenant, the pledge of God's Promise and Man's Duty. And upon the same grounds the Cup, i. e. the Wine, is called the New Testament in Christ's blood, Luke 22. 20. Or, which is all one, Christ's blood in the New Testament, Matth. 26. 28. n It is evident that Women as well as Men were comprehended in this Covenant, from Gen. 34. 14. Exod. 12. 3, 4. Joel 2. 15, 16. Yet Circumcision is given only to the Males, partly because it could not, at least not conveniently be administred to Females; partly, because Man is the principal Cause of the propagation of Children, and consequently of the propagation of that Original Corruption which cleaves to them; partly, to signify that all Persons begotten by Man should be polluted by Sin, though not all conceived by a Woman, as Christ was: And partly, because Man is the Head of the Woman, and of the Family, upon whom all their concerns are devolved, and from whom the distinction of Families and People comes.

11 And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin o, and it shall be a * token of the covenant p betwixt me and you.

* Acts 7. 8. Rom. 4. 11.

o (i. e.) By an usual Hypallage, the fore-skin of your flesh: And the word Flesh is here put for the genital Part, as it is Levit. 15, 2, 19. Ezek. 16. 26. and 23. 20. and elsewhere. This part God singled out for this Ordinance, because it is and was a great Instrument both in the commission of actual Sins, and in the propagation of original Sin; and therefore it was very proper to apply to it the Seal of God's gracious Covenant for the Remission of Sins past, and the Expiration of Sin for the future. p (i. e.) A sign, evidence, and assurance, both of the blessing promised by that God who appointed this Ordinance, and of Man's obligation to the duties required, which is signified by his acceptance of, and submission to this Ordinance. And here we have the Nature and Definition of a Sacrament, viz. that it is a figure or token of God's Covenant.

12 And † he that is eight days old q * shall be circumcised among you, every man-child in your generations r, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger s, which is not of thy seed.

q Not before that time, because of the Childs Weakness and Imperfection, and Impurity too, Exod. 22. 30. Levit. 12 3. for which reason also Beasts were not to be offered to God before the eighth day, Exod. 22. 30. r Successively, until the Messias come who shall circumcise your hearts, and change this Ordinance for another. s These were of two sorts: 1. Children, who being entirely his possession, and having not understanding to discern, nor will to chuse or refuse, were to be circumcised. 2. Grown Persons, who were not to be compelled to be circumcised, but if they refused it, were not to be permitted to dwell in his Family, lest they should infect others, but were to be sold to Strangers, as the Hebrew Doctors teach. But as for Abraham's Servants here, they were thoroughly instructed in Religion, Gen. 18. 19. and doubtless did willingly embrace it, and submit to this Sacrament.

t So it was, and is properly in regard of the thing signified to all true Believers; and for the sign, it is so called, because it was to endure through all Generations till the coming of the Messias: The word Olam here and elsewhere rendred everlasting, or for ever, being oft used to express not only simple eternity, but any long continuance for many ages, yea sometimes for a Man's life. See Exod. 21. 6. Deut. 15. 17. 1 Kings 9. 3.

14 And the uncircumcised man-child, * whose flesh of his fore-skin is not circumcised u, that soul shall be cut off from his people x; he hath broken my covenant y.

* Or,

* Or rather, And as for the uncircumcised man-child. So the nominative is put absolutely, as is frequent in the Hebrew Tongue. u Or, Who shall not circumcise the flesh of his fore-skin: For the Hebrew Verb may be rendred actively, which seems best here; because the punishment seems more justly to belong to the Parent, who was guilty of this neglect; than to the Child, who was not capable of this Precept, and therefore not guilty of the violation of it. And this may further appear from Exod. 4. 24, 25. where God seeks to kill, not the Child, but the Father, Moses, for this Sin. And the flesh of the Child's fore-skin is rightly called the flesh of his, i. e. The Parent's fore-skin, because the Child is a part and the possession of his Parent. So that this threatning concerns only grown persons, and of them only such as shall wilfully and unnecessarily neglect this duty; for otherwise it was neglected by the Israelites for forty years together in the Wilderness, Jos. 5. 7. without any token of God's displeasure for it. x This phrase denotes either 1. An exclusion from Fellowship with God's People, and from all the Promises, Priviledges and Blessings belonging to them, either in this Life, or that to come. Or rather 2. An untimely and violent Death, as may be gathered from Exod. 31. 14. to be inflicted by the Magistrate, to whom God committed the execution of this, as well as other Laws; and in case of his neglect and default, or the secrecy of the fact, by the extraordinary hand of God, who sometimes ascribes this act to himself, as Leviticus 17. 10. and 20. 6. y That sacred bond which tyed him and me together, and by his neglect and contempt of the condition required on his part, he hath forfeited the blessing promised on my part.

15 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but Sarah z shall her name be.

z Sarai signifies my Lady, or my Princess, which confines her Dominion to one Family; but Sarah signifies either a Lady or Princess, simply and absolutely without restriction, or the Princess of a multitude, the Hebrew Letter he being taken out of Hamon, and added to her name, as it was to Abram's name.

16 And I will bless her, and give thee a son also of her: yea, I will bless her, and † she shall be a mother of * nations; kings of people shall be of her.

† Heb. she shall become Nations. * Chap. 35. 11.

17 Then Abraham fell upon his face, and laughed a, and said in his heart, Shall a child be born unto him that is an hundred years old? and shall Sarah that is ninety years old bear?

a Through admiration and holy rejoycing at so great a Blessing, not through unbelief, as Sarah did Gen. 18. 12, 13. as appears from Rom. 4. 19, 20. And though the outward act was the same in both, yet God differned their differing dispositions and intentions therein.

18 And Abraham said unto God, O that Ishmael might live before thee b?

b Grant, O Lord, that the giving of one Son may not be joyned with the taking away of another; that Ishmael may faithfully serve thee, and may have a share in thy favour, and gracious Covenant. For this seems to be the meaning of this phrase of living before God, or in God's presence, by comparing a parallel phrase, of walking before God, verse 1. and elsewhere, and an opposite phrase, from thy face shall I be hid. Gen. 4. 14.

* Chap. 18. 10. and 21. 2.

19 And God said, * Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac c, and I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him.

c Which signifies laughter, not from Sarah's laughter, which as yet had not happened, but from Abram's past laughter, verse 17. and future joy in his Son.

20 And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee †: behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly: * twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation.

* Chap. 25. 36.

† To wit, in part, or so far as is here expressed; and probably, as to the chief Blessing of the Covenant, to wit, the forgivenss of his Sins, and eternal Life, as the Hebrew Doctors and some others collect from Gen. 25. 17. and from other considerations.

21 But my covenant will I establish with Isaac d, whom Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time, in the next year.

d The Covenant of the promised Seed to come out of his Loins, and of Life and Salvation to accrue to himself, and to his Posterity by vertue of that Seed: In comparison whereof God speaks slightly of all the temporal Blessings conferred upon Ishmael, though in themselves they were great and glorious. By which it may sufficiently appear that Abraham's Faith, whereby he is said to be justified, Rom. 4. had a farther reach in it than to his own immediate Child, even to the Messias, whose day therefore Abraham is said to have seen, John 8. 56.

22 And he left off talking with him, and God went up e from Abraham.

e To Heaven in a visible manner, as it seems he converfed with him in some visible shape. Compare Genesis 35. 13. Judges 13. 20.

23 ¶ And Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house and all that were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abrahams house, and circumcised the flesh of their fore-skin f in the self-same day g, as God had said unto him.

f Partly by his own hand, and partly by the help of others, whom he by Divine Instinct called to, and directed in that work. g In which God appeared to him and gave the command. So he made haste and delayed not to execute God's command. And his Servants also yielded a ready and cheerful Obedience to this severe and painful Precept, being moved thereunto by Abraham's Example and sovereign Authority, by God's powerful Presence some way or other manifested to them, and by the prospect and hope of God's Blessing to accompany and follow his own Ordinance.

24 And Abraham was ninety years old and nine, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his fore-skin.

25 And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his fore-skin.

26 In the self-same day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son.

27 And all the men of his house, born in the house, and bought with money of the stranger, were circumcised with him.

CHAP. XVIII.

The Lord appears to Abraham, 1. He sees three men, 2. Invites them, 3. They accept it, 4, 5. He prepares for them a calf, &c. they eat, 6—8. The promise of a son by Sarah renewed; the time appointed, 9. Sarah, being old, laught, 11, 12. God reproves her, 13. And confirms the promise, 14. Her denial, and God's reply, 15. The men prepare to go towards Sodom, 16. God resolves to shew Abraham his purpose to destroy Sodom, 17. The reason of it, 18. God's testimony of him, 19. God reveals his purpose to him, 20—22. Abraham's intercession for Sodom, oft repeated, and God's condescention, 23—32.

AND the LORD appeared unto him in the plains of Mamre: and he sat in the tent-door a in the heat of the day b.

a Waiting for Strangers which might pass that way; for whom no publick places being provided in those times and places, vertuous persons used to entertain them in their Houses. See Heb. 13. 2. b The time when Travellers, especially in those hot Countries, used to divert and refresh themselves.

* Heb. 13. 2.

c As they seemed to be, though indeed they were Angels in Mens shape. d A respect usually paid to persons of quality, such as these seemed to be.

3 And said, My LORD e, if now I have found favour in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant.

e He directeth his Speech to one, who, by the Majesty of his Countenance, and the Respect which the other two shewed him, seemed to be the chief of them.

4 Let a little water, I pray you, be fetched, and wash your feet f, and rest your selves under the tree.

f A practise usual in those parts, Gen. 19. 2. and 24. 32. and 43. 24. John 13. 4, 5. 1 Tim. 5. 10. because they used to travel either bare-footed, or only with Sandals to cover and secure the bottom of their Feet.

5 And I will fetch a morsel of bread, and † comfort ye your hearts; after that ye shall pass on: for † therefore † are ye come to your servant g. And they said, So do as thou hast said.

g Not that he saith, or thought that this was their design, but an effect of Divine Providence. The meaning is, Therefore hath God directed you this way, that I might have an occasion of performing my Duty to you, which I chearfully embrace.

6 And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, † Make ready quickly three measures h of fine meal: knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth i.

h Containing each the third part of an Ephah. See Exod. 16. 36. i Upon the Coals, or in the warm Cinders, or in an Oven. He had doubtless other Bread ready, but he would have new Bread for them, which he thought most grateful.

7 And Abraham ran unto the herd, and fetcht a calf tender and good, and gave it unto a young man; and he hasted to dress it.

8 And he took butter and milk, and the calf * which he had dressed, and set it before them; and he stood by them k under the tree, and they did eat l.

* To wit, the choiceft parts of the Calf. k To wait upon them, as the word standing is used, Nehem. 12. 44. Jer. 52. 12. l Either seemingly, as the Scripture oft speaks of things according to appearance; or really, they received the meat into the Bodies which they assumed, where it was consumed by a Divine Power.

9 ¶ And they said unto him m, Where is Sarah thy wife? And he said, Behold, in the tent n.

m (i. e.) One of them, in the name of all, said; which he did not for his own satisfaction, for he who knew her name, knew also where she was, but to give occasion for the following discourse. n In her Tent; for Men and Women had then their several Tents or Apartments.

10 And he said, I will certainly return unto thee † to the living time. according to the time of life p; and lo, * Sarah thy wife shall have a son. And Sarah heard it in the tent door which was behind him q.

o Not in a visible shape, but with my powerful and effectual Prefence to fulfil my promise. p This time may respect, either 1. Abraham and Sarah; in the time of life, i. e. when you shall be both alive and in health. But if it belonged to them, it might seem better to understand it thus; In the time when God shall restore life, (i. e.) vigour and activity to you; for till then both Abraham's Body, and Sarah's Womb are expressly said to be dead, Rom. 4. 19. to which deadness this life may be opposite; and the time of restoring this lost power of Generation may well be called a time of life, it being a kind of life from the dead, and an impowering of him for a vital action from which he was before disenabled, and for the conveying of life to a Child, and perpetuating his own life in him. Or 2. To the Child, according to the time of life, i. e. in the time which is usual for the Conception, Quickning, and Bringing forth of a living Child. Which interpretation receiveth some countenance from 2 Kings 4. 16. where we have the same phrase. Or 3. To the year, according to the time, or this time of life, or living time, i. e. when this time or season of the year shall revive, i. e. return or be restored: As Cities and Buildings are said to be restored, when they are repaired or rebuilt, as 1 Chron. 11. 8. Nehem. 4. 2. And this season might more properly be said to return, and be called the time of life, because it may be gathered from the heat, verse 1. and their refreshing themselves under the shadow of a Tree, that it was the Spring-time, when Herbs and Plants and Trees, which seem to be dead in the Winter, recover and shew forth their life and vigour: And so the sense may be this, according to this time which is a time of life, or reviving, wherein as the Beauty and Fruits of the Earth will be renewed and revived, so thou and Sarah shall be revived, or receive, as it were, a new life in the Son that shall be born to you. This sense seems more probable than either of the former; because he speaks of a certain set or appointed time, verse 14. Rom. 9. 9. Gen. 21. 2. and that time was about a year after this, as may appear by comparing Gen. 17. 24. and Gen. 21. 5. q (i. e.) At the back of the Angel that spoke with him. Which is here added to shew that he knew her Laughter, not by the sight of his Eyes, but by his all-seeing Knowledge.

*Chap. 17. 17. Rom 4. 19. Heb. 11. 11, 12.

11 Now * Abraham and Sarah were old, and well stricken in age: and it ceased to be with Sarah after the manner of women r.

r As to those monthly Effluviums peculiar to her Sex, which are necessary to conception, compare Gen. 31. 35.

12 Therefore Sarah laughed s within her self t, saying, * After I am waxed old, shall I have pleasure, u my * Lord being old also?

* Luke 1. 18. *1 Pet. 3. 6.

s Not from joy and admiration, but from distrust and contempt, as if it were incredible. t Heb. In her heart, i. e. she secretly derided it, though none but her self, as she thought, knew it. u Not so much in the conception, as in the education and fruition of a Child.

13 And the LORD said unto Abraham, Wherefore did Sarah laugh, saying, Shall I of a surety bear a child, which am old?

* Jer. 32. 17. Zech. 8. 6. Luke 1. 37. † Chap. 17. 21.

14 * Is any thing too hard for the LROD x? † at the time appointed will I return unto thee, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son.

x Heb. Hid from God? So the sense is, though she laughed only in her Heart, it is not unknown to me: Or rather too wonderful for God to effect? Which best suits with the following words.

15 Then Sarah denied y, saying, I laughed not; for she was afraid. And he said, Nay, but thou didst laugh.

y From the sense of Guilt, and the discovery of her Shame, and the expectation of a sharp Rebuke both from this Person, and from her Husband.

16 ¶ And the men rose up from thence, and looked towards Sodom: and Abraham went with them * to bring them on the way z.

* John 6.

z A civility usual then and afterwards. See Acts 20. 38. and 21. 5. Rom. 15. 24. 1 Cor. 16. 11.

* Amos 3. 7.

17 And the LORD said, * Shall I hide from Abraham a that thing which I do;

a q. d. I will not, cannot hide it; it is against the Laws of Friendship to conceal my Secrets from him. The Interrogation here is in effect a Negation, as elsewhere. Compare 2 Sam. 7. 5. with 1 Chron. 17. 4. and Matth. 7. 16. with Luke 6. 43. See also Amos 3. 7.

18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be * blessed in him b.

*Chap. 12. 3. and 22. 18. Act. 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8.

b (q. d.) Seeing I have done greater things for him, How can I deny him the less? Compare the argument, Rom. 8. 32. God's ways are not like Men's ways. Former favours to Men are arguments why they should do no more; but to God they are motives for the adding of new ones.

19 For I know him c, that he will command d his children and his household after him e, and they shall keep the way of the LORD, to do justice and judgment g; that the LORD may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him h.

c I know him to be such an one as I am now describing; or I know this concerning him which now follows. Others, I love him, and therefore cannot conceal this from him. Words of Knowledge being oft put for Love, as Jer. 1. 5. and 24. 5. Hos. 13. 5. Amos 3. 2. d Or, Instruct, as the word is used, Levit. 14. 5. Deut. 20. 18. and 27. 3. It will not be in vain that I tell him this, and give him occasion to pray and to taste my Goodness in answering Prayers, because he will not smother these things in his own Breast, but manifest them to others, and teach them how good God is, who so readily complies with the Desires and Prayers of Men, and how terrible he is to incorrigible Sinners, and how evil and bitter a thing it is to sin against God. And so I shall get the end I aim at in all my Works, which is, that they may be known for the good of others; that they may learn by such Examples. e Who will live when he is dead. He will so diligently imprint these things in their Minds, that they shall never forget them. f (i. e.) Observe and walk in the way of God's Precepts: g. d. He shall not lose his Design or Labour; for what he teacheth they shall learn and practise. See Psal. 51. 15, &c. g (i. e.) To do all things that are good, and right, and just, both to God and Men. Compare Psal. 119. 121. h (i. e.) That Abraham and his Posterity, keeping the Conditions of the Covenant required on their part, God may without any blemish to his Honour or Justice give all those good things which he hath promised to them.

20 And the LORD said, Because * the cry i of Sodom and Gomorrah k is great, and because their sin is very grievous;

* Chap. 4. 10. and 19. 13. Jam. 5. 4.

i Sins are said to cry when they are gross, and manifest, and impudent, and such as highly provoke God to Anger. k He names only these two, as being the most eminent in State, and exemplary in Wickedness; but under them he includes the rest, as appears by the Story.

21 * I will go down now, and see l whether they have † done altogether m according to the cry of it, which is come unto me; and if not, I will † know.

* Chap. 11. 5. † Heb. made a full end.

l (i. e.) Enquire into the truth of the thing. God here speaks after the manner of Men, and for the Example and Instruction of Judges to search into Causes ere they pass Sentence. m Heb. Whether they have made a consummation or accomplishment, i. e. whether they have filled up the measure of their Sins. Compare Gen. 15. 16. Matth. 23. 32. James 1. 15.

22 And the men n turned their faces from thence, and went toward Sodom: but Abraham stood yet before the LORD o.

n (i. e.) Two of them; for the third stayed with Abraham, as it here follows. o The third of these persons whom now he perceived to be the Lord himself, who had assumed an humane shape.

23 ¶ And Abraham drew near p, and said, Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked?

p (i. e.) Approached unto God to enquire of him, and to pray unto him; for so the phrase of drawing near to God is used, 1 Sam. 14. 36. Psal. 73. 28. Isa. 29. 13. Heb. 10. 22.

24 * Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city q: wilt thou also destroy, and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?

* Jer. 5. 1.

q (i. e.) In the Cities concerned, as appears by verse 20. and 19. 25. The singular number for the plural, as is frequent, as Gen. 3. 2. 1 Chron. 10. 1. compared with 1 Sam. 31. 1. and oft elsewhere. Or the City Sodom alone is mentioned, but the rest are comprehended under it, either because of its eminency, or because they were subject or subordinate to it, as may seem probable from the History, Gen. 14.

25 That be far from thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked: and that the righteous shall be as the wicked, that be far from thee: * shall not the judge of all the earth r do right s?

* Job 8. 3. and 34. 17. Rom 3. 6.

r Now he clearly perceiveth that this person was no less than the Creator, Governour and Judge of the World, even the second person in the Blessed Trinity, to whom that Title and Work is ascribed, as John 5. 22, 27. Acts 10. 42. and 17. 31. s He speaks not this, as if it were simply unjust for God to involve the Righteous in the same temporal Destruction with the Wicked; for he knew very well and by his own experience, that there was not a just man upon earth that did good and sinned not, Eccles. 7. 20. and therefore no such just man who did not for his own Sin deserve that Death and Destruction, which is the proper wages of sin, Rom. 6. last. But he speaks not here of strict and rigorous Justice, but of that moderate and equitable way which God is pleased to use with the Sons of Men, and of that right to temporal Deliverances which by vertue of God's gracious Covenant and Promise did accrue to pious and vertuous Persons, especially in the times of the Old Testament, when temporal Promises were more expressly and particularly made to good Men.

26 And the LORD said, If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes.

27 And Abraham answered and said, Behold, now I have taken upon me to speak unto the LORD, which am but dust and ashes t.

t In regard of the composition of my Body, which was taken out out of the Dust, and shall return into it again. See Gen. 3. 19. Job 4. 19. Eccl. 12. 7. 1 Cor. 15. 47, 48.

28 Peradventure there shall lack five of the fifty righteous, wilt thou destroy all the city for lack of five u? And he said, If I find there forty and five, I will not destroy it.

u Heb. For five, or because of five, to wit, which are lacking or wanting. The same Supplement we have also, Psalm 109. 24. Lam. 4. 9.

29 And he spake unto him yet again, and said, Peradventure there shall be forty found there. And he said, I will not do it for forties sake.

30 And he said unto him, O, let not the LORD be angry, and I will speak: Peradventure there shall thirty be found there. And he said, I will not do it, if I find thirty there.

31 And he said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the LORD: Peradventure there shall be twenty found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for twenties sake.

* Judg. 6. 39.

32 And he said, * O, let not the LORD be angry, and I will speak yet but this once x: Peradventure ten shall be found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for tens sake.

x Abraham in modesty could proceed no further, and being a good Man himself, he had a charitable Opinion of others, and thought there certainly were so many good Men in all those Cities, especially including Lot and his Family. No doubt Abraham remembered Lot in his Prayers; but that large and generous Soul could not content himself with Lot's preservation, but aims at the saving of the whole Cities, which when he saw was doubtful and unlikely, he prayed for his deliverance out of that common Destruction, as may be gathered from Gen. 19. 29.

33 And the LORD went his way, assoon as he had left communing with Abraham: and Abraham returned unto his place.

CHAP. XIX.

Two angels come to Sodom, 1. Lot invites them in; they at first refuse, 2. They enter; he entertains them and they eat, 3. The men of Sodom demand to know them, 4, 5. Lot dissuades them, 6, 7. Offers his daughters; urges reason, 8. They are obstinate; threaten, and press to break open; urges reason, 9. They are smitten with blindness, 10. Advise Lot to depart with his kindred, 12. The reason, 13. Lot speaks to his sons in law; they deride him, 14. The angels lay hold on Lot, his wife, and two daughters, and carry them out, 16. Command them not to look back, 17. Lot requests to flay in Zoar; it is granted; with a command to hasten, he requests to flay in Zoar; it is granted; with a command to hasten, he cause till they are gone the Lord can do nothing, 18—23. God rains brimstone and fire upon Sodom, 24, 25. Lot's wife looking back becomes a pillar of salt, 26. Abraham looks towards Sodom, 27, 28. God kind to Lot for Abrahams sake, 29. Lot and his two daughters remove to the mountain, 30. Lot's daughters contrive for an issue, 31, 32. They make their father drunk, lie with him, 33——35. and are with child, 36. Moab and Ben-ammi, the two sons born thereby, 36, 37.

AND there came a two angels b to Sodom at even c; and Lot sat in the gate of Sodom d: and Lot seeing them, rose up to meet them; and he bowed himself with his face toward the ground;

a Even those two which departed from Abraham, Chap. 18. 22. and now were come to Lot, the third yet staying and communing with Abraham. b So they truly were, though they be called Men, Chap. 18. c Of the same day on which they departed from Abraham. d Where he sat either to observe the Administration or Corruption of Justice there; for the seats of Judicature were in the Gates: Or rather to wait for Strangers, to whom he might exercise Kindness and Hospitality.

* Heb. 13. 2. † Chap. 18. and 4. * See Luke 24. 28.

2 And he said, Behold now my lords, * turn in, I pray you, into your servants house, and tarry all night, and * wash your feet, and ye shall rise up early, and go on your ways †. And they said, * Nay, but we will abide in the street all night e.

e † And so this will be no hindrance to your Occasions. * This was no untruth, but really intended by them in the present state of things, and upon supposition that Lot should press them no further; but they also intended, if Lot was earnest with them, to comply with him. The first denial was but decent, and an act of Civility, and in them it was a design to discover Lot's Piety and Hospitality, and to manifest the great difference between him and the barbarous Sodomites, and the reason and justice of Lot's Deliverance, and their Destruction.

3 And he pressed upon them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house: and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread f, and they did eat.

f Because that was sooner prepared, that so they might eat it, and after that go to Bed in due time.

4 ¶ But before they lay down †, the men of the city, even the men of Sodom, compassed the house round, both old and young, all the people from every quarter g.

† To Sleep, of which this word is used, Gen. 28. 13. Lev. 14. 17. and 26. 6. g Some to exercise Villany, and some to please themselves with the Contemplation of it, and some out of Curiosity, &c. This is added to shew how universally corrupt they were, and that there were not ten righteous men there.

5 And they called unto Lot, and said unto him, Where are the men which came in to thee this night? bring them out unto us, that we may know them h.

h Either know who they are: Or rather abuse them, as Lot's answer explains it, and so that word is used, Gen. 4. 1. Numb. 31. 17. Judg. 19. 22. And for the Sin here committed, see Lev. 18. 22. and 20. 13. Rom. 1. 26, 27. 1 Cor. 6. 9. Jude, verse 7. They openly and impudently profess their wicked Intention, for which they were branded, Isa. 3. 9. and this intention of theirs is the more probable, because of the great beauty which it is likely was in those bodies which the Angels assumed, whereby their Lust was more inflamed.

6 And Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him,

7 And said, I pray you, brethren i, do not so wickedly.

i So they were by Community of Nature and Habitation. See Gen. 9. 5. and 29. 4. and Lev. 19. 17. and so he calls them, if possibly he might sweeten and restrain them.

8 * Behold now, I have two daughters which have not * known man k; let me, I pray you, bring them out unto you, and do ye to them as is good in your eyes l: only unto these men do nothing; for therefore † came they under the shadow of my roof m.

* See Judg. 19. 24. Numb. 31. 17. † Chap. 17, 18.

k To wit, Carnally. See Gen. 24. 16. Numb. 31. 18. Judg. 11. 39. l Whatsoever your purpose or pleasure is. See the same Phrase, Gen. 20. 15. and 41. 37. Numb. 24. 1, &c. A most imprudent and sinful Motion, whereby he yielded to one sin to prevent another, contrary to Romans 3. 8. and exposed his Daughters chastity which he was obliged to preserve, and which indeed he had no power to expose, especially seeing they were betrothed to other men, v. 14. But it is some extenuation of his Sin that it proceeded from his great Charity and Kindness to Strangers, and that he was at this time under a great perturbation and discompose of mind. † That they might be preserved from such outrages. This was the design of the thing, though not of those Persons. See the note on Gen. 18. 5. m (i. e.) Under the protection of my House. Shadow is oft put for protection or defence, as Judges 9. 15. Psalm 36. 7. Jer. 48. 45.

9 And they said, Stand back n. And they said again, This one fellow came in to sojourn o, and he will needs be a judge p: now will we deal worse with thee than with them. And they pressed sore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door.

n Or, Go further off, i. e. out of our way; stand not between us and the door, or come hither: That so they might seize him, and proceed in the designed wickedness. o q. d. One man, and he too but a Stranger, presumeth to oppose the whole Society of the Native Citizens. p Heb. In judging he will judge. This busy-body, if not restrained in time, will take Authority to himself to censure, reprove, and condemn us from time to time.

10 But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut to the door.

11 And they smote the men * that were at the door of the house with blindness q, both small and great: so that they wearied themselves to find the door.

* See Acts 13. 11.

q Heb. With blindness, i. e. with a blindness both of Body and Mind. It was not a total blindness, as if they quite lost the use of their Eyes, for they saw the House, tho not the Door, but it was a great dimness and confusion of their Sight, and a disturbance in their Common Sense, by which they were made unable to distinguish between differing Persons or Places; as it was also with the Syrians, 2 Kings 6. 18. as it is in some measure with some drunkards, who, tho their Eyes be open, cannot distinguished between things that differ. And this was very easy for Angels to do by a small alteration either in their Sight, or in the Air, whereby either the Door might appear to them like the solid Wall, or the several parts of the Wall like to many Doors.

12 ¶ And the men said unto Lot, Hast thou here any besides son in law, and thy sons, and thy daughters? and whatsoever thou hast in the city, bring them out of this place.

13 For we will destroy this place: because the * cry of them is waxen great before the face of the LORD, and the LORD hath sent us to destroy it.

* Chap. 18. 20.

14 And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons in law, which married r his daughters, and said, Up, get ye out of this place, for the LORD will destroy this city: but he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons in law.

r Heb. Took, or were taking, or about to take, to wit, either to Espouse, or to Marry. Compare Gen. 6. 2. and 24. 3. and 28 6. Deut. 7. 3. Anciently Persons were first espoused, and after some time, the Marriage was consummated.

15 ¶ And when the morning arose, then the angels hastned Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy † two daughters which † are here s, lest thou be consumed in the * iniquity of the city.

i Heb. Which are found, i.e. Which are present with thee, as this word is used, 1 Chron. 29. 17. 2 Chron. 5. 11. and 30. 21. and 31. 1. Whence some gather that he had two other Daughters married to two Sodomitish Men, who by their Husbands perswasion and example, staid and perished in those Flames. But this is not necessary: For this Phrase may be applied to the Daughters by way of distinction from their Spouses or Husbands. q. d. Tarry no longer in expectation of thy Sons-in-law, who are absent, and must be given up for lost, but take thy Daughters which are found and present with thee, and go thy way.

16 And while he lingred t, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; the LORD being merciful unto him; and they brought him forth, and set him without the city.

t Either through loathness to part with all his Estate, or to lose his Sons-in-law: Or, through astonishment and distraction of Mind, which made him both listless and impotent.

17 And it came to pass, when they had brought them forth abroad, that he u said, Escape for thy life x; look not behind thee y, neither stay thou in all the plain: escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed.

u Either one of the Angels: Or the third Person, the Lord himself, who having parted from Abraham, after some time came to Lot, as appears both by the change of the number, for before this he speaks of them in the plural number, but from hence in the singular number, as verse 19, 21, 22. and by the variation of the Phrase, for the other two speak with submission, and as servants, verse 13. The Lord hath sent us, &c. but this speaks with more authority, as is evident from verse 21, 22. x (i. e.) As thou loveſt thy life. See Deut. 4. 15. Jos. 23. 11. Jer. 17. 21. Or, escape with thy Life, for the Hebrew particle al is sometimes taken for with, as Exod. 35. 23. Levit. 2. 2. and 14. 31. Deut. 22. 6. So the Senſe is, ſtand not lingring in hopes to ſave thy goods, them thou ſhalt loſe as a punishment of thy Sin and Folly in chuſing to dwell with ſo wicked a People, and be thankful that thou haſt thy life given thee for a prey, as it is expreſſed, Jer. 38. 2. y Like one that grieves either for the loſs of thy pleaſant Habitation, or vaſt Eſtate, or for thoſe curſed Miſcreants juſtly devoted to this Deſtruction. And this command tho given to Lot alone, yet was directed alſo to his Companions, to whom doubtleſs he imparted it, as is evident both from all the other commands, which equally concern all, and from the following event. See Matth. 24. 18. Luke 9. 62.

18 And Lot ſaid unto them *, Oh, not ſo, my LORD.

* i. e. Unto one of them, as is manifeſt from the following words.

19 Behold, now, thy ſervant hath found grace in thy ſight, and thou haſt magnified thy mercy, which thou haſt ſhewed unto me in ſaving my life: and I cannot eſcape to the mountain z, leſt ſome evil take me, and I die.

z Becauſe of the infirmity of my Age, and the fainting of my Spirits. Thus he ſheweth an unworthy and unreaſonable diſtruſt of God's Power and Goodneſs which he had now experienced and acknowledged.

20 Behold, now, this city is near to flee unto, and it is a little one a: O let me eſcape thither, (is it not a little one?) and my ſoul ſhall live.

a Therefore as its Inhabitants, ſo its Sins are fewer, and it will not be an eminent Example of thy Vengeance, as the other places will be.

† Heb. thy face. 21 And he ſaid unto him, See, I have accepted † thee b concerning this thing alſo, that I will not overthrow this city, for the which thou haſt ſpoken.

b Heb. I have lift up thy countenance, i. e. granted thy requeſt. The manner of the Expreſſion poſſibly may be taken from the cuſtom of the Eaſtern parts; where Petitioners uſed not to fall upon their Knees as we do, but to proſtrate themſelves with their face to the Ground; and the Perſon to whom they addreſſed themſelves, in token of his favourable acceptance of their Petitions, commanded them to be lifted up.

22 Haſte thee, eſcape thither; for I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither c: therefore the name of the city was called Zoar.

c Becauſe of God's Decree and Promiſe to ſave thee from the general Deſtruction.

† Heb. gone forth. 23 ¶ The ſun was † riſen upon the earth d when Lot entered into Zoar.

d This Phraſe may note, either the time of the day when this was done; or rather the nature and quality of the day, that the Sun appeared and ſhone forth that Morning in great Luſtre and Glory: Which is well noted as a very conſiderable circumſtance of the Hiſtory, and a great aggravation of the Ruin, which came when they leaſt expected it.

* Deut 29. 23. Iſa. 13. 19. Jer. 50. 40. Ez. 16. 49. Hoſ. 11. 8. Amos 4. 11. Luke 17. 29. 2 Pet. 2. 6. Jude 7.

24 Then * the * LORD rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah e brimſtone and fire f from the LORD g out of heaven.

e And the neighbouring Cities, Admah and Zeboim, as appears from Deut. 29. 23. Jer. 49. 18. Hoſ. 11. 8. f Brimſtone is added to the Fire, either to convey and carry down the Fire which in it ſelf is light and apt to aſcend; or to increaſe it, Iſaiah 30. 33. or to repreſent the noyſomneſs of their Luſts. g (i. e.) From himſelf: The Noun put for the Pronoun, as Gen. 1. 27. 2 Coron. 7. 2. * See Jud. 5. 20. 2 Chron. 7. 1. Ezek. 11. 24. But here it is emphatically ſo expreſſed, Either 1. To ſignify that it proceeded not from Natural Cauſes, but from the immediate Hand of God. Or, 2. To note the Plurality of Perſons in the Godhead, God the Son, who now appeared upon the Earth, rained from God his Father in Heaven, both concurring in this Act, as indeed all outward Actions are common to all the Perſons of the Trinity.

25 And he overthrew thoſe cities, and all the plain h, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground.

h To wit, where theſe Cities and their Territories lay, called the Plain of Jordan, Gen. 13. 10. all which then became, and to this day continues to be a filthy Lake, called the Dead-Sea, becauſe no Fiſh lives in it.

26 ¶ But his wife looked back i from behind him k, and ſhe † became a * pillar of ſalt l. * Luke 17. 32.

i Through curioſity, or unbelief, or deſire of what ſhe left, or from all theſe Cauſes. k (i. e.) From behind her Husband, whom ſhe followed. Which circumſtance ſeems to be mentioned as the reaſon of this Preſumption, becauſe ſhe could do it without her Husband's Obſervation or Reproof, to which ſhe had a greater regard than to the all-ſeeing Eye of God. † i. e. Her Body, by a very common Synecdoche. l Either metaphorically, i. e. a perpetual durable Pillar, as an everlaſting Covenant is called a Covenant of Salt, Numb. 18. 19. or properly, for there is a kind of Metalick Salt, which reſiſts the Rain, and is hard enough for Buildings, as Pliny, Solinus, and others witneſs. And that Salt was here mixed with Brimſtone, may be gathered from Deut. 29. 23. Add to this, that Joſephus Antiq. 1. 12. affirms that this Pillar remained in his time. And the like is witneſſed by others after him.

27 ¶ And Abraham gat up early in the morning, to the place where he * ſtood before the LORD. * Chap. 18. 22.

28 And he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and beheld, and lo, the ſmoak of the country went up as the ſmoak of a furnace.

29 ¶ And it came to paſs when God deſtroyed the cities of the plain, that God remembred Abraham m, and ſent Lot out of the midſt of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in the which Lot dwelt.

m Either 1. The promiſe made to Abraham, Gen. 12. 3. Or, 2. The Prayer made by Abraham, Gen. 18. who doubtleſs in his Prayers for Sodom would not forget Lot, though his Prayer for him be not there mentioned. And hereby it is inſinuated, that Lot though he was a righteous Man, and ſhould be ſaved eternally, yet deſerved to periſh temporally with thoſe wicked People, to whom he aſſociated himſelf meerly for worldly advantages, and ſhould have done ſo, if Abraham had not hindred it by his Prayers.

30 ¶ And Lot went up out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountain, and his two daughters with him; for he feared to dwell in Zoar n: and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters.

n Leſt he ſhould either ſuffer from them, or with them; perceiving now that though it was a little City, yet there was more wickedneſs in it than he imagined.

31 ¶ And the firſt-born ſaid unto the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth o to come in unto us after the manner of all the earth p.

o Either 1. In the whole Earth: For they thought the ſame deluge of Fire which deſtroyed the four Cities had by this time extended it ſelf to Zoar, and all other places, knowing that the whole World did lie in Wickedneſs, and having poſſibly heard from their Father, that the World as it was once deſtroyed by Water, ſo it ſhould afterwards be conſumed by Fire, with they might think was now executed, and that God had ſecured Abraham from it by taking him to himſelf. Or, 2. In that Land, as the word may be rendred. And her meaning might not be this, that there was no Man at all, but not a Man with whom they might or durſt Marry: For though they knew they left many Men in Zoar, yet the ſad experience of the dreadful Ruin wherein their Brethren-in-law were involved, made them abhor the thoughts of any Conjunction with them. p (i. e.) Of all the Inhabitants of the Earth. Compare Gen. 18. 11.

32 Come, let us make our father drink wine q, and we will lie with him, that we may preſerve ſeed of our father r.

q Which they carried with them amongſt other neceſſary Proviſions either from Sodom or Zoar. r Which though an inceſtuous and abominable Action, yet they thought was made lawful by the ſuppoſed neceſſity, as in the beginning of the World the Marriage of Brethren and Siſters was lawful, becauſe neceſſary; and when it ceaſed to be neceſſary, becauſe of the increaſe of Minkind, it became inceſtuous.

33 And they made their father drink wine s that night: and the firſt-born went in, and lay with her father, and he perceived not when ſhe lay down, nor when ſhe aroſe t.

s To wit, in Exceſs, ſo as to deprive him of the uſe of his Reaſon and Grace, which was likely to fruſtrate their Project: This was a great Sin, not only in them, but alſo in Lot himſelf, not to be excuſed by ignorance of the virtue of Wine, which being known to both the Daughters, certainly their Father could not be ignorant of it. Thus he who kept his Integrity in the midſt of all the Temptations of Sodom, falls into a grievous Sin in a place where he might ſeem moſt remote from all Temptations: God permitting this, to teach all following Ages, how weak even the beſt Men are, when they are left to themſelves, and what abſolute need they have have of Divine Aſſiſtance. t Wherein there is nothing ſtrange, it being uſual with drunken men to do many things in that condition, which when they come to themſelves, they perfectly forget. And ſo might Lot, when under the power of Wine, forget that his Wife was turned into a pillar of Salt, and might miſtake his Daughter for his Wife.

34 And it came to paſs on the morrow, that the firſt-born ſaid unto the younger, Behold, I lay yeſternight with my father: let us make him drink wine this night alſo; and go thou in, and lie with him, that we may preſerve ſeed of our father.

35 And they made their father drink wine that night alſo; and the younger aroſe, and lay with him; and he perceived not when ſhe lay down, nor when ſhe aroſe.

36 Thus were both the daughters of Lot with child † by their father.

† Which they might poſſibly imagine to be an evidence of Divine Approbation of their Fact; whereas, indeed, it was a deſign of God to make a laſting Monument of their Sin and Shame.

37 And the firſt-born bare a ſon, and called his name Moab u: the ſame is the father of the Moabites x unto this day.

u (i. e.) Of my Father, begotten upon me by my Father. So ſhe had learned from her Neighbours to declare her ſin as Sodom, Iſa. 3. 9. x A miſchievous and infamous People, branded, as their Brethren alſo the Ammonites were, with Characters of God's Diſpleaſure.

38 And the younger, ſhe alſo bare a ſon, and called his name Ben-ammi y: the ſame is the father of the children of Ammon unto this day.

y (i. e.) The Son of my People, or Kindred, not of the curſed Race of the Sodomites, where I was to be married. This is ſomething more modeſt than the other in the name ſhe gives, but both impudently glorying in their Sin and Shame, of which they ſhould have bitterly repented.

CHAP. XX.

Abraham ſojourns in Gerar, 1. Denies Sarah to be his wife: Abimelech ſends and takes her, 2. God warns Abimelech in a dream, 3. He expoſtulates with God; who anſwers and commands him to reſtore Sarah, 4—7. Abimelech warns his ſervants, 8. Rebukes Abraham, 9. Who excuſes and defends what he had ſaid, 11——13. Abimelech kind to Abraham; reſtores his wife, 14, 15. Rebukes Sarah, 16. Abraham prays for Abimelech; God renewes his judgments, 17, 18.

AND Abraham journeyed from thence a towards the ſouth country b, and dwelt between Cadeſh and Shur, and ſojourned in Gerar.

a From the plain of Mamre, chap. 18. 1. where he had long dwelt; and whence he removed, either becauſe of its nearneſs to that filthy Lake, which now was in the place of that late fruitful plain; or for other reaſons and conveniences needleſs to be here enquired or determined. b Yet more towards the Southern part of Canaan.

*Chap. 12. 13. 2 And Abraham ſaid of Sarah his wife, * She is my ſiſter c: and Abimelech king of Gerar ſent, and took Sarah d.

c Leſt they ſhould ſlay him for his beautiful Wifes ſake, as himſelf tells us, verſe 11. For though Sarah was ninety years old, yet ſhe retained her Beauty in good meaſure, partly becauſe ſhe had not been broken by bearing and nurſing of Children, partly becauſe in that age of the World Men and Women as they lived longer, ſo they did not ſo ſoon begin to decay, as now they do; and partly, becauſe of God's eſpecial bleſſing upon her. d Not without violence, for it is not to be thought that either Abraham or Sarah would conſent to it.

*Pſal. 105. 14. 3 But God * came to Abimelech in a dream e by night, and ſaid to him, Behold, thou art but a dead man *, for the woman which thou haſt taken f: for † Heb. married to an Husband. ſhe is † a mans wife.

e God then uſed to manifeſt his Mind in Dreams, not only to his People, but even to Heathens for their ſakes, or in things wherein they were concerned. * Thou deſerveſt a preſent and untimely Death; and if thou proceedeſt in thy intended Wickedneſs, it ſhall be inflicted upon thee. f Both for thy injuſtice in taking her away by force, and for thy intentions to abuſe her, though not yet executed.

4 But Abimelech had not come near her g: and he ſaid, LORD, wilt thou ſlay alſo a righteous h nation i?

g (i. e.) Had not yet lien with her. A modeſt Expreſſion, like that of knowing a woman, Gen. 4. 1. or going in to her, Gen. 6. 4. or touching her, Prov. 6. 29. 1 Cor. 7. 1. by which we are taught to uſe Modeſty in our Speeches, and not, with the rude Cynicks, to expreſs all things by their proper names. This Clauſe and Hiſtory was neceſſary to be added here for Sarah's vindication, and eſpecially for the demonſtration of Iſaac's original from Abraham and Sarah, according to God's promiſe. h (i. e.) Innocent as to this matter. Compare 2 Sam. 4. 11. i For he knew it was juſt and uſual for God to puniſh a Nation for their King's Sins; and therefore, as became a good Prince, he is ſolicitous, and prays for the ſafety of his Nation: Or elſe by Nation he may mean his Family; for ſome of them were not involved in the guilt of this Fact.

5 Said he not unto me, She is my ſiſter? and ſhe, even ſhe her ſelf ſaid, He is my brother: in the † integrity of my heart, and innocency of my hands k have I done this. † Or, ſimplicity, or ſincerity. 2 Sam. 15. 11.

k Without any adulterous deſign in my Heart, or outward actions tending to it, being wholly ignorant of what thou now informeſt me.

6 And God ſaid unto him in a dream, Yea I know that thou didſt this in the integrity of thy heart l; for I alſo withheld thee m from ſinning n againſt me o: therefore ſuffered I thee not to touch her. *Chap. 39. 9. Levit. 6. 2. Pſal. 51. 4.

l (i. e.) That thou didſt not this knowingly and maliciouſly, but imprudently and inconſiderately, which is indeed an extenuation of thy Sin, though not a total excuſe. Compare 1 Kings 9. 4. 1 Chron. 29. 1. m Partly by my reſtraining Grace, and partly by my powerful Providence, and the Plague mentioned, verſe 17. n Which plainly ſhews that ignorance is not always an excuſe for Sin. See Luke 12. 48. o This Sin, though directly committed againſt Abraham and Sarah only, is ſaid to be againſt God, as other ſuch Sins are, Gen. 39. 9. Pſal. 51. 4. becauſe it was againſt God's command written in Men's Minds, though not yet publiſhed by expreſs Word or Writing; and againſt God's Honour; and that here in a particular manner, becauſe it would have rendred Iſaac's Original, and thereby God's Promiſe, doubtful.

7 Now therefore reſtore the man his wife; for he is a prophet p, and he ſhall pray for thee *, and thou ſhalt live: and if thou reſtore her not, know thou that thou ſhalt ſurely die, thou, and all that are thine q.

p A perſon very dear to me, and familiarly acquainted with me; and therefore the injuries done to him, I take as done to my ſelf. See Pſal. 105. 15. * Which is one part of a Prophet's Work, Jer. 14. 11. and 15. 1. q Which was not unjuſt, becauſe they all had Sins of their own, for which they deſerved Death whenſoever God thought fit to inflict it; and God might take this occaſion to do it, that in puniſhing them he might alſo puniſh the King, whoſe Subjects they were.

8 Therefore Abimelech roſe early in the morning, and called all his ſervants r, and told all theſe things in their ears: and the men were ſore afraid.

r His Counſellors and principal Officers, as that word is uſed; 1 Kings 1. 2. and 10. 13.

9 Then Abimelech called Abraham, and ſaid unto him, What haſt thou done unto us s? and what have I offended thee, that * thou haſt brought on me and on my kingdom a great ſin t? thou haſt done deeds unto me that ought not to be done. * Chap. 26. 10.

s How great a danger haſt thou expoſed us to? t Even the Heathens, who thought Fornication harmleſs, judge Adultery to be a very great and heinous Crime. See Gen. 38. 24. Levit. 20. 10. Deut. 22. 22. Ezek. 16. 38. and 23. 45, 47. Or, A great punishment, as this word is oft uſed; which ſeems better to anſwer to his offending Abraham now mentioned.

10 And Abimelech ſaid unto Abraham, What ſaweſt thou, that thou haſt done this thing *? * What levity or miſcarriage didſt thou diſcern in us which moved thee to deal thus with us?

11 And Abraham ſaid, Becauſe I thought, Surely the fear of God is not in this place; and they will ſlay me for my wifes ſake.

u (i. e.) True Piety, or the Knowledge of the true God, which is the only effectual reſtraint from the groſſeſt wickedneſs.

12 And yet indeed ſhe is my ſiſter x; ſhe is the daughter y of my father, but not the daughter of my mother z: and ſhe became my wife a.

x My near Kinſwoman; even as Lot upon the ſame account is called Abraham's Brother, Gen. 13. 8. y (i. e.) The Granddaughter: For Grandchildren are commonly called the Sons and Daughters of their Grand-parents, as Gen. 31. 28. Exod. 2. 18. And beſides, her Father Haran dying before her Grandfather, ſhe was leſt more immediately under his Care and Education, and therefore was more peculiarly reputed Terah's Daughter, and Abraham's Siſter. See Gen. 11. 29. z Becauſe Haran was Abraham's Brother only by the Father's ſide; for Terah had Haran by another Wife. a How could Abraham marry one ſo near of kin to him? Anſw. There were larger allowances for Marriages in thoſe times, as it was convenient there ſhould be; neither had God as yet given thoſe prohibitions, Levit. 18. Beſides, among all Nations, the Mother's ſide was more regarded than the Father's in all prohibitions of Marriage.

13 And it came to paſs, when God cauſed me to wander b from my fathers houſe, that I ſaid unto her, This is thy kindneſs which thou ſhalt ſhew unto me; At every place whither we ſhall come, * ſay of me, He is my brother. * Chap. 12. 13.

b This word he uſeth, becauſe God did not direct him to any certain place, but ſent him out he knew not whither, Heb. 11. 8. And being to travel and ſojourn amongſt perſons of divers tempers and manners, and all Pagans, he thought this equivocal expreſſion convenient for his ſecurity.

14 And Abimelech took ſheep and oxen, and menſervants, and women-ſervants, and gave them unto Abraham, and reſtored him Sarah his wife.

15 And

15 And Abimelech said, Behold, my land is before † Heb. as is good in thine eyes. thee c, dwell † where it pleaseth thee.

c (i.e.) Free for thy view and choice, as Gen. 13. 9.

16 And unto Sarah he said, Behold, I have given thy brother d a thousand pieces of silver e: behold, he is to thee a covering of the eyes f, unto all that are with thee g, and with all other h: thus she was reproved i.

d A sharp rebuke and irony, q. d. He whom thou didst miscal thy Brother. e To wit, Shekels, which is commonly understood when a sum of Silver or Gold is indefinitely mentioned, as Numb. 7. 13, 85. 2 Sam. 18. 12. 2 Kings 6. 25. f (i.e.) A Protection to thee from the wanton eyes and attempts of others, whilst they know thee to be the Wife of another Man, and he such an one whom they reverence and fear; and therefore thou didst take a very wrong course to disown him, whereby thou didst expose thy self to great danger. Or, This is to thee, &c. i.e. This I give to thee to buy thee a Veil wherewith thou mayst cover thy Face, as it is fit and usual for married persons to do. Compare Gen. 24. 65. 1 Cor. 11. 3, 6, 7, 10. g Unto all that here live with thee, or near thee. i And with all Men whomsoever; or admonished: For they may be the words of Abimelech.

17 ¶ So Abraham prayed unto God: and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maid-servants; and they bare children.

18 For the LORD had fast closed up all the wombs k of the house of Abimelech, because of Sarah Abrahams wife.

k This phrase elsewhere notes Barrenness, as 1 Sam. 1. 5, 6. and so many understand it here. Against which some learned men object that that could not so soon be discovered, for all this happened between the Conception and Birth of Isaac. Which objection may seem not valid, because the evidences of Womens being with Child go so long before the Birth of the Child, and those evidences not appearing in any of their Women, who before that time were generally Fruitful and Child-bearing, they might discern God's hand in it, especially upon God's admonition to their King. But because this History seems to have been done in a far less space of time, it not being probable either that God would suffer Sarah to be long with Abimelech ere he warned him, or that he being warned, and so severely threatned, and actually punished, would delay the execution of God's command, or that upon his Obedience to God, the mercy and deliverance promised would be delayed by God; that seems more probable which others think, that this was an indisposition, or plague, or sore in the secret Parts, by which they were hindred from Co-habitation, and mutual Converse, and consequently from hopes of Conception and Child-bearing; upon the removal whereof, it is said, that they bare Children, where, as oft-times in Scripture, the last and consummating Act is put for all the preceding Acts, q. d. and they were restored to the Conjugal use, and Conception, and, in due time, to Child bearing.

CHAP. XXI.

God visits Sarah; she conceives and bears a son, 1, 2. He is named Isaac, 3. Circumcised the eighth day, 4. Sarah's joy and thanks, 6, 7. Abraham makes a feast at the weaning of Isaac, 8. Ishmael mocks; Sarah sees it, 9. She complains to Abraham, and desires to have him cast out, 10. Abraham is grieved, 11. God commands it; the reason, 12. Promises a blessing to Ishmael for his sake, 13. Abrahams sends Hagar and her son away; they wander in the wilderness, are like to perish for want of water, 14——16. God calls to her, 17. Repeats his promise to Ishmael, 18. Opens her eyes; she sees a well, 19. They dwell there, and Ishmael is an archer, 20. Marries an Egyptian, 21. Abimelech convinced that God was with Abraham, desires a covenant, 22, 23. Abraham consents, 24. Abimelech's servants having taken a well from him, Abraham reproves him for it, 25. He pleads ignorance, 26. Both of them make a covenant, 27——32. Abraham plants a grove, and calls on the Lord the everlasting God, 33, 34.

*Chap. 17. 19. and 18. 10.

AND the LORD visited Sarah a, as he had said, and the LORD did unto Sarah * as he had spoken.

a (i.e.) Performed his gracious Promise of giving her Strength to conceive and bear a Child. God's Visitation of a person in Scripture use, is the manifestation and execution of his Purpose or Word towards that Person, and that either for evil, and so it is an inflicting of evils threatned, as the word visiting is used, Exod. 20. 5. Psal. 59. 5. or for good, and so it is used for the actual giving of Mercies promised, as here and Gen. 50. 24. Exod. 4. 31. Ruth 1. 6.

*Acts 7. 8. Gal. 4. 22. Heb. 11. 11.

2 For Sarah * conceived and bare Abraham a son in his old age b; at the set time of which God had spoken to him.

b Or, For his old age, i.e. for the comfort of his old age.

3 And Abraham called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him,

*Chap. 17. * Isaac.

4 And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac, being

*Chap. 17. eight days old, * as God had commanded him.

*Chap. 17. 5 And * Abraham was an hundred years old, when 17. his son Isaac was born unto him.

6 ¶ And Sarah said, God hath made me to laugh c, so that all that hear will laugh with me d.

c (i.e.) Before my own distrustful Heart made me to laugh, now God makes me laugh, not through diffidence and irreverence, as before, chap. 18. 12. but through excess of holy joy. d Or, At me, some through Sympathy rejoycing with me and for me; laughter being oft put for joy, as Isa. 54. 1. Gal. 4. 27, &c. others through scorn and derision, as at a thing which well may seem incredible to them, because it did so to me. See Gen. 17. 17. and 18. 12, 13, 15.

7 And she said, Who would have said e unto Abraham, that Sarah should have given children f such g? for I have born him a son in his old age.

e (i.e.) What Man or Woman could believe so improbable a thing? Or, who but a God could have foreseen and foretold it? f She saith Children, though she had but one Child, either by an usual Enallage of the Plural Number for the Singular, whereby the word Sons or Daughters is used when there was but one, as Gen. 36. 25. and 46. 23. Numb. 26. 8. or presaging, that having received from God a new Strength, she might have more Children. g By which expression she sheweth all Mothers what their duty is, viz. to give their Children suck, when they are able to do it; and that neither greatness of quality, nor multitude of business, nor other difficulties and inconveniences, will be a sufficient excuse to those that neglect it.

8 And the child grew and was weaned h: and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

h It doth not appear how old Isaac was, because the time for the weaning of Children is very various, according to the differing tempers and necessities of Children, or inclination of Parents; and in those times when Mens lives were longer than now they are, proportionably the time was longer ere Children were weaned.

9 ¶ And Sarah saw the son of Hagar the Egyptian, which she had born unto Abraham, mocking i:

i Signifying either by words or gestures his contempt of Isaac, and his derision of all that magnificence then shewed towards his younger Brother: And this carriage proceeding from a most envious and malicious disposition, and being a sufficient indication of further mischief intended to him, if ever he should have opportunity, it is no wonder it is called persecution, Gal. 4. 29. although the Hebrew word may be rendred beating him, as it is used 2 Sam. 2. 14.

10 Wherefore she said unto Abraham k, * Cast *Gal. 4. 30 out this bond-woman l, and her son: for the son of this bond-woman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.

k Being enraged by this fact, and perceiving it was but a beginning and earnest of greater evil designed by him against her beloved Isaac; being also guided by the wise Counsel and Providence of God, as appears from verse 12. l Though the fact was done by Ishmael, yet Sarah plainly saw that this and other like carriages were from his Mother's instigation and encouragement, who being of an imperious and petulant disposition, as appears from Gen. 16. 4, 9. in all probability comforted her self, and animared her Son, by that right he had to his Father's inheritance as he was his first born, as may be gathered both from the custom of Women in such cases, and from the last words of this verse. Besides, if the Mother had been continued, she would easily have prevailed with Abraham to fetch the Child back again.

11 And the thing was very grievous in Abrahams sight m, because of his son n.

m Because of his tender affection to him, and God's promise concerning him. See Gen. 17. 18, 20. He, who cheerfully parted with Isaac, was hardly brought to part with Ishmael, because the former was done by God's command, which he was obliged to obey; the latter by the passion of an enraged Woman, wherewith he thought not fit to comply; and probably he had denied her desire, if God had not interposed in it. n He doth not say because of his wife; from whence may be gathered, either that Hagar was not properly his Wife, or that this was another of Abraham's infirmities, that he had not that affection for her which he should have had. Whereby we may also see the excellency of God's institutions, who appointed but one Woman for one Man, that each might have the intire interest in the others affections; and the danger of Mens inventions, which brought Polygamy into the World, whereby a Man's affections are divided into several, and sometimes contrary streams.

12 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight, because of the lad, and because of thy bond-woman o; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice: for in * Isaac shall * Rom. 9. thy seed p be called q. 7. Heb. 11. 18.

o Thus Abraham had better Authority for his Divorce from Hagar than he had for his Marriage with her, chap. 16. 2. p To wit, the Promised Seed, the Heir of thy Estate, Covenant and Promises, the Progenitor of my Church and People, and particularly of the Messias. q (i.e.) Reputed and valued both by me and other men. The words may be thus rendred, by Isaac shall thy seed be; for to be called is oft-times put for to be, as Isa. 1. 26. and 47. 1, 5. Matth. 5. 9, 19.

13 And also of the son of the bond-woman, will I make a * nation, because he is thy seed. *Chap. 17. 20.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning r, and took bread s, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar (putting it on her shoulder) and the child, and sent her away t: and she departed, and wandred in the wilderness of Beer-sheba u.

r He who before doubted and lingred to do it when Sarah's Passion suggested it, when once he understands it to be God's Will, he makes haste to execute it. An excellent Example of Prudence and Piety. s By which may be here understood all necessaries, as Mat. 1. 7, 12. Mark. 6. 11. and 14. 15. compared with Mark 6. 36. Luke 14. 1. t Quæst. How is it likely that so rich and liberal a Person, as Abraham, would send away such near and dear Relations without Commodations? Answ. 1. This might be done by particular Command from God to Abraham, though it be not here expressed, as many things were said by God, and done by Men, which are not mentioned in Scripture, as is evident from John 20. 30, 31. and 21. 25. and many other places. And God might order it thus, partly to chastise Abraham's irregular Marriage with Hagar; partly to correct and tame the haughty and rugged Temper of the Bond-woman and her Son; and to prepare them for the receiving of God's Help and Mercy; and partly, that he might more eminently shew his care and kindness to Abraham, in providing for such forlorn and neglected Creatures, because they belonged to him. 2. It cannot be reasonably doubted, that Abraham gave her these Provisions only for the present, and intended to send further and better afterward to a place appointed by him, which also he did. But she missed her way, as well she might, in the Wilderness, and thereby came into these Straits designed by God for the signification of greater Mysteries, as may be gathered from Gal. 4. u A place near Gerar, so called here by a Prolepsis. See ver. 31.

15 And the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child x under one of the shrubs.

x Not as if she carried him in her Arms, or upon her Shoulders, for he was now about eighteen years old; but being weak and faint, and no doubt much dejected in Spirit upon the prospect of his desolate and distressed Condition, she was forced to support and lead him by the Hand; but now, despairing of his Life, she lays him down under a Shrub.

16 And she went, and sat her down over-against him, a good way off, as it were a bow-shot: for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over against him, and lift up her voice and wept y.

y Who wept? Either Hagar, for the Verb is of the Femine Gender; or the Lad, as the words following seem to intimate. And for the change of the Genders, that is not infrequent in Scripture-use.

17 And God heard the voice of the lad z: and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is a.

z He heard his cries, tho not flowing from true Repentance, but extorted from him by his pressing Calamity. a Tho he be in a vast and desolate Wilderness, yet my Eye is upon him, and I will take care of him.

18 Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand b: for I will make him a great nation.

b (i.e.) Support or sustain thy languishing Child with thy hand; for I will bless him, and thy care shall not be in vain

19 And God opened her eyes c, and she saw a well of water: and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink.

c Not that her Eyes were shut or blind before, but she saw not the Well before; either because it was at some distance, or because her Eyes were full of Tears, and her Mind distracted and heedless through excessive Grief and Fear; or because God with-held her Eyes that she might not see it without his information. Compare Numb. 23. 31. Luke 24. 16.

20 And God was with the lad, and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an Archer d.

d (i.e.) A skilful Hunter of Beasts, and Warrior with Men too, according to the Prediction, Gen. 16. 12. For the Bow was a principal Instrument in War, as well as in Hunting, Gen. 48. 22. and 49. 23, 24. And these two Professions oft went together. See Gen. 10. 9.

21 And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran e: and his mother took him a wife f out of the land of Egypt g.

e In the Borders of that Wilderness, by comparing Gen. 14. 6. for the innermost parts of it were uninhabitable by Men or Beasts, as Ancient Writers note. f By which we see both the Obligation that lies upon Parents, and the right that is invested in them, to dispose of their Children in Marriage in convenient time. Compare Gen. 24. 4. and 28. 2. Judges 14. 2. g Rather than out of Canaan, concerning whose accursed State and future Destruction she had been informed in Abraham's House.

22 And it came to pass at that time, that Abimelech h and Phicol the chief captain of his host spake unto Abraham, saying, God is with thee in all that thou doest i.

h He of whom, see Gen. 20. 2. i We plainly see that God blesseth and prospereth thee in all thy undertakings.

23 Now therefore swear unto me here by God, † Heb. if thou shalt lie unto me. † that thou wilt not deal falsly with me k, nor with my son, nor with my sons son: but according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou shalt do unto me, and to the land wherein thou hast sojourned.

k That thou wilt not do me any hurt or injury: Heb. That thou wilt not lye unto me, i.e. As thou hast formerly professed Kindness and Friendship to me, give me thy Oath to assure me that thou wilt be true and constant to thy own Professions.

24 And Abraham said, I will swear l.

l Quæst. How could Abraham lawfully swear this, when Canaan was given by God to him and his Seed for ever? Ans. Neither Abraham nor his Seed had any present and actual right to the Possession of the Land, but only the promise of a right in it, and Possession of it after some hundreds of years, and therefore he gave away none of his right by this Oath. For this Oath did only oblige Abraham, and not his Posterity; and Abimelech extended that Obligation no further than to his Son's Son.

25 And Abraham reproved Abimelech m, because of a well of water n which Abimelech's servants had violently taken away.

m That the foundation of true Friendship might be firmly laid, and the Peace inviolably observed, he removes an impediment to it, an occasion of Quarrel and just Exception on Abraham's part.

n Which in those hot and dry Countries was of great esteem and necessity. Compare Gen. 26. 19, 20, 21. Judges 1. 15. Besides a Well may be put for Wells, as the Greeks render it, and as may seem probable by comparing this with Gen. 26. 15, 18. It being an ordinary thing to use the Singular Number for the Plural, as hath been shewed. See Gen. 3. 2. and 4. 20 26 And Abimelech said, I wot not who hath done this thing: neither didst thou tell me, neither yet heard I of it, but to day o.

o By which he wisely and truly suggests, that Abraham should not have smothered the Grudge in his mind so long time, but should instantly have reproved him for it, and endeavoured a speedy redress, which hereby he intimates that he was ready to give.

27 And Abraham took sheep, and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech p: and both of them made a covenant.

p Partly as an acknowledgment to him for his former Favour and Friendship; partly as an assurance of his sincere Friendship, both present and for the future, of his acquiescence in his answer about the Well; and partly for Sacrifice, and for the usual Rite in making Covenants, which was, that the Persons covenanting might pass through the parts of the slain Beasts. See Gen. 15. 18.

28 And Abraham set seven ew-lambs of the flock by themselves.

29 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, What mean these seven ew-lambs, which thou hast set by themselves?

30 And he said, For these seven ew-lambs shalt thou take of my hand, that they may be a witness unto me, that I have digged this well q.

q That this care of Abraham's was not superfluous may appear from Gen. 26. 15.

31 Wherefore he called that place † Beer-sheba r, be- † That is, the well of the Oath. cause there they sware both of them.

r Which name was communicated unto a City adjoyning: Of which see Gen. 26. 23. Jos. 15. 28. 2 Sam. 17. 11. and 24. 2.

32 Thus they made a covenant at Beer-sheba: then Abimelech rose up, and Phicol the chief captain of his host, and they returned into the land of the Philistines s.

s (i.e.) Into their part of that Land, to wit, Gerar, which was not far from this place. It is an usual Synecdoche, whereby the whole Land is put for a part of it: Otherwise they were at this time in that Land.

33 And Abraham planted a † grove t in Beer-sheba, † Or, Tree. and called there on the Name of the LORD u, the everlasting God.

t Not so much for shade, which yet was pleasant and necessary in these hot Regions, as for Religious Use, that he might retire thither from the noise of worldly Business, and freely converse with his Maker. Which practice of his was afterwards abused to Superstition and Idolatry, for which reason Groves were commanded to be cut down. See Deut. 12. 2. and 16. 21. u Thankfully acknowledging God's great Goodness in giving him the Favour and Friendship of so great and worthy a Prince and Neighbour.

34 And Abraham sojourned in the Philistines land many days.

CHAP. XXII.

God tempts Abraham, 1. to sacrifice Isaac, 2. He readily goes about it, 3——6. Isaac's question, 7. Abraham's answer, 8. They come to the place; he binds Isaac; lays him on the altar; takes the knife, 9, 10. The Lord sees his integrity, and forbids him, 11, 12. A ram caught, and offered in the stead of Isaac, 13. The name of the place, Jehova Jireh, 14. The Lord calls a second time, 15. Swears by himself; confirms his promise to Abraham and his seed, 16——18. Abraham returns to Beer-sheba, 19. The Posterity of his Brother Nahor, 20——24.

AND it came to pass after these things a, that * God did tempt b Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham. And he said, † Behold, here I am c.

a After the accomplishment of God's promises made to Abraham, and especially of that promise concerning the blessed Seed; when now he seemed to be in a most prosperous and secure Condition, he meets with a severe exercise from God. b The word tempt is ambiguous, and signifies either 1. To intice to Sin, in which sense Devils and wicked Men are said to tempt others, but God tempts no man, Jam. 1. 13. Or 2. To prove or try, and in this sense God is said to tempt Men. See Deut. 8. 2. and 13. 3. Judges 2. 22. Thus God tempted Abraham, (i. e.) he tried the sincerity and strength of his Faith, the universality and constancy of his Obedience, and this for God's great Honour, and Abraham's great Glory and Comfort, and for the Churches benefit in all following Ages. c An expression signifying a Man's attentive hearing what is said to him, and his readiness to execute it, as v. 7. 11. and Gen. 27. 1. and 1 Sam. 3. 4, 6.

2 And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou loveſt d, and get thee into the land of Moriah e; and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains f which I will tell thee of g.

d Not a word here but might pierce an heart of ſtone, much more ſo tender a Father as Abraham was. Take now, without demurring or delay; I allow thee no time for conſideration: thy own proper Son, not a Beaſt, not an Enemy, not a Stranger, tho that had been very difficult to one ſo kind to all Strangers; not a dear Servant, not a Friend or Familiar: thine only Son, not by Birth, for ſo he had another, Ishmael; but this was his only Son by Sarah, his firſt and legitimate Wife; who only had the right of Succeſſion both to his Inheritance, and to his Covenant and Promiſes; and this only was now left to him, for Ishmael was abandoned and gone from him: and this muſt be ſuch a Son as Iſaac, once matter of Laughter and great Joy, now cauſe of unexpreſſible Sorrow; thy Benoni; a Son of the Promiſe, of ſo great Hopes, and ſuch pregnant Virtue and Piety as this Story ſhews; whom thou loveſt; peculiarly and ſuperlatively, even as thy own Soul: and get thee into the Land of Moriah; a place at a great diſtance, and to which thou ſhalt go but leiſurely, verſe 4. that thou mayſt have thy mind all that while fixed upon that bloody Act, which other Mens minds can ſcarce once think of without horror; and ſo thou mayſt offer him in a ſort ten thouſand times over before thou giveſt the fatal blow; and offer him there with thine own hands, and cruelly take away the Life which thou haſt in ſome ſort given him: For a burnt-offering, wherein by the Law of the burnt-offering then known to Abraham, afterwards publiſhed to all Iſrael, his Throat was to be cut, his Body diſſected into Quarters, his Bowels taken out, as if he had been ſome notorious Traytor, and vile Malefactor and Miſcreant, and afterwards he was to be burnt to Aſhes, that if poſſible there might be nothing left of him: And this muſt be done upon one of the Mountains, which I ſhall tell thee of, not ſecretly in a Corner, as if it were a work of Darkneſs, and thou wert aſhamed or afraid to own it; but in a publick and open Place, in the view of Heaven, Earth, God, Angels, and Men. Which horrid and ſtupendious Act it may be eaſily conjectured what Reproach and Blaſphemy it would have occaſioned againſt the Name and Worſhip of God and the true Religion, and what Shame and Torment to Abraham, from his own ſelf-accuſing Mind, from the clamours of his Wife, and all his Friends and Allies, and what a dangerous and miſchievous Example this would have been to all future Generations. That Faith that could ſurmount theſe and many more difficulties, and could readily and cheerfully reſt upon God in the diſcharge of ſuch a Duty, no wonder it is ſo honoured by God, and celebrated by all Men, yea, even by the Heathens, who have tranſlated this Hiſtory into their Fables. e Which ſignifies the Vision of God, the Place where God would be ſeen and manifeſted. And ſo it is here called by way of Anticipation, becauſe it was ſo called afterwards, verſe 14. in regard of God's eminent Appearance there for Iſaac's Deliverance; though it may alſo have a further reſpect unto Chriſt, becauſe in that place God was manifeſted in the Fleſh. f For there were divers Mountains there, as is evident from Pſalm 125. 2. and particularly theſe were two eminent Hills, or rather tops or parts of the ſame Mountain, Sion, where David's Palace was; and Moriah, where the Temple was built, and whence the adjoyning Country afterwards received its name. g By ſome viſible Sign, or ſecret Admonition which I ſhall give thee.

3 And Abraham roſe up early in the morning h, and ſadled his aſs i, and took two of his young men with him, and Iſaac his ſon; and clave the wood for the burnt-offering, and roſe up, and went unto the place of which God had told him.

h That he might execute God's Command without doubt or delay. i For greater Expedition, not waiting for his Servant to do it.

4 Then on the third day † Abraham lift up his eyes, and ſaw the place afar off.

† Probably on the beginning of the third day. It is true, Moriah was not three days Journey from Beer-ſheba. But it muſt be conſidered that the Aſs, upon which he rid, is a dull and ſlow Creature, and that Abraham went no faſter than the reſt of his Company, who for ought appears, were on foot; and that the Proviſions which they carried along with them, both for their own and the Aſſes ſubſiſtence, and for ſacrifice, muſt needs retard them.

5 And Abraham ſaid unto his young men, Abide ye here with the aſs k; and I and the lad will go yonder and worſhip, and come again to you l.

k Leſt they ſhould hinder him in the execution of his deſign. l For he knew that God both could and would for his promiſe ſake, either preſerve Iſaac from being ſacrificed, or afterward raiſe him from the Dead, as it is intimated, Heb. 11. 19.

6 And Abraham took the wood of the burnt-offering, and laid it upon Iſaac his ſon m; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife: and they went both of them together.

m Who tho called a Lad, verſe 5. was now a Grown man, at leaſt five and twenty Years old, and therefore well able to bear that burden, and in this Act he was an eminent Type of Chriſt, who carried that Wood upon which he was crucified.

7 And Iſaac ſpake unto Abraham his father, and ſaid, My father n: and he ſaid, † Here am I, my ſon o. And he ſaid, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is † Heb. behold me. the lamb for a burnt-offering?

n A Compellation which might both wound Abraham's Heart, and admoniſh him how unbecoming to a Father that Action was which he was going about. o Which Expreſſion ſhewed that he had not put off Fatherly Affection to him, and that his intention did not ariſe from any unnatural and barbarous Diſpoſition, nor from any decay of Love to him, but from an higher Cauſe, even the declared Will of God.

8 And Abraham ſaid, My ſon, God will provide himſelf a lamb p for a burnt-offering: ſo they went both of them together.

p Either 1. Literally, tho I know not how; for his Wiſdom and Power are infinite: Or 2. Myſtically, as Chriſt, whoſe Type Iſaac was, is called a Lamb. Thus Abraham prudently reveals the matter to him by degrees, not all at once.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of, and Abraham built an altar there q, and laid the wood in order, and bound Iſaac his ſon r, and * James 2. 21. laid him on the altar upon the wood.

q Made of Earth ſlightly put together, as God afterwards preſcribed, Exod. 20. 24. r Partly becauſe burnt-offerings were to be bound to the Altar; of which ſee on Pſalm 118. 27. Partly to repreſent Chriſt, who was bound to the Croſs. And that Iſaac might be the more exact Type of Chriſt, he was bound by his own Conſent, otherwiſe his Age and Strength ſeem ſufficient to have made an effectual Reſiſtance. It is therefore highly reaſonable to think that Abraham having in the whole Journey prepared Iſaac for ſuch a Work by general but pertinent Diſcourſes, did upon the Mount particularly inſtruct him concerning the plain and peremptory Command of God; the abſolute neceſſity of complying with it; the glorious reward of his Obedience, and the diſmal conſequences of his Diſobedience; the Power and Faithfulneſs of God either to prevent the fatal Blow, or to reſtore his Life loſt with infinite advantage. Upon theſe, and ſuch like reaſons, doubtleſs he readily laid himſelf down at his Father's feet, and yielded up himſelf to the Divine Will.

10 And Abraham ſtretched forth his hand, and took the knife to ſlay his ſon.

11 And the angel of the LORD s called unto him out of heaven, and ſaid, Abraham, Abraham t. And he ſaid, Behold, here am I.

s (i. e.) Chriſt the Angel of the Covenant, as appears from v. 12, 16. t He repeats his Name to prevent Abraham, whom he knew to be moſt expeditious in God's ſervice, and juſt ready to give the deadly Blow.

12 And he ſaid, Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for now I know u that thou feareſt God, ſeeing thou haſt not withheld thy ſon, thine only ſon from me x.

u God knew the ſincerity and reſolvedneſs of Abraham's Faith and Obedience before and without this evidence, and from Eternity foreſaw this Fact and all its Circumſtances; and therefore you muſt not think that God had now made any new diſcovery: But this is ſpoken here, as in many other places, of God after the manner of Men, who is then ſaid to know a thing, when it is notorious and evident to a Man's ſelf and others, by ſome remarkable Effect. Thus David prayed that God would ſearch and know his Heart, and his Thoughts, Pſalm 139. 23. Tho he had before profeſſed that God underſtood his thought afar off, verſe 2. This therefore is the ſenſe, Now I know, i. e. Now I have what I deſigned and deſired; now I have made thee and others to know. As the Spirit of God and of Chriſt is ſaid to cry Abba, Father, Gal. 4. 6. when it makes us to cry ſo, Rom. 8. 15. x For my Service and Sacrifice; Or for me, i. e. for my ſake, i. e. thou haſt preferred mine Authority and Honour before the Life of thy dear Son. By which words it appears that God himſelf ſpeaks theſe words.

13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold, behind him † a ram y caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt-offering, in the ſtead of his ſon.

† Which way he looked, either becauſe the Voice came that way; or becauſe he heard the Noiſe made by the motion of the Ram in the Thicket. y Which had gone aſtray from the reſt of the Flock, and whoſe errors were directed hither by God's wiſe and powerful Providence, and being young, tho horned, it might be called either Lamb, as verſe 7. or Ram, as it is here. There needs no curious enquiry how he could offer up that to God which was not his own, both becauſe it was found in a publick Place, and in all probability utterly loſt to his Owner, and becauſe he had no doubt a Warrant and Inſpiration for it from the great Lord and Supreme Owner of all things.

14. And Abraham called the name of that place † † That is, Jehovah-jireh z: as it is ſaid to this day a, In the mount the Lord will ſee or b of the LORD it ſhall be ſeen c. provide.

z The ſame Hebrew Letters differently pointed, make the Senſe either active, the Lord will ſee, i. e. provide or take care of thoſe that commit themſelves and their affairs to him; or paſſive, the Lord will be ſeen, i. e. will appear and ſhew himſelf in the behalf of all thoſe that love him. a Wherein Moſes wrote this Book; this is ſtill uſed as a Proverb. b (i. e.) In greateſt Extremities and Diſtreſſes, as we ſay, at the Pits brink. c Or, the Lord ſhall be ſeen or manifeſted.

manifeſted. And although theſe words are uſed by way of remembrance of this great deliverance, and by way of accommodation to ſuch like eminent preſervations from great dangers; yet they may have a further reſpect, and may ſignifie, That this was but an earneſt of further and greater Bleſſings to be expected in this place, where the Temple was built, and the Lord Chriſt was manifeſted in the Fleſh.

15 ¶ And the angel of the LORD called unto Abraham out of heaven the ſecond time, 16 And ſaid, * By my ſelf have I ſworn d, ſaith the LORD, for becauſe thou haſt done this thing e, and haſt not with-held thy ſon, thine only ſon: Pſal. 105. 9. Luke 1. 73. Heb. 6. 13.

d So the Lord ſwears by his name, Jer. 44. 26. By his ſoul, in the Hebrew Text, Jer. 51. 14. By his holineſs, Amos 4. 2. which is the ſame with by himſelf, here. Hence alſo it appears that the Angel who ſpeaks here is Chriſt and God, becauſe this is God's prerogative to ſwear by himſelf, as appears from Heb. 6. 13. e Not that gative to ſwear by himſelf, as appears from Heb. 6. 13. e Not that Abraham by this act did properly merit, or purchaſe the following promiſes, as plainly appears, becauſe the ſame things for ſubſtance had been freely promiſed to Abraham long before this time and action, Gen. 12. 2. and 13. 16. only what before was promiſed is now confirmed by an Oath, as a Teſtimony of that ſingular reſpect which God had to Abraham, and to this heroical inſtance of Faith and Obedience.

17 That in bleſſing I will bleſs thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy ſeed as the ſtars of the heaven, and as the ſand which is upon the ſea † ſhore; and thy ſeed ſhall poſſeſs the gate f of his enemies; † Heb. lip.

f (i. e.) The City, by an uſual Synecdoche, as Deut. 12. 15 and 18. 6. all the Cities, and conſequently the Country adjacent; gate for gates. The ſenſe is, they ſhall ſubdue their Enemies. For the gates of Cities were the places both of juriſdiction or judicature, Deut. 21. 19. and 22. 15. Amos 5. 12, 15. Zach. 8. 16 and of Fortification and chief Strength in War, Judg. 5. 8. Pſal 147. 13. Iſa. 22. 7. Ezek. 21. 22. And this promiſe was fulfilled both literally in Iſrael's conqueſt of Canaan, in David, Solomon, &c. and ſpiritually in Chriſt, Pſal. 110. 1, 2, 3.

18 And in thy ſeed ſhall all the nations of the earth be bleſſed: becauſe thou haſt obeyed my voice. Chap. 12. 3 and 18 Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8.

19 So Abraham returned unto his young men, and they roſe up, and went together to Beer-ſheba; and Abraham dwelt at Beer-ſheba.

20 ¶ And it came to paſs after theſe things, that it was told Abraham, ſaying, Behold, * Milcah ſhe hath alſo born children unto thy brother Nahor g; Chap. 11. 29.

g This Narration and Genealogy is added for Rebekah's ſake, and to make way for the following Relation.

CHAP. XXIII.

Sarah's age and death; Abraham mourns, 1, 2. He ſpeaks to the ſons of Heth for a burying-place, 3, 4. They offer him the choice of their ſepulchres, 5, 6. Abraham deſires to purchaſe a field of Ephron, 8, 9. Ephron would give it him, 10——15. Abraham purchaſes it, and weighs the ſilver, 16. The field made ſure to Abraham for a poſſeſſion before witneſſes, 17——20.

AND Sarah was an hundred and ſeven and twenty years old, theſe were the years of the life of Sarah a.

a This is the peculiar Honour of Sarah the Mother of the Faithful, 1 Pet. 3. 6. to have the years of her life numbred in Scripture.

2 And Sarah died in Kirjath-arba b; the ſame is Hebron c in the land of Canaan: and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her d.

b Or, The City of Arba, ſo called probably from a Giant or great Man called Arba, who lived and ruled in thoſe parts. See Joſ. 14. 15. and 15. 13. c It is objected againſt this Scripture, that this City was not called Hebron till Joſhua's time, Joſ. 14. 15. but this is a miſtake, Joſhua doth not ſay ſo, but only that the name of Hebron before, (or in old time) as this very Particle is rendred, Deut. 2. 20. and elſewhere. So the ſenſe is, The moſt ancient name of it was Kiriath-Arba, Nor doth Joſhua there give any account, or reaſon of this change of the name at that time, or upon that occaſion, as the ſacred Writers uſe to do in ſuch caſes, but rather ſuppoſeth that Hebron was the name of it before he came thither; and how long before that time, he doth not expreſs. † Into Sarah's Tent. See Gen. 18 6, 9. d According to the laudable Cuſtom of all Ages and Nations, to manifeſt their ſenſe of God's hand upon them, and of their own loſs. See Gen. 50. 3. Deut. 34. 8, &c.

3 ¶ And Abraham ſtood up from before his dead e, and ſpake unto the ſons of Heth, ſaying, e To ſhew his moderation in ſorrow, and to take care for her burial, according to his duty.

4 I am a ſtranger, and a ſojourner with you: give me a poſſeſſion of a burying-place f with you g, that I may bury my dead out of my ſight.

f The privilege of Burial hath been always fought, and prized by all Nations, whom Nature and Humanity teacheth to preſerve the Bodies of Men, which have been the Temples of reaſonable and immortal Souls, from contempt and violation; ſo eſpecially by Chriſtians, as a Teſtimony and Pledge of their future Reſurrection. See Numb. 33. 4. Deut. 21. 23. Joh 5. 26. For which cauſe Abraham deſires a diſtinct burying-place ſeparated from the Pagan People. g In Canaan. There he, and after him other Patriarchs, earneſtly deſired to be buried, upon this account, that it might confirm their own and their Childrens Faith in God's Promiſe, and animate their Children in due time to take poſſeſſion of the Land. See Gen. 25. 9. and 47. 29, 30. and 50. 13, 25. Exod. 13. 19. Heb. 11. 22. h So ſhe that before was the deſire of his eyes, Ezek. 24. 16. is now, being dead, become their torment.

5 And the children of Heth anſwered Abraham, ſaying unto him,

6 Hear us, my LORD i; thou art † a mighty † Heb. a prince of chres k amongſt us; in the choice of our ſepul- k bury thy dead: none of us ſhall with-hold God. from thee his ſepulchre, but that thou mayeſt bury thy dead.

i Here is a Conjunction of the Plural and Singular Number, becauſe though but one perſon ſpake, yet he ſpake in the name of the whole Community. k Heb. A Prince of God. Great and excellent perſons, or things are oft expreſſed by adding the name of God. See Gen. 13. 10. Or, by Prince of God, they underſtand a Prince favoured and beloved of God. l For each Family had a diſtinct Sepulchre.

7 And Abraham ſtood up, and bowed himſelf m to the people of the land n, even to the children of Heth o.

m (i. e.) Shewed a civil reſpect to them in teſtimony of his thankfulneſs. Religion allows and requires civility, and thoſe geſtures which expreſs it. n To the Governours of the People who managed all publick affairs in the Peoples name, and ſtead, and for their good. o So called from Heth the Son of Canaan, Gen. 10. 15.

8 And he, communed with them, ſaying, If it be your mind p that I ſhould bury my dead out of my ſight, hear me, and intreat for me to Ephron the ſon of Zohar:

p Heb. If it be with, i. e. agreeable to, your ſoul, that is, your will, or good pleaſure; for ſo the Soul is ſometimes taken, as Deut. 23. 24. Pſal. 27. 12. and 41. 2.

9 That he may give me the cave of † Machpelah † Or, double which he hath, which is in the end of his field: cave. q, for † as much money as it is worth r he ſhall give † Heb. full it me, for a poſſeſſion of a burying-place amongſt money. you.

q Which ſeems to be the proper name of the place, verſe 17. 19. ſo called from its duplicity, becauſe the Cave was double, either one for Men, and another for Women; or the one ſerved only for an entrance into the other, which was the burying place. r Heb. For full money, 1 Chron. 21. 22, 24. i. e. for Money of full weight, anſwerable to its worth.

10 And Ephron dwelt s amongſt the children of Heth. And Ephron the Hittite anſwered Abraham in the † audience of the children of Heth, † Heb. ears, even of all that went in at the gates of his city t, ſaying, s Heb. Did ſit, to wit, at that time, as one of the Chief, or Rulers of the People; for ſo the word ſitting is oft uſed, as we ſhall ſee hereafter. t Either where he was born, or at leaſt where he lived.

11 Nay, my Lord, hear me: the field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee; in the preſence of the ſons of my people give I it thee: bury thy dead.

12 And Abraham bowed down himſelf before the people of the land.

13 And he ſpake unto Ephron in the audience of the people of the land, ſaying, But if thou will give it u, I pray thee hear me: I will give thee money for the field x; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

u It is a ſhort Speech, and ſomething muſt be ſupplied; either if thou will give or reſign it to me; or, if thou be the Man of whom I ſpeak: For though Abraham knew his name, he might not know him by face, nor that he was then present. x He prudently chose rather to buy it, than to receive it as a gift, partly because it would be the surer to him and his, verse 17, 20. and partly because he would not have too great obligations to his Pagan Neighbours.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My LORD, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred * shekels of silver y; What is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.

*Exod. 30. 15. Ezek. 45. 12.

y He speaks of the common Shekel, which many value at fifteen Pence of English Money; but others, more probably, at two Shillings and six Pence, rightly, as I conceive, supposing that this was of the same weight and value with the Shekel of the Sanctuary, which was so called, not as if that were double to the former, but only because all Shekels were to be examined by that Standard which was kept in the Sanctuary. z Both Friends, and rich Men; it is not worth any words or trouble between us.

16 And Abraham hearkned unto Ephron, and Abraham weighed a to Ephron, the silver which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant b.

a For in those times Silver was paid by weight, Gen. 43. 21. Jer. 32. 10. b (i. e.) Right for quality as well as weight, in the judgment of Merchants, whose frequent dealing in it makes them more able to judge of it.

17 ¶ And * the field of Ephron which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field, and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders round about, were made sure

*Chap. 25. 9. and 50. 13.

18 Unto Abraham for a possession in the presence of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gate of his city.

19 And after this Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre: the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan.

20 And the field and the cave that is therein were made sure unto Abraham for a possession of a burying-place, by the sons of Heth.

Abraham's age and prosperity, 1. He makes his eldest servant swear not to take a wife for his son Isaac of the Canaanites, but of his own kindred, 2——4. The servant enquires into the nature and conditions of the oath, 5. Abraham expresses his faith in the promise, 7. Explains the oath, 8. The servant sweareth, 10. He goes to the city of Nahor, 11. Prays for success, 12. And direction, 13, 14. An immediate and particular answer, 15——20. He wonders at the providence, 21. Makes a present to Rebekah, 22. Enquires of what family she was, 23. Her answer, 24, 25. He blesseth the Lord, 26, 27. Rebekah acquaints her friends with it, 28. They provide for him, &c. and invite him in, 31, 32. He goes in, but refuses to eat till he had told his errand, 33. He acquaints them with his business. And God's providence towards him, 34——49. They consent to his proposal, 50, 51. He praises God, 52. Makes presents to them all, 53. Desires to return to his master, 54——56. Rebekah being content to go with him, they consent and bless her, 57——60. They depart; and meet Isaac meditating in the field, 61——65. Who marries her, 67.

b Viz. Eliezer. Gen. 15. 2. c A ceremony used in Swearing, as now, so anciently in the Eastern parts, as Gen. 47. 29. either as a testimony of Subjection, and promise of faithful Service; for this Rite was used only by Inferiours towards Superiours; or, as some think, with respect to the blessed Seed, Christ, who was to come out of Abraham's Thigh, as the phrase is Gen. 46. 26. because this Rite was used only to Believers.

3 And I will make thee swear by the LORD, the God of heaven and the God of the earth, that * thou shalt not take a wife unto my son d of the daughters of the Canaanites e amongst whom I dwell.

*Chap. 24. 3. and 27. 46. and 28. 2. Exod. 34. 16. Deut. 7. 3.

a (i. e.) Not perfuade nor engage my Son to take; for Isaac, though forty years old, was not only willing to be governed by his Father in this affair, but also to hearken to the counsel of this wise and faithful Servant, of whom both his Father and himself had such long and large experience. e For he knew that they were not only gross Idolaters and heinous Sinners, for so many others were; but that they were a People under God's peculiar Curse, Gen. 9. 25. and devoted to extirpation and utter destruction, which was to be inflicted upon them by Abraham's Posterity: And therefore to marry his Son to such persons had been an high degree of Self-murder, whereby the holy and blessed Seed had been in danger of great infection from them, and utter ruin with them. And Abraham's practise was afterwards justified by God, who hath oft shewed his dislike of such unequal matches of his People with those Infidels and Idolaters, by severe prohibitions and sharp censures. See Exod. 34. 16. Deut. 7. 3. Jos. 23. 12. Esd. 9. 1, 2, 3. Nehem. 13. 23, 25. 2 Cor. 6. 14, 15.

4 But thou shalt go unto my countrey f, and to my kindred g, and take a wife unto my son Isaac.

f (i. e.) Mesopotamia, verse 10. which being largely taken for the Countrey between those two famous Rivers Euphrates and Tigris, from which scituation it hath that name; so Chaldaea, whence Abraham came, Gen. 11. 31. and 12. 1. was a part of it. g The Family of Nahor, concerning the increase whereof he had received information, chap. 22. 20, &c. which he justly preferred before the Canaanites, partly because though they were Idolaters, as appears from Gen. 31. 19, 30, 32, 35. and Jos. 24. 2. yet they did worship the true God together with Idols, as may be gathered from verse 31, 50. of this Chapter, and from other places; and therefore there was more hopes of the Conversion of one of that Family; and partly because they lived at a great distance from the place where Abraham and his Posterity did and should live, and therefore one of that flock would be more easily distinangled from her Superstition and Idolatry, because she was removed from the influences of the evil counsels and examples of her nearest Relations, and partly because they were of the Race of blessed Shem, and not of cursed Canaan.

5 And the servant said unto him, Peradventure the woman will not be willing to follow me unto this land h: must I needs bring thy son again unto the land from whence thou camest?

h Note here the prudence and piety of this good man, who, before he would take an Oath, doth diligently enquire into the nature and conditions of it, and expresly mentioneth that exception, which might seem to be of course supposed in it.

6 And Abraham said unto him, Beware thou, that thou bring not my son thither again i.

i In case the will not come hither, do not thou engage that he shall go thither. Why so? 1. Because there was more danger of infection from his Wife and her Kindred, because of their friendly, and familiar, and constant converse with him, than from the Canaanites, who were strangers to him, and lived separately from him, and had but little converfation with him 2. Because the command of God to Abraham to come out of Chaldaea, and into Canaan, did extend to his Posterity also, whom God would oblige to dwell there as long as they could, that they might live in constant Faith and expectation of the performance of God's promise in giving this Land unto them. Quest. How could he bring Isaac thither again, where he never was? Answ. 1. Isaac might be said to be there before vertually, or in the Loins of his Father, as Levi is said to pay Tithes to Melchisedek by Abraham in whose Loins he was 2. This again may be referred to the Servant, that when he returned again he would not carry Isaac along with them. 3. He might reasonably suppose that Isaac must go once thither to fetch his Wife; (for her coming so suddenly to him was an unexpected thing;) but he would not have him promise, that when he had done so once, he should go thither again to live there with her.

7 ¶ The LORD God of heaven * which took me from my fathers house, and from the land of my kindred, and which spake unto me, and that sware unto me, saying, * Unto thy seed will I give this land, he shall send his angel before thee †, and thou shalt take a wife unto my son from thence k.

*Chap. 12. 1. *Chap. 12. 7. and 13. 15. and 15. 18.

† To direct and succeed thee in this enterprize. Compare Exod. 14. 19. and 23. 20. k I doubt not of the success. He might say so, either by rational conjecture, both from the nature of the thing, and from the constant course of God's Providence blessing him in all his concerns; or by particular assurance and inspiration from God. and 26.4.

8 And if the woman will not be willing to follow thee, then thou shalt be clear from this my oath l: only bring not my son thither again.

l From the obligation of this Oath, and from the penalties of the violation of it.

9 And the servant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his master, and sware to him concerning that matter.

10 ¶ And the servant took ten camels of the camels of his master, and departed, († for all the goods of his master were in his hand m) and he arose, and went to Mesopotamia, unto the * city of Nahor †.

†Heb. that women which draw water go forth.

12 And he said, O LORD God of my master Abraham, I pray thee, send me good speed this day, and shew kindness n unto my master Abraham.

n Or, Mercy. He makes no mention of himself, nor of the merits of his Master, but he ascribes even temporal Blessings, and much more eternal Salvation, meerly to God's Mercy.

13 Behold, * I stand here by the well of water, and * the daughters of the men of the city come out to draw water:

o That this was not a rash and vain Fancy, but a special Expectation and Confidence wrought in him by God's Spirit, appears both by the eminent Prudence and Godliness of this Person, and by the exact correspondency of the event with his Prayer, and by parallel Examples, as Judg. 6. 36. 1 Sam 6. 7. and 14. 8. p Heb. Evidently pointed out; or, exactly searched out, as a person meet for him.

15 ¶ And it came to pass, before he had done speaking, that behold, Rebekah came out, who was born to Bethuel son of * Milcah the wife of Nahor Abrahams brother, with her pitcher upon her shoulder q.

18 And she said, Drink, my Lord s: and she hasted, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and gave him drink.

s For his retinue shewed him to be a person of more than ordinary quality.

19 And when she had done giving him drink, she said, I will draw water for thy camels also, until they have done drinking.

20 And she hasted, and emptied her pitcher into the trough, and ran again unto the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels.

21 And the man wondring at her t, held his peace, to wit that he might know whether the LORD had made his journey prosperous, or not.

22 And it came to pass as the camels had done drinking, that the man took u a golden † ear-ring of half a shekel weight, and two bracelets for her hands, of ten shekels weight of gold; u (i. e.) Gave to her, as that word of taking, or receiving is often used, as Gen. 12. 19. Exod. 18. 12. and 29. 25. Psal. 68. 18 compared with Eph. 4. 8. x So the word signifies, Gen. 35. 4 Exod. 32. 2, 3. y Or, For he had said; for it is probable he enquired who she was before he gave her those presents.

24 And she said unto him, I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah z, which she bare unto Nahor.

z So she signifies that she was Nahor's Daughter, not by his Concubine, but by his lawful and principal Wife 25 She said moreover unto him, We have both straw and provender enough, and room to lodge in.

26 And the man bowed down his head, and worshipped the LORD a.

27 And he said, Blessed be the LORD God of my master Abraham, who hath not left destitute my master of his mercy and his truth b: I being in the way, the LORD led me to the house of my masters brethren c.

b (i. e.) Who hath shewed his mercy in promising all manner of Blessings, and his truth in performing his Promises at this day. Or, it is a figure called Hendyadis, for true mercy. q d. he hath not only been kind to him in shew, and in words, but in real and considerable effects c (i. e.) Near Kinsmen, as that word is commonly used, as verse 48. and Gen. 13. 8. Mark 3. 31, 32.

28 And the damsel ran, and told them of her mothers house d these things.

d Not, of her Father's house; either because her Father was now dead, and Bethuel, who is hereafter mentioned, was not Laban's Father, but his Brother so called; or because the Women had distinct apartments in the Houses, and she went first thither according to her custom.

29 ¶ And Rebekah had a brother, and his name was Laban: and Laban ran out unto the man, unto the well.

30 And it came to pass, when he saw the ear-ring and bracelets upon his sisters hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his sister, saying, Thus spake the man unto me; that he came unto the man, and behold he stood by the camels at the well.

31 And he said, Come in, thou blessed of the LORD e, wherefore standest thou without? for I have prepared the house, and room for the camels.

e (i. e.) Whom God hath so eminently favoured and blessed.

f Of which custom, see Gen. 18. 4.

33 And there was set meat before him, to eat: but he said, I will not eat, until I have told mine errand. And he said, Speak on.

34 And he said, I am Abrahams servant.

35 And the LORD hath blessed my master greatly, and he is become great: and he hath given him flocks, and herds, and silver, and gold, and men-servants, and maid-servants, and camels, and asses.

36 And Sarah my masters wife bare a son to my master when she was old: and * unto him hath he given all that he hath g.

*Chap. 25. 5.

g (i. e.) Hath purposed and promised, and doth by me engage that he will give. Things are oft said to be done, in Scripture Language, when they will certainly and shortly be done.

37 And my master made me swear, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife to my son of the daughters of the Canaanites in whose land I dwell:

38 But thou shalt go unto my fathers house, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son.

39 And I said unto my master, Peradventure the woman will not follow me.

40 And he said unto me, The LORD * before whom I walk h, will send his angel with thee, and prosper thy way; and thou shalt take a wife for my son of my kindred, and of my fathers house.

*Chap. 17. 1.

h In Obedience to all his Commands, and in hearty trust in his Promises and gracious Providence towards me and mine.

41 Then shalt thou be clear from this my oath i, when thou comest to my kindred; and if they give not thee one, thou shalt be clear from my oath.

i Heb. From my curse, denounced against those if thou shouldst violate thine Oath. The words Oath and Curse are oft times indifferently used because they commonly go together, and sometimes they are both expressed. as Numb. 5. 21.

42 And I came this day unto the well, and said, O LORD God of my master Abraham, if now thou do prosper my way which I go k:

k (i. c.) The design or course in which I am ingaged; as the word way is frequently used.

43 * Behold, I stand by the well of water, and it shall come to pass, that when the virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I say to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink;

* Verf. 13.

44 And she say to me, Both drink thou, and I will also draw for thy camels: let the same be the woman whom the LORD hath appointed out for my masters son.

45 And before I had done speaking in my heart, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her shoulder; and she went down unto the well, and drew water: and I said unto her, Let me drink, I pray thee.

46 And she made haste, and let down her pitcher from her shoulder, and said, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink also: so I drank, and she made the camels drink also.

47 And I asked her l, and said, Whose daughter art thou? and she said, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahors son, whom Milcah bare unto him: and I put the ear-ring upon her face, and the bracelets upon her hands.

l First he asks who she was, then he gives the gifts to her: Which is the right order, and is here observed in the repetition; Which was inverted in the first relation, verse 21, 23

48 And I bowed down my head, and worshipped the the LORD, and blessed the LORD God of my master Abraham, which had led me in † the right way, to take my masters brothers daughter unto his son.

49 And now if ye will deal kindly and truly m with my master, tell me: and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left n.

m If you will shew true Kindness and real Friendship to him in giving your Daughter to his Son. n (i. e.) That I may look out a Wife for him elsewhere. It is a proverbial Expression, Numb. 20. 17. and 22. 26. Deut. 2. 27.

50 Then Laban and Bethuel o answered and said, The thing proceedeth from the LORD p: we cannot speak unto thee bad or good q.

o Laban is put first, either because this Bethuel was not his Father, but his younger Brother, as Josephus thinks; or because Laban was the chief manager of this business, to whom his Father seems to have committed the care of his Family, being himself unfit for it through Age or Infirmity. p From God's Counsel and Special Providence. Hereby it appears they had the Knowledge and Worship of the true God among them, tho they added Idols to him. q We cannot without opposing God, speak or act any thing which may hinder thy design, or thwart thy desire. Compare Gen. 31. 24, 29. 2 Sam. 13. 22.

51 Behold, Rebekah is before thee †, take her, and go, and let her be thy masters sons wife, as the LORD hath spoken.

† (i. e) In thy power and disposal; as this Phrase is taken, Gen. 20. 15. and elsewhere.

52 And it came to pass, that when Abrahams servant heard their words, he worshipped the LORD, bowing himself to the earth.

53 And the servant brought forth † jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: he gave also to her brother and to her mother precious things r.

r The precious Fruits of the Land from which he came. See Deut 33. 13, &c. or in general, other rare and excellent things. In those days men give Portions for their Wives, as now they have Portions with them.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night: and they rose up in the morning, and he said, * Send me away unto my master.

* Verse 56, and 59.

55 And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with us † a few days, at the least ten s; after that she shall go.

† Or, a full year, or ten months.

s Others thus, a Year, or at the least ten Months, the word Days being put for a Year as elsewhere. But it is very improbable that they would demand or expect such a thing from this Man whom they saw bent so much upon Expedition.

56 And he said unto them, Hinder me not, seeing the LORD hath prospered my way: send me away, that I may go to my master.

57 And they said, We will call the damsel, and inquire at her mouth t.

t (i. e.) Understand her mind by her words, not so much concerning the Marriage it self, in which she resigned up her self to the disposal of her Parents and Friends, and to which she had given an implicit Consent by her acceptance of those Presents which were made to her for that end; as concerning the hastiness of her Departure.

58 And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? and she said, I will go.

59 And they sent away Rebekah their sister, and her nurse u, and Abrahams servant, and his men.

u Deborah, by comparing Chap. 35. 8. In this corrupt Family, the Mother and the Nurse are two distinct Persons; but in Abraham's pious Family there was no such Principle or Practice. See Gen. 21. 7.

60 And they blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister x, be thou the mother of thousands of millions, and let thy * seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

* Chap. 22. 17.

x (i. e.) Our near Kinswoman, distance of place shall not alienate our Affections from thee, but we shall still own thee as our Sister, and as far as we can, be ready to perform all the duties of Brethren to thee.

61 And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man: and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way.

62 And Isaac came from the way of the * well Lahai-roi, for he dwelt in the south country y.

* Chap. 16. 14. and 25. 11.

y In the Southern Parts of Canaan, as Gen. 12. 9. at Beer-sheba, whither it seems, Abraham returned after Sarah's Death.

63 And Isaac went out to † meditate z in the field a at the eventide b: and he lift up his eyes, and saw, and behold the camels were coming.

z To converse with God, and with himself by pious and profitable Thoughts and Ejaculations, and fervent Prayers, as for other things, so particularly for God's Blessing upon this great Affair, and so his Prayers are eminently answered. a He chuseth a solitary place, wherein he might more freely attend upon God without any Interruption or Distraction. b That as he had begun the day with God, so he might close it with him, and commit himself to his Protection. Compare Psalm 55. 17.

64 And Rebekah lift up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, she lighted off the camel c.

c As a testimony of her respect to him whom by the Servant she understood to be her Lord and Husband. Compare Jos. 15. 18. 1 Sam. 25. 23.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a vail, and covered her self d.

d In token of Modesty, Reverence, and Subjection. See Gen. 20. 16. 1 Cor. 11. 10.

66 And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done.

67 And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarahs tent e, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: and Isaac was comforted after his mothers death f.

e Partly to give her possession of it, and partly to consummate the Marriage. Women then had their Tents apart from Men. See Gen. 18. 10. and 24. 67. and 31. 33. f A sorrowful sense whereof he yet had retained, tho she died three years before this time.

CHAP. XXV.

Abrahams sons by Keturah, 1—4. Isaac inherits his Fathers estate, 5. Provision for the other sons, 6. Abrahams age, 7. Death, 8. Burial, 9, 10. God blesseth Isaac, 11. The posterity of Ishmael, 12—15. His age and death, 17. Their habitation, 18. The generations of Isaac, 19. His age when married, 20. He prays for children; God answers, 21. Two children struggle in the womb; Rebekah enquires of the Lord, 22. God gives the reason, 23. She delivered of twins, 24. The first-born red and hairy; his name, 25. His brother takes him by the heel; his name: Isaac's age when they were born, 26. The Eldest a cunning hunter; the other a plain man, 27. Isaac loves the eldest; Rebekah the youngest, 28. The eldest sells his birth-right for red pottage, and is called Edom, 30—32. Confirms the sale by an oath, 33. Despising his birth-right, 34.

THen a again Abraham took b a wife c, and her name was Keturah d.

a After Sarah's Death and Isaac's Marriage. b Not from any inordinate Lust, which his Age and eminent Grace may sufficiently evince, but from a desire of more Children, and of accomplishing God's Promise concerning the great Multiplication of his Seed. c A Secondary Wife, or a Concubine, as she is called, verse 6. and 1 Chron. 1. 32. d A distinct Person from Hagar, as appears from verse 6. and 12. and as it seems, of better Quality, and Younger, for Hagar was now Eighty years old, and not likely to be a Mother of six Children.

2 And she bare him e Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan f, and Midian g, and Ishbak, and Shuah h.

e Quest. How could Abraham, being now about One hundred years old, have so many Children, when his Body was dead in his hundredth year? Answ. Because that renewed strength which was miraculously conferred upon him, did still in a great measure remain in him, being not a temporary Action, but a durable Habit or Power. f These Persons were the Heads of several People dwelling in Arabia and Syria, where we shall find evident footsteps of their Names amongst Ancient Geographers, only a little changed, which could not be avoided in their Translation into another Language. g The Father of those Midianites, of whom we read, Gen. 36. 35. Judg. 6. 2. Isa. 10. 26. h From whom Bildad seems to be descended, Job 2. 11.

3 * And Jokshan begat Sheba, and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Asshurim, and Letushim, and Leummim.

* 1 Chron. 1. 32.

4 And the sons of Midian; Ephah i, and Epher k, and Hanoch, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the Children of Keturah.

i Of whom see Isa 60. 6. k From whom some think Africa received its name.

5 ¶ And Abraham gave l all that he had m unto Isaac.

l Which before he purposed and promised to give, Gen. 24. 36. And now actually gave. m Except that which is excepted in the following Verse, and except the use and enjoyment of his Estate during his own Life.

6 But unto the sons of the concubines n which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son o (while he yet lived) eastward, unto the east country p.

n Hagar and Keturah. Concubines are sometimes called Wives, as Gen. 16. 3. Judges 19. 1, 2, 3, 29. but their Children had no right to the Inheritance. For tho the Children of Jacob's Concubines did equally partake of the Inheritance with the other Children, that was done by Divine Appointment, and Jacob's Voluntary Act, and upon special reason, because of the vast Inheritance promised, and afterwards given to them, which made it no less, but a great convenience and advantage to the Children of the chief Wives to have their Half-brethren, the Sons of the Concubines, seated so near to them. o Partly that the intire Possession of that Land might be reserved to the Children of Isaac; and partly, lest nearness of relation joyned with Cohabitation or Neighbourhood should beget a great great familiarity between them, whereby Isaac's Seed were likely to be infected by their Brethren, whose Degeneration and Apostacy Abraham might easily foresee from the evil Inclinations of their own Hearts, and God's Exclusion of them from that Covenant of Grace and Life, which was the only effectual remedy against that powerful and universal Corruption. p Into Arabia, and other Parts of Asia the Greater, which were situate East-ward from the Southern part of Canaan where Abraham now was, whence these People are oft called the Children of the East, as Judges 6. 3. and 7. 12. Job 1. 3.

7 And these are the days of the years of Abrahams life which he lived, an hundred threescore and fifteen years.

8 Then Abraham gave up the ghost q, and died in † a good r old age, an old man, and full of † years s; and was gathered to his people t.

† Or, days. See Chap. 35. 29.

q His Soul was not required of him, as it was of that fool, Luke 12. 20. not forced from him by sharp and violent Diseases, but was quietly, easily, and chearfully yielded up by him into the hands of his merciful God and Father, as the word intimates. r Good both graciously, his hoary Head being found in the way of Righteousness; and naturally, free from the manifold Infirmities and Calamities of old Age. Of which see Eccles. 12. 1, &c. s In the Hebrew it is only full, or satisfied; but you must understand, with Days or Years, as the Phrase is fully expressed, Gen. 35. 29. 1 Chron. 23. 1. and 29. 28. Job 42. 17. Jer. 6. 11. When he had lived as long as he desired, being in some sort weary of Life, and desirous to be dissolved; or full of all Good, as the Chaldee renders it; satisfied, as it is said of Naphtali, Deut. 33. 23. with favour, and full with the blessing of the Lord upon himself, and upon his Children. t To his Godly Progenitors, the former Patriarchs; the Congregation of the Just in Heaven, Heb. 12. 23. in regard of his Soul: For it cannot be meant of his Body, which was not joyned with them in the place of Burial, as the Phrase is, Isa. 14. 20. but buried in a strange Land, where only Sarah's Body lay. And it is observed, that this Phrase is used of none but good Men, of which the Jews were so fully perswaded, that from this very Expression used concerning Ishmael here below, v. 17. they infer his Repentance and Salvation. See this phrase, Gen. 15. 15. and 49. 29. Numb. 20. 24. and 27. 13. Judges 2. 10.

9 And his sons Isaac and Ishmael u buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron, the son of Zohar the Hittite, which is before Mamre.

u For Ishmael, tho banished from his Father's House, lived in a place not very far from him; and as no doubt he received many Favours from his Father after his Departure, which is implied here, verse 6. tho it be not mentioned elsewhere; so it is probable that he had a true Respect and Affection to his Father, which he here expresseth.

10 * The field which Abraham purchased of the sons of Heth: there was Abraham buried, and Sarah his wife.

* Chap. 23. 16.

11 ¶ And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac, and Isaac dwelt by the * well Lahai-roi.

* Chap. 16. 14. and 24. 62.

12 ¶ Now these are the generations of Ishmael x Abrahams son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarahs handmaid, bare unto Abraham.

x Here recorded as an evidence of God's faithfulness in fulfilling his Promise made to Abraham, Gen. 16. 10. and 17. 20.

13 And * these are the names of the sons of Ishmael, by their names, according to their generations: The first-born of Ishmael, Nebajoth y; and Kedar z, and Adbeel, and Mibsam,

* 1 Chron. 1. 29.

y Of whom see Isaiah 60. 7. From whom part of Arabia was called Nabathæa. z Of whom see Psalm 120. 5. Isaiah 21. 16. Jer. 49. 28. the Father of those called Cedrei, or Cedareni in Arabia.

14 And Mishma, and Dumah a, and Massa, a From him Dumæi, Isaiah 21. 11. or Dumatha, a place in Arabia, seems to have received its Name. Others make him the Father of the Idumæans.

15 † Hadar, and Tema b, Jetur c, Naphish, and Kedemah.

† Or, Hadad, 1 Chron. 1. 30.

b He gave his Name to the City and Country of Tema, or Teman, Job 2. 11. and 6. 19. Jer. 25. 23. c The Father of the Ituræans, as may be gathered from 1 Chron. 5. 19.

16 These are the sons of Ishmael, and these are their names, by their Towns, and by their castles *; twelve princes according to their nations.

* Chap. 17. 20.

17 And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, an hundred and thirty and seven years; and he gave up the ghost, and died, and was gathered unto his people.

18 And they dwelt from Havilah unto Shur, that is before Egypt, as thou goest towards Assyria †: and he * died in the presence of all his brethren d.

† Heb. fell, 2 Sam. 21. 9.

† (i. e.) On that part or side of Egypt which leads to Assyria. d His Brethren surviving him, and being his Neighbours, and therefore as they had Conversation with him in the time of his Life, so now they did him Honour at his Death. But this Translation and Interpretation may seem improbable. 1. Because his Death was related, verse 17. and would not be so presently repeated. 2. Because the foregoing words in this Verse speak not of his Death, but of his Dwelling, to which these words do very well agree. For what we translated and he died, is commonly rendred and he fell, or it fell, and is most commonly used concerning a lot whereby Men's Portions are designed and divided, as Levit. 16. 9, 10. Numb 33. 54. Jos. 16. 1. and so the sense may be, it fell, i. e. that Country fell to him or his; or he lay, or was stretched out, or posted himself, as the Hebrew word is used, Judg. 7. 12. i. e. he dwelt in the presence of all his Brethren; and so indeed his Country lay between the Children of Keturah on the East, and the Children of Isaac and Israel on the West.

19 ¶ And these are the generations of Isaac, Abrahams son: * Abraham begat Isaac.

* Matth. 1. 2.

20 And Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah to wife, the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Padan-Aram e, the sister to Laban the Syrian.

e Either of the Country of Syria, as it is called, Hosea 12. 12. or rather, Padan of Syria, or as the Septuagint and Chaldee render it, Mesopotamia of Syria: For that Padan is the proper Name of a place, may be gathered from Gen. 48. 7. and it is so called from its Scituation between two Rivers, for Padan signifies a pair or two.

21 And Isaac intreated the LORD f for his wife g, because she was barren h: and the LORD was intreated of him, and * Rebekah his wife conceived.

* Rom. 9. 10.

f He prayed, as the Hebrew word signifies, instantly or fervently, frequently and continually, for near twenty years together; for so long it was between their Marriage and the first Child. He was so much concerned, because not only his Comfort, but the truth of God's Promise depended upon this mercy: And he knew very well, that God's purpose and promise did not exclude, but require the use of all convenient means for their accomplishment. g Or in the presence of his Wife, signifying, that, besides their more secret Devotions, they did oftentimes in a more solemn manner, and with united force pray for this mercy wherein they were both equally concerned. Or, over against his Wife, noting that each of them did severally and apart intreat God for this mercy, so that there was a concurrence, if not in place, yet in design and action. h As diverse of those holy Women that were Progenitors of Christ have long been, that it might appear that that sacred Stock was propagated more by the virtue of God's Grace and Promise, than by the Power of Nature.

22 And the children struggled together within her i: and she said, If it be so, why am I thus k? And she went to inquire of the LORD l.

i In a violent and extraordinary manner, which was likely to cause both Pain and Fear in her. k The sense may be either, 1. If it be thus with me, that there be two Children contending and fighting within me, likely to destroy one the other, and both threatning my Death; why then I desire and pray for this as a great mercy! Or, why is it thus with me! Why hath God dealt thus with me, to continue my Life till it be a burthen to me, and to give me Conception which is so painful and hazardous? Or rather, 2. If God hath granted me my desire in the Conception of a Child, what means this disturbance and conflict within me, which threatens me with the loss of the Mercy before I enjoy it? For she seems not so much to murmur at it, as to wonder and to enquire about it, as it here follows. l Either immediately by ardent Prayers to God that he would reveal his mind to her herein; or mediately by her Father Abraham, who lived fifteen years after this time, verse 7. or by some other godly Patriarch yet surviving, by whom God used to manifest his Will and Counsels to others, when he thought fit.

23 And the LORD said unto her m, Two nations n are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated o from thy bowels: and the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and * the elder p shall serve the younger.

* Rom. 9. 12.

m Either by inward Inspiration, in a Dream or Vision; or by the Ministry of an Angel or Prophet. n (i. e.) The Roots, Heads, or Parents of two distinct Nations, one opposite to the other; the one blessed, the other cursed, namely the Israelites and Edomites. o Not only separated from thee, but one separated or greatly differing from the other in their frame of Body, temper of Mind, course of Life, profession and practice of Religion. p Or, the greater, namely Esau, who was, as older, so of a stronger Constitution of Body, and of greatest Power and Dignity in the World than Jacob; and Esau's Posterity were great Princes for a long time, when Jacob's Seed were Strangers in Canaan, Slaves in Egypt, and poor afflicted Wanderers in the Wilderness. But faith he, Esau and his shall not always be stronger and mightier than Jacob and his Posterity, the Tables shall be turned, and the Children of Israel shall be uppermost and subdue the Edomites, which was literally accomplished in David's time, 2 Sam. 8. 14. and afterwards 2 Chron. 25. 11, 12. and after that by the Maccabees, but much more eminently in a spiritual Sense under the Gospel, when one of Jacob's Children, even Jesus Christ, shall obtain the Dominion, and shall rule the Edomites no less than other Heathen Nations with his Iron rod, and make them serviceable one way or other to his Glory, and to the felicity of his true Israel.

24 ¶ And when her days to be delivered were fulfilled, behold, there were twins in her womb.

25 And the first came out red q, * all over like an hairy garment: and they called his name Esau r.

* Chap. 27. 11. 16. 23.

q With red Hair upon all the parts of his Body. From him the Red-Sea is supposed to receive its name, it being so called, as the Heathen Writers tell us, from one who reigned in those Parts, and was called Erythras, or Erythrus; which signifies Red, the same with Edom or Esau. r (i. e.) Made or perfect; not properly a Child, but rather a Man as soon as he was born, having that Hair upon him, which in others was an evidence of Manhood.

* Hosea 12 3.

26 And after that came his brother out, and * his hand took hold on Esau's heel; and his name was called Jacob r: and Isaac was threescore years old when she bare them t.

r (i.e.) Supplanter, or one that taketh hold of, or trippeth up his Brother's heels. See Gen. 27 36. t Thus God exercised his Faith and Patience twenty years by comparing this with verse 20. ere he give him the promised Blessing.

28 And Isaac loved Esau, because † he did eat of his venison a: but Rebekah loved Jacob b.

a Not simply, nor chiefly, because he pleased his palate, but because this was an evidence of his Son's great respect and affection to him, that he would take such pains and incur such hazards to which that course of life exposed him, that he might please and serve his Father b Upon better grounds, both because of his more pious and meek Temper, and because of the Oracle and Promise of God.

29 ¶ And Jacob sod pottage: and Esau came from the field, and he was faint.

† Heb. with that red, with that red pottage.

30 And Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, † with that same red c pottage; for I am faint: therefore was his name called Edom d.

c Red by the infusion of Lentiles, or Saffron, or some other things of that Colour. The word is doubled in the Hebrew Text, to shew how vehemently he desired it. d Which signifies Red, as he was at first so called from the Colour of his Hair; so now that name was confirmed and given to him afresh upon this occasion, q. d. He was rightly called Edom, or Red, not only Historically for his Colour, but Prophetically for this Accident.

31 And Jacob said, Sell me this day e thy birthright f.

e (i.e.) Speedily without delay. So this Hebrew Word is used 1 Sam. 2. 16. and 9. 13, 27. 2 Chron. 18. 4. f The birthright then had divers singular priviledges; as 1. Dignity and Authority over his Brethren, Gen. 4. 7. and 27. 29, 37. and 49. 3. 2. A double portion, Deut. 21. 17. 1 Chron. 5. 1. 3. A special Blessing from his Father, Gen. 27. 4. The Priesthood and chief Government of the Affairs of the Church in his Father's absence, or sickness, and after his death, Numb. 8. 16, 17, &c. 5. The first born was a special Type both of Christ, who was to be a first born; and of the Church, which is called God's first-born, as Exod. 4. 22. and of the great priviledges of the Church, particularly of Adoption and Eternal Life. See Heb. 12. 23. And therefore he is justly called profane, Heb. 12. 16. for slighting so sacred and glorious a priviledge. Quest. 1. Could the birth-right be lost? Ans. Yes. See Gen. 4 7. and 1 Chron. 5. 1. Quest. 2. Did Jacob well in this matter? Ans. No; because he tempted his Brother to an act of Profaneness and Folly, and so was guilty of his Sin. And though God had designed and promised this priviledge to him, yet he should have waited till God had executed his promise in his own way, as David did till God gave him possession of Saul's Kingdom, and not have anticipated God, and snatched it by an irregular act of his own, as Jeroboam did the Kingdom from Rehoboam.

32 And Esau said, Behold, I am † at the point to die g: and what profit shall this birth-right do to me h?

g Not with Famine, which could not consist with Isaac's plentiful Estate and House, but by the perpetual hazards to which his course of life exposed him in the pursuit of wild Beasts, and contending with other Men. h By which he plainly sheweth, that his Care and Affections reached no further than the present life.

33 And Jacob said, Swear to me this day i; and * he sware unto him: and * he sold his birth-right unto Jacob.

* Heb. 12. 16.

i Jacob acted subtilly in this Affair; he knew that delays were dangerous; and Esau's confideration, or second thoughts, might have spoiled his Bargain, and therefore he requires haste, as in the Sale, so in his Oath; wherein he addeth another Sin, in hurrying his Brother into an Oath by precipitation, which neither his Brother should have taken, nor Jacob should have advised him to take, without mature Advice.

34 Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentiles; and he did eat and drink, and rose up, and went his way k: thus Esau despised his birthright l.

k Secure and impenitent, without any remorse for his ingratitude to God, or the injury which he had done to himself and to all his posterity. l Preferring the present and momentary satisfaction of his Lust and Appetite, before God's and his Father's Blessing, and all the glorious priviledges of the Birth-right.

CHAP. XXVI.

A famine in the land; Isaac goes to Gerar, 1. God directs him to abide there, and promises to be with him; the covenant with Abraham also made with Isaac, 2——5. Through fear he denies Rebekah, 7. Abimelech, seeing Isaac and Rebekah together, concludes her to be his wife; charges him with it, he confesses it, 8, 9. Abimelech reproves him, charging his people not to touch them on pain of death, 11. Isaac blessed with great plenty, 12——14. The Philistines envy him; stop his wells, 15. Desire him to depart, 16. He removes to the valley of Gerar, 17. There he digs wells, but the herds-men strives with him about them, 18——21. He hath rest, 22. Removes to Beer-sheba, 23. The Lord renews his covenant, 24. He calls on the name of the Lord, 25. Abimelech convinced that the Lord was with Isaac, desires to make a covenant with him, 26——29. They make a feast, and swear to one another, 31. Esau being forty years old, taketh to him wives of the Canaanites, 34. Isaac and Rebekah grieved hereat, 35.

AND there was a famine in the land, * besides the first famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went unto * Abimelech a king of the Philistines, unto Gerar.

* Chap. 12. 10.

* Chap. 26 1.

a Not he mentioned, Gen. 20. 2. but most probably his Son and Successour, called by his Fathers name.

2 And the LORD appeared unto him, and said, Go not down into Egypt b: dwell in the land which I shall tell thee of.

b Whither it seems Isaac intended to go, it being a very fruitful place, and being incouraged to do so by his Father's Example upon the same occasion. But God saw good reasons to forbid Isaac to go thither, which it is needless to enquire, and not difficult to conjecture.

3 Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bless thee: for unto thee, and unto thy seed c * I will give all these countries, and I will perform * the oath d which I sware unto Abraham thy father.

* Chap. 15. and 15. 18.

* Chap. 22. 16.

c To thee, to enjoy for thy present Comfort, and to them to possess as an Inheritance. See the Notes on Gen. 13. 15. and 15. 18. d (i. e.) The promises confirmed by Oath, Gen. 22. 16, &c.

4 And I will make thy seed to multiply as the stars of heaven, and will give unto thy seed all these countries: and in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be * blessed:

* Chap. 12. 3. and 22. 18.

5 Because that Abraham obeyed my voice e, and kept my charge, my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.

e Here was a covenant made between God and Abraham; and as, if Abraham had broken the condition of walking before God required on his part, God had been discharged from the promise made on his part; so contrarily, because Abraham performed his condition, God engageth himself to perform his promise to him, and to his seed. But as that promise and covenant was made by God of meer Grace, as is evident and confessed; so the mercies promised and performed to him and his, are so great and vast, that it is an idle thing to think they could be merited by so mean a compensation as Abraham's Obedience, which was a debt that he owed to God, had there been no such covenant or promise made by God, and which also was an effect of God's Graces to him and in him.

7 And the men of the place asked him of his wife; and he said, She is my sister: for he feared to say, She is my wife, lest, said he, the men of the place should kill me for Rebekah, because she was fair to look upon.

8 And it came to pass, when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philistines looked out at a window, and saw, and behold, Isaac was sporting with Rebekah his wife g.

g Using more free and familiar carriage than became a Brother and Sister, but such as was allowable between Husband and Wife. See Deut. 24. 5. Prov. 5. 18, 19. But that this was not the Conjugal act, may easily be gathered from the circumstances of the time, and place, which was open to Abimelech's view; and therefore that was not consistent either with Isaac's modesty, or with his prudence, because he would not have her thought to be his Wife.

9 And Abimelech called Isaac, and said, Behold, of a surety she is thy wife: and how saidst thou, She is my sister? And Isaac said unto him, Because I said, lest I die for her.

10 And Abimelech said, What is this thou hast done unto us? one of the people might lightly have lien with thy wife h, and * thou shouldest have brought † guiltiness upon us i.

* Chap. 20. 9.

h Because the Heathens esteemed Fornication either no Sin, or a very little one. i The guilt of Adultery, which was heinous and formidable even among the Heathens, and especially here, because it was fresh in memory how sorely God had punished Abimelech, and all his Family, only for an intention of Adultery, Gen. 20. Note here, they take it for granted, that their Ignorance had not been a sufficient excuse for their Sin.

11 And Abimelech charged all his people, saying, He that toucheth k this man or his wife, shall surely be put to death.

k (i.e.)

k (i.e.) Hurteth or injureth. So that word is used, ver. 29. and Jos. 9 19. Psal. 105. 15. Zech. 2. 8. and being applied to a woman, it is used for the defiling or humbling of her, as Gen. 20. 6. Prov. 6. 29.

12 Then Isaac sowed in that land l, and † received in the same year and hundred fold m, and the LORD blessed him.

l Either in the Grounds which he had hired of the right Owners; or in some Grounds which lay neglected; and therefore were free to the first Occupier; which was not strange in that Age of the World, when the Inhabitants of Countreys were not so numerous as afterward. m (i.e.) An hundred times as much as he sowed. The same degree of increase is intimated, Matth 13. 8 and affirmed sometimes of other places by Heathen Writers, but then it was in a better Soil and Season than this was; for this was a time of Famine or Scarcity.

13 And the man waxed great, and † went forward, and grew until he became very great.

14 For he had possession of flocks, and possession of † Or, Husbandry. herds, and great store of † servants n. And the Philistines envied him.

n Or rather, of Husbandry, as this word is elsewhere used; of Corn-fields, Vineyards, &c. for he is describing his Riches, which then consisted in the two things here expressed, Cattle and Lands, which he diligently and successfully managed, ver. 12.

* Chap. 21. 30.

15 For all the wells * which his father's servants had digged in the days of Abraham his father, the Philistines had stopped them, and filled them with earth.

16 And Abimelech said unto Isaac, Go from us, for * Exod. 1. 9. * thou art much mightier than we o.

o Which breeds Envy, and Jealousie, and Fear, among my Subjects, and may occasion greater mischiefs; and therefore it is better that we should part Friends, than by continuing together be turned into Enemies.

17 And Isaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

18 And Isaac digged again the wells of water p, which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father q; for the Philistines had stopped them after the death of Abraham: and he called their names after the names by which his father had called them.

p For though there might be a Brook there, probably it was but little, and soon dried up. q He digged those rather than new ones, partly to keep up his Father's memory, and partly because he had most right to them, and others less cause of quarrel with him about them.

19 And Isaac's servants digged in the valley, and † Heb. found. found there a well of † springing water.

20 And the herdmen of Gerar did strive with Isaac's herdmen, saying, The water is ours r: and he called † That is, contention. the name of the well † Esek, because they strove with him.

r Because digged in our Soil: Which was no good Argument, because he digged it by their consent or permission at his own charge, and for his own use.

21 And they digged another well, and strove for † That is, hated. that also: and he called the name of it † Sitnah.

22 And he removed from thence, and digged another well; and for that they strove not: and he called † That is, room. the name of it † Rehoboth; and he said, For now the LORD hath made room for us, and we shall be fruitful in the land.

23 And he went up from thence to Beer-sheba s.

s Where he lived before the Famine drave him thence.

24 And the LORD appeared unto him the same night, and said, I am the God of Abraham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bless thee, and multiply thy seed for my servant Abraham's sake.

* Chap. 12. 7 and 13. 18.

25 And he * built an altar there, and called upon the name of the LORD, and pitched his tent there: and there Isaac's servants digged a well.

26 Then Abimelech went to him from Gerar, and Ahuzzath one of his friends, and Phicol t the chief captain of his army.

t This may be either 1. The title of an Office; for the word signifies, the mouth of all; or he by whom all the people were to present their Addresses to the King, and receive the King's Commands. Or, 2. The name of a Man: And then this might be the Son of him mentioned Gen. 21. 32. called by his Father's name, as Abimelech also was.

27 And Isaac said unto them, Wherefore come ye to me, seeing ye hate me, and have sent me away from you?

† Heb. seeing we saw.

28 And they said, † We saw certainly that the LORD was with thee: and we said, Let there be now an oath betwixt us, even betwixt us and thee, and let us make a covenant with thee;

* Heb. if thou shalt, &c.

29 * That thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee †, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have sent thee away in peace: thou art now the blessed of the LORD u.

† To wit, so as to injure or hurt thee, as above, ver. 11. u Or, O thou who art now the blessed of the Lord, whom God hath inriched with great and manifold Blessings, which we did not take away from thee, as we could easily have done, but thou dost still enjoy them; and now art, as thou wert amongst us, the blessed of the Lord. Or, Seeing God hath blessed thee, it will not become thee to curse us, or to bear any grudge against us for that little unkindness which we expressed to thee. Or, it may be a wish, if thou makest this Covenant with us, be thou now the blessed of the Lord, we heartily wish thy Blessings and Prosperity may increase.

30 And he made them a feast, and they did eat and drink.

31 And they rose up betimes in the morning x, and sware one to another: And Isaac sent them away, and they departed from him in peace.

x Partly for the dispatch of their Journey and Business, and partly because then their minds were most vigorous, and sober, and fit to perform so sacred an Action as an Oath was.

32 And it came to pass the same day, that Isaac's servants came, and told him concerning the well which they had digged, and said unto him, We have found water.

33 And he called it † Sheba: therefore the name of the city is * Beer-sheba y unto this day.

* That is, the well of the oath.

y This name had been given before, either to this, or a neighbouring place, by Abraham, Gen. 21. 31. But was now buried in oblivion, as his Wells were; and the Wells being revived, he revives, and renews the name, which proved now a lasting name, unto this day, as here follows, which is not added, Gen. 21. 31. because then the Name, though given by Abraham, was soon forgotten and neglected by others.

34 And Esau was forty years old when he took to wife Judith, the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Bashemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite z:

z Both Hittites, the worst of the Canaanites, Ezek. 16. 3. Which from his Grandfather Abraham's severe Charge, Gen. 24. 3. he must needs know would be highly displeasing, both to God, and to his Parents. And as Esau had several Names, being called also Edom and Seir; so it seems these Women and their Parents had, by comparing this with Gen. 36. 2. which was usual in those times and places. Or Esau had more Wives than these.

35 Which * were † a grief of mind unto Isaac, and to Rebekah a.

* Chap. 27. 46.

† Heb. bitterness of spirit.

a Because to their Idolatry and other Wickedness, they added Obstinacy and incorrigibleness, despising their Persons, and godly Counsels, whereby they invited them to Repentance.

CHAP. XXVII.

Isaac being aged, sends Esau for Venison, that he might eat thereof, and bless him, 1——4. Esau obeys his father, 5. Rebekah hearing it, tells Jacob, 6, 7. Her contrivance and advice to him to intercept the blessing, 8——10. Jacob is afraid of a curse instead of a blessing, 11, 12. His mother encourageth him, 13. He complies; puts on Esau's raiment, and the skins of the kids; goes with the venison his mother prepared: Isaac eats of it, and blesseth him, 14——29. Esau brings the venison he had taken, 30, 31. Isaac is exceedingly surprized, but confirms the blessing on Jacob, 32, 33. Esau weeps bitterly, and prays for a blessing, 34. Expostulates with his father, and obtains one, 35——40. Esau hates Jacob, 41. Rebekah hears of it, 41, 42. She advises Jacob to go to her kindred, 43, 44. Complains of Esau's wives to Isaac.

AND it came to pass, that when Isaac was old a, and his eyes were dim, so that he could not see b, he called Esau his eldest son, and said unto him, My son. And he said unto him, Behold, here am I.

a About one hundred and thirty seven years old. b Which was ordered by God's wise Providence, not only for the exercise of Isaac's patience, but also as a means to transfer Esau's right to Jacob.

2 And he said, Behold now, I am old, I know not the day of my death.

3 Now therefore, take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver †, and thy bow, and go out to the field, and * take me some venison,

* Heb. hunt.

† Or, As the Chaldee and Hebrew Doctors renders it, thy Sword, a Weapon no less necessary for an Hunter of Beasts, than a Bow.

4 And make me savoury meat, such as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat c, that my soul may bless thee d before I die.

c Quest. Why doth he require this before he bless him? Ans. 1. That being refreshed, and delighted therewith, his Spirit might be more chearful, and so the fitter for the giving of this Prophetical Benediction; for which reason also the Prophet Elisha called for a Minstrel ere he could utter his Prophesie, 2 Kings 3. 15. 2. By the special direction of Divine Providence, that Esau's absence might give Jacob the advantage of getting the Blessing. d He speaks not here of a common and customary Blessing, which Parents may bestow upon any of their Children, as, and when they please; but of the last, solemn, extraordinary and Prophetical Benediction, whereby these Holy Patriarchs did by God's appointment, and with his concurrence, constitute one of their Sons Heir, not only of their Inheritance, but of Abraham's Covenant, and all the Promises, both Temporal and Spiritual, belonging to it. As for the Oracle delivered to Rebekah, which transferred this Blessing upon Jacob, chap. 25. 23. either Isaac knew not of it, not being sufficiently informed thereof by Rebekah; or he did not throughly understand it; or he might apprehend that it was to be accomplished not in the persons of Esau and Jacob, but in their Posterity; or at this time it was quite out of his mind, or he was induced to neglect it through his passionate affection to his Son Esau.

5 And Rebekah heard when Isaac spake to Esau his son: and Esau went to the field to hunt for venison, and to bring it.

6 ¶ And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying,

7 Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the LORD e before my death.

e Solemnly, as in God's presence, in his Name, and by his Authority, and with his leave and favour, which I shall heartily pray for thee. So he signifies that this was more than an ordinary Blessing which he now intended to give him.

8 Now therefore my son, obey my voice, according to that which I command thee.

9 Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats f, and I will make them savoury meat g for thy father, such as he loveth;

f It is observable, That as Jacob deceived his Father by a Kid, so his Sons deceived him by the same Creature, Gen. 37. 31, 32, 33.

g Out of their most tender and delicate parts: Wherewith it was not difficult to deceive Isaac, partly because of the likeness of the Flesh, especially being altered by convenient Sawce; and partly because the same old age which had dimmed Isaac's Sight, had also dulled his other Senses.

10 And thou shalt bring it to thy father that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death.

11 And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, Behold, Esau my brother is an hairy man, and I am a smooth man.

12 My father peradventure will feel me, and I shall seem to him as a deceiver g; and I shall bring a curse upon me h, and not a blessing.

g I shall appear to him to be indeed a Deceiver, one that abuseth his Age and Blindness. The Particle as sometimes signifies not the likeness, but the truth of the thing, John 1. 14. 2 Cor. 3. 18. b Which is due to every one that deceiveth the blind, Deut. 27. 18. especially his Father, and especially in a religious concern, Jer. 48. 10. Mal. 1. 14. such as this was.

13 And his mother said unto him, Upon me be thy curse i, my son; only obey my voice, and go fetch me th.m.

i She saith so, out of an assured confidence in the Divine Oracle and Promise.

14 And he went and fetched, and brought them to his mother: and his mother made savoury meat, such as his father loved.

15 And Rebekah took † goodly raiment k of her eldest son Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob her younger son.

k Either his Sacerdotal Garments which the eldest Son wore in the administration of that Office which belonged to him; or rather some other Suit better than ordinary.

16 And she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, and upon the smooth of his neck l.

l Upon the two naked parts of his Body, which were most likely to be discovered. As for his Face, it is more than probable from his Age, which was the same with Esau's, chap. 26. 34. that Nature had given him a covering like Esau's.

17 And she gave the savoury meat, and the bread, which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob.

18 ¶ And he came unto his father, and said, My father: and he said, Here am I: who art thou, my son?

19 And Jacob said unto his father: I am Esau thy first-born m; I have done according as thou badst me: arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me.

m This cannot be excused, for it was a manifest untruth, and no less is all this following Relation, though it pleased God graciously to pardon it; and notwithstanding these sillings, to confer the Blessing promised upon Jacob.

20 And Isaac said unto his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? And he said, Because the LORD thy God brought it † to me.

21 And Isaac said unto Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that I may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau, or not.

22 And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father, and he felt him; and said, The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

23 And he discerned him not n, because his hands were hairy, as his brother Esau's hands: So he blessed him.

n Because all his Senses were not only dulled with Age and Infirmity, but also held by Divine Providence, as theirs, Luke 24. 16. for the bringing about his own purpose: So that it is no wonder he was so grossly deceived in the whole business.

24 And he said, Art thou my very son Esau? and he said, I am.

25 And he said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he did eat: and he brought him wine, and he drank.

26 And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me o, my son.

o Which he did, either that he might more fully satisfy himself concerning the person; or rather as a mark of that special favour and affection wherewith he bestowed the Blessing. Compare Gen. 48. 10.

And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed him, and said, See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field, which the LORD hath blessed f.

f Which is full of odoriferous Herbs, and Flowers and Fruits, and Spices, with some of which Esau's Garments may be perfumed in the Chest wherein they were laid, as the manner now is. These Garments smell not of the Sheep-cotes and Stables, as Jacob's do, but of the Fields in which Esau is conversant.

28 Therefore, * God give † thee of the dew of heaven g, and the fatness of the earth h, and plenty of corn and wine.

* Heb. 11.

† Or, of the fatness.

* Or, will give. For it is both a Prayer and a Prophesie. g He mentions the dew rather than the Rain, because it was of more constant use and necessity in those parts than the Rain, which fell considerably but twice in a year, the first being called the former, and the other the latter Rain. And under this and the following Blessings, which are but Temporal, are comprehended all manner of Blessings, both Spiritual, Temporal, and Eternal, according to the usage of that Time and and State of the Church. h A fat and fruitful Land, which Canaan was, abounding with all sorts of precious Fruits. Compare Deut. 8. 8. and 32. 13, 14.

29 * Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee: be Lord over thy brethren, and † let thy mother's son bow down to thee: * Cursed be every one that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

* Chap. 9. 25.

† Chap. 49. 8.

* Chap. 12. 3.

i How, and when this was fulfilled, see on Gen. 25. 23.

30 ¶ And it came to pass as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father k; and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me.

k That Esau did not come to his Father till the Meat was dressed, may be ascribed partly to his own choice, that he might come with more acceptance; and partly to Rebekah, who could easily hinder his coming sooner by spacious Pretences and Artifices.

32 And Isaac his father said unto him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy first-born Esau.

33 And Isaac † trembled very exceedingly l, and † Heb. said, Who, where is he m that hath * taken venison, and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed him? yea, and he shall be blessed n.

l He was filled with astonishment and horror in consideration of Jacob's Fraud, and the sad disappointment and great misery of his hunted. beloved Esau, and his own rashness and folly in suffering his fond affection towards him to carry him headlong into an opposition to the Divine Oracle, Gen. 25. 23. which now came to his remembrance, as appears by his ratification of Jacob's Blessing. m A short Speech proceeding from a discomposed mind. n This Blessing, tho otherwise intended by me, and pronounced upon a mistake of the person, shall and must rest upon the head of Jacob; and I neither can, nor dare undertake to revoke and contradict God's appointment, which now I more fully discern, and in which both thou and I and all men must fully acquiesce. And now Isaac fixeth the blessing upon Jacob by faith, as it is expressed, Heb. 11. 20. which before, through misguided Fancy and Affection, he intended for Esau.

34 And when Esau heard the words of his father, * he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry o, and said unto his father, Bless me, even me also, O my father p.

* Heb. 12. 17.

o Not for any sense of his former sin, in despising his Birth-right, but for grief at his great loss therein, because God would not suffer him to be perjur'd in keeping that Birthright-blessing which he had sold and sworn away. p (i. e.) Thou art my Father no less than his, and therefore as a Child, I claim a share in thy Blessing.

35 And he said, Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing q.

q Which was thine by the right of Nature, and by custom of Nations, and by my hearty desire and intention, as well as by thy own expectation and opinion.

36 And he said, * Is not he rightly named † Jacob r? for he hath supplanted me these two times: * he took away my birth-right s; and behold, now he hath taken † That is away my blessing. And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

* Chap. 25. 26.

† A supplanter.

* Chap. 25. 33.

r He puts a perverse Construction upon Jacob's Name, as if it belonged not to him so properly, because of the manner of his Birth, as because of his falseness and deceitfulness, and his tripping up his Brother's Heels. s A false Accusation; Jacob did not take it deceitfully, but Esau sold it profanely.

37 And Isaac answered and said unto Esau, Behold I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and with corn and wine have I † sustained him: and what shall I do now unto thee t, my son?

t The blessing of Abraham is not at my disposal, but God's, who hath manifested his Mind and Will by my Error; it cannot be divided into several hands, nor imparted to one, who, tho my Son, yet hath made himself unworthy of it.

38 And Esau said unto his father, Hast thou but one blessing, my father u? Bless me, even me also, O my father. And Esau lift up his voice, * and wept.

* Heb. 12. 17.

u By which words Esau manifests his profane and worldly Mind, that he esteemed this Blessing but as one among many others equal to it, and did not apprehend the true and peculiar excellency and absolute necessity of it, and that it was impossible for him or his Posterity to be happy without an interest in this covenant, and continuance in that Church to which it was appropriated.

39 And Isaac his father answered, and said unto him, Behold, * thy dwelling shall be † the fatness of the earth, and of the dew of heaven from above x.

* Ver. 28. Heb. 11. 20.

x In a Country competently fruitful and refreshed with convenient Dews and Showers. Obj. Thus Esau seems to have the same Blessing which was before given to Jacob. Anf. 1. Tho it may seem to be the same as to the fertility of the Soil, in which divers other parts of the World did and do equal the Land of Canaan; yet there is an observable difference in the manner of Isaac's Expression. When he speaks of Esau, he only saith, Thy dwelling shall be the fatness, &c. But when he speaks to Jacob, he saith, God give thee, or shall give thee of the fatness, &c. which words being, as it may seem, purposely omitted concerning Esau, and so emphatically expressed concerning Jacob, seem to intimate, especially if compared with many other Scriptures where that Phrase is applied to good Men, that Esau's fat Soil was rather taken by himself, than given by God; or if given by God to him, it was only by his general Providence by which he giveth food to all Creatures; whereas Jacob's fat and fruitful Soil was derived to him and his by God's special gift, as a token of his singular kindness, and pledge of greater Blessings. 2. This is but one branch of the Blessing; the other part which concerns Dignity and Superiority, is expressly given to Jacob, verse 29. and denied to Esau, verse 40.

40 And by thy sword shalt thou live y, and shalt serve thy brother: and * it shall come to pass when thou shalt † have the dominion z, that thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

* 2 Sam. 8. 14. 2 Kings 8. 20.

y By Violence and Rapine, in an unquiet and military Posture, troubling others, and forced to defend thy self. But this, as also the following Clause, tho spoken to Esau, was not fulfilled in him, but in his Posterity the Edomites, whose History makes good this Prophecy. Thus things spoken and promised to Abraham were fulfilled in his Posterity, as Gen. 12. 3. and 22. 18. z When thou shalt grow potent. Some render the words thus, When thou shalt have mourned or groaned, as the same word is used, Psalm 55. 2. When thou hast oppressed as long as I think fit.

41 ¶ And Esau hated Jacob b, because of the blessing wherewith his father blessed him: and Esau said in his heart c, The days of mourning for my father are at hand, * then will I slay my brother Jacob.

* Obad. 10.

b And this hatred was hereditary, extending to their Posterity also. See Ezek. 35. 5. Amos 1. 11. Obad. v. 10. c Within himself. Although he could not contain it there, but declared his intentions to some of his Confidents, by which means it came to Rebekah's ear.

42 And these words of Esau her elder son were told to Rebekah: and she sent and called her younger son, and said unto him, Behold, thy brother Esau, as touching thee, doth comfort himself, purposing to kill thee.

43 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice: and arise, flee thou to Laban my brother to Haran.

* Chap. 29. 20.

44 And tarry with him * a few days d, until thy brother's fury turn away;

d So she expected and intended, but was greatly disappointed, for he tarried there twenty years.

45 Until thy brother's anger turn away from thee, and he forget that which thou hast done to him: then I will send, and fetch thee from thence. Why should I be deprived † also of you both in one day?

e Of thee by Esau's bloody Hands; and of Esau, who was likely to suffer Death for his Murther, either by the Authority of the Magistrate, as God commanded, Gen. 9. 6. or by the hand of God, who oft times supplies the Magistrates defects in that particular, and in some extraordinary manner executes this Vengeance. See Gen. 4. 11, 16. Acts 28. 4.

* Chap. 26. 35.

46 And Rebekah said to Isaac, * I am weary of my life, because of the daughters of Heth †: if Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, such as these which are of the daughters of the land, what good shall my life do me f?

† Esau's Wives, who were Hittites, Gen. 26. 34. f Therefore let us, after the Example of Abraham, send him to fetch a Wife from his own Kindred. This indeed was one reason, but the other she conceals from Isaac; thus prudently alledging several reasons, one to Jacob, and another, as it is probable, to Esau, and each most suitable to the Person to whom she speaks.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Isaac calls Jacob; charges him not to marry a Canaanite, but one of his kindred in Padan-Aram, 1, 2. Confirms the blessing to him, 3, 4. Jacob obeys his father, and goes to Laban, 5. Esau perceiving this; marries one of his kindred, but of Ishmael's family, 6——10. Jacob journeys towards Haran; in his way takes of the stones of the place for pillows, 11. In a dream sees a ladder reaching from earth to heaven, angels ascending and descending on it, 12. The Lord standing above it; renews his covenant concerning Canaan, and the promised seed, &c. 13——15. Jacob awakened, acknowledges God's presence there, and is afraid, 16, 17. Sets up the stones for a pillar, pours oyl on it, 18. Names the place Bethel, 19. Makes a vow to be the Lord's, if God will return him in Peace, 20——22.

AND Isaac called Jacob, and blessed him a, and charged him, and said unto him, * Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan.

* Chap. 24. 3.

a Confirm'd his former blessing, being now thoroughly sensible both of God's purpose, and of his own Duty, wishing him also a prosperous and successful Journey; as the word is used, Jos. 22. 7.

2 Arise, go to Padan-Aram, to the house of Bethuel †, thy mothers father; and take thee a wife † from thence of the daughters of * Laban thy mothers brother.

† Hos. 12. 12.

* Chap. 24. 29.

† See Gen. 22, 22, 23. and 25. 20

3 And God Almighty bless thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayest be † a multitude of people:

† Heb. an assembly of people.

4 And give thee * the blessing of Abraham, to thee, and to thy seed with thee; that thou mayest inherit the land † wherein thou art a stranger, which God gave unto Abraham.

* Chap. 12. 2.

5 And Isaac sent away Jacob, and he went to Padan-Aram unto Laban, son of Bethuel the Syrian b, the brother of Rebekah, Jacobs and Esaus mother.

b Obj. He was no Syrian, but a Mesopotamian. Anſ. Syria is sometimes largely taken, and so it comprehends Mesopotamia, or Chaldea, yea, and Assyria, as appears from Isaiah 36. 11. Dan 2. 4.

6 ¶ When Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob, and sent him away to Padan-Aram, to take him a wife from thence; and that as he blessed him, he gave him a charge, saying, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan;

7 And that Jacob obeyed his father, and his mother, and was gone to Padan-Aram;

8 And Esau seeing that the daughters of Canaan † pleased not Isaac his father:

† Heb. were evil in the eyes, &c.

9 Then went Esau unto Ishmael c, and took unto the wives which he had, Mahalath d the daughter of Ishmael Abrahams son, the sister of Nebajoth e, to be his wife.

c Either to his Person; or rather to his Family, called Ishmael by their Father's Name, as David is sometimes put for David's Posterity; for Ishmael seems to have been dead before this, from Gen. 25. 17. tho that may possibly be a Prolepsis, and then this may be Ishmael himself. d Called also Bathemath, Gen. 36. 3. He thought by this means to ingratiate himself with his Father, and so to get another and a better Blessing; but he takes no care to reconcile himself to God, nor observes his hand in the business. Besides, he mends one fault by committing another, and taking a third Wife when he had one too many before, and her too he unwisely fetcheth out of that Stock which was begotten to Bondage, and was utterly uncapable of the Inheritance. e Ishmael's eldest Son, Gen. 25. 13. who alone is here mentioned, either in the name of all the rest, whose Sister she is by consequence supposed to be; or because peradventure she and Nebajoth were Ishmael's Children by the same Mother, and the rest by another.

10 ¶ And Jacob went f * out from Beersheba, and went toward † Haran.

* Hos. 12. 12.

f It is not strange that Jacob went alone, as it appears that he did from Gen. 32. 10. when his Grandfather's Servant was attended with a great Retinue, Gen. 24. because Attendance was then necessary to procure him Reputation, and to obtain the Consent of the Virgin and her Parents to so long a Journey; but here as it was unnecessary, so it would have been troublesome and prejudicial, exposing him both to the Envy and Snares of his Brother Esau, which by this private Departure he did avoid. Besides, God in his wise Providence did so order this, and some other matters of the like nature, for the greater Illustration of his care and kindness towards his Children. Add to this the great Simplicity, Humility, and Innocency of those times, if compared with ours, which made many things then usual, which now would be ridiculous.

11 And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set: and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

12 And he dreamed, and behold a ladder set upon the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold, * the angels of God ascending and descending on it g.

*Heb. 1. 14.

g This Ladder may be considered, either 1. Literally, and so it represented to Jacob the Providence of God, who, though he dwell in Heaven, extends his Care and Government to the Earth, and particularly makes use of the Angels as Ministring Spirits for the good of his People. And these Angels do not appear idle, or standing still, but always in motion, either ascending to God to receive his Commands, or descending to Earth for the Execution of them. Which was a most seasonable Vision for Jacob in his sad and sorrowful Condition, that he might see that though he was forsaken and persecuted by Men, and forced to flee away secretly for fear of his life, yet he neither was, nor should be neglected, or forsaken by God in this whole Journey. Or 2. Mystically, and so it represents Christ, by whom Heaven and Earth are united, who is called the way to Heaven, which this Ladder was, who, as the head of Angels, is perpetually sending them forth either to God, or from God to minister to the Heirs of Salvation, Heb. 1. 14. And this explication, or accommodation of this Vision, is warranted by our Saviour himself, John 1. 51.

*Chap. 35. 1. and 48. 3.

13 * And behold, the LORD stood above it, and said, I am the LORD God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed.

14 And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth; and thou shalt † spread abroad * to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south: and in thee and * in thy seed shall all the families h of the earth be blessed.

15 And behold, I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land: for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of i.

i Nor ever after; for so the word until is frequently used, as 2 Sam. 6. 23. Matth. 1. 25. not so as to exclude the time following, but so as to include all the foregoing time, wherein the thing spoken of might be most suspected or feared; as here the worst and most dangerous state in which Jacob was, or was like to be, was this time of his Banishment from his Countrey and Kindred, against which he is therefore particularly armed, and comforted in these words.

16 And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the LORD is in this place k; and I knew it not l.

k By his Special and gracious Presence, and the manifestation of his Mind and Will to me. l I little expected to meet with such a Revelation out of my Father's House, much less in this desart and doleful State and Place, when I thought my self rejected by God, as well as abandoned by men.

17 And he was afraid, and said, How dreadful m is this place! this is none other, but the house of God n, and this is the gate of heaven.

m Or, venerable, both for the Majesty of the Person present, and for the glorious manner of his discovery of himself. n The Habitation of God, and of his Holy Angels.

o As a Monument of God's great Kindness and gracious Manifestation of himself to him; which might bring this Mercy to his remembrance in his return, Gen. 31. 13. This was an ancient practise among the Patriarchs, Gen. 35. 14. but afterwards upon the growing abuse of it among the Heathens, it was forbidden by God, Levit. 26. 1. Deut. 7. 5. and 12. 3. p Which he brought with him either for Food or Medicine, or for the anointing of himself, as need required. q As a token of his Consecration thereof to this use to be a memorial of God's Favour to him. 19 And he called the name of * that place † Bethel: but the name of that city r was called Luz at the first.

r Either of that City which was nearest to the Field in which Jacob lay; or of that City which afterwards was built in or near to this place, and was known by the name of Bethel.

20 And Jacob vowed a vow s, saying, If God will be with me t, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me * bread u to eat, and raiment to put on;

* 1 Tim. 6. 8.

s (i.e.) Bound himself by a solemn Promise or Obligation. Compare Gen. 14. 22. Eccles. 5. 4. t He speaks not thus as if he doubted of the truth of God's Promises, or would like a mercenary Person make a bargain with God, but rather supposeth that God will do this for him, as he had in effect promised, verse 15. and thereupon obligeth himself to a grateful return to God for this Mercy, If God will be with me, &c. as he hath just now assured me he will; or, Seeing God will be with me &c. for the Hebrew im doth not always imply a doubt, but rather a supposition, and is oft rendered seeing that, as Exod. 20. 25. Numb. 36. 4. 1 Sam. 15. 17. Amos 7. 2. And so the Greek Particle answering to the Hebrew im is used Matth. 6. 22. Luke 11. 34. u Food convenient, as it is called, Prov. 30. 8. which is oft signified by the name of Bread. See Gen. 3. 19.

21 So that I come again to my fathers house in peace: then shall the LORD be my God x.

x I will publickly own him for my God and the Saviour of Men, and will establish his solemn Worship, as it follows.

22 And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, shall be Gods house y: and of all that thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto thee z.

y (i.e.) A place where I will offer Prayers and Sacrifices to God: Such places being commonly called God's Houses, and God is oft said to dwell in them, in regard of his special Presence there. CHAP. XXIX.

Jacob comes to the well of Haran, 1—3. Enquires of the Shepherds concerning Laban, 4—8. They show him Rachel Laban's daughter coming with the sheep, 9. Jacob goeth near to her; waters the flock, 10. Tells her who he was, 11. She tells it her father, who brings him to his house, hears what had happed to him, 12—14. They bargain that Jacob should serve seven years for Rachel, 15—19. He performs his service, and desires her to be given him, 21. Laban makes a feast, and invites all the men of the place, 22. And puts Leah, his eldest daughter, in the room of Rachel, 23—26. Jacob obtains Rachel, promising other seven years service, 27—30. Rachel is beloved and barren; Leah hated and bears Ruben, Simeon, Levi, Judah, 32—35.

THen Jacob † went a on his journey, and came into the land of the † people of the east b.

a Heb. Lift up his Feet; which may note either the gesture of his Body, that he went on foot; or the temper of his Mind, that he went not sadly and unwillingly, drawing his Legs after him, as we use to say, but readily and chearfully, being encouraged by God's Word. b Which lay Eastward from Canaan, as Mesopotamia did.

2 And he looked, and behold a well in the field, and lo there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered c the flocks: and a great stone was upon the wells mouth d.

c The People belonging to that place watered; or, the flocks were watered: It is an impersonal Speech. d To preserve the water which was scarce in those parts, and to keep it pure.

3 And thither were all the flocks gathered: and they rolled the stone from the wells mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the wells mouth in his place.

4 And Jacob said unto them, My † brethren e, whence be ye? And they said, Of Haran are we.

e So he calls them partly in token of respect and affection; and partly because they were of the same nature and employment with himself.

5 And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they said, We know him.

6 And he said unto them, † Is he well? And they said, He is well: and behold, Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep f.

† Heb. there peace to him?

f According to the manner of those times, Exod. 2. 16. Cant. 1. 7, 8. when Humility, Innocency, Simplicity, and Industry were in fashion, both among Men and Women of great quality. There are some that quarrel with the Scripture, and question the truth of such relations, because they judge of the state of ancient Times and Things, by the present age, whereby they discover great folly and deep ignorance of the state of former ages.

7 And he said, Lo, † It is yet high day, neither is it time that the cattel should be gathered together g: water ye the sheep, and go and feed them.

† Heb. yet the day is great.

g That they should be taken from their pasture, and brought to be watered.

8 And they said, We cannot h, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the wells mouth; then we water the sheep.

h Either because of the greatness of the Stone which they could not remove till more help came; or rather because of the Custom, Order and Agreement made amongst themselves about it. We cannot, to wit, rightly; or we may not, as that word is used, Gen. 34, 14. and 43. 32. and 44. 26.

9 ¶ And while he yet spake with them, Rachel came with her fathers sheep: for she kept them i.

i Having probably other Shepherds under her, who did the meaner Offices, whom she was to oversee.

10 And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mothers brother, and the sheep of Laban his mothers brother; that Jacob went near, and * rolled the stone from the wells mouth k, and watered the flock of Laban his mothers brother.

* Exod. 2. 17.

k Either with the assistance of others; or, by himself, he being ing then strong, and lusty, and putting forth all his might before Rachel.

11 And Jacob kissed Rachel l, and lifted up his voice, and wept m.

l As the custom of Friends then was both at their first meeting, as verse 13. and Gen. 33. 4. Exod. 4. 27. and 18. 7. and at their departure, as Ruth 1. 14. 1 Sam. 20. 41. 1 Kings 19. 20. m Tears of joy; like those Gen. 33. 4. at the gracious Providence of God to him, which had brought him safe to his desired place, and so happily and strangely conducted him to that Person and Family, which was so desirable and dear to him.

12 And Jacob told Rachel that he was her fathers brother *, and that he was Rebekahs son: and she ran and told her father.

* His near Kinsman; as that word is frequently used, as Gen. 13. 8. and 24. 27.

13 And it came to pass, when Laban heard the † tidings of Jacob n his sisters son, that he ran to meet him, and embraced him, and kissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told Laban all these things.

n The report of his Father's Family, of the cause of his coming in so mean circumstances, of the occurrences in his journey, and of his providential meeting with Rachel at the well.

14 And Laban said to him, Surely thou art my bone and my flesh o: and he abode with him the † space of a month.

o Of the same bone and flesh with my self, by our common Grandfather Terah, and therefore art justly dear to me, and with me thou shalt be in safety. See the same, or like expression, Gen. 2. 23. Judges 9. 2. 2 Sam. 19. 12, 13.

15 ¶ And Laban said unto Jacob, Because thou art my brother, Shouldest thou therefore serve me for nought? Tell me, What shall thy wages be?

16 And Laban had two daughters, the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

17 Leah was tender eyed †: but Rachel was beautiful and well-favoured.

† Her eyes were soft and moist, and therefore unsightly.

18 And Jacob loved Rachel; and said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter p.

p It being then the custom for Men to buy their Wives. See Genesis 34. 12. Exodus 22. 17. 1 Samuel 18. 25. 2 Samuel 3. 14. Hos. 3. 2.

19 And Laban said, It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man q: abide with me.

q An ambiguous and crafty answer, wherein he doth not directly grant his desire, but only insinuates it in such terms as might hide his design, which the event shewed.

* Hos. 12. 12.

20 And Jacob * served seven years for Rachel: and they seemed unto him but a few days r, for the love he had to her.

r He speaks not of the time, which in such cases seems long, Prov. 13. 12. but of the service of that time which seemed but little and far below the worth of Rachel.

21 ¶ And Jacob said unto Laban, Give me my wife s (for my days are fulfilled t) that I may go in unto her.

s So she was by Promise and Contract; persons Betrothed, or Espoused, being oft called Wives in Scripture, as Matth. 1. 18, 19. Luke 2. 5. t The seven years of service agreed upon, ver. 18.

22 And Laban gathered together all the men of the place u, and made a feast.

u Kindred and Neighbours, according to the custom. See Judg. 14. 10, 11. John 2. 1, 2, &c. He gathered a great number together, that the Marriage might be more Solemn and Publick, and that Jacob might be overawed by their Presence and Authority, and not dare to disannul the Marriage, and reject Leah afterwards, which otherwise he might have done.

23 And it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah his daughter, and brought her to him: and he went in unto her x.

x The occasion of the deceit was the custom of those times, which was to bring the Bride to her Husband in the dark, and with a Veil upon her Face. See Gen. 24. 65. And Leah being instructed by her Father, and confederate with him in the deceit, was, doubtless, careful not to discover her self by speech, or any other way to him.

24 And Laban gave unto his daughter Leah, Zilpah his maid, for an handmaid.

25 And it came to pass, that in the morning, behold it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? Did not I serve with thee for Rachel? Wherefore then hast thou beguiled me y?

y Though Laban could not solidly answer the question, yet Jacob could do it, and had just cause to reflect upon his own former action of beguiling his Father; for which God had now punished him in the same kind.

26 And Laban said, It must not be so done in our † countrey z, to give the younger before the firstborn.

z This seems to be a false pretence; but if it had been true, custom is to give place to justice, by which he was obliged to perform his contract with him.

27 Fulfil her week a, and we will give thee this also, for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years.

a The seven days usually devoted to the Feast and Solemnity of Marriage, as Judges 14. 12, 15, 17. And this he desired, that a weeks Co-habitation with Leah, might either knit his Affections to her, or at least confirm the Contract and Marriage with her.

28 And Jacob did so, and fulfilled her week: and he gave him Rachel his daughter to wife also b.

b It was not so strange that Laban should give, as that Jacob should take, not only two Wives, but two Sisters to wife, which seems to be against the Law of Nature, and was expressly forbidden by God afterward, Levit. 18. 18. Though it be also true that God might dispence with his own Institution, or permit such things in the Patriarchs upon special Reasons, which are not to be drawn into Example.

29 And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter Bilhah, his handmaid, to be her maid.

30 And he went in also unto Rachel, and he loved also Rachel more than Leah, and served with him yet seven other years.

31 ¶ And when the LORD saw that Leah was hated c, he opened her womb: but Rachel was barren d.

c Comparatively to Rachel, less loved, slighted. So that word is oft used, as Deut. 21. 15. Matth. 6. 24. and 10. 37. compared with Luke 14. 26. John 12. 25. d Thus variously doth God distribute his Favours, that all may be contented, and none despised.

32 And Leah conceived and bare a son, and she called his name † Reuben: for she said, Surely the LORD hath looked upon my affliction e; now therefore my husband will love me.

e With an eye of pity and kindness; as that general phrase is oft understood.

33 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Because the LORD hath heard f that I was hated, he hath therefore given me this son also: and she called his name † Simeon.

f (i.e.) Perceived or understood; hearing being oft put for understanding.

34 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Now this time will my husband be joyned unto me g, because I have born him three sons: therefore was his name called † Levi.

g In more sincere and fervent Affection.

35 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she said, Now will I praise the LORD c: therefore she called his name * † Judah, and † left bearing.

* Matth. 1. 2.

c More solemnly and continually; for otherwise she did praise and acknowledge God for the former Mercies.

CHAP. XXX.

Rachel being barren, envies her sister, impatiently desires children of Jacob, 1. He is angry, and reproves her, 2. She gives him her handmaid Bilhah, who bears him Dan and Naphtali, 3——8. Leah ceasing to bear, gives Zilpah her maid to Jacob, 9. She bears him Gad and Asher, 10——13. Reuben Leah's son finds mandrakes and brings them to his mother; Rachel desires them; they bargain, 14, 15. Jacob goes in to Leah, who conceives again and bears Issachar, Zebulon, and Dinah, 16——21. God remembers Rachel; she conceives and bears Joseph, 22——24. Jacob desires to return into his own countrey with his wives and children, 25, 26. Laban denies his consent; having learnt by experience that God had blessed him for Jacob's sake, 27. They make a new contract, 28——36. Jacob's device, and the success of it, 37——43.

AND when Rachel saw that she bare Jacob no children, Rachel envied her sister; and said unto Jacob, Give me children, or else I die a.

a A Speech full of Impatience, and bordering upon Blasphemy, and striking at God himself through Jacob's sides. For which therefore she afterwards smarted, dying by that very means whereby she hoped to prevent her Death, and prolong her Life, Genesis 35. 18.

2 And Jacobs anger was kindled against Rachel b; and he said, Am I in God's stead c? who hath withheld from thee the fruit of the womb?

b For the injury done to himself, and especially for the Sin against God, in which case anger is not only lawful, but necessary. c It is God's Prerogative to give Children. See Gen. 16. 2. 1 Sam. 2. 5, 6. Psal. 113. 9. and 127. 3.

3 And she said, Behold my maid Bilhah, go in unto her; and she shall bear upon my knees d, that I may also † have children by her e.

d An Ellipsis or short Speech, she shall bare a Child which may be laid upon my knees, or in my lap, which I may adopt and bring up as if it were my own. See Gen. 50. 23. Isa. 66. 12. e For as Servants, so their Work and Fruit were not their own, but their Masters.

4 And she gave him Bilhah her handmaid to wife: and Jacob went in unto her.

† And

5 And Bilhah conceived, and bare Jacob a son.

6 And Rachel said, God hath judged me *, and hath also heard my voice, and hath given me a son: therefore called she his name † Dan.

† That is, judging.

* Pleaded my Cause, or given Sentence for me; as this Phrase is oft taken.

7 And Bilhah Rachels maid conceived again, and bare Jacob a second son.

8 And Rachel said, With † great wrestlings f have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevailed g: and she called his name † * Naphtali.

† Heb. wrestlings of God.

† That is, my wrestling.

* Called Matth. 4. 13. Nepthalim.

f Heb. With wrestlings of God, either with great and hard Wrestlings or Strivings; or by wrestling with God in fervent Prayer, and by God's Grace and Strength. g Which was not true; for her Sister exceeded her both in the number of her Children, and in her propriety in them, being the fruit of her own Womb, not of her Handmaids, as Rachel's were. Here is an instance how partial Judges most Persons are in their own causes and concernments.

9 When Leah saw that she had left bearing, she took Zilpah her maid, and gave her Jacob to wife.

10 And Zilpah Leahs made bare Jacob a son.

11 And Leah said, A troop cometh h: And she called his name † Gad.

† That is, a troop or company.

h Or, Good luck cometh; my design hath well succeeded; an happy Star hath shone upon me; and such a Star in the Opinion of Astrologers is that of Jupiter, which by the Arabians is called Gad. This may well agree to Leah and her Heathenish Education, and the Manners of the Chaldeans, who were much given to the Study of the Stars.

12 And Zilpah Leahs maid bare Jacob a second son.

13 And Leah said, † Happy am I, for the daughters † will call me blessed: and she called his name † Asher.

† Heb in my happiness. † That is, happy.

† Of Men, i. e. Women, as Prov. 31. 29. Cant. 6. 9.

14 ¶ And Reuben went in the days of wheat harvest, and found Mandrakes i in the field, and brought them unto his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah, Give me, I pray thee, of thy sons Mandrakes k.

i The word is only found here, and Cant. 7. 13. whence it appears, that it is a Plant or Fruit of pleasant Smell, such as the Mandrake is said to be by Dioscorides and Levinus Lemnius, and by St. Austin upon his own experience. If it be said, this was too early for Mandrakes to be ripe, it being now but Wheat-harvest; it may be replied, that Fruits ripen much sooner in those hot Countries, than elsewhere, and that they are not here said to be ripe, but only to be gathered. k Which she might desire, either because they were pleasant to the Eye or Taste, or because they were thought helpful to Conception.

15 And she said unto her, Is it a small matter that thou hast taken my husband? and wouldst thou take away my sons mandrakes also? And Rachel said, Therefore he shall lie with thee to night l, for thy sons Mandrakes.

l Jacob either did equally divide the times between his two Wives; or rather had more estranged himself from Leah, and cohabited principally with Rachel, which occasioned the foregoing Expostulation.

16 And Jacob came out of the field in the evening, and Leah went out to meet him, and said, Thou must come in unto me, for surely I have hired thee with my sons Mandrakes. And he lay with her that night m.

m He ratified their agreement, that he might preserve Peace and Love amongst them.

17 And God hearkned unto Leah n, and she conceived, and bare Jacob the fifth son.

n Notwithstanding her many Infirmities. Hence it appears, that she was moved herein not by any inordinate Lust, but by a desire of Children.

18 And Leah said, God hath given me mine hire, because I have given my maiden to my husband o: and she called his name † Issachar.

† That is, an hire.

o Thus the mistakes the Answer of her Prayers for a recompence of her Error.

19 And Leah conceived again, and bare Jacob the sixth son.

20 And Leah said, God hath endued me with a good dowry; now will my husband dwell with me, because I have born him six sons: and she called his name † * Zebulun.

† That is, dwelling. * Called Matth. 4. 13. Zabulon.

21 And afterwards she bare a daughter, and called her name † Dinah.

22 ¶ And God remembred Rachel, and God hearkned to her, and opened her womb.

23 And she conceived and bare a son, and said, God hath taken away my reproach p.

† That is, judgment.

p Barrenness was then accounted a great Reproach, especially in that Race, because it was a kind of Curse, whereby such Persons were excluded both from the first and general blessing of Fructification given to all Mankind, Gen. 1. 28. and from the special Blessing given to Abraham for the multiplication of his Seed; and from all hopes of being the Progenitors of the blessed Messiah.

24 And she called his name † Joseph; and said, The LORD shall add to me another son.

† That is, adding.

25 And it came to pass, when Rachel had born Joseph, that Jacob said unto Laban, Send me away, that I may go unto mine own place, and to my country q.

q Canaan, which he calleth his Country, in regard both of his former and long Habitation in it, and of the right which he had to it by God's promise. See 28. 13.

26 Give me my wives and my children, for whom I have served thee, and let me go: for thou knowest my service which I have done thee.

27 And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have * found favour in thine eyes, tarry: for I have learned by experience, that the LORD hath blessed me for thy sake.

* Chap. 30. 27.

28 And he said, Appoint me thy wages, and I will give it.

29 And he said unto him, Thou knowest how I have served thee, and how thy cattel was with me r.

r How carefully it was managed, and how greatly improved by my care and industry.

30 For it was little which thou hadst before I came, and it is now † increased unto a multitude; and the LORD hath blessed thee † since my coming s: and now when shall I provide for mine own house also t?

s Comparatively to what now it is. t Heb. At my foot, i. e. upon my coming; since my Feet entred into thy House: Or, by my foot, i. e. by my Ministry and Labour, as this Phrase is used, Deut. 11. 10. u According to my Duty, which also is thy Interest.

31 And he said, What shall I give thee? And Jacob said, Thou shalt not give me any thing; If thou wilt do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep thy flock.

32 I will pass through all thy flock this day, removing from thence all the speckled and spotted cattle x, and all the brown y cattle among the sheep, and the spotted and speckled among the goats: and of such shall be my hire z.

x Which may seem to be thus distinguished; speckled with little Spots, and spotted with greater Spots or Stains, both of divers colours from the rest of the Body. Or, the speckled may be the same with the Ring-streaked, by comparing this with verse 35. y Or Black, or Dark-coloured, for the Hebrew word signifies also great heat which produceth such a Colour. z Or, then shall be my hire; and for then, as is frequent in Scripture. The sense is, Then, when the speckled, and spotted, and brown are separated, and none but white remaining, my hire shall be out of those white ones, and that in such manner as is expressed in the following Verse, all the white young ones shall be thine, and the speckled, and spotted, and brown, which shall be brought forth by those white ones, shall be mine.

33 So shall my righteousness answer for me a † in time to come, when it shall come for my hire before thy face b: every one that is not speckled and spotted amongst the goats, and brown amongst the sheep, that shall be accounted stollen with me.

a When the Cattle shall, contrary to their natural and usual course, bring forth young ones of a contrary Colour to their own, it will hereby be evident that this is the work of God, who hereby pleads my righteous Cause against a cruel and unjust Master. Or thus, When thou shall accuse me of doing thee Injury, I shall have this manifest and undeniable evidence of my Righteousness or Innocency, that I have no Cattle but of that Colour which is by agreement appropriated to me. b When it, i. e. my Righteousness, shall come to, or upon my reward, i. e. when my Righteousness shall appear in the very colour of that Cattle which is allotted to me for my Reward or Hire; before thy Face, i. e. thou being present and diligently observing whether I have any Cattle of another colour. But the Hebrew word Tsdo is also of the second Person, and so the sense seems to be this, When thou shalt come upon my Hire or Reward, to wit, to observe and see whether I have any other Cattle than what belongs to me. And so these words come in by way of Parenthesis; and the following words, before my Face, are to be joyned to the former words, thus, so shall my Righteousness answer for me in time to come (when thou shalt come upon my Hire) before thy Face. This I prefer before the other, because the Phrase of coming upon his Hire seems more properly to agree to a Person, than to his Righteousness.

34 And Laban said, Behold, I would it might be according to thy word c.

c Laban trusted to the Course of Nature, whereby Cattle usually bring forth their Young of their own Colour; and Jacob relied upon the Providence of an Almighty God, and his Gracious Father.

some e white in it, and all the brown amongst the sheep, and gave them into the hands of his sons.

d Which had lines or strakes like Bands about them of divers Colours from the rest of their Body. e This word is oft understood in other Texts of Scripture, and here it is so necessarily; as appears both from the thing it self, as it is related, and from the Phrase; for he saith not that was white, but that had white in it, to wit, mixed with other Colours.

36 And he set three days journey f betwixt himself and Jacob g: and Jacob fed the rest of Labans flocks.

f Understand it of the journying or travelling of Sheep, not of Men. g Left either Jacob should mingle and exchange the Sheep, or the Sheep by the Contemplation of the diverse coloured ones should bring forth others like to them.

37 ¶ And Jacob took him rods h of green poplar, and of the hasel, and chesnut-tree i; and pilled white strakes in them, and made the white appear † which was in the rods.

h By Divine appointment, as will appear in the Sequel, which is sufficient for Jacob's Justification. i Either because these Trees were next at hand; or because he saw these in the Divine Vision afterwards mentioned, and would exactly follow his Pattern. † By pilling off the Rind which covered it.

38 And he set the rods which he had pilled before the flocks in the gutters in the watering troughs when the flocks came to drink, that they should conceive when they came to drink k.

k When by their refreshment and meeting together, they were most likely to generate and conceive.

39 And the flocks conceived l before the rods, and brought forth cattle ring-streaked, speckled, and spotted m.

l Heb. Were heated, i. e. inflamed or excited and disposed to conceive, and this in a more than ordinary manner by the Divine Disposal. m This hath some foundation in Nature, because of the great power of imagination; and there are divers instances in many Authors, both of Women and of Beasts, who either by the strong Fancying, or by the actual and frequent Contemplation of some certain Objects, have brought forth young ones exactly of the same Colour and Complexion, as one did an Ethiopian, &c. But the Providence of God was the principal Cause of this Effect, without which the Productions of that kind would neither have been so many, nor so certain. This Policy of Jacob's could scarcely be excused from Deceit and Injustice, if it were not manifest that it was done by the Direction and Authority of the Sovereign Lord of all Estates, Gen. 31. 9, 11, &c. who may take them from one, and give them to another, as it pleaseth him; who also observed Laban's Injustice, and gave to Jacob no more than he abundantly deserved from Laban.

40 And Jacob did separate the lambs n, and set the faces of the flocks towards the ring-streaked, and all the brown in the o flock of Laban: and he put his own flocks by themselves; and put them not unto Labans cattle p.

n Such as were ring-streaked and brown, from the white, as it here follows. o He caused them to go foremost, and the white to follow them, that by the continued beholding of them in the time of their conjunction, they might have their colour more imprinted upon their fancies, and thereby convey it to their young ones. p Which he did upon the same reason, left the constant beholding of them should make them bring forth the like, i. e. single coloured ones.

41 And it came to pass, whensoever the stronger cattle did conceive q, that Jacob laid the rods before the eyes of the cattle in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods.

q It is known that the Cattle in those parts did conceive and bring forth twice in a year, at Spring and in Autumn; and it is supposed that the stronger here mentioned, are such as joyned in the Spring, and the feeble they that joyned in Autumn.

42 But when the cattle were feeble, he put them not in: so the feebler were Labans, and the stronger Jacobs.

43 And the man increased exceedingly, and had much cattle, and maid-servants, and men-servants, and camels, and asses.

CHAP. XXXI.

Jacob observing Laban's envy, on God's command and promise, with the consent of his wives, departs secretly, 1——21. Laban pursues him; God in a dream warns him not to treat Jacob ill; he overtakes him on Mount Gilead; taxes him sharply for his secret departure, and with stealing his gods, 23—30 Jacob excuses his departure, 31 Denies the taking either gods, or ought else that was Labans, 32. Laban searches, but finds not, 33—35. Jacob is wroth, and rebukes him vehemently for all he had suffered from him, 36—40. He owns God as his defence in the day of his affliction, 41, 42. They make a covenant, in which Laban obliges Jacob not to hurt his daughters, nor take other wives to them, 44——52. Jacob sweares by the fear of Isaac, and offers sacrifice, 53, 54. Laban returns to his place 55.

AND he heard the words of Labans sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our fathers; and of that which was our fathers hath he gotten all this glory a.

a These riches, which are called glory, Gen. 45. 13. Psal. 49. 16. Isa. 66. 12. compared with Isa. 60. 6. because their possessours use to glory in them, and by them gain glory and esteem from others.

2 And Jacob beheld the countenance of Laban, and behold, it was not towards him † as before b.

† Heb. as yesterday, and the day before.

b And this change of his Countenance argued a change in his Mind, and presaged some evil intentions in him towards Jacob.

3 And the LORD said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee.

4 And Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah c to the field d unto his flocks;

c Rachel is first named here, as also Ruth 4. 11. because she was his chief, and, by right, his first and only designed Wife. And therefore it is observable, that in the enumeration of Jacob's Wives and Children, Gen 46. Leah is only mentioned by her name, verse 15. but Rachel is called Jacob's wife, verse 19. by way of eminency, and in a peculiar manner. d Where they might more freely discourse of their business, and without fear or interruption.

5 And said unto them, I see your fathers countenance, that it is not toward me as before: but the God of my father hath been with me e.

e Either 1. Hath blessed me; hath stood constantly by me, when your Father hath failed and deceived me. Or, 2. Hath appeared unto me, as verse 13.

6 And ye know that with all my power f I have served your father.

f Both of my Mind and Body, as I would have done for my self, as became a faithful servant to do.

7 And your father hath deceived me, and changed my wages * ten times g: but God suffered him not to hurt me.

* Neh. 4. 12.

g (i. e.) Oft times, as that certain number is commonly used, as Leviticus 26. 26. Numbers 14. 22. 1 Samuel 1. 8. Job 19. 3, &c.

8 If he said thus, The speckled shall be thy wages; then all the cattle * bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ring-streaked shall be thy hire h; then bare all the cattle ring-streaked.

* All is here as oft elsewhere, put for the greater or the better part, as appears from Chap 31. 1, 8. Or, for all that Jacob desired to be such. h Hence it appears, that Laban through Envy and Covetousness did break his agreement made with Jacob, and altered it as he thought meet, and that Jacob patiently yielded to all such changes.

9 Thus God hath taken away the cattle of your father, and given them to me.

10 And it came to pass at the time that the cattle conceived, that I lifted up mine eyes, and saw in a dream, and behold, the † rams which leaped upon the cattle, were ring-streaked, speckled, and grizled i.

† Or, he-goat.

i Which were marked with Spots, like Hail in colour and proportion, as the word signifieth.

11 And the Angel of God spake unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob; and, I said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lift up now thine eyes, and see, all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ring-streaked, speckled, and grizled; for I have seen all that Laban doth unto thee.

13 I am the God of Bethel, * where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me k: now * arise, get thee out from this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred.

* Chap. 28. 18. * Chap. 32. 9.

k Of which see Gen. 28. 19, 20 And this God here mentions to shew his acceptance of that Action of Jacob's, his mindfulness even of the past and forgotten Services of his People, and his purpose now to fulfil the promise there made to them.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered and said unto him, Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our fathers house l?

l We can expect no further benefit from him, but Deceit, and Oppression, and Injury, and therefore are willing to leave him. This was the fruit of his unnatural and unworthy Carriage to them, that it did eat out their natural Affection to him.

15 Are we not counted of him strangers m? for he * hath sold us n, and hath quite devoured also our money o.

* Chap. 29. 15, 27.

m As if we had no more right to his Estate than Strangers. n Instead of a good part of his Estate which by the Law of God and Nature belongs to us, 2 Cor. 12. 14. wherewith he should have endowed us upon our Marriage, he hath made sale of us for this 14 years hard Service, seeking only his own, not our advantage. o Hath not only with-held from us, but spent upon himself that Money which he got by thy care and industry, whereof a confiderable part was due in equity to us and to our Children.

16 For all the riches which God hath taken from our father, that is ours, p and our childrens: Now then whatsoever God hath said unto thee, do.

p Not

p Not only by God's special gift, but by the natural right which Children have to a share in his Estate, and upon the account of thy faithful and laborious Service.

17 Then Jacob rose up, and set his sons, and his wives upon camels.

18 And he carried away all his cattle, and all his goods which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-Aram; for to go to Isaac his father to the land of Canaan.

19 And Laban went to shear his sheep: and Rachel had stollen the † images that were her father's q.

q Quest 1. What were those Teraphims or Images? Ans. They were Images made in the shape of Men, 1 Sam. 19. 13, 16. which the Gentiles worshipped as subordinate gods, ver. 30, 32. of this Chapter, to which they committed the protection of their Families, 1 Sam. 19. 13. which they used to consult about secret or future things, and from which they received answers about them, Ezek. 21. 21. Zech. 10. 2. Of these see more Judg. 17 5. and 18. 14, 17, &c. Hos. 3. 4. And these Idols Laban worshipped together with the true God. Quest 2. Why did Rachel steal them? Ans. Partly, lest her Father by consulting them should discover their flight, and the course which they took; and partly because she seemed yet to retain a superstitious conceit of them, as may be gathered from Gen. 35. 2. Others, because they were pretty and precious things, made of Silver and Gold, which she took as a part of what was due to her both as his Daughter, and for her Husband's service. Others, that she might remove so great an occasion of her Father's Idolatry, and shew him the vanity of such gods as might be stoln away.

20 And Jacob stole away † unawares to Laban r the Syrian, in that he told him not that he fled.

r Heb. Stole away the heart of Laban, to wit, his Daughters, his Cattle, and his gods, upon which his heart was vehemently set, as Micah's was, Judg. 18. 24. But if this had been meant, it had been imputed to Rachel, and not to Jacob, who knew nothing of the gods. Or rather, It is away from the heart, &c. the Hebrew leb being put for mind, as Gen. 4. 1. and 49. 25. 1 King. 8. 47. compared with 2 Chron. 6. 33. Mic. 3. 8. i. e. without the knowledge and consent of Laban, which sense is confirmed by the words next following, and by ver. 26, 27. and by the like use of the phrase, 2 Sam. 19. 3. Thus he fled, because he knew Laban's selfish, and unrighteous, and cruel Disposition, that he would always hinder him from departing, either by fraudulent Pretences, or by open force, nor suffer so great a diminution in that Estate, which he thought one time or other he might in good measure recover to himself.

21 So he fled with all that he had, and he rose up, and passed over the river s, and set his face t toward the mount Gilead u.

s Euphrates, which lay between Mesopotamia and Chaldea, Gen. 15. 18. which for its largeness and famousness is oft called the River emphatically, as Exod. 23. 31. Jos. 24. 2, 3, &c. t (i. e.) Resolutely directed his course. See Ver. 50 5. Luke 9. 51, 53. u A very high and long Mountain beyond Jordan, adjoining to the Mountain of Lebanon, at the foot of which there was a large and fruitful Country, which from the Mountain received the name of Gilead, Deut. 34. 1. Ver. 8 22. and 22 6 This Mountain is here called Gilead by anticipation, as appears from ver. 48.

22 And it was told Laban on the third day x, that Jacob was fled.

x That he heard of it no sooner, must be ascribed to the great distance which Laban had put between his and Jacob's Flocks, Gen 30. 36. and to the care and art which Jacob used to prevent a sooner discovery.

23 And he took his brethren with him, and pursued after him seven days journey; and they overtook him in the mount Gilead.

* Job 33. 15.

24 And God came to Laban the Syrian * in a dream by night, and said unto him, Take heed that thou speak not to Jacob † either good or bad y.

y Neither perswading him by flattering Promises, and cunning Artifices, nor compelling him by Threatnings, to return. For so these general words must be limited, as is evident from God's design in them, and from the following Relation. So this is a Synecdochical Expression 25 Then Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount, and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead.

26 And Laban said to Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and carried away my daughters, as captives taken with the sword z?

z By force and violence. A false Accusation; for they freely consented, ver. 14, 15, 16.

27 Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and † steal away from me, and didst not tell me, that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp?

28 And hast not suffered me to kiss my sons and my daughters a? thou hast now done foolishly in so doing b.

a As was usual at the parting of Friends. See the note on Gen. 29. 11. b But indeed Jacob took the wisest course for the security of his Person and Estate, especially having the direction and protection of God in it.

29 It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the God of your father c spake unto me yesternight, saying, Take thou heed, that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

c Isaac or Abraham, by which he disowns him for his God, and tacitly reproacheth him with the novelty of his Religion which was first brought in by his Father. Compare ver. 53.

30 And now though thou wouldst needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house; yet wherefore hast thou stoln my Gods d?

d Laban could not be so senseless, as to take those for true gods which could be stollen away; but he called them gods, because they were the means or representations whereby he worshipped his gods.

31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, Because I was afraid: for I said, Peradventure thou wouldst take by force thy daughters from me.

32 With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, * let him not live e: before our brethren discern thou what is thine with me, and take it to thee: for Jacob knew not that Rachel had stollen them.

* Chap. 9.

e We give my consent that he shall die by the hands of Justice. A rash and inconsiderate Sentence.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent f, and into the two maid-servants tents; but he found them not. Then went he out of Leah's tent, and entred into Rachel's tent.

f The Men and Womens Tents were distinct and separate. See Gen. 18. 2. and 24. 67.

34 Now Rachel had taken the Images, and put them in the camel's furniture, and sate upon them: and Laban † searched all the Tent, but found them not.

35 And she said to her father, Let it not displease my Lord that I cannot rise up before thee g; for the custom of women is upon me: and he searched, but found not the Images.

g Quest. How could that occasion hinder her from rising up to her Father? Answ. 1. It might be attended in her, as it was, and is, in some other Women, especially in those hot Countries, with a great flux of blood, or with more than ordinary infirmity and sickness; and this Laban might know to be usual with her by former observation or information. 2. She offers this as a reason, not why she could not rise up to shew a civility to him, but why she could not rise up from his face, or from before him, as the words in the Hebrew found, i. e. so as to give way to him that he might come and search there for the Images: Because menstruous Women were anciently esteemed polluted, and to pollute the things which they touched, or sat upon; as you may see by Levit. 15. 19, 20, 21, 22. Which Law, though it were not yet given and written, yet that, as well as divers other Ceremonial Rights, might be enjoined by God, and observed by sober Heathens at that time, especially by such as were akin to Abraham, as Laban and his Family were, who by that means might easily come to the knowledge of such matters. Add to this, one of the seven Precepts given to the Sons of Noah, was that of uncovering nakedness; which both Jewish and Christian Writers take to be a very comprehensive Expression, and to include all such things as have a natural turpitude in them, among which this is confessed to be one. And the words thus understood, contain a solid and satisfactory reason why Laban should not now come near her, nor search the things which she sat upon, which had been an uncivil and immodest thing.

36 And Jacob was very wroth, and chode with Laban, and Jacob answered, and said to Laban, What is my trespass? what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me h?

h With so much fury and violence.

37 Whereas thou hast † searched all my stuff, what hast thou found of all thy Houshold-stuff? set it here before my brethren, and thy brethren, that they may judge betwixt us both.

38 This twenty years have I been with thee: thy ewes, and thy she-goats have not cast their young i, and the rams of thy flock have I not eaten.

i Which thou owest in a great measure to my care and diligence in ordering them, and principally to God's blessing given to thee for my sake, by thy own confession, Gen. 30. 27.

39 That which was torn of beasts I brought not unto thee; I bare the loss of it: of * my hand didst thou require it k, whether stollen by day, or stollen by night.

* Exod. 22. 12.

k Which was unjust and unreasonable, except where it fell out through the Sheperds default, See Exod. 22. 13. Quest. How could Jacob pay these losses, seeing he came empty from his Father's House, and got nothing by his Service for the first 14 years, but his Wives? Ans. Either 1. he had some supplies sent from his Father, though it be not mentioned in this History: Or 2. he might have some inconsiderable Allowances or Priviledges from Laban, out of which he could easily defray these Charges, which because of his great care and watchfulness did but seldom happen: Or 3. these losses were put to his account, to be satisfied by him as soon as he should be able to do it.

40 Thus I was in the day, the drought consumed me, and the frost by night, and my sleep departed from mine eyes †.

† Through

† Through my extraordinary thoughtfulness and care about thy Cattle, especially in cases of danger.

41 Thus have I been twenty years in thy house: I served thee fourteen years for thy two daughters, and six years for thy cattle; and thou hast changed my wages ten times.

42 Except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the fear of Isaac l, had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty: God hath seen my affliction m, and the labour of mine hands, and rebuked thee yesternight.

l (i. e.) The God whom my Father Isaac worships with reverence and godly fear, as appears by comparing ver. 53. The Act is here put for the Object, as it frequently is; and particularly God is called our fear, Isa. 8. 13. And fear is one of God's Names amongst the Rabbins. He calls him not Isaac's God, but his fear, because Isaac was yet alive, and in the state of probation, and served God with fear and trembling. See Gen. 27. 33. The Jews observe, that God is not called the God of any particular person, as of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, till after their death. m With compassion and intention of good to me for it. God's seeing is oft used for his relieving and helping, as Gen. 16. 13. and 29. 32 Exod. 3. 7, 9. Or, hath shewed or proved it, to wit, that he hath seen, &c. Compare Gen. 20. 16. Either way it is an Ellipsis of the Pronoun, which is usual, as appears by comparing 1 King. 10. 7. with 2 Chron. 9. 6. and Psal. 41. 9. with Job. 13. 18.

43 And Laban answered, and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto their children which they have born o?

o He pretends that to be an act of his natural affection and kindness, which was indeed the effect of his fear.

44 Now therefore come thou, let us make a covenant, I and thou; and let it be for a witness between me and thee p.

p Both to our own Consciences of our mutual Obligations, and to God against either of us who shall break it, that he may severely punish us for it.

45 And Jacob took a stone, and set it up for a pillar q.

q In testimony of his compliance with Laban's Proposal, and his entring into this Covenant. See Exod. 24. 4.

46 And Jacob said unto his brethren, Gather stones: and they took stones, and made an heap, and they did eat r there upon the heap s.

r To wit, afterwards, ver. 54. though it be here mentioned by anticipation. s Or rather by or beside the heap, as the Hebrew Particle al is oft understood, as Psal. 23. 2. and 81. 7.

47 And Laban called it † Jegar-sahadutha: but Jacob called it Galeed t.

t Both names signify the same thing, an heap of witness; only Laban gives the name in the Syrian Language; but Jacob, though he had been long conversant in Syria, and understood that Language, yet he chose to give it in Hebrew, which was both a secret renouncing of the Syrian Manners and Religion, together with their Language, and an implicit profession of his conjunction with the Hebrews, as in their Tongue, so in their Religion.

48 And Laban said, This heap is a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed;

† That is, a beacon, or watch-tower.

49 And † Mizpah: for he said, The LORD watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another.

50 If thou shalt afflict my daughters, or if thou shalt take other wives beside my daughters u, no man is with us x; See, God is witness betwixt me and thee.

u The curse is here understood, as it commonly is, to maintain a greater reverence for Oaths, and to beget a greater dread of the curse belonging to the violaters of it. x (i. e.) Here is now no man with us, who when we are parted can witness and judge betweun us, and punish the Transgressor. Or thus, Though now we have many with us, as Witnesses of this Agreement, yet shortly when we shall be parted, no man will be with us, to observe and report our actions to the other, or to do the injur'd person right.

51 And Laban said to Jacob, Behold this heap, and behold this pillar, which I have cast betwixt me and thee.

52 This heap be witness, and this pillar be witness, that I will not pass over this heap to thee, and that thou shalt not pass over this heap and this pillar unto me, for harm.

53 The God of Abraham, and the God of Nahor, the God of their father y, judge betwixt us. And Jacob sware by the fear of his father Isaac.

y He joins Idols with the true God, and secretly chargeth the Religion of Jacob and Abraham with novelty, and prefers his own as the most ancient Religion. See Josh. 24. 2. Whence we may learn, that Antiquity of it self is no certain argument of the true Church or Religion.

54 Then Jacob † offered sacrifice z upon the mount, and called his brethren to eat bread, and they did eat bread, and tarried all night in the mount.

z Either to give God thanks for the great mercies and deliverances vouchsafed to him, or to beg God's blessing upon the present Treaty, and upon their whole Family. But it is not so probable that Jacob would chuse that time for the offering of Sacrifices when Laban was present, whom he could neither honestly admit to them, nor conveniently exclude from them. And therefore seeing the same Hebrew word signifies killing as well as sacrificing, as appears from Numb. 22. 40. 1 Sam 28. 24. 1 Kings 1. 9. 2 Chron. 18. 2. Ezek. 34. rather understand it of his killing of beasts in order to a Feast which he made for his brethen, whom he called, as it here follows, to eat bread, &c. under which phrase all meats are usually comprehended in Scripture, as hath been already noted, and will appear hereafter. And this practice was usual in those times, to confirm Covenants by a Feast. See Gen. 26. 30.

55 And early in the morning, Laban rose up and kissed his sons, and his daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departed, and returned unto his place.

CHAP. XXXII.

The angels of God meet Jacob, 1. He calls them God's host, and the place Mahanaim, 2. Sends messengers to his brother Esau, 3——5. They return, and bring word that Esau comes to meet him with four hundred men, 6. Jacob is afraid; divides his people and cattel into two bands, 7. Gives orders concerning them, 8. Prays to God in a very fervent and humble manner, 9——12. Sends presents to his brother, with directions; gets his wives and children over the ford by nights, 13——22. Jacob wrestles with God, and prevails; is called Israel: God blesseth him; he enquires after God's name; calls the place Peniel. Jacob halts, 24——31. The Jews observation in memorial of it, 32.

AND Jacob went on his way, and the Angels of God met him a.

a In visible, human, and glorious shape, as they frequently appeared to the Patriarchs.

2 And when Jacob saw them, he said, This is God's host b: and he called the name of that place † Mahanaim c.

† That is, two hosts or camps.

b So the Angels are justly called for their great number, Dan. 7. 10. Luke 2. 13. excellent order, mighty power, and for their use and service to God, and to his Church, for whose protection they are sent. See 2 Kings 6. 17. Psal. 34 7. c (i. e.) Two hosts; so called, either because the Angels divided themselves into two companies, and placed themselves some before, others behind him, or some on each side of him, for his greater comfort and security; or because the Angels made one host, and his Family another.

3 And Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother, unto the land of Seir d, the † countrey of Edom e.

d Of which see Gen. 14. 6. and 36. 9, 20, 21. whither Esau had removed his habitation from Canaan, partly out of discontent at his Parents; partly as most convenient for his course of life; and principally by direction of Divine Providence, that Canaan might be left free and clear for Jacob and his posterity. e So that Seir and Edom either are one and the same place; or rather Seir was a part of Edom. Some say both names are put here for distinction. For they make two Lands of Edom, the one Southward from Canaan, the other Eastward, and this latter they understand here, alledging that the other or Southern was so remote from Mount Gilead, whence Jacob was now descending, that Jacob need not fear Esau at that distance, nor send to him. But as that distinction seems to be without solid ground, so this reason seems to have but little weight in it, both because though this History immediately follows his descent from Mount Gilead, yet it might be done some competent time after it, and because Jacob in his journey to those parts where his father Isaac lived, and whither he was going, was still drawing nearer and nearer to Esau.

4 And he commanded them, saying, Thus shall ye speak unto my lord f Esau, Thy servant Jacob saith thus; I have sojourned with Laban, and stayed there until now g.

f Which Title being but a civil respect commonly given in Scripture to such persons as have no authority nor superiority over them who use it, as Gen. 23 6. and 24, 18. Jacob doth not hereby renounce his Right of Primogeniture which was devolved upon him, nor return it to Esau. Nor if he did hereby acknowledge Esau his Superior for the present, would this have been injurious to that Right, because Jacob was not yet in actual possession of it, for it was not to commence till his Father's death; and indeed did more belong to his posterity than to his person; and as to his person, did more respect his spiritual advantages, than his worldly greatness. See Gen. 27. 29. g As a stranger and exile, and so a more proper object for thy pity, than for thy envy.

5 And I have oxen, and asses, flocks, and menservants, and women-servants h: and I have sent to tell my Lord i, that I may find grace in thy sight k.

h Yet in my exile God hath blessed me with a competency of worldly goods, and therefore I am not likely to be either a burden to thee, or a disgrace to our Family. i To acquaint him with my coming, and with the state of my affairs. k That I may obtain pardon for my former errors, and thy favour and friendship for the future.

6 And the messengers returned to Jacob, saying, We came to thy brother Esau l, and also * he cometh to meet thee, and four hundred men with him m.

* Chap. 33. 1.

l Who gave them but an imperfect and a doubtful answer, as appears from Jacob's fear, ver. 7. m Which he brought either as his usual guard, he being then a great man in those parts; or in ostenta-tation of his power and greatnes, in spight of all the injury which his Father or Brother did him; or because at first he designed mischief to Jacob, as may seem by his dismissing of his messengers without any restimony of his favour; though afterwards upon Jacob's prayer, God changed his mind.

7 Then Jacob was greatly afraid m, and distressed, and he divided the people that was with him, and the flocks, and herds, and the camels into two bands, n Notwithstanding the renewed promise of God, and the late apparition of Angels; wherein he shewed the weaknes of his Faith, to which God left him for his Trial and Exercise, and to quicken him to prayer, that so God might have more Glory, and he more Comfort in the Mercy.

8 And said, If Esau come to the one company, and smite it, then the other company which is left, shall escape o.

o Either by flight, or because he supposed Esau's Revenge would be satisfied with the first slaughter.

9 And Jacob said, O God p of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac, the LORD which
* chap.31. 13. said unto me, *Return unto thy countrey, and to thy kindred, and I will deal well with thee:

p It is observable, that Jacob directs his prayers to God immediately, and not to the Angels, though now, if ever, he had reason and obligation to do so, from their visible apparition to him for his succor and comfort.

† Heb I am less than all, &c. 10 † I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the truth, which thou hast shewed unto thy servant q: for with my staff r, I passed over this Jordan s, and now I am become two bands t.

q In fulfilling thy promises made to me; and much more am I unworthy of those further mercies which I am now about to beg of thee. r Having nothing with me but my travelling staff for my support. s Or, that Jordan, either which I now see, as being at this time upon an high hill; or, which my mind is set upon, as that river which I am going to repass, that I may go to my Father, and to that good Land which thou hast given to me and mine for ever. t Or two Troops, or companies; into which he had now divided his people and cattel, ver. 7.

11 Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Esau: for I fear him, lest he † Heb. upon. will come, and smite me, and the mother, † with the children u.

u A proverbial speech, noting a total destruction. Compare Deut. 22.6. Hos. 10. 14.

* chap 28. 13, 14. 12 And * thou saidest, I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbred for multitude.

13 And he lodged there that same night, and took of that which came to his hand x, a present for Esau his brother:

x Either that which was in his hand and power; or rather, that which was nearest at hand, and most ready for him, because the approaching night, and his own great fear, gave him not leave to make so scrupulous a choice as otherwise he would have made.

14 Two hundred she-goats, and twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes, and twenty rams, 15 Thirty milch camels with their colts, forty kine, and ten bulls, twenty she-asses, and ten foals.

16 And he delivered them into the hand of his servants, every drove by themselves, and said unto his servants, Pass over before me, and put a space betwixt drove and drove y.

y That his gift might be represented to Esau with most advantage; and his mind might by little and little be sweetned towards him.

17 And he commanded the foremost, saying, When Esau my brother meeteth thee, and asketh thee, saying, Whose art thou? and whither goest thou? and whose are these before thee?

18 Then thou shalt say, They be thy servant Jacob's: it is a present sent unto my lord Esau: and behold also, he is behind us z.

z Coming to see thy face, and beg thy favour.

19 And so commanded he the second, and the third, and all that followed the droves, saying, On this manner shall you speak unto Esau, when you find him.

20 And say ye moreover, Behold, thy servant Jacob is behind us: for he said, I will appease him a with the present that goeth before me, and afterward a Heb. appease or allay his anger: for the Hebrew word panim signifies both anger, as Psal. 21. 9. and 34. 16. and face, as every where, because a mans anger is most discernable in his face or countenance, Prov. 21. 14. b Heb. will lift up my face or countenance, which now is dejected with the sense of his displeasure. Compare Gen. 4 6. or, will accept of my person, as this phrase is oft used.

21 So went the present over before him: and himself lodged that night in the company.

22 And he rose up that night, and took his two wives, and his two women-servants, and his eleven sons c, and passed over the ford Jabbok d.

c And Dinah, though she be not here mentioned; as the women are oft omitted in Scripture, as being comprehended under the men. d Which is here generally related, but the time and manner of it is particularly described in the following verses. Of this Ford Jabbok see Numb. 21. 24. Deut. 3. 16.

23 And he took them, and † sent them over the brook, and sent over that he had.

† Heb. led to pass, sending the man.

24 And Jacob was left alone e: and there wrestled † Heb. a man f with him, until the † breaking of the day.

e In some private place, it matters not on which side Jabbok, that he might more freely and ardently pour out his soul unto God. f An Angel, yea, the Angel of the Covenant, the Son of God, as it is plain from ver. 28, 30. and Hos. 12, 3, 4. who did here, as oft elsewhere, assume the shape and body of a man, that he might do this work: For this wrestling was real and corporeal in its nature, tho it was also mystical and spiritual in its signification, as we shall see, and it was accompanied with an inward wrestling by ardent prayers joined with tears, Hos. 12. 4.

25 And when he saw that he prevailed not against him g, he touched * the hollow of his thigh †: and * See Ma. the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with h. 26. 41. 2 Cor. 12.

g Not through impotency, but in design, he suffered himself to be conquered, to encourage Jacob's faith and hope against the approaching danger. † The joint of his Hip-bone, or rather the hollow in which that joint was. h Which was done, that Jacob might see that it was not his own strength, but only God's grace, which got him this Victory, and could give him the deliverance which he hoped for.

† Heb. be that to thee that is vicious.

26 And he said, Let me go i, for the day breaketh k: and he said, * I will not let thee go, except * Hos. 12. thou bless me l. 4.

i He saith this, partly to shew the prevailing power of his prayer with God, and partly to quicken and encourage Jacob to persist in his conflict. Compare Exod. 32. 10. Deut. 9. 14. k And I am not willing that there should be any spectators or witnesses of these things. l With the blessings which thou hast promised to Abraham and to me, among which one is protection in this hour of my danger. For Jacob now began to think that it was no man, nor ordinary Angel, that was with him, but God himself, as he saith, ver. 30.

27 And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob.

28 And he said, * Thy name shall be called no * Chap.35. more Jacob m, but Israel n: for as a Prince hast thou 10. power with God and with men o, and hast prevailed p.

m Not Jacob only. See the like manner of expression, 1 Sam. 8. 7. Jer. 23. 7. Joh. 7. 16. 1 Cor. 1. 17. n Which signifies a Prince or prevailer with God: or a Prince of God; i. e. a great Prince and Conqueror. o Thou hast in some sort conquered both God in this conflict, and men, Laban, Esau, &c. p Or, and shalt prevail over Esau of whom thou art afraid.

29 And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name q; and he said, Wherefore is it that thou dost ask after my name r? and he blessed him there s.

q That I may give thee the honour due to it. Art thou a created Angel, or art thou the Ever blessed God? r A question which carries in it both a denial of his request, as Judges 13. 17, 18. and a reproof of his curiosity. s In an eminent and peculiar manner, which was a real answer to Jacob's question, and gave him to understand both his name and nature.

30 And Jacob called the name of the place † Peniel: for I * have seen God face to face t, and my life is preserved u. † That is, the face of God.

t Not in his Essence, for so no man ever saw God, John 1. 18. nor Exod. 24. yet in a dream or vision, but in a most evident, sensible, familiar 11. and and friendly manifestation of himself. u And I am now well as- 33. 20. sured of my safety from Esau, whose approach threatned my life. Deut. 5. Or he speaks of it with wonder, as others did, that he should see 24. God, and not be struck dead by the Glory of his presence. Com- Isa. 6. 5. pare Gen. 16. 13. Exod. 20. 19. Judges 6. 22, 23. and 13. 22.

31 And as he passed over Peniel, the sun rose upon him, and he halted upon his thigh.

32 Therefore the children of Israel eat not x of the sinew which shrank, which is upon the hollow of the thigh, unto this day: because he touched the hollow of Jacob's thigh, in the sinew that shrank.

x Not from any superstitious conceit about it, but only for a memorial of this admirable conflict, the blessed effects whereof even the future generations received.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Jacob sets his wives and children in the order they shall travel, 1, 2. Meets his brother; his obeysance to him, 3. Esau kindly embraces Jacob, 4. His wives and children present themselves to Esau, 7. Jacob offers a present to his brother, 8. He refuses it, 9. Jacob presses him, and he accepts, 10, 11. They part friendly, 12——15. Esau returns to Seir; Jacob comes to Succoth, 17. from thence he goes to Sichem; where he buyes a field for 100 pieces of money; builds an altar; calls it El-Elohe-Israel, 18——20.

a Placing his best beloved in the last and safest place.

3 And he passed over before them b, and bowed himself to the ground seven times, until he came near to his brother.

b Exposing himself to the first and greatest hazard for the security of his Wives and Children.

4 And Esau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him, and they wept.

5 And he lift up his eyes, and saw the women, and † Heb to thee. the children, and said, Who are those † with thee? and he said, The children which God hath graciously given thy servant.

6 Then the handmaidens came near, they and their children, and they bowed themselves.

7 And Leah also with her children came near, and bowed themselves: and after came Joseph near and Rachel, and they bowed themselves.

† Heb. What is all this hand to thee? 8 And he said, † What meaneth thou by all this drove which I met? † And he said, These are to find grace in the sight of my Lord.

d Or, For I therefore tender it unto thee, and humbly beg thy acceptance of it, because: For thus the Hebrew al cen is used. Numb. 14. 43. and elsewhere. e It is in a manner as pleasant a sight to me as the sight of God himself, because in thy reconciled Face, I see the face and favour of God thus manifested unto me.

f This Gift, which as I received from God's blessing, so I heartily give it to thee with my blessing and prayer, that God would abundantly bless it to thee. Gifts are oft called Blessings, as Jos. 15. 19. 1 Sam. 25. 27. and 30. 26.

12 And he said, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee g.

g Or rather, beside thee, so as to keep thee company, or to keep pace with thee.

† Heb. according to the foot of the work, &c. servant, and I will lead on softly, according † as the cattle that goeth before me, and the children be able to endure, until I come unto my Lord unto Seir k.

k We do not read that Jacob did according to this Promise or Insinuation, go to Seir; either therefore he changed his first Intentions for some weighty reasons, or upon warning from God; Or, he used this only as a pretence, which we should not too easily believe of so good a man, especially after such Dangers and Deliverances; or rather he did perform this Promise, though the Scripture be silent of it, as it is of many other Historical passages, and as it is here concerning Jacob's visiting of his Father Isaac, which is not mentioned till ten years after this time; and yet it is utterly incredible that Jacob should be so near to his dear and worthy Father for so long a time together, and not once give him a visit.

† Heb. see or place. † Heb. wherefore is this? 15 And Esau said, Let me now † leave with thee some of the folk that are with me: And he said, † What needeth it? * let me find grace in the sight of my Lord.

* Chap.34. 11. 16 So Esau returned that day on his way unto Seir.

17 And Jacob journyed to Succoth, and built him an house l, and made booths for his cattle: therefore † That is, booths. the name of the place is called † Succoth.

l Which doubtless was some slight building, because he intended not to stay there.

* Called Acts 7.16. Sychem. 18 And Jacob came to Shalem m, a city of * Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-Aram, and pitched his tent before the city n.

m Most take it for the proper name of a place belonging to Shechem, as it here follows, called Salim, John 3. 23. and Sichem or Sychar, John 4. 5. But others take it for an appellative Noun, and render the place thus, he came safe or whole to the City of Shechem; to note either that he was then cured of the lameness which the Angel gave him; or rather, to note the good Providence of God, that had brought him safe in his Person, Family, and Estate, through all his dangers; first from Laban, then from Esau, till he came to this place, where it seems he intended to make his abode for a good while, had not the following Miscarriages obliged him to remove. n (i. e.) Near to it, but not in it, for the conveniency of his Cattle.

Compare Numb. 11. 12. q The word is used only here, and Jos. 24. 32. Job 42. 11. and it may signify either Lambs, given in way of exchange for it, or pieces of Money, which seems more probable, both by comparing Acts 7. 16. and because Money was come into use in that place and time, Gen. 17. 12, 13. and 23. 16. and 47. 16. which were called Lambs possibly from the figure of a Lamb stamped upon it, as the Athenian Money was called an Ox for the like reason, and as we call a piece of Gold a Jacobus, because the Picture of that King is upon it.

20 And he erected there an Altar, and called it † El-Elohe-Israel r. † That is, God the God of Israel.

r Or, Called upon El-Elohe-Israel, the particle Lo, being redundant, as such Pronouns oft are, as Gen 12. 1. and Jeshua 20. 2.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Dinah going forth to see the daughters of the country, is abused and defiled by Sichem, son of Hamor, 2. Who loves her, 3. Desires to marry her, 4. Jacob hears it, 5. Hamor treats with Jacob and his sons, 6——12. They answered him deceitfully, making a condition that all the males of the Sichemites should be circumcised, 13——17. They and their citizens consent to it, 18 —— 23. Are circumcised, and, when sore, surprized and murthered by Simeon and Levi; the city is plundered by Jacob's sons; the women and children are carried away captive, 24——29. Jacob is exceedingly troubled and afraid, 30. They justify themselves, 31.

AND * Dinah the daughter of Leah, which she * Chap.30 bare unto Jacob, went out a to see the daughters 21. of the land.

a From her Father's House into the City, out of curiosity, there being then, as Josephus reports, a great concourse of people to a Feast. Thus she put her self out of her Father's protection, and merely out of a vain humour, exposed both her self and others to temptation; which was the worse, because it was amongst them that had no fear of God to restrain them from the most enormous Crimes. She was now fourteen or fifteen years old.

2 And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, Prince of the country saw her, he took her, and lay with her, and † defiled her. † Heb. humbled her.

3 And his soul clave unto Dinah the daughter of Jacob, and he loved the damsel, and spake † kindly unto † Heb. to the heart of the damsel b. the Damsel.

b Perceiving her to be exceedingly enraged and perplexed at this horrid violence, he endeavours to appease and sweeten her, and to get her consent to marry him. See Isa. 40. 2.

4 And Shechem spake unto his father Hamor, say- Hos. 2. 14. ing, Get me this damsel to wife c.

c He desires both his Father's consent and assistance herein.

5 And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter (now his sons were with his cattle in the field) and Jacob held his peace until they were come d.

d Being unable to punish the Delinquent, and not knowing what to do, he waits for his Sons coming and advice.

6 And Hamor the father of Shechem, went out unto Jacob to commune with him.

7 And the sons of Jacob came out of the field when they heard it, and the men were grieved: and they were very wroth, because he had wrought folly e in Israel f, in lying with Jacob's daughter; which thing ought not to be done g.

e That is, wickedness; which howsoever vain men many times esteem their wisdom, by the Sentence of the All-wise God is accounted and commonly in Scripture called folly, as Deut. 22, 21. Josh. 7. 15. Judg. 19. 23. and 20. 6, &c. f Or, against Israel, either 1. against the person, and in or against the Family of Israel, a person near and dear to God, and highly honoured by him, and in Covenant with God; who therefore esteems the injuries done to Israel, as if they were done to himself. See Gen. 12. 3. Exod. 23. 22. Zech. 2. 8. Or 2. in or against the Church of God, which then was in a manner confined to that Family, and which is oft called by the name of Israel. See Deut. 22. 21. Josh. 7. 15. And Moses may here vary the phrase from what was used in Jacob's time, to what was usual in his time, the sense being in both the same, and therefore not altered by such a change. g Heb. shall not be done, i. e. should not, &c. But in the Hebrew Language words of the future time oft signify duty and decency, as Mal. 1. 6. and 2. 7.

8 And Hamor communed with them h, saying, The soul of my son Shechem longeth for your daughter: I pray you give her him to wife.

b With Jacob's sons, to whom Jacob committed the business, being himself oppressed with shame and grief, and fear for his daughter. i The daughter of your Family; or he thus speaketh to her brothers, because they transacted all in their Father's name.

9 And make ye marriages with us, and give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you.

10 And ye shall dwell with us, and the land shall be before you k: dwell and trade you therein, and get you possessions therein l.

k (i. e.) In your power, to dwell where you please, and to have the same Rights and Priviledges in it which we enjoy. See Gen. 20. 15. l Or take possession in it, i. e. in any vacant part of it, use it for Pasture or Tillage, as you think good, and take the benefit to your selves.

11 And Shechem said unto her father, and unto her Chap 33. 15. brethren, * Let me find grace in your eyes, and what ye shall say unto me, I will give.

12 Ask me never so much dowry and gift m, and I will give according as ye shall say unto me: but give me the damsel to wife.

m Dowry to her for her Portion, according to the ancient custom of mens buying their wives; of which see Exod. 22. 17. and Gift to you either for reparation of the past injury, or in testimony of my respect to you, and desire of her, as Gen. 24. 53.

13 And the sons of Jacob answered Shechem, and Hamor his father deceitfully n, and said, (because he had defiled Dinah their sister.)

n Pretending and promising Marriages with them upon that condition, which they never intended.

14 And they said unto them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is uncircumcised o:
Jos 5. 9. for * that were a reproach unto us.

n There was no such Law yet in force, as the Examples of Isaac and Jacob shew, who married the daughters of uncircumcised persons, and therefore they do not here reject it as simply unlawful, but only as dishonourable and reproachful.

17 But if ye will not hearken unto us to be circumcised, then will we take our daughter, and we will be gone.

18 And their words pleased Hamor, and Shechem Hamor's son.

19 And the young man deferred not to do the thing, because he had delight in Jacob's daughter: and he was more honourable than all the house of his father.

20 And Hamor and Shechem his son came unto the gate of their city p, and communed with the men of their city, saying, p The place where all publick affairs were debated and concluded. See on Gen 22. 17. and 23. 10.

21 These men are peaceable with us, therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein: for the land, behold it is large enough for them: let us take their daughters to us for wives, and let us give them our daughters.

22 Only herein will the men consent unto us, for to dwell with us, to be one people, if every male among us be circumcised, as they are circumcised.

23 Shall not their cattel, and their substance, and every beast of theirs be ours q? only let us consent unto them, and they will dwell with us.

q Either for our use and benefit in the way of Commerce and Trade; or because they will descend to the Issue of our Children as well as theirs; or because we being more numerous and potent than they, can easily over-rule them, and when we think meet, dispose all things to our own advantage. Thus they cover their private design with the specious shew of publick good.

24 And unto Hamor, and unto Shechem his son, hearkned r all that went out of the gate of his city s; and every male was circumcised, all that went out of the gate of his city.

r They yielded to Circumcision, partly in compliance with their young Prince, whom they either loved or feared; and partly for the prospect of their own advantage; for which men are frequently willing to expose themselves to great pains and hazards. s All the Citizens that went out of the gate, &c. or came in at the gate, as they are described Gen. 23. 10. Jer. 17. 20. For when the chief persons had consented, they could easily persuade or over-rule others to comply with them.

25 And it came to pass on the third day t, when they were sore u, that two of the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi x, Dinah's brethren y, took each man Chap 49. 6. his sword, and came upon the city boldly and * slew all the males z.

t When the pain and grief of Wounds is the greatest, as Physicians note. u And therefore not well able to defend themselves; for Circumcision caused great pain in Children, which was the ground of that Exclamation, Exod. 4. 25. much more in grown men. See Jos. 5. 8. x These two only are mentioned, because they were Authors of the Counsel, and Conductors of the rest in the Execution; but it is probable from ver. 27. that most of their Brethren were confederate with them, and that they had a considerable number of their Servants with them, who would be ready enough to revenge their Master's quarrel, and to punish so great a Villany; but all that was done is justly ascribed to them two, as it is common for all writers to say this or that was done by such a Captain or General, when in truth it was done by his Souldiers. y So they were both by the Father and Mother; which made them more forward and zealous than the rest. z Such of them as were grown up, by comparing, verse 29. for these, or some of them seem to have been the abettors of the injury against their Sister and Family. Their Sin in this act was manifold; that they did it without sufficient Authority, and against their Father's Mind, as appears from verse 20. and Gen. 49. 6. which they well knew; and without all bounds, rashly, unjustly, and cruelly punished the Innocent and the Guilty together, and usher'd in this fact with horrible deceit and lying, and that under pretence of Friendship, and shew of Religion.

26 And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son, † Heb. mouth. with the † edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechems house, and went out.

27 The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and spoiled the city, because they had a defiled their sister.

a (i. e.) One of them, as oft-times that which is done by one man is imputed to the whole body. See Jos. 7. 1, 11, 12. and 22. 20. Matth. 2. 20. Or they impute Shechem's fact to all, either invidiously and cunningly to take off from themselves the reproach of this cruel action; or because they made themselves guilty of it, either by not discouraging and hindring that sinfulness, as far as they might; or by their being instrumental in it; or by their approbation of it, and complacency in it.

28 They took their sheep and their oxen, and their asses, and that which was in the city, and that which was in the field b, b Thus they add to their cruelty, theft and robbery; which doubtless Jacob disowned when they brought the spoil home, and returned back both the surviving People and their Goods, though it be passed over in silence, as many other things are. See on Gen. 33. 14.

29 And all their wealth, and all their little ones, and their wives took they captive, and spoiled even all that was in the house c.

c Either in the Prince's House, or in their several Houses; or within doors, as the word signifies.

30 And Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, * Ye have Chap. 49. 6. troubled me, d * to make me to stink e among the in- Exod. 5. habitants of the land, amongst the Canaanites, and 21.
the Perizzites: and I being few in number f, they shall gather themselves together against me, and slay me †, and I shall be destroyed, I, and my house.

d You have not only discomposed my Mind, but perplexed my Affairs, and brought me into such troubles and dangers, as I am never likely to escape. e You have made me odious to them, who will impute this perfidious and bloody fact to my contrivance. f Heb. Men of number, i. e. few; for such can easily be numbred. So this phrase is used, Deut. 4. 27. and 33. 6. opposite to which are men without number, 2 Chron. 12. 3. † He could expect no other in human reason, and they were hindred from to doing only by the hand of the great God smiting them with terrour Gen. 35. 5.

31 And they said, Should he deal with our sister as with an harlot g?

g Shall we express no more resentment of this abominable abuse of our Sister, than if she had been some common Harlot, whose abuse no Man either regardeth or revengeth? Thus they excuse one fault by committing another, and defend themselves by accusing their Father of stupidity, and insensibleness of so great an indignity and injury.

CHAP. XXXV.

God commands Jacob to dwell at Bethel, and build an altar there, 1. He commands his family to purge themselves from idols, and go to Bethel, 2. They obey, 3. He and they go thither; none pursuing them; the reason thereof, 5, 6. There he builds an an altar, 7. The death and burial of Rebekah's nurse, 8. God appears to Jacob, confirms his name of Israel, renewes the promises, 9——13. For which he sets up a pillar, pours oyl thereon, and calls the place Bethel, 14, 15. Going thence Rachel dies in labour of Benjamin, and is buried there, 16——20. Reuben commits incest in his father's house, 22. Jacob's sons names, 23——26. Jacob visits his father Isaac, 27. His age, death, and burial, 28, 29.

AND God said unto Jacob a, Arise, go up to Beth-el, and dwell there, and make there an altar unto God * that appeared unto thee, * when thou a This was a word in season to comfort his disquieted Mind, Chap. 27. 43 and convey him to a safer place. b Understand, and pay thy Vows there made in the time of thy distress, but not yet paid; whether it was Jacob's errour to forget and neglect his former Vows and Promises; or whether he waited for a fit time, or an admonition from God concerning the season of paying them.

2 Then

2 Then Jacob said unto his houshold, and to all Chap 31. 19. 34. Jos. 24. 2. that were with him, Put away the * strange gods c that are among you d, and be clean e, and change your garments f;

c The Idols, which are so called here, and Deut. 31. 16. and 32. 12. Jos. 24. 20. because they were the Gods of strange and foreign Nations, such as all were accounted who were not Israelites. Quest. How came these to be, and to continue so long in Jacob's House? Answ. Either 1. by Rachel's means, who brought them from her Father's House, which haply was not discovered till this time Or 2. by Leah, and by Jacob's two Concubines, who might possibly bring such with them. Or 3. by the means of Jacob's gentile Servants who might secretly worship such Gods; or having taken them from the Sichemites, they might keep them for their precious Matter, as Gold and Silver, though not for Religious use. d Like a good Man, and a good Master of a Family, he takes care not only for himself, but for all his Family to keep them from the exercise of a false Religion, and to engage them as far as he can in the profession and practice of the true. Compare Gen. 18. 19. Jos. 24. 18. e Cleanse your selves by outward and ritual washing, as Exod 19. 10, 14. which even then was in use; and especially by purging your Hearts as well as Hands from these Idols, which, I perceive, to my sorrow, some of you have still retained; and from your late detestable cruelty; that you may be fit to approach to that God who hath now summoned me and you to make a solemn appearance before him. f Either by putting on new Garments, as 2 Samuel 12. 20. or by washing the old ones, as Exodus 19. 10. Leviticus 15. 13. And these, as well as other ceremonial Institutions and Practices, were professions of their Repentance, which consists in putting off the old man, and putting on the new, Eph. 4. 22.

3 And let us arise, and go up to Beth-el, and I will make there an altar unto God, who answered me in the day of my distress g, and was with me in the way which I went.

g He takes God's gracious Promise, and the comfortable hope and assurance of God's Favour to him, and Care of him, impressed by God upon his Mind and Heart, for an answer to his Prayers, though he had then seen no success nor accomplishment of God's word to him.

4 And they gave unto Jacob all the strange gods which were in their hand, and all their ear-rings which were in their ears h, and Jacob hid them i under Jos. 24. 26. Judg. 9. 6. the * oak k which was by Shechem.

h Either because they had been abused to Idolatry and Superstition at Sichem or elsewhere, and therefore were to be destroyed according to God's command now signified to Jacob, and afterwards delivered to his Posterity, Deut. 7. 5. and 12. 3. or for fear they should be so abused. For the Scripture seems to insinuate, and other Writers expressly affirm, That divers Heathen People did wear ear-rings for the Honour of their Idols, and with the Representations or Ensigns of their Idols engraven upon them. See Judges 8. 24. i After he had melted or broken them, which seems probable from parallel instances, as Exod. 32. 22. 2 Kings 18. 4. k Under a certain Oak, though not known to his Family which it was He chose that place, either as most proper to put Monuments of Idolatry under those Trees which were so much, and so generally abused to Idolatry, as Oaks especially were, Isa. 1. 29. or as the fittest place, where they were likely to remain longest hid, because the Heathen had a veneration for Oaks, and therefore would not cut them down, nor dig them up, nor do any thing which had a tendency that way.

Exod. 15. 16. and 34. 24. Deut. 11. 25. Jos. 5. 1. 5 And they journeyed: and * the terrour of God l was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob.

l (i. e.) A great terrour sent from God, as Exod. 23. 27. Jos. 2. 9, 11. 2 Chron. 14. 14. and 17. 10. So we read of a sleep of God, 1 Sam. 26. 12. Nothing less could have secured Jacob, considering the great Number, Power, and Rage of his Enemies.

6 ¶ So Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land of Canaan m, (that is Beth-el) he and all the people that were with him.

m Properly so called, or where the Canaanites properly so called dwelt: Thus it is distinguished from another Luz, Judges 1. 26.

Chap. 28. 19 † That is, the God of Bethel. 7 And he built there an altar, and * called the place † El-beth-el n, because there God appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

n (i. e.) He confirmed the name which he had formerly given to the place.

8 But Deborah Rebekahs nurse o died, and she was buried beneath Beth-el under an oak: and the name
† That is, of the oak of weeping. † of it was called † Allon-bachuth p.

o Who came with Rebekah into Canaan, Gen. 24. 59. and probably tarried with her whilest she lived, and after her death, as it seems, and upon Jacob's desire, after his return from Haran, came into his Family; where, being a person of great prudence and piety, her presence and advice was very useful in his numerous and divided Family. p From the great lamentation which they made there for the loss of a person of such singular worth.

¶ And God appeared unto Jacob again, when he Chap 32. 28. came out of Padan-Aram, and blessed him.

10 And God said unto him, Thy name is Jacob:
Chap 32. 28. thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, * but Israel shall be thy name q; and he called his name Israel.

q I do not repent of the change which I made of thy name, but I do again confirm it; and as then thou didst prevail over thy brother Esau, so now thou shalt prevail over those of whom thou art afraid.

11 And God said unto him, * I am God Almigh-

12 And the land * which I gave Abraham and Isaac, Chap 12. 7. and 26. 3. to thee will I give it, and to thy seed after thee will I give this land.

13 And God went up from him t in the place where he talked with him.

t Either locally and visibly; to wit, in that humane shape in which he appeared to him; or by withdrawing the signs of his special presence, as Gen. 17. 22. Judg. 13. 20. as on the contrary God is said to come down, not by change of place, but by some signal manifestation of his Presence and Favour, as Exod. 3. 8. Numb. 11. 7.

14 And Jacob set up a pillar u in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of stone: and he poured a drink-offering x thereon, and he poured oyl thereon.

u Either he repaired the old pillar, set up by him, Gen. 28. 18. which was ruined by the injury of time, or by the neighbouring Idolaters; or rather erected a new one, more stable and durable than he could do in that time, as a Monument or Witness of God's manifold Favours, and of his own Gratitude. x Of Wine, as may be gathered by comparing Exod 29. 40. Numb. 28. 14.

15 And Jacob called the name of the place, where Chap. 28. God spake with him, * Beth-el.

16 ¶ And they journeyed from Beth-el: and there † Heb. a little piece of ground. was but † a little way to come to Ephrath; and Rachel travailed, and she had hard labour.

17 And it came to pass, when she was in hard labour, that the midwife said unto her, Fear not: thou shalt have this son also.

18 And it came to pass, as her soul was in departing y, (for she died) that she called his name

y Or, In going out, namely out of the body, as Psal. 146. 4. † That is, which is an argument of the souls immortality, especially if compared with Eccles. 12. 7. From which place, laid together, we learn the two terms of the Journey, whence it goes, and whither it goes. z Either as near, and dear, and precious to him as his right hand, which is both more useful and more honourable than the left. See Psal. 86. 17. or instead of his right hand, the staff, stay, and comfort of his old Age.

Chap. 48. 7. 19 And * Rachel died, and was buried in the way to Ephrath a; which is Bethlehem.

a Not in the City though that was near; for in ancient times their Sepulchres were not in the places of retort, but in separated places, and out of Cities. See Matth 27. 60. Luke 7. 12.

20 And Jacob set a pillar b upon her grave: that is the pillar of Rachels grave unto this day c.

e An horrid Incest; for Concubines were a sort of Wives. See Gen. 22. 24. and 25. 1. f And doubtless sadly resented it, both in Reuben, as appears from Gen. 49. 4. 1 Chron. 5. 1, 2. and in Bilhah whose Bed without question he forsook upon it, as afterwards David did in the like case. See 2 Sam. 16. 22. and 20. 3 Yet here is no mention of Jacob's reproof of it, nor any censure of Moses added to it; possibly to teach us, that we are not to approve of every fact which is mentioned in Scripture without censure, and that the miscarriages of Professours of Religion are rather to be silently bewailed, than publickly reproached, lest Religion should suffer by it. g Which were heads of the twelve Tribes; therefore his daughter Dinah is not here mentioned, because she was not the head of a Tribe b All but Benjamin, who must in all reason be supposed to be excepted here, because he is said to be born elsewhere, above, verse 16. But it is an usual Synecdoche, whereby that is ascribed to all in gross, which belongs to the greatest part. See Genesis 15. 13. and 46. 15. Exodus 12. 40. Judges 20. 46. John 20. 24. 1 Cor. 15. 5.

See Gen. 13. 6 and 36. 7.

Esau's wives and children born in Canaan, 1——5. They remove from Jacob to Seir; the reason, 6——8. His posterity, 9——19. As also that of Seir the Horite, 20. Among whom is Ana, who first found out mules in the wilderness, 24. His children, 25——30. A catalogue of kings and princes in Edom, 31——43.

NOW these are the generations of Esau a, who is Edom.

a They are here mentioned partly to shew the effect of his Father's Blessing, chap. 27. 39. partly that the Israelites might be admonished to treat the Edomites like Brethren, and not to invade their Land. See Deut. 23. 7.

2 Esau took his wives of the daughters of Cana-Verse 25. an: Adah the daughter of Elon the Hittite, and * Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon the Hivite b.

b If this account be compared with that Gen. 26. 34. we shall find some difficulties, which yet admit of an easy reconciliation, if these things be considered. 1. That it is very usual and confessed by all, that the same persons are oft called by several names. 2. That the names of some persons are in Scripture given to others, because of a great resemblance between them. Upon which account the Parents of the Israelites are called Amorites and Hittites, Ezek. 16. 3. and the Governours of Jerusalem are called the Rulers of Sodom and Gomorrah, Isa. 1. 10 and John the Baptist is called Elias, Matth. 17. 12. 3. That the same men are oft-times denominated from several Countries, as Christ is noted to have a threefold Countrey in Scripture; Bethlehem by his Birth; Nazareth by his Education; and Capernaum by his much Residence and Preaching there. 4 That the same names are sometimes common to Men and Women. 5. That persons are called the Children, not only of their immediate Parents, but of their Grand parents, and of those who adopted them. These things premised, the seeming contradictions objected by Infidels, do vanish. She who was properly called Judith, chap. 26. is here called Aholibamah, a name which seems to be given her either by Isaac, or by Moses, from her settledness in her Idolatrous courses. And Adah was also called Bashemath; and Mahalath, Ishmael's daughter, was called Bashemath, chap. 26. either because in her Principles and Manners she resembled Esau's other Wife so called, or to shew that Ishmael's Marriage to a third Wife was no less opprobrious to him, and displeasing to his Parents than the former; Anah a Man, and the Son of Zibeon, as appears from verse 24. called here an Hivite, is called Beeri the Hittite, chap. 26. either because those two People were mixed together in Habitation and by Marriage, or because the one People were larger than the other, and comprehended under their name, or because he was an Hivite by birth, an Hittite by habitation or incorporation with them. Hence also we may learn how Aholibamah here comes to be the Daughter both of Anah, and of Zibeon; the one being either the Natural or Proper Father, and the other either the Grandfather, or Father by Adoption.

3 And * Bashemath, Ishmael's daughter, sister of Chap. 26. 24. Nebajoth.

4 And * Adah bare to Esau, Eliphaz c: and Bashe-1 Chron. 1. 35. math bare Reuel d.

c The progenitor of that Eliphaz, Job 2. 11. d The father of Jethro. See Exod. 2. 18. Numb. 10. 29.

5 And Aholibamah bare Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah: these are the sons of Esau e, which were born unto him in the land of Canaan.

e He had also Daughters, ver. 6. though their names be not here mentioned.

6 And Esau took his wives, and his sons, and his

f Quest. 1. Why went he thither? Answ. Partly by his own choice, that Wild and Mountainous Country being very commodious for hunting, to which he wholly addicted himself; partly by his Wives perswasions, who were both utterly averse to cohabitation with Isaac or Jacob, and strongly inclined to their own Country; but principally from the secret conduct of Divine Providence, thus accomplishing his promises. See Josh. 24. 4. Mal. 1. 3. Quest. 2. When went he thither? Answ. He went thither before this time in discontent at his Parents, and dwelt in Seir before Jacob's return to Canaan, as appears from Gen. 32. 3. and 33. 14, 16. Yet so as he came sometimes to Canaan, and to his Father's house, and did not quit his interest in his father's estate. But when his Father was dead, and Jacob and he agreed about the partition of the Estate, he did totally and finally forsake Canaan, partly for the reason here following; partly for the other reasons now alledged; and partly to avoid all occasion both of Communication and Contention with his Brother.

g (i. e.) Further up into the Countrey: Or, into another Country, as the Chaldee renders it, namely, into Seir; the word another being supplied. If that seem too bold a supplement, the place may be rendered thus, he went into a land distant or remote from the face of his brother, which supplement lies hid, and is implied in the word Mipne, from the face: Or thus, he went out of the Land: For so the Hebrew Preposition El is sometimes used for Min, which signifies off, or out of, as appears by comparing 1 Kings 8. 30 with 2 Chron. 6. 21. and Isa. 59. 20. Rom. 11. 26. and Judges 17. 2. 2 Chron. 1. 13. and many other places.

7 * For their riches were more than that they might Chap. 13. dwell together: and † the land wherein they were h, 11. strangers h, could not bear them, because of their † Chap. 28. 8. and 31. cattle.

h Which words contain the reason why that Land which was large and fruitful could not bear them, because they were not entire possessors of it, but only sojourners in it, and therefore must take the owner's leavings, which were not sufficient for both of them and their numerous Families.

8 Thus dwelt Esau in * mount Seir: Esau is Edom i.
* Josh. 24.

i This seems to be mentioned by the Holy Ghost by way of contempt or reproach; this is he who sold his Birth-right for a mess of Red Pottage, and therefore was called Edom or Red.

9 And these are the generations of Esau, the father of † the Edomites in mount Seir. † Heb. house.

10 These are the names of Esau's sons: * Eliphaz the
* 1 Chron. son of Adah the wife of Esau, Reuel the son of * Bashemath the wife of Esau. 1. 35, &c.

11 And the sons of Eliphaz were Teman, Omar, † Or, Zo- † Zepho, and Gatam, and Kenaz.

12 And Timna was concubine to Eliphaz Esau's plia. son, and she bare to Eliphaz, Amalek: these were the sons of Adah, Esau's wife.

13 And these are the sons of Reuel: Nahath, and Zerah, Shammah and Mizzah: these were the sons of Bashemath, Esau's wife.

14 And these were the sons of Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon, Esau's wife, and she bare to Esau, Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

15 These were Dukes k of the sons of Esau: the sons of Eliphaz the first-born son of Esau, Duke Teman, Duke Omar, Duke Zepho, Duke Kenaz, k Princes or Heads of their several Families and little Principalities, according to the manner of those times, who ruled their Dominions, either severally, each his own, or jointly by common advice, or it may be under one chief Prince, their superior either in Title or in Power. And in this division Eliphaz, as he was Esau's first-born, so he had more than a double portion, his six sons being made Dukes, as Esau's immediate Sons were. Compare 1 Chron. 5. 1.

16 Duke Korah l, Duke Gatam, and Duke Amalek. These are the Dukes that came of Eliphaz, in the land of Edom: These were the sons of Adah.

l He is not mentioned among Eliphaz his sons, and therefore is thought to be his Grandson. There is another Korah, ver. 14. and 18.

17 And these are the sons of Reuel, Esau's son:
Duke Nahath, Duke Zerah, Duke Shammah, Duke Mizzah. These are the Dukes that came of Reuel, in the land of Edom. These are the sons of Bashemath, Esau's wife.

18 And these are the sons of Aholibamah, Esau's wife: Duke Jeush, Duke Jaalam, Duke Korah: These were the Dukes that came of Aholibamah the daughter of Anah, Esau's wife.

19 These are the sons of Esau (who is Edom) and these are their Dukes.

20 * These are the sons of Seir m the Horite, who * 1 Chron. inhabited the land o, Lotan, and Shobal, and Zibeon, 1. 38. and Anah, m Who are here mentioned, partly because of their alliance with Esau's Family, ver. 2, 20, 22, 24, 25 and partly because the Government was translated from his to Esau's Family. o And ruled there, till Esau and his posterity drove them out, Deut. 2. 12, 22.

21 And Dishon, and Ezer, and Dishan: these are man. the Dukes of the Horites the children of Seir, in the 1 Chron. land of Edom. 1. 39.

22 And the children of Lotan, were Hori, and † * Or, Alan, Heman: and Lotan's sister was Timna. 1 Chron. 1.

23 And the children of Shobal were these: * Alvan, 40. and Manahath, and Elal, † Shepho, and Onam. † Or, Shefi. plu.

24 And these are the children of Zibeon, both 1 Chron. Ajah, 1. 40.

Lev. 19. 9. Ajah, and Anah: this was that Anah that found * the mules p in the wilderness, as he fed the asses of Zibeon his father.

p So most understand the word Jemim, which is no where else used, and give this sense of it. That he found out the way of the Generation of Mules by the Copulation of an Horse and a Mare. Others render it waters, that he found out some springs of water, which in those hot Countries were rare and precious; or hot waters, some hot and medicinal springs. But the Chaldee renders it Giants, and the Samaritan Version Emims, a sort of Giants mentioned Deut. 2. 10, 11. who also were Neighbours to the Horites here spoken of, as appears from Gen. 14, 5, 6. and therefore might, according to the manner of those times, make inroads one upon another. So Jemim is put for Emim, either by an Apocope of the first letter, or by the change of the Hebrew Letter Jod into Aleph, both which are frequent among the Hebrews. And the sense is, that Anah the Horite found out the Emims, that is, he met with them, or came upon them suddenly, and smote them. In this sense the word finding is oft used, as Judg. 1. 5. 1 Sam. 31. 3. Psal. 21. 8. Isa. 10. 10.

25 And the children q of Anah were these: Dishon, and Aholibamah the daughter of Anah.

28 The children of Dishan are these: Uz, and Aran.

29 These are the Dukes that came of the Horites:

r Among other Dukes which were in that Countrey. Or, according to their Dukedoms or Principalities: The word Duke being here put for Dukedom, as the word King is put for Kingdom, Isa. 23. 15. Dan. 7. 17.

31 And * these are the kings that reigned in the land
* 1 Chron. 1. 43. of Edom s, before there reigned any king over the children of Israel t.

s He speaks of the posterity of Esau, who after they had subdued the Horites, erected a Kingdom there. t Here Prophane Wits triumph. How, say they, could Moses write this, when as yet there was no King in Israel? Answ. 1. The word may be taken for any chief Governor, in which sense the Title of King is given to Moses, Deut. 33. 5. and to the Judges, Judg. 17. 6. and to others who were not Kings, properly so called. Psal. 119. 46. Luke 22. 25. Acts 9. 15, &c. Answ. 2. Moses might well say thus, because he did by the Spirit of Prophecy foresee, and therefore could foretell that the Israelites would have a King, as appears from Deut. 17. 14, 15. Answ. 3. This, with other Clauses of the same nature, might be inserted afterwards by some Holy and Inspired Man of God, as it is confessed that part of the last Chapter of Deuteronomy was.

32 And Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom, and

33 And Bela died, and Jobab the son of Zerah of

† Of their Persons, and Generations, and Families. The state of Edom between the times of Esau and Moses seems to have been this; There were first Dukes, then Kings, and after them Dukes again. But if it be objected, that the time was too short for a succession of so many persons, it may be replied, that what is confessed concerning the Dukes preceding the Kings, might be true also of these succeeding Dukes, and that the Edomites either having taken some distaste at Kingly Government, or differing about the choice of a new King, divided themselves again into several petty Principalities or Dukedoms; and so several of those were Dukes at the same time in divers parts.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Jacob dwells in Canaan: Joseph brings to his father an ill report of his brethren, 2. He loves, they hate him, 3, 4. The more because of his dreams which he told them, 5. His first dream 7. His brethren interpret it, and their hatred increases, 8. His second dream, 9. Tells it his father, who rebukes him, but observes his saying, 10, 11. He is sent by his father to seek after his brethren, 13——17. They seeing him, conspire his death, 18——20. But upon the intercession of Reuben, they strip and throw him into a pit, 21——24. Some Ishmaelites passing by, by Judah's advice they sell him to them, who carry him into Egypt, 25——28. Reuben is concerned for him, 29, 30. Their contrivance to deceive Jacob, 31, 32. His grief for the loss of Joseph, 33——35. Joseph sold to Potiphar an officer in Egypt, 36.

AND Jacob dwelt in the land † wherein his father † Heb. of his fathers sojournings. was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

2 These are the generations a of Jacob: Joseph being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren, and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah, and with the sons of Zilpah b, his fathers wives: and Joseph brought unto his father their evil report c.

a (i. e.) The events or occurrences which happened to Jacob in his Family and Issue. So that word is used, Gen. 6. 9. and Numb. 3. 1. Or the word These, may relate to what is said Gen. 35. 22. &c. The Genealogy of Esau being brought in by way of Parenthesis, and that being finished, Moses returns to the Generations of Jacob, as his principal business, and proceeds in the History of their concerns. b Jacob placed Joseph with them rather than with the sons of Leah, either to keep Joseph humble; Or for Joseph's security, because the other sons retained the old grudge of their Mother, and were more like to envy, contemn, hate and abuse him; Or as an observer of their actions, whom he most suspected, as the following words may seem to imply. c Acquainted him with their lewd and wicked courses, to the dishonour of God and of their Family, that so his Father might apply such remedies as he thought meet.

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his chil-† Or, pieces. dren, because he was the son of his old age d: and he made him a coat of many † colours e.

d Being born when Jacob was Ninety one years old. Such Children are commonly best beloved by their Parents, either because such are a singular blessing of God, and a more than common testimony of his favour, and a mercy least expected by them, and therefore most prized; or because they have more pleasing conversation with them, and less experience of their misbehaviour, of which the elder oft-times are guilty, whereby they alienate their Parents affections from them. The ancient Translations, Chaldee Paraphrase, Arabick, and Samaritan, render the words thus, a wise or prudent son; old age being put for mentioned as a token of prudence; one born old, one wise above his years, one that had a grey head, as we say, upon green shoulders. This may seem the more probable, both because Joseph was indeed such a Child, and gave good evidence of it in a prudent observation of his brethrens trespasses, and a discreet choice of the fittest remedy for them; and because the reason here alledged seems proper and peculiar to Joseph; whereas in the other sense it belongs more to Benjamin, who was younger than Joseph, and cost his Mother dearer, and therefore might upon that account claim a greater interest in his Father's affections. e Probably made of threads of divers Colours interwoven together. Compare 2 Sam. 13. 18. This he gave him as a token of his special love, and of the rights of the first-born, which being justly taken from Reuben, he conferred upon Joseph, 1 Chron. 5. 1. Judg. 5. 30. 2 Sam. 13. 18.

And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him f.

f Their hatred was so deep and keen, that they could not smother it, as for their own interest they should have done, but discovered it by their churlish words and carriages to him.

5 And Joseph dreamed a dream g, and he told it his brethren, and they hated him yet the more.

g Which it is probable he did not understand, for then he would never have told it to them, who, as he knew very well, were likely to make an evil construction and use of it.

6 And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed.

7 For * behold, we were binding sheaves in the field h, * Chap. 42. and lo, my sheave arose, and also stood upright; and 6, 9. and behold, your sheaves stood round about i, and made 43. 26. and 44. obeisance to my sheaf.

h A secret Insinuation of the occasion of Joseph's advancement, which was from his Counsel and Care about the Corn of Egypt.

i This

z This was a posture of Ministry and Service, as is manifest both from Scripture and from common usage.

8 And his brethren said to him, Shalt thou indeed reign over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? and they hated him yet the more, for his dreams, and for his words †.

† For his relation of his Dreams, which they imputed to his Arrogancy.

9 ¶ And he dreamed yet another dream k, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a *Chap. 46. 29. dream more; and behold *, the Sun and the Moon l, and the eleven stars made obeisance to me.

k That the Repetition of the same thing in another shape, might teach them, that the thing was both certain and very observable.

l These were not mentioned in the first Dream, because in the event, his Brethren only went at first to Egypt and there worshipped him, as afterwards his Father went with them. Obj. His Father did not worship him in Egypt. Answ. 1. He did worship him mediately by his Sons, who in their Father's name and stead bowed before him, and by the Presents which he sent as Testimonies of that respect which he owed to him. 2. It is probable, that Jacob did, before the Egyptians, pay that Reverence to his Son, which all the rest did, and which was due to the Dignity of his Place. As the Roman Consul was commended by his Father for requiring him to alight from his Horse, as the rest did, when he met him upon the way.

10 And he told it to his father, and to his brethren; and his father rebuked him m, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? shall I, and thy mother †, and thy brethren indeed come to bow down our selves to thee, to the earth?

m Not through anger at Joseph, or contempt of his Dream, for it follows, he observed it; but partly lest Joseph should be puffed up upon the account of his Dreams; and principally, to allay the envy and hatred of his Brethren. † Either 1. Rachel, who was now dead, and therefore must rise again and worship thee; whence he may seem to infer the idleness of the Dream, because the fulfilling it was impossible. Or rather, 2. Leah, his Step-mother, one that filled his Mother's place, being now Jacob's only Wife, and the Mother of the Family.

* Dan. 7. 28 Luk. 2. 19, 51. 11 And his brethren envied him: but his father * observed the saying n.

n The words of Joseph; or the thing, the Dream which he told, well knowing that God did frequently at that time signify his mind by Dreams, and perceiving something singular and extraordinary in this Dream, and especially in the doubling of it.

o In the Parts adjoyning to Shechem, in the Lands which he had purchased there, Gen. 33. 19. Let none think strange that he should send his Sheep so far from him, both because that Land was his own, and because his Sheep being exceeding numerous, and he but a Stranger in the Land, was likely to be exposed to many such Inconveniencies. Compare Gen. 30. 36. One may rather wonder that he durst venture his Sons and his Cattle there, where that barbarous Massacre had been committed, Chap. 34. 25. But those Pastures being his own, and convenient for his use, he did commit himself and them to that same good Providence which watched over him then and ever since, and still kept up that terror which then he sent upon them. Besides Jacob's Sons and Servants made a considerable Company, and the Men of Shechem being universally slain, others were not very forward to revenge their Quarrel, where there was any hazard to themselves in such an enterprize.

13 And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem? Come, and I will send thee unto them p: and he said, Here am I.

p Having kept him for some time at home, and supposing that length of time had cooled their heats, and worn out their hatred, he now sends him to them.

† Heb. See the peace of thy brethren, &c. 14 And he said to him, Go, I pray thee, † see whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks, and bring me word again: so he sent him out of the vale of Hebron, and he came to Shechem.

15 ¶ And a certain man found him, and behold he was wandering in the field, and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou?

16 And he said, I seek my brethren; tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks.

17 And the man said, They are departed hence: for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan q. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in Dothan.

q A place not very far from Shechem, where afterwards a City was built. See 2 Kings 6. 13.

18 And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, they conspired against him, to slay him.

† Heb. Master of dreams. 19 And they said one to another, Behold, this † dreamer r cometh.

r Heb. This Master of Dreams, this crafty Dreamer, that covers his own ambitious Designs and Desires with pretences or fictions of Dreams.

20 Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit s, and we will say, Some evil beast hath devoured him t: and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

s Partly as unworthy of Burial; partly to cover their villanous Action, and partly that they might quickly put him out of their sight and minds. t There being great store of such Creatures in those Parts. See 1 Kings 13. 24. 2 Kings 2. 24.

21 And * Reuben heard it, and he delivered him * Chap. 22. out of their hands, and said, Let us not kill him.

u He did so, as to the violent and certain dispatch of his Life which was intended: Or the Act is here put for the purpose and endeavour of doing it, in which sense Balak is said to fight against Israel, Jos 24. 9. and Abraham to offer up Isaac, Heb. 11. 17. So here, he delivered him, i. e. used his utmost Power to deliver him, that so he might recover his Father's favour lost by his incestuous Action.

22 And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.

23 ¶ And it came to pass, when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they stript Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many † colours that was on him. † Or, Pieces.

24 And they took him, and cast him into a pit: and the pit was empty, there was no water in it.

25 And they sat down to eat bread x: and they lift up their eyes, and looked, and behold, a company of * Ishmaelites y came from Gilead z, with their camels, See vs. bearing spicery, and balm a, and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt. 28, 36.

x To refresh themselves, their Consciences being stupified; and their Hearts hardned against their Brother, notwithstanding all his most passionate Intreaties to them, Gen 42. 21. y The Posterity of Ishmael. See Gen. 25. 18. z A famous place for Balm, and other excellent Commodities, and for the Confluence of Merchants. See Jer. 8. 22. and 22. 6. a Or Rosin, as the Ancient, and divers other Translators render it.

26 And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it, if we slay our brother b, and conceal his blood c?

b If we suffer him to perish in the Pit, when we may sell him with advantage. c (i. e.) His Death, as the word Blood is often used. See Deut. 17. 8. 2 Sam. 1. 16. and 3 28.

27 Come, and let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and let not our hand be upon him: for he is our brother, and our flesh: and his brethren † were content. † Heb. hearkned.

28 Then there passed by Midianites d, merchant-men, and they drew and lift up Joseph out of the pit, and * sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for * twenty pieces * Psalm of silver: and they brought Joseph into Egypt. 105. 17.

d This Story seems a little involved, and the Persons to whom Wilso he was sold, doubtful. Here seem to be two, if not three, sorts of 13. A Merchants mentioned, Ishmaelites, and Midianites here, and Medanites, as it is in the Hebrew, verse 36. which were a distinct Peo- * See M ple from the Midianites, as descended from Medan, when the Mi- 27. 9. dianites, descended from Midian, both Abraham's Sons, Gen. 25. 2. The business may be accommodated divers ways, either 1. the same Persons or People are promiscuously called both Ishmaelites and Midianites, as they also are, Judges 8. 1, 24, 28. either because they were mixed together in their Dwellings, and by Marriages; or because they were here joyned together, and made one Caravan or Company of Merchants. And the Text may be read thus, And the Midianite Merchant-men (either the same who were called Ishmaelites, verse 27. or others being in the same Company with them) passed by, and they (i. e. not the Merchant-men, but Joseph's Brethren spoken of, verse 27. the Relative being referred to the remoter Antecedent, as it is frequently in the Scripture) lift up Joseph and sold him to the Ishmaelites or Midianites, &c. Or 2. The Persons may be distinguished, and the Story may very well be conceived thus, The Ishmaelites are going to Egypt, and are discerned at some distance by Joseph's Brethren, while they were discoursing about their Brother. In the time of their discourse, the Midianites, who seem to be coming from Egypt, coming by the Pit and hearing Joseph's Cries there, pull him out of the Pit, and sell him to the Ishmaelites, who carry him with them into Egypt. There they sell him to the Medanites; tho that, as many other Historical Passages, be omitted in the Sacred Story. And the Medanites, or Midianites, if you please, only supposing them to be other Persons than those mentioned, verse 28. which is but a fair and reasonable Supposition, sell him to Potiphar.

29 ¶ And Reuben returned unto the pit e, and behold, Joseph was not in the pit: and he rent his clothes f.

e That according to his Brethren's order, verse 27. he might take him thence and sell him. f As the manner was upon doleful Occurrences. See below, verse 34. Numb. 14. 6. Ezra 9. 3. Job 1. 20. and 2. 12.

30 And he returned unto his brethren, and said, The child g is not b, and I, whither shall I go i?

g So he calls him comparatively to his Brethren, though he was 17 years old, verse 2. b (i. e.) Is not in the Land of the Living, or, is Dead, as that Phrase is commonly used, as Gen. 42. 13, 36. compared with Gen. 44. 20. Job 7. 21. Jer. 31. 15. Lam. 5. 7. Matth. 2. 18. i Either to find the Child, or to flee from our Father? He is more solicitous than the rest, because he being the eldest Brother, his Father would require Joseph at his hand, and being so highly incensed against him for his former Crime, would be the more apt to suspect him, and deal more severely with him.

31 And they took Josephs coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the coat in the blood.

32 And they sent the coat of many colours, and they brought k it to their father, and said, This have we found: know now whether it be thy sons coat or no.

k They brought it by a Messenger whom they sent: Men are commonly said to do what they cause others to do.

33 And he knew it, and said, It is my sons coat; *Chap. 44. 28. an * evil beast hath devoured him; Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces.

34 And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sackcloth l upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days.

l (i. e.) A course and mournful Habit. This is the first Example of that kind, but afterwards was in common use upon these occasions. See 2 Sam. 3. 31. 1 Kings 20. 31. and 21. 27, &c.

35 And all his sons, and all his daughters m rose up to comfort him: but he refused to be comforted: and he said, For I will go down into the grave n unto my son o mourning: thus his father wept for him.

m Dinah, and his Daughters-in-law, and his Son's Daughters. n This Hebrew word sheol is taken sometimes for Hell, as Job 11. 8. Prov. 15. 11. but most commonly for the Grave, or the Place or State of the Dead, as Gen. 42. 38. and 44. 29, 31. Psalm 6. 5. and 16. 10, &c. And whether of those it signifies, must be determined by the Subject and the Circumstances of the Place; here it cannot be meant of Hell, for Jacob neither could believe that good Joseph was there, nor would have resolved to go thither; but the sense is, I will kill my self with Grief, or I will never leave mourning till I dye. o Or, For my Son: so the Preposition El is oft used for al, as 1 Sam. 1. 27. and 4. 19, 21, 22. and 2 Sam. 21. 2.

36 And the Midianites sold him into Egypt unto Potiphar, an † officer of Pharaohs, and † * captain of the guard p. † Heb. Eunuch. But the worldoth See Gen. 40. 3. Jer. 39. 9. Mark 6. 27. signify not only Eunuchs, but also Chamberlains, Courtiers and Officers. † Heb. Chief of the Slaughtermen, or Executioners. * Or, chief Marshal.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Judah marrieth a Canaanitish woman, who bears him three sons, 1——5. He marries his eldest son to Tamar, 6. He being wicked is slain by God, 7. The second son is commanded to marry her, 8. His wickedness, 9. and death, 10. He promises her his third son, but performs not, 11. She by a subtil practice commits incest with him, 12. He gives her a pledge, 18. She is found with child; Judah commands her to be burnt, 24. She brings to her father the pledge, 25. He acknowledges it; Acquits her, and condemns himself, 26. She brings forth two sons, 27, 30.

AND it came to pass at that time a that Judah went down from his brethren b, and turned in to a certain Adullamite c, whose name was Hirah.

a This Story is not without difficulty, if we consider how little time is allowed for all the events of this Chapter, there being not above twenty three years between Judah's Marriage, and the Birth of Pharez, yea, and the Birth of his Sons too, Efrom and Hamul, who are said to go into Egypt with Jacob, Gen. 46. 12. But there are two ways proposed for the Resolution of it, as the Phrase, at that time, may be understood two ways, either 1. More largely, for the time since Jacob's return from Padan to Canaan, and so the History may be conceived thus; Judah was married some years before the selling of Joseph, tho it be here mentioned after it, and so out of its place, as being the foundation of all the following Events, which are here placed together, because they followed the selling of Joseph. Judah, and Er, and Onan, and afterwards Pharez, are supposed each to Marry, and have a Child at fourteen years old, which though unusual, warns not Examples both in Sacred and Prophane Writers. And they that will quarrel with the Scripture, and question its Authority for some such incustomary Occurrences which it relates, shew more of Impiety than Wisdom in it, and shall do well to consider, that God might so order things by his Providence, and record such things in his word, upon the same account on which he hath put several other difficult Passages in Scripture, partly to try and exercise Men's Faith, Humility, and Modesty; and partly to punish the evil Minds of ungodly Men, and for their Sins to lay an occasion of Stumbling and Cavilling at the Scriptures before them that greedily seek and gladly catch at all such occasions. Or, 2. More strictly, for the time following the sale of Joseph, which seems the more probable way, and so the Story lies thus; Judah was now about twenty years old when he married, and the three first years he hath three Sons, Er, Onan, and Shelah: The two first Marry, each when they were about Seventeen years old. Three years after both their Deaths, and when Shelah had been marriageable a year or two, and was not given to Tamar, Judah lies with Tamar and begets upon her Pharez. But as for Efrom and Hamul, they are said to go into Egypt with Jacob, as also Benjamin's ten Sons are said to go with him thither, to wit, in their Father's Loins, because they were begotten by their Father in Egypt, whilest Jacob lived there, of which more in its proper place. b Probably in discontent, upon occasion of Quarrels arisen among them about the selling of Joseph, whereof Judah was a great Promoter, if not the first Mover. c Of the City of Adullam. Of which see Jos. 12. 15. and 15. 35.

2 And Judah saw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite d, whose name was * Shuah e: and he took her, * 1 Chron. and went in unto her. 2. 3.

d Whom he married, against the Counsel and Example of his Parents. But when Judah had committed so great a Crime as the selling of his Brother, and God had forsaken him, no wonder he adds one Sin to another. e The name, not of the Daughter, but of her Father, verse 12.

3 And she conceived, and bare a son, and he called his name Er.

4 * And she conceived again, and bare a son, and * Numb. she called his name Onan. 26. 19.

5 And she yet again conceived, and bare a son, and called his name Shelah; and he was at Chezib f, when she bare him.

f A place near Adullam, called also Aczib, Jos. 19. 29. Mich. 1. 14.

6 And Judah took a wife for Er his first-born, whose name was Tamar.

7 And * Er, Judahs first-born was wicked in the * Numb. sight of the LORD g, and the LORD slew him h. 26. 19.

g (i. e.) Notoriously wicked. Compare Gen. 10. 9. and 13. 13. h In some extraordinary and remarkable manner, as verse 10.

8 And Judah said unto Onan, Go in unto thy brothers wife, and marry her i, and raise up seed to thy brother k.

i This, as also divers other things, was now instituted and observed amongst God's People, and afterwards was expressed in a written Law, Deut. 25. 5, 6. See also Numb. 36. 6, 7. Ruth 1. 11. Matth. 22. 24. k Beget a Child which may have thy Brothers Name and Inheritance, and may be reputed as his Child. So it was with the first Child, but the rest were reputed his own.

9 And Onan knew that the seed should not be his; and it came to pass when he went in unto his brothers wife, that he spilled it on the ground, lest that he should give seed unto his brother.

l Two things are here noted, 1. The Sin it self, which is here particularly described by the Holy Ghost, that Men might be instructed concerning the nature, and the great evil of this Sin of Self-pollution, which is such, that it brought upon the Actor of it the extraordinary Vengeance of God, and which is condemned not only by Scripture, but even by the Light of Nature, and the Judgment of Heathens, who have expresly confured it as a great Sin, and as a kind of Murther. Of which see my Latin Synopsis. Whereby we may sufficiently understand how wicked and abominable a Practice this is amongst Christians, and in the Light of the Gospel, which lays greater and stricter Obligations upon us to Purity, and severely forbids all Pollution both of Flesh and Spirit. 2. The cause of this Wickedness; which seems to have been either hatred of his Brother; or envy at his Brother's Name and Honour, springing from the pride of his own Heart

10 And the thing which he did, † displeased the † Heb. was evil in the eyes of the Lord. LORD m, wherefore he slew him also n.

m An Expression noting a more than ordinary Offence against God, as 2 Sam. 11. 27. n This just, but dreadful, severity of God is noted both for the terror of such like Transgressors, and to provoke love and thankfulness to God in those whom he useth more indulgently.

11 Then said Judah to Tamar his daugter-in-law, Remain a widow at thy fathers house o, till Shelah my son be grown p: (for he said q, Lest peradventure he die also as his brethren did r) and Tamar went and dwelt in her fathers house.

o Whether he sent her from his House, that Shelah might not be infnared by her Prefence and Conversation. p So he dismissed her with a pretence of kindness, and a tacit promise of Marriage to her, which he never intended to keep, as the following words imply. q Or rather, but he said; for the Hebrew chi oft signifies but, as Gen. 45. 8. Psalm 37. 20. Eccl. 2. 10. and 6. 2. So here is an Opposition between what he said to Tamar, and what he said to himself, or in his own heart, as that word said is oft used: He intimated to her, that he would give Shelah to her, but he meant otherwise, and said in himself, I will not do it. r Imputing the Death of his two Sons either to her fault, or to her unluckiness, rather than to his own, or his Son's miscarriages.

12 ¶ And † in proces of time s the daughter of † Heb. the Shuah Judahs wife died: and Judah was comforted, and days were went up unto his sheep-shearers t to Timnath u, he and multiplied, his friend Hirah the Adullamite.

s When many days had passed, and Shelah, tho grown, was not given to Tamar. t To Feast and rejoyce with them at that time, as the manner was then and afterwards. See 1 Sam. 25. 36. u A place not far from Adullam; of which see Jos. 15. 57.

13 And it was told Tamar, saying, Behold thy father-in-law goeth up to Timnath to shear his sheep.

14 And she put her widows garments off from her, and covered her with a vail x, and wrapped her self, and sat in † an open place y, which is by the way to † Heb. the Timnath: for she saw that Shelah was grown, and she door of eyes, or of Enaim. was not given unto him to wife.

x As Harlots used to do in those modester Ages of the World, when they had not learnt to outface the Sun, nor to glory in their Villanies. y Where she might be soonest discovered by Passengers.

This is noted as the practice of Harlots, Prov. 7. 12. and 9. 14. Jer 3. 2. Ezek 16 24, 25.

15 When Judah saw her, he thought her to be an harlot: because she had covered her face z.

z And was doubtless careful not to discover her self by her Voice.

16 And he turned unto her by the way, and said, Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee (for he knew not that she was his daughter-in-law) and she said, What wilt thou give me, that thou mayest come in unto me?

† Heb. a kid of the goats. 17 And he said, I will send thee † a kid from the flock: and she said, Wilt thou give me a pledge till thou send it?

18 And he said, What pledge shall I give thee? And she said, Thy signet, and thy bracelets a, and thy staff that is in thine hand: and he gave it her, and came in unto her, and she conceived by him b.

a Or, bonderoth sh, or girdle, or any other Ornament made of twisted Thread, which the Hebrew word signifies. b God so ordering things by his Providence, that his Sin might be discovered. And this and other such horrid Crimes committed sometimes by the Patriarchs, and other eminent Persons, it hath pleased God for divers wise and holy Reasons to leave upon Record, partly to discover how great and deep the Corruption of Man's Nature is, and that even in the best; partly to oblige all Men to an humble Sence of their own Infirmity, and to a diligent Application of themselves to God for his gracious Succors, and to a greater Circumspection and Watchfulness to prevent those Evils in themselves; partly to encourage even the greatest Sinners to Repentance and the hope of Pardon; and partly for the just Punishment and Obduration of incorrigible Sinners, who make such sad Examples matter of their Delight and Imitation.

19 And she arose and went away, and laid by her vail from her, and put on the garments of her widowhood.

20 And Judah sent the kid by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to receive his pledge from the womans hand, but he found her not.

21 Then he asked the men of that place, saying, † Or, in Enajim. Where is the harlot that was † openly by the way side? And they said, There was no harlot in this place.

22 And he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her: and also the men of the place said, That there was no harlot in this place.

23 And Judah said, Let her take it to her, lest we † Heb. become a contempt. † be ashamed b: behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.

b None, That Fornication was esteemed sinful and shameful amongst the Heathens.

24 ¶ And it came to pass about three months after, that it was told Judah, saying, Tamar thy daughter-in-law hath played the harlot, and also behold, she is with child by whoredom: and Judah said, Bring her forth c, and let her be burnt d.

c To the Magistrate, from whom she may receive her Sentence and deserved Punishment. Judah had not the power of Life and Death, at least not over her who was a Canaanite, and who was not in his, but in her own Father's House. But he being a person of great Estate and Authority, and as it seems, of obliging Conversation, could do very much to perswade those who then had the power of the Sword, either to draw it forth, at least in a just Cause, on his behalf, or to sheath it upon his desire and satisfaction. d As guilty of Adultery, which was punished with Death by the Laws of God, Deut. 22. 23, 24. and of Nations too, Jer. 29. 22, 23. He chargeth her with Adultery, because she was betrothed to Shelah. See Deut. 22. 23. This eagerness of Judah proceeded not from zeal of Justice, for then he would not have endeavoured to destroy the innocent Child with the guilty Mother, against God's Law, Deut. 24. 16. Ezek. 18. 20. but from worldly Policy, that he might take her out of the way, which he esteemed a burden and a blot to his Family.

25 When she was brought forth, she sent to her father-in-law, saying, By the man whose these are, am I with child: and she said, Discern, I pray thee, whose are these, the signet, and bracelets, and staff.

26 And Judah acknowledged them c, and said, She hath been more righteous than I f: because that I gave her not to Shelah my son: and he knew her again no more g.

c His guilty Conscience, and the horrour of so foul a Fact, together with his sudden surprizal, forced him to an ingenuous Confession, whereas he might have used many pretences and evasions, which would easily have prevailed with such partial Judges. f She was more unchast, because she knowingly committed Adultery and Incest, when he designed neither; but he was more unjust, because he was the cause of her Sin, both by withholding Shelah from her, who was hers both by Right and by Judah's Promise, and by whom her Chastity should have been preserved; and by his solicitation and encouragement of her to the Sin. g Shewing the sincerity of his Confession by his forsaking of the Sin confessed. See Job 34. 32. And it may be probably concluded that he neither knew her, nor any other Woman afterward, because there is no mention of any Child which he had after this time.

27 ¶ And it came to pass in the time of her travail, that behold, twins were in her womb.

28 And it came to pass when she travailed, that the one put out his hand, and the midwife took and bound upon his hand a skarlet thread h, saying, This came out first.

h In token of his being the first born, which she confidently expected he would be.

29 And it came to pass, as he drew back his hand, that behold his brother came out: and she said, † How hast thou broken forth? this breach be upon thee i: therefore his name was called † Pharez.

† Or, wherefore hast thou made this breach against thee?

i Be imputed to thee, as the same phrase is taken Genesis 16. 5.

30 And afterward came out his brother that had the skarlet thread upon his hand, and his name was called † Zarah.

CHAP. XXXIX.

God prospers Joseph in Potiphar's service, 1, 2. Potiphar observes it, and sets him over all his house, 3—6. He is a goodly Person, and his mistress solicites him to lye with her, 7. He abhorring the ingratitude against his master, and sin against God, constantly refuses, 8—10. they being in the House alone, she seizes his coat, which he leaves with her, and fled, 11.——13. She accuses him first to the servants, 14, 15. Then to his master, 16—18. Who casts him into prison, 19, 20. the Lord is with him there; he finds favour with the keeper; is set over the prisoners, and prospers, 21—23.

AND Joseph was brought down to Egypt, and * Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, bought him of the hand of the Ishmaelites, which had brought him down thither.

* Chap. 37. 36.

2 And * the LORD was with Joseph a, and he was a prosperous man, and he was in the house b of his master the Egyptian.

* 1 Sam. 16. 18. and 18. 28. Acts 7. 9.

a With his gracious Presence and Blessing, as this phrase is taken here, verse 21. and Gen. 21. 22. and 26. 24. b He doth not endeavour to make an escape to his Father, but demeaned himself patiently and faithfully in the station into which God's Providence had brought him.

3 And his master saw that the LORD was with him c, and that the LORD made all that he did to prosper in his hand d.

c The Heathens owned a supream God, and his over-ruling Providence in Affairs, though they did not glorify him as God, but worshipped the Creature with, and more than the Creator, Rom. 1. 25. d (i. e.) Under his Ministry, as this Phrase is used, Exod. 4. 13. Levit. 8. 36. Prov. 26. 6. and oft elsewhere.

4 And Joseph found grace in his sight, and he served him e, and he made him overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand f.

e Not now as a Slave, but in an higher degree. f (i. e.) Committed to his care and management, as Gen. 16. 6. Object. How could this be, when Joseph understood not the Egyptian Tongue? Ans. Joseph doubtless when he came thither, did as much as possibly he could, endeavour to get the knowledge of that Language, and being a Person of excellent Parts would soon obtain it, especially because of the great Affinity between that Language and his own. Nor must we think that Joseph was thus highly advanced in an instant, but by degrees, step by step, and after some considerable time.

5 And it came to pass from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that * the LORD blessed the Egyptians house for Josephs sake: and the blessing of the LORD was upon all that he had in the house, and in the field.

* Chap. 30. 27.

6 And he left all that he had, in Josephs hand: and he knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat g: and Joseph was a goodly person, and well-favoured.

g He took care for nothing, but that he might eat, and drink, and fare deliciously. Nor did he indeed take any care for that, it being provided for him by other hands. Others thus, he took care for nothing, but committed all to Joseph, except his Bread, which he would not have provided by an Hebrew hand, because the Egyptians might not eat Bread with the Hebrews, Gen. 43. 32. But that was no impediment, for neither did Joseph eat with his Master, nor was he the Cook to dress it for him. But he might provide Food for him, as afterwards he did for all the Egyptians without any scruple on their side.

7 And it came to pass after these things, that his masters wife cast her eyes upon Joseph h, and she said, Lie with me.

h In a lascivious and unchast manner. See Job 31. 1. Matth. 5. 28. 2 Pet. 2. 14.

8 But he refused, and said unto his masters wife, Behold, my master wotteth not what is with me in the house, and he hath committed all that he hath to my hand;

9 There

9 There is none greater in this house than I: neither hath he kept back any thing from me, but thee, because thou art his wife: How then can I do this great wickedness, and * sin against God?

Chap. 20. 6. Lev. 6. Psal 51. 4.

10 And it came to pass, as she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkned not unto her, to lie by her, or to be with her i.

i He avoided her Company and familiar Conversation, as evil in it self, the present circumstances considered, and as an occasion of further evil. See Prov. 1. 15. and 5. 8. 1 Cor. 15. 33. 1 Thess. 5. 22. 1 Tim. 5. 14.

11 And it came to pass about this thime k, that Joseph went into the house to do his business l, and there was none of the men of the house there within *.

k Or, Upon a certain day, which she thought convenient for the reason following. l That which belonged to his charge; to cast up his accounts, as the Chaldee renders it, which requiring privacy, gave her this opportunity. * To wit, in that part of the House where Joseph was.

12 And she caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me: and he left his garment in her hand m, and fled, and got him out.

m Which he would not strive to get from her, partly for reverence to his Mistress; partly in detestation of her Wickedness, whereby even his Garment might seem to be infected; and partly to put himself and her out of the danger of further Temptation.

13 And it came to pass, when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand, and was fled forth;

14 That she called unto the men of her house n, and spake unto them, saying, See, he o hath brought in an Hebrew p unto us, to mock q us r: he came in unto me to lie with me, and I cryed with a † loud voice.

n To such as were in other parts of the House, whom she called in as Witnesses for her Husbands satisfaction. o (i. e.) My Husband, whom she would not name, as it were out of disdain and high displeasure for being the occasion of this horrid affront. Thus the Pronouns he and they are oft used by way of contempt, as Luke 14. 24. and 19. 27. John 7. 11. and 8. 10. p So she calls him to render him hateful and contemptible to the Egyptians. q To abuse me; or to vitiate and defile me; for that word is oft used in an obscene sense. r She insinuates, that this was not only an indignity to her, but an injury to all the Family, which therefore they were obliged to revenge.

15 And it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice, and cryed, that he left his garment with me, and fled, and got him out.

16 And she laid up his garment by her, until her Lord came home.

17 And she spake unto him according to these words, saying: The Hebrew servant which thou hast brought unto us s, came in unto me to mock me.

s So she makes her Husband accessary to the Crime, that she might provoke him to the sharper revenge.

18 And it came to pass, as I lift up my voice, and cryed, that he left his garment with me, and fled out t.

t An improbable story, and an evidence that the violence was on her side; otherwise if he had attempted violence upon her Person, he would not have forborn violence to the recovery of his Garment, which he very well knew might be made a pretence against him.

19 And it came to pass, when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spake unto him, saying, After this manner did thy servant to me, that his wrath was kindled.

20 And Josephs master took him, and put him into the prison u, a place where the kings prisoners x were bound: and he was there in the prison.

u Quest. Why did he not kill him, the Crime being capital, and he having so undoubted a Power in his hand to do it? Answ. 1. It is probable he was a little moderated by Joseph's Apology, which doubtless he made for himself, though it be not here recorded. 2. This is to be ascribed to the good Providence of God, which restrains the Waves of the Sea, and the Passions of Men, and sets them their bounds which they shall not pass, which watched over Joseph in a peculiar manner. x Traytors or great Offenders against the King, whose Prison doubtless was none of the easiest, and therefore it is called a Dungeon, Gen. 40. 15. and 41. 14. and he indured great hardship in it. See Psal. 105. 18.

21 ¶ But the LORD was with Joseph, and † shewed him mercy, and * gave him favour in the sight of the keeper of the prison y.

† Heb. extended kindness unto him. * Exod. 3. 21. and 11. 3. and 12. 36. Psal. 106. 46. Prov. 16. 7. Dan. 1. 9.

y The Goaler, who under Potiphar was the Keeper of that particular Prison.

22 And the keeper of the prison committed to Josephs hand all the prisoners that were in the prison, and whatsoever they did there, he was the doer of it.

z They did nothing but by Joseph's command or permission.

23 The keeper of the prison looked not to any thing that was under his hand, because the LORD was with him: and that which he did, the LORD made it to prosper.

CHAP. XL.

Pharaoh's chief butler and baker are put into prison; and committed to Joseph, 1——4. They dream, and are sad, 5, 6. He asks the reason, 7. Their answer, and Joseph's reply, 8. The chief butler tells his dream, 9——11. Joseph interprets it of his restoration, and desires him to be mindful of him, 12——15. The chief baker also tells his dream, 16, 17. Joseph interprets it, 18, 19. Both made good by the event, 20——22. The butler forgets Joseph, 23.

AND it came to pass after these things, that the butler of the king of Egypt, and his baker, had offended their lord the king of Egypt.

2 And Pharaoh was wroth against two of his officers, against the chief of the butlers, and against the chief of the bakers.

3 And he put them in ward in the house of the captain of the guard a, into the prison where Joseph was bound b.

a To wit, Potiphar, Gen. 37. 36. who being informed by his Underkeeper of Joseph's great care and faithfulness, began to have a better Opinion of him, though for his own quiet, and his Wives reputation, he left him still in the Prison. b Was a Prisoner, as that word is used, Isa. 22. 3. For Joseph, being now made Governour of the Prisoners, was doubtless freed from his bonds; or had been bound, and that with Irons in a cruel manner, Psal. 105. 18.

4 And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them, and they continued a season c in ward.

c Heb. Days, i. e. either many Days, or a Year, as that word sometimes signifies. See Gen. 24. 55.

5 ¶ And they dreamed a dream both of them, each man his dream in one night, each man according to the interpretation of his dream d, the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, which were bound in the prison.

d (i. e.) Not a vain and idle Dream, but one that had in it a signification of future things, and needed interpretation; and the several Dreams were proper and agreeable to the several events which befel them, and to the several Interpretations which Joseph put upon them: The Dream and Interpretation did fitly answer one to the other.

6 And Joseph came in unto them in the morning, and looked upon them, and behold, they were sad e.

e Perplexed and terrified both, because they perceived the Dream was extraordinary and sent from God, compare Gen. 41. 8. Dan. 2. 1. Matth. 27. 19. and because they understood not the meaning of it.

7 And he asked Pharaohs officers that were with him in the ward of his lords house, saying, Wherefore † look ye so sadly to day? † Heb. are your faces evil?

8 And they said unto him, We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it f. And Joseph said unto them, * Do not interpretations belong to God g? Tell me h them, I pray you.

* See chap. 41. 16. Dan. 2. 11, 28.

f To wit, with us, or to whom we can now resort; for otherwise there were many in Egypt of that profession, chap. 41. 8. g In vain do you expect such things from your Wisemen, for it is only that God who sends these Dreams, that can interpret them, and to him you should seek for it. h Who am the Servant of the true God, who useth to communicate his Secrets to his People, and who, I doubt not, will hear my Prayers for this Mercy. This he spoke by special direction and instinct from God, who had given this gift to him.

9 And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said to him, In my dream, behold, a vine was before me;

10 And in the vine were three branches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth, and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes.

11 And Pharaohs cup was in my hand, and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaohs cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaohs hand.

12 And Joseph said unto him, This is the interpretation of it: the three branches are i three days.

i (i. e.) Signify. So that word is oft used, as verse 18. and 41. 26, 27. Dan. 2. 38. and 4. 22. Matth. 13. 19, 38. and 26. 26, 28. Luke 8. 11. 1 Cor. 10. 4. And indeed there is no proper Hebrew word which answers to signify.

13 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh † lift up thine head k, and restore thee unto thy place, and thou shalt deliver Pharaohs cup into his hand, after the former manner when thou wast his butler.

k (i. e.) Advance thee to thy former dignity. So that phrase is used 2 Kings 25 27. Psal. 110. 7. Or, reckon thy head, i. e. thy name or thy person, to wit, among his servants, which is added verse 20. According to the custom, which was this; At set times Governours of Families used to take an Account of their Servants, and to have the Names of their Servants read to them, and they neither left them them in the Catalogue, or put any of them out, as they saw fit, and inflicted such further Punishments upon any of them as they deserved. This seems the truer Interpretation, because it is said that Pharaoh lifted up the head of his Butler, and of his Baker, verse 20. and therefore the phrase must be so expounded, as to agree equally to both.

14 But † think on me, when it shall be well with thee, and shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me, and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house l.

l Though he patiently endures his Prison, yet he prudently useth all lawful means to get his freedom.

15 For indeed I was stollen away m out of the land of the Hebrews n: and here also have I done nothing o that they should put me into the dungeon.

m Taken away by force and fraud without my own, or Father's consent. n Out of the Land of Canaan, which he might call the Land of Hebrews, either because they now dwelt in it, or by way of protestation of their right and claim to it by God's Gift. Or rather thus, out of that part of Canaan where the Hebrews dwell; for the word Land is not only spoken of whole Countries, as of the whole Land of Canaan, but of any parts or parcels thereof, as Gen. 13. 6. and 22. 2. and 23. 15. and 34. 1. o Observe, that Joseph doth not accuse either his Brethren or his Mistress, but only asserts his own Innocency, which was necessary for his deliverance.

16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good, he said unto Joseph, I also was in my dream, and behold, I had three † white p baskets on my head.

p So called from the Colour, either of the Baskets, which were made of pilled, and so white Twigs, or of the things contained in them, as white Bread, &c.

17 And in the uppermost basket there was of all manner of † bake-meats for Pharaoh, and the birds did eat them out of the basket upon my head.

† Heb. meat of Pharaoh the work of a Baker, or Cook

18 And Joseph answered, and said, This is the interpretation thereof: the three baskets are three days:

† Or, reckon thee, and take thy Office from thee.

19 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh † lift up thy head from q off thee, and shall hang thee on a tree, and the birds shall eat thy flesh from off thee.

q This clause is industriously added here to the former phrase, to shew that it was now meant in another sense. He shall indeed lift up thy head, as well as the chief Butlers, but in another manner, not for thee, but from thee, or so as to take away thy Head, or thy Life (which eminently consists, and appears in the Head) from thee.

20 ¶ And it came to pass the third day which was Pharaohs birth-day r, that he * made a feast unto all his servants: and he † lifted up the head of the chief butler, and of the chief baker among his servants.

* Mark 6. 21.

r Which by persons of Eminency then was, and since hath usually been, celebrated with Feasting and Rejoycing.

21 And he restored the chief butler unto his butlership again, and he gave the cup into Pharaohs hand.

22 But he hanged the chief baker, as Joseph had interpreted to them.

23 Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgat him s.

s (i. e.) Neglected him and his desire; as men in Scripture are oft said to forget God, when they do not remember him so as to love and obey him, as Psal. 106. 13, 21. Hos. 2. 13.

CHAP. XLI.

Pharaoh's two dreams, 1——7. He is troubled; sends for interpreters; their inability, 8. The chief butler sensible of his fault, remembers Joseph, 9. Commends him to Pharaoh, 10——13. Who causes him to be brought before him, 14. Expecting the interpretation from him, 15. Joseph ascribes all to God, 16. Pharaoh relates his dreams to Joseph, 17——24. He interprets them, 25——31. The reason of their being doubled, 32. His advice to Pharaoh against the dearth to come, 33——36. Which he approves of, 37. Appoints him governour, next himself, over the whole land, 38——41. The ensigns of dignity and stately presents conferred on him, 42——44. Also a new name Zaphnah Paaneah, and a wife, 45. Joseph now thirty years of age, makes a progress over all the land, inspects the stores, lays up provisions, 45——49. Has two children Manasse and Ephraim, 50——52. Bad years come on; he supplies the country, 53——57.

AND it came to pass at the end of two † full years a, that Pharaoh dreamed: and behold, he stood by the river b.

a After the Butler's restitution to his place. Heb. Years of days, for full years, as 2 Sam. 14. 28 Jer. 28. 3. 25 a month of days is put for a full month, Gen. 29. 14. which is compleat to a day b Nilus, called the River simply, because of its eminency, as Homer or Virgil are called the Poet.

2 And behold, there came up out of the river c, seven well-favoured kine d, and fat-fleshed, and they fed in a meadow.

c This suits well with the nature of the thing, for both the fruitfulness and the barrenness of Egypt depended, under God, upon the increase, or diminution of the Waters of that River. d Which when they appeared in Dreams did portend, in the Opinion of the learned Egyptians, the years or times to come, and them either good or bad according to their quality.

3 And behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill-favoured, and lean-fleshed, and stood by the other kine upon the brink of the river e.

e Which shews how sparingly the River over-flowed the Lands.

4 And the ill-favoured and lean-fleshed kine, did eat up the seven well-favoured and fat kine. So Pharaoh awoke.

5 And he slept, and dreamed the second time: and behold, seven ears of corn f came up upon one stalk, † rank and good.

f Which are fit and proper resemblances of the thing here intended, both because the fertility of a Land doth mainly consist in the abundance and goodness of these; and because ears of Corn appearing to any in a Dream, did, in the judgment of the Egyptian wise-men, signify years, as Josephus notes.

6 And behold, seven thin ears and blasted with the east-wind g, sprang up after them.

g A boisterous Wind, and in those parts of the World very pernicious to the Fruits of the Earth, Ezek. 17. 10. and 19. 12. Hos. 13. 15.

7 And the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears: and Pharaoh awoke, and behold it was a dream h.

h Not a real thing, as Pharaoh in his sleep imagined it to be. Heb. Behold the dream, i. e. The Dream did not vanish as Dreams commonly do, but was fixed in his Mind, and he could not shake it off; by which he saw that it was no Common or Natural, but a Divine and significant Dream.

8 And it came to pass in the morning, that his spirit was troubled i, and he sent and called for all the Magicians k of Egypt, and all the wise men l thereof; and Pharaoh told them his dream m: but there was none that could interpret them unto Pharaoh.

i Because he understood not the meaning of it, and dreaded the consequences of it. Compare Gen. 40. 6. Dan. 2. 1, 3. Matth. 27. 19. k Whose profession it was to discover secret and future things; which they did either by the observation of the Stars, or by other superstitious Practises, and the help of evil Spirits. See Exod. 7. 11. and 8. 19 Dan. 2. 2, 10. l Who were converfant in the study of Nature; and by reason of their great Sagacity, did oftimes make happy conjectures. m He calls them both one Dream, either because they seemed to portend the same thing, or because they were the product of one night, and were divided only by a very little interruption.

9 ¶ Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember my faults n this day.

n Not against Joseph by ingratitude, but against the King; by which expression he both acknowledgeth the King's Justice in imprisoning him, and his Clemency in Pardoning him.

10 Pharaoh was wroth with his servants, and put me in ward in the captain of the guards house, both me, and the chief baker.

11 And we dreamed a dream in one night, I and he: we dreamed each man according to the interpretation of his dream *.

* Of which phrase see on Gen. 40. 5.

12 And there was there with us a young man, an Hebrew, servant to the captain of the guard: and we told him, and he * interpreted to us our dreams, to each man according to his dream, he did interpret.

* Chap. 40. 12, &c.

13 And it came to pass, as he interpreted to us, so it was; me he o restored unto mine office, and him he hanged.

o Either 1. Pharaoh. But then he would have mentioned either his Name or Title, and not have spoken so slightly and indecently of him. Or rather 2. Joseph, of whom he spake last, and who is here said to restore the one, and to hang the other, because he foretold those Events, as Jeremy is said to pull down and destroy those Nations, Jer. 1. 10. whose destruction he did only foretel.

14 ¶ * Then Pharaoh sent and called Joseph, and they † brought him hastily out of the dungeon †: and he shaved himself p, and changed his raiment, and came in unto Pharaoh.

* Psal. 105. 20

† Or, made him run.

† Or, Prison, by a Synecdoche of the part for the whole. For it is not probable that Joseph, who was now so much employed, and entrusted with all the Affairs of the Prison and Prisoners, Gen. 39. 21, 22, 23. should still be kept in the Dungeon properly so called. p For till then he suffered his Hair to grow, as the manner was for persons in Prison, or under great Sorrow, 2 Sam. 19. 24. But to appear in a mournful dress before the King was not convenient, nor usual. Compare Esther 4. 4.

15 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: and I have heard say of thee, that † thou canst understand a dream to interpret it.

16 And Joseph answered Pharaoh, saying, It is not in me q: God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace †.

q I cannot do this by any power, or virtue, or art of my own, for I am but a Man, as your Magicians are, but only by Inspiration from the great God. Thus he gives the honour from himself unto God, and leads Pharaoh to the knowledge of the true God. For the Phrase compare Matth. 10. 20. 1 Cor. 15. 10. † Or, May God give, &c. It is my desire that God would vouchsafe to Pharaoh a comfortable and happy answer.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, In my dream, behold, I stood upon the bank of a river.

18 And behold, there came up out of the river seven kine, fat-fleshed and well-favoured, and they fed in a medow.

19 And behold, seven other kine came up after them, poor, and very ill-favoured, and lean-fleshed, such as I never saw in all the land of Egypt, for badness.

20 And the lean, and the ill-favoured kine, did eat up the first seven fat kine.

21 And when they had † eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them r, but they were still ill-favoured, as at the beginning: So I awoke.

† Heb. come to the inward parts of them.

r They seemed to be neither fatter in the flesh, nor fuller in their bodies. As many times in Famine men eat much, but are not satisfied, because God withdraws his blessing from it, by which alone it is that meat nourisheth us.

22 And I saw in my dream, and behold, seven ears came up in one stalk, full and good.

23 And behold, seven ears † withered, thin, and blasted with the East-wind, sprung up after them.

24 And the thin ears devoured the seven good ears: and I told this unto the Magicians, but there was none that could declare it to me.

25 ¶ And Joseph said unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one s: God hath shewed Pharaoh what he is about to do.

s To wit, In its design and signification; both dreams portend the same thing.

26 The seven good kine are seven years, and the seven good ears are seven years: the dream is one.

27 And the seven thin and ill-favoured kine that came up after them, are seven years: and the seven empty ears, blasted with the East-wind, shall be seven years of famine.

28 This is the thing which I have spoken unto Pharaoh: what God is about to do, he sheweth unto Pharaoh.

29 Behold, there come seven years of great plenty, throughout all the land of Egypt.

30 And there shall arise after them seven years of famine, and all the plenty shall be forgotten t in the land of Egypt: and the famine shall consume the land.

t There shall be no relicks of it to keep it in mens minds, which will be so taken up with the contemplation of their present misery and future danger, that they will have neither heart nor leisure to reflect upon their former Plenty, the remembrance whereof will but aggravate the present calamity.

31 And the plenty shall not be known in the land, by reason of that famine following: for it shall be very † grievous.

† Heb. heavy.

32 And for that the dream was doubled unto Pharaoh twice, it is because the thing is † established by God: and God will shortly bring it to pass.

† Or, prepared of God.

33 Now therefore let Pharaoh look out a man discreet and wise, and set him over the land of Egypt.

34 Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint † officers over the land, and take up u the fifth part x of the land of Egypt in the seven plenteous years.

u Not by force or violence, for Joseph would never be the author of such unrighteous Counsels; but by purchase at the common price, which was like to be very low in that case, and therefore might easily be compassed by that rich and mighty Prince. x Quest. Why not half, seeing the years of Famine were as many as the years of Plenty? Answ. Because 1. Men would and should live more sparingly in times of Famine. 2. It was likely that very many men would lay up great quantities of Corn in those years, partly because they could not spend it all, and partly in expectation of a scarcer and dearer time, when they might either use it themselves, or sell it to their advantage. 3. The fifth part of those Years of great Plenty, might be more than the half, yea equal to the whole Crop of ordinary years.

35 And let them gather all the food of those good years that come, and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the Cities.

36 And that food shall be for store to the land against the seven years of famine, which shall be in the land of Egypt, that the land † perish not through the famine.

37 And the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

38 And Pharaoh said unto his servants, Can we find such a one as this is, a man in whom the spirit of God y is?

y Or, of the Gods, in his Heathen Language. One whom God hath endowed with such admirable Knowledge and Wisdom.

39 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this z, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art:

z i. e. Hath given thee this extraordinary gift of foreseeing and foretelling things to come, and of giving such sage advice for the future.

40 * Thou shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word a shall all my people be † ruled b: only in the throne c will I be greater than thou.

* Psal. 105. 21. Mac. 2. 53. Act. 7. 10.

† Heb. armed or kiss.

a i. e. direction and command. Heb. mouth, which is oft put for command, as Exod. 17. 1. and 38. 21. Numb. 3. 16. 39, &c. † Or, be fed; they shall receive their provisions from thy hand, and according to thy dispofal. Others, shall kiss, viz. the hand, as inferiors used to do, upon their address to or conference with great persons. See Job 31. 27. Hos. 13. 2. But it was frivolous for Joseph to command them to do that which by the custom of the place they were obliged and wont to do. Some render the words thus, and that agreeable to the Hebrew, at thy mouth shall the people kiss. Which may be understood either properly, as inferiors did sometimes kiss their superiors in token of their homage, See 1 Sam. 10. 1. Or rather metaphorically, as the same phrase is used, Psal. 2. 12. Prov. 24. 26. receive all thy commands with reverence and submission. c i. e. In sovereign power and dignity.

41 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt.

42 And Pharaoh took off his ring d from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in vestures of † fine linnen e, and put a gold chain f about his neck.

d Which was both a token of highest dignity, and an instrument of greatest power, by which he had authority to make and sign what Decrees he thought fit in the King's Name. See Esther 3. 10. and 8. 2. e Wherewith the greatest Potentates were arrayed. See Prov. 31. 22, 24. Ezek. 16. 10. Luke 16. 19. Rev. 19. 8. f Another badge of great honour. See Prov. 1. 9. Ezek. 16. 11. Dan. 5. 7, 16, 29.

43 And he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had g: and they cryed before him, † Bow the knee h: and he made him ruler over all the land of Egypt.

g In the King's second Chariot, that he might be known and owned to be the next person to the King in power and dignity. Compare 2 Chron. 35. 24. Esther 6. 8. and 10. 3. Dan. 5. 29. h They commanded all that passed by him, or came to him, to shew their reverent respect to him in this manner. Compare Esther 3. 2. Others, tender father, to signify that he was to be owned as the Father of the Countrey, because by his prudence and care he had provided for them all, and saved them from utter ruin.

44 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh i, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot k in all the land of Egypt.

i (i. e.) I only am the King, I reserve to my self the sovereign power over thee, and over all. As the name of Cæsar among the Romans was commonly used for the Emperor, so the name of Pharaoh for the King. Or thus, I have the supreme Power, and therefore as I have authority to give thee the following Power, so I will make it good to thee, and oblige all my people to observe and obey thee. k No man shall do any thing in the publick affairs of the Kingdom concerning matters of War or Peace, without thy commission or license.

45 And Pharaoh called Joseph's name, Zaphnath-Paaneah l; and he gave him to wife Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah m, † Priest n of On o: and Joseph went out p over all the land of Egypt.

l (i. e.) The revealer of secrets, as the Hebrews generally understand it, and with them most others. m Not that Potipher, Gen. 39. 1. both because he had another Title, and dwelt in another place; and because it is not probable Joseph would have married the daughter of so unchaste a mother; but another and a greater person. It is the observation of a late ingenious and learned Writer, that among the Egyptians there were three words, or endings of words, near akin, but differing in signification, and in the degree of dignity and authority to which those names were annexed; Phar, which belonged to inferior Officers; and Pharah, which was given to those of greater dignity and power; and Pharaoh, which was appropriated to the King. n Or Prince, as the word signifies, Exod. 18. 1. 2 Sam. 8. 18. and 20. 26. and elsewhere. This sense is the more probable, both from Joseph's high quality, and from his holy disposition, whereby he hated Idolatry, and would never have married the daughter of an Idolatrous Priest. o A famous City of Egypt, called also Aven, Ezek. 30. 17. and afterwards, as some think, Heliopolis, now Damiata. See Jer. 43. 13. p Upon his employment, and to execute the King's command, and his own counsel.

46 (And Joseph was thirty years old q when he stood r before Pharaoh King of Egypt) and Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt s.

q Which is here noted to teach us, 1. That Joseph's short affliction was recompenced with a much longer prosperity, even for 80 years. 2. That Joseph's excellent wisdom did not proceed from his large large and long experience, but from the singular gift of God. r As his chief minister: to stand before another is the posture and designation of a servant, as 1 Sam. 16. 21. Dan. 1. 19. s To provide places for his stores, and to constitute Officers for the management of them

47 And in the seven plenteous years, the earth brought forth by handfuls t.

t Or, unto handfuls, to wit, growing upon one stalk; or, unto heaps; or, as the ancients render it, for the barns or storehouses; i. e. in such plenty, that all their storehouses were filled with heaps of Corn.

48 And he gathered up all the food u of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities: the food of the field which was round about every city, laid he up in the same.

u That is, either all sorts of grain which was proper for food: or all which he intended to gather, to wit, the fifth part, ver. 34.

49 And Joseph gathered corn as the sand of the sea, very much, until he left numbring: for it was without number.

* Chap. 46. 20. and 48 5. † Or, Prince. ‡ That is, forgetting.

50 * And unto Joseph were born two sons, before the years of famine came, which Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah, † Priest of On bare unto him.

51 And Joseph called the name of the first-born ‡ Manasseh: for God, said he, hath made me forget x all my toyl, and all my father's house y.

x (i. e.) Hath expelled all sorrowful remembrance of it by my present comfort and glory. y (i. e.) The toil of my father's house, or the toil and misery which for many years I have endured by means of my father's family, and my own brethren who sold me hither. A figure called Hendyadis.

52 And the name of the second called he † Ephraim: for God hath caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction z.

z (i. e.) In the land which hitherto hath been to me a land of affliction.

53 ¶ And the seven years of plenteousness, that was in the land of Egypt, were ended.

* Psal. 105. 16.

54 * And the seven years of dearth began to come, according as Joseph had said, and the dearth was in all lands *: but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

* In all the neighbouring Countries, as appears by comparing this with Gen. 42. 1.

55 And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh † for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph: what he saith to you, do.

† As to their King and common Father. Compare 2 Kings 6. 26.

56 And the famine was over all the face of the earth: and Joseph opened all † the store-houses, and sold unto the Egyptians, and the famine waxed sore in all the land of Egypt.

57 And all countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn, because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

CHAP. XLII.

Jacob hearing there was corn in Egypt, sends all his sons thither, but Benjamin, 1——5. They bow before Joseph, who knew them, but not they him; he treats them roughly, 6——8. Remembers his dreams; charges them for spies, 9——12. They to vindicate themselves, declare that they were all sons of one father, and had a younger brother at home, 13. Joseph imprisons them, but releases all but Simeon, and sends the rest to fetch their brother, and so prove their words true, 14——20. Their consciences are awakened, and charge them with their sin against Joseph; they accuse one another, 21, 22. Joseph hears them; weeps; binds Simeon, 23, 24. Joseph orders their sacks to be filled with corn, and to return their money, 25, 26. In the way one finds his money in his sack; they are the more afraid, 27, 28. At home they relate to Jacob what happened to them, so far as to persuade Jacob to let Benjamin go, 29——35. He complains; Reuben undertakes for him; he cannot consent to let him go, 36——38.

* Acts. 7. 12.

NOW when * Jacob saw a that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, Why do ye look one upon another b?

a (i. e.) Heard, as the word is used, Exod. 20. 18. as seeing is put for smelling, Exod. 5. 21. and for tasting, Psal. 34. 8. and for touching, John 20. 29. b Like lazy, careless, and helpless persons, each one expecting relief from the other, but none offering either counsel or help for all our subsistence.

2 And he said, Behold, I have heard c that there is corn in Egypt: get you down d thither, and buy for us from thence, that we may * live and not dye e.

* Chap. 43. 8. Psal. 118. 17. Isa. 38. 1.

c This word explains the word saw, ver. 1. d For Egypt was lower than Canaan; whence on the contrary they are said to go up to Canaan, Gen. 45. 9. e An emphatical repetition of the same thing, used here to make them more sensible of their danger.

3 ¶ And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt.

4 But Benjamin, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not f with his brethren: for he said, Lest peradventure mischief befal him.

f Because he was very young, and now his best beloved son.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

6 And Joseph was the governour over the land, and he it was that sold g to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came, and bowed down themselves before him h, with their faces to the earth.

g Either 1. by his Ministers and Commissioners appointed to that end, as men in Scripture and in all Authors are said to do that which others do by their authority and command. Or 2. he himself immediately contracted with the buyers, or at least with such as were foreigners; which he did upon prudential reasons; both because he would not have them to pry into the state of Egypt, ver. 12. and because he would by that opportunity understand the state of other lands, and improve that knowledge for his master's service. h Thus unwittingly fulfilling Joseph's dream, Gen. 37. 7.

7 And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake † roughly unto them i: and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food.

i Partly to bring their sin to remembrance; partly to get the knowledge of the true state of his Father and Family; and partly to further the following design, and make way for his and their greater happiness.

8 And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him k.

k Because his visage was much altered by his beard, and by other things, it being about 20 years since they saw him; and his Egyptian Language, and Habit, and Carriage, together with the great dignity of his Place, prevented all suspicions concerning their Brother.

9 And Joseph * remembred the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies l; to see the nakedness of the land m you are come.

* Chap. 37. 5.

l This he saith, not because they were so, or he thought them to be so, but that he might search out the truth of their Affair, speaking too much like a Courtier or Politician. m (i. e.) The weak parts of it, and where it may be best assaulted or surprized.

10 And they said unto him, Nay, my lord, but to buy food are thy servants come.

11 We are all one man's sons n; we are true men o: thy servants are no spies.

n And therefore not Spies; for it is not likely either that a Father would venture so many of his Sons upon so hazardous an employment; or that such a work would have been trusted in the hands of one Family only. o Who honestly and truly mean what we pretend, and have no other design in our coming hither.

12 And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land you are come.

13 And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan: and behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one * is not p.

* Lam. 5. 7.

p (i. e.) Is dead, as that Phrase often signifies both in Scripture, as Gen. 37. 30. and 44. 20. Jer. 31. 15. Matth. 2. 17, 18. and in other Authors, as Homer, Euripides, &c. They concluded with great probability that he was dead, chap. 44. 20. because for twenty years together they had heard nothing, either of him, or from him; which may seem strange, considering the nearness of Egypt and Canaan: But this came to pass partly from his own long imprisonment, and afterwards from his great and high Employment; partly from his loathness to bring so much mischief to his Father, and Brethren, as the discovery of his case might have produced; and principally from the over-ruling Providence of God, which for its own glorious design disposed of Joseph's mind and Affairs, so that he either did not send to his Father's House, or that the Messages were intercepted, there being not then those conveniencies for mutual correspondencies which now there are. And it is not improbable that Joseph might be further acquainted with the mind of God in this matter by Dreams, which may seem to have been familiarly afforded to him, together with the interpretation of them. See Gen. 40. 8. and 41. 16.

14 And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies q.

q This justifies my Accusation; for it is not probable, that one man should have so many Sons, all grown up and living together in one Family, and that he should expose them all to the perils of such a Journey.

15 Hereby ye shall be proved: * By the life of Pharaoh r, ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither.

* See 1 Sam. 1. 26. & 17. 55.

r As sure as Pharaoh lives. It seems to be the form of an Oath in use among the Egyptians, as afterwards the Romans used to swear by the Name, Genius, Health, and Life of their Emperors. Compare 1 Sam. 1. 26. and 17. 55. 2 Kings 2. 2. Ezek. 33. 11. And it is not strange that Joseph through human infirmity was carried by the stream of the general practice of the Court, especially when the law of God was not yet delivered concerning the appropriation of Oaths unto God.

16 Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be † kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else by the life of Pharaoh surely ye are spies.

17 And he † put them all together into ward seven days.

18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live s: * for I fear God t.

* Neh. 5. 15.

s I will spare your lives, and not punish you with death as Spies, and you shall carry provisions, that your family also may live. t And therefore will not be cruel to you, nor to your brother whom you shall leave with me. This might have raised some suspicion concerning Joseph, but that they knew there were divers among the Heathens who did own the true God, though they worshipped Idols with him.

19 If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the house of your prison *: go ye, carry corn for the famine of your houses:

* In which you are now imprisoned, and are still like to be so, if you accept not this condition.

* Chap. 43. 5.

20 But * bring your youngest brother unto me, so shall your words be verified, and ye shall not dye: and they did so u.

u (i. e.) Resolved and promised to do so. Those things are oft said to be done in Scripture, which were sincerely resolved upon, as hath been noted before.

21 And they said one to another, We are verily guilty x concerning our brother, in that we saw the anguish of his soul, when he besought us y, and we would not hear: therefore is this distress come upon us z.

z This is the just punishment of that great wickedness, which though we could cover from men, yet we now see and feel was known to God, who is now reckoning with us for it. Thus Divine Vengeance overtakes them, and Conscience tortures them for a sin committed above 20 years before, and their affliction brings them to Repentance. y Compare Gen. 49. 23. Yet this passage is not mentioned in that History, chap. 37. Learn hence, that the silence of the Scripture is no good Argument that such or such a thing was not said or done, except in some special cases. z He is inexorable to us, as we were to him.

* Chap. 37. 21.

22 And Reuben answered them, saying, * Spake I not unto you, saying, Do not sin against the child, and ye would not hear? therefore behold also, his blood a is required.

a The punishment of his blood or death occasioned by us.

† Heb. an interpreter was between them.

23 And they knew not that Joseph understood them: for † he spake unto them by an interpreter.

24 And he turned himself about from them, and wept b, and returned to them again, and communed with them, and took from them Simeon c, and bound him before their eyes d.

b Tears partly of natural affection and compassion towards his brethren, now in great distress and anguish; and partly of joy to see the happy success of his design, and rigorous carriage, in bringing them to the sight of their sins. c Whom he chuseth to punish, partly, because next to Reuben he was the eldest, and as it may be probably gathered from his bloody disposition, Gen. 34. 25. and 49. 6. the most fierce and forward against Joseph. when Reuben was for milder counsels, as we see here, ver. 22. and chap. 37. 29. and partly because the detainment of one of so perverse and furious a temper would least afflict his father, and most secure Benjamin, who was to come with his Brethren. d That it might make deeper impression upon their hard hearts, and make their repentance more effectual.

25 Then Joseph commanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every mans money into his sack, and to give them provision for the way, and thus did he unto them.

26 And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.

27 And as one of them e opened his sack, to give his ass provender in the inn, he espied his money; for behold, it was in his sacks mouth.

e And after him the rest by his example and information did so, as is affirmed, chap. 43. ver. 21. and it is not denied here.

28 And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored, and lo, it is even in my sack; and their heart † failed them, and they were afraid f, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done unto us †?

f Lest this should be a design to entrap, and so destroy them. † Whoever were the Instruments, they knew that God was the chief Author of this occurrent, and wisely reflect upon his Providence in it, and their own Guilt which provoked him against them.

29 And they came unto Jacob their father, unto the land of Canaan, and told him all that befel unto them, saying;

30 The man who is the lord of the land, spake † roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

31 And we said unto him, We are true men, we are no spies.

32 We be twelve brethren, sons of our father: one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.

33 And the man, the lord of the countrey, said unto us, Hereby shall I know that ye are true men, leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your houfholds, and be gone, 34 And bring your youngest brother unto me: then shall I know that you are no spies, but that you are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall traffick in the land.

35 And it came to pass as they emptied their sacks, that behold every man's bundle of money was in his sack: and when both they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid g.

g (i. e.) Their fear returned upon them with more violence, having now more leisure to consider things, and their wise and experienced father suggesting new matters to them, which might more deeply affect them.

36 And Jacob their father said unto them, Me have ye bereaved of my children; Joseph is not, and Simeon is not h: and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me i.

h He gave him up for lost, as being, as he thought, in the power of a cruel enemy. i I am the great sufferer in all these things: you carry your selves as if you were neither concerned nor affected with them.

37 And Reuben spake unto his father, saying, Slay my two sons k if I bring him not to thee; deliver him into my hand, and I will bring him to thee again.

k Two of the four mentioned Gen. 46. 9. An absurd propolition, neither fit for him to make, nor for Jacob to accept.

38 And he said, My son shall not go down with you; for his brother is dead, and he is left alone l: if mischief befal him by the way in the which ye go, then shall ye bring down my gray-hairs with sorrow to the grave.

l To wit, of his mother, my dear Rachel.

CHAP. XLIII.

The famine continuing, and their provision being spent, Jacob commands them to go again to Egypt, 1, 2. They prevail with their father to send Benjamin: Judah undertakes for him, 3——10. He gives them presents; double money; and his blessing, 11——14. They go to Egypt; stand before Joseph, 15. He seeing Benjamin with them, causeth them to be brought to his house, and entertain'd, 16, 17. Whereat they are afraid, and make an apology to the steward about their money, 18——22. He bids them good cheer, useth them courteously, brings Simeon to them, 23, 24. They prepare to bring their presents to Joseph; who speaks kindly to them, (and asks them of their father) especially to Benjamin, with whom he is so moved, that he must retire to weep, 25——30. He feasts them, but Benjamin in an especial manner, 31——34.

AND the famine was sore in the land.

2 And it came to pass when they had eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father said unto them, Go again, buy us a little food a.

a He saith a little, either to shew that he took no thought to satisfy his or their curiosity or luxury, but only their necessity, for which a little would suffice, and that they must all moderate their appetites, especially in a time of such scarcity; or to encourage them to the journey, by suggesting to them that they needed not bring great stores, but only what was sufficient for that year, and that God would provide better for them hereafter, so as they should not need to go so far for corn any more.

3 And Judah spake unto him, saying, The man did † solemnly protest unto us, saying, Ye shall not see my face b except your * brother be with you.

b See the same expression, 2 Sam. 14. 24, 32. Acts 20. 25, 38. Ye shall not be admitted into my presence, nor to the purchasing of any Corn here

* Chap. 42. 20. and 44. 23.

4 If thou wilt send our brother with us, we will go down and buy thee food.

5 But if thou wilt not send him, we will not go down c; for the man said unto us, Ye shall not see my face except your brother be with you.

c Because we shall both lose the end of our journey, viz. the getting of Corn, and run the utmost hazard of all our lives.

6 And Israel said, Wherefore dealt ye so ill with me as to tell the man whether ye had yet a brother?

7 And they said, The man † asked us straitly of our state, and of our kindred, saying, Is your father yet alive? have ye another brother? and we told him according to the * tenor of these words d; † could we certainly know that he would say, Bring your brother down?

† Heb. asking he asked us.

* Heb. mouth.

d We gave answers suitable to his questions, or such as his words required.

8 And Judah e said unto Israel his father, Send the lad f with me, and we will arise and go; that we may live, live, and not die, both we and thou, and also our little ones.

c Who for his age and prudence, and penitent carriage for his youthful follies, was most beloved and regarded by his father. f So he calls him, because he was the youngest of all, though he was now thirty years old, and a father of divers children. See Gen. 30.22. and 35. 18. and 41. 46. and 46. 21.

9 I will be surety for him: of my hand shalt thou require him: * If I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame g for ever.

*Chap. 44. 32.

g Heb. be an offender to thee. Let me bear the guilt, and shame, and punishment due to so great an offence.

10 For except we had lingred, surely now we had returned † this second time.

11 And their father Israel said unto them, If it must be so now, do this: take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and carry down the man a present, a little balm, and a little honey, spices, and myrrhe *, nuts b and almonds.

* Of all which see Gen 37. 25. b That kind of Nuts which we call Pistachoes, as some Hebrew and other Expositors render the word; for that was both an excellent Fruit, and peculiar to Judea and Syria, and well agreeing with the Almonds which here follow.

12 And take double money i in your hand; and the money that was brought again in the mouth of your sacks, carry it again k in your hand; peradventure it was an overlight l.

i Double to what you carried last, either to procure more Corn, which may prevent the frequency of such perilous journeys; or because the continuance and increase of the scarcity had advanced the price. k For it is their money, not ours, and therefore must be restored. l Either in you, or in the Receiver of your money, who through multitude of Buyers, and haste in his business, might easily be mistaken.

13 Take also your brother, and arise, go again unto the man.

14 And God almighty give you mercy before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin: † If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved m.

† Or, and I, as I have been, &c.

m An expression whereby he submits himself and children to God's Will and Providence, whatever the issue shall be. Compare Esther 4. 16. Or thus, As I have been already bereaved of some of my dearest children, so I shall be bereaved of the rest, and I shall be left solitary; and if this be my portion, God's will be done.

15 And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and Benjamin, and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph.

16 And when Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to the ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and † slay, and make ready: for these men shall † dine with me at noon n.

n The usual time for the more solemn Meal in the East Countries, as the evening was the time, and the supper the great meal among the Romans.

17 And the man did as Joseph bade: and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

18 And the men were afraid because they were brought into Joseph's house, and they said, Because of the money that was returned in our sacks at the first time, are we brought in, that he may † seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us for bondmen o, and our asses.

o The proper punishment for Thieves.

19 And they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house;

20 And said, O sir, * † we came indeed down at the first time to buy food,

* Chap. 42. 3.

21 And * it came to pass when we came to the inn, that we opened our sacks, and behold, every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight: and we have brought it again in our hand.

† Heb. coming down, we came down.

* Chap. 42. 27.

22 And other money have we brought down in our hands to buy food: we cannot tell who put our money in our sacks.

23 And he said, Peace be to you p; fear not: your God, and the God of your father q hath given you treasure in your sacks r: † I had your money. And he brought Simeon out unto them.

p No harm shall come to you for that matter. q Thus he speaks, because Joseph had instructed him, as well as others of his family, in the true Religion. r By his power and providence secretly putting it there.

24 And the man brought the men into Joseph's house, and * gave them water, and they washed their feet, and he gave their asses provender.

* Chap. 18. 4. 24. 32. 43. 24.

25 And they made ready the present against Joseph came at noon: for they heard that they should eat bread there.

26 And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand, into the house, and bowed themselves to him to the earth.

27 And he asked them of their † welfare, and said, * Is your father well, the old man † of whom ye spake? Is he yet alive?

† Heb. peace. * Heb. thereof to you. † Chap. 43. 27.

28 And they answered, Thy servant s our father is in good health, he is yet alive: and they bowed down their heads, and made obeisance.

† Chap. 43. 28.

s By which expression delivered in Jacob's name, and by his order, 44. 18. Jacob himself made obeisance to him, as was foretold, Gen. 37. 9.

29 And he lift up his eyes, and saw † his brother Benjamin, his mother's son, and said, Is this your younger brother * of whom ye spake unto me? And he said, God be gracious unto thee my son t.

† Or, mother's trial. * Chap. 43. 29.

t (i.e.) More narrowly observed him, having now more leisure than he seems to have had when he saw him first. ver. 16. u So he calls him, not from special affection, which he intended not yet to discover; but because this compellation is commonly used when a man speaks to another who is his inferior in age or dignity.

30 And Joseph made haste, for his bowels did yern upon his brother: and he sought where to weep, and he entered into his chamber, and wept there.

x His heart and inward parts were vehemently moved, as they commonly are upon occasion of any excessive passion, of love, pity, grief, or joy, &c.

31 And he washed his face, and went out, and refrained himself, and said, Set on bread.

32 And they set on for him by himself y, and for them by themselves, and for the Egyptians which did eat with him, by themselves: because the Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews, for that is an abomination unto the Egyptians z.

y Partly because the dignity of his place, and the custom of Princes required this state; and partly for the reason here following. z Not so much from their pride and disdain of other people, as from their superstition and idolatry; partly because they worshipped the Creatures which the Hebrews and others did commonly eat; and partly because of some peculiar Rites and Customs which they had in the dressing and ordering of their diet. Whence Herodotus affirms, that the Egyptians would not use the pots nor knives of the Grecians about their food. Compare Gen. 46. 34. See there, Exod. 8. 26.

33 And they sate before him, the first-born according to his birth-right, and the youngest according to his youth a: and the men b marvelled c one at another.

a Being so placed either by Joseph's appointment; or rather by their own choice, and according to their custom; by which the elder, though the handmaidens children, took place of the younger, aged, and how great a sin it is, though very customary, in young men to despise those whom they should reverence. b Not the Egyptians, but the Hebrews, the men last spoken of. c Either at the matter and manner of the feasts and entertainments of the Egyptians; or rather, at the singular honour which Joseph did to them above all others, the reason whereof they could not conceive, and therefore marvelled at it.

34 And he took, and sent messes unto them from before him d: but Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of theirs e: and they drunk, and † were merry f with him.

d It was the ancient custom of Egypt and other Countries in their feasts, that either all the meat, or at least some eminent parts and parcels of it, were not promiscuously set before all the guests, but peculiarly distributed by the Master of the Feast to the several Guests, and that differently, according to his respect and affection to them, or to their several qualities. See 1 Sam. 1. 5. and 9. 22, 23, 24. e Partly because of his nearer relation and dearer affection to him, and partly to observe whether this would raise that envy in them towards him, which was the occasion of their malicious enterprize against him: but he might accordingly provide for his security. f The Hebrew word oft signifies to be drunk, but oft-times it is only to drink liberally, though not to drunkenness, as may appear from Cant. 5. 1. Hag. 1. 6. John 2. 10.

CHAP. XLIV.

Joseph commands his steward to fill their sacks; restore every man's money; and put his silver cup into Benjamin's sack; sends them away, 1—3. Thereby contriving to bring them back again; they are pursued, and charged with theft, 4——6. Whereat being greatly perplexed, they ignorantly make themselves liable to punishment, 7——10. The cup is found in Benjamin's sack; they return to Joseph, submitting to his censure, 10——14. Joseph pretends the gift of prophecy, 15. Judah speaks much and earnestly on Benjamin's behalf, offering to remain in his stead, 16——34.

AND he commanded the † steward of his house, saying, Fill the mens sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth.

† Heb. that was over his house.

2 And put my cup a, the silver cup, in the sack's mouth of the youngest b, and his corn-money: and he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

a It seems to have been a large cup, and of great price, and much used by Joseph. b With design to discover their intentions and affections towards Benjamin, whether they did envy him, and would desert him in his danger, as they did Joseph; or would cleave to him, that hence he might take his measures how to deal with him and them.

3 As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they, and their asses.

4 And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men: and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good?

5 Is not this it in which my lord drinketh? and whereby indeed he † divineth c? Ye have done evil in so doing.

c Amongst the several kinds of divination in use among the Egyptians and other Heathens, this was one, to do it by a cup or bason, which they filled with water, and put in them plates of silver, or precious stones, in which certain characters were engraven, by which, and some words they used, they called upon the Devil, who gave them answer. Joseph did not use this course, nor was a Diviner, but the people thought him such a one, and the steward might represent him as such, for the better covering or carrying on his design. But this sense agrees not with the 15*th.* verse of this Chapter, Wot you not, &c. Which words shew that he speaks of something which they all might easily know; but they did not know that Joseph was a Diviner, much less that he divined by that Cup, whereas that kind of divination was generally performed by a Glass, not by a Cup. Others observe, that the Hebrew word oft-times signifies not to divine, but only to observe and discover a thing, as Gen. 30. 27. 1 Kings 20. 33. and render the place thus, whereby he will certainly observe or discover, to wit, what you are, and do. But this also seems not to consist with ver. 15. and the supplement is too large and remote. The true sense then is this, the Hebrew bo is not to be rendered by which, but concerning which, as the Particle beth is oft used, and it notes not the Instrument whereby, but the Object about which he did divine, and the words must be rendred, concerning which he can or would certainly divine. And this agrees well with ver 15. 9 d. Did you think you could deceive my Master? Did not you and all others know that he could divine, and discover secret things, whence he had both his name and preferment? And this Cup being much prized and used by him, you might easily judge that he would use his art to recover it. * (i.e.) Very evil, unjustly, unthankfully, and foolishly.

6 And he overtook them, and he spake unto them these same words.

7 And they said unto him, Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing.

8 Behold, the money which we found in our sacks mouths, we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan: how then should we steal out of thy lord's house silver or gold d?

d It is not probable that we who restored that which was in our power to keep, and to conceal without any danger, should steal that which was likely to be discovered with so much shame and hazard to our selves.

9 With whom soever of thy servants it be found, both * let him dye, and we also will be my lord's bondmen e.

* Chap. 31. 32.

e This over-daring offer proceeded from hence, that they were all conscious of their own innocency, and did not suspect any fraud or artifice in the matter.

10 And he said, Now also let it be according unto your words: he with whom it is found, shall be my servant, and ye shall be blameless f.

f Thus he moderates the conditions which they proposed, exempting the innocent, and exchanging the deserved and offered death of the nocent into slavery.

11 Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

12 And he searched, and began at the eldest g, and left at the youngest: and the cup h was found in Benjamin's sack.

g To take off all their suspicion of his fraud. h He found doubtless the money there, but he accused them not about that matter, both because they had an answer ready to that charge from his own mouth, cap. 43. 23. and because the greater crime, the stealing of the Cup which Joseph so much prized and used, might seem to extinguish the less, or at least cause him to neglect it.

13 Then they rent their cloathes, and laded every man his ass, and returned to the City i.

i Being afraid and ashamed to go to their Father without Benjamin, concerning whom they had received so severe a Charge, and made such solemn Promises and Imprecations.

14 And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house: (for he was yet there) and they fell before him on the ground.

15 And Joseph said unto them, What deed is this that ye have done? Wot ye not that such a man as I can certainly † divine?

16 And Judah k said, What shall we say unto my lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear our selves? God hath found out the iniquity l of thy servants: behold, we are my lord's servants, both we, and he also with whom the cup is found.

k Who speaks in the cause, as being one of the eldest, and a person of most gravity and discretion, and readiness of speech, and most eminently concerned for his brother. l viz. This iniquity, of which it seems some of us are guilty, and God hath discovered it. Or, iniquity may be put for iniquities; whether we are guilty of this Fact or not, we are certainly guilty of many other sins, for which God is now punishing us, to whose Providence we therefore willingly submit.

17 And he said, God forbid that I should do so: but the man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant: and as for you, get you up in peace unto your father.

18 Then Judah came near unto him m, and said, O my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears n, and let not thy anger burn against thy servant: for thou art even as Pharaoh o.

m Made a little nearer approach to him, that he might present his humble Petition to him. n In thy hearing: For this phrase doth not necessarily imply that he whispered in his ears; as appears from Numb. 14. 28. Deut. 32. 44. Judg. 17. 2. o As thou representest his Person, so thou art invested with his Majesty and Authority, and therefore thy Word is a Law; thou canst do with us what thou pleasest, either spare or punish us, and therefore we do justly deprecate thine Anger, and most humbly intreat thy favourable Audience, and Princely Compassion to us.

19 My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20 And we said unto my lord, We have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one p, and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him.

p So they call him comparatively to themselves, who were much elder; and withal, to signify the reason why he came not with them, because he was young and tender, and unfit for such a journey.

21 And thou saidst unto thy servants, Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him q.

q (i.e.) See him with my own eyes, and thereby be satisfied of the truth of what you say. Compare Gen. 42. 15, 16. Elsewhere this Phrase signifies to shew favour to a person, as Jer. 39. 12. and 40. 4. But tho that was Joseph's intention, as yet he was minded to conceal it from them.

22 And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father: for if he should leave his father, his father would dye.

23 And thou saidst unto thy servants, * Except your youngest brother come down with you, you shall see my face no more r.

* Chap. 43. 3.

r Quest. Why would Joseph expose his Father to the hazard of his life, in parting with his dear Child? Answ. Joseph supposed that to be but a pretence, and might fear left his brethren had disposed of Benjamin as they did of him, and therefore could not bring him forth. And as for his Father, the experience which he had of his continuance in life and health after the supposed untimely death of Joseph, gave him good assurance that his parting with Benjamin for a season, and that under the care and charge of his brethren, was not likely to make any dangerous impression upon him.

24 And it came to pass when we came up unto thy servant my father, we told him the words of my lord.

25 And * our father said, Go again, and buy us a little food.

* Chap. 43. 2.

26 And we said, We cannot go down: if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down: for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us.

27 And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know that my wife s bare me two sons.

s He calleth her so by way of Eminency, as Gen. 46. 19. because she only was his Wife by design and choice, whereas Leah was put upon him by fraud, and might have been refused by him, if he had so pleased; and the other two were given to him by Rachel and Leah.

28 And the one went out from me, and I said, Surely he is torn in pieces; and I saw him not since:

* Chap. 37. 33.

29 And if ye take this also from me, and mischief befal him, ye shall bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave.

30 Now therefore when I come to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us; (seeing that his life is bound up in the lads life) t t The death of the Child, which upon this occasion he will firmly believe will unavoidably procure his death also.

31 It shall come to pass when he seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die, and thy servants shall bring down the gray hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

32 For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying, * If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father for ever.

33 Now therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide in stead of the lad u, a bondman to my Lord, and let the lad go up with his brethren.

*Chap. 43. 9.

u Partly in compassion to our aged Father, and partly for thy own advantage; because I can be more serviceable to thee than he, because of my greater strength and experience.

34 For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me, lest peradventure I see the evil that shall † come on my father?

my father.

CHAP. XLV.

Joseph no longer able to refrain, discovers himself to his brethren, and weeps; asks concerning his father: they are troubled at his presence, 1——3. He forbids their grief for their sin, and comforts them with God's gracious design and providence in it, 4——8. He hastens them to go and acquaint their father, and bring him to Egypt; his message to his father, 9——13. His kindness to Benjamin and his brethren, 14, 15. Pharaoh is glad, and invites them down to Egypt, 16 —— 20. Joseph dismisses them with gifts and presents to his father; exhorting them not to fall out by the way, 21—24. Coming home they relate all to their father, who at last believes them, rejoycing that he should see his son before he died, 25—28.

THen Joseph could not refrain himself before all them that stood by him, and he cryed, Cause every man to go out from me a: and there stood no man with him, while Joseph made himself known unto his brethren.

a Remove all the Egyptians out of my Presence and Chamber. Which he did, partly that he might maintain the honour of his place, and not make himself cheap and contemptible to the Egyptians, by his excessive tears and passions, and by his free and familiar, and affectionate converse with his Brethren; and partly to preserve the reputation of his Brethren, by concealing their fault from the Egyptians.

2 And he † wept aloud b; and the Egyptians, and the house of Pharaoh heard c.

b His tears and voice which had been hitherto kept in by main force, now breaking forth with greater violence. * Some who were near with their own ears, and others by report.

Acts 7. 13.

3 And Joseph said unto his brethren, * I am Joseph; Doth my father yet live c? And his brethren could not answer him: for they were † troubled at his presence †.

c He repeats his former question, Gen. 43. 27. either because he questioned the truth of their former relation, or would be further satisfied in it, it being usual with men to ask over and over again what they long to know; or because he now desired a more particular relation of his Father's Condition, and how he did bear up under all his Calamities. † From a sudden and deep sense of their horrid guilt, and their just fear of some dreadful punishment.

4 And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me d, I pray you: and they came near, and he said, I am Joseph your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt e.

d Be not afraid of me, but come nearer to me with chearfulness and confidence, that you may be assured that I am he, and that we may more freely and privately discourse together, so as none others may hear. It is probable that Joseph fate in state, and that they hitherto kept a due distance from him. e (i. e.) Sold unto them that brought me into Egypt, and sold me there. See Gen. 37. 28. and 39. 1. So they sold him into Egypt occasionally and eventually.

†Heb. neither let there be anger in your eyes.

5 Now therefore be not grieved f, † nor angry with your selves g, that ye sold me hither: * for God did send me b before you to preserve life i.

*Chap. 50. 20. Psal. 105. 16, 17.

f To wit, immoderately, and for the injury which you did to me, or for the danger which you have brought upon your selves. Otherwise he doth not disswade them from a godly sorrow for their offence against God, for the procurement of which he designed and used that strange and rough carriage towards them. g Neither excessively torment your selves with the remembrance of the fact, neither break forth into contentions and wrath, and upbraidings of one another. h God by his wise, powerful, and gracious Providence over-ruled your evil intentions to an happy end. i Not only your lives, for the expression is here indefinite and general, but the lives of all the People in this and the neighbouring Countries. Which though it doth not lessen your sin, yet ought to qualify your sorrow.

6 For these two years hath the famine been in the land: and yet there are five years, in the which there shall neither be earing nor harvest k.

k Neither sowing nor reaping, except in a few places near Nilus, because the People could not spare seed-corn, and would not lose it; understanding from Joseph that their cost and labour would be lost, and that the famine would be of long continuance.

7 And God sent me before you to † preserve you a posterity l in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance m.

l That you and your Children might be sustained and preserved in this time of Famine, and afterwards abundantly multiplied, as God hath promised. m Or, For a great remnant, or escaping, (i. e.) that you who are now but an handful, escaping this danger, may grow into a vast multitude. The word evasion, or escaping, is here put for the persons that do escape, as it is 2 Chron. 30. 6. Isa. 10. 20. and as captivity is oft put for the Captives, as it is Numb. 21. 1. Deut. 21. 10. And so what was said in the former clause is repeated in this, with an emphatical addition.

8 So now it was not you that sent me hither, but God n: and he hath made me a father to Pharaoh o, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.

n That I came to this place, and pitch of honour and power, is not to be imputed to your design, which was of another nature, but to God's over-ruling Providence, which ordered the circumstances of your action, so as I should be brought to this place and state. Compare Gen. 50. 20. o To advise him, and to provide for him as Fathers do for their Children, and to have the authority, respect, and power of a Father with him.

9 Haste you, and go up to my father, and say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph; God hath made me lord of all Egypt: come down unto me, tarry not.

10 And thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen p, and thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy childrens children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast.

p A part of Egypt bordering upon Canaan, well watered and fit for cattle, and therefore most proper for the Israelites not only for present use, and to keep them at some distance from the inward parts of Egypt, and from the Court, but also that they might have Canaan always in their eye, and mind, and in God's time might with least disadvantage march thither. Joseph promiseth this place, either because it was least inhabited, being in the borders of the Land, or because he justly presumed upon the King's favour, and knew that the growing Famine would give him opportunity to dispose of the people as he pleased.

11 And there will I nourish thee (for yet there are five years of famine) lest thou, and thy houshold, and all that thou hast, come to poverty.

12 And behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is my mouth that speaketh unto you q.

q Because I speak to you not by an Interpreter, as hitherto I have done, but immediately, and in the Hebrew Language.

13 And you shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that you have seen, and ye shall haste, and * bring down my father hither.

* Acts 7. 14.

14 And he fell upon his brother Benjamins neck, and wept: and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

15 Moreover, he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him r.

r To wit, freely and familiarly, being encouraged by his kindness.

16 ¶ And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaohs house, saying, Josephs brethren are come: and it † pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants s.

s Because they all owed their lives unto Joseph, and his favour was now fresh and present, and therefore he had more influence upon them, and they more kindness for him.

17 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye, lade your beasts, and go, get you unto the land of Canaan, 18 And take your father, and your houshold, and come unto me, and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye shall eat * the fat of the land t.

* Chap. 47. 28.

t The choiceſt Fruits of the Land. Fat oft is put for the best of any sort, as Numb. 18. 12, 29. Deut. 32. 14. Psal. 63. 5. and 147. 14.

19 Now thou art commanded u, this do ye; Take you wagons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father and come.

u Besides that absolute power which I have given thee to dispose of all things as thou pleasest, I do particularly and especially command thee to do this thing.

20 Also † regard not your stuff x: for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours.

x Heb. Let not your eye pity or spare any part of your stuff, as loath to leave it behind you, or afraid to lose it. Sparing or pitying is an act of the Mind, but it is ascribed to the Eye here, as also Ezek. 7. 4, 9. and 16. 5. partly because there it discovers it self by tears, or otherwise; and partly because the sight of the Eye doth oft affect the Heart, and move pity.

21 And the children of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them wagons, according to the † commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way.

† Heb. mouth.

22 To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment y: but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and five changes of raiment.

y New and handsome Garments, which upon their coming into Pharaoh's presence, and on other occasions they might wear in stead of those more old and homely ones, which they brought with them from Canaan. Compare Judg. 14. 12, 19. 2 Kings 5. 5.

23 And to his father he sent after this manner ‡: ten asses † laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she asses laden with corn, and bread, and meat for his father by the way.

z Heb. According to this. What? Either what went before, changes of raiment, or what follows, ten asses, &c.

24 So he sent his brethren away, and they departed, and he said unto them, See that ye fall not out a by the way.

a Or, contend, one with another, each vindicating himself, and laying the blame upon his Brother.

25 ¶ And they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan unto Jacob their father.

26 And told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governour over all the land of Egypt. And † Jacobs heart fainted b, for he believed them not c.

b Or, was weakned, or failed, he fell into a swoon, as it is ordinary, because of the greatness and suddenness of the news, and the conflict of contrary and violent passions, raised hereby, grief at the remembrance of his former loss, and excessive joy for Joseph's recovery and felicity; hope that this might be true, and fear lest it should be but a fiction of theirs: Any one of these passions are able to cause a fainting of the spirits, but much more when all meet together, especially in an aged person. c Partly because of the greatness, and strangeness, and definableness of the thing Compare Psal. 126. 1. and partly because they were by this very relation convicted of one lye about Joseph, in saying that he was dead, and therefore might easily be thought guilty of another 27 And they told him all the words of Joseph which he had said unto them; and when he saw the wagons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived.

28 And Israel said, It is enough d; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die.

d I desire no more, no greater happiness in this World, than to see him. Which when I have done, I am willing to die.

CHAP. XLVI.

Jacob sets out towards Egypt with his family and substance; offers sacrifices at Beersheba; God appears to him in a vision; renewing his promises and blessing, 1——4. He goes to Egypt, 5. The names of the children of Israel, 8——27. Jacob sends Judah before him; Joseph goes to meet his Father; their joy, 28——30. Joseph instructs his brethren what to say to Pharaoh, to declare themselves shepherds, and desire to dwell in Goshen; the reason, 31——34.

AND Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beersheba, and offered sacrifices a unto the God of his father Isaac b.

a Both in thankfulness to God for former favours, and especially for Joseph's preservation and happiness; and by way of supplication to God for his direction in this great case, whether he might leave the promised land of Canaan, and go into the idolatrous and impious land of Egypt; and for his protection and blessing, as well in his journey as in Egypt. b Whom Isaac honoured and served, and who had constantly protected, and provided for Isaac, and confirmed his covenant with him. He mentions Isaac rather than Abraham, partly for Isaac's honour, to shew that though Isaac was much inferiour to Abraham in gifts and graces, yet God was no less Isaac's than Abraham's God, and therefore would be his God also, notwithstanding his unworthiness; and partly for his own comfort, because Isaac was Jacob's immediate Parent, and had transferred the blessing of the covenant from Esau to Jacob, and the validity of that translation depended upon Isaac's interest in God.

2 And God spake unto Israel in the visions of the night c, and said, Jacob, Jacob d: And he said, Here am I.

c (i. c.) In that way or manner of Visions which God affordeth to Men by night, and in their sleep. See Gen. 20. 3. Job 33. 15, 16. Matth. 1. 20. and 2. 13, 19. Acts 16. 9. and 18. 9. &c. d He doubles the name both in token of his friendship and familiarity with him, and to raise Jacob's attention. Compare Gen. 22. 11. 1 Sam. 3. 10.

3 And he said, I am God, the God of thy father; fear not e to go down into Egypt: for I will there make of thee a great nation.

e For here were many causes of fear, lest he should do evil in forsaking the promised and blessed Land, and going to a place which had been incommodious to his Grandfather, Gen. 12. 15. and forbidden to his Father, Gen. 26. 2. lest he should expose his Children to manifold perils, as of being infected with the vices, and particularly the Idolatry which reigned there above all other Countries, and of being inveagled by the pleasantnesses and eminent fruitfulnesses of that Soil, to give up themselves to all manner of pleasures, and to settle themselves there, and give over all thoughts of returning to Canaan; and of being brought into that grievous bondage and affliction which was spoken of Gen. 15. 13. and lest some mischief should befal him or his in so long and dangerous a journey.

4 I will go down with thee into Egypt, and I will also surely bring thee up again: and Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes g.

f Though not in thy person, yet in thy body, Gen. 47. 29, 30. and 50. 5, 13. and in thy posterity, which are a part of thy self, or thy self multiplied. g Shall close thy eyes; which office was usually performed by the nearest and dearest Relations of the dying party among the Jews, Grecks, and Romans. Hereby Jacob is assured that he should die in peace, and that Joseph both now was alive, and should survive his Father.

8 ¶ And * these are the names of the children of Israel which came into Egypt k, Jacob and his sons: Reuben, Jacobs first-born.

* Exod. 1. 1. and 6. 14. Num. 26. 8. and 1 Chr. 5. 1. Numb. 26. 5.

k This Genealogy is both here and elsewhere described exactly and particularly, as well to shew the faithfulness of God in the performance of his Promise concerning the vast Multiplication of Abraham's Seed, and that in so short a time; as to distinguish the Tribes; which was of great importance, and necessary for the disposal of the Kingdom and Priesthood, and above all, for the discovery of the true Messias. Compare this following Catalogue with that Numb. 26. and 1 Chron. 6. and 7. and 8.

9 And the sons of Reuben, Hanoch, and Phallu, and Hezron, and Carmi.

10 ¶ * And the sons of Simeon: † Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad l, and † Jachin, and † Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman m.

* Exod. 6. 15. 1 Chron. 4. 24.

† Or, Jarib

l Who is not mentioned in those parallel places, because he was then dead, and that without issue. m Which is here mentioned as a Brand upon him, and as an intimation that the rest of them, except Judah, married to Persons of a better Race.

11 ¶ And the sons * of Levi, † Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

* 1 Chron. 6. 1, 16.

† Or, Gershom.

12 ¶ And the sons of * Judah: Er, and Onan, and Shelah and Pharez, and Zerah: but Er, and Onan died in the land of Canaan n. And the sons of Pharez were * Hezron, and Hamul o.

* 1 Chron. 2. 3. and 4. 21.

n And therefore are not contained in the following number, verse 15. o Who, though they seem to have been born in Egypt, yet are here set down amongst those who came into Egypt, because they came thither in their Father's Loyns, as Levi is said to pay tithes in Abraham, Heb. 7. 9. And the Children may as well be said to come thither in their Parents, as their Father Jacob is said to return from thence, verse 4. in his Children. Obj. If this be the sense, why should these two be mentioned rather than the Grandchildren of the other Brethren, who came into Egypt in the same manner! Answ. This may be done either, 1. From some special Excellency or Eminency in them above the rest, as Hezron was eminent for being the Progenitor of the Messiah, and Hamul might be so for some other cause though unknown to us. Or 2. Because they were the first Grandchildren that were born in Egypt, and it may be all that were born whilst Jacob lived there, and therefore are not unfitly named with Jacob, and allotted to him, as Joseph's two eldest Sons, Ephraim and Manasseh were by Jacob appropriated to himself, and reckoned as his immediate Sons, when all the rest of Joseph's Sons were excluded from that priviledge, Gen. 48. 5, 6. And the like may be said of the other two Grandchildren mentioned verse 17.

Chap. 38. 1 Chron. 2. 5.

13 ¶ * And the sons of Isachar: Tola and † Phuvah, and Job, and Shimron.

* 1 Chron. 7. 1.

† Or, Puah—Jashub.

14 ¶ And the sons of Zebulun: Sered, and Elon, and Jahleel.

15 These be the sons of Leah which she bare unto Jacob in Padan-Aram p with his daughter Dinah: all the souls of his sons and his daughters q, were thirty and three.

p This is true properly and immediately of the Sons; who were indeed born there, but improperly and mediately of the Grandchildren, which are as truly said to be born of Leah in Padan, as to be born of her at all, because they were indeed born of them which were born of her, and that in Padan. q To wit, which came into Egypt as before; so that Er and Onan are excluded, as dying before this Journey into Egypt, verse 12. Daughters is here put for Daughter, as verse 7. because Dinah was all the Daughters which Jacob had Heb. all the Souls, Sons and Daughters, being reckoned together with their Father.

16 ¶ And the sons of Gad: * Ziphion, and Haggi, Shuni, and † Ezbon, Eri, and † Arodi, and Areli.

* Numb. 26. 15, &c. Ziphion.

† Arod.

17 ¶ * And the sons of Asher: Jimnah, and Ishuah, and and Ishui, and Beriah, and Serah their sister: and the sons of Beriah, Heber and Malchiel.

*Chap. 30. 10. *Chap. 29. 24. 18 * These are the sons of Zilpah, * whom Laban gave to Leah his daughter: and these she bare unto Jacob, even sixteen souls.

19 The sons of Rachel, Jacobs wife, Joseph and Benjamin.

*Chap 41. 50. † Or, Prince. 20 ¶ And unto Joseph in the land of Egypt, were born Manasseh and Ephraim, * which Asenath, the daughter of Poti-pherah, † priest of On bare unto him.

* 1 Chron. 7. 6. and 8. 1. 21 ¶ * And the sons of Benjamin were Belah, and Becher, and Ashbel, Gera, and Naaman, * † Ehi, and Rosh, † Muppim, and † Huppim, and Ard r.

* Numb. 26. 38, 39. † Ahiram. † Shupham. † Hupham. r Whereof part seem to be born before his coming to Egypt, and part in Egypt, Benjamin being now but twenty and four years old.

22 These are the sons of Rachel, which were born to Jacob: all the souls were fourteen.

* 1 Chron. 7. 12. † Shuham. 23 ¶ * And the sons of Dan: † Hushim.

* Chap 30. 5. 24 ¶ * And the sons of Naphtali, Jahzeel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Shillem.

* Exod. 1. 5. † Heb. Thigh. 25 * These are the sons of Bilhah, which Laban gave unto Rachel his daughter, and she bare these unto Jacob: all the souls were seven.

* 1 Chron. 7. 13. * Chap 30. 42. 26 All the * souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his † loyns s, besides Jacobs sons wives, all these souls were threescore and six t.

s Heb. Thigh, which is here put for the secret Parts between the Thighs, which are called sometimes the Feet, as Gen. 49. 10. Deut. 28. 57. Ezek. 16. 25. for the like reason, because they are between the Feet. From this Eastern manner of Speech, came that passage in the Greek Fables, concerning Bacchus being born out of Jupiter's Thigh. t So many they are, excluding Jacob, as the Common Parent, and Joseph and his two Sons, as being in Egypt before Jacob's coming thither; which four being included they make up 70, as it is verse 27.

27 And the sons of Joseph which were born him in Egypt, were two souls: * all the souls of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypt u, were threescore and ten.

* Deut. 10. 22. See Acts 7. 14.

u He doth not say, which came with Jacob into Egypt, because some of them came thither before him, and others with him, some in their Persons, and some in their Parents As for the difficulty arising from comparing this place with Acts 7. 14 it will be more fit to speak of it when we come to that place.

28 ¶ And he sent Judah before him unto Joseph, to direct his face unto Goshen x; and they came into the land of Goshen.

x Heb. To prepare, or to teach him, the way before his face, i. e. before his coming to Goshen; i. e. to shew him where it was, and into what part of it he should come and settle himself; or to give notice unto Joseph of his approach, before his face or coming into Goshen.

29 And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father to Goshen, and presented himself unto him y, and he fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while.

y And doubtless fell down before him with all that reverence which Children owe to their Parents, and in this posture Jacob falls upon his Neck, &c. Of which posture see Gen. 33. 4. and 45. 14. Luke 15. 20. Acts 20. 37.

30 And Israel said unto Joseph, Now let me die z, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive.

z Now I expect no greater happiness upon Earth, and therefore am content to die. Compare Luke 2. 29.

31 And Joseph said unto his brethren, and unto his fathers house, I will go up, and shew Pharaoh, and say unto him, My brethren, and my fathers house, which were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me.

† Heb. they are men of cattle. 32 And the men are shepherds, for † their trade hath been to feed cattle: and they have brought their flocks and their herds, and all that they have.

33 And it shall come to pass, when Pharaoh shall call you, and shall say, What is your occupation?

34 That ye shall say, Thy servants trade hath been about cattle from our youth, even until now, both we, and also our fathers: that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen *: For every shepherd is an abomination to the Egyptians †.

* In which design and choice Joseph shews both his Prudence and Piety. He brings them not to Court, where it had been easy for him to have put them all into the best Places and Offices of the Court; and as he is not ashamed to own himself a Brother to Shepherds, which were contemptible among the Egyptians, so he seeks not to advance them higher, but continues them in their Employment, and placeth them in Goshen: whereby, 1. He kept them together, which was very convenient for them in many respects. 2. He secured them both from Envy, and as far as he could, from the Corruption of their Religion and Manners, which was likely to follow their mixture with the Egyptians, and especially their being at the Court. 3. He put them into a capacity of returning to Canaan, when God gave them opportunity. † Either, 1. Because they did both kill and eat those Creatures which the Egyptians adored. Or, 2. Because of the fresh remembrance of the horrid Cruelties lately committed there by the Phœnician Shepherds, who as some very Ancient Writers affirm, were seated in Egypt in great Numbers, and had arrived to great Power, and waged a cruel War with other Egyptians, wherein they wasted divers Cities, and burned their Temples, and barbarously murdered a multitude of People. And therefore it is no wonder if the Calling of Shepherds was grown out of use and credit among them. True it is, the Egyptians had some Sheep, and other Cattle, Gen. 47. 6, 17. Exod. 8. 26. and 9. 3. which they kept for delight or profit by their Milk, Wooll, &c. or for Sale to others, but they did not use them, as other Shepherds generally did, kill and eat them. And it is probable that they committed even the keeping of their Sheep and Cattle to those Strangers which were dispersed among them, and looked upon the Employment as too vile and mean for any Egyptian. And tho Pharaoh offered it to Joseph's Brethren as a favour to be Rulers over his Cattle, Gen. 47. 6. that might proceed only from hence, because he saw them firmly resolved upon that course of Life, and therefore could not bestow any higher preferment upon them.

CHAP. XLVII.

Joseph acquaints Pharaoh with his father's arrival; presents five of his brethren to him, 1, 2. He after some enquiry installes them in Goshen; they being shepherds, he orders Joseph, if he know any men of activity amongst them, to make them rulers over his cattle, 3——6. Joseph likewise brings his father before Pharaoh, who enquires after his age, and is blessed by Jacob, 7——10. Joseph maintains his father, and all his house in Goshen, 11, 12. Joseph gets all the money, cattle, and lands of the Egyptians into his hands for corn; removes them to distant quarters of the land, 13——21. The priests only excepted, who have a portion assigned them by Pharaoh, 22. Joseph leaves the land to the people to till, and gives them corn to sow, they giving Pharaoh the fifth part of the crop, 23——26. Jacobs life in Egypt, and full age, 27, 28. He takes an oath of Joseph concerning his burial, 29——31.

THen Joseph came and told Pharaoh, and said, My father, and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have, are come out of the land of Canaan: and behold, they are in the land of Goshen a.

a Either to abide there: Or to remove thence to any other place which thou shalt appoint for them.

2 And he took some b of his brethren, even five men, and presented them unto Pharaoh.

b Or, part, as this Hebrew word is used, Dan. 1. 2. Or the extremity, or end, or tail of them, i. e. the meanest of them for Person and Presence, as the word is taken, 1 Kings 12. 31. lest if he had presented the goodliest of them, Pharaoh might have required their attendance upon him, either at Court or Camp. And for the same reason for which he did industriously represent them to Pharaoh as contemptible in their employment, he might also present those to him who were so in their Persons.

3 And Pharaoh said unto his brethren, What is your occupation? And they said unto Pharaoh, Thy servants are shepherds both we, and also our fathers '.

' This Employment is not pretended nor taken up by us in design, or in contempt of thee or thy People, but was handed to us by our Fathers, and hath been our business to this day.

4 They said moreover unto Pharaoh, For to sojourn in the land c are we come: for thy servants have no pasture for their flocks, for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan d: now therefore we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen.

c Not to defraud thy People of their Lands and Habitations, but only to be here for a season as Strangers and Sojourners till we can conveniently return to our own Land. d Which being an higher Ground than Egypt, and watered in a manner only by Rain from Heaven, must needs sooner and sorer feel the effects of a Drought and Scarcity than Egypt, which had relief from Nilus in that kind.

5 And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee.

6 The land of Egypt is before thee e; in the best of the land make thy father and thy brethren to dwell, in the land of Goshen let them dwell: and if thou knowest any man of activity f amongst them, then make them rulers over my cattle.

e To view it, and take thy choice where thou pleasest, it is in thy power. See Gen. 13. 9. f Or, of Strength or Vigour of Body and Mind, fit for the Employment. By which Expression it seems probable that those five presented to Pharaoh were of the meanest sort of them. See on verse 2.

7 And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharaoh: and Jacob blessed g Pharaoh.

g Not in an authoritative way, as the greater blesseth the less, but in a general manner, i. e. he saluted him, thanked him for all his favours to him and his, and prayed to God to bless and recompence him for it. Thus blessing is put for saluting, 1 Sam. 13. 10. 2 Kings 4. 29. for praying, Numb. 6. 23, 24. for thanksgiving, Matth. 26. 26. compare with Luke 22. 19.

8 And

Heb. how many are the days of the years of thy life? 8 And Pharaoh said unto Jacob, † How old art thou?

Heb. 11. 9. 13. 9 And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, * The days of the years of my pilgrimage i are an hundred and thirty years: few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers k, in the days of their pilgrimage.

i (i. e.) Of my unstable or unsettled Life, in which I have been flitting from place to place. See Gen. 17. 8. Psalm 119. 19. Heb. 11. 9. 13. k Though I seem old in comparison of thy People, yet I fall much short of my Progenitors, Isaac, and Abraham, and Terah.

10 And Jacob blessed Pharaoh, and went out from before Pharaoh.

11 ¶ And Joseph placed his father and his brethren, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, in the land of Rameses l, as Pharaoh had commanded.

l A part of the Land of Goshen, possibly that part where afterwards the City Rameses was built by the Israelites, Exod. 1. 11. and 12. 37. whence it is so called here by Anticipation. For the Israelites were not now numerous enough to possess the whole Land of Goshen, which was given to them, but contented themselves with a part of it, leaving the rest to the management of the Egyptians, and therefore when they encreased greatly, they were forced to spread their Habitations amongst the Egyptians. See Exod. 12. 7, 23, 35, 37.

12 And Joseph nourished his father and his brethren, * Or, as a little child is nourished. and all his fathers houshold with bread, * † according to their families m.

† Heb. according to the mouth of a little child. m Or, according to the Mouth of the Family: Mouth being put for their Will or Desire, as it is Gen. 24. 57. Isaiah 30. 2. as much as every one desired, without any restraint: Or, according to the manner of a little Child, he put their meat into their very Mouths; it was brought to them without any more care or pains of theirs, than an Infant takes for its food.

13 ¶ And there was no bread in all the land: for the famine was very sore, so that the land of Egypt, and all the land of Canaan fainted by reason of the famine n.

n Quest. Whence came it that the People in this extremity did not take the Corn by force out of the several Store-houses? Ans. Besides that singular Providence of God which watcheth over Kings and Rulers, and stilleth the Tumults of the People, Joseph had no doubt foreseen this difficulty, and took due care to prevent it, partly by disposing the Stores in strong and well-guarded Places; partly by adding Wealth and Strength to the King, whereby he might more easily suppress any seditious Rising; and principally by not permitting the People to Despair, or come to the utmost Extremity, but giving them relief in all their Exigencies.

14 And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt o, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought: and Joseph brought the money into Pharaohs house.

o Wherein he did no more than any of the Subjects might have done; he bought great store of Corn in the plentiful years with the King's Money, and kept it till a time of Famine, and sold it at a rate which was agreeable to the season.

15 And when money failed in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came unto Joseph, and said, Give us bread: for why should we die in thy presence? for the money faileth.

p Why should'st thou see and suffer us to perish for our want of Money, when thou canst relieve us?

16 And Joseph said, Give your cattle: and I will give for your cattle, if money fail.

17 And they brought their cattle unto Joseph: and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for horses, and for the flocks, and for the cattle of their herds, and for the asses, and † he fed them with bread, for all their cattle, for that year.

Heb. led them.

18 When that year was ended, they came unto him the second year q, and said unto him, We will not hide it from my lord, how that our money is spent, my lord also had our herds of cattle: there is not ought left in the sight of my lord, but our bodies, and our lands.

q Not the second from the beginning of the Famine, but from their great extremity, the second year after that last mentioned, wherein they had sold their Cattle; but this seems to have been the last year of the Famine, because he now gives them Corn for food and for seed too, ver. 23. whereas in the first six years there was no sowing nor reaping, Gen. 45. 6.

19 Wherefore shall we dye before thine eyes r, both we and our land s? buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh t: and give us seed u that we may live and not dye, that the land be not desolate x.

r (i. e.) Whilst thou lookest upon us like an idle spectator, not pitying and relieving us. s The land is said to dye improperly, when it is desolate and barren, and when the fruits of it dye, or which is equivalent to it, do not live. t Pharaoh shall be the sole Proprietor, and we are content to be his Tenants, to manage it for his use. u Because this was the last year of Famine, as Joseph informed them, and therefore they tilled and sowed the ground for the following year. x Without inhabitants, as it will be if thou sufferest us to dye for want of bread.

20 And Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh: for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine prevailed over them: so the land became Pharaoh's.

21 And as for the people, he removed them to cities y, from one end of the borders of Egypt, even to the other end thereof z.

y Under the Cities are here comprehended the Villages and Lands belonging to the Territory and Government of each City; for the seed which he gave them was not to be sown in Cities, but in the Countrey; but the Cities only are here mentioned, because they were sent thither first, either for the conveniency of nourishing them during this Famine, out of the Publick Storehouses which were there; or that they might all profess their Subjection to the Governments of the several Cities, which was convenient for the management of that numerous and tumultuous people; or that the Cities might be first and most replenished with Inhabitants, as being the principal Honour, and Strength, and Security of a Kingdom, and that Arts, and Trades, and Merchandise might flourish, without which the Commodities of the Countrey would have been of less Price and Use. But the Cities being first supplied, the residue, which doubtless was vast, were dispersed in the Countrey. z Far from their Native Soil and Ancient Patrimonies, that none of them might plead Prescription, but that all might be forced to acknowledge that they owed their Estates not to their own Wit and Industry, nor to their Parents Gift, but wholly to the King's Favour; and that the remembrance of their Patrimonial Lands might be worn out, and therewith the grief which would arise from their resentment of their loss of them, which probably would be matter of Tumults and Seditions, to which that people were very prone. And it is probable that he so dispersed of this sort, that those who were apt and likely, and used to unite together in seditious Insurrections, whether Kindred or others, should be separated one from another as far as might be. If any think that Joseph dealt hardly with them, and made an ill use of their necessity, he will see how moderately and mercifully he deals with them, ver. 24.

22 Only the land of the † Priests a bought he not b: † Or, Princes. for the Priests had a portion assigned them of Pharaoh, and did eat their portion which Pharaoh gave them: wherefore they sold not their lands.

a Under this name he understands chiefly those who administred the Worship of the Gods or Idols of Egypt, and withal those who applied themselves to the Study of the Arts and Virtues, called their Wisemen and Magicians. Though some understand it of the Princes (as that word sometimes signifies) or Officers of Pharaoh, who were nourished out of the King's Treasures. And possibly the same Hebrew word may here comprehend both, viz. the Ministers of the King, and of their Idols too, for both enjoyed the same Privileges, as Diodorus Siculus relates. And that the Priests are included, if not mainly intended here, will be evident enough to any one that considers the state of Egypt, how mad that people universally were upon their Idols, how numerous their Priests were, and in how great honour and veneration both with Prince and People: Besides, reason of State obliged Pharaoh to engage and secure to himself that sort of men, which bore so great sway with the old inhabitants of their several places, and were likely to have the same authority with the new inhabitants, to quiet and satisfy them at their first change: which must needs be very ungrateful to them. b Of this Immunity of the Priests, that Ancient Writer Diodorus Siculus makes mention. But this is not to be ascribed to Joseph's will or choice; for he who abhorred their Idolatry, could not have a kindness for, nor would have given encouragement to the great upholders and promoters of it; but in this he was over-ruled either by Pharaoh's express Command, (it being no probable that so great an Interest as that of the Priests should not have Friends at Court, or that their Friends should not plead for them, or that their Pleas and Desires should not be granted by an Idolatrous King) or by the Laws of Egypt, or by their Customs and Usages in things of a like nature, which would have the force of a Law among them.

23 Then Joseph said unto the people, Behold, I have bought you this day, and your land for Pharaoh, Lo, here is seed for you, and ye shall sow the land ‡: ‡ For this was the last year of the Famine, as was noted before.

24 And it shall come to pass in the increase, that you shall give the fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own c, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your houfholds, and for food for your little ones.

c Whereas he might have reserved four parts to Pharaoh, and have allowed them only the fifth. Herein he shewed both his humanity and kindness, in mitigating that hard bargain which themselves had made, and were necessitated to make, and his prudence in composing, sweetning, and winning the hearts of the people to the King, and making them pay their Tribute for the future with more chearfulness.

25 And they said, Thou hast saved our lives d: let us find grace in the sight of my lord e, and we will be Pharaoh's servants *.

d Without thy Care and Providence we had all been dead men; and therefore if thou hadst kept us to the first bargain, thou hadst done us more kindness than wrong, much more when thou hast used us with so much equity and clemency. e Be thou our Friend with Pharaoh in this and upon all other occasions. * To manage his land for him upon the terms which thou hast proposed.

26 And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt unto this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth part f: except the land of the † Priests only, which became not Pharaoh's.

† Or, Princes.

f That the Propriety of the Land should be Pharaoh's, and that in token thereof the people should pay the fifth part of the Products of it to Pharaoh.

27 ¶ And Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the countrey of Goshen, and they had possessions g therein, and grew and multiplied exceedingly.

g (i. e.) Lands, not for the Dominion or Propriety of them, for that rested in Pharaoh, but for the use and profit of them for their present subsistence.

28 And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years: so † the whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years.

† Heb. the days of the years of his life.

29 And the time drew nigh that Israel must dye, and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, * put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh h, and deal i kindly and truly k with me, * bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt.

h (i. e.) Swear to me, (as ver. 31.) that thou wilt do what I am now desiring of thee See the Notes on Gen. 24. 2. He requires this, not out of any distrust of Joseph's promise, but partly as a more solemn protestation of his right to, and affection for that promised Land; partly as a motive to all his Children to have their minds and hearts there, even when their bodies were in Egypt; and partly to give Joseph an argument and excuse to Pharaoh, that he might more willingly permit Joseph to fulfil his father's desire, because of his own Oath. i Or, that thou wilt deal; as the Hebrew Vau joined with the Future Tense, is elsewhere used; as Psal. 24. 7. and 35. 23. and 51. 15. k Kindly in promising, and truly in performing thy promise.

30 But I will lye with my fathers l, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and bury me in their burying-place: and he said, I will do as thou hast said.

l Abraham and Isaac in Canaan. See Gen. 23. 19. and 25. 9. and 35. 29. Which he desired not so much for himself, as knowing that wheresoever he was buried he should rife to Glory; as for his Children, to shew his own, and confirm their Faith in God's Promise of Canaan; to discover his high valuation of that Land, not only for it self, but as it was a Type and Pledge of the Heavenly Inheritance; to keep his Childrens minds and hearts lose from Egypt, a place of so much sin and danger, and fixed upon Canaan, that they might be more willing to go thither when God called them, by virtue of that inclination which is in most persons, to be buried with their Fathers; and in the mean time to declare his detestation of Idolaters, with whom he would have no communion either in life, as far as he could avoid it, or in the place of burial; and on the contrary, to profess his communion with his godly Ancestors, by his desire to be joined with them in burial. And for the same reasons Joseph desired the translation of his Bones thither, Gen. 50. 25.

31 And he said, Swear unto me: and he sware unto him. And * Israel bowed himself m upon the bed's head n.

* Heb. 11 21.

m Not to Joseph, who being now not upon his Throne, nor amongst the Egyptians, but in his Father's House, was doubtless more ready to pay that Reverence, (as he did chap. 48. 12.) than to receive Veneration from him, which he owed to his Father; but to God, who is here to be understood, as he is in the same Phrase, 1 Kings 1. 47. whom with this Gesture he worshipped and praised, as for the Promise of Canaan, and the assurance which he had now received from Joseph, of his being buried there, so for all his favours to him and to Joseph, and by him to all his Family. n Jacob at this time was bed-rid through Age and Infirmity; but being now to give God solemn Thanks, though the words and manner of it be not here expressed, he raised himself and sat upon the head or uppermost part of his bed, as he did also Gen. 48. 2. that he might express his Reverence to God as much as he could by Bowing, when he could not do it as much as he would, being unable to do it Kneeling. Other-for bed read staff, the discussion whereof I refer unto its proper place, Heb. 11. 21.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Jacob being sick, Joseph comes and visits him, 1, 2. Jacob declares God's appearances and promises to him, 3, 4. Adopts Joseph's two sons Manasseh and Ephraim to be sharers of two tribes in Israel, 5, 6. Mentions Rachel's death, and the place where he buried her, 7. Calls for his sons to bless them: Joseph brings and places them: Jacob purposely crosses his hands, 8——14. His blessing on Joseph and his sons, 15, 16. Joseph interposes to remove his father's hands, 17, 18. He declares the preheminence of the younger, 19. But the other also blessed, 20. Prophesieth of their return to Canaan, 21. He gives Joseph a piece of land apart, 22.

AND it came to pass after these things, that one told Joseph, Behold, thy father is sick: and he took with him his two sons a, Manasseh and Ephraim.

a To obtain his Venerable and Religious Father's Blessing for them.

2 And one told Jacob, and said, Behold, thy son Joseph cometh unto thee: and Israel strengthned himself b, and sat upon the bed.

b He got new strength, his spirits being quickned and refreshed by the tidings of Joseph's approach, and he put forth all the strength which he had.

3 And Jacob said unto Joseph, God Almighty appeared unto me at * Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me,

* Chap. 28. 13.

4 And said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will † make of thee a multitude of people; and will give this land to thy seed after thee, for an everlasting possession.

† Heb. make into a multitude of people.

5 ¶ And now thy * two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt, before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine c: as Reuben and Simeon d they shall be mine.

* Chap. 41. 50. Josh 13.

c By Adoption: I shall own them as if they were my immediate Children, and each of them shall have equal share both in my present Estate, and future Inheritance of Canaan with the rest of my Children. Thus Jacob transfers the double Portion, which was the Right of the First-born, from which Reuben by his Transgression fell, Gen. 49. 4. upon Joseph, 1 Chron. 5. 1. d Which two he names as the eldest, who, if any, might seem to claim a greater Privilege than the rest.

e Shall be reputed as thy Children, and my Grandchildren, and shall not have any distinct share in my present or future Inheritance, but shall have a part of their brethrens Lot, in such manner and proportion as thou shalt think fit, or as their succeeding Parents or Governors shall determine. But it doth not appear, nor doth Scripture any where mention, that Joseph had any other Sons but these, and therefore it is probable he had no more; only Jacob speaks this upon supposition, in case he should have any other. * Either Ephraimites or Manassites.

7 And as for me, * when I came from Padan, Rachel died by me f in the land of Canaan, in the way when yet there was but a little way to come unto Ephrath: and I buried her there in the way of Ephrath g: the same is Bethlehem.

* Gen. 35. 19.

f Or, beside me; near me, before mine eyes, I seeing, but not being able to help her in her extremity; which makes the remembrance of it more grievous to me. This story he here mentions, partly because the sight of Joseph and his Children brought his beloved Rachel to his remembrance; partly to give the reason of this action of his to the rest of his Children, which was not only because Rachel was his first rightful Wife by Designation and Contract, and therefore the right of the First-born was truly Joseph's; but because by her early death he was cut off from all hopes of having more Children by her, and therefore it was but fit he should supply that defect, by adopting Joseph's Children. g Not out of disrespect to her, whose Person was, and Memory yet is, precious and honourable to me, but either because dying in Childbed they could not keep her till they came to the Burying-place of the Patriarchs at Hebron, Gen. 23. 19. especially when they were tied to the slow motion of the flocks and herds; or because I would not bury her in the common Burying-place with Heathens and Idolaters, in the City of Ephrath. By which he tacitely implies, that he would not have Joseph joined with the Egyptians in Burial.

8 And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said, Who are these h?

h For Jacob's eyes were dim through age and infirmity, as is observed ver. 10. and therefore he could not distinctly discern them.

9 And Joseph said unto his father, They are my sons, whom God hath given me in this place: and he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and I will bless them i.

i Or, that I may bless them, not with a common, but with a Paternal and Patriarchal and Prophetical Blessing, in the Name and by the Spirit of God, praying for, and foretelling those Blessings which God will confer upon them.

10 (Now the eyes of Israel were † dim for age, so that he could not see) and he brought them near unto him, and he kissed them, and embraced them:

† Heb. heavy.

11 And Israel said unto Joseph, I had not thought to see thy face, and lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed.

12 And Joseph brought them out from between his knees k, and he bowed himself with his face to the earth l.

k Not his own knees, from which they had been taken before, but Jacob's knees, between which they stood whilst Jacob kissed and embraced them; from which Joseph removed them, partly that they might not be burdensome to their aged and weak Grandfather, and principally that he might place them in fit order and reverend posture to receive the Blessing for which he longed. l Testifying thereby his Reverence to his Father, his Thankfulness for the Favour which he had now shewed to him and his, and his humble and earnest Request for his Blessing upon them.

14 And Israel stretched out his right hand m, and laid it upon Ephraim's head n, who was the younger, and and his left hand upon Manasseh's head, guiding his hands wittingly o: for Manasseh was the first-born.

m Which was more honourable both in Scripture account, and amongst the Gentiles. n Which was a rite used often, and in divers cases, as in the conferring of offices either sacred or civil, as Numb. 8. 10. Deut. 34. 9. Acts 6. 6. and 13. 3. and among other things, in giving benedictions, as Matth. 19. 13. o This proceeded not from chance, or the mistake and weakness of his eyes, but from design, and the wisdom of his hands. Heb. He disposed his hands prudently, or, he dealt wisely with his hands. Here was a double wisdom shewed. 1. Humane, by which he gathered that Manasseh was the eldest, because Joseph placed him towards his right hand. 2. Divine and Prophetical, by which he foresaw Ephraim's advantages above Manasseh, and wisely suited the Ceremony to the Substance, giving the greater sign of Honour to him, to whom God designed the thing.

15 ¶ * And he blessed Joseph p, and said, God, * before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me * all my life long unto this day;

* Heb. 11. 21.

* Chap. 17. 1. and 24. 40.

p Not now in his Person, but in his Children, which yet is called here a blessing of Joseph, because they were a part of himself. In which sense, and upon the same ground the land of Canaan is oftentimes said to be not only promised but given to Abraham, and Isaac, &c. not as if they were in person to possess it, but because it should be given to their Children. Thus Ham is said to be cursed when his Son is cursed, Gen. 9. 25. ' (i. e.) Protected, sustained, and directed me.

16 The angel q * which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads, and let my name be named on them r, and the name of my fathers Abraham, and Isaac s, and let them grow † into a multitude in the midst of the earth.

* Chap. 31. 11, 13.

q Not surely a created Angel, but Christ Jesus, who is called an Angel, Exod. 23. 20. and the Angel of the covenant, Mal. 3. 1. who was the conductor of the Israelites in the Wilderness, as plainly appears by comparing of Exod. 23. 20, 21. with 1 Cor. 10. 4, 9. Add hereunto, that this Angel is called Jacob's redeemer, which is the Title appropriated by God to himself, Isa. 43. 14. and 47. 4. and that from all evil, and therefore from sin, from which no created Angel can deliver us, but Christ only, Matth. 1. 21. and that Jacob worshipperth and prayeth to this Angel no less than to God for the blessing, and that without any note of distinction, the word bless, being in the Singular Number, and equally relating to God and to the Angel; and that the Angel to whom he here ascribes his Deliverances from all evil, must in all reason be the same to whom he prayed for these very Deliverances which he here commemorates, and that was no other than the very God of Abraham, as is evident from Gen. 28. 15, 20, 21. and 32. 9, 10, 11. and 35. 3. r (i. e.) Let them be called by my name, owned for my immediate Children, and invested with the same Priviledges with my other Children, be the heads of distinct Tribes, and as such receive distinct Inheritances. And hence they are called the children of Jacob or Israel, no less than the children of Joseph. For the phrase, see Deut. 28. 10. 2 Chron. 7. 14. Isa. 4. 1. Jer. 14. 9. s Let them be called their Children; let them not only have my blessing, but the blessings of Abraham and Isaac; let all meet together upon their heads; and let that gracious Covenant of God made with Abraham, and confirmed with Isaac and me, be ratified and made good unto them.

17 And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him t: and he held up his fathers hand, to remove it from Ephraims head, unto Manasseh's head.

t Because of that affection which Parents generally have for their first-born. See Gen. 21. 11.

18 And Joseph said unto his father, Not so my father: for this is the first-born, put thy right hand upon his head.

19 And his father refused, and said, I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great: but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he u, and his seed shall become a † multitude of nations x.

u So the Tribe of Ephraim was both in number, Numb. 1. 32, 33, 35. and 2. 19, 21. and Deut. 33. 17. and in Power and Priviledges; for that Tribe was the seat first of the Tabernacle, and afterwards of the Kingdom. Whence the name of Ephraim is sometimes put for all the ten Tribes, as Isa. 7. 2. and sometimes for Joseph himself, as Numb. 1. 32. Rev. 7. 8. which Manasseh never is. x (i. e.) Equal to many Nations, in number and strength; or, from them shall proceed many Nations, i. e. many numerous, potent, and flourishing Families, whereof each is equivalent to an ordinary Nation. For as Nations are sometimes called Families, as Zech. 14. 18. so the Tribes and Families of Israel are called Nations or People, as Ezek. 2. 2. Acts 4. 27.

20 And he blessed them in that day, saying, In thee y shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim, and as Manasseh: and he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

y (i e) In thy seed, as appears both from the relative, them, here, and from verse 15. where his blessing of them is called the blessing of Joseph; and from the following words, where this is interpreted of Ephraim and Manasseh. And in thee, or in thy seed, i. e. using their names in the form or words of blessing, as eminent examples of blessedness.

21 And Israel said unto Joseph, Behold I die z: but God shall be with you, and bring you again unto the land of your fathers a.

z (i. e.) I am about to die. The present time for that which will shortly and certainly be, as Gen. 19. 13. and 20. 3. Job. 14. 2. a (i. e.) Canaan, their Land, 1. By habitation, as Nazareth is called Christ's Countrey, because he dwelt in it. 2. By the donation of God, who had promised, and would in his time give the actual possession of it to them, i. e. to their seed.

22 Moreover, I have given to thee b one portion c above thy brethren, which I took out of the hand of the Amorite with my sword and with my bow d.

b (i. e.) I do now give to thee the right, and I do prophetically give, and God will really and actually give unto thy son Ephraim, or his posterity, who shall possess this part over and above that portion which shall fall to him by lot. This was all the Land which Jacob had in Canaan, which he here gives to Joseph, partly in Testimony of his great affection and obligation to him; partly as a sign that he did confer the right of the first-born upon him; and partly for the confirmation of the Faith of Joseph and his Brethren, and to oblige them to set up their rest no where but in Canaan. c The Hebrew word is Shechem, which word indeed signifies a shoulder, as Gen. 9. 23. and is here put for a part of Land which is choice and good, as the Shoulder is among the parts of the Body. See 1 Sam. 9. 24. And he useth this word, that by allusion he might signify what place he speaks of, even Shechem, as may farther appear by comparing Jos. 24. 32. Joh. 4. 5. Yea some would have Shechem here to be the proper name of the place, which might be if the word one were not added to it. d This place is understood, either, 1. Of the future Conquest of the Land of the Amorites or Canaanites by his posterity, which he here ascribes to himself, and speaks of it in the past time, as of a thing already done, as the manner of the Prophets is. But Jacob would not attribute that to his Sword, which his posterity deny to be done by their Sword, Psal. 43. 4. And it is manifest, that Jacob here speaks of that which was his by a special Title, and which in a peculiar manner he gave to Joseph. Or, 2. Of the City and Territory of Shechem, whose Inhabitants were rooted out by Simeon and Levi, and whose Land being void was possessed by Jacob. And this is said to be got by Jacob's Sword and Bow, because it was got with the Sword and Bow of his Sons Simeon and Levi, and a great number of his Family, who doubtless were associated with them in this expedition. But it is not likely that he would take to himself that which he declares his utter abhorrency of, Gen. 34. 30. and 42. 5, 6. or that he should call that his Sword and his Bow here which he calls instruments of cruelty in Simeon's and Levi's hands, Gen. 49. 5. Or, 3. Which seems the truest of that Land in the Territory of Shechem, which Jacob bought of Hamor, Gen. 33. 19. which is said to be got by his Sword and Bow, either 1. Properly, because he did by force of Arms expel those Amorites, who upon his retirement from those parts, after the slaughter of the Sichemites, had invaded his Lands, though this story be not elsewhere recorded; as many things are mentioned by the by in some one place of Scripture, without any particular account of the circumstances of them, either there or elsewhere, as Gen. 36. 24. Deut. 2. 9, 10, 11. Jud. 24. 11. And though Jacob was a man of Peace, yet his Sons were Warriors; and they by his permission might drive out, by their Arms, those straggling Canaanites which had taken possession of his purchase, Jacob being the more willing to recover his right herein, because it was an earnest of his future possession of the whole Land. And the neighbouring Canaanites would not concern themselves in the defence of the invaders, both because they were convinced of the right of Jacob's Cause, and because they were over-ruled by divine Providence, in which Jacob trusted, and of which he had ample experience. Or, 2. Metaphorically, i. e. by his Money, which he calls his Sword and his Bow, not only because Money is answerable to the Sword and the Bow, and all other things, Eccles. 10. 19. and is a defence, Eccles. 7. 12. and therefore may well be so called, even as prayers and tears are called the arms of the Church, because they serve for the same purpose that Arms do against their Enemies; but also and principally by way of opposition to the Sword and Bow of his cruel Sons. So the sense may be this, I have given to thee one portion, or one Shechem, not the City of Shechem, which Simeon and Levi took from the hand of the Amorite with their Sword and their Bow, but a part of the Territory of Shechem which I took, or received from the hand of the Amorite by my Sword and my Bow, i. e. by my Money, whereby I purchased it.

CHAP. XLIX.

Jacob calls his sons to bless them before his death, 1. Bespeaks their attention, 2. Condemns Reuben's incest, 3, 4. Simeon's and Levi's cruelty, 5——7. Extols Judah; propheciesth of Christ, and the calling of the Gentiles, 9——12. Of Zebulon, 13. Issachar, 14, 15. Dan, 16. Expresses his faith on God's salvation, 17. Of Gad, 19. Asher, 20. Naphtali, 21. Joseph's peculiar blessing, 22——26. Of Benjamin, 27. His charge concerning his burial, and death, 28——33.

AND Jacob called unto his sons, and said, Gather your selves together, that I may tell you that which shall befal you in the last days a.

a Or, In the following times, or latter days, when you shall enter into, and be settled in the Land of Promise. Hereby he signifies, that he speaks here of things which concern not so much their persons, as their posterity.

2 Gather your selves together, and hear ye sons of Jacob, and hearken unto Israel your father.

3 ¶ Reuben thou art my first-born, my might, and the beginning of my strength b, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power c.

b The first instance, or evidence of my might, or strength, or of that masculine vigour, whereby God enabled me to beget a Child. Compare Deut. 21. 17. Psal. 105. 36. Or the first of my Children Children, which are the ſtrength, the ſtays, and ſupports of a Father, and of his Family; thence called his Arrows, as Pſal. 127. 4. and by other Authors, The pillars of the houſe. c As firſt-born thou hadſt the right of precedency before all thy Brethren in point of Dignity and Power, or Priviledge; the double portion, the Prieſthood, the Dominion over thy Brethren were thine.

4 Unſtable as water d, † thou ſhalt not excel e, becauſe thou * wenteſt up to thy fathers bed: then defiledſt thou it ſ. † He went up to my couch g.

d This may concern either, 1. Something paſt, or Reuben's fault; and ſo he is ſaid to have been unſtable, or light, and vain, as the word is uſed. Judg. 9. 4. Zeph. 3. 4. like water, moved with every little wind of Temptation, and unbounded in thy Luſt; as Water of it ſelf hath no bounds, but will ſcatter it ſelf every way, if it be not kept within Banks, or in a Veſſel: Or, haſty, violent, impetuous in thy Luſt, like Water, which either overflows or breaks its Banks. Or, 2 Something to come, or Reuben's puniſhment, and ſo the meaning is, thou, i. e. thy poſterity, ſhall be unſtable, or unſettled, flirting and vaniſhing, coming to nothing, or poured forth like Water, uſeleſs, contemptible and weak. Such indeed was the ſtate of that Tribe, of which we read nothing eminent in Scripture. See Judg. 5. 15, 16. This I prefer before the former, 1. Becauſe it is not probable that his fault ſhould be deſcribed here in ſuch general and ambiguous and dark terms, which is deſcribed ſo plainly and particularly in the following words. 2. Becauſe this makes the coherence moſt plain. Here is a deſcription, (1.) Of Reuben's excellent ſtate to which he was born, verſe 3. (2.) Of his fall from that ſtate, in theſe words, and the immediately following, thou ſhalt not excel. (3.) Of the reaſon of this fall, his great ſin. 3. Becauſe the ſimilitude of Water applied to men in this manner, notes rather their impotency and calamity, than their ſin, as Joſ. 7. 5. Pſal. 22. 14. e Or, Be the moſt eminent amongſt thy Brethren; thou haſt loſt thy preeminency due to thee by birthright, both for thy ſelf and for thy poſterity, and it ſhall be given to others; the Prieſthood to Levi, the Dominion to Judah, and the double Portion to Joſeph. f By committing inceſt with Bilhah. g He repeats the ſame thing, and that in an emphatical manner turning his Speech and Face from Reuben to his Brethren, in a poſture of Indignation and Deteſtation; which you muſt not impute to Jacob's paſſion, he being now a dying man, and this being forty years after the crime committed, but to the Spirit of God guiding his Tongue to utter this, not only nor chiefly for the puniſhment of Reuben, who, as many think, had repented of his ſin; but for terrour, inſtruction, and caution to all others, and to aſſure them that ſin, though it may be long diſſembled and born with, yet it will one time or other be ſorely puniſhed. But theſe and the next foregoing words may be thus rendred, Then deſiledſt thou my bed: He went up to it, or rather, he is gone up, i. e. he is vaniſhed, or periſhed, or loſt; for ſo this word is often uſed, as Job 5. 26. Iſa. 5. 24. Jer. 48. 15. And ſo here is an elegant Figure, called Anticlaſis, whereby the ſame word is repeated in the ſame verſe in a different ſenſe, as Pſal. 18. 26. Matth. 8. 22. So here; He went up wickedly to his Father's Bed to commit a great ſin; therefore now he is gone up penally, to receive condign puniſhment; his excellency is gone up like Smoak, which aſcendeth and is diſperſed in the Air. And this may ſeem to be the trueſt Tranſlation and Interpretation, becauſe it keeps cloſe to the Hebrew words and their order; whereas, in our Tranſlation, there is both a tranſplacing of the Hebrew words, and a ſupplement added unneceſſarily.

*Chap. 29. 33. 34.

5 ¶ * Simeon and Levi are brethren h; † inſtruments of cruelty are in their habitations i.

b Not only by Nature, but in Iniquity; of like cruel and bloody diſpoſition, confederate in the ſame wicked deſign. Gen. 34. 25. So the word Brother is elſewhere uſed, for him that agrees much with another in his temper, or employment, or deſigns, as Job 30. 29 Prov. 18. 9, &c. i (i. e.) Their bloody Swords are yet in their dwellings, to bear witneſs againſt them for their barbarous cruelty. But theſe words may be, and are by ſome both ancient and later Interpreters, rendred otherwiſe. For the Hebrew word Mecherothi, here rendred habitations, is never ſo uſed, nor indeed is found elſewhere in Scripture. Nor doth that ſignification agree with the Hebrew root from whence this comes, which is Machar, and ſignifies to bargain, or ſell, or exchange. And accordingly this word is by the Samaritan Tranſlator, and by other learned Interpreters, rendred, their conventions, or compacts, or civil contracts, or agreements. And which is more, the Chaldee Verb, Mechar, from whence this word may very well be deduced; ſignifies to eſpouſe, and the Noun, Mechirah, derived from it, ſignifies a ſpouſe. And ſo the words may be rendred thus, their contracts, or agreements (or their nuptial contracts) were inſtruments of cruelty. Which Tranſlation ſeems better than the other, 1. Becauſe it keeps cloſeſt to the words of the Text, and leaves out that Particle, in, which is not in the Hebrew Text, but was added by our Tranſlators to compleat the ſenſe. 2. Becauſe this beſt agrees with the Hiſtory recorded, Gen. 34. where we read that they did cover their bloody deſign with a prefence of an agreement, and nuptial contract with the Shechemites, which was a great aggravation of their villany, that thoſe things which to others are bonds of love and peace, were made by them inſtruments of cruelty.

6 O my ſoul, come not thou into their ſecret k: unto their aſſembly mine honour l be not thou united: for in their anger they ſlew a man m, and in their ſelf-will n they † digged down a wall o.

k Or, Counſel, or company, as the word is uſed, Pſal. 64. 2. Jer. 15. 17. i. e. do not partake with them in their ſecret and wicked deſigns. Hereby he ſignifies to all poſterity, that that bloody enterprize was undertaken without his conſent or approbation, and that he could not think of it without deteſtation, nor let it paſs without a ſevere cenſure. Or, O my ſoul, thou waſt not in their ſecret, as the Chald. Syr. and Arab. take it, by a common Enallage of the future Tenſe for the paſt. l Either 1. properly ſo called. So the is ſenſe, Let not my honour or good name be bound up with theirs; they gloried in this wickedneſs, which I abominate, and which indeed is their ſhame. Or 2. Improperly, ſo he underſtands either, 1. His Soul, which is indeed the glory of a man; though I do not remember any place of Scripture where that word muſt neceſſarily be ſo underſtood. So this is a repetition of the ſame thing in other words, which is uſual in Scripture. Or rather 2. His Tongue, for which the word honour, or glory, is commonly put, as Pſal. 16. 9. compare with Acts 2. 26. Pſal. 30. 12. and 57. 8. and 108. 1. becauſe the Tongue or Speech is the glory of a man, by which he is diſtinguiſhed from unreaſonable creatures, and, if well uſed, it brings much honour to God, and to the man that ſpeaks with it. So the ſenſe is, As my Soul did not approve of that wicked action, ſo my Tongue never gave conſent to it, nor ſhall it now by ſilence ſeem to own it, but ſhall publickly witneſs my abhorrency of it. m (i. e.) Men, the Sichemites, Gen. 34. 25, 26. the Singular Number for the Plural, as Gen. 3. 2. and 32. 5. 1 Chron. 10. 1. compared with 1 Sam. 31. 1. He ſaith man rather then men, either with reſpect unto the Prince, whoſe ſlaughter was principally deſigned; or to ſhew that they ſlew them all to a man. n It may note, that this cruelty of theirs was committed, 1. By their own will and choice, not by Jacob's will or conſent, which they never asked nor obtained. 2. Without any neceſſity or ſufficient provocation, but meerly by their own will and proper motion. 3. Not raſhly and haſtily, but wilfully and reſolvedly, after mature deliberation. 4. Not unwillingly, but cheerfully, and with delight, and good will, as that word commonly ſignifies. o Not the Walls of the City, but of private Houſes; it may be only of the Prince's Houſe, who upon the firſt noiſe of the Tumult might, and probably did retire and ſecure himſelf in ſome ſtrong Room of the Houſe, whoſe Wall they brake down that they might come at him. For neither were the Walls of Houſes or Cities ſo ſtrong then as now many are; nor were Simeon and Levi deſtitute of fit inſtruments to break down a Wall, which doubtleſs they brought with them, as eaſily foreſeeing that difficulty in their enterprize. But becauſe the Hebrew word is not Shur, a Wall, but Schor, an Ox, others tranſlate the words thus, They houghed, or killed an Ox, or Bull, meaning Shechem, ſo called either from his Luſt, or from his Strength and Power, from which Princes are oft ſo called, as Deut. 33. 17. Pſal. 22. 12. and 68. 30. Or, rather thus, They rooted out, or drove away an Ox, i. e. the Oxen, the Singular Number for the Plural, as before, and under them are comprehended the other Cattle of the Sichemites, which they drove away, as we read they did, Gen. 34. 28. For as the words may bear this ſenſe, ſo it ſeems more reaſonable to underſtand them of that which certainly was done by them, than of their breaking a Wall, of which we do not read any thing in the Hiſtory.

7 Curſed be p their anger, for it was fierce, and their wrath, for it was cruel: I * will divide them in Jacob, * Joſh. 5, 6, 7. and ſcatter them in Iſrael q.

p Or, Curſed was It was execrable and abominable both before God and Men; ſuch as deſerved and brought the Curſe of God upon themſelves, which I, as God's Inſtrument, am now to pronounce againſt them. q (i. e.) I do here declare in the Name of God, that they ſhall be divided and diſperſed in Jacob, &c. that is, among the Children or Tribes of Jacob or Iſrael. Prophets are ſaid to do what they foretel that God will do, as Jeremy is ſaid to root out and pull down kingdoms, Jer. 1. 10. and Ezekiel to deſtroy the city, Ezek. 43. 3. Add Hoſea 6. 5. Note here how ſuitable their Puniſhment was to their Crime. They ſinned by Conſpiracy and Confederation in the Counſel and Action, and they are puniſhed with Diviſion or Separation, not only of the two Brethren and their Tribes, but of the Children and Families of the ſeveral Tribes, one from another. This was eminently fulfilled in the Tribe of Levi, which had no proper Portion or Inheritance, but was ſcattered among all the Tribes, Joſ. 18. 7. though afterwards God turned this Curſe into a Bleſſing. And for Simeon, he had no part of his own in the Diviſion of the Land, but the Portion of Judah being too large for that Tribe, he was taken into that lot, and was as an Inmate to them, Joſ. 19. 1, 2, 9. and afterwards part of them were forced to ſeek new Seats, and ſo were divided from the reſt of their Brethren, 1 Chron. 4. 27, 39, 42. And moreover the Jewiſh Doctors write, that that Tribe was ſo ſtraitned in their Habitations and Conveniences, that a very great number of them were forced to ſcatter themſelves amongſt the other Tribes to get a ſubſiſtence by teaching their Children.

8 ¶ Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren ſhall praiſe r: thy hand ſhall be in the neck s of thine enemies; * thy fathers children t ſhall bow down before * 1 Chron. 5. 2. thee u.

r Or rather, Thou art Judah, thy brethren ſhall praiſe or celebrate thee. So the expreſſion is like that, 1 Sam. 25. 25. as his name is, ſo is he: Nabal is his name, and folly is with him, or in him. So here the ſenſe is, As thy name ſignifies Praiſe, Gen. 29. 35. ſo ſhalt thou have Praiſe or Honour from thy Brethren. He alludes to his Name, and to the occaſion of it, but with an elegant Variation, Thou art deſervedly called Judah, not only becauſe thy Mother prais'd God for thee, but alſo becauſe thy Brethren ſhall praiſe and bleſs thee for the reaſons here following. But this, as alſo the other Bleſſings or Predictions, do not ſo much declare the ſtate of Judah, or the reſt in their own Perſons, as in their Poſterity. s (i. e.) Thou ſhalt overthrow and ſubdue them. This was fulfilled in part, Judg. 1. 1, 2, 4. and 3. 9, 10. but more fully in David, 2 Sam. 8. 1. and Solomon, 1 Chron. 22. 9. and moſt eminently, though ſpiritually, in Chriſt. The phraſe is taken either 1. From the practice of Warriors, who uſe to aſſault their Enemies in that part, that they may throw them down at their Feet; of which ſee Job 15. 26. and 16. 12. Or, 2. from the cuſtom of Conquerors, who are ſaid to put the Yokes upon the Necks of the conquered. See Gen. 27. 40. Deut. 28. 48. Iſaiah 10. 27. Jer. 27. 8. and 28. 14. t (i. e.) All thy Brethren, and my Poſterity; he ſaith not thy Mothers Children, for his his Sons had divers Mothers. u (i. e.) Shall own thee as their Superior and Lord, upon whom I have devolved this part of the right of the firſt-born. By this and the following words we plainly ſee that theſe Bleſſing and Predictions were not diſtributed according to Jacob's Affections and Inclinations (for then Judah ſhould never have been advanced above his worthily beloved Joſeph) but by the direction of God's Spirit.

Numb. 24. 9.

9 Judah is a lions whelp x: from the prey, my ſon, thou art gone up y: he z * ſtooped down, he couched a as a lion, and as an old lion b: who ſhall rouſe him up c?

x (i. e.) It as a lions whelp, or as a young lion, for Courage, and Strength, and Terror to his Enemies. The particle as is here wanting, as alſo verſe 14, 17, 21, 22 and in many other places, as Pſalm 11. 1. and 12. 6. and 22. 6, &c. And he is rightly compared firſt to a Lion's Whelp, then to an old Lion, to ſignify the growth of that Tribe in ſtrength and intereſt, and that from ſmall beginnings, and a precedency of order only, (Judges 1. 1, 2.) it ſhould aſcend to the height of Honour, and Power, and Happineſs in David, and eſpecially in the Meſſiah, who ſhould conquer all Nations. y Having taken the Prey, i. e. conquered thine Enemies, thou art gone up in triumph; or gone up, i. e. grown greater and higher after thy Victories, as the manner is. Or he alludes to the Lions, which uſually dwell in Mountains, as divers Writers obſerve, and come down to Prey in the Valleys, and when they have got their Prey, they go up to their Habitations, and ſo ſhall Judah do. z A change of the Perſon very frequent in Prophetical Writings, as we ſhall oft have occaſion to note hereafter. a When he hath taken the Prey, he doth not convey it away to his Den with haſte and ſpeed for fear the Enemy ſhould return and overtake him, but like a Lion he ſtoops down to feed upon his Prey, and coucheth or lieth down ſecurely to reſt himſelf after he hath eaten it, without the leaſt fear of any Enemy, as it is obſerved of him, Iſaiah 31. 4. Judah's Conqueſts ſhall not be interrupted or followed with ill Succeſſes, and Defeats or Overthrows afterward, as it frequently happens in the Courſe of War, but he ſhall quietly poſſeſs his Spoils, and after the bloody Wars to which he will be forced, ſhall enjoy a ſweet Peace and Tranquillity, which his Poſterity did, 2 Kings 4. 25. b Or rather a grown Lion, not a decrepit and impotent Lion, but one come to his full ſtrength. c Who ſhall preſume or dare to diſturb or provoke him? All ſhall fear him, and ſeek peace with him.

Pſalm 2. 7. and 68. 8. Luke 1.

10 The ſcepter d ſhall not depart from Judah, nor a * Law-giver e from between his feet f, * until Shiloh † come: and unto him ſhall the gathering g of the people h be.

d (i. e.) The Dominion or Government, which is oft expreſſed by this word, as Numb. 24. 17. Pſalm 45. 6. Iſaiah 14. 5. Ezek. 19. 11, 14. Amos 1. 5, 8. Zech. 10. 11. becauſe it is an Enſign of Government, Eſther 4. 11. So it is a Figure called a Metonymy of the ſign, than which nothing more frequent. The ſenſe is, That Superiority or Dominion over his Brethren, which I ſaid he ſhould obtain, (verſe 8.) he ſhall keep; it ſhall not depart from him. Others the Tribe, as the word Shebet ſignifies, 1 Sam. 10. 19, 20, 21. 1 Kings 11, 32, &c. So the ſenſe is this, Whereas the other Tribes ſhall be captivated, diſperſed and confounded, the Tribe of Judah ſhall be kept entire and diſtinct until Chriſt come. This is a great and important truth, and a ſingular Demonſtration of the all-diſpoſing Providence of God, and of the Truth and Divine Authority of the Scriptures; but it ſeems not to be the meaning of this place, 1. becauſe both the foregoing and following words do evidently ſpeak of Judah's Power and Greatneſs; and particularly this Shebet, or Scepter, is explained and reſtrained by the following Law-giver: 2. Becauſe this renders the Phraſe improper and abſurd; for the Tribe had not departed from Judah, nor had they ceaſed to be a Tribe had not departed from Judah, nor had they ceaſed to be a Tribe, if the other Tribes had been mixed with them in their Land, Tribe, if the other Tribes had been mixed with them in their Land, as indeed they were ſometimes. See 2 Chron. 11. 16. 3. Becauſe this is not peculiar to the Tribe of Judah; for in this ſenſe the Tribe did not depart from Levi, nay, that Tribe was kept more diſtinct than that of Judah; thus alſo the Tribe did not depart from Benjamin, as appears from Ezra 1. 5. and 10. 9. Nehem. 11. 4. Nay, it is queſtionable, whether in this ſenſe the Tribe departed from any of the other Tribes, not only becauſe there is a diſtinct mention of the ſeveral Tribes, Ezek. 48. which was written after the Diſperſion and ſuppoſed Confuſion of the other Tribes, and which ſpeaks of the times after the coming of the Meſſiah, but alſo becauſe of the great care which the Iſraelites generally took in diſtinguiſhing not only their Tribes, but their ſeveral Families in exact Genealogies, of which we have many proofs and inſtances, as 1 Chron. 4. 33. and 5. 1, 7, 17. and 7. 7, 9, 40. and 9. 1, 22. and Ezra 2. 62. and 8. 1, 3. Nehem. 7. 5, 64. The Jews indeed have another device to avoid the force of this Text. They ſay, Shebet ſignifies a Rod, to wit, a Rod of Correction, as the word is taken, Prov. 22. 15. And ſo they ſay the ſenſe is, The Tyrannical Scepter, or the Rod of the Oppreſſor ſhall not ceaſe or depart from Iſrael, till the Meſſiah come, who ſhall ſave them from all their Oppreſſors and Enemies. But this is a vain and frivolous conceit, for 1. the following Sentence, which expounds the former, as it is uſual in Scripture, plainly ſhews that this Shebet or Rod, is ſuch as is proper to the Law-giver, and therefore is a Rod of Authority, or a Scepter, which is called alſo a Rod, Ezek. 19. 14. and not a Rod of Affliction. 2. This is contrary to the whole Context, wherein there is nothing propheſied of Judah, but Honour, and Dominion, and Victory, and Safety. 3. There was no reaſon why the Rod of Affliction ſhould be appropriated to Judah, which was common to all the Tribes, and came ſooner, and fell heavier, and abode longer upon the other Tribes than upon Judah. 4. This Interpretation is confuted by the Event or Hiſtory, both becauſe the Rod of Correction did depart from Judah, and from them more than from the other Tribes, for many Generations before the coming of the Meſſiah; and becauſe that Rod is not removed from them, but hath continued longer and more dreadfully upon them ſince the coming of the Meſſias, than ever before; which one conſideration hath been the occaſion of the Converſion of many Jews. 5. Therefore the modern Jews pervert this Word and Text out of Enmity to Chriſt and Chriſtians; it is certain that the Ancient Jews, the LXX. and the Chaldee Paraphraſt, with many others, take the word as we do, as the Learned have proved out of their own Writings. See my Latin Synopſis. e So the Hebrew word ſignifies, as here, ſo alſo Numb. 21. 18. Deut. 33. 21. Pſal. 60. 7. and 108. 8. Iſa. 33. 22. And the Verb, from whence this word comes, ſignifies to make Laws, as Prov. 8. 15, &c. and the Hebrew word, Chok, which comes from the ſame root, conſtantly ſignifies a Law or Statute. Some render it, the Scribe, and that either the Civil Scribe, who belongs to the Ruler; or the Eccleſiaſtical Scribe, the Interpreter of the Law; and ſo it ſignifies, that both the Civil and the Eccleſiaſtical Power ſhould continue in Judah till Chriſt came, and then ſhould be taken away, both which the Event did verify. But indeed the Hebrew word for Scribe is Sopher, not Mechokek, which never is ſo uſed in Scripture, but always for a Lawgiver, as I have ſhewed, and ſo Kimchi and Aben Ezra, two late and learned Jews, with others, expound it. f From his Poſterity, or from thoſe that come from between his Feet, i. e. that are begotten and born of that Tribe. And thus Kimchi, and the Chaldee Paraphraſt, and other Ancient Jews underſtand this place. And the truth of this Interpretation may appear, by comparing this with other Texts of Scripture, as Deut. 28. 57. where the young one is deſcribed to be one that cometh from between her (the Womans) Feet; and Ezek. 16. 25. and with thoſe places where the word Feet is uſed for the Secret Parts, as Iſaiah 7. 20. the hair of the feet, not properly ſo called, for Hair ſeldom grows there; and 2 Kings 18. 27. Iſaiah 36. 12. where the Water which comes from the Secret parts is called the Water of the Feet. And poſſibly that Phraſe of covering the Feet applied to them that eaſed their Bellies, may note ſo much, becauſe the care of the Jews in that Action was not to hide their Feet properly ſo called, but their Secret Parts, which without due care might be diſcovered upon that occaſion. † (i. e.) The Meſſias. Which we need not ſtand to prove, becauſe it is ſo expounded by all the three Chaldee Paraphraſts, and by the Jewiſh Talmud, and by divers of the latter Jews themſelves. And the word ſignifies, either a Peace-maker or Saviour; or as others, her Son, or one that came out of the Womans Womb, or out of that Skin in which the Child in the Womb is wrapped, which this word, or one near akin to it ſignifies. So it notes, that the Meſſias ſhould be born of a Woman, though without the help of Man: Or, as others, the ſent, he who was oft promiſed and to be ſent. And this Signification may ſeem to be warranted by comparing John 9. 7. with thoſe places of the New Teſtament, in which the Meſſias is deſcribed by that Periphraſis of one ſent or to be ſent, as John 3. 39. &c. And the Phraſe here uſed is remarkable, till the Shiloh come, for the Shiloh or Meſſiah oft goeth under the Name of him that was to come, as Matth. 21. 9. Luke 7. 20. and 13. 35. And hence the Kingdom of the Meſſiah is called the World, or Kingdom to come, i. e. of him who was to come, Heb. 2. 5. and 6. 5. g They ſhall be gathered together, or united both among themſelves, and with the Jews, under him as their Head. Others, the Reverence, Obedience, or Worſhip: Which comes to the ſame thing, for they that are gathered to him, do alſo Reverence, Obey, and Worſhip him. The Hebrew word is uſed only here, and Prov. 30. 17. h (i. e.) The Gentiles, as the Jews themſelves underſtand it. And ſo it is a plain Propheſy of the Converſion of the Gentiles by and under the Meſſiah; ſignifying, that whereas the Ordinances of God, and means of Worſhip and Salvation were confined to the Jews before Chriſt's coming, (Pſalm 147. 19, 20.) when the Meſſiah ſhould come, the Pale of the Church ſhould be enlarged, the Partition-wall between Jews and Gentiles taken down, and the Gentiles ſhould Worſhip the True God, and the Meſſias. And this is no more than is foretold and promiſed in other Propheſies, as we ſhall ſee hereafter. The ſum of this Verſe is, The Scepter or Dominion ſhall be feared in the Tribe of Judah, though he doth not determine when it ſhall come thither; but when once it ſhall come, it ſhall not depart from thence, till the Meſſiah come; and then Judah ſhall loſe his Scepter and other Priviledges, and the Gentiles ſhall come into the ſtead of the Jews, and ſhall embrace that Meſſiah whom they ſhall reject. So now here is an undeniable Argument to prove againſt the Jews, that the Meſſiah is already come, and that the Lord Jeſus Chriſt is he, becauſe he was to come during the time wherein the Scepter was in the hands of Judah; and about that time when Jeſus Chriſt came, the Scepter was taken away from Judah and the Jews, and hath now been loſt for Sixteen hundred years together. The Jews are mightily perplexed and confounded with this Argument, one evidence whereof is their various and contradictory Expoſitions of the place, whileſt ſome of them affirm this Shiloh to be Moſes, others Saul, others, Jeroboam, others, Nebuchadnezzar, which neither need, nor deſerve Confutation; others, David. Which, though ſome of the acuteſt of the Jewiſh Doctors aſſert, is as contemptible as any of the reſt, it being ridiculous to ſay the Scepter departed from Judah under him by whom it firſt came into that Tribe, having been till David's time in other Tribes. But the great difficulty is, how this was accompliſhed; for if the event fully agrees with this Propheſy, the cauſe of the Jews is loſt, and Chriſt muſt be owned as the true Meſſias. The Scepter was for a time in other Tribes, as in Moſes of the Tribe of Levi, in divers of the Judges, who were of ſeveral Tribes; and laſtly in the Tribe of Benjamin under Saul, but the Scepter departed from all theſe. But this is propheſied as Judah's Priviledge, that when once the Scepter or Government came into that Tribe, which it did in David's time, it ſhould not depart from it till Chriſt came, and then it ſhould depart. And thus it came to paſs. Concerning the time from David unto the Captivity of Babylon there is no diſpute, there being a conſtant Succeſſion of Kings in that Tribe all that time. For the time of the Babyloniſh Captivity, wherein there may ſeem to be more difficulty, it is to be conſidered, 1. That the Scepter or Government was not loſt or departed from Judah, but only interrupted, and that but for Seventy years at moſt, which in ſo long a ſpace of time as above a Thouſand years, is little to be regarded. As none will ſay, the Kingdom was departed from the Houſe of David, becauſe of those Interregnum or Interruptions which sometimes fell out in that Family. Add to this, that God hath given them an absolute promise and assured hope of the Restauration of Judah's Scepter, so that this was rather a Sleep than the Death of that Government. 2. That within these Seventy years there were some Remainders and Reams of Judah's Soveraignty in Jehoiachin, 2 Kings 25. 27. in Daniel, who was of that Tribe, Dan. 2. 25. and 5. 13. and of the King's Seed, Dan. 1. 3. and in the successive Heads or Governors of the Exiles, of whom the Jewish Writers say so much, and they affirm that they were always of the House of David, and were more honourable than the Governors of the Jews which were left in the Land of Israel. 3. All that was then left of the Scepter of the Jews was in the Tribe of Judah; nor was the Scepter departed from Judah to any other Tribe; and that is the thing which seems especially to be respected in this Prophesy: For Judah is here compared with the rest of the Tribes; and it is here signified, that the Power and Dominion which was in Judah, when once it came thither, should not shift from Tribe to Tribe, as it had done, but whilst there was any Scepter or Supreme Government among the Jews, it should be in that Tribe, even till the coming of the Messias. But if there should happen any total, but temporary Intercision or Cessation of the Government among all the Tribes, which now was the case, that was no prejudice to the truth of this promise, nor to the privilege granted to Judah above the rest of the Tribes. After the Captivity, the State of the Jews was very various. Sometimes they had Governors put in by the Persian King, as Zorobabel, who was also of the Tribe of Judah, and, as it is suppofed, Nephew of Jehoiachin; and Nehemiah, whom Eusebius affirms to have been of the Tribe of Judah. And though he may seem to be numbred among the Priests, Nehem. 10. 8. yet a diligent Reader will find that he is even there distinguished from them by his Title the Tyrshatha, ver. 1. and the word Priests (verse 8.) relateth only to the rest there mentioned besides him; especially if this be compared with Chap. 9 38. where the Princes (among whom surely Nehemiah was the chief) are distinguished from the Priests. And sometimes the People chose Governors, or Captain-Generals, as the Maccabees, and others. But under all their Vicissitudes, after their return from Babylon, the Chief Government was evidently and unquestionably seated in the great Council called Sanhedrim, or Synedrium, wherein though some of the Tribe of Levi were mixed with those of the Tribe of Judah; yet because they, together with other Members of that Council, had their power both from that Tribe by which they were chosen, and in it, and for it, the Scepter did truly remain in the Tribe of Judah; even as it was rightly called the Roman Empire when Trojan a Spaniard, or other Foreigners administred it; or as we call it, the Kingdom of Poland, when they chuse a King of another Nation. How great and venerable the Authority of this Council was among the Jews, may easily be gathered, 1. From the Divine Institution of it, Numb. 11. 16. whereby indeed it was at first to consist of Persons indifferently chosen out of all the Tribes; but now the other Tribes being banished and dispersed in unknown places, and Benjamin and Levi being as it were Accessions to the Tribe of Judah, and in a sort incorporated with it; it now becomes as it were appropriated to the Tribe of Judah, as acting in its Name, and by its Authority; and the whole Land is called Judea, and all the People Jews, from the predominancy of that Tribe above the rest. 2. From the great Power and Privileges anciently granted to it, Deut. 17. 8, &c. 2 Chron. 19. 8, 11. Psalm 122. 5. 3. From the testimony of Josephus, and other Jewish Writers, which is most considerable in this Argument, who largely describe and magnify the Power and Authority of it; who tell us that the Power of their King was subject to that of this Council; and therefore one of them addressing his Speech to that Council, where also the King himself was present, first salutes the Senators, and after them the King. They affirm also, that the Power of making War or Peace was vested in that Council; and that Herod was tried for his Life by it. If it be said, that the Power of this Council was in a great measure taken away, which the Jews confess, John 18. 31. and that the Scepter of Judea was in the hand of the Romans, and by them given to Herod, who was no Jew, but an Idumaean, and this before the coming of the Messias, which is the only remaining difficulty; to this many things may be said, 1. That this happned but a few years before the coming of Christ, when Christ was even at the Doors, and about to come, and therefore might well be said to be come; especially in the Prophetical Stile, whereby things are oft said to be done, which are near doing. 2. That the Jewish Senators did long struggle with Herod about the Government, and did not yield it up to him till his last year, when they took an Oath of Fealty to him, which was after Christ was born. Nor indeed was the Scepter quite gone from them then, for that Council still had the Power, tho not of Life and Death, yet of Civil and Ecclesiastical Matters. See John 18. 31. So that if the Scepter was gone, the Law-giver remained there still. Nor was their Government and Commonwealth quite destroyed until the Destruction of Jerusalem by Titus. And therefore some translate the place thus, and that with great probability, The Scepter shall not depart—until the Shiloh come, and until (which word is repeated out of the former Member, as it is most usual in the Scripture) the gathering of the people be to him, (i. e.) until the Gentiles be converted and brought in to Christ. And this interpretation receiveth countenance from Matth. 24. 14. The Gospel shall be preached in all the world—and then shall the end come, not the end of the whole World, as it is evident, but the end of the Commonwealth and Government of the Jews, when the Scepter and Lawgiver should be wholly taken away from that Tribe and People.

11 Binding his foal unto the vine, and his asses colt unto the choice vine i: he washed his garment in wine k, and his clothes in the blood of grapes l.

i He signifies the plenty of Vines in Judah's Portion, that they shall be planted every where, even in the Commons and High-ways where men travel, and where upon occasion they use to tie the Beasts on which they ride, to any Tree which is near them. k Such shall be the plenty of it, that if it were convenient, Men might use Wine instead of Water to wash their Garments. l So the Wine is called also in Deut. 32. 14. 1 Macc. 6. 34. and by Pliny, Hesiod, and others. As Oyl is called the Blood of the Olive.

12 His eyes shall be red with wine m, and his teeth white with milk.

13 * Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea n, * Deut. and he shall be for an haven of ships, and his border 33. 18. Josh. 19. shall be unto Zidon o.

n Acknowledge here, and adore the Divine Providence, which directed Jacob thus exactly to foretel the Portion of Zebulun, which fell to them 200 years after this, and that not by choice, or any design of men, but merely by Lot. His Portion was extended from the Sea of Galilee to the great Mediterranean Sea, and to such parts of it where there were convenient Havens. o Or his side or coast, to wit, that which is upon the Mediterranean Sea, is near Sidon, understanding not the City, but the Territory belonging to it, unto which that Tribe reached upon the Sea-coast. For though Asher might seem to intercept them, yet he did not reach to the Sea. Or, his coast looks towards Sidon; hath it in view, and lies commodiously for Commerce with that great City, which then was the Mart of the Nations.

Or, lying down, i. e. enjoying his ease and rest, between the borders, to wit, of the other Tribes, with which he was encompassed and secured from Foreign Enemies, which made him more secure and slothful. Or, between the borders or folds of Cattle; as a word very near a-kin to it, and proceeding from the same root, signifies, Judg. 5. 16. to the feeding and minding whereof he wholly gave himself, neglecting more generous things.

15 And he saw that rest r was good, and the land that it was pleasant, and bowed his shoulder to bear, and became a servant unto tribute s.

r Or rather, his resting place, as this very word signifies, Gen. 8. 9. Psal. 116. 7. and 132. 8. Isa. 11. 10. (i. e.) his Portion or Habitation, as the Chald. and Syr. translate it. So this agrees with the following member, where, after the manner of the Hebrews, the same thing is repeated in other words. And if it be objected against this Version, that it is not said his rest, but rest in the general, it may be replied, that so it is in the following branch, the land, though it be apparently meant of his land, or portion of land allotted to him. Besides, the Pronouns are often omitted, and to be understood in Hebrew Text; as may appear by comparing 1 Kings 10. 7. with 2 Chron. 9. 6. and Psal. 41. 9. with John 13. 18. and Mat. 3. 12. with Luke 3. 17. s Willingly paying whatsoever Tributes were imposed upon him, either by the Neighbouring Tribes, or by Foreign Powers, rather than to forfeit his pleasant and fruitful Country, and his sweet Repose.

t (i. e.) Rule and govern them. Though he be the son of my Concubine, yet he shall not be subject to any other Tribe, but shall have an Absolute Power within himself. What is said of him, is to be understood of the rest of the sons of the Concubines, and hereby all difference between the sons of the Wives and Concubines is taken away. It is said of Dan, because he is the first mentioned of that sort. u As the rest of the Tribes do, having distinct Governments and Governors amongst them. See Numb. 1. 4, 16.

17 Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an † adder † Heb. a horned in the path x that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider serpent. shall fall backward.

x Which covereth and hideth it self in the sand or dust of the highway, watching for men or beasts that pass that way. He notes the subtilty of that Tribe, which should conquer their Enemies more by Craft and Cunning, than by strength or force of Arms.

18 I have waited for thy salvation, O LORD y.

y I do earnestly wait, and hope, and pray for thy helping hand to save me and my posterity from the manifold temporal Calamities which I foresee will come upon them, and especially from spiritual and eternal mischiefs, by that Messiah which thou hast promised. Jacob in the midst of his great work doth take a little breathing, and finding himself weakned by his Speech to his Children, and drawing nearer death, he opens his arms to receive it, as the thing for which he had long waited, as the only effectual remedy and mean of Salvation or deliverance from all his pains and miseries, and particularly from his present horrors, upon the contemplation of the future state of his Children. And this pathetical Exclamation may look either, 1. backward, to the state of the Tribe of Dan, which he foresaw would be deplorable, both for its great straits and pressures, of which see Jos. 19. 47. Judg. 1. 34. and especially for that Idolatry which that Tribe would introduce and promote, Judg. 18. 30. and 1 Kings 12. 29. whereby they would ruin themselves, and most of the other Tribes with them. Or 2. forward, to the doubtful and miserable condition of God.

19 Gad, a troop z shall overcome him; but he shall overcome at the last a.

z (i. e.) Troops of Enemies shall frequently invade his Countrey, and for a time conquer and spoil it. And so it came to pass, because the Inheritance of that Tribe lay beyond Jordan, near to the Ammonites and Moabites, two inveterate Enemies of Israel; and to other hostile Nations on the East. a Or, afterward. This was fulfilled 1 Chron. 5, 18, &c. He shews that the Events of the Wars should be be various, but Gad should one time or other spoil his spoilers. See Deut. 33. 20.

20 Out of Asher b, his bread shall be fat c, and he shall yield royal dainties d.

b (i. e.) Out of the land of Asher. Or, As for or concerning Asher. c His bread-corn shall be fuller and sweeter and better than ordinary. d Not only Oyl for Ointments, but also delicious and excellent Fruits, fit to be presented to a King. See Deut. 33. 24, 25.

21 Naphtali is a hind let loose e: he giveth goodly words f.

e Not purfued by hunters, nor shut up in some little inclosure, but wholly left to its own freedom, to feed upon the best Pastures; See Deut. 33. 23. Or, free from the yoke which they together with the other Tribes did bear in Egypt; free from its former restraints, which make it run away more swiftly. So it may note their nimbleness and expedition either in encountring enemies, or in avoiding dangers. See Judg. 4. 6, 10 and 5. 18. Or like a tame hind, left to its liberty, in which the Owner takes delight, as Prov. 5 19. For he seems to be commended rather for Arts of Peace than War. And this may note that his temper and conversation was civil, obliging, and amiable; which sense the next words favour. f His speeches and discourses with others are fair, and friendly, and winning. It is not strange that this Tribe was generally of a sweeter disposition than others, seeing it is commonly observed that there is a great difference in the tempers of people of divers Provinces or Cities bordering one upon another. But this verse may be otherwise rendred according to the opinion of a late Learned Writer; Naphtali is a tree (to the Hebrew word signifies, only tob is inserted here, as it is in the same word, Isa 1. 29. and 61. 3.) shot forth, or spread forth, (into many branches; for the Hebrew Verb Shalach is oft used concerning Trees, and their shooting forth of Branches, as Psal. 80. 11. Ezek 17. 6. and 31. 5.) sending forth goodly branches; the word imre, which is by others rendred words, here signifying branches, as either the same word, or one coming from the same root, and consisting of the same radical Letters, is taken Isa 17. 6, 9. And it is usual in the Hebrew Language for two words coming from the same root, to exchange their significations. And this Interpretation is favoured by the Ancient Interpreters, the LXX, and one of the Arabick Manuscripts, which make Naphtali here to be compared to a goodly tree bringing forth excellent Fruit.

22 Joseph is a fruitful bough g, even a fruitful † Heb. Daughters. bough by a well h, whose † branches run over the wall i.

g In regard of those two numerous Tribes which proceeded from his two sons. h Or, fountain, or water-course, which scituation doth much further the growth of trees. See Psal 1. 3. and Ezek. 19. 10. i (i. e.) Which is planted by a wall, whose heat furthers its growth no less than the moisture of the water doth.

23 The archers k have sorely grieved him l, and shot at him, and hated him:

k (i. e.) His adversaries, as well his own Brethren, as his Master and Mistress. l With their scoffs, and slanders, and injuries, which in Scripture are oft compared to Arrows.

* Job 29. 20. 24 But * his bow l abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong, by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob m: from thence is the Shepherd, the stone of Israel n.

l Wherewith he opposed his enemies; which was no military Bow, but that which he opposed to all their injuries, to wit, his own Virtue, his Innocence, his Patience, his Temperance, his Faith and Hope in God, whereby he resisted and vanquished all the Temptations and Difficulties which he met with, so that all his Enemies could neither desile nor destroy him. m (i. e.) Of my God; the noun for the pronoun, which is frequent. When men so took and persecuted him, my God and his God stood by him. He shewed, that it was not Joseph's Wisdom and Courage, but God's gracious Assistance that made him Conqueror. n Either 1. From that great deliverance vouchsafed by God to Joseph it is, that Israel or Jacob hath a Shepherd to feed him, a Stone to lay his head upon, as once he did, Gen. 28. 11. or a rock of refuge to fly to in his great distresses, or a foundation-Stone, or corner-stone or Pillar to sustain or preserve Jacob's House. Or rather 2. from the hands of the mighty God of Jacob, last mentioned. Or from the God of his father, as it follows the next verse. So the sense is this, Though Joseph was a blessed Instrument in this wonderful work, yet the God of Jacob was the chief Author of it, by whose wise and merciful Providence it was so ordered that Joseph should be first sold, and afterwards advanced, and all in order to this end, that his Israel, with whom he hath been pleased to make a gracious and everlasting Covenant, should have a Shepherd to feed him in the time of Famine, and a Stone or Rock to support him.

25 Even by the God of thy father o who shall help thee, and by the Almighty, who shall bless thee with blessings of heaven above p, blessings of the deep that lieth under q, blessings of the breasts, and of the womb r.

o Here he explains and determines that doubtful expression from thence, by adding, even by (or rather from, as this Particle Mem properly signifies, and was just now used) the God of thy father, i. e. who hath chosen and loved thy Father, and made a league with him, and blessed him with all manner of blessings. p (i. e.) The sweet and powerful influences of the heavenly Bodies, and the Dews and Rains which fall from Heaven, whereby the fruits of the Earth are produced in great plenty. See Levit. 26. 4. Deut. 28. 12. and 33. 14. q (i. e.) Of that great Sea of waters both about the Earth, and in the Earth, whence come those Springs and Rivers by which the Earth is moistned and made fruitful. See Gen. 1. 2. and 7. 11. and Deut. 8. 7. r Whereby both Men and Beasts shall be greatly multiplied, and abundantly supplied with all necessaries.

26 The blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors s; unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills t: they shall be † on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren u.

s The Blessings which I thy Father have conferred upon thee, are much more considerable than those which I received from my father Isaac, or from my Grandfather Abraham. This was true, 1. in the extent of the Blessings; Ishmael was excluded from Abraham's Blessing, and my Brother excluded from Isaac's Blessing, but both Joseph's Children are comprehended in Jacob's Blessing. 2. In the distinctness and clearness of them; For that Land of Canaan which was transmitted to Isaac and to Jacob only in the general, was now in some fort particularly distributed to Joseph, and to the rest of his Brethren, as afterwards it was by Joshua. 3 In the nearness of the accomplishment Now there was a more likely prospect of the multiplication of their Seed, than there was to Abraham, or Isaac; and in not very many years after this, they multiplied to astonishment, and drew nearer to the possession of the promised Land. t These words seem to note the duration of Joseph's Blessing, that it should continue even to the bounds of the everlasting, or lasting, or ancient hills, i. e. as long as the most solid and stable Mountains shall last, i. e. for ever. Perpetuity is described by the continuance of the Mountains, as Isa. 54. 10. or of the Sun and Moon, as Psal. 72. 5, 7. 17. or of the Heavens and Earth, as Matth. 5. 18. In the foregoing words of this Verse he commends these Blessings from their excellency above all former Blessings; and here he commends them from their durableness. † Or, let them be. For this may be a Prayer to God that these Blessings may be constant and perpetual. u So he was, when he was sold into Egypt, and abode there in the Court when his Brethren were in Goshen: Or, the crowned of, or among his brethren, i. e. who, though he was once scorned and trampled upon by his Brethren, yet now is highly honoured and advanced above them. Others, the Nazarite of, or among his Brethren; as he may be called either for his purity and sanctity, or for his eminency and dignity. But we must remember that the Nazarites were as yet unknown, being instituted long after this time.

27 Benjamin shall ravine as a wolf x: in the morning he shall devour the prey, and at night he shall divide the spoil y.

x He notes the warlike and fierce disposition and carriage of that Tribe. Instances whereof we have, Judg. 3. 15. and 19, and 20. 1 Sam. 12. and 14 and 5. y This may be understood, either of the same Wolf, which in the morning being more hungry and greedy, devours his Prey alone; but in the evening, being in some measure satisfied, is content that his Brethren should share with him. Or rather of several sorts of Wolves, whereof some hunt and devour alone, others hunt in couples or troups, and those divide the Prey among themselves. He mentions both morning and evening, because these are the two Seasons when the Wolves prey, and to note that this would be Benjamin's carriage both in the first and last times of that Tribe, as indeed it was.

28 All these are the twelve tribes z of Israel; and this is it that their father spake unto them, and blessed them: every one according to his blessing a he blessed them.

z (i. e.) The Heads and Parents of the Twelve Tribes. A Metonymy of the effect. The Tribes are generally accounted Twelve, though they were Thirteen, because the Land was divided only into Twelve parts. Levi having no distinct part of his own. a (i. e.) According to that Blessing which God in his purpose had allotted to each of them, which also he manifested unto Jacob by his Spirit. Object. There is no Blessing here given to Reuben, Simeon and Levi, but rather a Curse, how then is he said to bless every one of them? Answ. He blessed them all implicitly and really, though not expressly, or in words, because he gave each of them a part in Canaan; and his taking away from Reuben only the right of the First-born, plainly supposeth that he left him his single Portion and Inheritance. And he might well be said to bless them all, because he left them all an interest in God's Covenant, one Article whereof was the giving of Canaan, or part of Canaan, to them. and this was an earnest of the other Branches or Articles of it. Though it is probable he also added some short Blessing or Prayer to God for his blessing upon them all.

29 And he charged them, and said unto them, I am to be gathered unto my people: * bury me with my fa- * Chap. thers b, in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the 47. 30. Hittite.

b In Canaan. Whereby he designed to withdraw their minds from Egypt, and fix them upon Canaan.

30 In the cave that is in the field of Matchpelah, which is before Mamre c, in the land of Canaan, * which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the * Chap. Hittite, for a possession of a burying-place. 23. 16.

c He describes it so particularly, both for their direction, because they had been some years absent thence; and to express how much his heart was set upon this matter; and thereby to oblige them to the more careful performance of his Command.

31 (* There they buried Abraham and Sarah his * Chap. 23. wife, there they buried Isaac and Rebekah his wife, 19. and and there I buried Leah.) 25. 9.

32 The purchase of the field, and of the cave that is therein, was from the children of Heth.

33 And when Jacob had made an end of command- ing his sons d, he gathered up his feet into bed e, and yielded up the ghost, and was gathered unto his people.

d To Joseph and Benjamin. e To rest himself.

d To wit, concerning the place of his burial. Whilst he was employed in that most solemn and religious work of blessing his Children in the name, and by the Spirit of God, he used as reverend a posture as his infirm Body would permit, and therefore is supposed to sit upon his Bed-side with his Feet hanging downwards. And when he had finished that great work, and wearied himself with so long Speech delivered with a most raised and affected mind, he composed himself to rest, and waited for the comfortable approach of his death, which speedily followed it.

CHAP. L.

Joseph bewails his father's death; and embalms him, 1, 2. The Egyptians mourn for him 70 days, 3. Joseph with Pharaoh's leave carries him stately accompanied to Canaan, 4—9. They mourn there seven days, and sorely, so that the Canaanites from thence named the place Abel-Misraim, 10, 11. They bury him where he commanded, 12, 13. They return to Egypt, 14. Jacob being dead, his sons are afraid of their brother Joseph, 15. Pretending their father's order, they address for pardon, 16——18. He weeps, forgives, and encourageth them, 19, 21. Joseph lives to see a third and fourth generation, 22, 23. Assures his brethren of their future return to Canaan, 24. He takes an oath of them to carry his bones with them, 25. Dies; is embalm'd; and put in a coffin, 26.

AND Joseph fell upon his fathers face a, and wept upon him, and kissed him.

a And doubtless closed his eyes, as God had promised, Gen. 46 4. which may be implied in this general phrase.

2 And Joseph commanded his servants the Physicians to imbalm his father b: and the Phyficians imbalmed Israel.

b The dead Corps of his Father with Spices, and Oyntments, and other things necessary for the preservation of the Body from putrefaction as long as might be. This Joseph did, partly because he would comply as far as he could with the Egyptians, whose custom this was, from whom also the Jews took it, 2 Chron. 16. 14. John 19. 39, 40. Partly to do honour, and shew his affections to his worthy Father; and partly because this was necessary for the keeping of the Body so long as the times of mourning and the journey to Canaan required.

3 And forty days were fulfilled for him c, (for so are fulfilled the days of those which are imbalmed) and the Egyptians † mourned for him threescore and ten days d.

c (i. e.) For his embalming; that so the Drugs or Spices which were applied, might more effectually reach to all the parts of the dead Body, and keep it from corruption. And the effect of their diligence, and so long continuance in this work was, that Bodies have been preserved uncorrupt for some thousands of years. d (i. e.) Thirty days, according to the custom of the Hebrews, Numb. 20. 29. Deut. 34. 8. to which doubtless the Egyptians in this case did accommodate themselves, besides the forty days spent in embalming him, which also was a time of mourning. And thus I suppose, the Egyptians reckoned those seventy two days which Diodorus Siculus saith they spent in mourning for their deceased Kings.

4 And when the days of his mourning were past, Joseph spake unto the house e of Pharaoh, saying, If now I have found grace in your eyes, speak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh f, saying, e The Houshold or Family, namely, those of them which were chief in place and favour with the King. f Joseph makes use of their intercession, either, 1. Left he might seem to despise them, or to presume too much upon his own single interest. Or, 2. By engaging them in this matter to stop their mouths, who otherwise might have been ready enough to censure this Action, which they would have a fair opportunity to do in Joseph's absence. Or, 3. Because it was the custom here, as it was elsewhere, Esth. 4. 2. that persons in mourning habit might not come into the King's presence, partly because they would not give them any occasion of sadness, and partly because, according to their superstitious conceits the sight of such a person was judged ominous.

* Chap. 47. 29. 5 * My father made me swear g, saying, Lo, I die: in my grave, which I have digged for me h, in the land of Canaan, there shalt thou bury me. Now therefore let me go up, I pray thee, and bury my father, and I will come again.

g Here is a triple obligation upon Joseph, 1. His duty to fulfil the will of the dead. 2. The obedience which he owed to his Father's command. 3. The tye of a solemn Oath: All which had weight even with the Heathens, and were so many Arguments to Pharaoh and his Courtiers. h According to the manner of those ancient and succeeding times. See 2 Chron. 16. 14. Isa. 22. 16. Matth. 27. 60. In that large Cave which Abraham bought for a burying-place for his Family, Jacob had digged a particular and small Cell or Repository for himself, as others did after him upon the like occasion. And this reason is prudently added, to shew that this desire proceeded not from any contempt of Pharaoh, or his Land, but from that common and customary desire of persons of all Ages and Nations, to be buried in their Fathers Sepulchres.

6 And Pharaoh said, Go up, and bury thy father, according as he made thee swear h.

h The Heathens by the light of nature discovered the sacredness of an Oath, and the wickedness of Perjury.

7 And Joseph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all i the servants of Pharaoh k, the elders of his house l, and all the elders of the land m of Egypt, i (i. e.) A great number of them, as that word is understood, Matth. 3. 5. and oft elsewhere. For many of them were aged and infirm, and many could not be spared from their attendance at Court, or upon their Employments, &c. k Courtiers of an inferior rank. l The chief Officers, and under him Governours of his Family and Counsels, who used to reside at or near the Court. m The great Officers Civil and Military, whose places of habitation and command were dispersed in the several parts of the Land.

8 And all the house of Joseph, and his brethren, and his father's house: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds n, they left in the land of Goshen.

n And such as were necessary to take care of them, which must needs be understood.

9 And there went up with him both chariots and horsemen o, and it was a very great company.

o For their defence, in case of any opposition.

10 And they came to the threshing-floor of Atad p, which is beyond q Jordan, and there r they mourned with a great and very sore lamentation s: and he made a mourning for his father seven days t.

p A man so called, or, of thorn, or thorns, as the word signifies, Judg. 9. 14. Psal. 58. 9. So it might be a place either abounding or encompassed with thorns. q Or, on this side; for the word signifies both, and it may be taken either way here, the one in respect of Egypt, the other in regard of the place in which Moses wrote. It is creatain they fetched a great compass, whether for the commodiousness of the way for their Chariots, and for conveniencies for so great a company, or to prevent all jealousies in the People, as if they came thither with ill design, is not material. r Because there was the entrance into that Countrey or Territory where he was to be buried. s The Egyptians though they were not much grieved nor concerned for Jacob's death, yet they used bitter cries and lamentations, which possibly were made or aggravated by persons hired, and used upon such occasions. See Jer. 9. 17. t According to the custom. See 1 Sam. 31. 13.

11 And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, saw the mourning in the floor of Atar, they said, This is a grievous mourning to the Egyptians: wherefore the name of it was called † Abel-Mizraim, which is beyond Jordan.

† This the mourning of the Egyptians.

12 And his sons did unto him according as he commanded them.

13 For * his sons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah, which Abraham * bought with the field for a † possession of a burying-place of Ephron the Hittite, before Mamre.

* Acts 7. 16. * Chap. 23.

14 And Joseph returned into Egypt, he, and his brethren, and all that went with him to bury his father, after he had buried his father.

15 And when Joseph's brethren saw that their father was dead, they said, Joseph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him.

16 And they † sent a messenger unto Joseph, saying, Thy father did command before he died u, saying, u This looks like a lye; for Jacob either did not know this fact, or rather, was so well assured of Joseph's Clemency and Goodness, that he never feared his Revenge. But Guilt doth so awaken Fear, that it makes a man never to think himself secure.

17 So shall ye say unto Joseph, Forgive, I pray thee now, the trespass of thy brethren, and their sin: for they did unto thee evil: And now, we pray thee, forgive the trespass of the servants of the God of thy father x. And Joseph wept y when they spake unto him.

x For whose sake Pardon those that joyn with thee in his Worship. y Partly in compassion to their Fear and Trouble; and partly because they still retained a diffidence in his kindness, after all his great and real demonstrations of it.

18 And his brethren also went and fell down before his face, and they said, Behold, we be thy servants z.

z Ready and willing to undergo that servitude, into which we so wickedly sold thee.

19 And Joseph said unto them, * Fear not: for am I in the place of God a? * Chap. 45. 5.

a It is God's Prerogative to take Vengeance, which I dare not usurp. See Deut. 32. 35. Or, Can I do what I please with you without God's leave? Therefore fear him rather than me, and upon your experience of his wonderful care and kindness to you, believe that God will not, and therefore that I neither can nor will do you any hurt. But it is not unusual to put the Hebrew he for halo, as it is Gen. 27. 36. 1 Sam. 2. 28. 2 Sam. 23. 19. 1 Kings 16. 31, &c. and so the words may be very well rendred, Am not I under God? i. e. Subject to his Will, a minister of his Providence? Dare I destroy those whom God so eminently designed to save? Dare I punish those whom God hath pardoned?

20 But as for you, ye thought evil against me b, but God meant it unto good, to bring to pass, as it is this day, to save much people alive.

b Therefore I do not excuse your Guilt, though I comfort you against Despondency.

21 Now

21 Now therefore fear ye not: I will nourish you and your little ones c. And he comforted them, and † spake kindly unto them.

c Expect not only a free Pardon from me, but all the kindness of a loving Brother.

22 And Joseph dwelt in Egypt, he and his father's house: and Joseph lived an hundred and ten years.

* Numb. 32. 39. † Heb. born. 23 * And Joseph saw Ephraim's children of the third generation d: the children e also of Machir the son of Manasseh, were † brought up upon Joseph's knees f.

d Reckoning from and after Ephraim, i. e. Ephraim's Grandchildrens Children. So early did Ephraim's priviledge above Manasseh appear, and Jacob's Blessing, (Gen. 48. 19.) take place. e Heb. Sons. For though he had but one Son, viz. Gilead by his first Wife, yet he married a second Wife, and by her had two other Sons, 1 Chron. 7. 16. which Joseph lived long enough to see. Or under the name of Children his Grandchildren also might be comprehended. So there is no need of that Enallage of Sons for one Son, which we meet with in other places. f Laid upon Joseph's Lap or Knees, where Parents use oft-times to take up and repose their Infants, to express their love to them, and delight in them. And some observe, that it was an ancient custom in divers Nations, that the Infant, as soon as it was born, was laid upon the Grandfather's Knees. So it is an Ellipsis, whereby one word is put for two, or under one Verb. See more of this phrase on Gen 30. 3. and 48. 12.

* Heb. 11. 22. Exod. 3. 16. * Chap. 15. 14. and 26. 3. and 35. 12. and 46. 4. 24 And Joseph said unto his brethren, * I die: and God will surely visit you g, and bring you out of this land, unto the land * which he sware to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob.

g (i. e.) Deliver you out of this place, where I foresee you will be hardly used after my decease; or, fulfil his promised kindness to you, as that word is used, Gen. 21. 1. Exod. 4. 31. There is a double Visitation oft mentioned in Scripture, the one of Grace and Mercy, which is here meant; the other of Justice and Anger, as elsewhere.

25 And Joseph took an oath b of the children of Israel, saying, * God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones k hence. * Exod. 13. 19. Josh. 24. 32. Act. 7. 16.

b For the same reason which moved Jacob to require an Oath from him, Gen. 47. 30, 31. i He saith not, of his brethren, but of Israel's children; under which his Grandchildren are comprehended, and seem principally intended here; either because his Brethren were most of them dead, or rather because he knew that they were not to go out of Egypt in his Brethrens time, but in their second or third Generation. k (i. e.) My dead Body: But he mentions only his Bones, because part of his Body was corrupted, and the other part though preserved from Corruption by the embalming, yet was so changed and adulterated with the Spices, and other materials which they used, that it looked like another thing: Only his Bones remained intire and unchanged. Quest. Why did he not desire to be presently carried thither, and buried there, as his Father did? Answ. 1. Left he should disoblige the Egyptians, and provoke them against his Brethren and Children. The removal of his Father thither was necessary and forced from him by an Oath, but the order for the removal of himself would have been voluntary and designed, and therefore could not have escaped the Censure of an ungrateful Contempt of the Land of Egypt, which as it was thought good enough for him and his to live in, should have been judged so too for his burial. 2. That by these his Remains, his Memory might be the longer and better preserved both with the Egyptians, who for his sake might shew kindness to his near Relations; and with the Israelites, to whom this was a visible pledge of their Deliverance, and an help to their Faith, and an obligation to them to persist in the true Religion.

26 So Joseph died, being an hundred and ten years old l: and they imbalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt.

l So for about Thirteen years of Affliction he enjoyed Eighty years of Honour, and as much Happiness as earth could afford him.

Annotations on EXODUS.

The ARGUMENT.

After the death of Joseph, who had sent for his Father's House into Egypt, the Children of Israel exceedingly multiplied, notwithstanding Pharaoh's cruel oppressing of them; from under which, God, hearing their cry, brought them with a strong hand. Wherefore this Book is called by the Greeks Exodus, i. e. A going forth; containing an Historical Account of passages for about one hundred and forty years; with the wonderful raising up of Moses, who, together with Aaron, were to be instruments of their Deliverance; and accordingly after the inflicting two dreadful Plagues upon Pharaoh, brought them into the Wilderness through the Red-Sea, wherein Pharaoh, (his Heart being hardned under all these Plagues) and all his Host pursuing of them, were drowned; God having first instituted the Passover, as an abiding Sacrament to bring to their remembrance in after times this great Deliverance.

In their conduct through the Wilderness, God gave them the signal mark of his presence in the pillar of a Cloud, and the pillar of Fire; who, notwithstanding their great and reiterated murmurings, gave them Food, both Bread and Flesh from Heaven, and Drink out of the Rock; and, when they were come to Mount Sinai, he there gave them the Moral Law, beside other both Politick, and Ecclesiastical Ordinances: Afterwards, the breaking of the Tables being occasioned by the Idolatry of the Golden Calf, God graciously renewed his Covenant with them: There being also a Tabernacle, and Ark, and other things to be made by God's command, the bounty of the People, in order to the making, and furnishing thereof, is here set down; which being finished, the Tabernacle is anointed, and filled with the glory of God.

CHAP. I.

The names and numbers of the children of Israel that came into Egypt, ver. 1——5. Joseph, his brethren, and that generation die, 6. A new king, who knew not Joseph, 8 Goeth about by affliction &c. to suppress the Israelites, 9——11. They increase, 12——14. Pharaoh commands the midwives to kill the male-children, 15, 16. They fear God and obey not the king, 17. For this God blesseth the midwives, 18——21. Pharaoh commands all the male-children to be drowned, 22.

* Gen. 46. 8. Exod. 6. 14. NOW these are the names of the * children of Israel which came into Egypt a, every man and his houshold b came with Jacob.

a This List is here repeated, that by comparing this small Root with so vast a company of Branches as grew upon it, we may see the wonderful Providence of God in the fulfilling of his Promises. b His Children and Grandchildren, as the word house is taken Ruth 4. 11. 2 Sam. 7. 11. 1 Kings 21. 29.

2 Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah,

3 Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin c.

c Who, though the youngest of all, is placed before Dan, Naphtali, &c because these were the Sons of the Hand-maidens.

4 Dan, and Naphtali, Gad, and Asher.

† Heb. thigh. * Gen. 46. 27. 5 And all the souls that came out of the † loins of Jacob, were * seventy souls d: for Joseph was in Egypt already.

d Including Jacob and Joseph, and his two Sons. See Gen. 46. 26, 27. and Deut. 10. 22. Or if they were but sixty nine, they are called seventy by a round number, of which we shall have many instances.

6 And Joseph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation e.

e (i. e.) All that were of the same age with Joseph and his Brethren.

7 ¶ * And the children of Israel were fruitful, and * Acts 7. 17. increased abundantly and multiplied f, and waxed exceeding mighty g, and the land was filled with them.

f Here are many words, and some very emphatical, to express their incredible Multiplication. g This may relate either to their Numbers, which greatly added to their Strength, or to their Constitution, to note, that their Offspring was Strong as well as Numerous. Atheistical Wits cavil at this Story, and pretend it impossible that out of seventy persons should come above six hundred thousand men within two hundred and fifteen years: Wherein they betray no less Ignorance than Impiety. For to say nothing of the extraordinary Fruitfulness of the Women in Egypt, who oft bring forth four or five Children at one birth, as Aristot. notes Hist. animal. 7. 4. nor of the long lives of the Men of that age, nor of the plurality of Wives then much in use, nor of the singular blessing of God upon the Hebrews in giving them Conceptions and Births without Abortion; all which are but very reasonable suppositions, the probability of it may plainly appear thus; Suppose there were only 200 years reckoned, and only fifty persons who did beget Children, and these begin not to beget before they be twenty years old, and then each of them beget only three Children. Divide this time now into ten times twenty years. In the first time of 50 come 150. In the second, of 150 come 450. Of them in the third, come 1350. Of them in the fourth 4050. Of these in the the fifth 12150. Of these in the sixth 36450. Of them in the seventh 109350. Of them in the eighth 328050. Of these in the ninth 984150. And of them in the tenth 2952450. If it be objected, That we read nothing of their great Multiplication, till after Joseph's death, which some say was not above 50 years before their going out of Egypt, it may be easily replied; 1. This is a great mistake, for there were above 140 years between Joseph's death and their going out of Egypt, as may appear thus: It is granted that the Israelites were in Egypt 210 or 215 years in all. They came not thither till Joseph was near 40 years old, as is evident by comparing Gen. 41. 46. with Gen. 45 6. So there rests only 70 years of Joseph's life, which are the first part of the time of Israel's dwelling in Egypt, and there remain 145 years, being the other part of the 215 years. 2. That the Israelites did multiply much before Joseph's death, though Scripture be silent in it, as it is of many other passages confessedly true, cannot be reasonably doubted. But if there was any defect in the Numbers proposed in the first 55 years, it might be abundantly compensated in the 145 years succeeding. And so the computation remains good.

8 Now there arose up a new king g over Egypt, which knew h not Joseph.

9 And he said unto his people, * Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we i. * Psal. 105. 24.

i This was not a true, but an invidious representation and aggravation of the matter, the better to justifie the severities which he designed.

10 Come on, * let us deal wisely with them lest they multiply, and it come to pass that when there falleth out any war k, they joyn also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land l. * Acts 7. 19.

k Which was not unusual in that Countrey. l Which they might easily learn from some of the Hebrews, that they were in due time to do. And they were very unwilling to part with them, because of the tribute and service which they did receive and expect from them.

11 Therefore they did set over them task-masters * to afflict n them with their burdens: and they built for Pharaoh treasure-cities o, Pithom and Raamses. * Gen. 15. 13.

m Heb. Masters of tribute, who were to exact from them the tribute required, which was both Money and Labour; that their Purses might be exhausted by the one, their Strength by the other, and their Spirits by both. n Or, oppress, or humble; to spend their Strength by excessive Labours, and so dismable them for the Procreation of Children. o Where they laid the Kings Money, or Corn, which is reckoned among Treasures, 2 Chron. 17. 12. and 32. 27. and wherein a great part of the Riches of Egypt consisted; for they had Corn enough not only for themselves, but to sell to other Countries; so that Egypt was accounted the Granary of the Roman Empire. Or, defenced Cities, in which Garisons were to be placed, which seems best to agree with the place and use of them. For they were in the borders of the Land, and among the Israelites, which appears concerning the one from Gen. 47. 11. (where the Land in which they were placed is called Ramses, which in Hebrew consists of the same Letters, with this Raamses, and seems to be so called then by anticipation from the City of that name now built in it) and may be reasonably presumed concerning the other; and therefore it is most probable that they were built to keep the Israelites in subjection, and to hinder them from going out of the Land.

12 † But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied p, and grew: and they were grieved because of the children of Israel. † Heb. and as they afflicted 'em, so they multiplied, &c.

p Through God's over-ruling Providence, and singular Blessing, which God gave them purposely to hasten first their forer affliction, and next, and by that means their glorious Deliverance. * Through envy and fear.

13 And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour q.

q Or, Cruelly, or tyranny; with hard words and cruel usage, without mercy, or mitigation. This God permitted for wise and just reasons; 1. As a punishment of their Idolatry, into which divers of them fell there, Jos. 24. 14. Ezek. 20. 5, 7, 8. and 23. 8. 2. To wean them from the Land of Egypt, which otherwise was a plentiful and desirable Land, and to quicken their desires after Canaan. 3. To prepare the way for God's glorious works, and Israel's deliverance.

14 And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, * in morter, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field r: all their service wherein they made them serve, was with rigour. * Psal. 81. 6.

r Which was the basest and most laborious of all their services,

15 ¶ And the king of Egypt spake to the Hebrew midwives s, (of which the name of one was Shiphrah, and the name of the other t Puah.)

s Such as not only were employed about the Hebrew Women, but were Hebrews themselves, not Egyptians, as some suppose, as may appear, 1. Because they are expressly called not the midwives of the Hebrews, but the Hebrew midwives. 2. The Egyptian midwives would not willingly employ their time and pains among the meanest and poorest of Servants, as these were. And if they were sent in design by the King, he had lost his end, which was to cover his cruelty with cunning, and to perswade the People that their death was not from his Intention, but from the chances and dangers of Child-bearing. 3. The Hebrew Women as they had doubtless midwives of their own, so they would never have admitted others. 4. They are said to fear God, verse 17. 21. t You are not to think that these were the only midwives to so many thousands of Hebrew Women, but they were the most eminent among them; and it may be for their excellency in that profession called to the service of some Egyptian Ladies, and by them known to Pharaoh, who might therefore think by their own interest, and by the promise of great rewards, or by severe threatnings, to oblige them to comply with his desires; and if he met with the desired success by them, he meant to proceed further, and to engage the rest in like manner.

16 And he said, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and see them upon the stools u, if it be a son, then ye shall kill him x: but if it be a daughter, then she shall live y.

u A seat used by Women when ready to be delivered, conveniently framed for the midwives better discharge of her Office. x Which it was not difficult for them to do, without much observation. y Either 1. Because he feared not them, but the males only; and some add, that he was advised by one of their Magicians, that a male-child should be born of the Israelites, who should be a dreadful scourge to the Egyptians. Or, 2. They reserved them for their lust, or for service, or for the increase of their People, and the raising of a fairer Breed by them.

17 But the midwives feared God z, and did not as the king of Egypt commanded them, but saved the men-children alive.

z More than the King, and therefore chose to obey God rather than the King, their Commands being contrary each to other.

18 And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and said unto them, Why have ye done this thing, and have saved the men-children alive?

19 And the midwives said unto Pharaoh, Because the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women, for they are lively a, and are delivered ere the midwives come in unto them b.

a Or, Vigorous and active in promoting the Birth of their own Children: Or, like the beasts; which without any help of others bring forth their young. So the Hebrew word signifies, and so there is only a defect of the Particle of similitude, which is frequent, as I have noted before. b This might be no lye, as many suppose, but a truth concerning many of them, and they do not affirm it to be so with all. And so it might be, either because their daily and excessive labours joyned with the fears of the Execution of the King's Command, whereof they seem to have gotten notice, did hasten their Birth, as the same causes do commonly in other Women; or because they understanding their danger, would not send for the midwives, but committed themselves to God's Providence, and the care of some of their Neighbours present with them. So here was nothing but Truth, though they did not speak the whole Truth, which they were not obliged to do.

20 Therefore c God dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty.

c Because they feared God, and spared the Children, verse 17. whereby they exposed themselves to the King's displeasure; because they would not offend God by murdering the Children, which they might have done many times secretly, and therefore it was only the fear of God which restrained them from it.

21 And it came to pass, because the midwives feared God, that he made them houses d.

d (i.e.) God greatly increased their Families both in Children and Posterity, and in Wealth, and other outward Blessings. So this phrase is used Gen. 30. 30. Deut. 25. 9. 1 Sam. 2. 35. 1 Kings 2. 24. and 11. 38. Psal. 127. 1. As houses are commonly put for Families, so building is put for procreating of Children, Gen. 16. 2. and 30. 3.

22 And Pharaoh charged all his people, saying, Every son that is born, ye shall cast into the river, and every daughter ye shall save alive.

CHAP. II.

Moses's parentage and birth, 1, 2. His mother makes an ark, puts him therein, 3. Pharaoh's daughter going to wash her self, seeth him, takes him for her own child, and gives him to his mother to nurse, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. Moses seeing an Israelite wronged by an Egyptian, kills him, 11, 12. Pharaoh hearing this, seeks to slay Moses; he flies to Midian, 15. There he rescues Reuel's daughters from the violence of the shepherds, 17. Serves Reuel, and marries his daughter Zipporah, 21. She bears him a son, his name, and the reason of it, 22. God heareth the cry of the Israelites, 25.

AND there went a * a man of the house of Levi, b, and took to wife a daughter of Levi c. * Chron. 23. 13.

a From the place of his abode to another place for the following purpose. b viz. Amram, Exod. 6. 20. Numb. 26. 58, 59. c Namely Jochebed, Numb. 26. 59. called a daughter, not strictly, but more largely, to wit, a Grandchild, as the words father and son are often used for a Grandfather and a Grandson, as hath been shewed before. And so the word sister, Exod. 6. 20. is to be taken largely, as brother is often used for a Cousin. This seems more probable than that an Israelite should marry his own Sister, which even Heathens by the light of Nature have condemned, especially now when he had such abundant choice elsewhere.

2 And the woman conceived and bare a son: and when she saw him that he was a goodly child, she * hid him three months. * Acts 7. 20. Heb. 11. 23.

3 And when she could not longer hide him d, she took for him an ark of bulrushes e, and daubed it with slime and with pitch, * and put the child therein, and she laid it in the flags f by the rivers brink.

d To wit, with safety to her self, because they now grew more violent in executing that bloody Decree, and the Child growing up was more likely to be discovered, especially seeing the Egyptians dwelt among them, Exod. 3. 22. e That Boats were made of such materials in those parts, is evident from Isa. 18. 2. and from the Testimonies of Herod. Plin., and others. * Slime within, and pitch without. f Which grew near the Rivers side; partly that the Vessel might not be carried away, and overturned by the violence of the Winds and Water, and partly that the Child might be sooner discerned, and more easily taken out thence by any kind hand, which she hoped for.

4 And his sister stood afar off g, to wit what would be done unto him.

g That she might not be thought to have laid the Child there, or to be related to it.

5 ¶ And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash her self at the river, and her maidens walked along by the river side: and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

6 And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and behold the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews children h.

h This she might very probably guess both from the circumstances in which she found him, and from the singular fairness and beauty of the Child, far differing from the Egyptian brew; and she might certainly know it by its circumcision.

7 Then said his sister to Pharaohs daughter, Shall I go, and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?

8 And Pharaohs daughter said unto her, Go: and the maid went and called the childs mother.

9 And Pharaohs daughter said unto her, Take this child away and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it.

10 And the child grew, and she brought him unto Pharaohs daughter, and he became her son i. And she called his name † Moses k: and she said, Because I drew him out of the water. † That is, She called him out.

i By adoption, Heb. 11. 24. For as Stella reports, tho' she long married, had no Child of her own; and therefore treated him as her own, and gave him Royal Education and Instruction. See Acts 7. 21. k It matters not whether this be an Egyptian name, or an Hebrew name answering to it in signification, seeing the meaning of it is here explained.

11 ¶ And it came to pass in those days l, when Moses was grown m, that he went out unto his brethren n, and looked on their burdens: and he spied an Egyptian smiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren.

l Whilst Moses lived at Court, and was owned as the Son of Pharaoh's Daughter, and, as some write, designed to succeed Thermuthis in the Throne. m To maturity, being 40 years old, Acts 7. 23. n Partly by natural Affection and Inclination, that he might teach the state of his Brethren, and help them, as occasion should offer it self; and partly by divine instigation, and in design, that he might give some manifestation to them that he was called, and sent of God to deliver them; as may be gathered from Acts 7. 25.

12 And he looked this way and that way, and when he saw that there was no man, he slew the Egyptian, and hid him in the sand.

o Not from Conscience of Guilt in what he intended, but from humane and warrantable Prudence. p This action of Moses was extraordinary, and is not to be justified by the common rules of the binding the oppressed, which belongs not to private persons, Rom. 12, 19. but only by his divine and special Commission to be the Ruler and Deliverer of Israel. Which call of his, howsoever manifested, whether by his Father, as Jephthah saith, or immediately to himself, was evident to his own Conscience, and he gave this as a signal to make it evident to the people.

13 And when he went out the second day, behold, two men of the Hebrews strove together: and he said to him that did the wrong, Wherefore smitest thou thy fellow?

q The next day after that Atchievement, he returns to execute the Office in which God had set him as a Judge, whose work it is both to destroy Enemies, and to reconcile Brethren.

14 And he said, Who made thee † a prince and a judge over us? Intendest thou to kill me, as thou killedst the Egyptian? And Moses feared r, and said, Surely this thing is known. † Heb. a man, a Prince.

r Through the weakness of his Faith, which afterwards growing stronger, he feared not that which now he did fear, the wrath of the King, Heb. 11. 27. Distinguish the times, and Scriptures agree which seemed to clash together.

15 Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he sought to slay Moses s. But Moses fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian t: and he sate down by a well.

s Not out of zeal to punish a Murderer, but to secure himself from so dangerous a person, probably supposing that this was the man foretold to be the Scourge of Egypt, and the deliverer of Israel.

16 Now the † Priest u of Midian had seven daughters, and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock. † Or, Prince.

t Not of Idols, for then Moses would not have married into his Family, but of the true God; for some such were in those ancient times here and there, as appears by Melchisedeck, though the manner of worshipping God might be superstitious and corrupt. Or the Hebrew Cohen may here signify a Prince, or a Governour, as Gen. 41. 45. Nor doth the employment of his Daughters contradict that translation, both because Principalities were then many of them very small and mean, and, because this employment then was esteemed noble, and worthy of great mens Daughters, as appears from Gen. 24. 15. and 29. 6, &c.

17 And the shepherds came and drove them away x: but Moses stood up and helped them y, and watered their flock.

u That they might enjoy the fruit of their Labours, and make use of the Water which they had drawn for their own Cattle. x Either by perswading them with fair words, or by force; for Moses was strong, and full of courage, and resolution, where with the Shepherds were easily daunted.

18 And when they came to Reuel their father z, he said, How is it that you are come so soon to day?

s Either 1. Strictly, and then he is the same who elsewhere is called Jethro, Exod. 3. 1. and 18. 1. &c. times, and; as some think, Hobab, Judg. 4. 11. Or 2. Largely, i. e. their Grandfather, for such are often called fathers, as Gen. 31. 43. 2 Kings 14. 3. and 16. 2. and 18. 3. so he was the Father of Jethro, or Reuel. Numbers 10. 29.

19 And they said, An Egyptian y delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and also drew water enough for us, and watered the flock.

y So they guessed him to be by his Habit and Speech, or he told them that he came from thence. z Heb. in hastening to day, which notes that he drew it very diligently and readily, which caused their quick return.

20 And he said unto his daughters, And where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? Call him, that he may eat bread.

a Heb. Have left them, or now, at this time of the day, when it is so late, and he a Stranger and Traveller.

21 And Moses was content to dwell with the man, and he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter a.

a Or, espoused to his Service or Office. And to his prudent and temperate Reproof, whereby he reduced him a skilful Husband, to whom Moses married not instantly, but after some years, as will appear with the Family, as may probably be gathered from the ungrateful and unchristian dispute of one of his Sons 40 years hence, this, Exod. 4. 24. In which time, as Moses would not fail to inform them in the knowledge of the true God, which he was able abundantly to do, so it is likely he had good success therein, in some measure, and therefore married into that Family.

22 And she bare him a son, and he called his name Gershom: for he said, I have been a stranger in a strange land. Chap. 18. 3.

23 And it came to pass in process of time, that the king of Egypt died, and the children of Israel † sighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried, and their cry came up unto God by reason of the bondage. † Heb. sighed from the bondage.

b Heb. In those many days, viz. in which he lived or stood there, i. e. after them. In is put for after, thus In is in Numbers 10. 28. 1 Sam. 20. 1. Mark 13. 24. compared with Matth. 24. 29. Luke 21. 26. After 40 years, as appears by comparing Acts 7. 30. with Exod. 7. 7. And after him, one, or two more of his Sons or Successors, and the last who sought for Moses, Num. 25. 11. Because though their great oppressor was dead, yet they found no relief, as they hoped to do.

24 And God heard their groaning, and God remembred his Covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob. * Gen. 9. 15. and 15. 14. and 46. 4.

25 And God looked upon the children of Israel, and God had respect unto them. † Heb. knew them, for as to pity and help them, it is words of know. knowledge, or acknowledging, as Gen. 4. 1. and elsewhere often. Or, knew, i. e. approved them, and owned them, for his People, and gave them the Land of Canaan, which he had formerly † rejected them, now owned them, for his People, and gave them the Land of Canaan, which he had promised. Chap. 3. 7. 10. 11. 12. 17.

Moses keeping Jethro's flock, cometh to mount Horeb, 1. There God appeareth to him in a burning bush, 2. Moses beholdeth it, 3. God calleth to him out of the burning bush, 4. Cautions him what to do, 5, 6. God setteth their afflictions, 7. Promiseth them a happy deliverance, 8. Sendeth Moses to Pharaoh, 10. He desireth to be excused because unworthy, 11. God encourageth him, 12. And directs him what to say to the children of Israel, 13, 14. Makes his name known to Moses, 15. Commands him to gather the elders of Israel, 16. And what he was to say to them, 17. Likewise to Pharaoh, 18. Pharaoh's obstinacy, 19. God threatens the Egyptians, 20. And tells Moses with what plenty the Israelites should depart, 21, 22.

NOW Moses kept the flock of Jethro a his father-in-law, the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the back-side of the desert b, and came to the mountain of God c, even to Horeb d.

a Either the same with Reuel, or his Son, who upon his Father's death, succeeded into his Office. See Exod 2. 18. b To its innermost parts, which were behind Jethro's Habitation, and the former Pastures, whither he went for fresh Pastures. c So called, either as an high or eminent Mountain; or, from the Vision of God here following. See Acts 7. 30. or by anticipation, from God's glorious appearance there, and giving the Law from thence, Exod. 18. 5. and 19. 3. See also 1 Kings 19. 8. d Called also Sinai, Exod. 19. 1. Acts 7. 30. Or Horeb was the name of the whole tract or row of Mountains, and Sinai the name of that particular Mountain where this Vision hapned, and the Law was delivered. Or Horeb and Sinai were two several tops of the same Mountain.

2 And the Angel of the LORD e appeared unto him in a * flame of fire f out of the midst of a bush, and he looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed g.

*Deut. 33. 16.

e Not a created Angel, but the Angel of the Covenant, Christ Jesus, who then and ever was God, and was to be Man, and to be sent into the World in our Flesh as a Messenger from God. And these temporary Apparitions of his were Presages or Fore-runners of his more solemn Mission and coming, and therefore he is ftly called an Angel. That this Angel was no Creature, plainly appears by the whole Context, and specially by his saying, I am the Lord, &c. The Angels never speak that Language in Scripture, but I am sent from God, and I am thy fellow-servant, &c. And it is a vain pretence to say, That the Angel is God's Ambassadour speaks in God's name and person; For what Ambassadour of any King in the World did ever speak thus, I am the King, &c? Ministers are God's Ambassadours; but if any of them should say, I am the Lord, they would be guilty of Blasphemy, and so would any created Angel be too, for the same reason. f Whereby was fitly represented God's Majesty, and Purity, and Power. g Which doubtless represented the condition of the Church and People of Israel, who were now in the fire of affliction, yet so as that God was present with them, and that they should not be consumed in it, whereof this Vision was a Pledge.

3 And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

4 And when the LORD saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him * out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses h; and he said, Here am I.

*Deut. 33. 16.

h He doubles the Name, partly to shew kindness and familiarity, and principally to make Moses more attentive to the business before him.

5 And he said, Draw not nigh hither: put off thy shoes from off thy feet i, for the place whereon thou standest, is holy ground k.

* Acts 7. 33.

i Keep thy distance; whereby he checks his curiosity and forwardness, and works him to the greater reverence and humility. Compare Exod. 19. 12, 21. Deut. 5. 15. k This he requires as an act and a sign, 1. Of his reverence to the divine Majesty, then and there and ever. 2. Of his humiliation for his sins, whereby he was unfit and unworthy to appear before God, for this was a posture of humiliation, 2 Sam. 15. 30. Isa. 20. 2, 4. Ezek. 24. 17, 23. 3. Of purification from the filth of his feet, or ways, or conversation, that he might be more fit to approach to God. See Job. 13. 19. Heb. 10. 22. 4. Of his subjection and readiness to obey God's will, for which reason slaves used to be barefooted. 6 With a relative holiness at this time, because of the special presence in it.

6 Moreover he said, I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob m. And Moses hid his face: for he was afraid to look upon God.

* Mat. 22. 32. Act. 7. 32.

m The God ingaged to them by Covenant or Promise, which I am now come to perform. 2 All other excellent Servants of God have been through the sins of their own Manhood, and Sinfulness, unfit of God's Majesty, and Holiness. See Gen. 18. 27. and 17. 1. 1 Kings 19. 13. Isa. 6. 2, 5, &c.

7 ¶ And the LORD said, I have surely seen o the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and * have heard their cry, by reason of their taskmasters: for I know their sorrows,

o Heb. In seeing I have seen, (i. e.) I have seen and observed it diligently, accurately, and certainly; for it denotes the certainty of the thing seen.

8 And I am come down p to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land, unto a good land and a large q, unto a land flowing with milk and honey r, unto the place of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites s.

p This word notes God's manifestation of himself and his favour, and giving help from Heaven. See Gen. 18. 21. q So it was not only comparatively to Goshen, where they now dwele, and to the number of the Israelites at that time; but absolutely, if you take the Land of Promise according to its true and first and ancient Bounds of it, as you have them described, Gen. 15. 18. Deut. 1. 7. and 11. 24. and not according to those narrow limits to which they were afterwards confined for their Unbelief, Sloth, Cowardice, and Impiety. r (i. e.) Abounding with the choicest Fruits, both for necessity and for delight. The excellency, and singular fruitfulness of this Land, howsoever denied or disputed by some ill-minded Persons, is sufficiently evident, 1. From express Testimony not only of Moses, Deut. 8. 7, 8, 9. but also of the Spies who were sent to view it, and, though prejudiced against it, yet acknowledged it, Numb. 13. 27. and of the Holy Prophets that lived long in it, as David, Psalm 106. 24. Joel, Chap. 2. 3. and Ezekiel, who calls it the glory of all lands, Ezek. 20. 15. Which if it had not been true, it is ridiculous to think that they durst have said and writ so, when the people with whom they contested, and thousands of other Persons there and then living, were able to confute them. After them Josephus, and St. Hierom, and others since, who lived long in that Land, have highly commended it. And whereas Strabo speaks of the barrenness of the Soil about Jerusalem, that is true, but by himself it is limited to the compass of 60 Furlongs from Jerusalem. And if at this day the Land be now grown barren in a great measure, it is not strange, considering both the great neglect and sloth of the People as to the improvement of it, and the great wickedness of its Inhabitants, for which God hath threatned to turn a fruitful land into barrenness, Psalm 107. 34. 2 These People are diversly numbred, there are ten sorts reckoned, Gen. 15. 19, 20, 21. and seven, Deut. 7. 1. and here but six, because some of them were either destroyed or driven out of their Land by others; or did by choice and design remove to some other place, as many in those times did, though it be not mentioned in Scripture; or by Cohabitation and Marriage with some of the other People, did make a Coalition, and were incorporated with them, and so their Name was swallowed up in the other; or because the Names of some of these People, as particularly the Canaanites, and the Amorites, were used sometimes more strictly, and sometimes more largely, so as to comprehend under them the other People, as the Girgashites, &c. whence it comes to pass, that all the rest go under the names of the Canaanites, Gen. 13. 7. and of the Amorites in some places of Scripture, as hath been shewed.

9 Now therefore behold the cry * of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

Either in Prayer; or rather forced by their Oppressions, as the next Clause explains it.

10 Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

11 ¶ And Moses said unto God, * Who am I t, that * See Isa. I should go unto Pharaoh; and that I should bring 6. Jer. forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

t What a mean inconsiderable Person am I? how unworthy and unfit for that employment? He was more forward in the work 40 years ago, by reason of the fervours of his Youth, his inexperience in Affairs, the advantage of his Power and Interest in the Court, by which he thought he could and should procure their Deliverance; but now Age had made him cool and considerate; the remembrance of his Brethrens Rejection of him, when he was a great Man at Court, took away all probability of prevailing with them to follow him, much more of prevailing with Pharaoh to let them go. Thus Moses falls into that Distemper to which most Men are prone, of measuring God by himself, and by the probabilities or improbabilities of second Causes.

12 And he said, Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee u, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

u Either 1. this Vision; or 2. the fulfilling of this Promise, that I will be with thee by Signs and Wonders, and a Strong Hand; or rather 3. this which here follows, that he and Israel should serve God there. Signs ⟨illegible⟩ are commonly given from things past or present, but sometimes from things to come, as here, and 1 Sam. 2. 34. Jerusalem 43, 14. and 9. 6, &c. Ezek. How could Moses be confirmed in his present Calling and Work by a thing yet to come? Ans. Such Signs if they were single, and the only evidences of a divine calling, might leave some ground for suspicion; but when they are accompanied with other Signs, as it is here and in the other places produced, they are of great use for the Corroboration of a Man's Faith. Moses was otherwise assured of the Presence, and Power, and Faithfulness of that God who spake to him, and was to expect more Assurances that God would be with him to help him to, and carry him through his Work. And as an evidence that this Work of bringing Israel out of Egypt should be compleated, he gives him a promise that he should serve God in that place; which promise coming from God, he knew to be as infallibly certain, as if it were already come to pass, and therefore this was an apt means to strengthen his Faith in his present undertaking.

13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you, and they shall say to me, What is his Name x? what shall I say unto them?

x Since I must go to them in thy name, and thou hast variety of Names and glorious Titles, and some of them are ascribed to Idols, not only by the Egyptians, but by too many of thy own People; what Name shall I use, whereby both thou mayst be distinguished from false gods, and thy People may be encouraged to expect Deliverance from thee?

14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM y: And he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM * hath sent me unto you.

Chap. 6. 2 Cor. 20. Heb. 13. Rev. 1.

y A most comprehensive and significant Name, and most proper for the present Occasion. In it notes 1. The reality of his Being: whereas Idols are nothing, 1 Cor. 8. 4. all their Divinity is only in the fancies and opinions of Men. 2. The Necessariness, Eternity, and Unchangeableness of his Being; whereas all other beings once were not, and if he please, they shall be no more; and all their being was derived from him, and wholly depends upon him, and he only is by and from himself. 3. The Constancy and Certainty of his Nature, and Will, and Work: The same as I am the same that ever I was; the same who made the promises to Abraham, &c. and am now come to perform them, who as I can do what I please, so I will do what I have said. Heb. I shall be what I shall be. He uses the Future Tense, either, 1. because that Tense is the life of the Hebrew Tongue comprehends all times, past, present, and to come, to signify that all times are alike to God, and all are present to him, and therefore what is here, I shall be, is rendred, I am, by Christ, John 8. 58. See Psalm 90. 4. 2 Pet. 3. 8. Or 2. To intimate, though darkly, according to that State and Age of the Church, the Mystery of Christ's Incarnation, I shall be what I shall be, i. e. God-man: and I who now come in an invisible, the glorious, man-God; I will deliver you from this temporal Bondage, shall in due time more effectually by my Incarnation, to save you and all my People, come visibly, and in the Form of a Servant, even from your Sins, and from a far worse Slavery and Misery, even from your Wrath to come. Of this Name of God, see Rev. 1. 4. and 16. 5.

15 And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The LORD † God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: this is my Name for ever, and this is my memorial z unto all generations.

† Heb. Jehovah, a word of the same root and signification with I am. See Exod 6. 3. This he adds, because God was best known to the Israelites by that Name; and to shew, that though he had given himself a new Name, yet he was the same God. z By which I will be remembred, owned, and served by my People, and distinguished from all others. See Psalm 102. 12. and 105. 13.

16 Go and * gather the Elders of Israel together, and say unto them, The LORD God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, I have surely visited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt;

a Either by Age, or rather by Office and Authority. For though they were all Slaves to the Egyptians, yet among themselves they retained some Order and Government, and had doubtless some whom they owned as their Teachers and Rulers, as Heads of Tribes and Families, &c.

17 And I have said, I will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt, unto the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, unto a land flowing with milk and honey.

18 And * they shall hearken to thy voice, and thou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel unto the King of Egypt, and you shall say unto him, The LORD * God of the Hebrews hath met with us b; and now let us go, (we beseech thee) three days journey c into the wilderness that we may sacrifice to the LORD our God d.

* Chap. 4. 31. * Chap. 5. 3.

b Hath appeared to us, expressing his displeasure for our neglect of him, and declaring his Will that we should do what follows. c To Sinai, which, going the nearest way, was no further from Egypt; for here God had declared he would be served, verse 12. Quest. Was not this deceitfully and unjustly spoken, when they intended to go quite away from him? Ans. No; for 1. Pharaoh had no just Right and Title to them, to keep them in Bondage, seeing they came thither only to sojourn for a time, and by Joseph had abundantly paid for their Habitation there, and therefore they might have demanded a total Dismission. 2. Moses doth not say any thing which is false, but only conceals a part of the truth; and he was not obliged to discover the whole truth to so cruel a Tyrant, and so implacable an Enemy. 3 Moses cannot be blamed, both because he was none of Pharaoh's Subject, and because herein he follows the Direction and Command of his Master that sent him. And God surely was not obliged to acquaint Pharaoh with all his mind, but only so far as he pleased. And it pleased him for wise and just reasons to propose only this to Pharaoh, that his denial of so modest a Request (which God foresaw) might make his Tyranny more manifest, and God's Vengeance upon him more just and remarkable. d Which they could not do freely and safely in Egypt. Exod 8. 26.

19 ¶ And I am sure e that the King of Egypt will not let you go, † no not by a mighty hand f.

e I know it infallibly before-hand. f Though he see and feel the miraculous and dreadful Works of a Strong, yea Almighty Hand, yet he will not consent to your going; which the History makes good. Nor did he let them go till he could hold them no longer, till the fear of his own Life, and the clamours of his People forced him to give way to it. And yet, after that he repents of his Permission, and indeed had endeavoured to bring them back again. Others, but, or except by a strong hand, i. e. except by my Almighty Power he be forced to it. Both Translations come to the same sense.

20 And I will stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with all my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof; and after that he will let you go.

21 And I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians g: and it shall come to pass, that when ye go, ye shall not go empty:

g So that they shall readily grant what the Israelites desire. See Exod. 12. 36.

22 But every woman shall borrow of her neighbour, * and of her that sojourneth in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment: and ye shall put them upon your sons, and upon your daughters, and ye shall spoil * the Egyptians h.

* Chap. 11. 2. Gen. 15. 14. † Or, Egypt.

CHAP. IV.

Moses's objection, 1. The answer, 2. God turns his rod into a serpent, 3—5. He adds another sign, 6. And left they would not believe, 8. Water is turn'd into blood, 9. Moses's objection, 10. God argues with him, 11. God's commission and promise, 12. Moses's unbour, 13. God is angry, and enjoyns Aaron to the same employment, 14. Tells what Aaron should do, and what Moses should do, 15—17. Moses returning to Jethro, obtains leave to go to Egypt to see his brethren. Jethro's grace, 18, 19. Moses having taken the rod of God, departs with his wife and children into Egypt, 20, 21. God tells him what he should say to Pharaoh, 22, 23. God sokeths to kill Moses, 24. Zipporah with a sharp knife cuts off her son's foreskin, and what she said, 25, 26. God commands Aaron to meet Moses, 27. Moses declares to Aaron both what he had heard and seen, 28. They gather together the Elders of Israel, 29. Aaron speaks all the words, and does all the signs which God commanded, 30. The people believe, 31.

AND Moses answered and said, But behold, they will not believe me a, nor hearken unto my voice; for they will say, The LORD hath not appeared unto thee.

a Which he conjectured both from reason, because the greatness and strangeness of the Deliverance made it seem incredible; and their minds were so oppressed with Cares and Labours, that it was not likely they could raise them up to any such expectation; and from the experience which he had of them forty years before, when their Deliverance by his means and interest at Court seemed much more credible, then now it did.

2 And the LORD said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, A rod.

3 And he said, Cast it on the ground. And he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent b: And Moses fled from before it.

b (i. e.) Was really changed into a Serpent; whereby it was intimated what and how pernicious his Rod should be to the Egyptians.

4 And the LORD said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail: And he put forth his hand and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand:

c The dangerous part; whereby God would try Moses his Faith, and prepare him for the approaching difficulties.

5 That they may believe d that the LORD God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath appeared unto thee.

d An imperfect Sentence, to be thus completed, This thou shalt do before them, that they may believe. See the like in 2 Sam. 5. 8. compared with 1 Chron. 11. 6. and Mark 14. 49. compared with Matth. 26. 56.

6 ¶ And the LORD said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom. And he put his hand into his bosom: and when he took it out, behold his hand was leprous * as snow e.

* 2 Kings 5. 27.

e For whiteness. See Numb. 12. 10. Hereby God would suggest to them, how soon he could weaken and destroy the hand and strong hand by which the Egyptians tyrannized over them. It might also be done to keep Moses humble and depending upon God, and to teach him and Israel to ascribe all the future Miracles not to the hand of Moses, which was weak and liable to many Distempers, but wholly to the Divine Power and Goodness.

7 And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again. And he put his hand into his bosom again, and pucked it out of his bosom, and behold, it was turned again as his other flesh.

8 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign.

f To the Voice or Word of God delivered and confirmed by the first Sign. For Moses did not make doubt those before-men-but acquainted them with the mind of God therein. Or in such the Visit, to note that God's works have a voice to speak to us, which we must diligently observe. See Matt. 6. 9.

9 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice, that thou shalt take of the water of the river, g, and pour it upon the dry land: and the water which thou takest out of the river, † shall become b blood upon the dry land.

† Heb. shall be, and shall be.

g Nilus, well known to Moses, and called so by way of Eminency, as Emperours also is. b Heb. shall be, were shall be, i. e. it shall assuredly be so.

10 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, O my Lord, I am not eloquent i, neither † heretofore, nor since thou hast spoken unto thy servant k: but * I am slow of speech, and of a slow tongue.

† Heb. a man of words.

i Not able to deliver thy Message acceptably and decently; either to Pharaoh or to the Israelites. In Stature by appearance to some, thou hast made me a dwarf in my Head, by sense in my Tongue, but still I am, as I was, most unfit for so high an Employment, for indued he was therefore fit for it, as the unlearned Apostles were for the Preaching of the Gospel, that the Honour of their Miracles might be wholly given to God, and not to the Instruments which he used.

* Chap. 6. 12.

* Psalm 94. 9.

11 And the LORD said unto him, * Who hath made mans mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the seeing, or the blind? have not I the LORD?

12 Now therefore go, and I will be with thy mouth l, and teach thee what thou shalt say.

l By my Power to direct and assist thee what and how to speak. Whence Note, though it be fit Gifts to have remained rare in Speech, yet was in truth ready to serve up well to David, 2 Sam. 23. 2. Compare Matth. 10. 19, 20.

13 And he said, O my Lord, send, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou † will send.

m By one whom thou seest fit for the work and calling. And so the Future Tense oft signifies what one should do. See Gen. 20. 7. and 47. 6. Mal. 1. 6. and 2. 7. Thou usest according to thy Wisdom to choose fit Instruments, and to do all things in their season. Now make me such a fit Instrument, which thou knowest I am not. Quasi dicat, Mitte me per manum quam voles, modo non per meam. Or, send it by the Hand of Moses, i. e. by the particular time of his coming. Or, send it a fitter time, not by the Hand of Moses but of Pharaoh. Or, send it by whom thou knowest the Christ would come, but the particular time of his coming was unknown to him. Or, send it by whom thou wilt, for I will not undertake it.

14 And the anger of the LORD was kindled against Moses, and he said, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, behold, he cometh forth to meet thee: and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart.

15 And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words in his mouth n, and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and I will teach you what ye shall do.

n (i. e.) Instruct him what to speak, and command him freely and faithfully to express it. See Jer. 1. 16. and 23. 21. Ezek. 3. 17.

16 And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people: and he shall be, even he shall be to thee in stead of a mouth, and thou shalt be to him in stead of God o.

o To teach and to command him. See Exod. 7. 1.

17 And thou shalt take this rod in thy hand, wherewith thou shalt do signs p.

p Both those which I have already made thee to do, and others as I shall direct and enable thee.

18 And Moses went and returned to Jethro his father-in-law, and said unto him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren which are in Egypt, and see whether they be yet alive q. And Jethro said to Moses, Go in peace.

q He proceeds only to Visit, and so indeed it was, and that no very long one neither. He knew that he should certainly return to this place, and there meet with his Father-in-law. So that he did not deceive him, nor intended to do so, though he thought fit to conceal from him the Errand upon which God sent him, lest his Father or Wife should resume or hinder or discourage him from so difficult and dangerous an Expedition. Moses shews here a rare Example, as well of Modesty and Humility, that such glorious and familiar Discourse with God, and the high Calling to which God had advanced him, did neither make him forget the Civility and Duty which he owed to his Father, nor make him break forth into publick and vain-glorious boasting of such a Privilege, as also of his Piety and Prudence, that he evaded all Occasions and Temptations to Disobedience to God's Command.

19 And the LORD said unto Moses in Midian r, Go, return into Egypt: for * all the men are dead which sought thy life.

* Chap. 2. 15, 23.

r This seems to have been a second Vision, wherein God calls him to the present and speedy Execution of that Command which before was most solemnly delivered. s. To me, to take it away. See the like expression, 1 Sam. 22. 23. 1 Kings 19. 14. Matth. 2. 20. God knew very well that one great cause of Moses his unwillingness to this undertaking, was his carnal Fear, though he was ashamed to profess it, and therefore gives him this Cordial.

20 And Moses took his wife, and his sons s, and set them upon an ass t, and he returned to the land of Egypt. And Moses took the rod of God u in his hand.

s Gershom, Exod. 2. 22. and Eliezer, Exod. 18. 4. Whom he intended to carry with him, but afterwards observing that they were like to be Impediments to him in his great business, and being well assured that it would not be long ere he returned to them, he sent them back to Jethro, as may seem from Exod. 18. 5. t One Ass might be sufficient for her and her two Children, because one of them was but little, verse 25. Or, He may be put for Asses, which changes of the numbers is very frequent in Scripture. u His Shepherds rod so called, partly because he was appropriated to God's special Service, to be the Instrument in all his glorious Works; and partly to shew that whatsoever wonders by that Rod, was not done by any virtue in the Rod, or by Moses his hand, but meerly by the Power of God, who was pleased to use that Instrument for to work his wonders.

21 And the LORD said unto Moses, When thou goest to return into Egypt, see that thou do all those wonders before Pharaoh x, which I have put in thine hand: but I will harden his heart, that he shall not let the people go.

x Or, by the Power & Commission which I have given thee. 23 And I say unto thee, Let my son go, that he may serve me: and if thou refuse to let him go, behold, I will slay thy son, even thy first-born c. * Chap. 11. 5.

c I command thee: For saying is often for commanding; Luke 4. 32. 11. 53. and 20. 20. and in 2 Chron. 18. 30. compared with 2. Sam. 24. 19. 12. 29. d By which Plague coming after the rest, thou shalt be enforced to do what I require now to do upon cheaper terms.

24 ¶ And it came to pass by the way in the inn, that the LORD * met him, e: and sought to kill * Numb. 22. 22. him.

e (i. e.) Appeared to him in some visible shape. f. Whom? Moses spoken of and to before. His offered and endeavoured to kill him, either by inflicting some sudden and dangerous Disease or stroke upon him, or by shewing himself in some threatning posture, possibly as the Angel did to Balaam, and afterwards to David, with a drawn Sword in his hand, ready to give him a deadly blow. The reason of this Severity was not Moses his distrust of God, or delay in his journey, nor the bringing of his Wife and Children along with him, (which it was convenient for him to carry with him, both that his Father might not think he intended to desert them, and for the greater assurance and encouragement of the Israelites, when they saw that he exposed his dearest Relations to the same hazards with them all) but the neglect of circumcising his Child, which also the Lord some way or other signified to Moses and Zipporah, as plainly appears, 1. From Zipporah's following fact upon that occasion. 2. From the Lord's Dismission of Moses upon the Circumcision of the Child. 3. From the threatning of Death, or cutting off for this Sin, Gen. 17. 14. which, because there was now no Magistrate to do it, God himself offers to execute it, as he sometimes saith he would do in that case. And this was a greater Sin in Moses than in another Man, and at this time than it had been before, because he understood the Will and Law of God about it better than any man, and God had lately minded him of that Covenant of his with Abraham, &c. whereof Circumcision was a Seal; the Blessings and Benefits of which Covenant Moses was now going to procure for himself and for his People, whilest he remained under the guilt of grossly neglecting the Condition of it. Besides, what could be more abhorred than that he should come to be a Lawgiver, who lived in a manifest violation of God's Law? or that he should be the chief Ruler and Instructer of the Israelites, whose duty it was to acquaint them with their Duty of circumcising their Children, and as far as he could, to punish the wilful neglect of it, and yet at the same time be guilty of the same Sin? or that he should undertake to govern the Church of God, that could not well rule his own House, 1 Tim. 3. 5.? And this was not only a great Sin in it self, but a great Scandal to the Israelites, who might by this great Example easily be led into the same miscarriage; and moreover might not without colour of probability suspect the Call of such a Person, and conclude that God would not honour that Man who should continue in such a visible contempt of his Law. And therefore it is no wonder that God was so angry at Moses for this Sin. Quest. How came Moses to neglect this evident Duty? Ans. From Zipporah's averseness to, and dread of that painful, and as she thought, dangerous Ordinance of God, which she her self evidently discovers in this place; and

and the rather because of the experience which she had of it in her eldest Son. And as she seems to have been a Woman of an eager and passionate temper, so Moses was eminently meek and pliable, and in this matter too indulgent to his Wife, especially in her Father's House, and therefore he put it off till a more convenient season, when he might either persuade or over-rule her therein. Which was a great fault, for God had obliged all the Children of Abraham not only to the thing, but to the time also, to do it upon the eighth day, which Section Moses had grossly, and for some considerable time slipped, and had too much preferred the pleasing of his Wife before his Obedience to God.

25 Then Zipporah g took a sharp † stone h, and cut off the foreskin of her son, and * cast it at his feet i, and said, Surely a bloody husband art thou to me k.

g Perceiving the danger of her Husband, and the cause of it, and her Husband being disenabled from performing that work, whether by some stroke or sickness, or by the terrour of so dismal and unexpected an Apparition to him, and delays being highly dangerous, she thought it better to do it her self as well as she could, rather than put it off a moment longer; whether because the administration of that Sacrament was not confined to any kind or order of persons, or because, if it was so, she did not apprehend it to be so, or because she thought this was the least of two evils; and that it was safer to commit a circumstantial Error, than to continue in a substantial Fault. h Which she took as next at hand in that stony Country. Let none think this strange, for not only this work, but the cutting off of that part, which some used to do, was commonly performed with a Flint, or a sharp-Stone, as is expressly affirmed by Herodotus, l. 2. Plin. 35. 12. See also Juvenal, Sat. 6. and Martial. Epigram. 3. 18. But the word may be rendred, a sharp Knife. See Jos. 5. 2, 3. i The words are very short, and therefore ambiguous, and may be rendred, either thus, she cast her self at his feet, either at the feet of the Angel, as a Supplicant for her Husband's Life. But it is most probable that she directs this Action and her following Speech to the same person. Or 2. The feet of her Husband, to make request to him, that she and her Children might depart from him, and return to her Father, which also he granted. But neither was she of so humble a temper, nor at this time in so mild a frame, as to put her self into such a lowly posture to her Husband, nor was she likely to present her humble supplication to him, to whom at the same time she shewed such scorn and indignation. Or rather thus, she cast it at his, i. e. her Husband's feet: it, either the Child. But that being tender, and now in great pain, she would not use it so roughly: Or rather the foreskin cut off, or at least the blood which came from it; which she did in spight and anger against her Husband, as the cause of so much pain to the Child, and grief to herself. k This some think she spake to the Child, whom she calls her Spouse, as some late Rabbins affirm the Infant used to be called, when it was circumcised; though they bring no competent proof for this usage: or her Son, as the Hebrew word chathan signifies. But indeed that signifies only a Son in-law, as 1 Sam. 18. 18. which is not true nor proper here. Yet some make these to be the form or solemn words used in Circumcision, Thou art a Spouse, or a Son of bloods to me, i. e. made so to me by the blood of Circumcision. But it doth not appear that this was the usual form. Now was it likely, that she being a Midianitish, not an Hebrew Woman, and doing this suddenly, and in a rage, should be so expert to know, and so punctual to use the right form of words, when she did not use a fit and decent carriage in the action, as appears by her casting it at his feet. It is therefore more probable she spoke thus to her Husband. And because the dust not accuse God, the Author of this work, she falls foul upon her Husband as the occasion of it, and as a costly and bloody Husband to her, whose endangered Life she was forced to redeem with blood, even the blood of her little Child, by which as he received a new Life after a fort, so she did anew, and the second time espouse him; whence she calls him chathan, which properly signifies a Spouse, not an Husband.

26 So he let him go l: then she said, A bloody husband thou art, because of the circumcision m.

l Or, He, i. e. God, or the destroying Angel sent from God, departed from him, i. e. from Moses, and removed the tokens of God's indignation, the sickness or stroke laid upon him. m She both repeats and amplifies her former Censure, and reproacheth not only her Husband, but also God's Ordinance. Which perverse and obstinate Spirit her Husband observing in her, and wisely forecasting how much disturbance she might give him in his great and difficult work in Egypt, he thought fit to send her and her Children back to her Father, as appears from Exodus 18. 1, 2, 3. In the Hebrew it is because of the circumcisions. to wit, of her two Sons, who possibly were both circumcised at this time, tho it be not so expressed; but one being mentioned for an example, we are left to suppose the like concerning the other; Or, the circumcision of this Child brings the other to her remembrance, and so she upbraids him with both. Only this doth more provoke her than it seems the other did, because she was forced to do this speedily, and with her own hands, and that to a tender Infant; whereas the elder peradventure was circumcised when he was more grown and strong, and able to bear the pain. Let none think it strange that Zipporah should quarrel so much at Circumcision, because the Midianites were descended from Abraham, and therefore were circumcised. For if they were so, it was done when they were grown up, about the 13th year of their age, from the example of Ishmael, who was circumcised at that age. But indeed it is more likely, that those people, being cast out of God's Covenant, as to the benefit of it, would, and did in a little time, throw off the sign of it, as having much more of pain and danger in it, than of use and priviledge.

27 And the LORD said to Aaron, Go into the wilderness to meet Moses. And he went and met him in * the mount of God, and kissed him. * Chap. 3. 1.

28 And Moses told Aaron all the words of the LORD, who had sent him, and all the signs which he had commanded him.

29 And Moses and Aaron went, and gathered together all the elders of the children of Israel n.

n All of them whom they could easily and quickly bring together, or all that were in those parts. Of those Elders, see Exod. 3. 16. and 24. 1, 9. and Numb. 11. 16.

30 And Aaron spake o all the words which the LORD had spoken unto Moses, and did p the signs in the sight of the people.

o Thus beginning to execute the Office which God had put upon him, which was to be Moses his mouth, or Spokesman. p (i. e.) Aaron did them, as Moses's Minister, or by the command and direction of Moses.

31 And the people believed: and when they heard that the LORD had visited q the children of Israel, and that he had looked upon their affliction, then * they bowed their heads and worshipped r. * Chap. 12. 27.

q (i. e.) Taken cognizance of their Cause and Condition, and resolved to deliver them. r Acknowledging, and adoring the kindness and faithfulness of God therein.

CHAP. V.

Moses and Aaron entreateth Pharaoh to let the people go. 1. Pharaoh's blasphemous refusal, 2, 3. Chides Moses and Aaron for their request. 4. Pharaoh, seeing the Israelites to be many, 5. commands the task-masters and officers to encrease their bondage, 6—9. The task-masters go and do as Pharaoh commands, 10, 11. The scattering of the people throughout Egypt, 12. The task-masters cruelty to the officers of the Israelites, 14. The officers complaint to Pharaoh, 15. He upbraids 'em with idleness, 17. His hard answer, 18. The officers of the children of Israel meet Moses and Aaron, and blame 'em, 20, 21. Moses returns and complains to God, 22.

AND afterward Moses and Aaron a went in, and told Pharaoh b: Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Let my people go, that they may hold a feast c unto me in the wilderness.

a And with them some of the Elders of Israel, as may seem from Exod. 3. 18. though here only the two Chiefs be mentioned. Or, because Moses did not seem to be satisfied with the assistance of the Elders before offered him, Exod. 3. 18. God was pleased to give him a more acceptable Assistant in their stead, even Aaron his Brother, Exod 4. 14. b Either both successively told him; or Aaron did it immediately, and with his tongue, Moses by his Interpreter, and by his command. c Or, offer a Sacrifice, as they expresse it, v. 3. and chap. 10. 9. For both went together, and a good part of many Sacrifices was spent in feasting before the Lord, and unto the honour of the Lord. See Deut. 12. 6, 7, 11, 12.

2 And Pharaoh said, * Who is the LORD, that I * Job 21. 15. should obey his voice d to let Israel go? I know not the LORD, neither will I let Israel go.

d I am the Sovereign Lord of Egypt, and I own no superiour here.

3 And they said, The God of the Hebrews hath met with us e; Let us go, we pray thee, three days journey into the desart, and sacrifice unto the LORD our God, lest he fall upon us f with pestilence, or with the sword.

e (i. e.) Hath appeared to us lately, and laid this command upon us. Others, is called upon us, i. e. his name is called upon us, or we are called by his name. But why should Moses so solemnly tell that to Pharaoh which all the people knew, to wit, that the Hebrews did worship the God of the Hebrews? And our Translation is confirmed by comparing this with Exod 3. 18. where this very Message is prescribed. f Lest he punish, either us, if we disobey his command, or thee, if thou hinderest us from obeying it: But this latter they only imply, as being easily gathered from the former.

4 And the King of Egypt said unto them, Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? Get you unto your burdens g.

g Either 1. Ye, the Elders of Israel, who are here come with Moses and Aaron; see ver. 1. Or, 2. Ye. Moses and Aaron. So far am I from granting the Liberty which you desire for the people, that as a just punishment upon you for your seditious Attempt, I command you also to go with the rest, and to take your share in their burthens, and to perform the Task which shall be required of you. And that so cruel a Tyrant did not proceed further against them, must be ascribed to the mighty power of God, who governs the Spirits, and restrains the hands of the greatest Kings, when he pleaseth.

5 And Pharaoh said, Behold, the people of the land now are many h, and you make them rest from their burdens.

h The Israelites in this Land are very numerous, and therefore it were a madness in me to permit them all to meet and go together, as you desire, which may tend to the ruin of my whole Kingdom, and probably it is designed by you to that purpose. Or, Therefore your injury to me is the greater, in attempting to rob me of the benefit of their Labours. This I prefer, because it suits best with the following words.

6 And Pharaoh commanded the same day the task-masters of the people, and their officers *, saying,

* The Task-masters were Egyptians, and the Officers were Israelites, Under-officers to them, ver. 14, 15, 19.

7 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick i as heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves.

i The Straw was used either to mingle with the Clay, that it might not be too brittle, or to cover the Clay when it was finished into Bricks, that the heat of the Sun might not dry them too much, which might eafily be done in that hot Country; or for fewel, either wholly, or in part, to burn their Bricks with, Straw being abundant there, and much uſed for that purpoſe.

8 And the tale of the bricks which they did make heretofore ye ſhall lay upon them: you ſhall not diminiſh ought thereof: for they be idle, therefore they cry, ſaying, Let us go and ſacrifice to our God.

† Heb. let the work be heavy upon the men.

9 † Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein, and let them not regard vain words k.

k The words of Moſes and Aaron, which are vain, or falſe, i. e. which they falſly pretend to come from God, when it is only an ill deſign of their own to advance themſelves by raiſing ſedition.

10 And the taſk-maſters of the people went out, and their officers, and they ſpake to the people, ſaying, Thus ſaith Pharaoh, I will not give you ſtraw.

11 Go ye, get you ſtraw where you can find it: yet not ought of your work ſhall be diminiſhed.

12 So the people were ſcattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt *, to gather ſtubble inſtead of ſtraw.

* (i. e.) All that part of it; which is a very uſual Synecdoche.

13 And the taſk-maſters haſted them, ſaying, Fulfil your works, your † daily taſks, as when there was ſtraw.

14 And the officers of the children of Iſrael, which Pharaoh's taſk-maſters had ſet over them, were beaten, and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your taſk in making brick, both yeſterday, and to day, as heretofore?

15 Then the officers of the children of Iſrael came and cried unto Pharaoh, ſaying, Wherefore dealeſt thou thus with thy ſervants?

16 There is no ſtraw given unto thy ſervants, and they ſay to us, Make brick: and behold, thy ſervants are beaten; but the fault is in thine own people l.

l (i. e.) The Egyptian Taſk-maſters, who by ſending us abroad to gather Straw, hinder us from doing the work which they require: And ſo they are both unjuſt and unreaſonable. They charge the Taſk-maſters, not the King, either in civility and duty, caſting his fault upon the Inſtruments; or becauſe they did not know, or at beſt not believe that this was the King's Act. Others, Thy people, i. e. the Egyptians, make themſelves guilty, and will bring the vengeance of God upon them for their cruelty.

17 But he ſaid, Ye are idle, ye are idle: therefore ye ſay, Let us go and do ſacrifice to the LORD.

18 Go therefore now and work, for there ſhall no ſtraw be given you: yet ſhall ye deliver the tale of bricks.

19 And the officers of the children of Iſrael did ſee that they were in evil caſe m, after it was ſaid, Ye ſhall not miniſh ought from your bricks of your daily taſk.

m Or, looked upon them with ſadneſs, or with an evil eye, i. e. with a ſorrowful and angry countenance, as thoſe that could obtain no relaxation for themſelves, or for their Brethren.

20 And they met Moſes and Aaron, who ſtood in the way, as they † came forth from Pharaoh:

† The Officers who went to pour out their complaints to Pharaoh, ver. 15.

21 And they ſaid unto them, The LORD look upon you, and judge, becauſe you have made our ſavour to be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his ſervants, to put a ſword in their hand to ſlay us n.

† Heb. to ſtink. Gen. 34. 30.

n To give them, what they have long fought and thirſted after, to wit, an occaſion to deſtroy and root us out.

22 And Moſes returned unto the LORD o, and ſaid, LORD, wherefore haſt thou ſo evil intreated this people p? Why is it that thou haſt ſent me?

o To expoſtulate with him, and pray to him. To the people he ſaith nothing, but meekly paſſeth by their ſevere Cenſures, as forced from them by intolerable oppreſſion; and becauſe their minds being now imbitter'd and exaſperated, they were uncapable of admonition. p By giving occaſion to their greater bondage. He expoſtulates the matter with God, not from pride and arrogance, as one that would cenſure and condemn his Actions, but from zeal for God's glory, and his Peoples happineſs, as one that would prevail with God to relieve them. Though it muſt be confeſſed that Moſes exceeded his bounds, being tranſported with grief and paſſion, which the gracious God was pleaſed to paſs by.

23 For ſince I came to Pharaoh to ſpeak in thy Name q, he hath done evil to this people, neither haſt thou † delivered thy people at all r.

† Heb. delivering thou haſt not delivered.

q Not of my own head, but by thy command and commiſſion.

r According to thy promiſe and mine, and thy peoples juſt expectation.

He ſpeaks not of the Letters or Syllables, but of the thing ſignified by that name. For that denotes all his his Perfections, and, amongſt others, the eternity, conſtancy, and immutability of his Nature and Will, and the infallible certainty of his Word and Promiſes. And this, ſaith he, though it was believed by Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, yet it was not experimentally known to them; for they only ſaw the Promiſes afar off, Heb. 11. 13. Anſw. 2. This negative Expreſſion may be underſtood comparatively, as many others are, as Gen. 32. 29. Matth. 9. 13. 1 Cor. 1. 17. &c. They knew this but darkly and imperfectly, which will now be made known more clearly and fully. Chap. 7. 1.

4 And I have alſo eſtabliſhed my covenant with them, * to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were ſtrangers. Gen. 17. 8. and 28. 4.

5 And * I have alſo heard the groaning of the children of Iſrael, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage, and I have remembred my covenant. Chap. 2. 24.

6 Wherefore ſay unto the children of Iſrael, I am the LORD, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will redeem you with a ſtretched out arm b, and with great judgments c.

b (i. e.) My Almighty Power. A Metaphor from a man that ſtretcheth out his Arm, and puts forth all his ſtrength to give the greater blow. c (i. e.) Puniſhments juſtly inflicted upon them, as the word judging and judgments is oft uſed, as Gen. 15. 14. 2 Chron. 20. 12. Prov. 19. 29.

7 And I will take you to me for a people d, and I will be to you a God e: and ye ſhall know that I am the LORD your God, which bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

d (i. e.) For my People; ye ſhall no longer be the People and Slaves of the King of Egypt, but my People and Servants, whom I will bleſs and preſerve. e To judge and deliver you.

8 And I will bring you in unto the land concerning the which I did † ſwear * to give it to Abraham, to Iſaac, and to Jacob, and I will give it you for an heritage. I am the LORD f.

f And therefore have Authority and Power to diſpoſe of Lands and Kingdoms as I pleaſe; and faithful to give you what I have promiſed.

9 And Moſes ſpake ſo unto the children of Iſrael: but they hearkened not unto Moſes for † anguiſh of ſpirit g, and for cruel bondage.

g Their minds were ſo oppreſſed with their preſent burthens and future expections, that they could not believe nor hope for any deliverance, but deemed it impoſſible; and having been once deceived in their hopes, they now quite deſpaired, and thought their entertainment of new hopes, or uſe of further endeavours, would make their condition worſe, as it had done.

10 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

11 Go in, ſpeak unto Pharaoh King of Egypt, that he let the children of Iſrael go out of his land.

12 And Moſes ſpake before the LORD, ſaying, Behold the children of Iſrael have not hearkened unto me, how then ſhall Pharaoh hear me, * who am of uncircumciſed lips h? Chap. 4. 10.

h (i. e.) Of polluted lips. Uncircumciſion being a great defect and blemiſh, whereby men were rendred profane, contemptible, and unfit for many Services and Priviledges; may note any defect, whether moral, and of the Spirit; or natural, and of the Body. So here it notes Moſes his inability to cloath God's Commands in ſuch words as might prevail with Pharaoh. But this was a great weakneſs of faith, as if God could not effect his purpoſe, becauſe the Inſtrument was unfit.

13 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, and unto Aaron, and gave them a charge unto the children of Iſrael, and unto Pharaoh King of Egypt to bring the children of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt.

i This Genealogy he deſcribes here, to ſhew the Lineage of Moſes and Aaron, by whom this great work was to be effected. Only he premiſeth in brief the Genealogy of his two elder Brethren, Reuben and Simeon, to make way for the third, which he intended more largely to inſiſt upon. And he mentions them rather than any other, either to advance the favour of God in preſerring that Tribe before the Deſcendants of their elder Brethren; or to ſhew that, although the the Parents were ſharply cenſured, and rather curſed than bleſſed by Jacob, Gen. 49. yet their Poſterity was not rejected by God, but received to mercy, and admitted to the ſame priviledge with their Brethren.

It is obſervable, that Moſes is here ſilent in his own Progeny, but gives a particular account of his Brother's, not only from his great humility and modeſty, which ſhines forth in many other paſſages, but becauſe it was of more concernment, and the honour of Prieſthood given to Aaron was to be hereditary, and peculiar to his Seed, and therefore it was neceſſary they ſhould be exactly known; whereas Moſes his Honour and Government was only perſonal, and did not paſs to his Children.

25 And Eleazar Aaron's ſon took him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife, and * ſhe bare him Phinehas: theſe are the heads of the fathers of the Levites, according to their families. Num. 25. 7. 1.

26 Theſe are that Aaron and Moſes, to whom the LORD ſaid, Bring out the children of Iſrael from the land of Egypt, according to their armies n.

n (i. e.) According to their numerous Families, which were equal to great Armies, and which went out of Egypt, like ſeveral Armies in military order, and with great power. See Exod. 12. 41, 51. and 13. 18. and 14. 8.

27 Theſe are they which ſpake to Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring out the children of Iſrael from Egypt: Theſe are that Aaron and Moſes.

28 And it came to paſs, on the day when the LORD ſpake unto Moſes in the land of Egypt, 29 That the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying, I am the LORD, ſpeak thou unto Pharaoh King of Egypt, all that I ſay unto thee.

30 And Moſes ſaid before the LORD, Behold, I am of uncircumciſed lips, and how ſhall Pharaoh hearken unto me?

CHAP. VII.

God encourages Moſes to ſpeak to Pharaoh, 1. God foretells the hardneſs of Pharaoh's heart, 3. That he might multiply his wonders in Egypt, 4. to declare to the Egyptians, that he only is the Lord, 5. Moſes and Aaron obey God's command, 6. Their Age, 7. God commands them to ſhew a miracle for the confirmation of their authority, 8, 9. Their rod turn'd into a ſerpent, 10. The magicians do the ſame, 11. Aaron's rod devoureth theirs, 12. Pharaoh is hard'ned, as the Lord had ſaid, 13. And refuſeth to let the people go, 14. God denounces judgments on the Egyptians, 17, 18. Commands Moſes and Aaron to ſtretch out their hands over the waters. The waters are turned into blood, 20. The fiſh die, and the rivers ſtink, 21. The Magicians do the ſame, whereby Pharaoh's heart is hard'ned, 22. The means they uſed againſt this plague, 24. The continuance of it, 25.

AND the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, See, I have made thee a god to Pharaoh a: and Aaron thy brother ſhall be thy Prophet b.

a To repreſent my perſon, to act like God, by requiring his obedience to my Commands, and by puniſhing his diſobedience with ſuch puniſhments as none but God can inflict, to which end thou ſhalt have my Omnipotent Aſſiſtance. b (i. e.) Thy Interpreter, or Spokeſman (as Chap. 4. 16.) to deliver thy Commands to Pharaoh.

2 Thou ſhalt ſpeak all that I command thee, and Aaron thy brother ſhall ſpeak unto Pharaoh, that he ſend c the children out of his land.

c Heb. and he will ſend or diſmiſs, to wit, at laſt, being forced to it. Succeſs ſhall attend your Endeavours.

3 And I will harden Pharaoh's heart, and multiply my ſigns, and my wonders in the land of Egypt.

4 But Pharaoh ſhall not hearken unto you, that I may lay my hand upon Egypt, and bring forth mine armies, and my people the children of Iſrael out of the land of Egypt, * by great judgments. * Chap. 6.

5 And the Egyptians ſhall know that I am the LORD, when I ſtretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Iſrael from among them. 6.

6 And Moſes and Aaron did as the LORD commanded them, ſo did they d.

d An emphatical repetition, to ſhew their Courage in attempting to ſay, and do ſuch things to ſo great a Monarch in his own Dominions, and their fidelity in the execution of all God's commands.

7 And Moſes was fourſcore years old, and Aaron fourſcore and three years old, when they ſpoke unto Pharaoh e.

e The Ages of Moſes and Aaron here, as of Levi and Kohath chapter 6. 16, 18 and before them of Jacob and Joſeph, are ſo exactly ſet down, that thence we may underſtand the accompliſhment of God's prediction, Gen. 15. 13. and the time of Iſraels being in Egypt.

8 ¶ And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, and unto Aaron, ſaying,

9 When Pharaoh ſhall ſpeak unto you, ſaying, Shew a miracle for you: then thou ſhalt ſay unto Aaron f, * Take thy rod g, and caſt it before Pharaoh, and it ſhall become a ſerpent h. Chap. 4. 2, 17.

f By whoſe hands this and other Miracles were to be done, and not by Moſes immediately; partly to take off the ſuſpicion that theſe Miracles were wrought by ſome magical Artifice of Moſes; and partly for the greater honour of Moſes, that he might be what God had ſaid, verſe 1. A God to Pharaoh, who not only could work Wonders himſelf, but alſo give Power to others to do ſo. g The ſame Rod is called the rod of God, and of Moſes, and of Aaron, here and v. 12. becauſe it was appointed, and as it were conſecrated by God, and uſed both by Moſes and Aaron in their great Works. And this Rod Moſes ordinarily held in his hand, and delivered it to Aaron upon occaſion for the execution of his commands. h Heb. A Dragon, which is a great Serpent. Others, a Crocodile, to whoſe Jaws he had expoſed the Iſraelitiſh Infants.

10 ¶ And Moſes and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did ſo as the LORD had commanded: and Aaron caſt down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his ſervants, and it became a ſerpent.

11 Then Pharaoh alſo called the wiſe-men *, and the ſorcerers: now the magicians i of Egypt, they alſo did in like manner k with their inchantments.

* Under which general Title he ſeems to comprehend all who were moſt eminent in any ſort of Wiſdom, either Natural, or Civil, or Divine, who were all called to give their Opinion and Advice in theſe Matters. i The ſame now called Sorcerers, who acted by the power of the Devil, whom by certain Rites and Ceremonies they engaged to their aſſiſtance. Of theſe the two chief were Jannes and Jambres, 2 Tim. 3. 8. k In ſhew and appearance, which was not difficult for the Devil to do, either by altering the air and the ſpectatours ſight, and by cauſing their Rods both to look and move like Serpents; or by a ſudden and ſecret conveyance of real Serpents thither, and removing the Rods. Nor is it ſtrange that God permitted thoſe deluſions, partly becauſe it was a juſt puniſhment upon the Egyptians for their horrid and manifold Idolatry, and barbarous Cruelty towards the Iſraelites, and their other Wickedneſs; and partly becauſe there was a ſufficient difference made between their Impoſtures, and the real Miracles wrought by Moſes and Aaron, as appears from the next verſe, and from chapter 8. 18. and from other paſſages. And this is a great evidence of the truth of Scripture Story, and that it was not written by fiction and deſign. For if Moſes had written theſe Books to deceive the World, and to advance his own Reputation, (as ſome have impudently ſaid) it is ridiculous to think that he would have put in this, and many other paſſages, which might ſeem ſo much to eclipſe his honour, and the glory of his Works.

12 For they caſt down every man his rod, and they became ſerpents l: but Aarons rod ſwallowed up their rods m.

l Either 1. in appearance. For the Scripture oft ſpeaks of things otherwiſe then they are, becauſe they ſeem to be ſo. And therefore as the Devil appearing to Saul in the likeneſs of Samuel, is called Samuel; ſo may theſe Rods upon the ſame account be called Serpents, because through Diabolical illusion they seemed to be so. Or 2. really, in manner expressed, verse 11. m By which it was evident, either that Aaron's Rod was turned into a real Serpent, because it had the real properties and effects of a Serpent, viz. to devour; or, at least, that the God of Israel was infinitely more powerful than the Egyptian Idols, or Devils.

13 And he † hardened Pharaoh's heart that he
* Chap. 4. 21. hearkened not unto them, * as the LORD had said.

† The Lord, to whom this act of hardening is frequently ascribed both in this Book and elsewhere.

* Chap. 8. 15 and 10. 1,20,27. 14 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, * Pharaoh's heart is hardened n: he refuseth to let the people go.

n It obstinate, and resolved in his way, so as neither my Word nor Works can make any impression upon him.

15 Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning, lo he goeth out unto the water o, and thou shalt stand by the rivers brink, against he come: and the rod which was turned to a serpent, shalt thou take into thine hand.

o (i. e.) Nilus, whither he went at that time, either for his Recreation; or to pay his Morning-worship to that River, which the Egyptians had in great Veneration, as Plutarch testifies.

16 ¶ And thou shalt say unto him, The LORD God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying,
* Chap. 3. 12,18. and 5. 1,3. Let my people go, * that they may serve me in the wilderness: and behold, hitherto thou wouldest not hear.

17 Thus saith the LORD, In this thou shalt know
* Chap. 4. 9. that I am the LORD p: * Behold, I will smite q with the rod that is in my hand, upon the waters
* Rev. 16. 6. which are in the river r, and they shall be turned * to blood s.

p Because thou saidst, Who is the Lord? and I know not the Lord, chap. 5. 2. thou shalt know him experimentally, and to thy cost. q viz. By Aaron's hand, who shall do it by my command and direction. Thus Pilate is said to give Christ's body to Joseph, Mark 15. 45. because he commanded it to be delivered by others to him. The same cause he commanded it to be delivered by others to him. The same cause he commanded it to be delivered by others to him. The same action is ascribed to the principal and instrumental Cause. r Nilus, which was one of their principal Gods; and therefore it was inexcusable in them, that they would not renounce those feeble Gods which were unable to help not only their worshippers, but even themselves, nor embrace the service and commands of that God whose almighty Power they saw and felt. s Which was a very grievous Plague to them; both because it was an eternal dishonour to their Religion, and because from hence they had both their drink, Deut. 11. 10, 11. Jer. 2. 18 and their meat, Numb. 11. 5. for greater and lesser Cattle they would not eat, Exod. 8. 26. And it was a very proper punishment for them, who had made that River an instrument for the execution of their bloody Design against the Israelitish Infants, Exod. 1. 22.

18 And the fish that is in the river shall die, and the river shall stink, and the Egyptians shall loath u to drink of the water of the river.

t Therefore the Israelites were free from this Plague, and those branches of Nilus which they used were uncorrupted, when all others were turned into Blood. u Or, shall grow to themselves, in running hither and thither in hopes of finding Water in some parts, or branches of the River.

19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and stretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their streams, upon their x Not that he was to go to every Pool to use this Ceremony there, but he stretched his Hand and Rod over some of them in the name of all the rest, which he might signify either by his words, or by the various motions of his Rod several ways.

20 And Moses and Aaron did so, as the LORD
* Chap. 17. 5. commanded: and he * lift up the rod, and smote the waters that were in the river, in the sight of Pharaoh, and in the sight of his servants: and all the
* Psal. 78. 44. and 105.29. * waters that were in the river, were turned to blood.

21 And the fish that was in the river died: and the river stunk, and the Egyptians could not drink of the water of the river, and there was blood throughout all the land of Egypt.

* Wisd. 17. 7. 22 * And the magicians of Egypt did so with their enchantments y: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened: neither did he hearken unto them, as the LORD had said.

y It was not difficult for the Devil to convey Blood speedily, and unperceivably, and that in a great quantity, which might suffice to infect with a bloody Colour those small parcels of Water which were left for them to shew their Art in. Quest. Whence could they have Water, when all their Waters were turned into Blood? Answ. 1. It might be had, either by Rain, which at that time God was pleased to send down either for this purpose, or to mitigate the extremity of the Plague, or for other reasons known to him, though not to us. For that Rain sometimes falls in Egypt, though not much, nor often, is affirmed by ancient Writers, and late Travellers. Or, 2. From Goshen, which was not far from the Court, or from some Houses of the Israelites, who dwelt amongst the Egyptians, as appears from many places of this History, and who were free from these Plagues. See Exod. 8. 22. and 9. 26. and 10. 23. and 12. 13. Or, 3. From the pits which they digged, verse 24. Or, 4. From some branch of Nilus, or some Vessels in their Houses, whose Waters were not yet changed: For this change might be wrought not suddenly (which is not affirmed in this relation) but by degrees, which God might so order for this very end, that the Magicians might have matter for the trial of their experiment.

23 And Pharaoh turned, and went into his house, neither did he set his heart to this z also.

z He did not seriously consider it, nor the causes or cure of this Plague, and was not much affected with it, because he saw this fact exceeded not the Power of his Magicians.

24 And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink †: for they could not drink of the water of the river.

† It is not much material to us, whether they lost their Labour, and found only Blood there, as Josephus affirms; or whether they succeeded and found Water there, which seems more probable, because these come not within the compass of Moses his commission, verse 17, 19, 20. or whether they found the Water something purified and less bloody, though mixed with Blood. But it is observeable, that though the Devil could do something which might increase the Plague, or imitate it, yet he could do nothing to remove it.

25 And seven days were fulfilled † after that the LORD had smitten the river.

† Ere all the Waters of Egypt were perfectly free from this infection Quest. How could the Egyptians subsist so long without Water? Answ. 1. Philo tells us that many of them died of this Plague 2 As the Plague might come on, so it might go off by degrees; and so the Water, though mixed with Blood, might give them some relief. 3. The juyces of Herbs, and other Liquors, which were untouched with this Plague, might refresh them. 4. They might have some Water, either from their Pits, or by Rain from Heaven, as was said before; or from Goshen; for though it be said, that the Blood was in all their Vessels, verse 19. yet it is not that he said or did in these matters.

CHAP. VIII.

God sends Moses to Pharaoh that he might let the people go, 1. He threatens his denial with a judgment of frogs, 2, 3, 4. Aaron stretching forth his rod, Egypt is covered with frogs, 6. The magicians do so, 7. Pharaoh calls Moses and Aaron to intreat the Lord to remove the frogs, and promises them to let them go, 8. Moses and Aaron cries to the Lord to take away the frogs, 12. Which he did 13. Pharaoh's heart still hardened, 15. Aaron stretching forth his rod smites the dust, which becomes lice, 17. The magicians attempt the same, but could not, 18. Which extorted a confession from them, that this is the finger of God, yet Pharaoh's hardened, 19. Swarms of flies threatned, 20, 21, 22, 23. God fulfils his word, 24. Pharaoh sends for Moses and Aaron, and permits a sacrifice in Egypt, 25. Moses would go three days into the wilderness, 27. Pharaoh permits that, but not far, 28. The flies are removed, 29——31. Pharaoh's hardened, 32.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, Go unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 And if thou refuse to let them go, behold, I will
* Rev. 13. smite all thy borders a with * frogs.

a All thy Land, which is thy borders. A Synecdoche; so that word is used also, Exod. 10. 14, 19. 1 Kings 1. 3. Psal. 147. 14. Jer. 15. 13. So the gate and the wall are put for the City to which they belong, Gen. 22. 17. Amos 1. 7, 10, 14.

3 And the river b shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up and come into thine house, and into thy bed-chamber c, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy † kneading-troughs. † Or, dough.

b Under which are comprehended all other Rivers, Streams and Ponds, as appears from verse 5. But the River Nilus is mentioned, because God would make that an instrument of their Misery, in which they most gloried, Ezek. 29. 3. and to which they gave divine Honours, and which was the instrument of their Cruelty against the Israelites, chap. 1. 22. c Either because God made the Doors and Windows to fly open, which it is easy to believe concerning God, seeing that this hath been many times done by evil Angels; or because whensoever men entred into any House, or any Room of their House, which their occasions would oft force them to do, the Frogs, being always at their Heels in great numbers, would go in with them. This Plague was worse than the former, because it was more constant and more general; for the former was only in the Waters, and did only molest them when they went to drink or use the Water; but this infected all Liquors, and all Places, and at all Times, and annoyed all their Senses with their filthy Substance, and Shape, and Noise, and Stink, and mingled themselves with their Meats, and Sauces, and Drinks, and crawling into their Beds made them restless. And many of them probably were of a more ugly Shape and infectious Nature than ordinary.

4 And the frogs shall come up both on thee, and upon thy people d, and upon all thy servants.

d Not upon the Israelites, whom he hereby exempts from the number of Pharaoh's People and Subjects, and owns them for his peculiar peculiar People. The Frogs did not only invade their Houses, but even their Persons, which is not strange, considering that they were armed with a divine Commission and Power.

5 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses e, Say unto Aaron, Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the ponds, and cause frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt.

e By inward instinct or suggestion to his Mind; for he was now in the king's presence.

6 And Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters
Psal. 78. and 105. 30. of Egypt, and the frogs came up, and covered the land of Egypt.

7 And the Magicians did so with their enchantments, and brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.

8 ¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, Entreat the LORD, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people; and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the LORD.

9 And Moses said unto Pharaoh, Glory over me, Or, have the honour. when shall I entreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people, to destroy the frogs from thee and thy houses, that they may remain in the river Or, a-gainst them. only?

10 And he said, To morrow. And he said, Be it according to thy word, that thou mayest know that there is none like unto the LORD our God.

11 And the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; they shall remain in the river only.

12 And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh: and Moses cryed unto the LORD because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.

f Though he was assured that the Frogs would depart at his word, yet he would use the means appointed by God for the accomplishment of it. g Or, as the place is fitly rendred by others, according to the word, as matter of, or about the frogs which he had given, or promised to Pharaoh. Because he had given his word both for the thing and the time of it, he prayed more earnestly, left God should be dishonoured, and Pharaoh have occasion of triumph. The Hebrew Verbe is put and to give, are frequently exchanged, as appears by comparing 1 Kings 10. 9. with 2 Chron. 9. 8. and Isa. 42. 1. with Matth. 12. 18.

13 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses: and the frogs died out of the houses, m, out of the villages, and out of the fields.

m A short Speech for, they died, and were removed out of, &c. as appears from the next Verse, it being frequent in the Hebrew Tongue under one Verb expressed, to understand another agreeable to it. See Examples in the Hebrew, Gen. 43. 33, 34. Exod. 18. 12. and 25. 2. Prov. 25. 22.

14 And they gathered them together upon heaps n, and the land stank.

n Which doubtless they cast into their Rivers, or Pits, &c. though that be not here mentioned. God would not instantly and wholly take them away, both to convince them of the truth of the Miracle, and to make them more sensible of this judgment, and more fearful of bringing another upon themselves.

15 But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite,
* Chap. 7. 14. * he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them, as the LORD had said.

16 And the LORD said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice p throughout all the land of Egypt.

o God, it seems, gave him no warning, because he threw off himself in the very last Plague to be both perfidious and incorrigible. Others think, he was forewarned, though that be not here expressed. p So the Hebrew word is rendred by all the Jewish, and most other Interpreters. But it is probable, that what is said of the Locusts, Exod. 10. 14. was true of these, that they were much more loathsome and troublesome than ordinary.

17 And they did so; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and it became lice, in man, and in beast; all the dust of the land * became lice, throughout all the land of Egypt.

q Which was not so matter to produce Lice, and therefore shews this miracle to be divine and miraculous. r i. e. A great part of it, the word all being commonly to understood in Scripture.

18 And the Magicians did so † with their inchantments to bring forth lice, but they could not: so there were lice upon man and upon beast.

† Or, (when) they endeavoured so to do. Thus to enter, Matth. 7. 13. is to be endeavouring to enter, Luke 13. 24. This shews that to deliver, Exod. 18. 10. to fight, Jos. 24. 8. to vacuate, Jos. 10. 5. (when they only attempted or endeavoured to do so. And therefore when it is said in any of the Plagues, that the Magicians did so, it is not to be understood, that they really did the same thing, but that they endeavoured to do so, and that they did something which looked like it. s It was as easie for them to produce Lice as Frogs, but God hindred them, partly to confound them and their devilish Arts, and to shew, that what they did before was only by his permission, and partly to convince Pharaoh and the Egyptians of their sauciness in striving to such impudent Miracles, and to compel that God who could control and confound them, when he pleased.

19 Then the Magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is
* 1 Sam. 6. 3. * the finger of God t: And Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them, as the LORD had said.

t Which like expressions are frequently used in Scripture, as Psal. 8. 3. Isa. 59. 1. and 144. 5. or metaphorically for the power or operation of God, as it is contrasted with Matth. 12. 28. u Of the Supream God, whom both the Egyptians and other Heathen Idolaters acknowledged as Supream to all men, and Idols, and Devils. This they said, left they should be thought inferior to Moses and Aaron in their magical Art. But hereby they own the Sovereign God to be on Israel's side, and yet, like the Devils, they proceed to fight against him. x Either to the Magicians, or from he 1st person to Moses to the Magicians, or from he 1st person to Moses to the Magicians, or from he 1st person to Moses and Aaron, as the following words shew. For, and it is so, belong to the remoter antecedents, as Gen. 19. 13. 1 Sam. 7. 17. Mark 11. 32.

20 And the LORD said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, lo, he cometh forth to the water; and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

21 Else, if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send † swarms of flies y upon thee, and upon thy † Or, a mixture of noisome beasts, &c. servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.

† Heb. a mixture, of Insects or Flies, as appears from Psal. 78. 45. which were of various kinds, as Bees, Wasps, Goats, Hornets, &c. insiant in their numbers, and doubtless larger, and more venomous and pernicious than the common ones were.

22 And I will sever in that day the land of Go-
* Chap. 9. 4, 26. and 10. 23 and 12, 13. shen, in which my people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end that thou mayst know that I am the LORD in the midst of the earth.

y Either 1. of the whole Earth, and consequently of Egypt, that I am not only the Lord of Israel, but of these and thy Dominions too. God is here spoken of after the manner of earthly Princes, who use to dwell in the midst of their Kingdoms, that they may more conveniently rule and institute them. Or rather 2. in Egypt, whereby the words being properly thus rendred, that I the Lord am in the midst of thee, land, to wit, the Land of Goshen, upon spoken of, to defend and preserve it. For God is said to be in the midst of them whom he protects, Deut. 7. 21. and 23. 14. Jos. 3. 10. Psal. 46. 5. and not to be in the midst of others whom he forsakes, and designs or threatens to destroy, Num. 14. 42. Deut. 1. 42. and 31. 17. Compare Exod. 33. 3. with 34. 9.

23 And I will put † a division z between my people

* Gen. 43. 32. and 46. 34.

f Heb. not right, neither in God's eyes, who hath appointed us the place, as well as the thing; nor in the Egyptians eyes, as it follows. g That which the Egyptians abhor to kill, or to see killed; as not only Scripture, but profane Authors, as Diodorus, and Tully, and Juvenal, witness, because they worshipped them as Gods, as is notoriously known. h It was a just fear. For when once a Roman had but killed a Cat, though unpremeditedly, the people tumultuously met together, and befet his House, and killed him in spight of the King and his Princes, who used their utmost power and diligence to prevent it.

27 We will go * three days journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the LORD our God, as * he shall command us i.

* Chap. 3. 12.
* Chap. 3. 18.

i For we know not what kind or number of Sacrifices to offer to him, till we come thither.

28 And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness: only you shall not go very far away: intreat for me.

29 And Moses said, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will intreat the Lord that the swarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people to morrow: but let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more, in not letting the people go to sacrifice unto the LORD.

30 And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the LORD.

31 And the LORD did according to the word of Moses: and he removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his servants, and from his people: there remained not one.

32 And Pharaoh hardened his heart at this time also, neither would he let the people go.

CHAP. IX.

God threatens to smite his cattle with a pestilence, 3. Destroys Israel's, 4. Appoints a time for the execution hereof, 5. whereon the Egyptians cattle dies, 6. Pharaoh's obstinacy, 7. God smites all Egypt with boils, which is the sixth plague, 10. The Magicians now not able to stand before Moses, 11. Pharaoh's heart hardened according to threats of the Lord, 12. God commands Moses to repeat his message, 13. and threatens Pharaoh with more grievous Plagues, 14. God's end in raising up Pharaoh, 16. The fourth plague (viz.) hail and rain, 18. God's counsel for the securing of their cattle, 19. The execution of the threat, 23. The effects of it, 25. The land of Goshen is preserved; 26 Pharaoh's confession, 27. Moses's prayer for him, 29. He foretells Pharaoh's obstinacy, 30, 31. By Moses's intreaty the plague is staid, 33. Pharaoh's heart remains hardned.

THEN the LORD said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 For if thou refuse to let them go, and wilt hold them still,

3 Behold, the hand of the LORD a is upon thy cattle b which is in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep: there shall be a very grievous murrain.

a In an immediate manner, not by my Rod, that thou mayst know, it is not I, but the Lord, which doth all these things to thee. b Which they kept for their Wool or Milk, or manifold uses and services, though not for Food and Sacrifice.

4 And * the LORD shall sever between the cattle of Israel, and the cattle of Egypt, and there shall nothing die of all that is the childrens of Israel.

* Chap. 8. 22.

5 And the LORD appointed a set time, saying, To morrow the LORD shall do this thing in the land.

6 And the LORD did that thing on the morrow, and * all c the cattle of Egypt died, but of the cattle of the children of Israel died not one.

* Psal. 78. 48.

c Either of all sorts; or a very great number of them, as the word all is frequently used; or rather, all that were in the Field, as it is expresly limited, ver. 3. but not all absolutely. as appears from v. 9, 19, 25. and Chap. 14. 23.

7 And Pharaoh sent, and behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Israelites dead. And * the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go.

* Chap. 7. 14.

8 And the Lord said unto Moses, and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of ashes of the furnace d, and let Moses e sprinkle it towards the heaven, in the sight of Pharaoh.

d To mind them of their cruel usage of the Israelites in their Furnace, of which see Deut. 4. 20. Jer. 11. 4. e Both were to take them up, but Moses only to sprinkle them, as at other times Aaron only did the work, to shew that they were but Instruments, which God could use as he pleased, and God was the principal Author of it.

9 And it shall become small duft in all the land of Egypt, and shall be a * boil breaking forth with blains f, upon man, and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt.

* Ex. 9. 8, 9.

f A burning Scab, which quickly raised Blains and Blisters; whereby they were both vehemently inclined to scratch themselves, and yet utterly disenabled from it by its great soreness.

10 And they took ashes of the furnace and stood before Pharaoh, and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven; and it became a * boil g breaking forth with * Deut. 28. 27. blains, upon man, and upon beast.

g God multiplying that Dust, and turning it, and then dispersing it over all the Land, and causing it to fall and rest upon the Bodies of the Egyptians.

11 And the Magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils: for the boil was upon the Magicians, and upon all the Egyptians.

h As they intended but now, both at Sides, and as Adversaries; for though their Understandings were convinced of God's Hand, and infidious power, yet their Wills were not changed, but for their * Chap. 8. 18. and 9. 11. reputation [illegible] to stand against their light, and therefore [illegible] favour to Pharaoh, that the Plague was [illegible] prevention to a greater mischief, as it follows.

12 And the LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; as the LORD had * spoken unto Moses. * Chap. 7. 13. and 8. 19. and 9. 12.

13 And the LORD said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

14 For I will at this time send all my plagues upon thine heart, i, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people; that thou mayst know that there is none like me in all the earth.

i Or, into thy heart: Thus shall hitherto not felt my Plagues upon the inward person, or the Spirit, but I shall shortly reach and wound it, and that not only in the Army of the Magicians and others are now smitten, but even to thy heart, such as shall make thy heart sick, Mic. 6. 13. such as shall give thee a mortal and irrecoverable wound. Some understand it of inward and spiritual judgments upon Pharaoh's heart, such as hardnesse of heart; but that plague had been inflicted upon him, and is recorded before this time. And Pharaoh's heart being here opposed to Servants and people, seems rather to denote his person, the heart of the being often put Synecdochically for the whole man.

15 For now I will stretch out mine hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence k, and thou shalt be cut off from the earth.

k (i. e.) Not properly so called, but largely, as the word is used, Hos. 13. 14. meaning, with an utter and irrecoverable destruction. This relates partly to the killing of the First-born, which plague did more immediately and nearly concern both him and his People, and principally to their destruction in the Red Sea.

16 And in very deed, for this cause have I † raised thee up l, for to shew in thee my power m, and that my Name n may be declared throughout all the earth.

† Heb. made thee stand.

l So the Hebrew word is translated. Rom. 9. 17. I have raised thee up out of thy first nothing, into thy being, and life, and Kingdom; and upheld thy being, and reign, even in the midst of thy Tyranny. Heb. I have made thee to stand, i. e. to remain alive and untouched, when thy Magicians could not stand, ver. 11. I have preserved thee in life, not for want of power to destroy thee, as thou mayst fancy, nor for want of provocation from thee, but for my own glory. m In those mighty works which have been occasioned by thy rebellion and obstinacy. n My Being and Providence, and my manifold Perfections; my patience in bearing thee so long, my Justice in punishing thee, my Power in conquering thee, my Wisdom in overruling thy Pride, and Tyranny, and Cruelty, to thy own destruction, and the redemption of my oppressed People, and my Faithfulness in making good my Promises to them, and my Threatnings to thee.

17 As yet exalteſt thou thy self againſt my people o, that thou wilt not let them go?

o (i. e.) Againſt me acting for my People. The gracious God takes what is done to, or againſt his People, as done to, or againſt himſelf. See Zech. 2. 8. Matth. 25. 40, 45. Act. 9. 4, 5.

18 Behold, to morrow about this time I will cauſe it to rain a very grievous hail, ſuch as hath not been in Egypt ſince the foundation thereof p, even until now.

p Since they were a Kingdom, or a Nation.

19 Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle q, and all that thou haſt in the field: for upon every man and beaſt which ſhall be found in the field, and ſhall not be brought home, the hail ſhall come down upon them, and they ſhall die.

q This forewarning God gives, partly to mitigate the ſeverity of the judgment; partly that a conſiderable number of Horſes might be reſerved for Pharaoh's Expedition, chap. 14. partly to ſhew the Juſtice of God in puniſhing ſo wicked and obſtinate People, as would take no warning neither from God's Words, nor from his former Works; and partly to make a difference between the penitent and the incorrigible Egyptians.

20 He that feared the word of the LORD amongſt the ſervants of Pharaoh, made his ſervants and his cattle flee into the houſes.

21 And he that † regarded not the word of the LORD, left his ſervants and his cattle in the field.

† Heb. ſet his heart unto.

22 ¶ And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be * hail in all the land of Egypt upon man r, and upon beaſt, and upon every herb of the field, throughout all the land of Egypt.

* Rev. 16. 21.

r (i. e.) Upon thoſe Men that preſumed to continue in the field after this Admonition.

23 And Moſes ſtretched forth his hand toward heaven, and the LORD ſent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground s, and the LORD rained hail upon the land of Egypt.

s Devouring both Herbs and Cattle which were upon it, Pſal. 78. 47, 48. and 105. 32, 33.

24 So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail t, very grievous, ſuch as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt ſince it became a nation u.

t Which ſtrange mixture much increaſed the Miracle. u For that Hail and Rain did ſometimes, though but ſeldom, fall in Egypt, is atteſted by divers Eye-witneſſes.

25 And the hail ſmote throughout all the land of Egypt all that was in the field both man and beaſt, and the hail ſmote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field x.

x (i. e.) Moſt of them; or Herbs and Trees of all ſorts, as appears from Chap. 10. 12, 15. See before verſe 6.

26 * Only in the land of Goſhen y, where the children of Iſrael were, was there no hail.

* Chap 8. 22. and 10. 23.

y It ſeems the Egyptians that dwelt there were ſpared for the ſake of their Neighbours the Iſraelites: Which great Obligation probably made them more willing to lend their Jewels to them, Chap. 12. 35.

27 ¶ And Pharaoh ſent, and called for Moſes and Aaron, and ſaid unto them, I have ſinned this time z: the LORD is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.

z I now plainly ſee and freely acknowledge my Sin in ſtriving with God. He ſeems not to deny that he had ſinned before; for even the Light of Nature would diſcover his Sin, in breaking his Faith, and the Word of a King given to Moſes for Iſrael's Diſmiſſion.

28 Intreat the LORD, (for it is enough) that there be no more * † mighty thundrings and hail, and I will let ye go, and ye ſhall ſtay no longer.

† Heb. voices of God.

z Or, and let it be enough, (let God content himſelf that he hath puniſhed me ſo long, and that I have confeſſed my Sin, and promiſed amendment) that there may be hereafter no more.

29 And Moſes ſaid unto him, Aſſoon as I am gone out of the city, I will ſpread abroad my hands unto the LORD, and the thunder ſhall ceaſe, neither ſhall there be any more hail: that thou mayeſt know how that the * earth is the LORDS a.

a Or, that this land is the Lords, even his whom thou denieſt to have any Juriſdiction in it, or over thee, Exod. 5. 2. Or the Earth is put for the World, the Heaven and the Earth, q. d. That thou mayſt ſee that he can either cauſe the Heavens to ſend forth ſuch Thunders and Hails, or reſtrain them as he pleaſeth.

30 But as for thee and thy ſervants, I know that ye will not yet fear the LORD God.

31 And the flax and the barley b was ſmitten: for the barley was in the ear, and the flax was bolled.

b Which were not ſo neceſſary for Human Life as the Wheat and Rye. Thus God ſtill ſends ſmaller Judgments to uſher in the greater.

32 But the wheat and the rie were not ſmitten: for they were † not grown up c.

† Heb. dark or dark.

c The Hebrew word may be rendred either dark or hid, to wit, under the ground, whereby it was ſecured from this ſtroke: or late, as divers of the Hebrews, and other Interpreters render it. This kind of Corn coming later up, was now tender and hidden either in the ground, or in the Herb; whereby it was in ſome meaſure ſecured both from the Fire by its greenneſs and moiſture, and from the Hail by its pliableneſs and yielding to it, whereas the Stalks of Barly were more dry and ſtiff, and therefore more liable to the Hail and Fire.

33 And Moſes went out of the city d from Pharaoh, and ſpread abroad his hands unto the LORD: and the thunders and hail ceaſed, and the rain was not poured upon the earth.

d That being ſolitary, he might pour forth his heart in fervent Prayers.

34 And when Pharaoh ſaw that the rain, and the hail, and the thunders were ceaſed, he ſinned yet more, and hardned his heart, he and his ſervants.

35 And the heart of Pharaoh was hardened; neither would he let the children of Iſrael go, as the LORD had ſpoken † by Moſes.

† Heb. by the hand of Moſes.

CHAP. X.

The reaſon why God hardned Pharaoh's heart, 1. Egypt threatned with locuſts, 4. Pharaoh's ſervants perſwade him to let the Iſraelites go, 7. Pharaoh enquires of Moſes who are they that ſhould go to ſerve the Lord, 8. Moſes anſwer, 9. Pharaoh's reply, 11. Locuſts come over all Egypt, 15. Pharaoh ſends for Moſes, 16. And confeſſeth his Sin, 17. Moſes prays to God, 18. The plague is ſtay'd, 19. Pharaoh's heart hardned, 20. The ninth plague, to wit, darkneſs over all Egypt, 22, 23. Pharaoh would let Iſrael go but without cattle, 24. Moſes will not leave a hoof behind, 26 Pharaoh hardned, 27. And charges Moſes upon pain of death never to appear in his ſight any more, 28. Which alſo came to paſs, 29.

AND the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, Go in unto Pharaoh: for * I have hardned his heart, and the heart of his ſervants, that I might ſhew theſe my ſigns before him.

* Chap. 4. 21. and 7. 14.

2 And that * thou mayſt tell in the ears of thy ſon, and of thy ſons ſon, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my ſigns which I have done amongſt them: that ye may know how that I am the LORD.

* Pſalm 78. 5.

3 And Moſes and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and ſaid unto him, Thus ſaith the LORD God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuſe to humble thy ſelf before me? Let my people go, that they may ſerve me.

4 Elſe, if thou refuſe to let my people go, behold, to morrow will I bring the * locuſts into thy coaſts.

* Wiſd. 16. 9.

5 And they ſhall cover the † face of the earth, that one cannot be able to ſee the earth, and * they ſhall eat the reſidue of that which is eſcaped a, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and ſhall eat every tree b which groweth for you out of the field.

6 And they ſhall fill thy houſes, and the houſes of all thy ſervants, and the houſes of all the Egyptians, which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers have ſeen c, ſince the day that they were upon the earth unto this day. And he turned himſelf, and went out from Pharaoh.

c Such for number, or ſhape, or miſchievous effects, as were never ſeen before.

7 And Pharaohs ſervants ſaid unto him, How long ſhall this man be a ſnare d unto us? Let the men go, that they may ſerve the LORD their God: Knoweſt thou not yet that Egypt is deſtroyed?

d An occaſion of Sin and Deſtruction. See Exod. 23. 33. Joſ. 23. 13.

8 And Moſes and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he ſaid unto them, Go ſerve the LORD your God: but † who are they that ſhall go?

† Heb. who and who, &c.

9 And Moſes ſaid, We will go with our young and with our old, with our ſons and with our daughters, with our flocks and with our herds will we go: for we muſt hold a feaſt unto the LORD e.

e A Feaſt upon a Sacrifice, wherein all are concerned, and therefore all muſt be preſent and ready to do what God requires us.

10 And he ſaid unto them, Let the LORD be ſo with you, as I will let you go f, and your little ones. Look to it, for evil is before you g.

f I wiſh God may be no more ready and willing to be with you and to do you good, than I am willing to let you go. g Either 1. Evil of Sin. You have ſome ill deſign againſt me, either to ſtir up Sedition or War againſt me, or utterly to deprive out of my Kingdom. Or rather 2. Evil of Calamity or Miſchief: 1. Becauſe it is here ſaid to be before their faces, whereas evil Deſigns are in mens hearts, and the fair pretences wherewith they cover them are ſaid to be before their Faces. 2. The word of Caution he gives to them, look to it, or take heed, ſeems to imply that he ſpeaks not of the Evil they deſigned againſt Pharaoh, but of that which they would unavoidably bring upon themſelves from ſo Potent a King; by the refuſal of ſuch fair Offers, and continuing in ſuch inſolent and unreaſonable demands.

11 Not ſo: go now ye that are men and ſerve the LORD, for that ye did deſire †: and they were driven out from Pharaohs preſence.

† Which was not true, but only was gathered by him out of their declared Intention of going to Sacrifice; wherein he thought the preſence of the Women and Children wholly unneceſſary.

12 ¶ And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locuſts, that they they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land b, even all that the hail hath left.

b This is no unusual Plague in Africa and Arabia, where when the Harveſt is ripe, they frequently come in vaſt numbers, and upon all their Corn, and what they do not eat they infect with their touch, all their Corn, and what they do not eat they infect with their touch, and the moiſture coming from them, and afterwards dying in great numbers, they poiſon the Air, and cauſe a Peſtilence. So that it is no wonder that Pharaoh and his Servants were ſo concerned for this Plague, ſo well known to them, eſpecially conſidering, that this was like to be far worſe than all of the ſame kind which they had either ſeen or heard of.

13 And Moſes ſtretched forth his rod over the land i of Egypt, and the LORD brought an eaſt-wind k upon the land all that day and all that night, and when it was morning, the eaſt-wind brought the locuſts.

i Over divers parts of the Land, ſhaking his Rod towards the ſeveral Quarters of it. k Which in thoſe Parts is a moſt violent and pernicious Wind, Exod. 14. 21. Numb. 11. 31. and a dry Wind, and therefore fit for the ingendring of thoſe Creatures. This Wind brought them from Arabia, where they are in great numbers, as we have ſeen verſe 12. though God miraculouſly increaſed their numbers, and their power of doing miſchief.

* Pſal. 78. 46. and 105. 34. 14 And * the locuſts went up over all the land of Egypt, and reſted in all the coaſts of Egypt: very grievous were they: before them there were no ſuch locuſts as they, neither after them ſhall be ſuch †.

† Queſt. How can this be true, when the ſame words are uſed of the Locuſts in Joel's time? Anſw. It might be true of both in divers reſpects; of thoſe for number and quality, of them for long continuance, for they laſted three or four years, when theſe were but for a little time; of theſe for Egypt, of them for Judea, where they were fixed.

15 For they covered the face of the whole earth, ſo that the land was darkned l, and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees which the hail had left m, and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

l Either by their flying in vaſt numbers, and ſo darkning the Air, as they have oft times done; or by covering the green and lightſome Herbs and Productions of the Earth with their dark and direful Bodies. m How could this be, when the Hail had ſmitten every herb, and broken every tree, Chap. 9. 25. Anſ. 1. There ſeems to have been ſome diſtance of time between theſe two Plagues, in which ſpace? new Productions might be ſprouting forth both out of the Ground, and from the Trees. 2. The words all and every are commonly underſtood of the greateſt part.

† Heb. haſtned to call. 16 ¶ Then Pharaoh † called for Moſes and Aaron in haſt n: and he ſaid, I have ſinned againſt the LORD your God, and againſt you o.

n Becauſe this kind of Plague in it ſelf was moſt pernicious, whereby whole Countries had been waſted, and grievous Famines and Peſtilences cauſed, and was mightily aggravated by the Vengeance of God, and by the peculiar quality of theſe Locuſts, which did not only fall upon their Herbs and Fruits, as they uſe to do, but invade their very Houſes, verſe 6. infect their Meats, fill their Beds, poiſon them with their Stink and with their venomous Bittings, whereby they killed many Men, as it is written in the Book of Wiſdom, Chap. 16. verſe 19. o By contempt of your great and terrible Works, by breach of my Promiſe made to you, and by my denial of your juſt Deſires and Commands given to me in his Name whom I now find and feel to be the Almighty and Sovereign God.

17 Now therefore forgive, I pray thee, my ſin only this once p, and intreat the LORD your God, that he may take away from me this death q only.

p I deſire no further favour, I will no more offend nor need your pardon. q This deadly Plague, compare 2 Kings 4. 40: And 2 Cor. 11. 23. Beſides it did deſtroy the Life of Herbs and Trees, yea of Beaſts and Men, either directly, or at leaſt by conſequence, in depriving them of the neceſſary Supports of Life.

18 And he went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the LORD.

19 And the LORD turned a mighty ſtrong weſt-wind r, which took away the locuſts, and † caſt them s * into the Red-ſea t: there remained not one locuſt in all the coaſts of Egypt.

It was called the Arabian Gulf, and by others the Red Sea, either from its Red Sand; or rather from Edom, called alſo Edom, which ſignifies Red, Gen. 25. 30. from whom as the adjoyning Country was called Edom, or Red; ſo this was called the Red-Sea.

* Chap. 4. 21. 20 But the LORD ¶ hardened Pharaohs heart, ſo that he would not let the children of Iſrael go.

21 ¶ And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, Stretch out thine hand towards heaven, that there may be darkneſs over the land of Egypt, † even darkneſs which may be felt u.

† Heb. and let them feel darkneſs.

u It is an Hyperbolical Expreſſion, ſuch being very frequent both in Scripture and in all Authors. For Darkneſs being only a privation, cannot be properly felt, yet it might be felt in its Cauſe, to wit, thoſe thick and groſs Vapours which filled and infected the Air. But the place may be rendred thus, thou ſhalt have thy darkneſs——after that (ſo the Hebrew Vau is ſometimes uſed, as Mich. 7. 13.) the darkneſs (i. e. the darkneſs) of the Night, or the common and daily darkneſs) is departed or removed, and the time of the day come: for ſo the root, from whence this word may be derived, ſignifies, Exod. 13. 22. And to this purpoſe the words are rendred by the Chaldee and Syriack, and ſome others; and the ſence is, that the Darkneſs may continue in the day-time as well as in the night.

22 And Moſes ſtretched forth his hand toward heaven: and there was a * thick darkneſs in all the land of Egypt three days.

* Wiſd. 1. chap. 17. 22.

23 They ſaw not one another x, neither roſe any from his place y for three days: * but all the children of Iſrael had light in their dwellings z.

x Becauſe thoſe groſs and moiſt Fogs and Vapours did not only quite ſhut out the light of the heavenly Bodies, but alſo put out their Candles, or other artificial lights, or at leaſt ſo darken them that men could have no benefit by them. y Place here may be taken, either 1. More ſtrictly and particularly; ſo the ſenſe is, The horrour of that darkneſs was ſo great that they durſt not remove at all, but ſtood or ſat where the darkneſs found them, like men aſtoniſhed or affrighted, and therefore unmoveable, having their Minds diſturbed, being terrified with their guilty Conſciences, which moſt affect men in the dark, and with the dreadful noiſes which they heard, Wiſd. 17. 5. and with the Apparitions of evil Angels, as may ſeem from Pſal. 78. 49. where the Plague of evil Angels is put inſtead of this Plague of darkneſs, which therefore is omitted in that place where all the reſt are reckoned up. Or rather 2. More largely, for their own Houſes or Dwellings, for ſo the Hebrew word is certainly uſed, Exod. 16. 29. So the ſenſe is, They did not ſtir abroad out of their Houſes upon their moſt neceſſary occaſions. Obj. He ſaith not that they could not go, but that they could not riſe from their place, which may ſeem to limit this expreſſion to their particular places. Anſw. The word, to riſe, is commonly put for going about any buſineſs; and here it is a pregnant word, as they call it, and implies going in it, none aroſe, viz. to go or remove from his place. And riſing cannot be properly taken here for that particular poſture, unleſs we will ſuppoſe that this darkneſs found all men ſitting, which is abſurd to imagine. z Where by they might have conveyed themſelves, and families, and goods away, as afterwards they did in haſte; but they waited for Moſes his Orders, and he for God's Command, and God intended to bring them forth, not by ſtealth, but in a more honourable and publick manner, in ſpight of all oppoſition.

24 ¶ And a Pharaoh called unto Moſes, and ſaid, Go ye, ſerve the LORD: only let your flocks and your herds be ſtayed b: let your little ones c alſo go with you.

a Or, Therefore; or Then, to wit, after the darkneſs was either wholly, or in part removed. b Either as a pledge of your return after your Sacrifice is ended; or as a recompence for the Cattle which I have loſt by your means. c And conſequently the Women, whoſe help and ſervice was neceſſary for their little ones in divers regards.

† Heb. our lives. 25 And Moſes ſaid, Thou muſt give † us * alſo ſacrifices, and burnt-offerings, that we may ſacrifice unto the LORD our God.

i. e. Suffer us to take of our own ſtock.

26 Our cattle alſo ſhall go with us; there ſhall not an hoof be left behind; for thereof muſt we take to ſerve the LORD our God: and we know not with what we muſt ſerve the LORD until we come thither.

d Which was not a Pretence, but a real Truth. For this being a ſolemn and extraordinary Sacrifice by the expreſs and particular appointment of God, they knew not either of what kinds, or in what number or manner their Sacrifices muſt be offered. And for all theſe things they did not receive particular directions till they came to Mount Sinai.

* Chap. 10. 8. 27 ¶ But the LORD * hardned Pharaohs heart, and he would not let them go.

28 And Pharaoh ſaid unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thy ſelf: ſee my face no more: for in that day thou ſeeſt my face, thou ſhalt die.

29 And Moſes ſaid, Thou haſt ſpoken well e, I will ſee thy face again no more.

e Heb. right, not morally, for ſo it was very ill ſaid; but Logically, that which agrees, though not with thy Duty, yet with the Event and Truth of the thing; for as thou haſt determed me to ſee thee no more, ſo I in the name of God aſſure thee, that thou ſhalt ſee me no more, to beg my Prayers, or to be helped out of thy Troubles by my means. And therefore that Diſcourſe of Moſes to Pharaoh, which follows chap. 11. 4, &c. though it be put there out of its order and proper place, as many other paſſages are, yet was delivered at this time, and upon occaſion of theſe words.

CHAP.

CHAP. XI.

God commandeth the Iſraelites to borrow Jewels of the Egyptians, 2. God giveth them favour among the Egyptians, 3. Moſes denounceth the laſt plague, 4. A great cry, 6. The Iſraelites ſafety, 7. The Egyptians thruſting them out, 8. God foretells Pharaoh's hardneſs, 9.

AND the LORD ſaid unto Moſes a, Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt, afterwards he will let you go hence: when he ſhall let you go, he ſhall ſurely thruſt you out hence altogether b.

Chap. 12. 33, 39.

a Either 1. Whilſt Moſes was not yet gone out of Pharaoh's preſence; ſo God might ſuggeſt this to his Mind, as he did other things to Michaiah, when he was before Ahab and Jehoſaphat, 1 King. 22. Or rather 2. Before his laſt coming to Pharaoh; and the words may be rendred thus, Now the Lord had ſaid unto Moſes. And this is here added, as the reaſon why Moſes ſpake ſo boldly to Pharaoh, becauſe God had aſſured him of a good iſſue. b Men, and Women, and Children, and Cattle, and all that they had, which he would never do before.

2 Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man borrow of his neighbour c, and every woman of her neighbour, * jewels d of ſilver, and jewels of gold.

* Chap. 3. 22. and 12. 35.

c The Iſraelites, who at firſt lived diſtinctly by themſelves, when they were greatly multiplied, and Pharaoh began to caſt a jealous eye upon them, and to take cruel Counſels againſt them, were more mixed with the Egyptians, as appears from chap. 12. 38, 43. and many other places, either by their own choice, that they might receive Protection and Suſtenance from them; or rather by Pharaoh's deſign, who planted many of his own People among them, to watch and chaſtiſe them, Exod. 1. 11. And, it may be, removed ſome of them from Goſhen to the parts adjoyning to it, which were inhabited by his People. d Or, Veſſels, as the Hebrew word properly ſignifies; for they might more plauſibly aſk, and the Egyptians would with leſs ſuſpicion lend them Veſſels, which might be proper and uſeful both for their Sacrifices and Feaſts, than Jewels for which they had no preſent need or uſe.

3 And the LORD gave the people favour in the ſight of the Egyptians e. Moreover, the man * Moſes was very great in the land of Egypt, in the ſight of Pharaohs ſervants, and in the ſight of the people f.

* Eccl. 45. 1.

e Therefore they complied with their requeſt not only out of love to the People, but out of fear of Moſes, leſt he ſhould punish them ſeverely in caſe of refuſal.

4 And Moſes ſaid g, Thus ſaith the LORD, About midnight will I go out h into the midſt of Egypt.

f To Pharaoh, before his ſeparture, as appears by comparing verſe 8. with chap. 10. 29. And therefore the three firſt verſes of this chapter come in by way of Parentheſis; and now he returns to the Story, and ſets down the laſt words which Moſes ſpake to Pharaoh for a final parting. g God is ſaid, to go out, or go forth, or come down, &c. by way of condeſcenſion to the cuſtom and capacity of men, when he doth any eminent act of Power either in way of Juſtice, or Mercy.

5 And all the firſt-born of the land of Egypt ſhall die, from the firſt-born of Pharaoh that ſitteth upon his throne i, even unto the firſt-born of the maid-ſervant that is behind the mill k, and all the firſt-born of beaſts.

h Either now actually, ruling with his Father, as Solomon did even whilſt David lived, 1 Kings 1. 34. or more probably, he that is to ſit, the preſent time for the future, he whoſe right this is by the Cuſtom of Egypt, and by the Law of Nations. i. The poor captive Slave that was in the Priſon, as it is chap. 12. 29. and there did grind at the Mill. In thoſe times and places they had divers Mills, which were not turned about by Wind or Water, as ours are, but by the Hands of their Servants, who for that purpoſe ſtood behind the Mill, and ſo with hard labour turned it about. See Judg. 16. 21. Iſa 47. 1, 2. Lam. 5. 13.

6 And there ſhall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, ſuch as there was none like it, nor ſhall be like it any more.

* Chap. 8. 22. 7 * But againſt any of the children of Iſrael ſhall not a dog move his tongue k, againſt man or beaſt: that ye may know how that the LORD doth put a difference between the Egyptians and Iſrael.

k In ſtead of thoſe loud cries of the Egyptian Families, there ſhall be ſo great a tranquillity among the Iſraelites, that even the Dogs, which are ſenſible of, and awaked, and provoked by the leaſt noiſe, ſhall not be ſtirred up by them.

Chap. 12. 31, 33. † Heb. that is at thy feet. 8 And * all theſe thy ſervants l ſhall come down unto me †, and bow down themſelves unto me, ſaying, Get thee out, and all the people that † follow thee m; and after that I will go out: and he went out from Pharaoh in † a great anger n.

l Thy Courtiers and great Officers, who now are ſo inſolent and obſtinate. † Both by their own inclination, and neceſſity, and in thy name, and by thy command. m That are under thy conduct and command; as this or the like expreſſion is uſed Judg. 4. 10. 2 Kings 20. 10. 2 Kings 3. 9. Iſa 41. 2. n Not ſo much for the Affront offered to himſelf, as for his incurable Rebellion againſt God. Compare Mark 3. 5.

Chap. 3. 19. 9 And * the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, Pharaoh ſhall not hearken unto you, that * my wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.

* Chap. 7. 3.

10 And Moſes and Aaron did all theſe wonders before Pharaoh: and the LORD hardened Pharaohs heart, ſo that he would not let the children of Iſrael go out of his land.

CHAP. XII.

The month wherein they went out of Egypt to be to them the firſt month of the year, 1, 2. God enjoyns them to chuſe a ſpotleſs lamb for the paſſover, 3. How they were to eat the ſame, 4. The deſcription of the lamb, 5. The time of killing it, 6. The manner of ſprinkling, 7. The time and method of eating it, 8——11. God's purpoſe to ſmite the firſt-born, 12. The uſe of the blood upon the doors, 13. Seven days of unleavened bread, and the manner of keeping it, 15. Moſes directeth the elders, both for their preſent and future ſafety, 21——23. They inſtruct their children concerning it, 26. The firſt-born of all Egypt ſlain, 29. A great cry, 30. Pharaoh giveth Iſrael leave to go, 31. The Egyptians thruſt them out, 33. Their haſty departure, 34. They ſpoil the Egyptians, 35, 36. Their number, 37. Their baking unleavened bread, 39. How long they dwelt in Egypt, 40. The time of their deliverance, 41. Who were to partake of the paſſover, 43, 44. The children of Iſrael did as the Lord commanded.

AND the LORD ſpake a unto Moſes and Aaron, in the land of Egypt, ſaying:

a Had ſpoken, before the three days darkneſs, as may appear by comparing verſe 3. and 6. of this chapter with chap. 11. 4. And the mention of it was put off by him till this place, as well that he might not interrupt the Hiſtory of all the Plagues, as that he might give the whole inſtitution of the Paſſover together.

2 This month b ſhall be unto you the beginning c of months: it ſhall be the firſt month of the year unto you d.

b The firſt month after the vernal Equinox, called Abib, Exod. 13. 4. and 23. 15. Deut. 16. 1. and Niſan, Neh. 2. 1. Eſth. 3. 7. containing part of our March, and part of April. c Heb. The head ſ which, I conceive, notes not ſo much the order, which is more plainly mentioned in the following words, as the eminency of it, that it ſhall be accounted the chief and principal of all months; as the Sabbath hath been called by ſome the Queen of days. And juſtly muſt they preſer this month before the reſt, whether they looked backward to their prodigious Deliverance from Egypt therein, or forward to their ſpiritual Redemption by Chriſt, and to the acceptable year of the Lord, Luke 4. 19. for in this very month our Lord Jeſus ſuffered, John 18. 28. d Heretofore your firſt month for all Affairs hath been Tiſri, which in part anſwers to our September; and is the firſt month after the Autumnal Equinox; and ſo it ſhall be to you ſtill as to Civil Affairs, as it appears from Exod 23. 16. and 34. 22. and Levit. 25. 8, 9, 10. but as to Sacred and Eccleſiaſtical Matters this ſhall henceforth be your firſt month.

3 ¶ Speak ye unto all the congregation of Iſrael, ſaying, In the tenth day e of this month, they ſhall take to them f every man a lamb g, according to the houſe of their fathers †, a † lamb for an houſe.

e Partly that they might have the Lamb ready for the Sacrifice, and might not be diſtracted about procuring it when they ſhould be going to uſe it; partly that by the frequent Contemplation of the Lamb, as a ſign appointed by God, they might have their Faith ſtrengthned as to their approaching Deliverance, and afterwards might have their Minds quickned to the more ſerious Conſideration of that great Deliverance out of Egypt, and of that more glorious Deliverance from Hell by Chriſt the true Paſſover, which ſhould be offered for them; partly to teach the Church in all Ages, how neceſſary a thing preparation is to the ſolemn Duties and Exerciſes of Religion; and partly to ſignify that Chriſt ſhould be firſt ſet apart, and ſeprated to the Miniſtry, which was done three or four Prophetical days, i. e. years before his Death, and afterwards offered: Moſt of which reaſons being perpetual, it may ſeem this uſage was ſo too, and not for the firſt Paſſover only. f Into their Houſes, where the Jews tell us he was tied to the Bedpoſt. g Or, Kid, verſe 5. for the ſame word ſignifies both, though a Lamb was commonly uſed, and a Kid only in caſe of the want of a Lamb; and the Chaldee, and LXX do almoſt conſtantly tranſlate the Hebrew word Lamb. And Chriſt is ſeldom or never Typified by a Kid, but generally by a Lamb, as he is called John 1. 29. partly for his Innocency, Meekneſs, Patience, &c. but principally with reſpect to the Paſchal-lamb, inſtead whereof he was in due time to be offered; whence he is called our Paſſover, 1 Cor. 5. 7. † As Lamb was to be diſpoſed of to every Houſe or Family, according to its quantity, or the numbers of perſons in it, as the next verſe explains it. The ſeveral Families are called the houſes of their fathers, becauſe they conſiſt of thoſe perſons which come from one Father or Grandfather. The people were divided into Tribes, the Tribes were ſubdivided into Families, and the Families again into Houſes, which were like ſprigs taken from the greater branches, and planted apart, and each of theſe had their ſeveral Fathers, from whom they were denominated, as here they are.

h (i. e.) For the eating of the whole Lamb at one meal, according to the rule, verſe 8, 10. If the perſons be ſo few that they cannot eat it up without gluttony. i Or rather thus, word for word, And, or Then he (the Maſter of that Family) ſhall take alſo his neighbour next unto his houſe, he ſhall take him and his family into Society with himſelf; they ſhall join together. k Or perſons, i. e. as the Families ſhall conſiſt of more or fewer perſons. I ſuppoſe, the meaning is, that if his next Neighbour's Family were of it self sufficient for the eating of the whole Lamb, that he should pass over that to the next small Family, which being joyned with his might make up a fit number, which, as the Hebrew Doctors tell us, was ten, besides Women and Children. † (i. e.) According to the proportion which he can, or conjonctly doth eat. The meaning is this, The whole Lamb being to be eaten at once, and a sufficient number being necessary to that end, and there being great variety in mens stomachs and meals, they were to give allowance for that, and to take either more or fewer persons, as their stomachs were better or worse.

5 Your lamb shall be without blemish l, a male m † of the first year n: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats m.

l Without any deformity or distemper of Body. Heb. perfect. Of which see Levit. 22. 22, &c. Deut. 15. 21. and 17. 1. And this the very light of Nature taught the Heathens to observe in their Sacrifices. This property was required both to typify Christ, a Lamb without spot or blemish, Heb. 9. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 19. and to instruct us, that all our services to God must be as perfect as possibly may be. m Partly because that was better and more perfect than the Female, whence a Male is opposed to a corrupt thing, Mal. 1. 14. and partly to tipify the man Christ Jesus n (i. e.) A year old, when it is in its vigour and perfection, and the fittest type of Christ. Most explain it thus, That it was not to be more than a year old, but it might be much less, seeing it might be offered to God anytime after it was eight days old, Exod. 22. 30. Levit. 22. 27. But though it was then fit to be offered to God; it was not very fit to be eaten by Men. And the Hebrew Phrase, the Son of a Year, seems to require a years Age, as Saul is called the son of one year, 1 Sam. 13. 1. when he had reigned one whole Year. And it is remarkable, that he doth not say the Son of this or that Year, which might agree to one brought forth that Year, though it was much younger than a Year, but the Son of a Year, without any restrictive Article. n Heb. and from the Goats: If you want a Lamb, you shall take a Kid of or from the Goats. But the particle and is here well rendred or as it is usd, Gen. 13. 8. Exod. 21. 17. compared with Matth. 15. 4. Psalm 8. 4. compared with Heb. 2. 6.

6 And ye shall keep it up o until the fourteenth day of the same month: and * the whole assembly p of the congregation of Israel shall kill it † in the evening q.

* Lev. 23. 5. Numb. 9. 3. and 28. 16. Deut. 16. 1.

o Separate it from the rest of the Flock, and keep it in a safe place; the reasons of which see verse 3. p Or rather, every Assembly, to wit, every such Society as meet together for eating of the Lamb. And the Assembly is said to kill it, because one Person did it in their Name, and by their Appointment; in which manner, and upon which reason the whole Congregation is said to hate a Man, Levit. 24 14, 16. Numb. 15. 35. Deut. 22. 21. It is probable it was killed by the Master of the Family, who was a Priest in his own Family, &c. q Heb. between the Evenings, or the two Evenings, i. e. between the beginning and end of the Evening. The Evening is one third part of the Day, and one of the appointed and usual times of Devotion, as appears from Psalm 55. 17. Dan. 6. 10. and it began at their ninth, or our third Hour, as may be gathered from Acts 3. 1. For then the Sun began more sensibly to decline, whence that time is stly called by the Jews the first Evening, and that was the time of the Evening Sacrifice; the second Evening was when the Sun was setting or set. Between these it was to be killed. This had a respect both to the time of the World's Age when Christ came, which was its Evening, or declining Time, or End, Heb. 1. 2. and 9. 26. 1 Pet. 1. 20. and the time of the day in which Christ our Passover was killed, Matth. 27. 45——50. Mark 15. 25, 33, 34.

7 And they shall take of the blood r, and strike it s on the two side-posts, and on the upper door-post of the houses wherein they shall eat it t.

r This was afterwards restrained to the Priests, but at this time it was allowed to the Masters of Families, as their present circumstances required. s With a bunch of Hyssop, verse 22. t As a badge of distinction between their Houses and the Egyptians, not to direct the destroying Angel where they were, who could as well discern the Houses as the Blood in the Night, but to direct their Thoughts to Christ, whose Blood was hereby evidently typified, by whose Merits and Mediation they obtained this Preservation and Deliverance from Egypt, as well as their great Deliverance from Hell.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night u rosted with fire x, and unleavened bread y, and with bitter herbs z they shall eat it.

u (i. e.) The Night following the fourteenth, and beginning the fifteenth day. The Lamb was killed upon the fourteenth day, in the Evening or Close thereof, but it was eaten upon the fifteenth day, to wit, in the beginning of it: whence the Passover is said to be offered sometimes upon the fourteenth, and sometimes upon the fifteenth day, which may serve for the Reconciliation of some seemingly contrary Scriptures. x Partly for expedition, verse 11. and principally to be a Type of the Lamb of God Christ, and of the sharp and dreadful Pains which he suffered not only from Men, but from God too, and from the Fire of his fore Displeasure against Sinners, whose place and person Christ sustained in his Sufferings. y Partly as a Monument of their speedy Departure out of Egypt, which gave them not time to leaven their Bread, verse 34. which is the reason alledged for it, Deut. 16. 3. partly to teach us how Men should be justified that come to the Sacrament, they should be purged from Error, and Pride, and Malice, and Hypocrisy, which are called and compared to Leaven, Matth. 16. 6, 11. Luke 12. 1. 2 Cor. 5. 8. and partly to signify the singular Purity of Christ from all kind of spiritual Leaven. z Both to remind them of their hard Service and bitter Usage in Egypt, Exod. 1. 14. from which God delivered them, Deut. 16. 3. and to prefigure the further Crosses and Troubles which they were to expect between their going out of Egypt and coming to Canaan. Or, with bitternesses, i. e. with great bitterness, or with grief of heart, that together with Faith in God and in Christ, and Hope, and Joy for their approaching Deliverance, they might exercise bitter and hearty Repentance for their Idolatries, and other sinful Practices whereof they were guilty in Egypt. And this instructs us as well as them of the absolute necessity of true and bitter Repentance in all those that would profitably feed upon Christ our Passover.

a (i. e.) Not throughly roasted, for such we also ſay is Raw, and so the Hebrew word no is understood by the Jewiſh and other Doctors. It signifies, that Christ should Suffer, as well as Save, to the uttermost, all that was due for our Sins. b Heb. the Inwards, which were to be taken and washed, and then to be roasted together with the rest. Some do here except the Fat, and Caul, and Kidneys, which were reserved by God for himself, 2 Chron. 35. 12, 14. But that Exception was not made till after this time, and it seems not certain that that Exception extended to the Paschal Lamb. These, and the Head and Legs are here mentioned, not to exclude other Parts, but because they are not commonly roasted; but God would have the whole Lamb roasted and eaten, to signify, that we must have either nothing of Christ, or the whole Christ, and all his benefits, his Spirit to sanctify and rule us, as well as his Blood to save us.

10 * And ye ſhall let nothing of it remain until the morning; and that which remaineth of † it until the morning, ye ſhall burn with fire c.

* Chap. 23. 18. and 34. 25.

† Which either was not usually eaten, or was more than all of you could conveniently eat. b To prevent either 1. the superstitious use of the Reliques of that Lamb by the Israelites, who thereby had received a greater benefit than they did afterwards by the Brazen Serpent, which upon that account they worshipped: Or 2. the profane Abuse of that which had been consecrated to God's Service. Compare Exod. 29. 34.

11 ¶ And thus ſhall ye eat it d; with your loins girded e, your ſhoes on your feet f, and your ſtaff in your hand g: and ye ſhall eat it in haſte h: it is the LORDS paſſover i.

d To wit, for this time, because their Circumstances required it, that they being suddenly to take a great Journey, might be in a Travellers habit. But that these, and some other circumstances now enjoyned and used, were only Temporary, and not Perpetual, nor Obligatory, sufficiently appears from the practice not only of the Jews in following Ages, but also of Christ and of his Apostles. And in like manner there are some Institutions in the New Testament which did only oblige that Age, and not all that follow them, as Acts 15. 28, 29. e Like Travellers and Persons undertaking some difficult Servise; for such used to gird up their Garments, which in those Parts were long and troublesome. See 2 Kings 4. 29. and 9. 1. Luke 12. 35. f A Badge, i. e. of their readiness for their Journey, Jonah 3. 7. Acts 12. 8. 12. Of their Freedom; for Slaves, such as the Israelites now were in Egypt, used to go barefooted. 13. Of joy, as on the contrary going barefoot was a Badge of Mourning, 2 Sam. 15. 30. g Like Persons upon the point of departing, which was a very comfortable Circumstance. h For so the word signifies, Deut. 16. 3. Isa. 52. 12. i This Lamb, or your eating of it, is the Lord's Paſſover, i. e. it is a sign of Gods passing over you and your Houses, when he comes to destroy the Egyptians on every side of you, verse 13. 23. It is a Metonymy usual in Sacramental Speeches, as Gen. 17. 10. Matth. 26. 26, 27, 28.

12 For I will paſs through the land of Egypt this night, and will ſmite all the firſt-born in the land of Egypt, both man and beaſt, and * againſt all the † gods of Egypt I will execute judgment k: I am the LORD.

* Numb. 33. 4.

† Or, Princes.

k Either 1. by exposing them to shame and contempt, as vain and impotent gods that could not save their Worshippers. But that appeared before. Or 2. by destroying those Beasts which they worshipped; and it is not unlikely, but those particular Beasts, which were their chief Idols, as Apis, Mnevis, &c were first-born, and therefore perished in this Plague. Or 3. by overthrowing their Idols, as he afterwards did Dagon. And so some Hebrew Writers tell us, that this very Night all their Idols were broken and thrown down. And there are some Foot-steps hereof even in Heathen Authors: Of whom some tell us, that most of the Temples of Egypt at one time fell down by an Earthquake; and others affirm, that the Egyptian gods for fear of one Typho (by whom it is apparent they meant Moſes) did hide themselves for a season, &c.

13 And the blood ſhall be to you for a token l upon the houſes where you are: and when I ſee the blood m, I will paſs over you, and the plague ſhall not be upon you † to deſtroy you, when I ſmite the land of Egypt.

l Both to you, as he now said, a sign and a pledge to confirm m. your Faith in the expectation of the promised Deliverance; and to the Angel, that he may know and pass over your Houses, as the following words intimate. See on ver. 7. m This is spoken of God after the manner of Men; the sense is, If I find, that you keep the condition which I require, you may expect the priviledge which I have promised you; otherwise not.

14 And this day ſhall be unto you for a memorial n: and you ſhall keep it a feaſt * to the LORD throughout your generations; you ſhall keep it a feaſt by an ordinance for ever o.

* Or, Monument, both of this Deliverance from Egypt, and moreover of your Redemption by Christ, of which that is a Type, as even the Ancient Jews understood it, who also noted that Israel was to be redeemed in the days of the Meſſias upon the ſame day on which they were delivered from Egypt, to wit, upon the fifteenth day of the Month of Nisan. Upon which day our blessed Lord was crucified for the Redemption of his People. o You shall observe it for a Solemn Feast or Festival Time. o (i. e.) So long as your State and Church continues, or till the coming of the Meſſias. This word doth not always signify Eternity, but any long time, as Prov. 29. 14. Dan. 3. 9 and oft elsewhere.

p Besides, and after the day of eating the Passover, which was a distinct Feast, and no part of the Feast of unleavened Bread. q To remind them of their Departure out of Egypt, which was so sudden, that they had not leisure to leaven their Dough. See more on verse 8. r Either by Excommunication, or by Death to be inflicted by the Magistrate, and in case of his neglect, by God himself. Nor let any one think that this was too severe a Punishment for what may seem no great Offence. For this was indeed a very great Crime, being a manifeſt Contempt of God, and a Rebellion against God's Authority and expreſs Command, which surely deserves as severe a Punishment as is inflicted upon Rebels against their Prince, especially considering that the Israelites were the People and Subjects of God in a peculiar manner. It was also a tacit Renunciation of their Religion, and of the Covenant of God with them, and of their Interest both in that past Deliverance out of Egypt, and in the future Deliverance by the Meſſias. See more on Gen. 17. 14.

16 And in the firſt day there ſhall be an holy convocation s: and in the ſeventh day t there ſhall be an holy convocation to you; no manner of work u ſhall be done in them, ſave that which every † man muſt eat x, that only may be done of you.

† Heb. Soul.

s A Solemn day for the People to assemble together, and to attend upon the Publick Worship and Service of God in hearing his Word, Prayers, Praises, and Sacrifices. t Because then Pharaoh and his Host were drowned in the Sea. As on the first day the first-born were killed; so their Deliverance was begun on the first, and completed on the seventh day, and therefore those days deserved a special Character of Honour. And indeed that there were seven days between those two Miracles, the Jews unanimously affirm, and it seems probable from the account of their Journies. u (i. e.) Of servile Work, Lev. 23. 7. x Herein, as many think, these days were like to the Sabbath, in which that was forbidden. But of this see my notes on Exod. 16. 23. Numb. 15. 3.

17 And ye ſhall obſerve the feaſt of unleavened bread: for in this ſelf-ſame day have I brought your armies y out of the land of Egypt: therefore ſhall ye obſerve this day in your generations, by an ordinance for ever.

y So called, not from their Military force or courage, but from their numbers, and the order and manner in which they came forth, See Chap. 13. 18.

* Lev. 23. 5. Numb. 28. 16.

18 ¶ * In the firſt month, on the fourteenth day of the month, at even ye ſhall eat unleavened bread until the one and twentieth day z of the month at even.

z Inclusively. For otherwise they were obliged to eat unleavened Bread eight days, viz. on the day of the Passover, verse 8. and seven days after, which is strictly and properly called the Feast of unleavened Bread, because in them they were tied to that Ceremony only, except the two days of an Holy Convocation.

19 Seven days ſhall there be no leaven found in your houſes: for whoſoever eateth that which is leavened, even that ſoul ſhall be cut off from the congregation of Iſrael, whether he be a ſtranger a, or born in the land †.

a To wit, a Proselite: for Strangers unconverted to the Jewiſh Religion were not obliged nor admitted to the Celebration of the Passover or Feast of unleavened Bread. Though I see no inconvenience, if all Strangers, though Heathens, were forbidden to have or use any unleavened Bread at that time, left the Jews who conversed with them might be tempted to desire or partake of it with them. † To wit, of Canaan which I have promised to you, and to which I am now leading you, which was so well known to all of them, that it was needless to express it in this place.

20 Ye ſhall eat nothing leavened: in all your habitations ſhall ye eat unleavened bread.

21 ¶ Then Moſes called for all the elders of Iſrael, and ſaid unto them, Draw out, and take you a † lamb according to your families, and kill the paſſover.

† Or, kid.

* Heb. 11. 28.

22 * And ye ſhall take a bunch of hyſop b, and dip it in the blood that is in the baſon, and ſtrike the lintel and the two ſide-poſts with the blood that is in the baſon; and none of you ſhall go out at the door of his houſe c until the morning d.

b So the Hebrew word is rightly rendred, as appears from Heb. 9. 19. c (i. e.) Of the House wherein he did eat the Passover, which relations was his Neighbours House. See verse 4. d Till the beginning of the Morning after Midnight, and after the Slaughter of the Egyptians first-born; which may reconcile those Scriptures that seem to contradict one another, while some affirm they went out of Egypt by Night, and others by Day, for they went out in the Morning very early when it was yet dark, as it is expressed in a like case, John 20. 1.

23 For the LORD will paſs through to ſmite the Egyptians: and when he ſeeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two ſide-poſts, the LORD will paſs over the door, and * will not ſuffer e the deſtroyer f to come in unto your houſes to ſmite you.

* Heb. 3. and 9. e Heb. not give him License or Commission. f (i. e.) The deſtroying Angel, which whether it were a good or bad Angel is not agreed, nor is it necessary to determine.

24 And ye ſhall obſerve this thing g for an ordinance to thee, and to thy ſons for ever.

g viz. The substance of the thing, the Passover and Feast of unleavened Bread, though not all the Rites and Ceremonies, whereof divers were peculiar to the first time.

25 And it ſhall come to paſs when ye be come to the land h, which the LORD will give you according as he hath promiſed, that ye ſhall keep my ſervice.

h Viz. Of Canaan, as verse 19. For in the Wilderness they kept this Feast but once, and that by God's particular Direction, Numb. 9. 2.

26 * And it ſhall come to paſs, when your children ſhall ſay unto you, What mean you by this ſervice i?

* Jos. 4. 6.

i Or, part of Divine Worship. God expects this even from the Jewiſh Children, and much more from Christian Men, that they ſhould enquire and underſtand what is ſaid or done in the Publick Worship or Service of God, and therefore not to rest in dumb Signs whereof they neither enquire nor know the meaning, or in the Service of God in a Language which they underſtand not.

27 That ye ſhall ſay, It is the ſacrifice of the LORDS paſſover k, who paſſed over the houſes of the children of Iſrael in Egypt, when he ſmote the Egyptians, and delivered our houſes. And the people * bowed the head l, and worſhipped.

* Chap. 4. 31.

k The Passover was both a Sacrifice, as it was offered to God, as it appears from Exod. 23. 18. and 34. 25. Numb. 9. 7, 13. Deut. 16. 2, 5. and because there was in it the shedding and sprinkling of Blood, wherein the Essence of a Sacrifice consists, 2 Chron. 30. 16. and 35. 11, 13. and also a Sacrament, as it was received and eaten by Men. l In token of their thankful acknowledgement of God's favours, and of their cheerful submiſſion to God's Command and Ordinance. See 2 Chron. 29 30.

28 And the children of Iſrael went away, and did as the LORD had commanded Moſes and Aaron; ſo did they m.

m They killed, and did eat the Paschal Lamb in such manner as God prescribed.

29 ¶ * And it came to paſs, that at midnight n * the LORD ſmote all the firſt-born o in the land of Egypt, * from the firſt-born of Pharoah that ſat on his throne, unto the firſt-born of the captive that was in the † dungeon, and all the firſt-born of cattle.

* Chap. 11. 4. Numb. 8. 17. and 33. 4. Psalm 78. 51. and 105. 36. † Or, Priſon.

p To wit, of those Houses which had any first-born in them, for in divers Families there might be no first-born. And such Restrictions of the universal Particles are frequently understood.

31 ¶ And he called for Moſes and Aaron q by night, and ſaid, Riſe up, and get you forth from amongſt my people, * both you, and the children of Iſrael, and go, ſerve the LORD, as ye have ſaid.

33 And

33 And the Egyptians were urgent s upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste: for they said, We be all dead men.

s Not by force, which they durst not now use, but by earnest and importunate Intreaties, Exod. 11. 8. This was the ground of that Fable of the Heathens mentioned in Tacitus, That the Jews were driven out of Egypt for their Scabs: So they falsly and maliciously ascribed their own Ulcers and Scabs sent upon them by God to the Israelites.

34 And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their † kneading troughs t being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders.

† Or, dough

t Or, as others rightly render it, their dough lumps, or food, or lumps of paste unleavened.

35 And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses: and they borrowed of the Egyptians u * jewels x of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment.

* Chap. 3. 22.

u Either before this time, as they had opportunity, when their hearts were mollified by the foregoing Plagues; or even at this time, when the Israelites might well take confidence to borrow, and the Egyptians would be willing to lend them, partly that they might gain their Affections and Prayers, and partly that they might more readily depart from them. x Wherewith they used to adorn themselves in the worship of their Idols, and therefore supposed the Israelites might use them in the worship of their God. Or, vessels; of which see on chap. 11. 2.

36 And the LORD gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians y, so that they lent unto them such things as they required z: and they * spoiled the Egyptians a.

* Gen. 15. 14. Chap. 3. 22. Psal. 105. 37.

y (i.e.) Inclined their hearts to do it willingly, and not only out of fear. z Heb. and they lent them, to wit, the Jewels or Vessels mentioned, ver. 35. a To wit, of their Ornaments. Quest. Was not this unjustly done of the Israelites to borrow these Jewels which they never paid again? Anf. No, 1. because they did nothing in this matter but by God's appointment, chap. 11. 1, 2. so that if there be any injustice, it must be in God, in whom there neither can be in any thing, nor is in this thing, the least blot or shadow of injustice as well because he hath an unquestionable right in, and power to dispose of all persons and things, as being the Maker, and Giver, and Lord of all; as because there was great and evident reason both why the Israelites should be recompenced for all their hard Labours and sufferings, and why the Egyptians should be spoiled for their Idolatry, Luxury, and Cruelty to the Israelites, and the great benefits which they had received from Joseph, and from the service of the Israelites. 2. Because the Supreme Lord of all forbad them to restore what they borrowed, and gave them the entire right and sole propriety therein. 3. Because tho there was a form and appearance of borrowing and lending, yet indeed the Israelites did not so much borrow as desire, as the Hebrew word rendred borrow, (ver. 35.) signifies; and the Egyptians did not reckon these things as lent, and to be restored, but as given, and never to be expected again; even as Pharaoh and his people rightly judged, that if the Israelites were once permitted to go out of the Land with their whole Families and Estates, they would never return again, chap. 14. 5. And in truth the Egyptians did and might esteem it a good bargain to give these things to redeem their Lives, and to ingage the Israelites to a speedy departure, knowing that otherwise both their Persons and all their Estates were in extreme hazard. 4. Because, if these Jewels were properly borrowed, yet the Egyptians by their causeless and hostile pursuit after the Israelites with intent to destroy them, did fully discharge them from all obligations to restitution, and give them a right not only to keep these Goods, but to take any other which they could from the Egyptians, according to the known and approved Laws of War.

37 * And the children of Israel journeyed from * Rameses to Succoth b, about * Six hundred thousand c on foot, that were men d, beside children e.

*Num. 33. 3. * Gen. 47. 11. *Chap. 38. 26. Numb 1. 46. and 11. 21.

b A place so called, either because there the Israelites first lodged in Booths or Tents, whereas before they dwelt in Houses; or because there God first spread his Cloud of fire over them, for a covering, Psal. 105. 39. c To wit, grown and strong men, and fit for War, among whom there was none feeble or sick, Psal. 105. 37. Thus the Heathen Writer Charemon, mentioned by Josephus, speaking of this matter, reckons up first 250 thousand, and then 380 thousand more. d The Hebrew word properly signifies strong and able men, fit to go on foot in battel-array; so decrepit or weak old men are not comprehended in this number. e And Women, whose presence and assistance is necessary to them. See Exod. 10. 24. Some say the Hebrew word taph signifies their households or families, which consist principally of Women and Children.

38 And a † mixed multitude f went up also with them, and flocks, and herds, even very much cattle.

† Heb. a great mixture. Numb. 11. 4.

f Consisting of Egyptians or other people, who went with them, either because they were their servants, or that by this means they might free themselves from the servitude which they endured under hard Masters in Egypt; or because the glorious works which they had seen, had raised their esteem of God and of his People, and made them expect a share in the great Felicities which they presumed would be conferred upon a People so highly honoured and beloved of such an Almighty and Allsufficient God. And because their Hearts were not sincere, nor their Ends right, they soon repented of their choice, Numb. 11. 4. Compare Zech. 8. 23.

39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough which they brought forth out of Egypt, for it was not leavened g: because * they were thrust out of Egypt h, and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victuals.

* Chap. 6 1. and 11. 1.

g Both because leaven was forbidden to them at that time, and because the great haste required gave them not time for leavening it. h Not by force, but by importunate requests, as was observed on ver. 33. Thus men are said to be driven to worship the sun, moon, &c. when they are perfuaded to it, Deut. 4. 19.

40 Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was * four hundred and thirty i.

* Gen. 15. 13. Acts 7. 6.

i It is plain that those years are to be computed from the first Promise made to Abraham, Gen. 12. 1, 2. to the giving of the Law, Gal. from Gal. 3. 17. where this is affirmed. And although it doth not plainly appear when that Promise was made, because the Scripture mentions not Abraham's Age, neither when it was made, nor when Abraham came to Haran with his Father, Gen. 11. 31. but only when he went out of Haran, being 75 years old, Gen. 12. 4. yet a good while after it was made, and, as it may seem more than probable, 30 years afterward, it is manifest there were only 400 years of this time to come, Gen. 15. 13. And many more years passed ere there was such a man as Israel or Jacob, and more ere there were any children of Israel, or of Jacob, and yet more ere they came into Egypt. How then can this be true which is here said? Anf. 1. Some affirm that they were in Egypt 430 years, which is sooner said than proved. 2. Some ancient Hebrew Copies are said to have had more words than ours now have; for the LXX, and Samaritan Interpreters after the words in Egypt, read, and, in the land of Canaan. And some other Copies after the word, who, add, together with their fathers, or, and their fathers. And so the difficulty vanisheth. And if it should be granted, that there were some few such errors in our present Copies in matters purely Historical or Chronological, which God might permit to be there for many wise and holy Reasons, yet this is no prejudice to our Faith, or to God's Providence; which hath been pleased to have so special a care of those Texts which concern the essentials of Faith and a good Life, that all Copies are agreed in them. 3. These 430 years are not by the Text confined to Egypt, but may be extended to any place where they were sojourners; and the Hebrew word, ager, is not to be rendred, which, as relating to the time of their sojourning, but who, as belonging to the persons sojourning, as our Translation well renders it; and the sense is, that they were sojourners, or, which is all one, strangers, or dwellers in a land that was not theirs, as it is said Gen. 15. 13. for 430 years. And the emphasis lies in the Hebrew word moshab, which is here fitly rendred sojourning; as toshab, coming from the same root, is commonly used for a sojourner, or one that lives in a Place or Land which is not his, as Levit. 22. 10. and 25. 35, 40. Numb. 35. 15. Psal. 39. 12. There is now but one difficulty remains, How the Children of Israel can be said to be sojourners so long, seeing much of this time passed before they were born? Anf. As Levi is said to pay tithes in Abraham, Heb. 7. 9. because he was in the Loyns of Abraham when Abraham paid Tythes; with much more reason might the Children of Israel be said to sojourn so long, because they sojourned a great part of it in their own persons, and the rest in the Loyns of their Parents. And as oft times when the Parents only are mentioned, the Children are included or intended, as Gen. 12. 3. in thee, i. e. in thy Seed; and Gen. 13. 17. I will give it (the Land) unto thee, i. e. to thy Seed; and Jacob is said to be brought up again out of Egypt, Gen. 46. 4. to wit, in his Posterity; and David is oft put for his Posterity, as 1 King. 12. 16. Ezek. 34. 23. and 37. 24, 25. why may not Parents also be understood sometimes, when the Children only are mentioned? But we need not make Suppositions, seeing we have Examples; the Persecution in Egypt, and deliverance out of it, which happened to the Parents only, being attributed to their Posterity, who neither felt the one, nor saw the other, Deut. 26. 5. &c. Compare Psal. 66. 6. Judg. 10. 11, 12. And the souls of the house of Jacob (i. e.) of the Children of Israel, for by house it is evident he means only Children) which came with Jacob into Egypt, are said to be threescore and ten souls, Gen. 46. 26, 27. In which number and title Jacob himself is confessedly included. And therefore upon the very same ground, under this title of the children of Israel, we must understand Israel himself, who being the chief author and subject of this sojourning in Egypt, it were unreasonable to exclude him from the number of these sojourners. And this Phrase being once extended to their immediate Parent, may by a parity of reason be extended to their great Grandfather Abraham, as being the first Author of that famous Peregrination or Sojourning, which being begun in Canaan, ended in Egypt. Add to this, that the word Israel, as it is put for the People or Children of Israel, is elsewhere used for the whole Church of God, as Rom. 9. 6. and therefore may well include Abraham as the Father, and, under God, the Founder of it. And the title of the children of Israel might well be given to all that People, and to the Family from which they descended, because they were now known by that name. And that this indeed was Moses his meaning, which is here produced, may be further gathered from hence, that otherwise Moses had contradicted himself; for by the years of the Lives of Jacob, and Levi, and Kohath, and Amram, and Moses himself, which he precisely sets down, it appears that the sojourning of the Children of Israel, strictly so called, in Egypt, was not above 215 years. And it is absurd to think that so wise and learned a man, as all acknowledge Moses to have been, should commit so gross an error, especially seeing that Generation could easily have confuted him.

41 And it came to pass at the end of the four hundred and thirty years †, even the self-same day k it came to pass, that all the hosts of the LORD went out from the land of Egypt.

† If this be the right Translation, the 430 years mentioned Gal. 3. 17. are to be taken in a latitude, for about or near so many years, as is very frequent in Scripture, and other Authors; else there wants one year of it, because the Law was not given till about a year after their coming out of Egypt. Nor was it of any concernment to the Apostle's Argument there, whether it wanted a year of that number or no, as here it is. But the words may be rendred here, as Gen. 7. 12. in the body or strength of the day, i. e. when the day-light was full, and clear, and strong, when it was broad day-light, the Egyptians seeing, and not being able to hinder them. If it be said, they went out by night, Deut 16, 1. that is true, in regard of their resolution, and preparation, and the beginning of their journey; but their actual marching forth was by day-light, or in the morning; nor could it be done sooner from the nature of the thing, and the time necessarily required for so great a work. k This Circumstance is noted to set forth the accurateness and infallibility of God's Foreknowledge, and the efficacy of his Providence in accomplishing all his own Counsels in his own appointed time.

42 It is * a † night to be much observed unto the LORD for bringing them out from the land of Egypt: This is that night of the LORD to be observed of all the children of Israel in their generations.

* See Deut. 16. 6. Heb. A keeping of observations.

43 And the LORD said unto Moses and Aaron, This is the ordinance of the Passeover l: there shall no stranger m eat thereof.

l This which here followeth is the law or appointment of God concerning the celebration of the Passover. m Or, foreigner, who is so born by Nation and Religion: For, if he were circumcised, he might eat of it, ver. 44. 48.

44 But every man-servant that is bought for money, when thou hast circumcised him n, then shall he eat thereof.

n For the Master had a power to circumcise such persons, Gen. 17. 12. And though it is probable, that by their interest in them, and a diligent instruction of them, they made them willing to receive Circumcision, yet it seems they had a power to compel them to it; but then Circumcision was not to them a Seal of God's Covenant, nor of their Religion, for that must be matter of choice, but only a civil badge, or a note of that Family or People into which they were politically incorporated.

45 A forciner, and an hired servant shall not eat thereof o.

o Except he submit to Circumcision, as ver. 43. See Numb. 9. 14.

Num. 9. 12.

46 * In one house shall it be eaten, thou shalt not carry forth ought of the flesh abroad out of the house p, neither shall ye break a bone thereof q.

p Partly because they were all obliged not to go out of the House till the morning, ver. 22. and to leave none of it till that time, ver. 10 partly, lest it should be either superstitiously or profanely abused; and partly to signify, that Christ and Salvation are not to be had out of God's House or Church. q To take out and eat the marrow of it. This was required, partly to mind them of their hasty departure out of Egypt, wherein they had no leisure to break and empty the Bones; and principally, that it might be an evident Type of the Lord Jesus, in whom this was literally fulfilled, Joh. 19. 36. The Bones were burnt with the other remainders of the Lamb.

Heb. do.

47 All the congregation of Israel shall † keep it.

Num. 9. 14

48 And * when a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the Passeover to the LORD, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near, and keep it: and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof.

49 One law shall be to him that is home-born, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you.

50 Thus did all the children of Israel: as the LORD commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

51 And it came to pass the self-same day, that the LORD did bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt, * by their armies.

9 And it shall be for * a sign unto thee upon thine hand h, and for a memoral between thine eyes i, that the LORDS law may be in thy mouth: for with a strong hand hath the LORD brought thee out of Egypt.

h The celebration of this Feast shall be to thee instead of a mark which a man makes, or a ring, or any thing else which he puts upon his Hand or Arm, to bring any thing to his remembrance. For such things his Eye is most frequently fixed upon. Compare Cant. 8. 6. Isa. 49. 16. Jer. 22. 24. Hag. 2. 23. i In stead of any Monument or Memorial, which is placed between, and therefore directly before a man's Eyes, which he can scarcely overlook, and therefore must needs bring to remembrance the thing which he would not forget. Such Proverbial Phrases are usual in Scripture, as Deut. 6. 8. Prov. 3. 3. and 6. 21. and 7. 3. and are not to be understood literally, as the superstitious Jews understood them, who hence derive their custom of wearing scrowls of Parchment upon their Foreheads, and Arms, and Garments, which they call Phylacteries, wherein they wrote certain portions of Scripture. But they might as well have added parcels of God's Law to be kept in their Mouths, because it follows, That the Lords law may be in thy mouth; from whence we may better infer, that neither mouth, nor hand, nor eyes are properly to be understood, for then it had been an improper method to fasten a Parchment between their Eyes, that it might be in their Mouths, but figuratively, as they are commonly understood in Scripture.

10 Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance in his season from year to year k.

k Heb. From days to days. But days in the Hebrew Tongue are oft put for a compleat year. Of which see Gen. 4. 3. Lev. 25. 29. Amos 4. 4.

11 ¶ And it shall be when the LORD shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites l, as he sware unto thee, and to thy fathers, and shall give it thee:

l Under which general name all the other Nations are contained, as being all the Children of Canaan.

12 * That thou shalt † set apart m unto the LORD all that openeth the matrix, and every firstling that cometh of a beast which thou hast; the males shall be the LORDS n.

* Chap. 22. 29. and 34. 19. Deut. 15. 19. Ezek. 44. 30. † Heb. Cause to to pass, not through the Fire, as that Verb is used Deut. 18. 10. 2 Kings 16. 3. but under the Rod; as it is used, and more fully expressed, Lev. 27. 32. which was the Rite when any thing was separated and consecrated to God. n Devoted to him, either to be sacrificed, if it was clean, or to be otherwise destroyed, if it was unclean, as it here follows.

13 And every firstling of an ass o thou shalt redeem with a † lamb: and if thou wilt not redeem it, then † Or, kid. thou shalt break his neck p: and all the first-born of man amongst thy children shalt thou redeem.

o An unclean Creature, and therefore this Rite was to be observed in all other unclean Creatures, as appears, 1. Because the reason of this Law is common to all such. 2. By comparing this place with Numb. 18. 15. 3. Because the first-born of all Beasts were appropriated to God, and because many of them were unclean, and so could not be sacrificed, there was no other way offering them to God, but by redemption, or a price paid for them. And the single exception of the price of a Dog in this case, (Deut. 23. 18.) doth sufficiently intimate, that the price of all other unclean Creatures was allowed and required. The Ass alone is here named for all the rest, because this Creature was most common, and most useful, and yet was not to be spared; whence it was easy to infer, that this course was much rather to be observed in other Creatures which were of less use. p Or, cut off his neck; or head, as the word is used Deut. 21. 4. Isa. 66. 3. because being consecrated to God, it was not to be applied to any profane or common use.

14 ¶ And it shall be when thy son asketh thee † in time to come, saying, What is this? that thou † Heb. to shalt say unto him, By strength of hand the LORD morrow. brought us out from Egypt, from the house of bondage q.

q Which is added to teach Parents in all succeeding Ages, that it is their Duty to instruct their Children in the word and works of God, and the nature and reasons of every particular Rite or Institution part of God's worship and service. See Deut. 15. 5. Psal. 66. 4. Hos. 2. 14.

15 And it came to pass, when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, that the LORD slew all the first-born in the land of Egypt, both the first-born of man, and the first-born of beast; therefore I sacrifice to the LORD all that openeth the matrix, being males: but all the first-born of my children I redeem.

16 And it shall be for a token upon thine hand, and for frontlets r between thine eyes: for by strength of hand the LORD brought us forth out of Egypt.

r Instead of frontlets. The sense is, This practice shall make your deliverance from Egypt as fresh and evident to you, and to your Children, as any thing which you see hanged or written upon one anothers Foreheads. See Ezek. 9. 4. It seems strange to me, that they that understand the sign on the hand, and the memorial between the eyes, verse 9. Metaphorically, should understand the frontlets between the eyes in this place properly, seeing the phrase is perfectly the same; only here is a more particular allusion to the custom of the Egyptians, which used to wear some devices upon their Foreheads, which probably they called Totaphoth, which were Memorials of their Idols, or of something relating to them. And therefore it seems unlikely that he would here prescribe the use of the same things to the Jews; and the more probable meaning of the phrase is only this, that this practice would be as effectual and useful a remembrancer of this mighty and glorious work of God in bringing them out of Egypt, as those contrivances were to the Egyptians of their Idols.

17 ¶ And it came to pass when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them not through the way of the land of the Philistines s, although that was near t; for God said, Lest peradventure u the people repent them when they see war x, and they return to Egypt y.

s A fierce and warlike People, whereof they had sad and late experience, 1 Chron. 7. 21. t There being this way but a few days journey between Egypt and Canaan. u God speaks after the manner of men, for nothing was unknown nor uncertain to him. Though the Hebrew Particle pen, doth not always imply doubting, but oft-times only signifies left, as Gen. 3. 3. and 38. 23. Numb. 20. 18. x Which they were likely to do, because the War would probably be long and hot, and their Bodies were much weakned, and their Spirits and Courage broken by a tedious and grievous Bondage; and therefore it was fit that before they were called to such sharp conflicts, they should be hardned by the labours of a long and troublesome journey, and their Faith should be strengthened by further experience of God's Power, and Faithfulness, and Goodness, and by the glorious appearance of God at Mount Sinai, and those Commands, Promises, and Encouragements there given them. But though this which is here mentioned was one, yet it was not the only reason of his Counsel, but there were other causes of it; the Egyptians were to be drowned in the Sea, the Israelites to be further tried, Deut. 8. 2. and full measure to be allowed to the iniquity of the Amorites. y As afterwards they attempted to do, Numb. 14. upon a like occasion.

18 But God * led the people about through the way of the wilderness of the red sea, and the children of Israel went up † harnessed z out of the land of Egypt.

* Chap. 14. 2.

z Or, Armed, or girt with Swords and Belts about the fifth Rib, as the Hebrew word may imply. But it doth not appear how, or whence they should get their Arms, nor how the Egyptians would permit so numerous a People to have, and to keep Arms, especially when they had a long time oppressed and exasperated them, and made them desperate. It is true, some few of them might procure Arms, but this word is here used concerning the whole Body of them. Others render it by fives, five and five in a Rank, that is, by an usual Synecdoche, in Military Order, not doubtfully and fearfully, but confidently and courageously; not confusedly, as men that steal or run away, but in good order, so as one might not hinder another. Which interpretation is strengthened by comparing Jos. 1. 14. It may be rendred girt, to wit, about the fifth Rib, as the word implies, the place where men used to gird their Garments, this being the usual posture for Travellers: He implies that they went out resolved upon, and prepared for their journey.

19 And Moses took the bones of Joseph a with him: for he had straitly sworn the children of Israel b, saying *, God will surely visit you, and ye shall carry up my bones away hence with you.

Compare Gal. 1. 11. 26. who is sometimes called the Angel of the Lord, chap. 14. 19. because he was, and was to be his Father's Angel or Messenger, sent by God unto Men to ratify his Covenant with them; whence he is called the Angel of the Covenant, Mal. 3. 1. as he is upon another account called the Angel of his Presence, Isa. 63. 9. d Not by local Motion, but by his gracious and powerful Operations for and about them. e It was but one Pillar, Numb. 9. 15, 16. having two different appearances and uses of a Cloud by day, to defend them from the heat, Psal. 105. 39. which in those parts was excessive; and of a Fire by night to illuminate them. It was a Cloud erected towards Heaven, like a Pillar upwards; but downwards flat and broad, spread over the body of the People, and afterwards more eminently over the Tabernacle. f Which was altogether necessary in those vast and pathless Deserts, Numbers 10. 33. Deuteronomie 1. 33.

22 He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, * nor the pillar of fire by night from before the people g.

7 And he took six hundred chosen charets i and all k the charets of Egypt, and captains over every one of them l.

i Quest. How could he use or carry his Chariots, when all his Horses were killed by that Plague? Exod. 9. 6. Answ. That Plague slew only the Horses which were in the Field, chap. 9. 3. not those kept in Houses, as the Chariot-Horses generally were, and now are. k i. e. A great number; all that could be got together in haste, which the present service required. l Over the men that fought out of every Chariot. horses and charets of Pharaoh, and his horse-men, and his army) and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth before Baal-zephon.

16 ¶ And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lift up their eyes, and behold, the Egyptians marched after them, and they were sore afraid n: and the children of Israel cryed out o unto the LORD.

n Which is not strange; these being now a People of low Spirits, depressed by long and grievous Servitude; being also generally unarmed, wearied with their journey, and their fears aggravated by the presence and outcries of their Wives and Children. But they should have supported themselves by the consideration of the mighty Power of God, of which they had late and great experience. o Partly by Petition, and partly by Complaint and Expostulation.

11 And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? Wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt?

12 * Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? for it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.

Or rather, do you hold your peace, the Future Tense for the Imperative, as it is very frequent; cease your Murmuring against the Lord and me.

15 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Wherefore cryest thou unto me s? Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward.

s By fervent, though secret Prayer; for which he doth not reprove him, but only bids him turn his Prayer into Action. Compare Jos. 7. 10, 13.

16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it t: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea.

17 And I, behold, I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his charets, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the LORD, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his charets, and upon his horsemen.

23 And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them, to the midst of the Sea; even all Pharaoh's horses, his charets, and his horsemen.

24 And it came to pass, that in the morning watch c the LORD d looked e unto the host of the Egyptians, through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled f the host of the Egyptians, c The night was anciently divided, not by hours, as now it is, but by watches, which sometimes were accounted four, and sometimes but three; howsoever the last of them was called the morning-watch. Then when they hoped for most advantage in the pursuit, they met with their greatest disaster. d Called the Angel of God, v. 19. By which promiscuous use of these Titles it sufficiently appears, that this was no ordinary Angel, but the Son of God. e With an eye of indignation and vengeance, as that phrase is used, Job 40. 12. See also Amos 9. 4. f With most terrible and prodigious Winds, and Rains, and Lightnings, and both claps and bolts of Thunder, as may be gathered from Exod. 15. 10. Psal. 77. 18, 19. and as some ancient Historians relate, with terrours also in their minds, &c.

25 And took off their charet-wheels g, † that they drave them heavily h: so that the Egyptians said, Let us flee from the face of Israel: for the LORD fighteth for them, against the Egyptians i.

† Or, made them to go heavily.

g Either burning them with Lightning, or tearing them in pieces with Thunder-bolts, or loosening them, and making them to fall off.

h Heb. and he made him, or them, the singular number for the plural, i. e. The Egyptians, or their Chariots, to go heavily, hardly and slowly, either for want of Wheels, or for breaches in them, or because the Rain had softened the bottom of the Sea, or because the Lightnings and Thunders affrighted and dispirited their Horses.

i Prodigious stupidity! They did not understand and consider this, though it was notorious, to them especially, by many great and fresh instances, till it was too late to prevent it; therein being a Type of most Sinners, who will not be convinced, nor repent, till they be past all benefit by it.

26 And the LORD said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the sea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their charets, and upon their horsemen.

27 And Moses stretched forth his hand over the sea, and the sea returned to his strength k when the morning appeared: and the Egyptians fled against it l: and the LORD † overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea.

k To its natural and ordinary course, and motion, which is swift and strong, which it had been hitherto restrained by a stronger hand, and rendred in a manner impotent and weak. But now, Samson-like, when its bonds are broken, it puts forth its former and natural strength. But indeed this word may belong to the morning, and so a learned man translates the place, and that very agreeably to the use and order of the Hebrew words, the Sea returned, to wit, to its course, when the morning appeared, according to, or in his strength, i. e. when it was full and clear morning; as we often read of the strength of the day. See Gen. 7. 13. Job 21. 23. So the strength of the morning is here opposed to the morning-watch. l Against the Sea, for which way soever they fled, the waters met them, and fought against them.

28 And the * waters returned, and covered the charets, and the horsemen, and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them m: there remained not so much as * one of them.

* Heb. 3. 8, 10. * Psal. 106. 11.

m (i. e.) After the Children of Israel. Note here, the relative is put without an antecedent before it; the antecedent being to be understood and gathered out of the following Verse, or out of the course of the story. An observation which is very useful for the understanding of many Scriptures. See the note on Gen. 3. 1.

29 But the children of Israel walked upon dry land in the midst of the sea; and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand and on their left.

30 Thus the LORD saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians: and Israel saw the Egyptians dead upon the sea-shore n.

n Which was done either 1. By the natural power of the Sea, which casteth up its dead bodies after a certain time; till which time God caused the Israelites to abide near the Sea, that they might see this for their comfort. Or, 2. By the mighty power of God, which brought them, and their Arms too, as many probably conceive, to shore, before the usual time. Quest. How could the Israelites, both they and their Cattle, in so little time get over that great Sea? Ans. 1. The Hebrews and some other Interpreters deny that they went over, and tell us, they only went into the Sea, and fetched a compass in it, that they might affright the Egyptians to follow them, and then by Moses his conduct returned to the Egyptians shore again. The principall ground of which Opinion is this, That as they went into the Sea out of the Wilderness of Etham, Exod. 13. 20. so they came again out of the Sea into the Wilderness of Etham, Numb. 33. 8. But the sameness of the name doth not prove that it is the same place, nothing being more frequent in Scripture, than for divers places to be called by one and the same name. And the Israelites might possibly give the name of Etham to this Desert on the Arabian side of the Red-sea, either for its great resemblance to that Desert so called on the Egyptian side; or to intimate, that God by dividing the Sea, had made that and this to be one continued Desert. Or the name of Etham might be common to all that Desert at the end of the Red-Sea, and on both sides of it. Answ. 2. They might all conveniently pass over the Sea to the Arabian shore in the time allowed for it, either by the mighty power of God which could easily make both Men and Beasts to do it in much less than ordinary time, or even by the course of nature; for that part of the Sea was not above eight or nine miles over, as Geographers and others affirm. And the time allotted for their passage seems to me to be much more than Interpreters have assigned for it. For the Egyptians and Israelites were divided one from another by the cloudy Pillar all the night, ver. 20. and a strong East-wind blew all that night, ver. 21. The next morning, as I apprehend it, the Cloud still keeping between them, and possibly covering the Egyptians with gross and horrible darkness which hindred their march, the whole body of the Israelites, and their Cattle too, are drawn by Moses his direction near the shore, and, it may be, the Cattle were put into the Sea, all which might well take up most of that day; then towards the evening they enter into the Sea, and so proceed, and the Cloud withdrawing further from the Egyptians, and following the Israelites, the Egyptians pursue after them, and, as it is very probable from the nature and reason of the thing, stand debating some considerable time, when they came to the shore, whether they should venture to follow them into the Sea or no. At last, the worst Counsel prevails, as it generally happens when a People are under a Divine Infatuation, and into the Sea they go, and by the beginning of the morning-watch they draw near the Israelites, when God seasonably appears for Israel's succour, and puts a stop to the march of the Egyptians. So the morning watch mentioned ver. 24. I take to be, not the morning watch of that night, mentioned ver. 20, 21. (for all that night, and therefore the morning-watch of that night, which was a third, or at least, a fourth part of it, was now past and gone) but the next morning-watch after that night, and the succeeding day; which seems much more reasonable, than to shrink up the march, first of the Israelites, and then of the Egyptians, into about three hours time, which is the time between the midnight and the morning-watch. Nor is there any thing in the Text which in the least contradicts this Opinion, but only that this days interval and work is not mentioned in this Story; whereas such omissions are frequent in Scripture-relations, in which the substance only is mentioned, and many circumstances omitted, whereof we have seen some instances already, and shall meet with many more hereafter.

20 And Miriam the Prophetess u, the sister of Aaron x, took a timbrel in her hand, and all the women went out after her, * with timbrels and with dances y. * Psal. 68. 25.

u So called, either in a general sense, because she was an instructor of other Women in the praise and service of God. Or in a more special sense, because she had the Spirit of Prophesy. See Numb. 12. 2. and Mic. 6. 4. x Exod. Why not of Moses also? Answ. 1. She might be Moses's Sister only by one Parent, Aaron's by both. 2. She was best known to the People by her Relation to Aaron, with whom she had lived for many years, when Moses was banished. y According to their ancient Custom in publick Solemnities. See Judg. 11. 34. and 21. 21. 1 Sam. 18. 6. 2 Sam. 6. 14, 21. Jer. 31. 4, 13.

21 And Miriam answered them z, Sing ye to the LORD: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and his rider hath he thrown into the sea.

z Either 1. The Women, last spoken of, and then it is an Enallage of the Gender. Or 2. The Men spoken of before. They sung by turns, or by parts, either the same words being repeated, or some other words of a like nature added. See 1 Chron. 16. 41. 2 Chron. 5. 13. Ezra 3. 11.

22 So Moses brought Israel from the red sea, and they went out into the wilderness of Shur a: and they went three days in the wilderness, and found no water.

a So usually called, Gen. 16. 7. and by the Israelites Etham, as may be gathered by comparing this place with Numb. 33. 8. for both there and here it is said they went three days in this wilderness.

23 ¶ And when they came to Marah, they could * Numb. 33. 8. not drink of the waters of * Marah, for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called † Marah. † That is, bitterness.

24 And the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink?

25 And he cryed unto the LORD: and the LORD shewed him a * tree, which when he had cast into the waters, the waters were made sweet b: there he made for them a statute and an ordinance c, and there he proved them *. * Exod. 15. 23. Chap. 16. 4.

b Not so much by any vertue in that Tree, as by the Power of God who used this, rather as a sign to the Israelites, than as an Instrument to himself in this Work. c God, or Moses in God's Name, and by his Order, constituted and published to them a Statute. Which seems to be understood not of any particular Statute or Law, as that concerning the Sabbath, or their Duty to their Parents, or the like; for the specifying of their Duties is reserved to another time and place; but of a general Law or Rule formerly given, and now solemnly renewed by Moses at God's command, like that given to Abraham their Father, Gen. 17. 1. Walk before me and be perfect. God having thus far performed his part of that Covenant made with Abraham and his Seed, to bring them out of Egypt towards Canaan, tells them that he expects, and requires of them their Observance of the Condition of that Covenant, and gives them this indefinite and universal Law or Precept, that they should obey and fulfil all the commands which God had already laid upon them or their Parents, and which he should hereafter reveal to them. This sense may be gathered out of the following verse, wherein he explains what he meant by this Statute, even all God's Statutes or Commandments, which if they would keep, he engageth himself to preserve and deliver them. So it is only a change of the Number, the Singular, Statute, being put for the Plural, Statutes, which is a Figure very frequently used both in Scripture, and in other Authors. God having now eased them of the hard and iron Yoke of the Egyptians, puts his sweet and easy Yoke upon them; and having undertaken to be their King, and Protector, and Captain, he claims their subjection to himself, and to his Laws or Statutes. * Or, tryed them, i. e. the Israelites. There he tryed both their Faith by the difficulty now mentioned, viz. their want of Water, and their future Obedience by this general command, which he is about to branch forth into divers particulars.

26 And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, * I will put Deut. 7. 15. none of these diseases upon thee d, which I have Chap. 23. 25. Psal. 103. 3. and 147. 3. brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the LORD * that healeth thee e.

d Nor other Evils or Plagues; but on the contrary, I will bless thee with all manner of blessings. Under one branch or part of the blessings of God's Covenant, he includes all the rest by a very common Synecdoche. e Or, thy Physician, for all thy Maladies both of Soul and Body.

27 ¶ * And they came to Elim, where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm-trees f, and they encamped there by the waters. * Numb. 33. 9.

f Which were both pleasant for their shade, and refreshing for their sweet Fruit. Thus the Israelites are obliged and encouraged to the Obedience commanded, by being put into better circumstances than they were under in their last station.

AND they took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came a unto the wilderness of Sin b, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month, after their departing out of the land of Egypt.

a Though not immediately; for there is another Stage of theirs by the Red-Sea, mentioned Numb. 33. 10. (in which Chapter Moses designed exactly to set down all their Stations) but omitted here, because nothing remarkable happened in it; and Moses in this place designed to record only the memorable Passages. b A great Wilderness between the Red-Sea and Mount Sinai, but differing from that Sin mentioned Numb. 20. 1.

2 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured c against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness.

c For want of Meat, as appears from the following Verse, their Provisions brought out of Egypt being now spent.

3 And the children of Israel said unto them, Would to God we had died by the hand of the LORD d in the land of Egypt, * when we sate by the flesh-pots, * Numb. 11. 4, 5. and when we did eat bread to the full e: for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness to kill this whole assembly with hunger f.

d By any of those Plagues wherewith God destroyed the Egyptians. e Which is not probable; but they amplify their former Mercies, that they might aggravate their present Calamity, as the manner of impatient and ungodly Men is. f Quest. What danger was there of dying with Hunger, seeing they had their Flocks and Herds which they brought out of Egypt? Answ. 1. There was no great danger of it, but they use aggravating Expressions, as discontented persons use to do. 2. Their Flocks and Herds were not so numerous as to suffice them for above a months Provision, if they had all been slain and eaten, as it is implied Numb. 11. 21, 22. So there was some danger of it, though neither immediate, nor great. 3. They were it seems resolved to spare these, partly for increase, and for their future Subsistence; and partly for Sacrifice, as not knowing how many of them they should be required to offer. See Exod. 10. 26.

4 ¶ Then said the LORD unto Moses, Behold, I will rain * bread g from heaven † for you: and the people shall go out, and gather † a certain rate every day h, that I may * prove them i, whether they will walk in my law or no. * Psal. 78. 24, 25. and 105. 40. Joh. 6. 31, 32. 1 Cor. 10. 3.

Whether by raining it down 6. 11. upon them for several days together they will learn to trust me for * Chap. 15. the following days, and therefore gather no more than that day 25. Deut. required. 8. 2, 16.

5 And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day they shall prepare k that which they bring in, and it shall be * twice as much as they gather daily. * See Lev. 23. 22.

k Lay up, grind, bake, or seethe. See verse 23. and Numb. 25. 21. 11. 8.

6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, at even, Then ye shall know that the LORD hath brought you l out from the land of Egypt.

l And not we by our own Authority or Counsel, as you suggest, verse 3.

7 And in the morning, then ye shall see the glory of the LORD m, for that he heareth your murmurings against the LORD: And what are we that ye murmur against us?

m Either this glorious work of God in giving Manna; or rather the glorious appearance of God in the Cloud, as is evident from verse 10.

8 And Moses said, This shall be when the LORD shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full: for that the LORD heareth your murmurings, which ye murmur against him; and what are we? your murmurings are not against us, but * against the LORD. * See Luke 10. 16. Rom. 13. 2.

9 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, Say unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, Come near before the LORD n: for he hath heard your murmurings.

n Either before the cloudy Pillar, where God was especially present; or in the place of God's Worship. For though the great Tabernacle was not yet built, yet it seems from Exod. 33. 7. there was a little Tabernacle. For as the Solemn, and Publick, and Sabbath-Worship was among them before the Tabernacle was built, so it was necessary there should be some place where they did Assemble together, and perform that Worship which was proper to those times, and there God was supposed to be present in a peculiar manner.

10 And it came to pass as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and behold, the glory of the LORD o * appeared in the cloud. * Chap. 13. 21.

o An extraordinary brightness suddenly appearing in the Pillar of Cloud. See Levit. 9. 6, 23.

11 ¶ And the LORD spake p unto Moses, saying, p Or, Had spoken, to wit, before, by comparing this with verse 7.

12 I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel: speak unto them, saying, At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread q: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God.

q God chuseth the proper time for each kind of provision; the evening for the Quails, which being brought from remote parts, by their days flight, about evening came thither; and the morning for Manna, which usually falls at that time.

13 And it came to pass that at even * the quails came up, and covered the camp: and in the morning the dew lay r round about the host.

*Numb. 11. 31. Psal. 105. 40.

r Heb. There was a bed of dew, wherewith the Manna was covered, verse 14. To this the hidden manna, Revel. 2. 17. alludes.

14 And when * the dew that lay was gone up s, behold, upon the face of the wilderness there lay a small round thing, as small as the hoar frost upon the ground.

*Numb. 11. 7. Psal. 78. 24. and 105. 40. Wisd. 16. 20.

s To wit, into the Air; or, was vanished, as the word ascend is used, Jer. 48. 15.

15 And when the children of Israel saw it, they †Or, what is this? or it is a portion. said one to another, † It is manna t: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, * This is the bread which the LORD hath given you to eat.

*Joh. 6. 31. 1 Cor. 10 3.

t Or, What is this? which best suits with the following reason, For they wist not what it was. Man signifies what in the Egyptian Tongue; and it is not strange that the Israelites use one of their words, being newly come out of their Land. Hence this is called Manna, but it is of a different Nature from the ordinary Manna which now we use only as physick for purging; whereas this Manna was food, and nourishing, being prepared by the great God for this use.

16 ¶ This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded; gather of it every man according to his eating, † Heb. by the pod or head. † Heb. souls. ing u: an omer x † for every man, according to the number of your † persons take ye every man for them which are in his tents.

u (i. e.) As much as is sufficient for his eating. x Which contains the tenth part of an Ephah, and therefore was a very liberal allowance, and such as might abundantly suffice a man of greatest Strength and Stomach. It might seem too much, but it must be remembred that it was a very light Meat, and easy of Digestion; nor was every one obliged to eat up his whole portion, as we shall see.

17 And the children of Israel did so, and gathered some more, some less y.

y Either 1. According as their Families were more or less numerous. Or rather 2. As the gatherers were more or less strong and active in gathering it.

18 And when they did mete it with an omer, he that gathered much, had nothing over, and he that gathered little, had no lack z: they gathered every man according to his eating.

z All that was gathered by the Members of one Family was put into an heap, and then distributed to each person an Omer, neither more nor less. To which St. Paul alludes 2 Cor. 8. 13, &c.

19 And Moses said unto them, Let no man leave of it till the morning a.

a Viz. For the provision of the next day, as distrusting God's care and goodness in giving them more. Nor that every one was bound to eat all of it, which certainly many of their stomachs could not bear; but that they were to dissolve it, or burn it as they did the remains of some Sacrifices, Exod. 12. 10. and 29. 34. or consume it some some other way.

20 Notwithstanding, they hearkened not unto Moses, but some of them left of it b until the morning, and it bred worms and stank c: and Moses was wroth with them.

b Either distrusting God's Providence for their future provisions; or, out of curiosity to learn the nature of this Manna, and what they might do when occasion required. c Not so much from its own nature, which was pure and durable, as from God's judgement.

21 And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot, it melted d.

d To wit, as much of it as was left upon the ground. This was not from its own nature, which was so solid that it could indure the Fire, and was bruised by a Pestel; but from God's wise Providence, partly that it might not be corrupted or trodden under foot, or otherwise abused, and so despised; partly that it might not remain there to tempt any of them to gather more of it than they should; and partly that all their stock of provision being wasted, they might be obliged to the more entire dependance upon God. And this is here mentioned as a reason why they gathered it in the morning.

22 ¶ And it came to pass, that on the sixth day they gathered twice as much bread e, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses f.

e Considering God's present Providence in causing it to fall in double proportion, and remembring that the next day was the Sabbath-day, which God had blessed and sanctified to his own immediate service, Gen. 2. 3. and therefore was not to be employed in servile works, such as the gathering of Manna was, they rightly concluded, that God's commands, delivered verse 16, 19. reached only to ordinary days, and must in all reason give place to the more ancient and necessary Law of the Sabbath. f Either to acquaint him with this increase of the Miracle, or to take his direction for their Practise, because they found two commands seemingly clashing together, and therefore needed and desired his advice.

23 And he said unto them, This is that which the LORD hath said g, To morrow is the rest of the holy sabbath unto the LORD: bake h that which you will bake, to day is, and seethe k that ye will seethe, and that which remaineth over, lay up for you to be kept until the morning †.

g Either to Moses by Inspiration; or to the former Patriarchs upon like occasions; this practice is agreeable to the former Word and Law of God concerning the Sabbath, as it follow. h The Manna was dressed these two ways, Numb. 11. 8. i These words, to day, are not in the Original, and possibly are better left out than taken in; or if they be taken in, they do not seem to me, as they do to many others, to prove, that they were commanded to bake or seethe on the sixth day all that they were to eat both that day, and upon the following Sabbath, or that they were forbidden to bake or seethe it upon the Sabbath day; for there is not a word here to that purpose; and it is apparent from the whole Context, that the Rest of the Sabbath is not opposed to their baking or seething of it, but to their going out into the Field to gather it. Nay the contrary is here implied, because after they had baken and sodden what they intended to bake or seethe, part of the Manna did, as is here expresly added, remain over, and was reserved for the Sabbath days Provision, and that unbaken and unsodden, otherwise it would not have been noted as a miraculous thing, that it did not Stink nor breed Worms, verse 24. † What you do not eat this day, keep for the next day's Provision.

24 And they laid it up till the morning, as Moses bade: and it did not stink, neither was there any worm therein k.

k As there was before, verse 20. So great a difference there is between the doing of a thing upon God's Command, and with his Blessing, and the doing of the same thing against his Will, and with his Curse.

25 And Moses said, Eat that to day l, for to day is a sabbath unto the LORD m: to day ye shall not find it in the field.

l These words were spoken upon the Morning of the Sabbath-day, as appears from the foregoing Verse. m (i. e.) Wholly consecrated to his Service, and therefore not to be employed in servile Works.

26 Six days ye shall gather it, but on the seventh day which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none.

27 ¶ And it came to pass, that there went out some of the people on the seventh day for to gather, and they found none.

28 And the LORD said unto Moses n, How long o refuse ye to keep my commandments, and my laws?

n That he might speak it to the People. o He signifies that this was an old Disease in them, to disobey God's Precepts, and to pollute his Sabbaths.

29 See, for that the LORD hath given you the sabbath p, therefore he giveth you on the sixth day the bread of two days: abide ye every man in his place: let no man go out of his place q on the seventh day.

p Hath given to you, and to your Fathers, that great command and priviledge of the Sabbath. q Out of his House or Tent into the Field to gather Manna, as appears from the occasion and reason of the Law here before mentioned. For otherwise they might and ought to go out of their Houses to the Publick Assemblies, as appears from Levit. 23. 3. Acts 15. 21. and to lead their Cattle to watering, Luke 13. 15. or to help them out of a Pit, Matth. 12. 11. And a Sabbath-days Journey was permitted, Acts 1. 12.

30 So the people rested r on the seventh day.

r Or ceased, to wit, from gathering Manna, by comparing this with verse 27. and consequently from all works of that nature.

31 And the house of Israel called the name thereof Manna: and * it was like coriander-seed s, white: and * Numb. 11. 7. the taft of it t was like wafers made with honey.

s In Shape and Figure, but not in Colour, for that is dark-coloured, but this white, as it follows here, like Bdellium, &c. Numb. 11. 7.

t When it was raw; but when it was dreft it was like fresh Oyl, Numb. 11. 8.

32 ¶ And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commandeth: Fill an omer of it to be kept for your generations, that they may see the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderness, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt.

33 And Moses said unto Aaron, * Take a pot, and * Heb. put an omer full of Manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD u, to be kept for your generations.

u In the Tabernacle, and by the Ark, when they shall be built, and at present in the place where you meet for the Solemn Worship of God.

34 As the LORD commanded Moses, so Aaron laid it up before the testimony x, to be kept.

x (i. e.) Before the Ark, which is called, the ark of the testimony, Exod. 25. 16. and here, by way of Abbreviation, the Testimony, or Witness, because in it were the Tables of the Covenant, or the Law of God, which was a Testimony of God's Authority and Will, and of Man's Subjection and Duty, or of the Covenant made between God and Man. See Deut. 10. 5. and 31. 26. Quest. How could this be laid up before the Ark, when the Ark was not yet built? Ans. This Text only tells us that Aaron did lay it up, but but it doth not determine the time, nor affirm that it was done at this instant, but rather intimates the contrary, and that it was done afterwards when the Testimony, i. e. the Ark was built. As the next Verse also speaks of what was done in the following forty years.

35 And the children of Israel did eat Manna forty years, * until they came to a land inhabited: they did eat Manna, until they came to the borders of the land of Canaan y.

*Josh. 5. 12. Neh. 9. 15.

y This Moses might well write; for though he did not go into Canaan, yet he came to the Borders of Canaan. And though he did not see the Cessation of the Manna, yet he sufficiently knew both from the Nature of the Thing, and by Revelation from God, that it would forthwith cease upon their entrance into Canaan.

36 Now an omer is the tenth part of an Ephah.

CHAP. XVII.

The children of Israel came to Rephidim, there is no water, therefore murmur against Moses, 1——3. Moses crieth to the Lord, 4. The Lord sendeth Moses to Horeb; he smiteth the rock, and water cometh out, 5, 6. He names that place, and the reason of it, 7. Amalek warreth against the Israelites, 8. Moses appointeth Joshua to fight with him, 9. Joshua's success when Moses held up his hand; when let down, Amalek prevailed, 11——13. Moses buildeth an altar, and nameth it, 15. The reason of it, 16.

AND all the congregation of the children of Israel journey from the wilderness of Sin after their journeys a, according to the commandment of the LORD b, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink.

a By divers Stations, recorded Numb. 33. 12, 13, &c. but here omitted, because there was nothing extraordinary hapned in them. b Expressed either by word of mouth, or by the motion or sight of the cloudy Pillar, Exod. 13. 21.

2 Wherefore the * people did chide with Moses, and said, Give us water that we may drink. And Moses said unto them, Why chide you with me? Wherefore do ye * tempt the LORD c?

*Numb. 20. 4. *Psalm 78. 41. 1 Cor. 10. 9.

c By distrusting God's Power, and Providence, and Faithfulness, and Goodness, upon such a small occasion, by refusing to submit to God's Will, and to wait upon him by humble and fervent Prayers for relief, and instead thereof quarrelling with me as if it were my fault, and murmuring against God under my name.

3 And the people thirsted there for water, and the people murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this, that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children, and our cattle with thirst?

4 And Moses cried unto the LORD, saying, What shall I do unto this people? they be almost ready to stone me.

5 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel d; and thy rod wherewith * thou smotest the river e, take in thine hand, and go.

*Chap. 7. and thy rod wherewith * thou smotest the river e, take 20.

d That they may be eye witnesses of this glorious Work, and may report it to the People. e Either the Red-Sea; for an Arm of the Sea is sometimes called a River; or, the River Nilus.

6 * Behold, I will stand before thee there f upon the rock in Horeb g, and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall water come come out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so h, in the sight of the elders of Israel.

*Numb. 20. 9. Psalm 78. 15. and 105. 41. Wisd. 11. 4.

f In my cloudy Pillar, which shall stand over that place. g Horeb and Sinai are sometimes spoken of as the same place, and sometimes as two differing places, as here compared with Exod. 19. 2. The Learned write, that this was one long Mountain, whereof there were two eminent Parts or Tops, the one at a considerable distance from the other, and Horeb was the first part of it, and near Rephidim; and Sinai the more remote, to which they came afterwards. h (i. e.) Smote the Rock, and the Waters flowed out plentifully and continually, making a River, which God caused to follow them to their several Stations. See 1 Cor. 10. 4.

† That is, tentation. † That is, chiding or strife.

7 And he called the name of the place † Massah, and † Meribah, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the LORD, saying, Is the LORD amongst us i, or not?

i Viz. To protect and provide for us according to his Word given to us. Will God be as good as his word, or will he not? For it is to us very doubtful.

*Deut 25. 17. 1 Sam. 15. 2. Wisd. 11. 4. Heb

8 ¶ * Then k came Amalek, and fought with Israel in Rephidim.

k When they were upon their March from Rephidim to Horeb, Deut. 25. 17, 18 l The ground of the Quarrel was the prosecution of the old hatred of Esau against Jacob, and the revenging of themselves and their Father upon the Posterity of Jacob; for which they thought this the fittest season, they being now a great and potent People, Numb. 24. 20. and Israel now weak, and unarmed, and dispirited with long Servitude.

* Called Jesus, Acts 7. 45. * Chap 4. 20.

9 And Moses said unto * Joshua, Chuse us out men, and go m out, fight with Amalek: to morrow I will stand on the top of the hill n, with * the rod of God o in mine hand.

m Out of the Camp to meet the Enemy. n Both to observe thy Carriage, and Success or Defeat, that I may govern my self accordingly, and that I may in that Retirement pour out my Soul unto the Lord of Hosts, that he may give thee Victory. o By which having done so great Exploits formerly, doubt not of the same Divine Assistance to accompany it, and make thee victorious.

10 So Joshua did as Moses had said to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moses, Aaron, and Hur p went up to the top of the hill.

p A Person of Eminency both for Wisdom and Experience, and for Place and Authority, supposed to be the Husband of Miriam. See Exod. 24. 14.

11 And it came to pass when Moses held up his hand q, that Israel prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed r.

q With the Rod of God in it. This Gesture, though fervent Prayer was doubtless joyned with it, seems not to have been the Gesture of praying, which is the lifting up of both hands, but of an Ensign-bearer, or of one ready to smite his Enemies. Howsoever this was only a sign whereby Moses strengthned his Faith, and quickned his Prayers, and heightned the Courage of the Soldiers below, and prosessed that he expected Victory not from the skill and prowess of his Army, but from the Assistance of God. r God so dispensing his favour, that the Honour of the day and Victory might be wholly ascribed to the Rod and Power of God, not to Israel.

12 But Moses hands were heavy, and they took a stone, and put it under him, and he sat thereon: and Aaron and Hur stayed up his hands s, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side, and his hands were steady until the going down of the sun.

s Not that both Hands were erected and joyned together, which was not a fit posture for one holding a Rod in his hand; but that Moses shifted the Rod out of one hand into the other when the former was weary, and that Aaron and Hur did each of them with both hands hold up that hand which was next to them, successively, that they also might relieve one the other.

13 And Joshua discomfited Amalek and his people t with the edge of the sword.

t Either 1. The King of the Amalekites, and his People. Or 2. The People of the Amalekites, and those other People who were leagued with them.

14 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write this for a memorial in a book h, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua x: for * I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek y from under heaven z.

* Numb. 24. 20. 1 Sam. 15. 3. and 30. 1, 17. 2 Sam. 8. 12. Esth. 9. 14.

u Even in this Book, which Moses was to write by God's Inspiration and Appointment. See Exod. 34. 27. Deut. 31. 9, 22. x Thy Successor, and the Captain of my People, that he and all succeeding Governors may watch all occasions to execute this command. y (i. e.) I will utterly destroy them; for a Person or People dead or destroyed are soon forgotten. Psalm 31. 12. and the Grave is called the land of forgetfulness, Psal. 88. 12. Or thus, Though they are now a numerous and flourishing People, and in great Repute, I will make them few and inglorious, for such are little minded or remembred; for this is not to be understood absolutely of a speedy and utter Extinction of them, for he supposeth their being from Generation to Generation, verse 16. but comparatively. z From the face of the whole Earth.

15 And Moses built an altar a, and called the name of it b † JEHOVAH Nissi.

† That is, the LORD my banner.

a Both for the offering of Sacrifices of Praise unto God, and to be a Monument of this Victory, and of the Author of it. b Viz. Of the Altar, which he so calls metonymically, because it was the Sign and Monument of Jehovah Nissi; even as Circumcision is called God's Covenant, Gen. 17. 13. and the Lamb, the Passover, Exod. 12. 11. and the Cup, the New Testament, Luke 22. 20. because they were the signs of them. Or the word, Altar, is to be repeated out of the former member, which is frequent, and the place to be read thus, he called the name of it, the Altar of Jehovah Nissi. Or the name given to it signifies only the Inscription ingraven upon it, which was not the single name of God, but an entire Sentence, the lord is my banner. By which words he takes all the praise of the Victory from the Israelites, and gives it to God.

16 For c he said, * Because d † the LORD hath sworn that the LORD will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.

* Or, because the hand of Amalek is against the throne of the LORD, therefore, &c. † Heb. the hand upon the throne of the LORD.

c Or, And, as the Hebrew particle properly signifies; for these words are not a reason of the passige next preceding, but an additional Sentence. d Or, Surely, as that particle is oft used, as Job 8. 6. and 20. 20. Psal. 10. 14. and 44. 22, &c. e Heb. the hand upon the throne of the Lord, for the hand of the Lord upon his throne, which is perfectly the same thing, only the order of the words is a little varied after the manner of the Hebrew Tongue. These words then are a paraphrastical Description of a Solemn Oath, by the usual posture of it, viz. the lifting up the hand, which is usually put for swearing, and in that sense is ascribed both to Men, as Gen. 14. 22. and to God, as Deut. 32. 40. And this Hand of God lifted up upon his Throne, where his Majesty doth peculiarly and gloriously dwell, signifies that God swears by himself, as is said Heb. 6. 13. And thus the Chaldee and Arabick Interpreters understand it. Others render the place thus, Because the Hand (or, his Hand, the pronoun being here understood, as it frequently is in the Hebrew Language, of which several instances have been given before, i. e. the hand of Amalek, which may easily be understood out of the following Clause in which Amalek is named) was against the throne of the Lord, i. e. was stretched out against God himself, for so God esteems esteems it, because it was done against that People among whom God had placed his Throne, or Seat, or Dwelling, according to his Covenant made with them; which also was well known to the Amalekites by the Relation of their Progenitors, who in all probability had acquainted them with their own Rights, and with Jacob's Acts whereby he robbed Esau, the Father of Amalek, (Gen. 36. 15, 16.) of his Birthright and Blessing, and consequently of the Land of Canaan, to which now God was bringing them, that he might plant them there, and set up his Throne among them. And the Amalekites doubtless heard, as the other Neighbours also did, in what a miraculous manner God had brought them out of Egypt, and over the Red-Sea. And they knew better than others, by Tradition from their Parents, that God had promised Canaan to them, and now they saw that he was conducting them thither, and therefore to prevent this, they now commence a War against them, and against God or his Throne, whose Presence with, and Conduct over them was most manifest; which was a great aggravation of their Sin. And this latter Translation and Interpretation seems most probable, 1. because it exactly agrees with the Hebrew words, and the order in which they are placed. 2. It makes the Coherence more clear than our Translation doth, the former part of the Verse containing a reason of the latter, to wit, of that severe Curse and everlasting War denounced against Amalek, because they attempted by force to overthrow God's Throne and People, and that with so many aggravating circumstances; of which see Deut. 25. 17, 18.

CHAP. XVIII.

Jethro cometh to Moses with his wife, and his children; their names, 1——4. Moses going to meet his father, does obeysance, 7. and relates to him God's providence, 8. Jethro's joy and thanksgiving, 9, 10. Confesseth God's power therein, 11. Jethro sacrificeth, 12. Moses's judging the people, 13. disliked by his father, 14. Moses's answer, 15, 16. Jethro's advice, 19——23. Moses hearkening to his father, 24. chuseth able men for rulers, 25. who always judged the people, 26. Jethro's departure, 27.

* Chap 2. 16. WHen * Jethro the Priest of Midian, Moses father-in-law, heard of all that God had done for Moses, and for Israel his people, and that the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt:

2 Then Jethro, Moses father-in-law, took Zipporah, Moses wife, after he had sent her back a, a From the way to Egypt, upon the occasion mentioned Exod. 4. 24. 25. and because he found by experience that she was likely to hinder him from, or discourage him in the discharge of his great and dangerous Office, and to give an ill example to the Israelites.

* Chap. 2. 22. † That is, a stranger there. † That is, My God is an help. 3 And her two sons, of which the * name of the one was † Gershom, for he said, I have been an alien in a strange land;

4 And the name of the other was † Eliezer, for the God of my father, said he, was mine help, and delivered me from the sword of Pharaoh:

5 And Jethro, Moses father-in-law, came b with his sons and his wife, unto Moses into the wilderness, where he encamped at * the mount of God.

* Chap. 3. 1. b Not at this time, but after the delivery of the Law at Mount Sinai; as it may appear 1. because he finds them encamped, as it here follows, at the mount of God. i. e. Sinai, whither they came not till Exod. 19. 2. 2. Because the Laws of Sacrifices were given before his coming, as appears from ver. 12. 3. Because the execution of this counsel here given about the choice of Magistrates, ver. 19. is related after the Israelites departure from Sinai, Deut. 1. 7, &c. And therefore here is a transposal in this History, which is also frequent in other places of holy Scripture.

6 And he said c unto Moses, I thy father-in-law Jethro am come unto thee, and thy wife, and her two sons with her.

c Not by word of mouth, as the next Verse sheweth, but either by a Letter, or by a Messenger, as that word is used, Matth. 8. 6, 8. compared with Luke 7 3, 6.

7 And Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, and did obeisance, and kissed him: and they asked each other of their † welfare d; and they came into the tent.

† Heb. peace. d Heb. of their peace, i. e. prosperity and all happiness, which also they wished one to the other, as this phrase implies. See 1 Sam. 10. 4. and Psal. 122. 6.

8 And Moses told his father-in-law all that the LORD had done unto Pharaoh, and to the Egyptians for Israels sake e, and all the travel that had † come upon them by the way, and how the LORD delivered them.

† Heb. found them. e Or, concerning Israel's business.

9 And Jethro rejoyced for all the goodness which the LORD had done to Israel; whom he had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.

10 And Jethro said, Blessed be the LORD, who hath delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of Pharaoh; who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians.

11 Now I know f that the LORD is greater than all gods: * for in the thing wherein they g dealt proudly, he was above them.

* Chap. 1. 10, 16, 22. and 5. 7. f viz. More clearly and by certain experience; as that phrase signifies, Gen. 22. 12. 1 King. 17. 18, 24. and 14. 18. For otherwise it is more than probable, that Jethro had the knowledg of the true God before this time, not only because he was the great Grandchild of Abraham, but also because of his long conversation with a person of so great knowledge, and wisdom, and piety, as Moses was. g Either 1. their false Gods, who wrought strange things in and by their Servants the Magicians, who contended with Moses, and proudly boasted of their skill as not a whit inferior to that of Moses, but at last were forced to yield up the Cause, Exod. 8. 19. or rather 2. the Egyptians, spoken of ver. 10. who dealt proudly, and scornfully, and tyrannically with the Israelites, but God shewed himself to be above them, and above their King, though Pharaoh would not own him for his Superior, (Exod. 5. 2.) but lift up his horn against God, and against his people: But the Lord brought that proud Prince upon his knees, and forced him oft to confess his faults, and to become Suppliant to Moses for deliverance from the Plagues; and at last, when he continued incorrigible, he drowned him in the Sea.

12 And Jethro Moses father-in-law took h a burnt-offering and sacrifices i for God: and Aaron came, and the Elders of Israel to eat bread k with Moses father-in-law before God l.

h (i. e.) Gave, or offered; as that Verb is used Psal. 68. 18. compared with Eph. 4. 8. also Exod. 25. 2. Which he did, that he might publickly testify both his embracing of the true Religion, and his thankfulness to God for the great deliverance given to his people, wherein also himself and Family were concerned. And he took or offered these, not immediately, or by himself, (which would have seemed a presumptuous and unwarrantable Action for a stranger to undertake in the Church of Israel) but by those who were appointed to do it; in which sense David is said to have sacrificed, 2 Sam. 24. 25. and Solomon, 1 King. 8. 63. and all those who brought their Offerings to the Priests to offer for them. i To wit, of Thanksgiving, as is expressed Exod. 24. 5. for part of these the Offerers, with others, did eat, Levit. 7. 15. whereas no man might eat of the Burnt-offerings, Levit. 1. 9. k (i. e.) To feast together of the remainders of the Sacrifices. l Either before the cloudy Pillar; or rather, before the Altar, and in the place of publick Worship; for some such place undoubtedly they had, though the Tabernable was not yet built; and that was the place appointed for such Feasts. See Deut. 12. 7. and 27. 7. 1 Chron. 29. 21. Psal. 116. 17.

13 And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sate to judge the people m: and the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening.

m As a Civil Magistrate, by hearing and determining Causes and Controversies arising among the people.

14 And when Moses father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest unto the people? Why sittest thou thy self alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning unto even?

15 And Moses said unto his father-in-law, Because * the people come unto me to enquire of God n.

* Lev. 24. 12. Numb. 15. 34.

n (i. e.) Of the mind and will of God, both as to his Worship and Service, and as to their mutual duties to one another. See 1 Sam. 9. 9.

16 When they have a matter they come unto me, and I judge between † one and another, and I do † make them know o the Statutes of God, and his Laws.

o (i. e.) Do interpret and apply them to their several Cases and Circumstances.

17 And Moses father-in-law said unto him, The thing that thou doest, is not good p.

p Not convenient either for thy self, or for the people.

18 † Thou wilt surely wear away q, both thou, and † this people r that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee: * thou art not able to perform it thy self alone.

† Heb. ding thou wilt fall. * Num. 11. 14.

q Waste and destroy thy health and strength by excessive labour of mind and body. r By tedious attendance and expectation ere their turn comes for the decision of their matters.

19 Hearken now unto my voice; I will give thee counsel, and God shall be with thee s: Be thou for the people to God-ward t, that thou mayst bring the causes unto God:

s (i. e.) I doubt not, God will assist and bless thee as well in the course which I propose to thee, as in that which thou now dost use, because God is a God of order, and loves order; and he is a God of mercy, and would not have thee destroy thy self in his work. Or it may be taken for a Prayer, and God be with thee, i. e. bless and assist thee therein. t Heb. before God, i. e. in hard and weighty Causes, which the inferior Judges cannot determine, as it is explained, v. 22. where they need and seek direction from God, there thou shalt be as a mediator between God and them, to bring their matters to God, as it here follows, and to receive directions and commands from him. See Numb. 15. 33, 34. and 27. 5, 6.

20 And thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws u, and shalt shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do.

u Thou alone shalt deliver and explain God's Law to them, which they may apply to their particular Causes and Occasions, and so end their Differences among themselves without giving thee any trouble.

21 Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people * able men x, such as fear God y; men of truth z, hating covetousness a, and place such over them to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens b.

x Heb. men of might, not of strength of body, but for greatness, resolution, courage, and constancy of mind, which is the best preservative against partiality and corruption in judgment, to which men of little minds, or narrow spirits are easily swayed by fears, or hopes, or gifts. y Which will restrain them from all injustice, even when they have ability and opportunity to do wrong to cunningly or powerfully, that they may escape the observation and censure of men. z Or, of truth, or faithful, such as love the truth, and diligently labour to find it out in all causes, and then pass a true and righteous sentence: not at all respecting persons, but only the truth and right of their Causes; such as hate lies and slanders, and will severely rebuke and punish them. a This, though included in the former, is particularly expressed, because gifts and bribes are the great corrupters of Judges and judgments.

22 And let them judge the people at all seasons: and it shall be that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thy self, and they shall bear the burthen with thee.

23 If thou shalt do this thing, and God command thee b, then thou shalt be able to endure, and all this people shall also go to their place c in peace d.

b If God approve of the course which I suggest, to whose wisdom I submit my opinion. For Jethro might well think, that Moses neither would, nor might make so great an alteration in the Government without consulting God about it, and expecting his Answer. Others render the place thus, both God will give thee his commands, i. e. thou shalt have leisure to ask and take his counsel in all emergencies, which now thou hast not, and thou wilt be able to endure. c To their several habitations, which are called mens places, Judg. 7. 7. and 9. 55. and 19. 28, 29. where their calling and business lies, from which they are now diverted and detained by fruitless and wearisome attendances. d Orderly and quietly, having their minds much eased by this course, and their contentions soon ended.

24 So Moses hearkened to the voice of his father-in-law e, and did all that he had said f.

e This is one evidence of that meekness for which Moses is justly magnified, that he disdained not to receive advice from one so much his inferior in Wisdom, and Learning, and knowledge of the things of God. And God would have this wise Counsel to come from Jethro, not from Moses himself, to shew how variously he distributes his gifts, and to teach all men not to think too highly of themselves, nor to despise the counsels even of their inferiors. f Not immediately, but after he had received God's approbation, Numb. 11. 16. and the peoples consent, Deut. 1. 14.

25 And Moses chose g able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

g Not solely, but together with the people, as appears from Deut. 1. 13.

26 And they judged the people at all seasons: the hard causes they brought unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves.

27 And Moses let his father-in-law depart h, and he went his way into his own land.

h (i. e.) Dismissed him honourably. See Numb. 10. 29.

IN the third month a when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day b * came they into the wilderness of Sinai.

Num. 33. 3. a Heb. Third new Moon, called Sivan, including the latter part of May, and the former part of June. b Heb. in that day, to wit, when the Month or New-moon began, and when they departed from Rephidim, to note, that there was no Station between these two. This is set down thus accurately, because it gives an account of the original of the Feast of Pentecost, because the giving of the Law, which was 3 or 4 days after this time, was 50 days after the Passover, whereof 46 or 47 were past at their first coming to Sinai, reckoning from the 15th day of the first month, when they came out of Egypt, to this time.

2 For they were departed from Rephidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai c, and had pitched in the wilderness; and there Israel camped before the mount.

c (i. e.) To that part of the Desert which adjoined to Mount Sinai, as Rephidim, from whence they came, was in that part of the Wilderness adjoining to Horeb, which was another part of the same Mountain. See Exod. 17. 6. So they seem to have fetched a large compass, and to have come from one side of the Mountain to the other.

Act. 7. 3 And * Moses went up to God d: and the LORD called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say unto the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel;

d Into the Mount of God, to the place where God had now fixed his cloudy Pillar, and where he was about to manifest himself in a glorious manner. So it is an anticipation.

4 * Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on Eagles wings e, and brought you unto my self f.

* Deut. 29. 2.

e (i. e.) Safely, out of the reach of danger; and strongly, against all opposition. Compare Deut. 32. 11. Isa. 63. 9. Rev. 12. 14. f Into my presence, and favour, and fellowship, to be my peculiar people, to serve and worship me as your only Lord and King.

5 Now * therefore if ye will obey my voice indeed g and keep my Covenant, then * ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me h above all people: for * all the earth is mine i.

* Deut. 5. 2. * Deut. 4. 20. and 7. 6. and 14. 2. g Heb. obeying ye will obey, i. e. if ye will obey me sincerely, diligently, and constantly. h Highly prized and loved, and carefully kept by me, as mens Treasures generally are. i For all people upon earth are mine by creation and dominion, and I can dispose of them all as I please, and either chuse or refuse any of them as I think fit; and therefore though I might refuse you, as well as any others, yet it is my pleasure to single you out of all the world, upon whom to confer my chiefest and peculiar blessings. Or, though all the earth be mine, by general right, yet you only are mine by special title and priviledge.

Exod. 19. 18. Deut. 32. 8, 9. Psal. 135. 4. Dan. 8. 12. Ier. 10. 16. 43. 1. Mal. 3. 17. Tit. 2. 14. 1 Pet. 2. 9. Rev. 1. 6. 5. 10. and 20. 6.

6 And ye shall be unto me a * kingdom of Priests k, and an holy nation l. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

* Phil. 24. 1. 1 Pet. 2. 9. Rev. 1. 6. 5. 10. and 20. 6. k So they are called in regard, 1 of their exemption and separation from all the people of the world, as Priests are taken out of the multitude of men. 2. Of their consecration to the worship and service of God, every Subject of this Kingdom being in some sort a Priest to offer some kind of Sacrifices to God. 3. Of their Priviledges, because God conferred upon them singular honour, safety and immunity, and liberty of coming near to him, as Priests among all Nations have been esteemed priviledged persons. l Purged from the Idolatry and other abominations of the heathen world, and separated from them by a wall of partition; allied to me by an holy Covenant, and consecrated to my use and service.

7 And Moses came and called for the Elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the LORD commanded him.

8 And * all the people answer together, and said, All that the LORD hath spoken, we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the LORD m.

* Chap. 24. 3, 7. Deut. 5. 27. and 26. 17. m Not for God's information, but for the peoples greater obligation, and to learn what answer he should return from God to them.

9 And the LORD said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee n in a thick cloud o, that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and * believe thee for ever: and Moses told the words of the people p unto the LORD.

* Chap. 14. 31. n As to the Mediator between me and them, and the Interpreter of my mind to them. o See ver. 16. and compare 1 King. 8. 12. 2 Chron. 6. 1. p Those mentioned ver. 8. This is here repeated, because God's answer to them now follows.

10 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and sanctify them q to day, and to morrow, and let them * wash their cloaths r.

* Gen. 35. 2. q (i. e.) Command them to sanctify and cleanse themselves from all filthiness of Flesh and Spirit, and to prepare their Hearts for the right receiving of my Laws, and solemn entring into Covenant with me. Compare Lev. 11. 45. Jos. 3. 5. and 7. 13. r By which external washing, which was agreeable to that state of the Church, they were taught to cleanse their inward man.

11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day s the LORD * will come down t in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.

* Chap. 34. 5. Deut. 33. 2. s From this time, and the fifteenth day from the Passover, as was noted before. t In a visible and glorious manifestation of his presence.

12 And thou shalt set bounds to the people round about, saying, Take heed to your selves that ye go not up into the mount, or touch the border of it: * whosoever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death u.

* Heb. 12. 20. u By this Symbolical injunction God designed, 1. To restrain Mens curious and bold enquiries into the things of God. 2. To possess the Israelites then present, and all succeeding Generations with the dread and reverence of the Divine Majesty, and of his Holy Law. 3. To prepare and inure the People to the obedience of God's commands, even when they discern not the reasons of them. 4. To make them sensible of their own impurity and infirmity, and of their absolute need of a Mediator, through whom they might have access to God. See Gal. 3. 19.

13 There shall not a hand touch it x, but he shall surely be stoned or shot through; whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: when the † trumpet soundeth long y, they shall come up to the mount z.

† Or, cometh near. x (i. e.) The Mountain. But 1. This seems to be a great tautology, for it was twice forbidden in the words next foregoing. 2. So the word touch would seem to be ascribed both to man and beast. Others therefore render it, touch him, i. e. they shall look upon such an impudent transgressor of my express command as an abominable person, whom they cannot touch without defilement, and and therefore he shall be put to death in such a manner as may be performed without touching him. y For though the Beasts are not capable of a Law, yet they might be threatned for Man's caution, and punished for the fault of their owners in not keeping them at a distance from the Mount. z (i. e.) With one continued, equal and gentle sound, as is usual in the end of the Musick-song, which is opposed to a rough, and loud, and unequal sound. There was no real Trumpet here, but an Angel made a sound like that of a Trumpet. a Obj. This was forbidden to them verse 12. Answ. 1. They were forbidden to come up to the Mount whilest God was delivering his Laws, but allowed it afterwards when that action ceased, which was signified by the long sound of the Trumpet. 2. They might not come into the Mount or towards the top of it, but they might come to the bottom or lower parts of it, where the bounds were set, or at least towards or near it, as the Hebrew Preposition, beth, is sometimes used. So the Mount may be understood more strictly, verse 12. for an eminent part or top of it, where the thick Cloud appeared, and where Moses was, and here more largely for the whole Mountain.

14 ¶ And Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and sanctified the people b, and they washed their cloaths.

b By commanding them to sanctify themselves, and directing them how to do it.

15 And he said unto the people, Be ready against
* 1 Sam. 21. 4, 5. Zech. 7. 3. 1 Cor. 7. 5. the third day, * come not at your wives c.

c Abstain from the use of the Marriage-bed, partly because your Wives may haply have their uncleanness upon them, though unknown to themselves, at least to you, whereby you may be legally defiled. See Lev 15. 18. and partly that your Minds may be abstracted from all sensual Delights, and wholly employed about this great and holy Work and Service. There is a like command 1 Cor. 7. 5. but both this and that do indifferently concern both Ministers and People, and are limited to a certain time, and therefore are very impertinently alledged for the perpetual celibacy of Ministers. See also 1 Sam 21. 5.

16 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day in the
* Heb. 12. 18. morning, that there were * thunders and lightnings d, and a thick cloud e upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet f exceeding loud, so that all the people g that was in the camp trembled.

d Sent partly as Evidences and Tokens both of God's glorious Presence, and of the Anger of God, and the dreadful Punishments due to the Transgressours of the Law now to be delivered; and partly as means to humble, and awaken, and convince, and terrify proud and secure Sinners, that they might more reverently attend to the Words and Commands of God, more willingly yield Obedience to them, and be more afraid of the Violation of them. e Which was both a fit mean for the Production and Reception of the Thunders and Lightnings, and a Signification as well of the invisible and unconceivable Nature of God, as of the obscurity of the legal Dispensation in regard of its Types and Shadows, &c. 2 Cor. 3. 13, 18. and 4. 6. f A fit Instrument both for the Promulgation of God's Law, and for the Signification of that War that is between God and Sinners. g Moses himself not excepted, as appears from Heb. 12. 21.

* Deut. 4. 10. 17 And * Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God, and they stood at the nether part of the mount h.

h Therefore one part of the Mount they might come to, though not to another, to wit, the higher; which may clear the difficulty and seeming contradiction betwixt verse 12. and 13.

* Deut. 4. 11. and 33. 2. Judg 5. 4. Hab. 3. 3. 18 And * mount Sinai was altogether on a smoak, because the LORD descended upon it in fire i, and the smoak thereof ascended as the smoak of a furnace, and * the whole mount quaked greatly k.

* Heb. 12. 26. i For further terrour to obstinate Sinners. Hence this Law is called a fiery law, Deut. 33. 2. k By an Earthquake, as appears from Psal. 60. 2. and 104. 32.

19 And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder l, Moses spake, and
* Neh. 9. 13. * God answered him by a voice m.

l Heb. Went on, or increased and grew very strong, or vehement, or loud. This is opposed to the sounding long, verse 13. m (i. e.) By plain, distinct, and audible words, as Psal. 81. 7. Joh. 12. 29. so as the People also might hear, as appears from verse 9. See Deut. 5. 24. 1 Kings 19. 12, 13. Heb. 12. 19.

20 And the LORD came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount n: and the LORD called Moses up to the top of the mount, and Moses went up.

n So here are three parts of the Mount manifestly distinguished; the top where the Cloud was, the middle part where Moses now stood, and about which the bounds seem to have been put, and the nether or lower part where the People were.

†Heb. contest. 21 And the LORD said unto Moses, Go down, † charge the people, lest they break through unto the LORD to gaze o, and many of them perish.

o Through curiosity to know in what form or manner I appear to them.

22 And let the priests p also which come near to the LORD q sanctifie themselves, lest the LORD break forth upon them.

p For though the Aaronical Priesthood was not yet appointed, it is certain, that as there were Sacrifices before, so there were Priests to offer them, which were either the first-born, who were consecrated to God, and did execute the Office of Priests, as may be gathered from Exod. 13. 2. and 19. 5. Numb. 3. 12. and 8. 26. or some other persons appointed by God for doing that work till the Office was settled in Aaron's family. q Not at this time, for both Priests and People are now come to an equal distance, verse 22. but usually, q. d. whose duty and priviledge it is to approach unto God, and to present the Peoples Prayers and Sacrifices to him, and therefore are here particularly admonished, because they above all others are obliged to this care, and because they might seem to claim this priviledge by their Function.

23 And Moses said unto the LORD, The people cannot come up r to mount Sinai, for thou chargedst us, saying, Set bounds about the mount, and sanctifie it.

r The People are sufficiently admonished in that particular, because as thou didst command this same thing before, verse 12. so I have informed and warned them of it; so that it may seem superfluous for me to go down again to acquaint them herewith. But God, who better knew the dulness and the hardness of their Hearts than Moses did, saw it necessary to repeat the same command again and again. Some read the words interrogatively, Is for hale, as it is 2 Sam. 13. 26. 2 Kings 5. 26. Job 2. 10. Mal. 2. 15. May not the people (i. e. some of the People, the Priests at least, which, as thou hast now said, may come neer to the Lord) go up? Is this an universal prohibition? To this Answer is given by a distinction in the next verse, that he and Aaron might come up, but no other.

24 And the LORD said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou, and Aaron with thee: but let not the priests and the people break through, to come up unto the LORD, lest he break forth upon them.

25 So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

CHAP. XX.

The object of man's worship, 1, 2. The Decalogue, 3 —— 17. The people fear, 18. They desire Moses to speak to them, and not God, 19. Moses encourages them, 20. Moses drawing near the darkness, God speaks to him, 21, 22. God's charge about making no other Gods, 23. God's command to build an altar, and of what they should make it, 24, 25. And in what manner they should approach unto it, 26.

AND a God spake b all these words c, saying,

a Or, Then, to wit, when Moses was returned into the Mount. b Immediately, and not by an Angel. For though an Ambassadour or Messenger may act in the name of his Master, yet it is against the use of all Ages and Places for such to call themselves by his name. As well might an Ambassadour of France say, I am the King of France, which all men would account absurd, arrogant, and ridiculous, as an Angel might say, I am the Lord. c (i. e.) Commands, for so the word is used Deut. 17. 19. Esth. 1. 12.

2 * I am the LORD thy God d, which have * Deut. 5. 6. Psal. 81. 10. Hos. 13. 4. Chap. 29. 46. Heb. words. brought thee out of the land of Egypt e, * out of the house f of † bondage:

d The only true God, and thy God by special Title, having entred into Covenant with thee, and chosen thee for my peculiar People, to protect, and rule, and bless thee above all others. God's Authority and Right over them is fitly put in the front, as the Foundation of all God's Commands, and their Duties. e And so by Right of Redemption thou art mine. f (i. e.) The place; for so the word house is sometimes used, as Judg. 16. 21.

3 Thou shalt have no other Gods g before me h.

g Heb. There shall not be to thee another God, or other Gods, to wit, Idols, which others have, esteem and worship as Gods, and therefore Scripture so calls them by way of supposition, Deut. 32. 21. 1 Sam. 12. 21. 1 Cor. 8. 4, 5. but thou shalt not have them in any such Reputation or Veneration, but shalt forsake and abhor them, and cleave unto me alone. h (i. e.) In my Presence, in my House or Church, which you are, where I am especially present; and therefore for you to worship any other God is most impudent Idolatry, even as when a Woman commits Adultery before her Husband's Face. He may also intimate, that all the Idolatry which any of them shall hereafter commit, though never so cunningly and secretly managed, is manifest to his eyes, Psal. 44. 20, 21. Others translate it with me, or besides me, as it is rendred Matth. 12. 36. He forbids the worship of all others, not only in opposition to him, but also in conjunction with him, or subordination to him. See 2 Kings 17. 33. Exod. 32. Acts 7. 41. Revel. 19. 10. and 22. 8, 9 4 * Thou shalt not make i unto thee k any graven * Lev. 26. 1. Psal. 97. 7. image l, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven m above, or that is in the earth n beneath, or that is in the water o under the earth p.

i Either in thy Mind, or with thy Hand, Acts 17. 29. or by thy command. k (i. e.) For thy use, or for thee to worship; for otherwise they were not absolutely forbidden to make any Images, but only to make them for worship, as may appear by comparing this place with Levit. 19. 4. Deut. 4. 15. and Amos 5. 26. with Acts 7. 43. and from Levit. 26. 1. where the setting up of a pillar, or stone, is as absolutely forbidden as the making of an Image. And therefore as the former is not forbidden to be done simply and universally, as appears from Jos. 24. 20. 1 Sam. 7. 12. but only to be done in order to worship, so also is the latter. Moreover there were Cherubims and other Images in the Temple, and afterwards the Brazen Serpent, which, because they were not made to be worshipped, neither were indeed, nor were ever esteemed to be any contradictions to this Law. l Or molten, or any other Image, as is most evident from the the nature and reason of the Precept. Nor is any thing more common than such synecdochical Expressions, wherein under one kind many other things of the like nature are contained. But for more abundant caution, and to put all out of doubt, he adds a more abundant word, nor any likeness. m As of God, Deut. 4. 15. Isa. 44. 9, 20. Angels, Sun, Moon, or Stars, which the Heathens worshipped, Deut. 4. 19. and 17. 3. n As of Men and Beasts, and creeping things, which the Egyptians and other Gentiles worshipped as Gods. See Deut. 4. 16, 17. Isa. 44. 13. Ezek. 23. 14. o As of Fishes, such as Dagon was; or Serpents, Crocodiles, and such other Egyptian Deities. p This is emphatically added, to note the singular care of Divine Providence in bringing the Waters under the Earth, which naturally are lighter and higher than it, and therefore might easily overwhelm it. Compare Psal 104. 6.

5 Thou shalt not bow down thy self q to them r, Chap. 34. 14. Deut. 4. 24. Josh. 24. 19. Nah. 1. 2. Chap. 34. 7. Numb. 14. 18. 2 King. 21. Job 5. 2. and 21. Isa. 14. 20, 21 and 65. 6, 7. Jer. 2. 9. and 32. 18. nor serve them s: for I the LORD thy God am a * jealous t God, u * visiting x the iniquity of the fathers upon the children y, unto the third and fourth generation z of them that hate me a:

q Not only inward Reverence is forbidden, but also all outward Gestures that naturally or customarily express Reverence, whether bowing down the Body, as here; or bending the knee, as 1 Kings 19. 18. or kissing the Idol, or one's Hand towards it, as Job 31. 27. Hos. 13. 2. one Gesture being by a Synecdoche named for all. r Nor before them; for to bow to them, and to bow before them, are Expressions in Scripture of the same extent and use, as appears by comparing this place with Levit. 26. 1. 2 Chron. 25. 14. and 2 Sam. 7. 22. with 1 Chron. 17. 25. and Matth. 4. 9. with Luke 4. 7. s Or, worship them, either inwardly in thy Mind, or outwardly by any sensible mean or sign of worship given to them, as Incense or Sacrifice, Vowing to them, or Swearing by them, or the like. s (i. e.) Imitate patient of any partner in thy love and worship, and full of wrath against them that give my Glory to Images, Isa 42. 8. as jealousie u the rage of a man, (Prov. 6. 34.) against the defiler of his Marriage-bed. God is pleased to call and account himself the Husband of his Church and People, Jer. 2. 2. Hos. 2. 19. and therefore Idolatry is called Adultery, Deut. 31. 16. Jer. 3. 3, 10. and God's anger against Idolaters, jealousie. u The word el, properly signifies the strong God, and shews God's ability to avenge himself, as the word, jealous, notes his readiness and resolution to do it. x (i. e.) Remembring; enquiring into, or punishing, as that word is commonly used, as hath been noted before. y Quest. How can this be just? Answ. 1. All are born Sinners, and are Children of wrath, and therefore justly punishable for their own Sins. Answ. 2. He speaks not here of eternal Damnation, but of temporal Punishments, in which there is no shadow of injustice, as appears, 1. Because the Sins of Parents are oft punished in their Children, even in humane Courts, as is manifest in Traitors, which practise being acknowledged to be just, it cannot with any sense be accounted unjust in God. 2. Because such external Punishments have more good than evil in them, and are in many, and may be so in others, if themselves do not hinder it, instruments of the greatest Good, exercises of their Vertues and Graces, and means of their eternal Happiness. 3. Because Children are a part and the possession of their Parents, and therefore it is not unjust if they suffer with them, and for them. Answ. 3. This is to be understood with an exception of Repentance, and Penitent Children, as appears from Ezek. 18. And if any such be temporally punished for their Father's Sins, God will abundantly recompence it to them some other way. But if Children tread in their Father's sinful steps, it is but just that they should partake of their Plagues. z And further too, as appears in the Ten Tribes, and afterwards in the Two Tribes, upon whom the iniquity of their Fathers hath been visited now for many Generations. But he mentions them in particular, partly because a Parent may live so long, and see the dreadful effects of his Sin in his Childrens Children; partly because so far the Memory of a Father may extend, and be matter of imitation to his Children; and partly to shew the difference between his exercise of Justice and Mercy, as appears by comparing the next verse. a This word is opposed to the conceit that Idolaters, at least many of them, have of themselves, that they love God more than others do, because they love, and honour, and worship the Creatures for his sake, and for those Excellencies that he hath wrought in them; but this will no more excuse their Idolatry, than it will excuse him that commits Adultery with his Friend's Wife, that he did it for his Friend's sake, and from the love he had to his Friend, and for his Relations.

Deut. 7. 9. Psal. 89. 34. 6 And * shewing mercy unto thousands b of them that love me, and keep my commandments c.

b To wit, of their Generations, i. e. for ever; whereas his Punishment extended only to three or four of them: So far is God's Mercy exalted above his Justice. Compare Psal. 103. 17. c This conjunction is very observeable both against those that slily and foolishly pretend or insinuate, that the inward affection of love to God is not absolutely and always necessary to Salvation; and also against them who pretending inward love to God, live in the customary breach of God's known commands.

Lev. 19. 12. Deut. 5. 11. Matth. 5. 33. 7 * Thou shalt not take † the Name of the LORD thy God in vain c: for the LORD will not hold him guiltless f that taketh his Name in vain.

† Or, not carry, or not take, or lift up, to wit, in or into thy Mouth, as the phrase is more fully expressed, Job 4. 2. Psalm 16. 4. and 50. 16. So Men are said to take up a proverb, or a lamentation, Isa. 14. 4. Ezek. 26. 17. d Not only the proper Name of the Lord, but any of his Attributes, Ordinances, and Works, by which God hath made himself known. e Or, unto vanity, or vainly. Either 1. Falsly, or in a false Oath; thou shalt not swear falsly by the Name of the Lord, or not lift up the Name of God into thy Mouth in an Oath to the confirmation of a Lie. Or, 2. In vain, as we render it, and as the word Schawe is frequently used, as Job 7. 3. and 15. 31. Psalm 60. 11. and 89 47. Isaiah 1. 13. You shall not use the Name of God either in Oaths, or in common Discourse, lightly, rashly, irreverently, or unnecessarily, or without weighty or sufficient Cause. Which being a Duty enjoyned not only in many places of Sacred Scripture, but also in the Apocryphal Ecclesiasticus, 23. 15, 16, 17. and even by Heathen Authors, as Plato in his Book of Laws; and it being evident by the Light of Nature to Man's Reason, it were strange if it were not here understood; especially considering, that it is most reasonable to take these short Laws in the most comprehensive sense, such as this, not the former, is; for the prohibition of using it vainly and rashly, doth certainly include that of swearing by it fallly; but this latter doth not include the former. Besides, the former Expolition restrains the words to swearing, whereas the words are more general, and speak of any taking God's Name into their Mouths, either by Oaths, or any other way. And it becomes not us to set limits to God's words, where God hath set none. It is also here to be observed, as well as in the other commands, that when this Sin is forbidden, the contrary Duty is commanded, to wit, to use the Name of God both in swearing and otherwise, holily, cautiously and reverently. f Or, Innocent, (i. e.) free from guilt, and the punishment of it; the meaning is, the Lord will look upon him as a guilty Person, and will severely punish him. And so this, or the like phrase is used, 1 Kings 2. 9. And it is a common figure, called Metosis, where more is understood than is expressed, as 1 Sam. 12 21. Psalm 25. 3. Prov. 10. 2. And this reason is here added, because Sinners of this sort are usually held innocent by Men, either because they cannot discover their fault when they forswear themselves, or because they take no care to punish the Abusers of God's Name by vain and customary Oaths, Curses, or Blasphemies, q. d. Though Men spare them, I will assuredly punish them.

8 Remember g the sabbath day to keep it holy †.

g This word is here very emphatical; and 1. It reminds us of a former delivery of the substance of this command, to wit, Gen. 2. 3. 2. It insinuates the great necessity of Consideration and Preparation for the Sabbath before it comes. 3. It shews the singular importance of this Command, which is therefore placed in the heart and center of the rest, to shew, that the religious Observation of this is the best way to secure our obedience to all the rest; and that the neglect of this will bring in the violation of all the other, as common experience shews. † (i. e.) To use it holily; by a careful abstinence from servile Works or worldly Business, and by a diligent employing of the day in holy Thoughts, Words, and Exercises, in the Worship of God in publick and private, and the Celebration of his Works; and the furthering of our own, and others Sanctification and Salvation. See Isa. 58. 13.

9 * Six days shalt thou labour h, and do all thy * Chap. 23. 12. and 31. 14. Lev. 23. 3. Deut. 5. 13. Ezek. 20. 12. Luke 13. 14. work:

h This may be either, 1. A command to employ those days in our worldly occasions, yet so as God and Religion be not neglected on those days, as many Scriptures teach us. Or, 2. A permission or to do so; which I prefer, 1. Because so it is a proper Argument to enforce the Observation of the Sabbath, q. d. Grudge not me one day, when I allow you six for it. 2. Because the command of Diligence in our Callings would seem improperly placed here, as being of a quite different nature, and belonging to the second Table, and being provided for in a distinct command, as we shall see.

10 But the seventh day is the sabbath of the LORD i thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work k; thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle m, nor thy stranger n that is within thy gates o:

i Or, To the Lord, (i. e.) Consecrated to his Use, Honour, and Service. Hence God calls them my Sabbaths, Levit. 26 2. Isa. 56. 4. because they are commended by his Example, and enjoyned by his Command. k (i. e.) Any servile, laborious, common or worldly Work, tending to thy own profit or pleasure. See Exod. 34. 21. Levit. 23. 7 Numb. 28. 18. Isaiah 58. 13. l This Clause is added, not as if Children or Servants were not immediately obliged by this Command, or were excused by God for the breach of this Law at their Master's commands, which were to obey God rather than Men, contrary to St. Peter's command and practice, Acts 5. 29. and which were to limit the foregoing word thou, and the Law of the Sabbath, only to those that have Children and Servants, which is an idle, senseless, and absurd, as well as profane Opinion; but to restrain hard-hearted, and covetous, or ungodly Persons, that they should neither command nor suffer their Children or Servants to profane the Sabbath, so far as they can hinder it. Which how far it concerns thousands of Governors of Families at this day, they shall do well seriously and in time to consider. m Partly to teach us to exercise mercy towards the brute Creatures; compare Deut. 5. 14. partly, because the use of Cattle must have drawn along with it the attendance and employment of Men; and partly, that by observing the Rest of the Cattle, they might be more minded and quickened to the Observation of this sacred Rest. n (i. e.) The Gentile that sojourneth with thee; lest their Example should provoke the Israelites to imitate them; and lest the Gentiles should have opportunity of gaining at that time when, and by that thing whereby, the Israelites were losers, even by the religious Observation of the Sabbath. o (i. e.) That dwells within thy Cities, which have Walls and Gates, or within thy Villages or Territories. So the word, Gates, is oft taken, as Gen. 22. 17. and 24. 60. and 2 Sam. 10. 8. compared with 1 Chron. 19. 9.

11 For * in six days p the LORD made heaven and
* Gen. 2. 2. earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested q the seventh day: wherefore the LORD blessed r the sabbath day s, and hallowed it t.

p And neither in more nor less time, as he could have done. q (i. e.) Ceased from his creating Works; otherwise he worketh still, (John 5. 17.) by his Providence and Grace; and neither is idle, nor weary, Isaiah 40. 28. but this rest is ascribed to him for our Admonition and Imitation. r (i. e.) Made it a day of Blessing, as well of receiving Blessings and Praises from Men, as of conferring his Blessings and Favours upon those that religiously observe it. The Day is said to be blessed, when Men are blessed by it, and in it, by a common Metonymy, as a Man's Field, Gen. 27. 27. and basket and store, Deut. 28 5. and the work of his hands, Job 1. 10. are said to be blessed, when a Man is blessed in them. s It is remarkable, the Blessing and Sanctification are not appropriated to the Seventh day, but to the Sabbath-day, whether it should be the Seventh day, as to the Jews it then was; or the first day, as to us Christians now it is, which change seems hereby to be insinuated. t (i. e.) Separated it from the rest of the days, and from all common Employments, and consecrated it to his own holy Service, and Man's holy Use.

* Lev. 19 3. Deut. 5. 16. Eph. 6. 2. 12 ¶ * Honour u thy father and thy mother x: that thy days may be long y upon the land, which the LORD thy God giveth thee.

u Which word doth not only note the Reverence, Love, and Obedience we owe them, but also support and maintenance, as appears from Matth. 15. 4, 5, 6 and from the like signification of that word, 1 Tim. 5. 3, 17. which is so natural and necessary a Duty, that the Jews say, a man is bound even to beg, or to work with his hands that he may relieve his Parents. x The Father is put first here, and the Mother, Levit. 19 3. to shew that we owe this Duty promiscuously and indifferently to both of them. Compare Exod. 21. 15, 17. Deut. 21. 18. and 27 16. Prov. 20. 20. and 30. 17. And because these Laws are brief, and yet comprehensive, under these are contained all our Superiors and Governors. y Heb. that they i. e. thy Parents, may prolong thy days, or the days of thy Life, to wit, instrumentally, by their Prayers made to God for thee, and by their Blessing in my Name conferred upon thee; though the active Verb is commonly taken impersonally, as Job 7. 3. Prov. 9. 11. Luke 12. 10. and so it may be here, they prolong, for, be prolonged.

* Rom. 13. 9. 13 * Thou shalt not kill z.

z To wit, any Man or Woman, without Authority and without just Cause; which exception must necessarily be understood, because many other Scriptures command the Magistrate to kill great Offenders. And this Prohibition, being delivered by God who made and searcheth, and commands Mens hearts, must be extended not only to the external Act of killing, but to all motions of the Heart or Tongue which tend that way, as Anger, Hatred, Envy, Malice, Strife, Blows, and the Challenges of Duellists; which is clearly manifest by comparing this with other Scriptures, as Matth. 5. 21. 1 John 3. 15, &c. And here, as in the rest, is commanded the contrary Duty of preserving the lives of our Neighbours as much as lies in our Power.

14 Thou shalt not commit adultery a.

a Here is mentioned one kind of Uncleanness, as being eminently sinful, and unjust, and pernicious to Humane Society. But under this are comprehended and forbidden all other kinds of Filthiness, as Beastiality, Sodomy, Whoredom, Fornication, &c. and all means, occasions, and appearances of them, as it appears 1. from other Scriptures that forbid those things, which either belong to this Command, or to none of the Ten, which is very improbable. 2. From the large extent of the other Commands, noted before. 3. From our Saviour's Explication, Matth. 5. 27. And contrariwise, all Chastity and Sobriety in Thoughts, Affections, Words, Habits, and Gestures, is here prescribed. See 1 Thes. 4. 3, 4. Heb. 13 4.

15 Thou shalt not steal b.

b (i. e.) Either by deceit or violence, or without his knowledge and consent, take away another Man's Goods, Eph. 4 28. but on the contrary shalt preserve and increase them, as need requires, and occasion is offered.

* Deut. 19. 16. 16 * Thou shalt not bear false witness c against † thy neighbour d.

c Heb. not answer, viz. when thou art asked in Judgment, Lev 5. 1. 19. 16 or, not speak a false testimony, or as a false Witness. Which doth not only forbid Perjury in Judgment, but also all unjust Censure, Slander, Backbiting, Scorning, false Accusation, and the like; and also requires a just and candid Judgment of him; and of his Words and Actions, speaking well of him, as far as Truth and Justice will permit, and defending his good Name against the Calumnies and Detractions of others. † Or, not for thy Neighbours; but he saith against, both because such Perjuries, Slanders, &c. are most commonly designed against them, and because this is a great aggravation of the Sin when a Man not only speaks evil and falsehood, but doth this from malice and ill-will. But under this kind are contained other Sins of a like, though less sinful nature, as in the other commands. d A Man's Neighbour here is not only the Israelite, as some would have it, but any Man; as plainly appears, 1. because that word is frequently used in that sense, not only in the New, as all agree, but also in the Old Testament, as Gen. 21 by 3. Levit. 20. 10. Esth. 1. 19. Prov. 18 17. 2. Because it is so explained, Luke 10. 29, 36. Rom. 13. 9 compared with Matth. 22. 39. 3. From the reason of the thing, which is common to all; unless a Man will be so hardy to say, that he may bear false Witness against a Stranger, though not against an Israelite; and, in like manner, that when God forbids a Man to commit adultery with his neighbour's wife, Lev. 20. 10. he may do it with a Stranger's Wife; and that though a Man be commanded to speak the truth to his neighbour, Zech. 8. 16. he may tell lies to a Stranger. 4. Because the great law of Love and Charity, which is the Life and Soul of this, and all the Commands, and binds us to all, binds us, and bound the Israelites to Strangers, as appears from Exod. 23. 4. and Lev. 19. 33, 34.

* Acts 20. 33. Rom. 7. 7. * Job 31. 9. 17 * Thou shalt not covet e thy neighbours house, thou shalt not * covet thy neighbours wife, nor his manservant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbours.

e The coveting here forbidden is, either, 1. The inward and deliberate purpose and desire of a deceitful or violent taking away of another Man's Goods; but this is forbidden in the eighth Commandment. And it is hard to conceive, that St. Paul should think, that this Command did not forbid such a practice, Rom. 7. 7. which even the better sort of Heathens esteemed a Sin, whose words are, that they who are withheld from incest, or whoredom, or theft, only from a principle of fear, are guilty of those Crimes; especially seeing from a principle of fear, are guilty of those Crimes; especially seeing from a principle of fear, are guilty of those Crimes; especially seeing from a principle of fear, are guilty of those Crimes would keep her, and yet deny those duties to her, then as his fault was aggravated, so was his punishment; for now he cannot sell her, but must let her go freely, in this verse.

*Gen. 9. 6. Lev. 24. 17.

12 * He that smiteth a man y so that he die, shall be surely put to death z.

y Knowingly and wilfully, as appears by the next verse. z Neither the friends of the Party slain, nor the Magistrate, shall give him a pardon, or accept a ransom for him, Numb. 35. 31.

*Deut. 19. 3. Josh. 20. 2.

13 And if a man lie not in wait a, but God deliver him into his hand b, then * I will appoint thee a place whither he shall flee c:

a If it appear, that the Man-slayer did not intend nor desire it, but only it fell out by his heedlesness y or by some casualty. b By some unexpected Providence; or, God, and not Man, God without the Man's contrivance or design; for otherwise in a general sense and way, God delivered Christ into the hands of Judas and the Jews, who did advisedly and maliciously kill him. c (i. e.) A City or place of refuge, Numb. 35. 11. Deut. 19. 5.

* 1 King 2. 28.

14 But if a man come presumptuously d upon his neighbour to slay him with guile, * thou shalt take him from mine Altar e that he may die.

d (i. e.) Do this proudly, boldly, purposely and maliciously; for so the word signifies. e Which not only in the Wilderness, but afterward, seems to have been esteemed a place of refuge, 1 King. 1 50. as it also was among the Heathens. But God so far abhors murther, that he will rather venture the pollution of his own Altar, than the escape of the murtherer. See 2 King. 11. 15.

15 And he that smiteth e his father, or his mother, shall be surely put to death.

e Either 1. So as is before mentioned, ver. 12. so as they die. And to smite sometimes signifies to kill; 2 Gen. 4. 15. 2 Kings 14. 5. compared with 2 Chron. 25. 3. And this may be here added by way of distinction, q. d. That killing of another man which is punished with death, must be done presumptuously; but the killing of Parents, tho not done presumptuously, is a capital crime. Or 2. the meer smiting of them; to wit, wilfully, and dangerously. Now will any think this Law too severe, that considers that this is an act full of horrid impiety against God, who hath so expressly and emphatically commanded Children to honour their Parents, of the highest and most unnatural ingratitude, and utterly destructive to human Society.

16 And he that stealeth a man and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand f; he shall surely be put to death.

f (i. e.) In the Man-stealer's hand; q. d. though he keep him in his own hands for his own use, or lose still it is a theft, and he is made that man's slave, and it is in his power to sell him to another when he pleaseth, and therefore deserves death.

* Lev. 20. 9. Prov. 20. 20. Mat. 15 4 Mar. 7. 10. † Or, revileth.

17 And * he that † curseth g his father or his mother, shall surely be put to death.

* Or, revileth, to wit, wilfully, maliciously, obstinately against all admonition, by comparing Deut. 21. 18.

18 And if men strive together, and one smite † another with a stone g, or with his fist, and he die not, but keep his bed:

† Or, revileth.

g Or any other Instrument fit for such a mischievous purpose. An usual Synecdoche.

† Or, his neighbour.

19 If he arise again, and walk abroad upon his staff, then shall he that smote him be quit: only he shall pay † for the loss of his time h, and shall cause him to be thoroughly healed i.

h (i. e.) Of the profit which he could, or commonly did make of his time in the way of his Calling. i (i. e.) Pay the charges of the cure.

20 And if a man smite his servant k, or his maid, with a rod l, and he die under his hand m, he shall be surely † punished n:

k Namely a Stranger; for an Israelite was to be better used, See Lev. 25. 39. 40, 46. l A fit and usual Instrument for correction, whereby it is implied, that if he kill'd him with a Sword, or any such Weapon, he was to die for it. m (i. e.) Whilst the Master is correcting him. n Not with death, for then it would have been said so, as it is before and after; but as the Magistrate or Judge shall think fit, according to the diversity of circumstances; and therefore no particular punishment is set down.

21 Notwithstanding, if he continue a day or two, he shall not be punished, for he is his money o.

o (viz.) His Possession bought with his money; and therefore, to find a power to chastise him according to his demerit, which might be very great. 2. Is sufficiently punished with his own loss. 3. May be presumed not to have done this purposely and maliciously.

22 If men strive and hurt a woman with child, so that her fruit depart from her, and yet no mischief follow q, he shall be surely punished according as the woman's husband will lay upon him, and he shall pay as the Judges determine.

p To wit, the Wife of the other Party, who interposed herself to succour her Husband. q Neither to the Woman, nor Child; for it is generally true in such cases both, to save the Abortive has life in it.

r The Husband shall impose the fine, and, if it be unreasonable, then Judges shall have a power to moderate it.

23 And if any mischief s follow, then thou shalt give life for life, s Either to the Mother, or to the Child, whether it be death or any other mischief. † Viz. 22. ante. Not the private person, which would have introduced infinite mischiefs and confusion, but the Magistrate; for these Laws are given to Moses, and the execution of these things was committed to Moses, and others under him.

24 * Eye for eye t, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot,

* Lev. 24. 20. Deut. 19. 21. Mat. 5.

t This is called the Law of Retaliation, and from hence the Heathen Lawgivers took it and put it into their Laws. But though this might sometimes be practised in the letter, yet it was not necessarily to be understood and executed so; as may appear, 1. by the impossibility of the just execution of it in many cases, as when a man that had but one Eye or Hand, was to lose the other, which to him was a far greater mischief than what he did to his Neighbour, whom he deprived but of one of his Eyes or Hands. And this is a sure and righteous Rule, Punishments may be less, but never should be greater, than the Fault. And how could a Wound be made neither bigger nor less than that which he inflicted? 2. By comparing this with other Laws, wherein a compensation is allowed in like cases, as ver. 18. 30. And when it is enjoined, that no satisfaction shall be taken for the life of a wilful murtherer, Numb. 35. 31. it seems therein implied, that satisfaction may be taken for lesser injuries. And indeed the payment of such a price, as the loss of an Eye, or Hand, or Foot, required, though it might not so much satisfy the revenge of the Party so injured, yet it was really more to his benefit. This Law therefore was only mitatory, but so as it was literally to be inflicted, except the injuring Party would give such satisfaction as the injured Person accepted, or the Judges determined.

25 Burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe.

26 And if a man smite the eye of his servant u, or the eye of his maid, that it perish, he shall let them go free for his eyes sake.

u Which some confine to the Israelitish Servants, but the Text doth not so limit it; and the reason of the Law seems to reach to Gentile servants, this being a just punishment to unmerciful Masters, (who oughtto be merciful to their Beasts, much more to such Servants) and a fit recompence to a Servant for such a loss. And this Law reacheth the loss of any other Members; these two being instanced in, the one as the chief, and the other as the meanest, to intimate that other parts of a like or middle nature are included.

27 And if he smite out his man-servants tooth, or his maid-servants tooth, he shall let him go free for his tooths sake.

28 ¶ If an ox x gore a man or a woman that they die, then * the ox shall be surely stoned y, and his flesh shall not be eaten †: but the owner of the ox shall be quit.

* Gen. 9.

x Under which you are to understand any other Creatures of like nature which hurt a Man in such a dangerous manner, whether with their Horns, or Teeth, or Feet; but he mentions only the Ox or Bull, and his goring with his Horn, because this is most frequently done. y Partly to prevent future mischiefs from that Creature; partly to punish its Master for his negligence in not keeping it in; and principally for Man's admonition, for whom seeing the Beasts were made, it is not strange nor unjust if it be destroyed for Man's good. God would hereby shew that he would not; and Men should not spare a wilful Murderer. † Both because it was forbidden food, its blood being not let out; and for the Punishment of the Owner who was thereby hindred from the sale of it, to beget in all the greater detestation of Murderers, when they observe the poor beast upon this account accursed, and therefore not to be touched or tasted.

29 But if the ox were wont to push with his horn in time past, and it hath been testified z to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman, the ox shall be stoned, and his owner also shall be put to death.

z Which the Jews say was to be done thrice, and before the Magistrate, viz. To wit, on Sabbaths, or a Stranger who is free, by comparing this with verse 32.

30 If there be laid on him b a sum of money, then he shall give for * the ransom of his life whatsoever is laid upon him.

Numb. 35. 31.

b Either by the avenger of Blood, the next a-kin to the party slain, who is willing to exchange the Punishment; or by the Judge, who may discern some circumstances, which may much lessen the Crime, as if an Ox had broken his Cords wherewith he was tyed, or broke forth through the carelesness or wickedness of his Servant to whose care he was committed.

31 Whether he have gored a son c, or have gored a daughter, according to this judgment shall it be done unto him.

c Names signifying their tender Age, in respect of the man or woman, verse 29. And this is added, lest the foregoing sense should be restrained to their Parents, whose lives were more precious, and therefore their loss greater.

32 If the ox shall push a man-servant, or a maid-servant, he shall give unto their master thirty shekels d, and the ox shall be stoned.

d The half the freeman's Price. See on Matth. 26. 15.

33 ¶ And if a man shall open a pit, or if a man shall dig a pit e, and not cover it, and an ox or an ass fall therein;

e If a Man shall either open an old Pit, which has been covered with Earth; or dig a new pit, in a public way, as the sense of the Law shews; or if it were done in a Man's own House or Ground, there will be danger of such an accident, except the Beast Beast transgressed his bounds, and then the Man was not culpable.

34 The owner of the pit † shall make it good, and give money † unto the owner of them, and the dead beast shall be his.

† (i. e.) He by whose Hand or Command it was made. † Equal to the worth of the dead Beast, in the opinion of the Judge.

35 ¶ And if one mans ox hurt another that he die, then they shall sell the live ox, and divide the money of it g, and the dead ox also they shall divide.

g Not equally, for so the Owner of the mischievous Ox might be gainer by the mischief, his Ox being much more than that which was killed; but in such proportions as the Judges shall think fit, considering the worth of the Cattle, and the circumstances of the Action.

36 Or if it be known that the ox hath used to push in time past, and his owner hath not kept him in, he shall surely pay ox for ox h, and the dead shall be his own.

h An Ox of equal value with that slain Ox, or the price and worth of it.

CHAP. XXII.

Of theft, 1—3. Of eating another man's vineyard, 5. Of fire coming by fire, 6. Of hurt coming to goods committed to safe trust, 7—13. Of hurt befalling things borrowed, 15. Of committing adultery, 17. Of witchcraft, 18. Of wickedness with beasts, 19. Of idolatry, 20. That none shall hurt strangers, or widows, 22—24. Of usury, 25. Of pawning clothes, 27. Of honouring magistrates, 28. Of the first fruits, 29. Of eating flesh torn by beasts, 31.

Or, great.

IF a man shall steal an ox, or a † sheep a, and kill it, or sell it b, he shall restore five oxen for an ox, and † four sheep for a sheep c.

2 Sam. 12. 6 Luke. 19. 8. See other like proportions, Prov. 6. 31.

† Or, an ass, which is added verse 4. and consequently any other beast.

a Or, an ass, which is added verse 4. and consequently any beast. b Which was an aggravation of the Crime, and argued greater Boldness, Resolvedness, and Experness in the Trade of Thieving, than was in him who kept it at home, verse 4. c Why so much, seeing the stealer of other things was tried to restore but double? Answ. 1. For terrour, because cheap Beasts being kept in the fields might more easily be stolen. 2 Because the loss of these was greater than of other things; for they did not only lose what the Cattle might be sold for, but all the fewer increase, and other benefits which a Man might receive from them. Quest. 2. Why more for Oxen than for Sheep? Answ. 1. Because it argued greater boldness and customarinesse in the Thief to steal that which might more easily be discovered. 2. Because besides the intrinsick worth of the Ox, the labour of the Ox was very considerable to his Owner, Prov. 14. 4. and therefore the less greater.

2 ¶ If a thief be found breaking up d, and be smitten, that he die, there shall no blood be shed for him e.

d To wit, an house, which the Chaldee here addeth, and rightly, as appears from the next verse. e (i. e.) For the Thief, though he be killed by a Man in his own defence. Because in that case the Thief might be presumed to have a worse Design, and the Owner of the House could neither expect, or have the help of others to secure him from the intended Violence, nor guide his blows with that discretion and moderation, which in the day-time he might use.

f He that kills him shall be put to death, because the punished him more than his Crime deserved, and might have been otherwise either secured or righted; and in that case, it is probable, the Thief designed non Murder, but Theft only. But if it were evident, that the House-breaker designed Murder, he might doubtless kill him in his own defence. g Either so long till his service was worth the thing stollen, or rather for the ordinary time of six years, because this was but a simple Thief, but an House-breaker, which was much worse. Quest. How can he be sold, who is supposed to be killed? Answ. 1. The Hebrew word may be here rendred should be sold, as the foregoing word of the same sentence is rendred, should make restitution, to wit, if he were not killed; who therefore the slayer of him being sufficiently secured against this injury, was more culpable in killing him without necessity.

4 If the theft be certainly found in his hand alive h, whether it be ox, or ass, or sheep, he shall restore double i.

h Not killed, nor sold, as verse. 1, 3. Not more. 1. Because in that case it was presumed, either that he intended to restore it, or at least that he was so raw and unexercised in the trade of stealing, and so should be more gently punished. 2. Because the right Owner recovered his Goods with less charge and trouble. Or 2. Because it was but a single Crime, whereas the other verse 1. was an aggravated and complicated Crime, in which case Sin and Duty was due to another. Obj. It is said, he shall restore seven fold, Prov. 6. 31. Answ. 1. seven fold is put for abundantly, as the word is often used as Gen. 4. 24. Psal. 12. 6. and 79. 12. and 89. 50. and elsewhere; or it is never used for that definite number. 2. That seven fold, or seven times, may relate not to the proportion of the Restitution, but to the number of his Thefts, as often as he was taken in the Theft, i. e. though he be never guilty of more crimes, yet his Punishment is, that he shall restore as the Law prescribes. Whereas Adultery, of which he there speaks in the following verses, is a Crime of that nature, that if a man be once found guilty of it, restitution cannot be made, nor will it serve him, that he falls into all the mischiefs there reckoned up.

5 ¶ If a man shall cause a field or vineyard k to be eaten, and shall put in his beast, and shall feed in another mans field, of the best of his own field, and of the best of his own vineyard shall he make restitution.

k Or, Orchard, or other things of like nature; which is generally to be observed in Laws.

6 ¶ If fire break out and catch in thorns, so that the stacks of corn, or the standing corn, or the field be consumed therewith, he that kindled the fire l, shall surely make restitution m.

l Whether wilfully for such a purpose, or carelesly in such a time or place as was dangerous. m Which if he were not able to do, it is probable he was to be sold for it, as in like cases was prov'ded.

7 ¶ If a man shall deliver unto his neighbour money or stuff n to keep, and it be stollen out of the mans house; if the thief be found, let him pay double.

n Heb. Vessels, Garments, Utensils, or any kind of Houshold-stuff.

8 If the thief be not found, then the master of the house shall be brought unto the judges to see whether he have put his hand unto his neighbours goods p.

o That they may examine all Circumstances, and use all means to find out the Truth, by offering him his Oath, or otherwise. p Either to take and reserve them for his own use, or to dispose of them to another for his own advantage.

9 For all manner of trespass q, whether it be for ox, for ass, for sheep, for raiment, or for any manner of lost thing, which another challengeth to be his; the cause of both parties shall come unto the judges, and whom the judges shall condemn r, he shall pay double unto his neighbour.

q To wit, about matters deposited upon trust, and lost, of which kind most Thefts are. Or, Action, or concerning which he shall bring his suit, &c. The thing they have lost, or rather, that it be, to whom I continued it, and whom I suspect the charge is guilty. Whether the person with whom the things were deposited, if they judged him guilty of Theft, or the Deputy, if he were convicted of a false Accusation.

10 ¶ If a man deliver unto his neighbour an ass, or an ox, or a sheep, or any beast to keep s, and it die, or be hurt, or driven away, no man seeing t:

s As his Servant, not freely, but for wages. t Then shall an oath of the LORD u be between them both, that he hath not put his hand unto his neighbours goods; and the owner of it shall accept thereof, and he shall not make it good.

u So called here, as also 1 Kings 1. 43. because it is taken by his Authority and Appointment, and for his Honour; and in his Name alone, God having made such Wives, and Judges, and Avengers thereby. q. (i. e.) Which is the difference between them both, the one shall give his Oath, and the other shall accept of it, or be taken by them both; by the one, that he did deliver them to him upon Agreement, and by the other, that he put nothing into his Hand to them.

11 And if it be stollen from him v, he shall make restitution unto the owner thereof.

v Heb. from with him, which is an emphatick Expression, and notes that this was taken away, either 1. From those things which were with him, or which were his, i. e. from the midst of his own Goods, which supposeth fraud in him. Or 2. From under his eye, when he either did not mind it, or with common care and diligence it might have been known and prevented, and this argues gross neglect in him. And this is one reason why this man is bound to make restitution, when the other ver. 7. is not; another reason or the difference is, because those things verse 7. were only or principally used things and such things is required no great care; or if any, that for in that circumstance included. Oxen, Asses, &c. verse 9. yet he, with whom they were left, received no recompence for them, and therefore was not obliged to any singular care about them; but here the things were such as needed great care and diligence, which also the man was obliged to perform by the like which he received upon that account, which was Jacob's case, Gen. 31. 39.

12 If it be torn in pieces, then let him bring it for witness, x and he shall not make good that which was torn.

x Some part of the torn Creature, which the wild beast might have left, Amos 3. 12. Quest. What if the whole Creature were carried away? Answ. 1. Sheep or Lamb is sometimes by the Word of God, Isa. 53. 7. Applied to the whole, and that sometimes was left on the place, which the Shepherd might easily procure. 2. The words may be likewise rendered, he shall bring a part for a witness, the chief part, or the head, or the like, whereby the Judge might be satisfied, that the Creature was torn in pieces, and not stollen by the Keeper, or some witness of his Diligence and Faithfulness in that matter.

13 ¶ And

14 ¶ And if a man borrow ought a of his neighbour, and it be hurt, or die, the owner thereof being not with it, he shall surely make it good b.

a (i. e.) Any living thing, which may be hurt or die, as it follows. b This may seem hard, but all things considered is reasonable; because in doubtful cases, wherein it is not evident whether the borrower was faulty or not, as it is here, it ought to be interpreted in favour of the lender, rather than of the borrower; partly to oblige the borrower to the greater fidelity and care in such things, which being not his own, men are commonly more careless about; partly because the benefit being wholly the borrowers, the loss also in all reason ought to be his, and the lender ought not to suffer for his kindness, lest he should be discouraged from such actions for the future.

15 But if the owner thereof be with it c, he shall not make it good d: if it be an hired thing, it came for his hire e.

c In which case the Law reasonably presumes, both that the borrower would not abuse it in the sight of its owner, and that the lender might and would take due care about it. d Except there be some manifest fault in the borrower, as if he should kill or wound the Beast in the lender's presence; which exception is easily to be understood from divers other Laws of God. e (i. e.) The benefit was the lender's, and not the borrower's, and therefore the former reason ceaseth; and whether the Master were present or absent, he that receives the Gain or Hire shall bear the loss, except when it came through the borrower's gross and wilful default.

*Deut. 22. 28. 16 ¶ And * if a man entice a maid f that is not betrothed g, and lie with her, he shall surely endow her to be his wife.

f By perswasions, promise of Marriage, allurements, or rewards. g But if she were betrothed, it was punished with death, Deut. 22. 23.

17 If her father utterly refuse h to give her unto him, he shall † pay money according to the dowry of virgins i.

h Which shews the necessity of Parents consent in Marriage. i (i. e.) In such proportion as the Virgins quality requires; for there was no certain and equal dowry appointed for all Women. See 1 Sam. 18. 25. Quest. Why is there no Punishment for the Woman? Answ. 1. She had no distinct Estate, being yet in her Father's House. 2. The loss of her Virginity was a sufficient Punishment, especially in Israel, where it was a great reproach and prejudice. 3. She was not so culpable as the Man, both because she was of the weaker Sex, and because she was drawn to the Sin by the Man's perswasion.

* Lev. 19. 26, 31. 18 ¶ * Thou shalt not suffer a witch k to live.

k (i. e.) Any Person that is in league with the Devil, and by his help either doth any mischief, or discovers and practices things above the reach of other Men or Women. Of which see Levit. 7. 11. Levit. 20. 27. Deut. 18. 10. 1 Sam 28. 9. The word is of the Feminine Gender, partly because Women are most prone to these devilish Arts, and most frequently guilty of them; and partly to intimate, that no pity should be showed to such Offenders, though they were of the weaker Sex.

19 ¶ Whosoever lieth with a beast shall surely be put to death.

*Deut. 13. 13, 14, 15. 1 Mac. 2. 44. 20 ¶ He that sacrificeth l unto any God save unto the LORD only, he shall be utterly destroyed m.

l Or otherwise worshippeth, as appears from Deut. 17. 2, 3, 4, 5. and many other places. One act of worship put for all by a very familiar Synecdoche. m Heb. anathematized, i. e. esteemed execrable, and as such destroyed without Mercy. See Deut. 13. 15, &c. and 18. 20.

*Chap. 23. 9. Lev. 19. 33 and 25. 35. Deut. 10. 18. and 24. 17. and 27. 19. Isa. 1. 17. Zech. 7. 10. Jam. 1. 27. 21 ¶ * Thou shalt neither vex a stranger, nor oppress him: for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ * Ye shall not afflict any widow, or fatherless child.

23 If thou afflict them in any wise, and they cry at all unto me, I will surely hear their cry:

24 And my wrath shall wax hot, and I will kill you with the sword: and your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless.

*Lev. 25. 37. Deut. 23. 19. Psal. 15. 5. Neh 5. 7. Ezek. 18. 8, 17. 25 ¶ * If thou lend money to any of my people n that is poor o by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury p.

n (i. e.) Any Israelite; for it was permitted to take Usury of the Gentiles, Deut. 23. 20. o This seems to be added, not by way of Apposition, as if God's People and the Poor were all one, because such are commonly Poor; but by way of Restriction; for God had promised greatly to bless and enrich the generality of his People, if they by their Wickedness did not hinder it, and that there should be few Poor among them; yet some such there should be for the tryal and exercise of their Charity. See Levit. 19. 10. Deut. 15. 4, 7, 11. p The Hebrew word signifies Biting; so Usury is called, not by way of distinction, as if moderate Usury were allowed in this case, which is manifestly false, because the borrower is here supposed to be poor, to whom not the Usu only, but ofe-times even the Principal is to be remitted, Luke 6. 34, 35. but by way of Explication, because all Usury is of a biting or eating Nature, which continually consumes the Person that pays it.

*Job 24. 7. Prov. 20. 16. and 27. 13. Amos 2. 8. 26 * If thou at all take thy neighbours q raiment to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down:

q That is, that he Poor, as appears by comparing this with the next verse, where he is explained to be he but one Garment; and with Deut. 24. 12, 13. r Because he speaks of such Raiment or Covering, wherein he used to Sleep, verse 27. But you are not to think that the Creditor would every Morning take, and every Night redeliver his Pledge; and therefore this is rather a Prohibition to take any such thing for a Pledge as a Man hath great and daily need of, by this argument, that if he did take it he could not keep it. Compare Deut. 24. 6.

27 For that is his covering only, it is his raiment for his skin: wherein shall he sleep? and it shall come to pass, when he crieth unto me, that I will hear: for I am gracious.

28 ¶ Thou shall not revile the † gods s, nor curse the ruler of thy people t.

† Or, judge.

s Not gods falsly so called, as some would have it, as appears by 1 Kings 18. 27. Jer. 10. 11. but Magistrates and Governors, whether Civil or Ecclesiastical, as it is evident both from Acts 23. 3, 4, 5. and from the following words, which explain the former, according to the common use of Scripture, and from the Title of gods commonly given to such, as Exod. 7. 1. Psalm 82. 6. John 10. 34, 35. t Compare Eccl. 10. 20. Jude, verse 8.

29 ¶ Thou shalt not delay u to offer the † first of thy ripe fruits x, and of thy † liquors: * the first-born of thy sons shalt thou give unto me y.

† Heb. fulness. † Heb. tears. * Chap. 34. 19. Deut. 15. 19.

u Beyond the times appointed, lest this delay grow to a total neglect. And delay may here be put for neglect, as that word is used, 2 Pet. Deut. 7. 10. and 23. 21. Heb. 2. 3. which may seem to be favoured by the following Clause, which commands the giving or offering of the first-born without any mention of the hastning or delaying of it. x Heb. thy fulness; and whereas this word is sometimes applied to Seed or Corn, as Numb. 18. 27. and sometimes to the Vintage, as Deut. 22. 9. the circumstances must determine, as it doth in like cases, how it must be taken; which here seem to restrain it to dry Fruits, as Corn, &c. because it is opposed to Liquors; and so all sorts of Fruits are comprehended here. Unless you will make this an usual figure called Hendyadis, as judgment and justice, Deut. 16. 18. is put for judgment of Justice, or just Judgment; so here the fulness and liquors, for the fulness of thy liquors; and so this may be one kind mentioned for all the rest, than which nothing more frequent. y Not in kind, but by a price of Redemption to be paid to me in their stead.

30 Likewise z shalt thou do with thine oxen, and with thy sheep: seven days it shall be with his dam, on the eighth day a thou shalt give it me.

z (i. e.) Ye shall offer their first-born. a Not sooner, because it was till then tender and imperfect, and therefore not fit to be offered to God; but it was not tied to that day, for it might be offered afterwards, as appears from Lev. 22. 27. even till it was a year old, 31 ¶ And ye shall be holy b men unto me: neither shall ye eat any flesh that is torn of beasts c in the field: ye shall cast it to the dogs.

b (i. e.) Separated from all Filthiness both moral and ceremonial. c Partly because the Blood was not taken out of it; partly because the clean Beast was ceremonially defiled by the touch of the unclean; and partly to beget in them a detestation of Cruelty, even in the Beasts, and much more in Men.

CHAP. XXIII.

False witness and report forbidden. 1. Right must not be wrested, 2. He commands man to do good to his enemies, 3—5. Bribes are forbidden, 6—8. The years of sowing appointed, and gathering, 10. Of the seventh year, which is the year of rest; God's command concerning it, 11. Of the sabbath-day, 12. Other gods shall not be mentioned, 13. Of three feasts in a year, 14. The manner of keeping the feast, 15, 16. The times appointed for the males appearing before the Lord, 17. No sacrifices to be offered without unleavened bread, 18. Command concerning the first fruits, 19. God promiseth an angel to prepare a way, 20. Who is commanded to be obey'd, 21, 22. God promising them the land of the Amorites, &c. 23. forbiddeth the honouring of strange gods, 24. God promises to bless them that serve him, 25—27. Hornets shall expel the enemies of the Israelites, 28, 29, 30. The borders of the land of Israel, 31. A covenant with the heathen is forbidden, 32. Or to let them inhabit among them, 33.

THou * shalt not † raise a a false report: put not thine hand b with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness.

* Psal. 15. 3. † Or, utter.

a Heb. not take up, to wit, into thy Mouth, as Exod. 20. 7. either by the first raising, or further spreading of it; or not bear, or endure, as that word oft signifies; not hear it patiently, delightfully, readily, approvingly, as Persons are very apt to do, but rather shall discourage and reprove the spreader of it, according to Prov. 25. 23. Possibly the Holy Ghost might chuse a word of such general signification to shew that all these things were forbidden. b (i. e.) Not conspire or agree with them, which is signified by joyning hands, Prov. 11. 21. nor give them an helping hand in it, nor incourage them to it by Gifts or Promises, nor assist them by Counsel or Interest. Others, not swear with them. But swearing is not noted by putting the hand, but by lifting it up.

2 ¶ Thou shalt not follow a multitude c to do evil d: * neither shalt thou † speak e in a cause to decline after many, to wrest judgment f.

* Lev. 19. 15. † Heb. answer.

c Either their Counsel or Example. But the Hebrew Rabbim both here and in the following Clause is by some rendred great Men, Men in Power and Authority, whom we are commanded not to follow. And so the word is thus used; Job 32. 9. Jer. 48. 7. so this sense may seem most probable; f. Because in the last Clause he speaks of Causes or Controversies; as the Hebrew Rib signifies; and matters of Judgment, which were not determined by the Multitude, but by great Men. 2. Because these are opposed to the Poor in the next Verse. 3. Because the Examples of such Men are most prevalent. d Either in general or particular, to work mischief, to oppress or crush another. e Heb. Answer, when thou art summoned as a witness in any cause. f Or to turn aside right, or to pervert thy self, the Verb being taken reciprocally, as Hiphil is oft put for Hithpahel; or which is all one, to do perversely, i. e. unrighteously.

3 ¶ Neither shalt thou countenance g a poor man in his cause.

g Heb. Honour, i. e. respect, or prefer his Cause when the richer Man's Cause is more just: The meaning of this and the former Verse is, there shall be no respect of Persons, whether Rich or Poor, but an impartial consideration of the Cause. See Levit. 19. 15. Psalm 72. 1, 2.

Deut. 22. Job 24. Prov. 24. 17. and 25. 21. Matth. 5. 44. Rom. 12. 20. 4 ¶ If thou meet thine enemies ox h or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again.

h So far shalt thou be from revenging his Injuries, that thou shalt render good to him for them, whereby if thou dost not reconcile him, thou wilt st procure Peace to thy self, and Honour to Religion.

Deut. 22. 4. Or, will thou leave to help him? and wouldst cause to leave thy business to help him? thou shalt surely leave to joyn with him. 5 * If thou see the ass of him that hateth thee, lying under his burden, † and wouldest forbear to help him, thou shalt surely help with him i.

i This Translation depends upon this Supposition, that the Hebrew Verb azab, which is thrice used in this Verse, signifies not only to leave, but also to help, or erect, or lift up, or strengthen, or restore; which signification of the Verb may be proved, 1. From that use of it, Nehem. 3. 8. and 4. 2. 2. From the parallel place, Deut. 22. 4. where instead of this Verb, azab, is hakim, which is properly to erect or lift up. But if the Verb did signify only to leave, it may be thus rendred according to the Hebrew words, then, or therefore, or surely (for all these ways the Hebrew Particle Vau is used) thou shalt forbear to leave it, to wit, the Ass groaning under his Burden, or the lifting up of the Ass and Burden, to him alone; but if thou wilt be leaving, I will appoint thee a better Object for it, thou shalt surely leave, or lay aside what thou hast against him, i. e. whatsoever Controversy thou hast with him, that shall not hinder thee from succouring him, or his, in any distress. The Hebrew Preposition, im, doth oft signify against, as Gen 26. 20. Psalm 85. 4. and 94. 16. Hos. 9. 8. And it is a concise or short way of speaking, which is very common in the Hebrew Language, against him for, what thou hast against him. Or thus, and wouldest forbear to leave, to wit, thy business which thou art going about, for him, i. e. for the sake of him who is thine Enemy, as the Hebrew Preposition lamed, is oft used, as Exod. 14 25. Numb. 25. 13. Jos. 10 14. &c. thou shalt repress those malicious desires, and thou shalt surely leave it to be, or to tarry, or to help with him to lift up the Ass. So there is only an Ellipsis of the Verb, which is most common in the Hebrew Tongue.

6 Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of thy poor k in his cause.

k (i. e.) Of the Poor which is among thee, not of the poor Jews only, as some peradventure may conceive; for common right must be done even to the Gentiles. Compare Deut 27. 19.

Chap. 34. 7. 7 Keep thee far l from a false matter m: and the innocent and righteous slay thou not n: for * I will not justify the wicked o.

l (i. e.) Abstain from all Occasions, Degrees, or Appearances of it. Compare Job 22. 23. Prov. 4. 14, 15. m (i. e.) An unrighteous Judgment; for he is speaking to the Judges, as appears both by the foregoing and following Verses. n Condemn not to Death, nor to any other unjust Penalty, for the same reason. o And therefore not condemn the innocent, one contrary being here understood from the other, as is frequent in the Book of the Proverbs; and what I do not, thou who acteſt in my Name and Stead shouldeſt not do. Or rather thus, Know, O Judge, (for to such he speaks) if thou doſt pronounce such a wicked Sentence, I will not justify thee, or hold thee guiltleſs, i. e. I will severely punish thee, as Exod. 20. 7.

Eccl. 20. 8. Heb. the sitting. 8 ¶ And * thou shalt take no gift p: for the gift blindeth † the wise q, and perverteth the words of the righteous r.

p Namely from such whoſe Cauſes are depending before thee; because if thou doſt not fell Juſtice for it, yet thou wilt both ſeem to do ſo, and be tempted to do ſo. Compare Deut. 16. 19. 1 Sam. 8. 3. Prov. 17. 8, 23. and 19. 6. q Or, the open eyed, and quick-ſighted, who in this caſe cannot ſee, partly becauſe they will not ſee, and partly becauſe Intereſt and Affection do exceedingly corrupt the Judgment, and render it very partial. r (i. e.) The Judgment of the righteous Judges, i. e. of them who before were ſuch, and are inclined to be ſo, and probably would be ſo, were they not tempted with Bribes; or of them who by their place ſhould be righteous. So they are called righteous, to admoniſh them of their Duty to be ſo, and to aggravate their Sin when they are unrighteous, and conſequently to aggravate the mitchief of Gifts, which make thoſe unrighteous whoſe Office obligeth them to be righteous. Or thus, the matters or cauſes of the righteous, which may be underſtood not of the Judges, but of the Parties pleading, whoſe righteous Cauſe is by this means perverted by the Judge, and a wrong Sentence given.

Chap. 22. 21. Heb. soul. 9 ¶ Alſo * thou ſhalt not oppreſs a ſtranger: for ye know the † heart of a ſtranger s, ſeeing ye were ſtrangers in the land of Egypt.

Lev. 25. 10 And * ſix years thou ſhalt ſow thy land, and ſhalt gather in the fruits thereof.

11 But the ſeventh year thou ſhalt let it reſt, and lie ſtill t; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave, the beaſts of the field ſhall eat. In like manner thou ſhalt deal with thy vineyard, and with thy † olive-yard x.

t (i. e.) From Manuring, Plowing, Tilling, and Sowing, and Reaping alſo, by comparing Levit. 25. 3, 4, 5. And this God ordained not only for the reaſon here mentioned, the more comfortable Proviſion of the Poor, and for the Cattle, but for other weighty reaſons; as 1. That the heart and ſtrength of the Land might not be eaten out by continual Tillage. 2. That he might both try and exerciſe, and alſo ſecure the Obedience of the Iſraelites. 3. That he might keep them in dependance upon himſelf, and give to them and all their Neighbours a manifeſt proof of his ſingular and gracious Providence over his People. 4. That by this kind of Quitrent they might be admoniſhed that God alone was the Lord and Proprietary of the Land, and they were only Tenants at his Will. 5. That being freed from their great Labours about the Land, they might have the more leaſure to meditate upon God's Works, and to attend upon the Law, which was to be ſolemnly read at this time; Deut 31. 10, &c. u Queſt. What had the Poor to eat? Anſ. Not only the Fruits of the Vines, and Olives, and other Fruit-trees, but alſo all that grew of its own accord, Levit. 25. 5. from thoſe Seeds which in the laſt reaping-time were ſcattered here and there, which were much more numerous now than in other years, becauſe God gave a ſpecial Bleſſing to the ſixth year, whereby it did bring forth the fruit of three years, Levit. 25. 21. and in years of ſo great plenty, Men are generally more negligent in their Reaping, and therefore the Relicks are more. x (i. e.) Thou ſhalt not prune nor dreſs them, nor gather and appropriate to thy own uſe what they ſhall produce, but ſhalt leave them to the Poor.

* Chap. 20. 8, 9. Deut. 5. 13. Luke 13. 14. 12 * Six days thou ſhalt do thy work, and on the ſeventh day thou ſhalt reſt y: that thine ox and thy aſs may reſt, and the ſon of thine hand-maid, and the ſtranger may be refreſhed.

y This command is here repeated, leſt any ſhould think the weekly Reſt might ceaſe when the whole Year was conſecrated to Reſt. There were three ſorts of Sabbaths to the Jews, 1. Of Days. 2. Of Years, to wit, the ſeventh Year. 3. Of Weeks of Years, to wit, the Jubilee; and all theſe are Types of the eternal Reſt in Heaven.

13 And in all things that I have ſaid unto you, be circumſpect: and * make no mention of the name of other gods z, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth.

* Deut. 12. 3.

z To wit, with Honour or Delight, or without Deteſtation; as fornication is not to be named among Saints, Eph. 5. 3. Or, not mention them in your Worſhip, or in Oaths, or in common Diſcourſe, and without ſpecial Occaſion, leſt the frequent mention of them might keep up their Memory, or introduce their Worſhip. Hence the Names of Idols and Idolatrous places were oft-times changed by the Iſraelites. See Numb. 32. 38. Joſ. 23. 7. Compare Pſalm 16. 4. Hoſ. 2. 17. Zech. 13. 2.

* Chap. 34. 23. Deut. 16. 16. * Chap. 13. 3. and 34. 18. 14 ¶ * Three times thou ſhalt keep a feaſt unto me in the year.

15 * Thou ſhalt keep the feaſt of unleavened bread: thou ſhalt eat unleavened bread ſeven days, as I commanded thee, in the time appointed the month of Abib: for in it thou cameſt out from Egypt: * and none ſhall appear before me empty a.

* Deut. 16. 16. Eccl. 35. 4 a This may be either 1. a Precept, as it is generally underſtood, that none ſhould ever come at thoſe times without ſome offering or other, for the ſupport of the Levites, and of the Worſhip of God; but the determination of this, or what they would give, was left to their choice. Or 2. a promiſe to encourage them to come to oft from their remoteſt Habitations to Jeruſalem, becauſe they ſhould never appear before God in vain, i. e. to no purpoſe, or without ſome benefit, for ſo the word, rekam, oft ſignifies. So it may be parallel to Iſaiah 45. 19. I ſaid not unto the ſeed of Jacob, ſeek ye me in vain. But the former ſenſe is more probable, by comparing this with its parallel place, Deut. 16. 16, 17.

16 And the feaſt of harveſt b, the firſt fruits of thy labours c, which thou haſt ſown in the field: and the feaſt of in-gathering d which is in the end of the year e, when thou haſt gathered in thy labours out of the field.

b (i. e.) Of Wheat-harveſt, for Barley-harveſt was before this time. This Feaſt was otherwiſe called Pentecoſt. c Queſt. How were theſe the firſt fruits, when at Sheaf was offered to God in the Feaſt of the Paſſover? Anſ. That Sheaf was generally of Barley, which was leſs conſiderable than their Wheat; but this was the firſt fruits of their Wheat, which was their principal Grain; and they had no Bread before this time from the growth of that Year. d To wit, of all the reſt of the Fruits of the Earth, as of the Vines and Olives. This was alſo called the Feaſt of Booths, and of Tabernacles. See Levit. 23. 43. Numb. 29. 12. Deut. 16. 13. All thoſe three Feaſts had a reſpect to the Harveſt, which began in the Paſſover, was carried on at Pentecoſt, and was fully compleated and ended in this Feaſt. e Of the common or civil Year, which began in September, as the ſacred Year began in March.

17 Three times in the year all thy males ſhall appear before the LORD God.

f To wit, ſuch as are of competent years, and healh, and ſtrength, and ſuch as were at their own diſpoſe; for the Servants were not bound to this, may ſeem probable, becauſe none of theſe concerned were to appear before the Lord empty, or without an Offering, but the generality of Servants had not any thing to offer. And the care and and management of their domestick Affairs did require the presence and care of many of their Males. g (i. e.) In that place where God shall record his name, Exod 20. 24. as the Tabernacle or Temple.

* Lev. 2. 11. Deut. 16. 3. † Or, feast.

18 * Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread b; neither shall the fat of my † sacrifice remain until the morning i.

b This and the following clause most understand of the Passeover, by comparing this place with its parallel, Exod. 34. 25. where the Passeover is mentioned. But the words being here universal, by the Laws of interpretation they ought to be universally understood, if they can bear that sense; which here they may; for both these Clauses agree to other Sacrifices. For as every Sacrifice had a Minchah, or a Meat-offering of Flour attending upon it, and offered with it; so it was expressly cautioned, that no leaven should be in that Minchah, Lev. 2. 11. And the fat of every Sacrifice was consecrated to God, Lev. 3. 16. Chron. 35. 14, &c. and was presently to be burnt upon the Altar, Lev. 7. 2, 3. And for Exod. 34. 25. what hinders but what is here more generally prescribed, may be there particularly applied to the Passeover? and that seems more reasonable, than to make that an idle repetition of the same thing. And my sacrifice may be here put for my sacrifices, by the common Enallage. Moreover, the two principal things which were offered to God in every Sacrifice, were blood and fat, Lev. 17. 6, 11, &c. i This if understood of the Passeover may seem superfluous, because nothing of it, neither fat nor lean, was to remain until the morning, Exod. 12. 10. but all of it was to be eaten, even the purtenance thereof, ver. 9. and that, for ought I see, without any exception of the fat, as there was in other Sacrifices, Lev. 3. 16. And therefore in that parallel place, Exod. 34. 25. where the Passeover is mentioned, there is not a word of the fat, but only it is said in the general, neither shall the sacrifice of the feast of the Passeover be left until the morning. And in that 2 Chron. 35. 14. where there is mention of the fat, it is manifestly restrained to the Burnt-offerings, which are there distinguished from the Passeover, ver. 11, 12.

* Deut. 14. 21.

19 The first of the first-fruits k of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the LORD thy God. * Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mothers milk l.

k This seems to be a general Rule extending to all the Fruits which the Earth first produced; in every kind of which the very first are here enjoined to be offered unto God, before they should presume to eat any of them. It may seem to be repeated here, where the year of rest is mentioned, to teach them the First-fruits were to be given to God of all that the Earth produced, not only by their labour and Seed, as might be thought from ver. 16. but also of its own accord, as is here implied. l He names one kind, under which he understands a Lamb, or a Calf, &c. according to the use of Scripture-stile. This Law many understand literally, and that it is forbidden to them, because the Idolaters had such a custom, whereof yet there seems to be no sufficient proof; nor, if there were, doth it seem to be a Rite of that importance or probability to entice the Israelites to imitate it, that there needed a particular Law against it, more than against an hundred such ridiculous usages which were among the Heathen, and are not taken notice of in the Book of God's Laws. The words may be rendred thus, Thou shalt not seethe, or rost, (for the word bashal signifies to rost as well as to boil, as it is evident from Deut. 16. 7.) a kid, being, or whilst it is (which is to be understood, there being nothing more common than an Ellipsis of the Verb substantive) in his mother's milk; which it may be said to be, either whilst it sucks its Mother's milk; and so it may admit of a twofold interpretation, 1. that this is to be understood of the Passeover, of which most conceive he had now spoken, v. 18. in which they used either a Lamb or a Kid, Exod. 12. 5. and then the word bashal must be rendred rost. 2. That this speaks not of Sacrifice to God, wherein sucking Creatures were allowed, Exod 22. 30. Levit. 22. 27. 1 Sam. 7. 9. but of man's use; and so God ordained this, partly because this was unwholsome food, and principally to restrain cruelty, even towards Brute creatures, and luxury in the use of them. Or rather 2. whilst it is very tender and young, rather of a milky than of a fleshy substance, like that young Kid of which Jacob thus speaks, Qui plus lactis habet quam sanguinis, i. e. which hath more milk than blood in it. And it may be said to be in its mother's milk, by an usual Hypallage, when its mother's milk is in it, i. e. whilst the milk it sucks, as it were, remains in it undigested and unconverted into flesh, even as a man is oft said to be in the Spirit, when indeed the Spirit is in him. And what is here indefinitely prohibited, is elsewhere particularly explained, and the time defined, to wit, that it be not offered to God before it was eight days old. And this interpretation may receive light and strength from hence, that the Law of the First-fruits, which both here and Exod. 34 26. goes immediately before this Law, doth in Exod. 22. 30. immediately go before that Law of not offering them before the eighth day, which implies, that both of them speak concerning the same thing, to wit, the First-fruits or First-born of the Cattle, which were not to be offered to God while they were in their Mother's milk, saith this place, or till they were eight days old, saith that place. And consequently, if they might not be offered to God, they might not be used by men for food.

* Chap. 33. 2. 14. Num. 20. 16.

20 ¶ * Behold, I send an Angel m before thee to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared.

m To wit, Christ, the Angel of the Covenant, as may be gathered both from the following words, because pardon of sin, which is God's Prerogative, Mark 2. 7. is here ascribed to him, and God's name is in him, and by comparing other Scriptures, as Exod. 32. 34. Acts 7. 38, 39. 1 Cor. 10. 9. See Exod 13. 21. and 14. 19.

21 Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not: for he will not pardon your transgressions n: for my name o is in him.

n (i. e.) He will severely punish you for them, by a common Manner, as Exod 20. 7. Understand, if you continue obstinate in your sins. o Heb. It in his inward part, i. e. is intimately united to him, according to Joh. 10. 38. I am in the father, and the father in me. It not only signifies, that he acts in his Name, and by his Power and Authority, which even the Apostles did, and other Ministers of the Gospel do, and therefore it is unreasonable to think no more is ascribed to this Angel, but that his divine Nature or Essence is in him, whence he is called the Lord our righteousness, Jer. 23. 6 and God, who will not give his glory to another, Isa. 42. 8. hath given it to Christ, that all men should honour the son even as they honour the father, Joh. 5. 23. which never was nor can be said of any Angel without blasphemy. Add to this, that the word name is oft put for the thing, or being, whether it be human or divine, as is manifest from Deut. 28. 58. Psal. 20. 1. and 115. 1. Isa. 30. 27. Act 1. 15. Rev. 3. 4. and 11. 13. And so it must be here, because this name is not said to be given to him, as it would be, if it were properly taken; but to be in him, or in his inwards, which agrees well to the Divine Nature or Essence, but not to the meer Name.

22 But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak p, * then I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and † an adversary unto thine adversaries.

p All that I have already commanded, and shall further prescribe by him unto Moses.

23 * For mine Angel shall go before thee, and * bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites: and I will cut them off.

24 Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them q, * nor do after their works r: * but thou shalt utterly overthrow them s, and quite break down their images t.

q (i. e.) Give them neither outward worship with thy body, nor inward with thy mind. r (i. e.) Nor follow their example in the worship of Idols. s (i. e.) The People, left thou be enfnared by their counsel or example. t Or, statues, or pillars, or any thing else erected in honour to their false Gods. See Gen. 28. 18. and 35. 20.

25 And ye shall serve the LORD your God; and * he shall bless thy bread, and thy water u: and * I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.

u (i. e.) Thy meat and thy drink, that they shall be able to nourish thee, and give thee comfort, which without my blessing they will never be able to do.

26 ¶ * There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren x in thy land: the number of thy days I will fulfil y.

x Here was a double mercy. God gave them strength both to conceive, and to retain the conception till the natural and proper time of bringing forth came. y I will preserve thee so as thou shalt live as long as the course of nature and temper of thy body will permit, when evil men shall not live out half their days, Psal 55. 23.

27 I will send my fear z before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their † backs unto thee.

z (i. e.) A great terrour, or a terrour wrought by me. See Exod. 33. 2 Josh. 2. 11.

28 And I will send hornets a before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite b from before thee.

a Properly so called, as may be gathered from Isa. 24. 12. Deut. 7. 20. Hornets are of themselves very troublesome and mischievous; but these it is very probable were like those Egyptian Flies, Exod. 8. 21. but of an extraordinary bigness and perniciousness. Nor is it strange that such Creatures did drive many of these people from their Habitations; for many Heathen Writers give us instances of some people driven from their Seats by Frogs, others by Mice, others by Bees and Wasps; of which see Herodotus, Diodorus, Plin Ælian, Justin, &c. b He names these three people, either for all the rest, because they were the most potent about the time of Israel's first entrance into Canaan, and gave them most trouble; or because these three were more infected with Hornets than the other Nations, as being more numerous and dangerous.

29 * I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; left the land become desolate c, and the beast of the field multiply against thee.

c Void of Inhabitants in a great measure, because thy present number is not sufficient to occupy and manage their whole Land.

30 By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased and inherit the land.

31 And * I will set thy bounds d from the Red-sea, even unto the sea of the Philistines e, and from the desert unto the river g: for I will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand, and thou shalt drive them out before thee.

d Compare this place with Gen. 15. 18. Numb. 34. 3. e (i. e.) The Mediterranean or Mid-land Sea, upon whose Coast the Land of the Philistines lay. f Of Egypt or Arabia; whereof See Gen. 16. 7. Exod. 15. 22. g To wit, Euphrates, as it is expressed Deut. 1. 7. and 11. 24. which is oft called the river by way of eminency. All within these bounds were given them by God, but upon Conditions, which they manifestly broke, and therefore were for the most part confined to a much narrower compass.

32 * Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods h.

h To worship them, as they made a Covenant with Jehovah to worship him. The sense is, Thou shalt not engage thy self either to the people, or to their gods, but shalt root out both.

33 They shall not dwell in thy land, left they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve i their gods, * it will surely k be a snare l unto thee.

i Or, for thou wilt serve; this will be the fruit of thy cohabitation with them, thou wilst thereby be drawn to Idolatry. k Or, and assuredly this will. l An occasion of further sin and utter ruin.

CHAP. XXIV.

Moses, Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, are commanded to appear before the Lord. Who was to come near the Lord, 2, 3. Moses buildeth an altar, and 12 pillars, 4. He sends young men to sacrifice unto the Lord, 5. He sprinkles the Altar with the blood, 6. The Covenant being read, Moses and the Elders of Israel see the Lord, 9, 10. God promises to give Moses two tables of stone, 12. Moses and Joshua go up to the Mount, 13. Aaron and Hur took care for the people in the mean time, 14. God appeareth on the Mount like devouring fire, 15, 16. God's glory on the Mount, 17. Moses remains there forty days and forty nights.

AND he said unto Moses, Come up a unto the LORD, thou and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu b, and seventy of the Elders of Israel c, and worship ye afar off d.

a After thou hast gone down and acquainted the people with my Will, and received their answer, then come up again. This sense is gathered from the repetition of this Command after that was done, ver. 12. b Aaron and his two eldest Sons, whom by this special honour and favour he prepared for that Office to which they were to be called, chap. 28. c Not the seventy Governours which were chosen after this time, as appears from Num. 11. 24. compared with Num. 33. 16. but seventy persons selected by Moses out of those Rulers chosen and mentioned Exod. 18. 25. and possibly these were the chief Heads of those several Families which went with Jacob into Egypt, which were about 70. See Gen 46. 26, 27. d Though they may come up into the Mount further than the people, yet do thou, and let them especially, keep their distance; and what worship either thou or they shall offer to me, shall be performed afar off from the top of the Mountain, whither thou only shalt be admitted, and that not to pray to me, but only to receive Laws and Oracles from me. See ver. 2.

2 And Moses alone e shall come near the LORD: but they shall not come nigh, neither shall the people go up with him f.

e (i. e.) Without the persons now mentioned, though not without Joshua his Minister, as some conceive from ver. 13. though even there Moses seems to ascend into the Mount without Joshua. f To any part of the Mount, as Aaron, and Nadab, &c. did, but they shall tarry at the bottom. See Exod. 19. 12.

3 ¶ And Moses came g and told the people all the words of the LORD, and all the judgments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, * All the words, which the LORD hath said, will we do h.

g Down from the Mount to the people, after he had received the Laws from God. h This they so readily and rashly promise, because they were not sensible of their own weakness, and because they did not understand the comprehensiveness, and spirituality, and strictness of God's Law, but thought it consisted only in the external performances and abstinences expressed.

4 And Moses wrote i all the words of the LORD, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar k under the hill, and twelve pillars l, according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

i To wit, in a Book, Heb 9. 19. And the Ten Commandments God himself wrote also in Tables of Stone, Exod. 31. 18. k Representing God in Christ, as one party in the Covenant. l Representing the people of Israel, the other party. So here are the outward signs and symbols of a Covenant made between God and the Israelites.

5 And he sent young men m of the children of Israel, which offered burnt-offerings, and sacrificed peace-offerings of oxen n unto the LORD.

m It matters not whether they were the first-born, or others; it is sufficient that they were persons appointed and authorised for the present service, not without God's direction. n One kind, as the principal is named for all; for there were offered also Goats, as appears both from Heb. 9. 19. and from hence, that burnt-offerings were usually made of the Goats, Lev. 1. 10. Numb. 7. 28.

6 And Moses took half of the blood o and put it in basons; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar †.

o Of the Beasts killed, which for conveniency of sprinkling was mixed with a little water, Heb. 9. 19. whereby also Christ was most fitly represented, who came by water and blood, 1 John 5. 6. † To signify, as well that God was appeased and atoned by this Blood, as it represented the Blood of Christ, as also that Christ was sanctified with his own Blood, Heb. 9. 12.

7 And he took the book of the covenant p, and read in the audience of the people q, and they said, * All that the LORD hath said, will we do, and be obedient.

p Wherein Moses had written the Conditions of this Covenant, to wit, the Words and Laws of God, above ver. 4. q (i. e.) In the hearing of a great number of them, or of some in the name of all the people, by whom it was read, or otherwise published to all the people successively.

8 And Moses took the blood r and sprinkled it on the people s, and said, Behold *, the blood of the covenant t which the LORD hath made with you, concerning all these words.

r The other half of the Blood, which was put in the Basons for this end, vers. 6. s Either upon the 12 Pillars representing the people; or upon the peoples Representatives, to wit, the Elders mentioned ver. 1. as when the people are commanded to lay on their hands, the Elders do it in their name and stead, Lev. 4. 15. Deut. 21. 2. or upon those of the people which are nearest him, which was imputed to all the rest, and was to be taken by them as if it had reached unto them all. Now this sprinkling of the Blood upon the people did signify, 1. their ratification of the Covenant on their part, and their secret wishing of the effusion of their own Blood if they did not keep it. 2. Their sprinkling of their Consciences with the Blood of Christ, and their obtaining redemption, justification, and access to God through it alone. See Heb. 9. 20, 22. and 13. 20. Whereby the Covenant is made and confirmed, as was usual both in Scripture, Matth 26. 28. Luke 22. 20. and among Heathens.

9 ¶ Then went up u Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the Elders of Israel.

u In obedience to that command of God given ver. 1.

10 And they saw the God of Israel x, and there was under his feet as it were a paved work * of a saphire stone y, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness z.

x Not any visible resemblance of the Divine Nature, which is expressly denied, Deut. 4. 15. 1 Tim. 6. 16. and was refused to Moses when he desired it, Exod. 33. 18, 20. and therefore surely would never be granted to the Elders of Israel; but some glorious appearance or token of God's special Presence; or rather, the second person in the Trinity, who now shewed himself to them in an Humane and Glorious Shape, as an Effay and Testimony of his future Incarnation. This may seem probable, 1. Because here is mention of his feet. 2. Because this way of Christ's appearance was not unusual. See Gen. 18, &c. 3. Because the person who delivered the Law in Sinai was Christ, as appears from Acts 7. 38. though he be there called an Angel, a name oft given to Christ, as hath been formerly shewed. y Which is of a clear Sky-colour, mixed with Golden spots like Stars in the Sky. z Or, For clearness. A clear Sky in Prophetical Style signifying God's favour, as a cloudy Sky notes his Anger.

* Ezek. 1. 26. and 10. 1.

11 And upon the nobles a of the children of Israel he laid not his hand b: also they saw God, and did eat and drink c.

a Or separated or select ones, i. e. the persons who were singled out to go up with Moses, verse 1. 9. the same of whom it is said here, and verse 10. that they saw God. b (i. e.) Did not hurt or destroy them, as they might expect according to the vulgar Opinion, Gen. 16. 13. and 32. 20, &c. and the Conscience of their own Guilt, as being now before their Lord and Judge. And so the phrase of putting or stretching forth the hand is most frequently used, as Gen. 37. 22. 1 Sam. 26. 11, 23. Esth. 2. 21. Job 1. 11, 12. Psal. 138. 7. &c. c So far were they from being destroyed, that they were not affrighted at this glorious appearance of God, but were refreshed and comforted by it, and did joyfully eat and drink together in God's Presence, celebrating the sacred Feast made of the remnant of the Peace-offerings, according to the manner. Thus God gave them a taste of his Grace and Mercy in this Covenant, and an Assurance that he would not deal with them according to the rigors of the Law, but for the sake of the Blood of Christ typically represented here, would graciously pardon and accept all those that sincerely, though imperfectly, obey him.

12 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Come up to me into the mount, and be d there: and I will give thee * tables of stone e, and a law, and commandments f, which I have written; that thou mayest teach them.

* Chap. 31. 18 and 32. 16.

d (i. e.) Abide, as that Verb is used 1 Tim. 4. 15. and elsewhere. e He chose that material, partly as very durable, yet so that it was capable of being broken, which God, foreseeing their wickedness, intended to do; and partly for signification, to note the hardness of their Hearts, upon which no impression could be made, but by the Finger of God. f Or, the law, and because that is ambiguous to the Moral, and Ceremonial, and Judicial, he adds, even the commandments, or commandments, to wit, the Ten Commandments, so called by way of Eminency, for these only were written by God upon the Stony Tables, as appears by Exod. 34. 28. the rest were written by Moses in a Book, above verse 4.

13 And Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua g: and Moses went up into the mount of God.

g Who did not go up with Moses to the top of the Mount, as is sufficiently implied both here and above, verse 1, 2. but abode in some lower place, waiting for Moses his return, as appears from Exod. 32. 17. And there Joshua abode forty days, not Fasting all the while, but having, as the rest had, Manna for his Meat, and for his Drink, Water out of the brook that descended out of the mount, as we read Deut. 9. 21.

14 And he said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us h, until we come again unto you: and, behold, Aaron and Hur i are with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

h (i. e.) For me and Joshua, and here, i. e. in the Camp, where he was when he spake these words; for it was where not only Aaron and Hur, but the People might come, as it here follows, and therefore not upon the Mount. i Whom Moses had made Joint-commissioners to determine hard Causes which were brought to them from the Elders, according to the order, Exod. 18. 22. Some make make Aaron the Ecclesiastical Head, and Hur the Civil Head; but Aaron was not authorized for Ecclesiastical Matters till Chap. 28.

15 And Moses went up into the mount, and a cloud covered the mount.

*Numb. 14. 10.

16 And * the glory of the LORD k abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered l it six days: and the seventh day m he called unto Moses out of the midst of the cloud.

k (i. e.) The tokens of his glorious Presence in the Fire, ver. 17. Deut. 4. 36. l From the eyes of the People. m So long God made Moses wait, either to exercise his Humility, Devotion, and Dependance upon God; or to prepare him by degrees for so great a Work; or because this was the Sabbath-day, called therefore the seventh with an emphatical Article: And God might chuse that day for the beginning of that glorious Work, to put the greater Honour upon it, and oblige the People to a stricter observance of it. So it was upon a Lord's day that St. John had his Revelation delivered to him, Rev. 1. 10.

17 And the sight of the glory of the LORD was * Deut. 4. 36. like * devouring fire n on the top of the mount, in the eyes of the children of Israel.

n He saith like it, for it was not devouring fire, as appears by Moses his long abode in it. Note here, whatsoever the Elders of Israel saw before, the People saw no similitude of God, as Moses observes Deut. 4. 15.

18 And Moses went up into the midst of the cloud o, and gat him up into the mount: and Moses was in the mount forty days and forty nights p.

o The God that called him enabling him to enter and abide there; whereas, when he was left to himself, he could not enter into the Tabernacle, Exod. 40. 35. p In which he did neither eat nor drink, Exod. 34. 28. Deut. 9. 9, 18. whereby it seems most probable the six days mentioned, verse 16. were a part of these forty days, because Moses being in perpetual expectation of God's call, seems not to have had leasure for eating and drinking, nor provision neither. Besides, he is not said to be in the midst of the Cloud so long, but only in the midst, where he was those six days, verse 15, 16.

CHAP. XXV.

Moses is commanded to take a free-will-offering to set up the tabernacle; and of what, 1——7. God commands him to make a sanctuary, 8. Chargeth him how, and whereof to make a tabernacle, 9. 10. The form of the tabernacle, 11——16. The mercy-seat, 17. The table for the shew-bread, with other utensils, 18——30. Of the candlesticks, with its employment, and other furnitures for the tabernacle, 31——39. Moses is commanded to make it answerable to the pattern which he saw in the mount, &c.

AND the LORD spake a unto Moses, saying, a Having delivered the Moral and Judicial Laws, he now comes to the Ceremonial Law, wherein he sets down all things very minutely and particularly, whereas in the other Laws he was content to lay down general Rules, and leaveth many other things to be by analogy deduced from them. The reason of the difference seems to be this, That the light of Reason implanted in all men, gives him greater help in the discovery of Moral and Judicial things, than in Ceremonial matters, or in the external way and manner of God's worship; which is a thing depending wholly upon God's institution, and not left to man's invention, which is a very incompetent Judge of those things, as appears from hence, because the wittiest men, destitute of God's revelation, have been guilty of most foolery in their devices of God's worship.

†Ikeb. take for me. † Or, heave-offering. *Chap. 35. 5.

*Chap. 30. 34. 7 Onyx stones i, and stones to be set k in the * ephod, and in the * breastplate l.

i Or, Sardonyx stones. Note, that the signification of the Hebrew names of the several Stones are not agreed upon by the Jews at this day, and much more may we safely be ignorant of them, the Religious use of them being now abolished. k Stones of fulness, or filling, or perfecting stones; so called either because they did perfect and adorn the Ephod, or because they filled up the ouches or the hollow places, which were left vacant for this purpose. l What the Ephod and Breast-plate were, see Exod. 28.

8 And let them make me a sanctuary m, that * I may dwell amongst them n.

*Chap. 45. 6. 13. 2 Cor. 6. 16. Rev. 21. 3.

m A place of publick and solemn Worship. n Not by my Essence, which is every where, but by my Grace and Glorious Operations.

9 According to all that I shew thee, after the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the instruments thereof, even so shall ye make it.

10 ¶ * And they shall make an ark o of shittim-wood: two cubits p and an half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and an half the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof. *Chap. 37. 1.

o Or, Little chest, or coffer, for the uses after mentioned. p Understand it of the common Cubit, which is generally conceived to contain a Foot and a half of our measure. See Gen. 6. 15.

11 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold; within and without shalt thou overlay it, and shalt make upon it a crown q of gold round about.

q Or, A Border, raised up above the rest of the Ark, as a Crown is above that which it is applied to, only a Crown is round, and this was square. This was both for Ornament, and for the fastning of the covering of the Ark to it.

12 And thou shalt cast four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners r thereof; and two rings shall be in the one side of it, and two rings in the other side of it.

r In the middle of each corner for conveniency of carriage. See 1 Kings 7. 30.

13 And thou shalt make staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold.

14 And thou shalt put the staves into the rings, by the sides of the ark, that the ark may be born with them.

15 The staves shall be in the rings of the ark: they shall not be taken from it.

16 And thou shalt put into the ark, * the testimony *Deut. 10. 2. Kings 8. 9. which I shall give thee.

17 To wit, the Two Tables of Stone, wherein the Decalogue was written, called the Testimony here, and Exod. 30. 6. Levit. 16. 13. and more fully the Tables of the Testimony, Exod. 31. 18. Numb. 1. 50. because they were witnesses of that Covenant made between God and his People, whence they are called the Tables of the Covenant, Deut. 9. 9. and the Ark, the Ark of the Covenant, Numb. 10. 33. This being as a publick Record both of God's Mercy promised to them, and of the Duty and Conditions required of them. See Exod. 16. 34.

17 And thou shalt make a mercy-seat t of pure gold; two cubits and an half shall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

s Or, Propitiatory; which seems from the sameness of dimensions to be nothing else but the covering of the Ark, upon which God is said to sit, whence the Ark is called God's footstool. This covering is a manifest Type of Christ, who is therefore called the propitiation, or propitiatory, Rom. 3. 25. 1 John 2. 2. and 4. 10. because he interposeth himself between God our Judge, and the Law by which we all stand condemned and accursed, Gal. 3. 10, 13. that God may not deal rigorously with us according to that Law, but mercifully for his sake who hath fulfilled the Law, and therefore boldly presents himself to his Father on our behalf.

18 And thou shalt make two cherubims u of gold: of beaten work x shalt thou make them in the two ends of the mercy-seat.

u Figures of humane shape, in which alone the Angels used to appear; but they had wings, to signify their Expedition in God's Work and Messages. And between these Angels God is said to sit and dwell. So this place was a representation of Heaven, where God sitteth and dwelleth among the Cherubims and other glorious Angels. x Not made of several parcels joyned together, as Images commonly are, nor yet melted and cast in a frame or mould, but beaten by the hammer out of one continued piece of Gold, possibly to note the exact unity or indivisibility, and the simplicity of the Angelical Nature.

19 And make one cherub on the one end, and the other cherub on the other end: even † of the mercy-seat y shall ye make the cherubims on the two ends thereof. †Or, of the matter of the mercy seat.

y (i. e.) Of one and the same piece of massy Gold, out of which the Cherubims were made.

20 And the cherubims shall stretch forth their * wings on high, covering the mercy-seat with their wings, and their faces shall look one to another: toward the mercy-seat z shall the faces of the cherubims be. * 1 King. 8. 7. 1 Chron. 28. 18. Heb. 9. 5.

z Towards God, who is supposed to sit there, whose Face the Angels in Heaven always behold, and upon whom their Eyes are fixed to observe and receive his commands; and towards Christ, the true Propitiatory, which Mystery they desire to look into, 1 Pet. 1. 12. not envying mankind their neat and happy relation to him, but taking pleasure in the contemplation of it.

21 And

21 And thou shalt put the mercy-seat above upon the ark, and in the ark thou shalt put a the testimony that I shall give thee.

a Or, After thou shalt have put in the ark; for the Ark was not to be opened after the covering was put upon it. The Hebrew Particle Vau oft signifies after that, as Jer. 43. 13. and 51. 60.

22 And there I will meet with thee b, and I will commune with thee, from above the mercy-seat, from *Chap. 29. 42 and 30. * between the cherubims c which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I will give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel. *Lev. 16. 2. Numb. 7. 89.

b There I will be in a special and gracious manner present with thee. c Which spreading forth their wings formed a kind of seat, which the Divine Majesty was pleased to possess.

23 ¶ * Thou shalt also make a table of shittim-wood: two cubits shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof. *Chap. 37. 10. 1 King. 7. 48. 2 Chro. 4. 8.

24 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, and make thereto a crown d of gold round about.

d A square Border at the top of it, as verse 11. partly for Ornament, and principally to keep what was put upon it from falling off.

25 And thou shalt make unto it a border e of an hand-breadth round about, and thou shalt make a golden crown f to the border thereof round about.

e Which encompassed and kept together the feet of the Table, and seems to have been towards the bottom of it. f Not the same mentioned before, verse 24. but another for further Ornament to the Table.

26 And thou shalt make for it four rings of gold, and put the rings in the four corners that are on the four feet thereof.

27 Over against the border g shall the rings be for places of the staves to bear the table.

g As much below the top, as the Border was above the bottom of the feet of the Table, which was a convenient place for the carriage. Others, near the border, in that part of the feet which is next to it.

28 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold, that the table may be born with them.

29 And thou shalt make the dishes h thereof, and spoons i thereof, and covers k thereof, and bowls thereof, † to cover withal l: of pure gold shalt thou make them. † Or, to pour out withal.

h In which the Bread and Frankincense upon it were put, Levit. 24. 7. Of this sort there were twelve, one for every Loaf. i In which Incense was put, as appears from Numb. 7. 14. and by which Incense was either put into the Dishes, or taken out of them, as occasion required. k So the Hebrew word is used Exod. 37. 16. Numb. 4. 7. Herewith either the Bread, or Incense, or both, were covered. l To cover the same things. So this and the former were two several sorts of Covers, the one deeper than the other, one to cover the Bread, another the Incense. Or, Bowls thereof, to pour out withal, to wit, 35. 14. Or these last words may relate not only to the Bowls, but the other things, here mentioned, and may be thus rendred, wherewith it, to wit, the Table, shall be covered, as indeed it was in a manner quite covered with these Vessels.

*Lev. 24. 5. 30 And thou shalt set upon the table * shew-bread m before me always.

m Heb. Bread of faces, or of the presence, so called, because it was constantly placed in God's presence. This Bread was divided into twelve Loaves, one for every Tribe; and they were in their name presented to God in the nature of an offering, as the Frankincense shews, as a publick acknowledgment, that they received all their Bread or Food, both corporal and spiritual, from God's hand, and were to use it as in God's presence.

*Chap. 37. 17. 1 Kings 7. 49. Zech. 4. 2. Rev. 1. 12. and 4. 5. 31 * And thou shalt make n a candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work shall the candlestick be made: his shaft o, and his branches, his bowls, his knops p, and his flowers shall be of the same q.

n Either by thy self, or by some other person whom thou shalt cause to make it. o The trunk, or main body of it. p Or, Apples, made in form of a Pomegranate. q To wit, beaten out of the same piece by the Hammer. Compare ver. 36.

32 And six branches shall come out of the sides of it r: three branches of the candlestick out of the one side, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side.

r In every one of which was a Lamp, and there was a seventh Lamp in the chief stem of it, as appears from ver. 37. And all these together represent the seven spirits of God, Rev. 1. 4. and 4. 5. and 5. 6. Or the Spirit of God, the great Enlightner of the Church, with his sevenfold or various Gifts and Operations.

33 Three bowls made like unto almonds with a knop and a flower in one branch: and three bowls made like almonds in the other branch, with a knop and a flower: so in the six branches that come out of the candlestick.

34 And in the candlestick s shall be four bowls t made like unto almonds, with their knops and their flowers.

s (i. e.) In the shaft or trunk of the Candlestick; which is here distinguished from its branches. t Whereas there were but three in each of the branches.

35 And there shall be a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches u that proceed out of the Candlestick.

u And, to compleat the number of four, mentioned in the foregoing Verse, we must understand, that there was another knop and bowl and flower in the upper part of the shaft, above all the branches, as the rules of proportion, and common use in making such things, will easily evince.

36 Their knops and their branches shall be of the same: all it shall be one beaten work of pure gold.

37 And thou shalt make the seven lamps thereof: * and * they x shall † light the lamps thereof, that they may give light over-against * it y. *Chap. 27. 20. and 30. 8.

x Whom I shall appoint for that work. y (i. e.) Either 1. The Table of Shew-bread. Or rather 2. The Candlestick, as it is expressed, Numb. 8. 2. where by the Candlestick you are to understand, as here ver. 33, 34. the stem or main body of it; and the sense is, that the Lamps shall be so placed, that they and their light may look towards that stem; unless you will suppose that the seven lamps were distinct and separated from the Candlestick, and fastned to the sides of the Tabernable, in several places, and all giving light to, or over-against the great Candlestick, which was in the midst, as the Candlestick did over-against them, which is also now usual among us. Lev. 24. 3, 4. † Or, cause to ascend. * Heb. the face of it.

38 And the tongs thereof, and the snuff-dishes thereof shall be of pure gold.

39 Of a talent z of pure gold shall he make it, with all these vessels.

z Which contains three thousand shekels, Exod. 38. 25. or 125. pound.

40 And * look that thou make them after their pattern † which was shewed thee in the mount. * Num. 8. 4. 1 Cron. 28. 19. Act. 7. 44. Heb. 8. 5. † Heb. work of a cunning workman or embroiderer.

Moses is commanded to make the Tabernacle with ten curtains, 1. The length and breadth of the curtains, 2. The form of the curtains, 3——6. He is commanded to make eleven curtains of goats hair, 7. The manner of the making and placing it, 8——14. Of what the Tabernacle is wast caused to be made, 15. The manner of its making, with other utensils, 16——30. to see. of the vail, and what it is to be made of, 31. The fashion of it, 32, 33. The hanging for the tent-door, 36.

MOreover, * thou shalt make the tabernacle a with ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet b: with cherubims † of cunning † Heb. the work of work c shalt thou make them. *Chap. 36. 8.

a Or, Tent; a little House, wherein the Ark, Table and Candlestick were to be placed. b (i. e.) With materials of these colours, to wit, Wool, as may be gathered from hence, that it is oppofed to Linen. Compare Exod. 25. 4. c Either woven, or rather wrought with Needle, wherein is most skill and curiosity.

2 The length of one curtain shall be eight and twenty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and every one of the curtains shall have one measure.

3 The five curtains shall be coupled together † one to another, and five curtains shall be coupled one to another. † Heb. the woman to her sister.

4 And thou shalt make loops d of blue upon the edge of the one curtain, from the selvedge e in the coupling f: and likewise g shalt thou make in the uttermost edge of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

d Which together with the Taches were for the joining the Curtains together, as appears from verse 11. which way of conjunction was most convenient for the often taking them down, and setting them up. e Or from, or in the extremity, or end, or edge. Heb. lip. f (i. e.) In the place where the two Curtains are coupled together. g The second Curtain is to be made exactly like the first.

5 Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make in the edge of the curtain that is in the coupling of the second; that the loops may take hold one of another.

6 And thou shalt make fifty taches of gold, and couple the curtains together with the taches h: and it shall be one Tabernacle.

h Or hooks or buttons, which were put into the loops to unite and fasten the Curtains.

7 ¶ And thou shalt make curtains of goats hair i to be a covering k upon the tabernacle: eleven curtains shalt thou make.

i Spun, Exod. 35. 26. and woven into a stuff, like our Camlet. k To be put next above the Curtains.

8 The length of one curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and the eleven curtains shall be all of one measure.

9 And thou shalt couple five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain l in the forefront of the tabernacle.

l For the better security of the inward covering.

10 And thou shalt make fifty loops on the edge of the one curtain that is outmost in the coupling, and fifty loops in the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second.

11 And thou shalt make fifty taches of brass, and put † Or, covering. the taches into the loops, and couple the * tent together, that it may be one.

12 And the remnant that remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half curtain that remaineth shall hang over the side of the tabernacle.

13 And a cubit on the one side, and a cubit on † Heb. in the remainder or superfluage. the other side † of that which remaineth in the length of the curtains of the tent, it shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle on this side, and on that side to cover it.

14 And thou shalt make a covering for the tent of rams skins died red, and a covering above of badgers skins m.

m To preserve the rest from the injury of the weather.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make boards for the tabernacle of shittim-wood standing up.

16 Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and a half shall be the breadth of one board.

† Heb. hands. 17 Two † tenons n shall there be in one board, set in order one against another: thus shalt thou make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

n Heb. hands, (i. e.) parts of the boards so cut and framed, that like hands they may take hold of, and be fastned into the sockets, ver. 19.

18 And thou shalt make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards on the south-side southward.

19 And thou shalt make forty sockets o of silver under the twenty boards: two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

o Or bases, or pedestals, or feet, upon which the boards stood, and to which they were fastned.

20 And for the second side of the tabernacle, on the north-side there shall be twenty boards, 21 And their forty sockets of silver: two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

22 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward thou shalt make six boards.

23 And two boards p shalt thou make for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

p Which were of another fashion than the former, as may be gathered both from the distinct nomination and use of them, and from the Laws of building. And whereas the rest were but single boards, these were double for greater strength and conveniency of joining them together.

† Heb. twinned. 24 And they shall be † coupled together q beneath, and they shall be coupled together above the head of it unto one ring r: thus shall it be for them both, they shall be for the two corners.

q Heb. as twins, i. e. equal and equally joined together, and exactly answering one to the other. r Which ring was exactly in the corner, and with the help of the bars kept the corner-boards, and with them the other boards of the Tabernacle close together. But you must note, that here were two rings in each corner, the one in the upper, the other in the lower parts.

25 And they shall be eight boards, and their sockets of silver sixteen sockets: two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

26 ¶ And thou shalt make bars s of shittim-wood: five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle.

s By bars you may understand either 1. several rows or orders of bars, one bar beginning at the end of the other, and each containing 4 cubits in length, and all together 20 cubits, which was the length of the Tabernacle; or 2. single bars, which seem truer, 1. because the word signifies bars, not rows of bars; and why should we go from the proper signification of the word without cause? 2. If bars be put for rows of bars, there must be 5 rows of bars on a side, there being so many bars said to be on a side. But the Abettors of that Opinion allow only 4 rows of bars on a side; and it is apparent the middle bar, which is one of the five, is but one single bar, v. 28. and therefore it may be presumed the rest were so too. 3. The name of the middle bar implies, that of the other 4 bars, two were above it, and two below it. Obj. But if they were each single bars, reaching the whole length of the Building, why is it said peculiarly of the middle bar, that it should reach from end to end, or from extremity to extremity, verf. 28.? Anf. This may be peculiarly said of this, either because the other four might want something of the just length of the Building, or because the middle bar might stand out beyond the two ends of it, for conveniency of the carriage of the Building.

27 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle; and five bars for the boards of the side of the tabernacle for the two sides westward t.

t There was but one side westward. Either therefore here is a transposition of the Hebrew words, which is usual, and the words are thus to be placed and rendred, westward, looking to both sides, or, westward, according to both the other sides, now mentioned, to note that the number and length of bars in the west-end should be equal to those on either of the other sides; or here is an enallage of the number, the dual or plural for the singular, of which there are many Examples, and so the words are to be rendred, for the side looking westward.

28 And the middle bar in the midst of the boards u shall reach from end to end.

u Not within the thickness of the boards, as the Jews conceive, but in the length of them; as appears, 1. Because this bar, as well as the rest, was gilded, ver. 29. which was frivolous if it were never seen. 2. Because all the bars had rings made to receive and hold them up, ver. 29.

29 And thou shalt overlay the boards with gold, and make their rings of gold, for places for the bars: and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold.

30 And thou shalt rear up the tabernacle, * according to the fashion thereof which was shewed thee in the mount. * Chap. 25. 9. 40. Acts 7. 44. Heb. 8. 5.

x Either by visible representation to his eye, or rather by mental vision or impression of it upon his imagination.

31 ¶ And thou shalt make * a vail y of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen of cunning work: with cherubims shall it be made. * Chap. 36. 35. Matth. 27. 51.

y Which was thick and strong that none could see through it, called the second vail, Heb. 9. 3. whereby the Holy of Holies, which represented the highest Heaven, was divided from the holy place, where the Church Militant, or its Representatives, met and served God, ver. 33. For the signification of this Vail, see Luke 23. 45. Heb. 9. 8, 24. and 10. 19, 20.

32 And thou shalt hang it upon four pillars of shittim-wood overlaid with gold: their hooks z shall be of gold, upon the four sockets of silver.

z Which were fastened to the tops of the Pillars, as the Vail was fastened to them.

33 ¶ And thou shalt hang up the vail under the taches †, that thou mayst bring in thither within the vail the ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you between the * holy place, and the most holy. * Heb. † Or, in the place (as the Hebrew tacheth oft signifies) of the taches, to wit, where the two Curtains are joined together by taches, verf. 6. 2, 3.

34 And thou shalt put the mercy-seat upon this ark of the testimony, in the most holy place.

35 And * thou shalt set the table without the vail, * Heb. and the candlestick over-against the table, on the side of the tabernacle, toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north-side.

36 And thou shalt make an hanging for the door of the tent † of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needlework.

† (i. e.) Of the Holy place, where it was divided from the Court of the people.

37 And thou shalt make for the hanging five pillars of shittim-wood, and * over-lay them with gold, and their * Chap. hooks shall be of gold: and thou shalt cast five sockets of 38. brass for them.

CHAP. XXVII.

Of the brazen altar, 1——8. Of the court of tabernacle, 9——17. The length of it, 18. Of the lamps burning always, 20.

AND thou shalt make * an altar a of shittim-wood, * Chap. five cubits long, and five cubits broad: the al- 38. 1. tar shall be four square a: and the height thereof shall be three cubits.

a Not that for Incense, but another for Sacrifices.

2 And thou shalt make the horns of it b upon the four corners thereof: his horns shall be of the same c: and * thou shalt overlay it with brass d. * See Num. 16. 38.

b Which were elevated above the body of the Altar, in form either of Pyramids or Spires, or rather of Horns, as the word signifies; nor is there any necessity of departing from the proper signification. These were not only for ornament, but for use also, either to keep things put upon it from falling, or that Beasts to be offered might be bound to them. See Pfal. 118. 27. c Of the same piece with the Altar, for its use required strength. d With plates of Brass of competent thickness, both above the Wood and under it, that the Fire might not take hold of the Wood.

3 And thou shalt make his pans to receive his ashes, and his shovels, and his † basins e, and his flesh-hooks † Or, brafiers f, and his fire-pans g: all the vessels thereof thou shalt Gr. Vials. make of brass. 2 Chron. 4. 8.

e To receive the Blood of the Sacrifices, which they were to sprinkle. f Wherewith they took Flesh out of the Pot in which it was seethed, 2 Sam. 2. 14. But this seems not proper here, because the Flesh was never boiled upon the Altar, but in other places appointed for that use. And the Hebrew word is general, and may signify either Tongs, or Fire-forks. g In which they carried live Coals from this Altar to that of Incense, as occasion required.

4 And thou shalt make for it a grate of net-work h of brass, and upon the net i shalt thou make four brazen rings k in the four corners thereof.

h Which was competently strong and thick, this being as it were the the Hearth of the Altar upon which they laid both the Wood and the Sacrifices, and it was full of holes, through which the Blood and Ashes might fall down into the place appointed for them. i Or rather at, or beside, or under the net, for so the Rings were placed, as their use shews, and the Hebrew Preposition al, is oft so used. k Which were either 1. Peculiar to the Grate, which by these was carried apart from the Altar, having the perpetual Fire kept in it; for had it been carried with the Altar, the Cloth wherewith the Altar was covered Numb. 4. 13. would have been endangered by the Fire. Or 2. Common to the Altar, to which these were fixed on the outside, as on the inside to the Grate, that by them the Grate might be both kept even and upright, and also carried together with the Altar, and that with such caution that the Fire included might not hurt the Covering-cloth, which was not difficult to do.

5 And thou shalt put it under the compass l of the altar beneath, that the net may be even to the midst of the altar m.

l (i. e.) Within the square and hollow space of the Altar. m Or, and the net shall be at (the Hebrew ad, being here used for el, as Hof. 14. 2. Joel 2. 12. Amos 4. 6, 8.) the midst of the altar. And these words seem added to explain the word beneath, to shew that as it was not to be at the top, so neither at the bottom of the Altar, but in the midst of it.

6 And thou shalt make staves for the altar, staves of shittim-wood, and over-lay them with gold.

7 And the staves shall be put into the rings n, and the staves shall be upon the two sides of the altar to bear it.

n Which seem to be the same both to the Altar and the Grate, though some alledge that place for the contrary.

Chap. 25. 12 and 26. 8 Hollow with boards o thalt thou make it: * as † it was shewed thee in the mount, so shall they make it.

Heb. boarded. o (i. e.) Not one entire piece of Wood, but consisting of four several tables, hollow within, for easiness and conveniency of carriage in their Wilderness-state.

9 ¶ And thou shalt make the court of the tabernacle p for the south-side southward: there shall be hangings for the court q of fine twined linen of an hundred cubits long, for one side.

p A Court encompassing the Tabernacle, Exod. 40. 33. in the midst whereof the Altar of Sacrifices was placed, upon which the Offerings were burnt in the open Air, which was most convenient.

q Whereby the Court was distinguished and enclosed.

10 And the twenty pillars r thereof, and their twenty sockets s shall be of brass: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets t shall be of silver.

r On which the Hangings were fastned, by the Hooks here mentioned. s Or, bases, upon which the Pillars stood. t Or, knops, which encompassed the Pillars at the top, being placed there, as it seems, for ornament only.

11 And likewise for the north side in length, there shall be hangings of an hundred cubits long, and his twenty pillars, and their twenty sockets of brass: the hooks of the pillars and their fillets of silver.

12 ¶ And for the breadth of the court on the west side, shall be hangings of fifty cubits: their pillars ten, and their sockets ten.

13 And the breadth of the court on the east side eastward, shall be fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits u: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

u Which with the fifteen Cubits, verse 15. and the twenty Cubits, verse 16. make up the fifty Cubits mentioned verse 13.

15 And on the other side shall be hangings fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 ¶ And for the gate of the court shall be an hanging of twenty cubits of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needle-work: and their pillars shall be four, and their sockets four.

All the pillars round about the court shall be filleted with silver: their hooks shall be of silver x, and their sockets of brass.

x All Silver, not only covered with Silver, as some unduly infer from Exod. 38. 17.

18 ¶ The length of the court shall be an hundred cubits, and the breadth † fifty every where, and the Heb. fifty by fifty. height five cubits, of fine twined linen, and their sockets of brass.

19 All the vessels of the tabernacle in all the service thereof, and all the pins thereof, and all the pins y of the court shall be of brass.

y Wherewith the Tabernacle and Curtains thereof were fastned to the ground, as Tents usually are with wooden Pins.

20 ¶ And thou shalt command the children of Israel that they bring thee pure oil-olive beaten z for Heb. to the light, to cause the lamp † to burn alway a. stand up.

z Beaten out of the Olives with a Pestle, which is freer from dregs than that which is squeezed out with a Press. a (i. e.) At all the times appointed; daily, though not continually; as the Lamb offered only every morning and every evening is called a continual burnt-offering, Exod. 29. 42. For that those were lighted only at the evening, may seem probable from the next verse, and from Exod. 27. 21. and 30. 8. Lev. 24. 3. 1 Sam. 3. 3. 2 Chron. 13. 11. But because Josephus and Philo, who were eye-witnesses of the Temple-service, and had no temptation to lye in this matter, expresly affirm, that some lights did burn in the day-time, and it may seem indecent and improbable that God should dwell and the Priests minister in darkness, and there were no Windows to give light to the Tabernacle by day; it may be granted that some few burnt in the day, and all in the night, and that the latter is only mentioned in the places alledged, as being a more solemn time when all are lighted.

21 In the tabernacle † of the congregation b * without † Heb. of the meeting. the vail c, which is before the testimony d, Aaron and his sons shall order it e from evening to morning before the LORD: it shall be a statute for ever unto their generations, on the behalf of the children of Israel. See chap. 25. 22. and 29. 42. Chap. 26. 31.

b So called, because there the people used to meet not only one with another, but with God also. See Exod. 25. 22. Numb. 17. 4. Others render it, in the tabernacle of witness, because there God declared his mind, and will, and man's duty. c To wit, the second vail, in the holy place. d A short speech for, before the ark of the testimony, as it is elsewhere more largely called, compare Exod. 25. 16. e To wit, the lamp, or the lights, taking care that there be a constant supply of them, and that they burn well.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Aaron and his sons ordained for the priests office, 1. His holy garment, 2, 3. The ephod, 6. Curious girdle, 8. The two onyx stones on which the names of the children of Israel were engraven, 9——14. Of the breast-plate wherein was the same, 15——22. with two golden rings, 23——29. The Urim and Thummim, 31. The golden plate which had on't Holiness to the Lord, 36. The coats of Aaron's sons, their girdles, caps, and their linen drawers, 40. which they put on when they served in the holy place, 43.

AND take thou unto thee a * Aaron thy brother, * Heb. 5. and his sons with him, from among the children 1, 4. of Israel, that he may minister unto me in the priests office, even Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar, Aarons sons.

a Cause them to come near unto thee, that thou maist before them and before the people declare the will of God herein, and solemnly set them apart for his Office.

2 And * thou shalt make † holy garments b for * Chap. 39. Aaron thy brother, for glory and for beauty c. 2.

† Gr. as holy stole. b Garments to be used only in holy Ministrations. c (i. e.) Such as are glorious and beautiful; partly to mind the people of the dignity and excellency of their Office and Employment; and principally to represent the glorious Robes wherewith Christ is both clothed himself, and clotheth all his people, who are made Priests unto God. Rev. 7. 9.

3 And * thou shalt speak unto all that are wise-hearted, * whom I have filled e with the spirit of wisdom, * Chap. 36. 1. that they make Aarons garments to consecrate him f Chap. 31. that he may minister unto me in the priests office. 2. and 35. 30.

d (i. e.) Skilful Artists. The Hebrews make the Heart, not the Brain, the seat of Wisdom. See Job 9. 4. e Either 1. By my ordinary Providence and Assistance, giving them both ability and opportunity to learn the Arts; or rather 2. By extraordinary inspiration, which was necessary for the Israelites, whose base and laborious drudgery took off their Minds and Hands from all ingenious Studies and Arts. f (i. e.) To be an outward sign of my calling and consecration of him to my holy service. A metonymical expression.

4 And these are the garments which they shall make; a breast-plate, and an ephod g, and a robe h, and a broidered coat i, a mitre k, and a girdle l: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, that he may minister unto me in the priests office.

g This was a short upper Garment, made without Sleeves, which was girt about the Body. And it was twofold, the one made of fine Linen, which was common not only to all the Priests, as 2 Sam. 2. 18. and 22. 18. but to some others also upon solemn and sacred occasions, as 2 Sam. 6. 14. the other made of divers Stuffs and Colours, peculiar to the High Priest; the parts whereof were not sewed, but tied together. h An upper Garment like a Surplice. i An under Coat curiously wrought with circular works like Eyes, as the word notes, and richly adorned with Gems and other things. k A kind of Bonnet or Cap for the covering of the Head, supposed to be something like a Turkish Turband for the form of it. l To encloſe and fasten all the other Garments, which were loose in themselves, that he might be more expeditious in his work.

5 And they shall take gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen.

6 ¶ And they shall make the ephod m of gold, of blue, and of purple, of scarlet, and fine twined linen, with cunning work.

m Beaten out into plates, and cut into wires.

7 It shall have the two shoulder-pieces n thereof joyned at the two edges thereof; and so it shall be joyned together.

n Which were two parts of the Ephod going up from the body of the Ephod, the one before, the other behind, which when the Priest had put over his Head, were tied together, and covered the Priest's Shoulders, and part of his Back and Breast.

† Or, embroidered. 8 And the † curious girdle of the ephod o which is upon it p, shall be of the same q, according to the work thereof; even of gold, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

o Which was for the closer fastning and girding of it. p This is added to distinguish it from the other Girdle, verse 4. which was to gird all the Garments, and was tied in a lower place. q Either 1. Of the same piece; or rather 2. Of the same kind of materials and workmanship; as the following words explain it.

9 And thou shalt take two onyx stones, and grave on them the names of the children of Israel:

10 Six of their names on one stone, and the other six r names of the rest on the other stone, according to their birth:

r Levi seems to be omitted here, as being sufficiently represented by the High Priest himself.

*Wisd. 18. 24. 11 * With the work of an engraver in stone, like the engravings of a signet shalt thou engrave the two stones, with the names of the children of Israel: thou shalt make them to be set in ouches s of gold.

s Hollow places, such as are made in golden Rings to receive and hold the precious Stones which are put in them.

12 And thou shalt put the two stones upon the shoulders of the ephod t, for stones of memorial unto the children of Israel. And Aaron shall bear their names before the LORD u upon his two shoulders for a memorial x.

t (i.e.) In the place where the two Shoulder-pieces were joyned together. u Into the Holy of Holies. An evident Type of Christ's entring into Heaven with the names and in the stead of his people, the true Israel, upon his Shoulders, and presenting them to his Father with acceptance. x Not so much to the High Priest, that he should not forget to pray for them, as to God, that he, beholding their names there, according to his order, might graciously remember them and shew mercy unto them. Such a memorial to God was the Rainbow, Gen. 9. 13. Such things are spoken of God after the manner of men.

13 And thou shalt make ouches y of gold:

y Not for the Stones, verse 12. which had other Ouches, verse 11. but for the Chains, verse 14.

14 And two chains of pure gold at the ends z: of wreathen work shalt thou make them, and fasten the wreathen chains to the ouches.

z Or, with ends, (i.e.) not like Chains that are fastned about ones Neck or Arm, which seem to have no end; but two distinct Chains with two several ends, both hanging downward; compare verse 22. The Syriack render it double, others equal, or of equal length.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make the breast-plate of judgement a with cunning work, after the work of the ephod thou shalt make it: of gold, of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine twined linen shalt thou make it.

a This was a square and curiously-wrought piece put over the Ephod upon one's Breast, called of judgment, because from thence the Israelites were to expect and receive their judgment, and the mind of God in all those weighty matters of War or Peace wherein they consulted God for direction.

16 Four square it shall be, being doubled b: a span shall be the length thereof, and a span shall be the breadth thereof.

b For greater strength, that it might better support and secure the precious Stones which were put into it, and that it might receive the Urim and Thummim, Lev. 8. 8.

† Heb. fill in it fillings of stone. 17 And thou shalt † set in it settings of stones, even four rows of stone c: the first row shall be a † sardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this shall be the first row.

c It is needless to trouble the Reader with the explication of these Stones, which the Jewish Doctors themselves are not agreed in, seeing this use of them is now abolished. It may suffice to know, that they were precious Stones severally allotted to the names of the several Tribes, according to God's good pleasure, possibly with respect to some disposition or concernment of each Tribe, which at this distance we cannot learn.

18 And the second row shall be an emeraud, a saphir, and a diamond.

19 And the third row, a ligure, an agate, and an amethyst.

20 And the fourth row, a beryl, and an onyx, and a jasper: they shall be set in gold in their † inclosings.

21 And the stones shall be with the names of the children of Israel, twelve, according to their names, like the engravings of a signet: every one with his name shall they be according to the twelve tribes d.

d (i.e.) According to the order of their birth, the first stone to the eldest, the second to the next, &c.

22 And thou shalt make upon the breast-plate chains at the ends e, of wreathen work of pure gold.

e Some think these are the same with those mentioned, v. 14. But it seems improbable and without example, that God should in this so short description, and that within a few Verses, give a new and second command concerning the same thing. It may rather seem that these are other Chains fastned to the Breast-place, as it follows, whereas those Chains, ver. 14. seem to have been fastened to the Ephod, to those ouches made in it for that purpose, ver. 13. And whereas these chains also are fastened in the said ouches, ver. 25. two several chains may well enough be fastened in divers parts of each of the ouches; and there seems to be this difference between the chains, those chains mentioned ver. 14 are said to be fastened only at one end, even to the ouches of the Ephod, whence they might hang down loosely, whereas these are manifestly fastened at both ends, verf. 24, 25.

23 And thou shalt make upon the breast-plate two rings of gold; and shalt put the two rings on the two ends of the breast-plate.

24 And thou shalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breast-plate.

25 And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains thou shalt fasten in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder-pieces of the ephod before it f.

f (i.e.) In the fore-part of the Ephod; or before him, i.e. the High-priest, in his fore-part, upon his breast.

26 And thou shalt make two rings of gold, and thou shalt put them upon the two ends g of the breast-plate, in the border thereof, which is in the side of the ephod inward h.

g To wit, upon the lower ends, for there were other rings put upon the upper ends, ver. 23, 24, 25. h (i.e.) In the inner side of the Ephod, under which these rings were hid; for the Ephod was double, ver. 16.

27 And two other rings i of gold thou shalt make, and shalt put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath k, towards the forepart thereof l, over-against the other coupling thereof m, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

i To answer the two rings in the Breast plate, that by all these the Breast-plate might be the better fastened to the Ephod. In the lower part of the Ephod, or in that part of it which is under the lowest part of the Breast-plate. l Towards the breast. m (i.e.) Over-against the ouches on the shoulder-pieces, where the upper part of the Breast-plate was fastened to the Ephod.

28 And they shall bind the breast-plate by the rings thereof, unto the rings of the ephod with a lace of blue, that it may be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breast-plate be not loosed from the ephod.

29 And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breast-plate of judgment upon his heart n, when he goeth in unto the holy place o, for a memorial before the LORD continually.

n Partly to admonish the High-priest of that dear affection he should have to his people, and with what ardency he should pray for them, and principally to represent the tender compassions of Christ, the great High-priest, towards his people, and how mindful he is of them, and of all their concerns, even when he is in the Holy of holies, that is, in Heaven, where he remembers them still, and unceasingly intercedes for them. o (i.e.) Into the most Holy place; the positive degree being put for the superlative.

30 And * thou shalt put in the breast-plate of judgment, the Urim and the Thummim p, and they shall be upon Aarons heart when he goeth in before the LORD: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel q upon his heart, before the LORD continually r. * Deut. 33. 8. Ezra 2. Neh. 7.

p The words confessedly signify light, or illuminations and perfections, which may be understood either of two differing things, the one noting the knowledge, the other the perfection, to wit, of vertues and graces, which were required in the High-priest, and which were in Christ in an eminent degree, and from him alone communicated to his people; or of one and the same thing, noting perfect light or illumination, by a figure called Hendyadis, oft used in Scripture, as Deut. 16. 18. Mat. 4. 16. compare with Job 10. 20. Joh. 3. 5. Acts 17. 25. compared with Gen. 2. 7. Which may seem probable, 1. because the great use of this instrument was to give light and direction in dubious and difficult cases, and not to confer any other perfection upon any person. 2. Because sometimes both these words and things are expressed only by one of them, and that is by Urim, Numb. 27. 21. 1 Sam. 28. 6. which signifies lights. And the name seems to be given from the effect, because hence the Israelites had clear light, and perfect or certain direction in dark and doubtful matters. But the great question is, What this Urim and Thummin was, and in what manner God answered by it. Which God having on purpose concealed from us, and not set down the matter or form of it, as he hath done of all the other particulars, it may seem curiosity and presumption for men solicitously to enquire, and positively to determine. Many conceive it was nothing else but the twelve precious Stones, wherein the names of the 12 Tribes were engraven, and that the answer of God was composed out of those letters, which either shew more brightly, or thrust themselves further outward than the rest did. Which seems a frivolous and ungrounded conjecture, both because all the letters of the Alphabet were not there, and so all answers could not be given by them; and because it was shut up within the duplicature of the Breast-plate, and therefore could not be seen by the High-priest, and there is not a word to signify that he was to take it out thence, and look upon it, but rather the contrary is evident. And that this Urim and Thummim are not the same thing with those 12 stones, may be easily proved. 1. Because the stones were set and engraven in the Breast-plate, ver. 17. 21. this was only put into it, which is a word of quite different and more loose and large signification, and therefore probably doth not design the same thing. 2. It is not likely, that in such a brief account of the sacred Utensils, the same Command would be repeated again, especially in more dark and general words than it was mentioned before. And how could Moses now put it in, when the Workmen had fastened it there before? Or why should he be required to put it in the Breast-plate, when it was fastened to it already, and could not without violence be taken from it? 3. Because the stones were put in by the Workmen, Exod. 39. 10. the Urim and Thummim by Moses himself, Lev. 8. 8. It is objected, that where the stones are mentioned, there is no mention of Urim and Thummim, as Exod. 39. and that where the Urim and Thummim are mentioned, there is no mention of the stones, as Lev. 8. 8. which shews they were one and the same thing. But that is not necessary, and there is an evident reason of both those omissions; of the former, Exod. 39. because he mentions only those things which were made by the Workmen, whereas the Urim and Thummim seems to have been made immediately by God, or by Moses with God's direction: Of the latter, Lev. 8. because the stones are implied in the Breast-plate as a part of it, and being fastened to it, whereas there he only mentions what was put in by Moses himself. There are other conjectures, as that it was the name Jehovah, or some visible representations, &c. But such conjectures are as easily denied as affirmed. It is therefore more modest and reasonable to be silent where God is silent, than to indulge our selves in boundless and groundless fancies. It may suffice us to know that this was a singular piece of Divine Workmanship, which the High-priest was obliged to wear upon solemn occasions, as one of the Conditions upon which God engaged to give him answers. Which answers God might give to him either by inward suggestion to his mind, or by a vocal expression to his ear. But which of those ways, or whether by any other way, it is needless now to search, and impossible certainly to discover. q A short Speech. As the testimony is oft put for the ark of the testimony, so is the judgment here for the breast-plate of judgment, i.e. that Breast-plate which declared the judgment, or oracle, or mind of God to the Israelites in those cases which they brought to the Lord. r (i.e.) At all times when he shall appear before the Lord in the holy place.

31 And thou shalt make the robe of the ephod s all of blue.

s Not the Ephod it self, for that was prescribed before, ver. 6. but a long and loose Robe called the robe of the Ephod, because it was worn next under it, and was girded about the High-priest's Body with the curious girdle of the Ephod.

32 And there shall be an hole in the top of it in the midst thereof: it shall have a binding of woven work round about the hole of it, as it were the hole of an habergeon, that it be not rent.

Or, skirts 33 And beneath upon the † hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates t of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, round about the hem thereof, and bells u of gold between them round about.

t The figures of Pomegranates, but flat and embroidered. u By the sound whereof the People might be admonished of the work which the Priest was employed in, and thereby be provoked to join their affections and devotions with his. These Pomegranates and Bells might note either 1. the qualifications of the Priest, who was both to declare or give forth the sound of pure and wholsome Doctrine, and to adorn his Doctrine with the fragrancy and fruitfulness of a good conversation. Or 2. The glorious Atchievements of Christ, who caused the sound of his Doctrine to be heard by all men, and offered up himself as a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour, Eph. 5. 2.

34 A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about.

Eccles. 12. 9. 35 * And it shall be upon Aaron to minister, and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the LORD, and when he cometh out, that he die not u.

u For his disobedience or carelesness. For though the matter might seem small in it self, yet it was an error in God's Worship, wherein God is more severe than in other things; and it was an error of the High-priest, who had more knowledge of God's mind herein, and was obliged to more care and diligence, not only for himself, but for the influences of his bad example upon the People.

36 And thou shalt make a plate x of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD y.

x Like an half Coronet, reaching, as the Jews say, from ear to ear. y To mind the Priest of his special consecration to God, and of that singular holiness which was required of him, as at all times, so especially in his approaches to God. It might also represent Christ, who is called the holy one of God, and who is a crowned Priest, or both King and Priest.

37 And thou shalt put it on a blue lace z, that it may be upon the mitre, upon the forefront of the mitre it shall be.

z The words may be rendered, thou shalt put it on, or, bind it, as the vulgar renders it, with a blue lace, to wit, upon the Mitre, as it follows.

38 And it shall be upon Aarons forehead, that Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things a which the children of Israel shall hallow in all their holy gifts b: and it shall be always c upon his forehead, that they may be accepted before the LORD.

a Either, 1. that he, being consecrated to God for this end, that he should take care as far as he could, that both persons and things presented to God should be holy or agreeable to the mind of God, might bear the punishment for any miscarriage committed therein, which he could have prevented. Or rather, 2. that he being an holy person, and appointed by God to make a typical reconciliation for the sins of the People, and to intercede for them, might take away, or obtain from God the pardon of their iniquity, wherewith even their holy things are defiled, if God should severely mark what is amiss in them. Which sense the last words of the Verse favour. And the High-Priest was herein eminently a Type of Christ, who properly and truly bare and took away the iniquity of his Peoples holy things, by his sacrifice and intercession. b (i.e.) Shall separate or consecrate unto God in all their offerings or gifts. If there be any thing amiss either in the thing offered, or in the manner of offering, God upon the Priest's intercession will pardon it. c (i.e.) At all times of his solemn appearance before God.

39 And thou shalt embroider the coat d of fine linen, and thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen, and thou shalt make the girdle of needlework.

d This was a loose and large Garment made with sleeves, worn under the Ephod, reaching down to the feet, which was girt with a girdle, Lev. 8. 7.

40 And for Aarons sons thou shalt make coats e, and thou shalt make for them girdles, and bonnets shalt thou make for them, for glory and for beauty.

e Not of Woollen, Ezek. 44. 17. but of linen, Exod. 39. 27. These were Ephods, 1 Sam. 22. 18.

41 And thou shalt put them upon Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him: and * shalt anoint them, and † consecrate them f, and sanctify them, that they may minister unto me in the priests office. * Chap. 29. 7. and 30. 30. † Heb. fill their hand.

f Heb. fill their hand, i.e. present them to God with part of the Sacrifice in their hands, as we find, Exod. 29. 24. by that rite putting them into their office.

42 And thou shalt make them linen breeches to cover † their nakedness, from the loins even unto the thighs g they shall † reach. † Heb. flesh of their nakedness. † Heb. be.

g Including both. Compare Exod. 20. 26.

43 And they shall be upon Aaron, and upon his sons, when they come in unto the tabernacle of the congregation, or when they come near unto the altar, to minister in the holy place, that they bear not iniquity, and die. It shall be a statute for ever, unto him, and his seed after him.

CHAP. XXIX.

The manner of consecrating Priests, 1——4. Of consecrating Aaron and his sons, 5, 6, 7. The Priests Vesture, 9. How the bullock of the sin-offering was to be offered, 10——14. One ram for a burnt-offering, and the manner of offering, 15——18. A ram for hallowing the Priests, 19——31. Aaron and his sons eat of the ram, wherewith they were consecrated, 32, 33. The altar sanctified for seven days, 36, 37. Two lambs offered daily, 38. The time, 39. The manner of offering, 40——43. God's promise to hallow the tabernacle, Aaron, and his sons, 44. and to dwell with them, 45, 46.

AND this is the thing that thou shalt do unto them to hallow them, to minister unto me in the priests office. * Take one young bullock, and two rams without blemish a; * Lev. 8. 1. 2.

a See Exod. 12. 5. Mal. 1. 13, 14.

2 And * unleavened b bread, and cakes unleavened tempered with oyl, and wafers unleavened anointed with oil: of wheaten flower shalt thou make them. * Lev. 6. 20.

b To shew that the Priests should be, and that Christ really was, free from all malice and hypocrisy, both which are compared to leaven, Luke 12. 1. 1 Cor. 5. 8. and that all the services offered to God by the Priests were to be pure and unmixed.

3 And thou shalt put them into one basket, and bring them c in the basket with the bullock and the two rams.

c To the door of the Tabernacle, as it follows ver. 4.

4 And Aaron and his sons thou shalt bring unto the door of the tabernable of the congregation, and shalt wash them with water d.

d Taken out of that laver, Exod. 30. 18. This signified the universal pollution of all men, and the absolute need they have of washing, especially when they are to draw nigh to God. And this outward washing was only typical of their spiritual washing by the Blood and Spirit of Christ in order to their acceptance with God.

5 And thou shalt take the garments, and put upon Aaron the coat, and the robe of the ephod, and the ephod, and the breast-plate, and gird him with * the curious girdle of the ephod e. * Chap. 28. 8.

e Not about the Loins, but about the Paps, or Breast, as Christ and his Ministers are represented, Rev. 1. 13. The linen Breeches are here omitted, because they were put on privately before they came to the door of the Tabernacle, where the other things were put on.

6 And thou shalt put the mitre upon his head, and put the holy crown f upon the mitre.

f (i.e.) The plate of gold, chap. 28. 36. as appears by comparing Lev. 8. 9.

g Which signified the gifts and grace of the Holy Ghost wherewith Christ was, and the Priests ought to be replenished. See Isa. 61. 1. Joh. 2. 27. But here ariseth a difficulty; for this anointing is sometimes spoken of, as peculiar to the High-Priest, as Lev. 21. 10. sometimes as common to all the Priests, Exod. 30. 30. and 40. 14, 15. which may be thus reconciled, The Oil was sprinkled upon all the Priests, and their right Ears, Thumbs, and Toes, and their Garments, verse 20, 21. Lev. 8. 30. but it was poured out upon the Head only of the High-Priest, Psal. 133. 2. who herein was a type of Christ, who was anointed above his fellows, Psal. 45. 7. Heb. 1. 9.

8 And thou shalt bring his sons, and put coats upon them:

*Chap. 28. 41.

10 And thou shalt cause a bullock to be brought before the tabernacle of the congregation: and * Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock i.

‡ Lev. 1. 4.

i To signify that they offered it for themselves and for their own sins, which the offerer performing this Rite was to confess, Lev. 16 21. that they acknowledged themselves to deserve that death which was inflicted upon this innocent Creature for their sakes, and to testify their Faith in the future Sacrifice of Christ, upon whom their sins were to be laid, and by whose Blood they were expiated, and that they humbly begged God's mercy in pardoning their sins, and accepting them to and in their holy Office.

11 And thou k shalt kill the bullock before the LORD, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

k Moses, who though no Priest, yet for this time and occasion was called by God to this work.

12 And thou shalt take of the blood of the bullock, and put it upon * the horns of the altar l with thy finger, and pour all the blood beside the bottom of the altar.

*Chap 27. 2. and 30. 2.

l Not of Incense, as some would have it, but of the burnt-offerings, as may appear, 1. Because it was that Altar at the bottom whereof the Blood was to be poured, as it is here expressed; but that was not done at the Altar of Incense, as is evident and confessed. Compare Lev. 16. 18. &c. 2. It was that Altar upon which the parts of the Sacrifices were burnt, as it here follows verse 13. for there is no distinction here between the two Altars. It is true, in the following sin-offerings of the Priests the Blood was put upon the Horns of the Altar of Incense, Lev. 4. 7. But it must be considered, 1. That the Blood was not poured out at the bottom of that Altar. 2 Because Aaron and his Sons were not yet compleat Priests, but private persons, and therefore did this at the same Altar which the people used in their sin-offerings, Lev. 4. 25, 30.

13 And thou shalt take all the fat that covereth the inwards, and † the caul that is above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them m, and burn them upon the altar.

† Supposed by anatomy, and the Hebrew Doctors, to be the midriff.

m The parts which in all Sacrifices were burned unto God, Lev. 3. 3. and 4. 19. to signify either the mortification of their inward and most beloved lusts, or the dedication of the best of all Sacrifices, and of their inward and best parts to God and his service.

14 But the flesh of the bullock, and his skin, and his dung, shalt thou burn with fire without the camp: it is a sin-offering n.

n To wit, for the High-Priest, as is plain from the whole context, and therefore ought to be burnt by that Law, Lev. 4. There was indeed a Law, that that sin offering, whose Blood was not carried into the Tabernacle, which was the case here, should not be burnt but eaten, Lev. 6. 30. and 10 18. But that concerned the People, not the Priests, who did not eat, but burn their own sin-offerings, Lev. 4. 3, 12.

15 Thou shalt also take one ram, and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

16 ¶ And thou shalt slay the ram, and thou shalt take his blood, and sprinkle it round about upon the altar o.

o Which signifies, that not only our Persons, but our very Altars and Sacrifices, and best Services, need the sprinkling of Christ's Blood upon them to render them acceptable to God.

17 And thou shalt cut the ram in pieces, and wash the inwards of him, and his legs, and put them unto his pieces, and † unto his head.

† Or, upon.

18 And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar: it is a burnt-offering unto the LORD: it is a sweet savour p, an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

p Heb. A savour of rest, wherewith God will be well-pleased, and for which, as representing Christ who offered up himself, he will graciously accept of the offerings of the Priests for themselves, and for the People.

19 ¶ And thou shalt take the other ram q: and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

q For a peace-offering. So here were all the three sorts of Sacrifices, which were afterwards to be offered by them for the People.

20 Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take of his blood, and put it upon the tip of the right ear r of Aaron, and upon the tip of the right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand r, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

r These parts are consecrated in the name and stead of all the rest; the ear, as the instrument of hearing and receiving the mind and will of God in all their sacred administrations, and in their whole conversation; the hand and foot, as the instruments of action and execution of that which they hear and understand to be the mind of God: And the right parts are chosen, rather than the left, as being usually more vigorous and expeditious. And all these parts are sprinkled with this Blood, to shew the absolute necessity of Christ's Blood to qualify them for an acceptable and successful discharge of their Office.

21 And thou shalt take of the blood that is upon the altar, and of * the anointing oyl, and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him: and * he shall be hallowed, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons garments with him.

*Chap. 29. 21.

Heb. 9. 22.

22 Also thou shalt take of the ram the fat, and the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul of the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and the right shoulder: for it is a ram of consecration s:

s Of the Priests in their Office. Therefore the right Shoulder was burnt, which in other Sacrifices was given to the Priest.

23 And one loaf of bread, and one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer out of the basket of the unleavened bread, that is before the LORD.

24 And thou shalt put all in the hands of Aaron, and in the hands of his sons, and shalt † wave them t for a wave-offering before the LORD.

† Or, to and fro.

t Either toss them from one hand to another, as giving all from themselves to God; or shake them to and fro, towards the several parts of the World, to note God's dominion over all places and people, and the extent of that true and great Sacrifice, represented in these types to all.

25 And thou shalt receive them of their hands, and burn them upon the altar for a burnt-offering, for a sweet savour before the LORD: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

26 And thou shalt take * the breast of the ram of † Aarons consecrations, and wave it for a wave-offering before the LORD, and it shall be thy part u.

*Lev. 8. 29.

u To wit, the Breast alone, whereas both Shoulder and Breast were given to Aaron afterwards; the reason whereof might be, either because Moses was not a proper and compleat Priest, as Aaron afterward was, but only appointed by God for this time to do that work; or because now there were in a manner two Priests, the one consecrating, to wit, Moses; the other consecrated, to wit, Aaron; therefore these parts were divided, the Breast given to the former to be eaten, the Shoulder offered unto God for the latter, verse 22. he being not yet a perfect Priest, and therefore not in a capacity of eating it.

27 And thou shalt sanctifie * the breast of the wave-offering, and the shoulder of the heave-offering, which is waved, and which is heaved up x of the ram of the consecration, even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons y.

*Lev. 8. 29.

x This was done by throwing the parts upward, and catching them again. y The words may be rendred thus, of which, Breast and Shoulder of the Ram, shall be Aaron's portion, and of which shall be the portion of his sons; so there is only an Ellipsis of the Verb Substantive, which is most common, and the Hebrew prefix Lamed designs a thing belonging to the person to whom that is prefixed, as it is in other like cases, as Gen. 40. 8. Deut. 1. 17. Psal. 47. 9.

28 And it shall be Aarons and his sons by a statute for ever, from the children of Israel: for it is an heave-offering: and it shall be an heave-offering from the children of Israel, of the sacrifice of their peace-offerings, even their heave-offering unto the LORD.

z Under which is comprehended also the wave-offering; as plainly appears both from the context, and from the parity of reason, these offerings being of the same nature, and designed for the same purpose.

29 ¶ And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his sons a after him, to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated b in them.

a (i.e.) His eldest Sons successively. b By some other Priest, there being no other higher person who could do it, and therefore the necessity of it made it warrantable.

30 And † * that son that is priest in his stead, shall † He put them on seven days c when he cometh into the tabernacle of the congregation, to minister in the holy place d.

c For so long the solemnity of the Consecration lasted, verse 35.

d Both that strictly so called, and in the most Holy Place; for as none none could go into the most Holy Place except the High Priest, so there were some things to be done in the Holy Place, which none but he could do. See Levit. 4. 7, 8.

31 ¶ And thou shalt take the ram of the consecration, and seethe his flesh in the holy place e.

e In the Court-yard at the Door of the Tabernacle, where it was both boiled and eaten, as appears from this and the next verse, and from Levit. 8. 31. And part of this was eaten by the person or persons that brought the offering, though they were of the people, who were not admitted into any other Holy Place but this.

32 And Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram, and the * bread that is in the basket, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

*Lev. 8. 31. Matth. 12. 4.

33 And they shall eat those things f wherewith the atonement was made to consecrate, and to sanctifie them: but a stranger g shall not eat thereof, because they are holy.

f (i.e.) The remainders of the Oblations mentioned verse 32.

g (i.e.) One who is not of the Priestly Race, whereas in other peace-offerings the offerer did eat a part.

34 And if ought of the flesh of the consecrations, or of the bread remain unto the morning, then thou shalt burn the remainder with h fire: it shall not be eaten, because it is holy.

h According to the Law of all peace-offerings, except those which were vows or voluntary offerings, Levit. 7. 16, 17. which these were not, compare Exod. 12. 10.

35 And thus shalt thou do unto Aaron, and to his sons, according to all things which I have commanded thee: seven days shalt thou consecrate them.

36 And thou shalt offer every day a bullock for a sin-offering for atonement i: and thou shalt cleanse the altar, when thou hast made an atonement for it, and thou shalt anoint it, to sanctifie it.

i As well for the Priests, as for the Altar, both which as they were or might be polluted, so they needed the sprinkling of this Blood to sanctifie them, to shew that all persons and things were fitted for God's service, and accepted by him only for and through the Blood of Christ.

37 Seven days thou shalt make an atonement for the altar, and sanctifie it: * and it shall be an altar most holy k: † * whatsoever toucheth the altar shall be holy l.

*Chap. 40. 10.

† Or, whatsoever.

*Lev. 6. 18. Chap. 30. 29.

k As appears from the following reason, because it was not only Holy in it self, but by it: touch communicated a legal Holiness to other things. l This may be understood either 1. Of persons, as a caution that none should touch the Altar but holy and consecrated persons. Or rather 2. Of things, yet not of all things, for polluted things were not made holy by the touch of holy things, which is affirmed Haggai 2. 12. but of things belonging to the Altar of offerings which by God's appointment were to be offered, which were sanctified by being laid upon this Altar, and therefore the Altar was greater and more holy than the gift, as our blessed Saviour notes, Matth. 23. 19.

38 ¶ Now this is that which thou shalt offer m upon the altar, * two lambs of the first year * day by day continually n,

*Num. 28. 3.

m This is the chief end and use of this Altar, though it served also for other Sacrifices. n To shew partly that men do daily contract new defilement, and daily need new pardons; and partly that God is not only to be worshipped upon the Sabbath-days, and other set and solemn times, but every day.

39 The one lamb thou shalt offer in the morning o, and the other lamb thou shalt offer † at even o.

Heb. between the two evenings.

o Which two seasons were selected, as most commodious, that men might both begin and end their worldly Actions and Businesses with God, and might see their need of God's assistance and blessing in all their concerns, and the justness of giving him the praise and glory of all.

40 And with the one lamb a tenth-deal p of flour, mingled with the fourth part of an hin of beaten oil, and the fourth part of a hin q of wine, for a drink-offering.

p The tenth part of an Ephah, as is evident from Numb. 28. 5. which is an Omer, Exod. 16. 36. q An Hin was a measure for liquid things, as the Ephah was for dry things, containing six Pints of our measure.

41 And the other lamb thou shalt offer at even, and shalt do thereto according to the meat-offering of the morning, and according to the drink-offering thereof, for a sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

42 This shall be a continual burnt-offering throughout your generations, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD, where r I will meet you, to speak there unto you.

† Heb. of meeting.

r Either 1. At which Door, for there the Lord stood and talked with Moses, Exod. 33. 9, 10. Or rather 2. In which Tabernacle, to wit, in the innermost part of it, because that was the principal place where God did ordinarily reside and meet with his people, Exod. 30. 6. Levit. 16. 2. whereas God met but once at the Door of the Tabernacle, and that with Moses only, not with the people, with whom he is said to meet in this place, verse 43. Add to this, that the place where God meets them is the same place which is sanctified by his Glory, and that was the Tabernacle, verse 43. as it is expressed in our Translation, and sufficiently implied in the Hebrew, by a common Ellipsis of the Pronoun it, i. e. that place where I meet with you, to wit, the Tabernacle, shall be, &c.

43 And there I will meet with the children of Israel: and † the tabernacle shall be sanctified by my glory s.

† Or, Israel.

s (i.e.) By my glorious presence and appearance, of which see Exod. 40. 34. 35. Levit. 9. 24.

44 And I will sanctifie the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar: I will sanctifie also both Aaron and his sons to minister to me in the priests office.

45 ¶ And * I will dwell t amongst the children of Israel, and will be their God.

*Chap 25. 8. Lev. 26. 12. 2 Cor. 6. 16.

t By my special grace, and favour, and blessing; for by his essence he fills all places.

46 And they shall know that I am the LORD their God that brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell among them: I am the LORD their God.

CHAP. XXX.

He commands to make an Altar for Incense, and of what, 1. The length and breadth of it, 2. The form of it, 3——6. Wherein the Priest was to kindle Incense every morning, being commanded, 7. All the children of Israel to bring half a shekel for their souls, 11——15. A laver of brass, 17, 18. Wherein Aaron and his sons wash their feet, 19——21. The making the oil of holy ointment, 22——25. Its use, 26——28. None might make the like, 32, 33. for himself, 38.

AND thou shalt make * an altar to burn incense upon a: of shittim-wood shalt thou make it.

*Chap. 37. 25.

a Incense signifies the prayers of God's People, Psal. 141. 2. Revel. 8. 3. which are not acceptable to God, except they be offered upon the true Altar, Christ. This Incense also was useful to correct the bad smell of the Sacrifices, which were offered on another Altar, not far from it. Yea, some Sacrifices were offered upon this Altar, as appears from verse 10. Levit. 4. 7. But here only the principal and constant use of it is noted.

2 A cubit shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof (four-square shall it be) and two cubits shall be the height thereof; the horns thereof b shall be of the same.

b See Exod. 27. 2. Though these horns, as they were for another use, so they seem to be here of another form, and for ornament more than for service.

3 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, the † top thereof c, and the † sides thereof round about, and the horns thereof: and thou shalt make unto it a crown d of gold round about.

c This was made hollow like a Grate, that the Ashes might fall thorough it. d A border which encompassed the Altar, that the things laid on it might not fall off.

4 And two golden rings shalt thou make to it, under the crown of it, by the two † corners thereof, upon the two sides of it shalt thou make them: and they shall be for places for the staves to bear it withal.

† Heb. ribs.

5 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold.

6 And thou shalt put it before the vail e that is by the ark of the testimony, before the mercy-seat that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee.

e Before the second Vail, in the holy place, and next to the Holy of holies, and consequently to the Ark and Mercy-seat.

7 And Aaron shall burn thereon † sweet incense f every morning: when * he dresseth the lamps g he shall burn incense upon it.

† Heb. to incense of spices.

*Chap. 27. 20.

f Aaron was to do this for the first time, but afterwards any Priest might do it, as appears from Luke 1. 9. This not being done in the Holy of Holies, which was the High-Priest's peculiar. g (i.e.) Cleansed them, and prepared them for the receiving of the new light.

8 And when Aaron * † lighteth the lamps † at even, * h he shall burn incense upon it, a perpetual incense before the LORD throughout your generations.

Or, setteth up.

† Heb. causeth to ascend.

h The time when all the Lamps were to be lighted, 1 Sam. 3. 3. See Exod. 27. 20, 21.

9 Ye shall offer no strange incense i thereon, nor † burnt-sacrifice, nor meat-offering, neither shall ye pour drink-offering thereon.

† Heb. between the two evenings.

i (i.e.) Of any other sort than what I shall here appoint, verse 34, &c.

10 And * Aaron shall make an atonement upon the * horns of it once in a year k with the blood of the sin-offering of atonements l; once in the year shall he make atonement upon it throughout your generations: it is most holy unto the LORD.

*Lev. 16. 18. 23. 27.

k On the day of expiation, Lev. 16. 19. Numb. 29. 7. l To note, that the Prayers of the Saints are acceptable to God no otherwise, but through the Blood of Christ, who was offered for the expiation of our sins.

11 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

* Chap. 38. 25. Num. 1. 2, 5. and 26. 2. † Heb. them that are to be numbred. See Num. 31. 50.

12 * When thou takeſt the ſum of the children of Iſrael after † their number, then ſhall they give every man a ranſom for his ſoul m unto the LORD when thou numbreſt them n, that there be no plague amongſt them when thou numbreſt them.

m A certain price for the redemption of their lives; whereby they acknowledged the right and power which God had over their lives, and that they had forfeited them by their ſins, and that it was God's mercy to continue their lives to them. n To wit, upon any juſt occaſion, either now in the Wilderneſs, or afterwards: It may ſeem that this payment was neither to be made at this time only, as ſome would have it; nor yet every year, as Joſephus and others affirm, becauſe it is not ſaid to be a perpetual ſtatute, as other things of conſtant obſervance are, but upon any eminent occaſions, when the ſervice of the Tabernacle (which is the end and uſe of this collection) or Temple required it, as may be gathered from 2 King. 12. 4. compared with 2 Chron. 24. 6. Compare Neh. 10. 32. Matth. 17. 24. And as now it was imployed in the building of the Tabernacle, ſo afterwards it might be laid out upon the repairs or other ſervices of it.

13 This they ſhall give, every one that paſſeth among them that are numbred, from twenty years old and above o, (a ſhekel is twenty gerahs:) an half ſhekel ſhall be the offering of the LORD p.

o Which though it hath been commonly conceived to be double to the common Shekel, yet divers late Learned men ſeem more truly to judge that it was no more than the common Shekel, conſiſting of Half a crown of Engliſh-mony; which is called the ſhekel of the ſanctuary, becauſe the ſtandard by which all Shekels were to be examined, was kept in the Sanctuary, as afterwards the juſt Weights and Meaſures were kept in Chriſtian Temples, or other publick places. See Lev. 27. 25. Numb. 3. 47. Ezek. 45 10, 11, 12. Add to to this, that it was a part of the Prieſt's Office to look to the Weights and Meaſurer, as plainly appears from 1 Chron. 23. 29. p Not leſs, leſt it ſhould be contemptible; nor more, leſt it ſhould be too burthenſome for the Poor.

14 Every one that paſſeth among them that are numbred, from twenty years old and above q, ſhall give an offering unto the LORD.

q The time when they began to be fit for employment, and capable of getting and paying Money. Women and Children are not included here, becauſe they are reckoned in their Father's or Husband's.

† Heb. multiply. * Heb. diminiſh.

15 The rich ſhall not † give more, and the poor ſhall not † give leſs r than half a ſhekel when they give an offering unto the LORD, to make an atonement for your ſouls.

r This was partly to teach them, that all Souls are of equal worth in themſelves, and price with God; that there is no reſpect of perſons with God, and in God's Worſhip and Service, but Goſpel-graces, Ordinances and Priviledges are common and equal to all, Exod. 12. and 16. 18. Gal. 3 28. Col. 3. 11. that all Perſons are like obnoxious to Divine Juſtice, and are redeemed by one and the ſame price; partly to check the arrogance and vanity of the Rich, who are very apt to deſpiſe the Poor; and partly that by this means the number of the People might be exactly known when occaſion required it.

* Chap. 38. 25.

16 And thou ſhalt take the atonement-money of the children of Iſrael, and * ſhalt appoint it for the ſervice of the tabernacle s of the congregration, that it may be a memorial t unto the children of Iſrael before the LORD, to make an atonement for your ſouls.

s For the building and furniture of it, and the maintenance of God's Worſhip in it. t Either to the People, who hereby profeſs God to be their Lord and Owner, and themſelves his Subjects and Tributaries; or to God, who hereby takes occaſion to remember them, and to own them for his People.

17 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes u, ſaying, u The frequent repetition of this Phraſe, and the ſhortneſs of theſe Diſcourſes, in compariſon of the length of the forty days, ſhew that God did not deliver all theſe Laws and Preſcriptions at one time, but ſucceſſively at ſeveral times, poſſibly upon the Sabbath-days.

18 Thou ſhalt alſo make a laver of braſs x, and his foot alſo of braſs, to waſh withal y, and thou ſhalt put it between the tabernacle of the congregation and the altar z, and thou ſhalt put water therein.

* Pſal. 26. 6. Iſa. 52. 11. Heb. 10. 22.

19 For Aaron and his ſons ſhall * waſh their hands and their feet a thereat.

a To ſignify their natural impurity and unworthineſs, either to handle holy things, or to come into the holy place, and their need of waſhing with the Bloud and Spirit of Chriſt, which was typified by this waſhing.

20 When they go into the tabernacle of the congregation, they ſhall waſh with water, that they die not b: or when they come near to the altar to miniſter, to burn an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

b For though the Fault might ſeem ſmall, yet the Command was evident and eaſie, and therefore the diſobedience was worſe, arguing preſumption, rebellion, and contempt. And God is more ſevere in the matters of his Worſhip than in other caſes.

21 So they ſhall waſh their hands and their feet that they die not: and it ſhall be a ſtatute for ever to them, even to him, and to his ſeed throughout their generations.

22 Moreover, the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

23 Take thou alſo unto thee c principal ſpices d, of pure myrrhe e five hundred ſhekels, and of ſweet cinnamon half ſo much, even two hundred and fifty ſhekels, and of ſweet calamus f two hundred and fifty ſhekels, c The words are very emphatical, and the Jews from hence do rightly infer, that this Ointment was but once made, and that by Moſes his own hands. d See Cant. 4. 14. Ezek. 27. 22. and compare Pſal. 45. 8. Amos 6. 6. e Heb. myrrhe of liberty, either, 1. † Or, Junior.

26 And thou ſhalt anoint h the tabernacle of the congregation therewith, and the ark of the teſtimony.

h This was only an outward Ceremony, ſignifying the ſeparation and ſanctification of theſe things for the Service of God; as the anointing of Kings and Prieſts noted their deſignation to their Offices.

27 And the table and all his veſſels, and the candleſtick and his veſſels, and the altar of incenſe, 28 And the altar of burnt-offering with all his veſſels, and the laver, and his foot.

29 And thou ſhalt ſanctifie them that they may be moſt holy; whatſoever toucheth them ſhall be holy.

30 And thou ſhalt anoint Aaron and his ſons i, and conſecrate them that they may miniſter unto me in the prieſts office.

i Not all of them, but only thoſe who ſucceed him in the High-Prieſt's Office, as appears from Exod. 40. 15. Levit. 4. 3, 5, 16. and 16. 32. and 21. 10. This anointing of them ſignified both God's election or calling them to this Office, and the inward qualifications requiſite for it, to wit, the Gifts and Graces of the Holy Ghoſt, which are oft deſigned by this word of anointing, as Iſa. 61. 1. Dan. 9. 24. 1 John 2. 27. and the ſolemn ſetting apart of Chriſt, the true High-Prieſt, for the Mediatorial Office.

31 And thou ſhalt ſpeak unto the children of Iſrael, ſaying, This ſhall be an holy anointing-oil unto me k throughout your generations.

k (i. e.) Referred for my Service alone, not employed to any profane or civil uſe, as it follows.

32 Upon mans fleſh ſhall it not be poured l, neither ſhall ye make any other like it, after the compoſition of it: it is holy, and it ſhall be holy unto you m.

l Except thoſe whom God himſelf, the Author of this Law, excepts, to wit, the High-Prieſts; of which ſee verſ. 30. and ſome of the Kings, of which ſee 1 King. 1. 39. Pſal. 89. 20. though others think the Kings were only anointed with common Oil. m As it is unto me, verſe 31. you ſhall account it holy, as I do.

* Gen. 17. 14.

33 Whoſoever compoundeth any like it, or whoſoever putteth any of it upon a ſtranger n, * ſhall even be cut off from his people.

n The word ſtranger is commonly uſed to note the Gentiles, or ſuch as were not of Iſrael's Race; but ſometimes it notes thoſe that are not of the Prieſtly Race, as Exod. 29. 33. Levit. 22. 12, 13. And ſo it ſeems to be here. And if any of the Kings were anointed with this Oil, it was done by God's ſpecial appointment, who may diſpence with his own Laws.

34 And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, Take unto thee ſweet ſpices, ſtacte, and onycha, and galbanum o: theſe ſweet ſpices, with pure frankincenſe, of each ſhall there be a like weight p.

o The Jews themſelves are not agreed what theſe were, and it concerns not Chriſtians much to know, the uſe of them being aboliſhed. It is evident they were each of them ſweet Spices, and therefore this Galbanum was not of the common kind, which gives a very bad ſcent. p Heb. Alone ſhall be with alone, i. e. Each of theſe alone ſhall be with another alone, to wit, in equal quantity. Or it may note, that each of theſe was to be taken and beaten apart, and then mixed together. Or, it ſhall be alone alone, i. e. abſolutely and certainly alone, the doubling of the word increaſing the ſignification, and thus it doth not belong to all the ingredients, becauſe the Hebrew Verb is here of the ſingular number, but only to the Frankincenſe; and the ſenſe may be, that whereas the other things ſhall be tempered together, the Frankincenſe ſhould be alone, which may ſeem moſt agreeable both to the common uſe of Frankincenſe, and to its differing nature from the other things mentioned, two of them at leaſt being confeſſedly liquid things.

35 And thou ſhalt make it a perfume, a confection after the art of the apothecary, † tempered together q, pure r and holy.

38 Whoſoever ſhall make like unto that to ſmell thereto, ſhall even be cut off from his people.

CHAP. XXXI.

Bezaleel and Aholiab are call'd for the work of the Tabernacle, 1—6, 7. The Table and Candleſticks, 8. The Altar, 9. Hallowing of the Sabbath is commanded again, 12——16. Moſes receiveth the two Tables of the Law, 18.

AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 See I have called by name Bezaleel the ſon of Uri, the ſon of Hur, a of the tribe of Judah.

a He ſeems to be the ſame mentioned 1 Chron 2. 20.

3 And I have filled him with the ſpirit of God b, in c wiſdom, and in underſtanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanſhip.

b Which was now neceſſary, becauſe the Iſraelites in Egypt wanted ingenious education to learn theſe things, and therefore needed inſpiration. c Or, with, the following clauſes being explicatory of the former, ſhewing what gifts of the Spirit God had filled him with, to wit, Wiſdom, &c.

4 To deviſe cunning works, to work in gold, and in ſilver, and in braſs,

5 And in cutting of ſtones to ſet them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanſhip.

6 And I, behold, I have given with him, Aholiab the ſon of Ahiſamach of the tribe of Dan: and in the hearts of all that are wiſe-hearted d I have put wiſdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee:

d That have wiſdom and skill ſufficient to do theſe things under the inſpection and direction of Bezaleel and Aholiab, the principal workmen.

7 The tabernacle of the congregation, and the ark of the teſtimony, and the mercy-ſeat that is thereupon, and all the † furniture of the tabernacle:

8 And the table and his furniture, and the pure candleſtick e with all his furniture, and the altar of incenſe:

e So called by way of eminency, not only becauſe it was made of pure Gold, and was not defiled with Blood, for ſo ſome other things were, but eſpecially to mind the Prieſts of their Duty in keeping it neat and clean, it being more ſubject to defilement than other things.

9 And the altar of burnt-offering with all his furniture, and the laver and his foot:

Chap. 39. &c.

10 And * the clothes of ſervice f, and the holy garments for Aaron the prieſt, and the garments of his ſons, to miniſter in the prieſts office:

f Wherein the Ark and other ſacred Utenſils were wrapped up when they were to be removed. See Exod. 35. 19. and Numb. 4.

Heb. inſtruments of miniſtry.

11 And the anointing oil, and † ſweet incenſe for the holy place: according to all that I have commanded thee ſhall they do.

12 ¶ And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

13 Speak thou alſo unto the children of Iſrael, ſaying, Verily my ſabbaths ye ſhall keep g: for it is a ſign between me and you h throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the LORD that doth ſanctifie you i.

g This precept is here repeated, either 1. To ſhew the chief uſe of the Tabernacle and all this coſt and trouble about it, to wit, that they might there acceptably ſerve God, as in ſome meaſure upon every day, ſo eſpecially upon the Sabbath-day. Or rather 2. To reſtrain the time for the doing of the forementioned works, q. d. Though the work of the Tabernacle and Utenſils be holy, and for an holy uſe, yet I will not have it done upon my holy day. The Sabbath was not made for them, but they for it, and therefore they ſhall give place to it. h The Sabbath is a fivefold ſign, 1. Commemorative, of God's Creation of and Dominion over them, and all other things, to whom they do hereby profeſs their ſubjection. 2. Indicative, ſhewing that they were made to be holy, and that their ſanctification can be had from none but from God, as it here follows, and from the obſervation of God's days and appointments. 3. Diſtinctive, whereby they owned themſelves to be the Lord's peculiar people, by a religious keeping of thoſe Sabbaths, which the reſt of the World groſly neglected and profanely ſcoffed at. 4. Prefigurative, of that reſt which Chriſt ſhould purchaſe for them, to wit, a reſt from the burden of the ceremonial, and from the curſes and rigours of the moral Law, as alſo from ſin and the wrath of God for ever. See Heb. 4. 5. Confirmative, both aſſuring them of God's good will to them, and that as he bleſſed the Sabbath for their ſakes, ſo he would bleſs them in the holy uſe of it with temporal, ſpiritual and everlaſting bleſſings, as he declares in many places of Scripture; and aſſuring God of their ſtanding to that Covenant made between God and them. So that this was a mutual ſtipulation, or ratification of the Covenant of Grace on both ſides. i That ſeſteeth you out of all people, and conſecrate you to my ſelf, and to my ſervice and worſhip, a great part where of is the obſervation of the Sabbath. Or, that ſanctifieth you by my Word and Ordinances, which are in more eminent and ſolemn manner diſpenſed upon the Sabbath-day, by the obſervation where of you declare that you own me as your only ſanctifier. And ſo we may obſerve, the Sabbath owns the Lord as our Creator, and as our Redeemer, and as our Sanctifier; and therefore it is no wonder God ſo ſeverely enjoyns the ſanctification of the Sabbath, and puniſheth the neglect of it, it being a tacit renouncing, or diſowning of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoſt.

* Chap. 20. 8. Deut. 5. 12. Ezek. 20. 12. Num. 15. 35.

14 * Ye ſhall keep the ſabbath therefore: for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it, ſhall ſurely be put to death k: for * whoſoever doth any work therein, that ſoul ſhall be cut off from amongſt his people.

k Of which ſee an example Numb. 15. 32, &c. l (i. e.) Servile work, as it is explained, Lev. 23. 7, &c.

† Heb. ſhall be done. † Heb. lineſs.

15 Six days † may work be done, but in the ſeventh is the ſabbath of reſt m, † holy to the LORD: whoſoever doth any work in the ſabbath-day, he ſhall ſurely be put to death.

m Heb. The ſabbath of ſabbaths, or of ſabbaths, i. e. the great and chief Sabbath, as the ſong of ſongs is the moſt excellent Song, the holy of holies is the moſt Holy, &c. The Jews had many Sabbaths or Days of reſt, but this is here preferred before them all, by this emphatical repetition of the ſame word; and by this argument the foregoing duty is preſſed upon them.

16 Wherefore the children of Iſrael ſhall keep the ſabbath, to obſerve the ſabbath n throughout their generations for a perpetual covenant o. n Or, Shall keep the ſabbath by obſerving, or celebrating the ſabbath, i. e. by obſerving or celebrating it, the antecedent being put for the relative, as is frequently done. So here is another moſt emphatical repetition to oblige us to the greater caution and diligence in this great Duty, and to ſhew what ſtreſs God lays upon it, who hath therefore placed this in the midſt of the commands of the Decalogue, as the Heart which gives life and vigour to all the reſt. Or it may be rendered thus, Shall obſerve the day of reſt to celebrate the ſabbath; and ſo the phraſe is like that in the Fourth Command, Remember the ſabbath-day to keep it holy. So here, Obſerve the ſabbath, i. e. watch its coming and approach, conſider attentively the nature and uſe of it, and that not as a matter of idle ſpeculation, but of ſerious practiſe; or ſo that you may do, or celebrate the ſabbath, i. e. perform all the duties of it. Or thus, Shall obſerve the ſabbath, to make it a ſabbath, or day of reſt, and that no idle or carnal reſt, but a reſt, holy to the Lord, as it is called in the foregoing verſe. Or, by a perpetual covenant; or, it is a perpetual covenant, i. e. condition or part of that agreement made between me and them. They have ſolemnly covenanted or promiſed that they will do all that I commanded them, Exod. 24. 7, 8. among which this is a chief branch; and I have covenanted to bleſs and ſanctifie them in ſo doing. And this word perpetual, as alſo the word for ever being added to it in the next verſe, may intimate that this hath a longer perpetuity than the Ceremonies, to which this phraſe is ſometimes aſcribed, the rather becauſe the reaſon of this perpetuity given in the next verſe, is ſuch as hath its force not only till Chriſt, but even till the end of the World, and it is fit and juſt that men ſhould retain this monument, or memorial of the World's Creation, even till its diſſolution.

17 It is a ſign p between me and the children of Iſrael for ever: for * in ſix days the LORD made heaven, and earth, and on the ſeventh day he reſted, and was refreſhed q.

p A ſign of the Covenant between us, that I will be their God, and they will be my People; both which depends upon this amongſt other Duties, and upon this in an eminent degree. q Not as if he had been weary with working, which ſurely he could not be with ſpeaking a few words, nor can God be weary with any thing, Iſa. 40. 28. but it notes the pleaſure or delight God took in reflecting upon his works, beholding that every thing he had made was very good, Gen. 1. 31.

* Chap. 32. 16. Deut. 9. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 3.

18 ¶ And he gave unto Moſes, when he had made an end of communing with him upon mount Sinai, * two tables of teſtimony r, tables of ſtone s, written with the finger of God t.

r (i. e.) The Tables of the Law, which was the witneſs of God's Will and Iſrael's Duty. See Exod. 16. 34. s Whereby was ſignified both the durable and perpetual Obligation of the Moral Law, whereas the Ceremonial Law was to end with the Jewiſh Polity at Chriſt's coming, and the ſtonineſs of Mens Hearts by Nature, in which the Law of God could not be written, but by a Divine and Omnipotent Hand. t (i. e.) With the Power or Spirit of God, by comparing Matth. 12. 18. not by any Art of Man, but immediately by a Divine Hand.

CHAP. XXXII.

The people commit idolatry by worſhipping the molten image which Aaron made, 1——6. God makes it known to Moſes, and threatens their diſtruction, 7——10. Moſes prays for them, 11. God repents of the evil, 14. Moſes comes down from the mount with two tables, 15. hearing God's own writing, 16. Moſes hearing and ſeeing their idolatry, 17, 18. breaks the two tables, 19. and turns the calf into powder, 20. Aaron's excuſe, 21——24. Moſes ſeeing their nakedneſs, 25. Commands them to be ſlain, 26——28. He bids them conſecrate themſelves, 29. Moſes charging them with ſin, 30. Prayeth for them, 31—33. God foreth them, 34. But afterward plagueth them, 35.

AND when the people saw that Moses delayed to come down out of the mount a, the people b gathered themselves together unto Aaron c, and said unto him, * Up, make us gods d which shall go before us e: for as for this Moses f, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him g.

* Acts 7. 40

a Where he had now been for near forty days. b (i.e.) Most, or some of the people, as it is expressed, 1 Cor. 10. 7. c As the chief person in Moses his absence. d (i.e.) Images or representations of God, whom, after the manner of Idolaters, they call by God's name. For it is ridiculous to think that the Body of the Israelites, who were now lately instructed by the Mouth, and Words, and Miraculous Works of the eternal God, should be so senseless as to think that was the true God which themselves made, and that out of their own Ear-rings; much more, that that was the God that brought them out of Egypt, as they say, verse 4. e To guide us through this vast Wilderness to the land of promise, where they longed to be: For, as for the Cloud, which hitherto had guided them, that seemed now to be fixed upon the Mount; and they thought both that and Moses had deserted them. The Jewish Doctors note, that he doth not say, Make us Gods whom we may worship; but which shall go before us, which, as they truly say, shews that they wanted not a God, whom they knew by infallible evidences they had, but a visible guide, who might supply the want of Moses, as the next words shew. f An expression of contempt towards their great deliverer. g Whether he be not consumed by the Fire in the Cloud, or taken up to Heaven, or conveyed away by God to some other place.

2 And Aaron said unto them, Break off the golden ear-rings h which are in the ears of your wives i, of your sons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

h Which were of good value and common use among the Eastern people, who seem to have used them superstitiously, Gen. 35. 4. Judg. 8. 24. and therefore Aaron demands these, partly that he might take away one Vice, or occasion of Vice, whilest the people were intent upon another; and partly that the proposed loss of their precious Ear-rings might cool their Idolatrous desires. i Whom he thought most fond of their Jewels, and most unlikely to part with them.

3 And all the people brake off the golden ear-rings k which were in their ears l, and brought them unto Aaron.

k Whereby they shew both their madness upon their Idols, and their base ingratitude to their God, who had transferred these Jewels from the Egyptians to them, Exod. 12. 35, 36. which therefore God upbraids them with, Ezek. 16. 11, &c. l (i.e.) The mens ears, for the affix is of the Masculine Gender; whereby it seems the men were more set upon Idolatry than the women, parting with their Ear-rings for it, which the women would not do.

4 * And he received them at their hand, and fashioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf m, and they said, These be thy gods n, O Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

* 1 Kings 12. 28. Psal. 106. 19.

m The meaning of this Translation is, That Aaron, to wit, by Artificers, did first melt the Gold into one mass, and then by the Graving-tool form it into the shape of a Calf, and polish it; or as others render the words, He formed it in a type or mould, made in the shape of a Calf, into which he cast the molten Gold, and so made it a molten calf. But the words may be translated thus, He put it, or them, into a purse; for so the Hebrew Verb and Noun are both used 2 Kings 5. 23. and in like manner Gideon disposed the Ear-rings given him for the like use, Judg. 8. 24. and afterwards he made of them a molten calf. Now the people desired, and Aaron in compliance with them made this in the form of a calf, or an ox (for the word signifies both) in imitation of the Egyptians, as Philo the Jew expressly affirms, and the learned generally agree; and it may thus appear, 1. The great Idols of the Egyptians, Apis, Seraphis and Isis, were Oxen and Cows, as is confessed. 2. The Egyptians, besides those Creatures which they adored as Gods, did also make, and keep, and worship their Images, as even the Heathen writers, Mela and Strabo affirm. 3. The Israelites, whilest they were in Egypt, were many of them infected with the Egyptian Idolatry, as it appears from Jos. 24. 14. Ezek. 20. 7, 8. and 23. 3. Acts 7. 39. And it is not unlikely divers of them hankered no less after the Idols, than after the Garlick and Onions of Egypt. And, being now, as they thought, forsaken by Moses, they might think of returning to Egypt, as afterwards they did, and therefore chose a God of the Egyptian Mode, that they might more willingly receive them again. n (i.e.) This is thy God, the Plural Number being put for the Singular, as it is usual in this case. The meaning is, This is the Sign, or Symbol, or Image of thy God; for such expressions are very frequent: Thus this Image of a Calf is called a calf frequently, and the Images of the Temple of Diana are called shrines or little temples, Acts 19. So they intended to worship the true God by this Image, as afterwards Jeroboam did by the same Image, as we shall plainly see when we come to that place of Scripture. And it is absolutely incredible that the generality of the Israelites should be so void of all Sense and Reason, as to think that this new-made Calf did bring them out of Egypt before its own Creation, and that this was the same Jehovah who had even now spoken to them from Heaven with an audible Voice, saying, I am the Lord thy God who brought thee out of the land of Egypt.

5 And when Aaron saw o it, he built an altar before it, and Aaron made proclamation, and said, To morrow is a feast to the LORD p.

o (i.e.) Observed with what applause they received it, and with what fury and resolution they prosecuted their former desire, he was born down with the stream, and, as it is probable, by the peoples instigation, built an altar to it. p Heb. To Jehovah. Which Title being peculiar to the true God, and being here given by Aaron to the Calf, with the approbation of the people, makes it more than probable that the people designed to worship the true God in this Calf, which they made only as a visible token of God's Presence with them, and an Image by which they might convey their worship to God.

6 And they rose up early on the morrow, and offered burnt-offerings, and brought peace-offerings q: and the * people sat down to eat and to drink r, and rose up to play s.

* 1 Cor. 10. 7.

q But no sin-offerings, which they most needed. r For the Sacrifices were accompanied with Feasting, both among the Worshippers of the true God, and among Idolaters. See Exod. 18. 12. and 24. 11. s By shouting, and singing, and dancing, as it appears from verse 17, 18, 19.

19 And it came to pass, assoon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them i beneath the mount.

i Not through rash anger, but by divine instinct, partly to punish their Idolatry with so great a loss, and partly to shew that the Covenant made between God and them so much to their advantage, which was contained in those Table, was by their sin broken, and now of none effect, and not to be renewed but by bitter repentance.

* Deut. 9. 21.

k Melted it either into one great mass, or rather into divers little fragments, which afterwards by a file or other instruments, he, by the help of many others, might soon grind to powder, or dust of Gold. l Upon the Brook which came out of the Rock Horeb, Exod. 17. 6. m Not all, which would require long time, but some in the name of the rest; and most probably either the chief Promoters of this idolatrous Design, or the chief Rulers of the People, who should by their power and authority have restrained the people from this wickedness. n Of the water into which that dust was cast; partly wickedness. n Of the water into which that dust was cast; partly to make them ashamed of their madness in worshipping a God which now must be drunk, and cast out into the draught; and partly to fill them with terrour and dreadful expectation of some ill effect or curse of God to come upon them, either by this draught, or by other means.

21 And Moses said unto Aaron, What did this people unto thee o that thou hast brought so great a sin upon p?

o What injury or mischief had they done to thee, which thou didst so severely revenge! p The sin of the People is charged upon Aaron, both because he did not resist and suppress their wicked suggestion, ver. 1. by his counsel, and by the authority which Moses had left in his hand, which he should have done even with the hazard of his life, as the Rabbins say that Hur did, whom they report to have been slain by the People whilst he disswaded them from their attempt, and because he did not promote, and direct and manage their enterprize, ver. 4, 5.

22 And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my lord wax hot: thou knowest the people, that they are set on mischief q.

q Heb. are in evil, i.e. are altogether wicked, addicted to, or bent upon wickedness, so that it was impossible for me to stop or divert their course.

23 For they said unto me, Make us gods which shall go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

24 And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off: so they gave it me: then I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf r.

r Not that he meant, or thought to persuade Moses, that the melted Gold came out of the fire in the form of a Calf by accident, without any art or industry of his, which was a ridiculous conceit, and easily confuted; but only he conceals his own sin in the forming and graving of it, and lays the whole blame upon the people.

25 ¶ And when Moses saw that the people were naked s (for Aaron had made them naked t unto their shame amongst † their enemies u.)

Heb. those that rose up against them.

s (i.e.) That they were stripped both of their ornament, which was not so much the Jewels of their Ears, as the innocency of their minds and lives; and of their defence, to wit, of the favour and protection of God, by which alone they were secured from the Egyptians, and were to be defended against those many and mighty enemies towards whom they were about to march, and that being thus disarmed and helpless, they would be a prey to every Enemy; when Moses considered this, he took the following course to cover their nakedness, to expiate their sins, to regain the favour of God, and by punishing the most eminent and incorrigible Offenders, to bring the rest to repentance. t As Aaron is said to have made Judah naked, 2 Chron. 28. 19. u Quest. How were they made naked or ashamed amongst their Enemies, when at this time they were in their own Camp, remote from all their Enemies? Answ. He speaks not only of their present shame, but of their everlasting reproach, especially among their, and God's Enemies, who being constant to their Idols, would justly scorn the Israelites for their levity in forsaking their God so quickly and easily. See Jer. 2. 11. But the Hebrew word may be, and is by some translated thus, amongst those that do or shall rise up or be born of them, i.e. that shall succeed them; for so the word rising is used Exod. 1. 8. Matth. 11. 11. And so the Chaldee here renders it, amongst their generations; and the other Chaldee Interpreter, and the Syriack, in their latter days, or in after times. So the sense is, That Aaron had put a note of perpetual infamy upon them, even to all after Ages.

26 Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp x and said, Who is on the LORD's side y? let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi z gathered themselves together unto him.

x He chose that place, r. as the usual place of Judicature. 2. That he might withdraw himself from the company of Idolaters as far as he might. 3. As a fit place of concourse and resort for those that were on God's side. 4 To prevent the escape of the greatest Delinquents, the rest of the Camp being probably surrounded with some trench, or such like thing, else Gates had been superfluous and unprofitable. y Who will take God's part, and plead his Cause against Idolatry and Idolaters? z (i.e.) The most of that Tribe, as that universal Particle is oft understood; for some of them were destroyed as guilty.

27 And he said unto them, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and slay every man his brother a, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour.

a The meaning is, Slay every principal Offender whom you meet with, without any indulgence or exception, though brother, or companion, or neighbour. There was no fear of killing the innocent in this case, because, 1. The people were generally guilty. 2. Moses had called to himself all that were on God's side, who thereby were separated from the guilty. 3. The Nocent might easily be discerned from the Transgressors, either by the personal knowledge which the Levites or others had of the most forward Idolaters, or by their abiding in their Tents as ashamed and grieving for their sin, whilst the Transgressors were impudently walking about in the Camp, as trusting to their numbers; or by the direction of God's Providence, if not by some visible token.

28 And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses; and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men b.

b And no more; for it is probable they slew only those whom they knew to have been the Ringleaders to others in this mischief.

29 † For Moses had said, * Consecrate your selves to day to the LORD c, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother, that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

† Or, and Moses said, Consecrate your selves to day to the LORD, because every man hath been against his son, and against his brother, &c. * Heb. fill your hands, &c.

c Offer up your selves to the honour and service of the Lord in this work, which because it was joined with the hazard of their lives, because he calls it a consecration or oblation of themselves, as Abraham for the like reason is said to have offered up Isaac. † Heb. Fill your hands, i.e. offer a Sacrifice, for so that phrase is oft used, as Exod. 28. 41. Judg. 17. 5, 12. That work of Justice which they were going to execute might seem an inhumane and barbarous Act, but he tells them it was an acceptable Sacrifice to God, as the destruction of God's Enemies is called a sacrifice, Isa. 34. 6. Ezek. 39. 17. Or he hereby intimates, that this Tribe was designed by God for his immediate service, and therefore recommends this work to them as an excellent initiation into their Office, and as a demonstration that they were in some fort worthy of that great trust. † Heb. fill your hands.

30 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, Ye have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up unto the LORD, * peradventure d I shall make an atonement for your sin.

* 2 Sam. 16. 12. Amos 5. 15.

d He speaks doubtfully, partly because he was uncertain how far God would pardon them, and partly to quicken them to the more serious practice of repentance.

31 And Moses returned unto the LORD, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold.

32 Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin e: and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book f which thou hast written.

e Understand here, forgive it, or, or it is well, or, I and others shall praise thy name. His great passion for his People stops his words, and makes his Speech imperfect. f (i.e.) Out of the Book of Life, as appears by comparing this with other places, as Psal. 69. 28. Dan. 12. 1. Luke 10. 20. Phil. 4. 3. Rev. 3. 5. and 13. 8. and 20. 12. or, out of the Catalogue or number of those that shall be saved. I suppose Moses doth not in this case wish his eternal damnation, because that state implies both wickedness in himself, and the dishonour of God, but his annihilation, or the utter loss of this life, and of that to come, and of all the happiness of both of them. Nor doth Moses simply desire this, but only comparatively expresseth his singular zeal for God's glory, and charity to his People; signifying, that the very thoughts of the destruction of God's People, and of the reproach and blasphemy which would be cast upon God by means thereof, were so grievous and intolerable to him, that he rather wisheth, if it were possible, that God would accept of him as a Sacrifice in their stead, and by his utter destruction prevent so great a mischief. And it is to be considered, that Moses speaks this, as also many other things, as the Mediator between God and Israel, and as the Type of the true Mediator, Jesus Christ, who was in effect to suffer this which Moses was content to suffer.

33 And the LORD said unto Moses, * Whosoever hath sinned † against me, him will I blot out of my book g.

* Ezek. 18. 4.

† Or, doth sin, to wit, presumptuously, obstinately, and impenitently. g Him will I cut off out of the land of the living, and eternally deprive of my favour and glory, and not thee who art innocent and righteous.

34 Therefore now, go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee. * Behold mine angel h shall go before thee. Nevertheless * in the day when I visit, I will visit their sin upon them i.

* Chap. 33. 2. Deut. 32. 35.

h Not Christ, the Angel of the Covenant, who had hitherto gone before them; but a created Angel, as appears by comparing this with Exod. 33.

Exod. 33. 2, 3, 12. Though Moses obtained the revocation of this threatning, Exod. 33. 14, 17. i When I shall punish them for their other sins, which I foresee they will commit, I will remember and punish this also.

35 And the LORD plagued the people k, because they made the calf which Aaron made l.

k This relates either to the destruction of 3000 of them by the Levites, or rather to the future Plagues, in which God also reckoned with them for this sin. l They made it, because they urged Aaron to make it, as Judas is said to purchase the field, Act. 1. 18. which was purchased by his Money; and Aaron made it, by giving command to make it. The Chaldee, Syriack, Arabick, and Samaritan, render the words thus, They worshipped or sacrificed to the calf which Aaron made. And the word which signifies to make, is oft used for worshipping or sacrificing, as Exod. 10. 25. Judg. 13. 15. 1 King. 18. 26.

CHAP. XXXIII.

God refuseth to go with the people as formerly, 1——3. The people mourn, 4. God's command what to say to the children of Israel, 5. They mourn, and lay by their ornaments, 6. Moses pitcheth the tabernacle without the camp, 7. And going in, God speaks to him, 8, 9. A cloudy pillar descendeth on it, 10. God speaks to Moses face to face, 11. He prays for his guidance, and presence, 12, 13 ——16. God promises him, 14——17. Proclaims his name, 19. He face can be seen by no man, 20——23.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, Depart, and go up hence, thou and the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I sware unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, * Unto thy seed will I give it.

* Gen. 12. 7.

2 * And I will send an angel before thee, and I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite.

* Chap 32. 34. Deut. 7. 22. Josh. 24. 11.

3 Unto a land flowing with milk and honey: for I will not go up in the midst of thee a (for thou art a * stiff-necked people,) lest I consume thee in the way b.

* Chap 32. 9. Deut. 9. 13.

a By my own special and gracious presence, as hitherto I have done, but I will depart from thee. In purfuance hereof God removes his Tabernacle without the Camp, ver. 7. I will only make good my Promise to thy Fathers, and send an Angel to accomplish it, but I will shew no peculiar and further kindness to thee. b Left thy sins should be aggravated by my presence and favour, and thereby I should be provoked utterly to destroy thee. So he shews that their perverseness makes this severity necessary for them, and that God even in his judgment remembers mercy to them.

4 ¶ And when the people heard these evil tidings, they mourned: and no man did put on him his ornaments c.

c Their precious Garments, or Jewels, which the Women reserved, as we saw, ver. 3. This was a visible sign and profession of their inward humiliation and repentance for their sin, and of their deep sense of God's displeasure

5 For the LORD had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, Ye are a stiff-necked people: I will come up into the midst of thee d in a moment, and consume thee e: therefore now put off thy ornaments from thee, that I may know what to do unto thee f.

d To wit, in anger; not in favour, ver. 3. where the words are the same, but the sense differing. e Obj. But God had promised he would not do so, ver. 14. Ans. That was signified to Moses, not to the People, to whom the threatning was most proper and profitable; and this threatning hath a condition implied, to wit, except they repent, as the next words plainly shew. f That I may either inflict my Judgments, or suspend them, as thou art penitent or impenitent.

6 And the children of Israel stript themselves of their ornaments by the mount Horeb.

7 And Moses took the tabernacle g, and pitched it without the camp, afar off from the camp h, and called it the tabernable of the congregation i: and it came to pass, that every one which sought the LORD k, went out unto the tabernable of the congregation, which was without the camp.

g A Tent set up by Moses for the People to meet in for sacrifice and seeking of God, and other parts of God's Worship, until the great Tabernacle should be finished; for such a place was necessary, or highly expedient for that use, and therefore it is not probable they would be without it for 2 year's space. h In testimony of God's alienation from them, and displeasure against them, this being a kind of excommunication; and all was too little to bring them to a thorough repentance. i It was so before, but he called it so now, to shew that God had not wholly forsaken them; and that, if they truely repented, he still permitted them to come into his presence, and to seek the Lord. k Either for his favour, or for counsel and direction. See Exod. 18. 15, 19, 20.

8 And it came to pass, when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, that all the people rose up, and stood every man at his tent door, and looked after Moses l until he was gone into the tabernacle.

l Testifying their grief for God's departure, their respect to Moses whom they had lately despised, their earnest desire of his intercession for them, their longing for God's favour, and their humble expectation of a gracious return from God by the hands of Moses.

9 And it came to pass as Moses entred into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended m, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD talked with Moses.

m Whereby God testified his approbation of Moses, and of that which Moses had done, which might seem to some severe and cruel.

10 And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle door, and all the people rose up and worshipped, every man in his tent door.

11 And * the LORD spake unto Moses face to face, n, as a man speaketh to his friend. And he turned again into the camp; but his servant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle o.

* Gen. 32. 30. Num. 12. 8.

n Or, mouth to mouth, as Numb. 12. 8. Not that God hath Face or Mouth, or that Moses could behold it, which is denied, verse 20. But the sense is, He spake with him freely and familiarly, and immediately, not by an Angel in a dream or vision, as he did to other Prophets. See Deut. 34. 10. o Who abode there either to keep it from injury or inconvenience; for as it was set up by man's help, so it needed man's care to preserve it; or to assist and direct those who resorted thither to seek God in Moses his absence. And Joshua seems to be appointed for this work rather than Aaron, or any other of the Elders, because they had one way or other been guilty of the late Idolatry, and God would hereby punish them with a temporary suspension from his service, and their office.

12 ¶ And Moses said unto the LORD, See, thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people, and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me p. Yet thou hast said, I know thee by name q, and thou hast also found grace in my sight.

p (i. e.) What Angel it is, whether it be a created Angel; for then I profess I am unsatisfied with him, verse 15. or the same increated Angel Christ, who hath hitherto accompanied us, and then I am content. But I am at a great loss by thy withdrawing thy cloudy Pillar from the people to whom it is to be a guide. q (i. e.) Distinctly and familiarly, as one whom I have much converse with, and great kindness for; thy name is written in my Book. Compare Exod. 32. 32, 33. Psal. 87. 5, 6. Phil. 4. 3. And knowing here notes approbation and affection, as Psal. 1. 6. Matth. 7. 23. compare Jer. 1. 5.

13 Now therefore I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy sight, shew me now thy way r, that I may know thee s, that I may find grace in thy sight; and consider that this nation is thy people t.

r The course and manner of thy dealings with men, and particularly thy purpose and will concerning me and thy people, and the method which thou wilt chuse for the fulfilling of thy promise, and the course which thou wouldst have me take, and the way by which I shall conduct thy people to the promised Land. s (i. e.) Thy mind herein; men are said to know God when they know his mind and will; or that I may experimentally know thee to be what thou hast promised thou wilt be to me and to thy people; or rather, that I may thereby know thee, namely that I shall find grace in thy sight, as it follows; that I may be assured that thou wilt be reconciled to, and present with me and thy people. t Both by thy own choice and purpose, and promise to their Parents, and by their recognition of thee for their God, and their returning to thee again.

14 And he said *, My presence u shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest x.

* 2 Sam. 17. 11.

u Heb. My face, i. e. I my self, by comparing this with 2 Sam. 17. 11. The Angel of my presence, Isa. 63. 9. the pledge of my presence, the cloudy Pillar; and I will not turn thee over to an Angel, as I threatned, verse 2. See Deut. 4. 34. x Not only rest from thy present anguish and perplexity of mind for thy people, but in due time I will bring them to their resting place and settled habitation; for it is evident from verse 15, 16. that Moses his care and prayer was more for the people than for himself.

15 And he said unto him, If thy presence go not with me, carry us not up hence y.

y Let us rather live and die in the Wilderness with thy presence and favour, than go into Canaan without it; for even that promise of rest I value not without thy presence. So he eechoes back God's words to himself, and turns God's promise into a prayer.

16 For wherein shall it be known here z, that I and thy people have found grace in thy sight? Is it not in that thou goest with us? so * shall we be separated, I, and thy people, from all the people a that are upon the face of the earth.

* Chap 34. 10.

z By what other token shall other Nations and after Ages know. a (i. e.) Distinguished by thy peculiar kindness and privileges afforded to us. Or, be made wonderful, or eminent, or glorious above all other people.

17 And the LORD said unto Moses, I will do this thing also that thou hast spoken: for thou hast found grace in my sight, and I know thee by name.

18 And he said, I beseech thee shew me thy glory b.

b (i. e.) Thy glorious Majesty, the brightness of thy countenance, some such manifestation of thy self as becomes thy excellency, and such as shall be seen in the other life; or that glorious shape which, together with an humane voice, thou hast now assumed. But for the essence of God, as that was and is and ever will be invisible to bodily eyes, 1 Tim. 6. 16. so a man of such great reason and deep knowledge in Divine Things, and universal Learning could not be ignorant of it, and therefore would not desire it.

19 And he said, I will make all my goodness c pass before thee, and I will proclaim the Name of the LORD d before thee; * and will be gracious to whom I will be gracious e, and will shew mercy on whom I will shew mercy.

* Rom. 9. 15.

c Or, My beauty; for so that Hebrew word is sometimes used, Gen. 6. 2. 1 Sam. 9. 2. or my excellency, or my glory, as appears from verse 22. which was the thing Moses desired to see: And the difference between his request and God's answer, doth not lye in glory and goodness, but in shewing his glory so as Moses might gaze upon it, and making it only, as it follows, to pass before him, to wit, in a sudden and very transitory Vision. Though it may be understood properly of God's goodness and kindness to men, of which the following words speak, and that was the great, if not the only thing ascribed to God, chap. 34. 6, 7. d (i. e.) My Name, the Noun for the Pronoun, as is very frequent. I will give thee notice when I come, that thou mayst attend; I will not surprize thee, nor steal by thee. Or will proclaim, or publish of the name of the Lord, or of my name, i. e. some part of it, especially my goodness, which may seem to be here principally intended, 1. By comparing this with chap. 34. 6, 7. 2. By the following words, which seem a limitation of this general expression, q. d I will proclaim, manifest, and impart my goodness, but with a difference, not to all men, but to whom I please. 3. By other places, where the name of the Lord is principally, if not solely understood of his goodness, as Isa. 50. 10. and in many places of the Psalms. e This may seem to be added, with reference to the people for whom Moses is interceding, lest Moses should misunderstand or misapply what is said here, and chap. 34. 6, 7. The sense is, I will shew this peculiar favour to thee, I will also be gracious towards the people thou pleadest for, but not promiscuously. Some of them I will severely, and eternally punish for this and their other sins; and some of them I will pardon and save, not because they are Righteous, or Innocent, or less Sinners than the rest, but meerly out of my own good Pleasure and most free Grace, whereby I will shew mercy to some, when I will not shew mercy to others. Thus this place is interpreted by the Apostle, Rom. 9. 16, &c.

20 And he said, Thou canst not see my face f: for * there shall no man see me, and live g.

* Gen. 32. 30. Deut. 4. 24. Jud. 13. 22. Rev. 1. 16.

f Either 1. My essence. But that no man can see, neither in this life, nor in the next. Or rather 2. My glorious presence. g This may note either 1. God's purpose that that blissful Vision of God in Glory shall be given to no Man here, but is reserved for the future life. Or rather 2. The impossibility of the thing from Man's weakness, which is such, that if God should display all the Beams of his Glory to him, it would certainly astonish, overwhelm, and destroy him.

21 And the LORD said, Behold, there is a place by me h, and thou shalt stand upon a rock.

h In this Mountain where my residence and glorious presence now is, and in that part of it whence my Voice now cometh to thine Ears.

22 And it shall come to pass, while my glory passeth by, that I will put thee in a clift of the rock, and will cover thee with my hand i while I pass by.

i That thou mayst not be undone by thy own desires, nor swallowed up with the sight of my glory.

23 And I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back-parts k: but my face shall not be seen.

k (i. e.) Imperfectly and in part, as when we see only a Man's Back-parts and not his Face. Thou shalt see a shadow or obscure delineation of my Glory, as much as thou canst bear, though not as much as thou dost desire.

CHAP. XXXIV.

God commands Moses to hew two tables of stone like the former, wherein he promises to write, 1. Moses goes with these tables up to the mount, 4. God descends in a cloud, 5. He proclaims his name, 6, 7. Moses worships, 8, 9. God making a covenant with the people, commands them not to make a covenant with their enemies, 10——12. Bids them beware of molten gods, 13——17. The feast of unleavened bread, 18. To rest on the Sabbath-day, 19——21. Other laws, 22——26. Moses wrote these words, 27. The time of Moses's abode on the mount, 28. Moses's face shining, 29. Is covered, 33. He acquaints the people with what the Lord told him, 31, 32.

AND the LORD said unto Moses, * Hew thee two tables of stone a, like unto the first: and I will write upon these tables the words that were in the first tables b which thou brakest.

* Deut. 10. 1.

a The first Tables were made immediately by God, who of his own meer Grace and good Pleasure, and without Man's merit or contrivance entred into Covenant with Abraham and his Seed. These Tables must be made by Moses, partly in token of God's displeasure for their sin, and partly to signify, that though the Covenant of Grace was first made without Man's care and counsel, yet it should not be renewed but by Man's repentance. And as the Tables of Stone signified the hardness of their Hearts, so the hewing of them by Moses might signify the circumcision and plowing up of their Hearts, that they might be fit for the receiving of God's mercies, and the performance of their duties. b To shew God's reception of Israel into his favour, and their former state, and that the Law and Covenant of God was neither abolished, nor changed by their sin.

2 And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning unto mount Sinai, and present thy self there to me * in the top of the mount.

* Chap. 19. 20.

3 And no man shall * come up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount, neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount c.

* Chap. 19. 12.

c This is said, not for the Beasts, which are not capable of a Law, but to restrain the presumption and curiosity of the people, by this argument, that even the Beasts that come too near shall be destroyed, and much more Man, whose knowledge aggravates his sin and punishment.

4 ¶ And he hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto mount Sinai, as the LORD had commanded him, and took in his hand the two tables of stone.

5 And the LORD descended in the cloud d, and stood with him there e, and proclaimed the Name of the LORD.

d In the cloudy Pillar, which ordinarily stood up in the Air above the Mount, but came down to the top of it, when God spake with Moses. See Exod. 33. 9. Numb. 11. 17, 25. e To wit, in the Mount, verse 2, 4. and the clift of a Rock, chap. 33. 22. which was in the Mount, and near the top of it, as appears by comparing these places together.

6 And the LORD passed by before him, and proclaimed, The LORD, The LORD God f, merciful, and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth g, f This title shews his glorious Being, Power and Authority; the following titles note his Goodness to Men. g In fulfilling all his gracious promises made to Abraham, and to his Seed, and to all his People; wherein he is said to be abundant, because he generally is better than his word, and gives more than he promised. There is a truth in Divine Threatnings, but here the scituation of this word in the midst of the Attributes of Divine Goodness plainly shews that it is to be restrained to the Promises; this being usual and reasonable, that general words have their signification limited by the context. And indeed here seems to be a Hendyadis, goodness and truth, for true, sincere and hearty goodness, as mercy and truth are oft put for true and real mercy. See Psal. 25. 10. and 57. 3, &c.

7 Keeping mercy for thousands h, forgiving iniquity, and transgression, and sin i, and * that will by no means clear the guilty k, * visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the childrens children, and upon the third and to the fourth generation.

* Deut. 5. 9. Jer. 32. 18. Chap. 33. 7. Josh. 24. 19. Job 10. 14. Nah. 1. 3.

h The Chaldee, and some others render it for a thousand generations. i Sins of all sorts and sizes, secret or open, infirmities or presumptions, against God or Men, as the heap of various words here put together signifies. k This is commonly esteemed a title of Justice or Vengeance, which is here added by way of correction, lest Men should mistake or abuse God's mercy. God is most gracious indeed, but so as he is also just, and will not pity nor spare impudent and impenitent Transgressors, but will severely punish them. And the Jewish Doctors hereupon observe, that the Mercy of God doth far exceed his Justice; here being, as they number them, thirteen Attributes of Mercy, and but one of Justice. But this Translation and Interpretation is rejected by some late learned Interpreters, who make this an Attribute of God's Goodness or Clemency, and render the words thus, In destroying he will not utterly destroy, though visiting, &c. q. d. He is so gracious, that though he will severely punish the Iniquity of the Fathers, and especially their Idolatry, upon themselves, and upon their Children, &c. as he hath said Exod. 20. 5. yet in Judgement he will remember Mercy, and will not utterly destroy his people for their sins. There are many things which favour this Interpretation. 1. This suits most with Moses his Solicitude and Prayer for the People of Israel, which was, that God would not utterly destroy them, as he threatned to do. 2. This sense best agrees with God's Promise, chap. 33. 19. I will make all my goodness to pass before thee; which general Promise is particularly explained and performed in these two verses. 3. This place doth not speak of God's disposition and carriage towards his Enemies, against whom he proceeds with great severity, and commands the Israelites to do so in the verses here following; but towards his People, whose cause Moses is all along pleading with God. See chap. 32. 11, 12, 13, 31, 32. and 33. 13, 15. and 34. 9. 4. The Hebrew Verb here used frequently, signifies to make empty or desolate, to empty Men of their Goods, or Places of Men. See Isa. 3. 26. Amos 4. 6. So here he will not utterly empty or destroy: Though he will leave the marks of his Vengeance for this Sin upon thy People, even to their third and fourth Generation; or if it may be further, yet he will not utterly root them out, which is the great thing thou feareſt and labourest to prevent. And this very phrase here used, we have in Jer. 30. 11. and repeated Jer. 46. 28. where though Interpreters generally render it, I will not leave thee altogether unpunished, which may make a good sense, yet it seems much better to be rendred, I will not utterly destroy thee. (1.) Because hereby these words exactly answer to the foregoing clause, yet will I not make a full end of thee, and so the same thing is elegantly repeated in other words, which is very frequent in Scripture. (2.) Because here is an opposition between the severity God useth to other People, and the kindness he useth to his own People, which is manifeſt in the former member of the verse, and therefore most probable and agreeable in this. 5. This is much confirmed from Numb. 14. 18. where Moses, pleading with God for the Pardon of his People's Sin, useth this very Phrase and Argument, as taken out of God's Mouth, which in this sense is very proper and prevalent, Thou hast said, that even when thou dost visit Iniquity, &c. thou wilt not utterly destroy them. And God answers him, verse 20. I have pardoned according to thy word; i. e. so as not utterly to destroy them. But truly as I live, &c. verse 21, 22, 23. i. e. But I will severely punish them. But if this had been the meaning, Lord, thou hast said, said,—— thou wilt by no means clear the guilty, as we render it, it was a most improper Argument, and put a Sword into the Lord's Hand to slay them even by vertue of this consideration.

8 And Moses made haste, and bowed his head toward the earth, and worshipped.

9 And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O LORD, let my LORD, I pray thee, go amongst us, (for it is a stiff-necked people l,) and pardon our iniquity, and our sin, and take us for thine inheritance m.

l And therefore need thy glorious and powerful Presence to rule them. Or rather, though it be a stiff-necked people, as thou saist, yet forsake them not. The Hebrew Particle, chi, oft signifies though, as Exod. 5. 11. Isa. 54. 6. m (i. e.) Deal with us as Men do with their Inheritances, dwell among us, protect us, improve us.

* Deut. 5. 2. 10 ¶ And he said, Behold, * I make a covenant n: before all thy people I will do marvels, such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation: and all the people amongst which thou art, shall see the work of the LORD: for it is a terrible thing that I will do with thee o.

n (i. e.) I do hereby renew my Covenant with thy People which they had violated and voided by their sin. But the shortness of the Phrase, there being no mention here of any with whom this Covenant is made or renewed, and the following words, make it more probable, that this Covenant is nothing but a solemn promise or engagement that God will do the thing which here follows. And the word covenant is oft used for a meer promise, as Gen. 9. 9, &c. Lev. 24. 8. Numb. 18. 19. and 25. 12. o Either 1. By thy Ministery, as that phrase is sometimes used, as 1 Cor. 15. 10. Or 2. In the midst of thee, i. e. of thy People, as ver. 11. before thee, i. e. before thy People. This I prefer, because the next Verse explains this of such things as were not done by Moses his Ministery, nor in his time, but afterwards.

11 Observe thou that which I command thee this day. Behold, I drive out before thee the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite.

*Chap. 23. 32. Deut. 7. 2. 12 * Take heed to thy self, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land whither thou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee.

*Chap. 23. 24. Deut. 12. 3. † Heb. images. 13 But ye shall destroy their altars, and * break their † images, and * cut down their groves p.

p Which at first were used by good men for their devotion, as Gen. 21. 33. but afterwards being horribly abused to Superstition and Idolatry, were by God's command to be destroyed.

q Who hath made himself known by, and glories in that name, The jealous God, who cannot endure any Competitor or Corrival; whereas the false and puny Gods of the Heathens were contented with multitudes of Partners. So this is properly said to be the name of God, whereby he is known and distinguished from all other Gods.

15 Lest thou make a covenant r with the inhabitants of the land, and they go a whoring s after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and one call thee, and thou eat of his sacrifice t.

r For cohabitation, or to suffer them quietly to live among you, whom you should drive out. s (i. e.) Commit Idolatry, which is oft called and compared to spiritual Whoredom. See Jer. 2. and 3. and Ezek. 16. t To wit, of the parts or remainders of his Sacrifice, whereby thou wilt partake with him in an idolatrous Worship; because such Feasts were a part of the Worship offered to the Idol, and were accompanied with solemn Benedictions and Thanksgivings to the Idol. See Numb. 25. 2. Psal. 106. 28. Ezek. 18. 6. and 22. 9. 1 Cor. 10. 20. Rev. 2. 20.

u Nor graven, nor any other, as it plainly appears both from the nature of the things, and from many parallel Scriptures: But he mentions molten, because their late Idol was of that kind.

y Either without a gift to me, so it is a Precept; or without benefit to himself; so it is a Promise. See Exod. 23. 15.

*Chap. 20. 9. Deut. 5. 13. Luke 13. 14. 21 ¶ * Six days shalt thou work, but on the seventh day thou shalt rest: in earing-time, and in harvest thou shalt rest z.

*Chap. 34. 22. Lev. 23. 16. † Heb. weeks. 22 ¶ * And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks a, of the first-fruits of wheat-harvest b, and the feast of ingathering c at the † years end d.

a (i. e.) Which is numbred by weeks, being just seven weeks after the Passeover, whence it is called Pentecost, i. e. the fiftieth day, to the wit, after the Passeover. See Levit. 23. 15. and 25. 8. b So this is a designation of the time and business of the Feast of weeks. c To wit, of the Fruits of the Earth. d So it was in regard of the Jubilee and civil Contracts.

*Chap. 23. 19. Deut. 16. 4. 26 * The first of the first-fruits of thy land g thou shalt bring unto the house of the LORD thy God. * Thou shalt not seethe a * kid in his mothers milk.

e So thou shalt have no intestine Enemy to do thee or thine mischief. This God promised to do, but upon condition of Israel's discharge of their duty in following God in this work of driving them out, which they neglecting, it was not fully done. f I will not only tye their hands, that they shall make no invasion upon you, but I will take off their thoughts and affections from such an Enterprize, which it was very easie for God to effect many ways.

g Thou shalt not delay to do this, but shalt bring the very first of them. Or, the first-fruits, even the first-fruits of thy land. Which limitation seems here conveniently added, because they were not bound to bring thither all their First-fruits, to wit, those of their own Bodies, their Children.

Deut. 18. 4. Heb. work. 27 And the LORD said unto Moses, Write thou these words b: for after the tenour of these words I have made a covenant with thee, and with Israel.

b Object. God saith I will write, verse 1. Answ. 1. Moses was to write the ritual Precepts mentioned here above, God wrote the Moral Law. 2. Moses wrote what he wrote in a Book. See Exod. 24. 7. but what was written upon the Tables of Stone, was written by God himself, not by Moses, who had no graving Instruments with him in the Mount, and could not without them write upon the Stone.

28 And he was there with the LORD forty days and forty nights i: he did neither eat bread, nor drink water: and he * wrote k upon the tables the words of the covenant, the Ten † Commandments.

*Chap. 18. 2. 34. 1. Deut. 10. 4. † Heb. words. i As he had been before, being now to renew the broken Covenant. This forty days fast of his is mentioned four times, Exod. 24. 18. and here, and Deut. 9. 18. and 10. 10. but it is evident it was performed but twice, as the occasion of it happened only twice. k Not Moses, but the Lord, as appears from verse 1. and from Deut. 10. the relative Pronoun being here referred to the remoter antecedent, of which there are many instances, as Gen. 10. 12. 1 Sam. 21. 14. and 27. 8. Psal. 99. 6.

29 ¶ And it came to pass, when Moses came down from mount Sinai, (with the two tables of testimony in Moses hand, when he came down from the mount) that Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone l, while he talked with him.

l Quest. Why now, and not when he came down from God before? Answ. 1. Because now he obtained what he did not before, to wit, a glimpse of the Divine glory, which though but very transient, left its print upon his face. 2. Now it was more necessary than before, to procure the greater honour to Moses, and to the Law, 2 Cor. 3. 7, 8, 11. because of the late horrid violation and contempt of them, which the Israelites had fallen into.

30 And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone, and they were afraid to come nigh him.

31 And Moses called unto them: and Aaron, and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him m, and Moses talked with them.

m To the Tabernacle, which was still at a distance from the Camp, though afterwards, God being reconciled, it was set up in the Camp, Exod. 40. 34.

32 And afterward all the children of Israel came nigh: and he gave them in commandment all that the LORD had spoken with him in mount Sinai.

† Heb. Moses from speaking with him. 33 † And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put * a vail on his face n.

n In condescention to their weakness.

34 But when Moses went in before the LORD to speak with him, he took the vail off, until he came out: and he came out and spake unto the children of Israel that which he was commanded.

35 And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses face shone: and Moses put the vail upon his face again, until he went in to speak with him.

CHAP. XXXV.

The command to observe the Sabbath, 1——3. and to bring a free-will offering to the Lord, 5. The furniture of the Tabernacle, 6——19. Men and women bring their jewels for the same, 20——24. Understanding men and women bring their jewels for the same, 20——24. Understanding women spin, 25, 26. The chief of the people bring in precious stones, and spices, 27——29. God endues Bezaleel and Aholiab with a spirit of wisdom for this work, 30——35.

AND Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said unto them, These are the words which the LORD hath commanded that ye should do them.

Chap. 20. 9. Lev. 23. 3. Deut. 5. 12. Luke 13. 14. Heb. Hinnis. 2 * Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you an † holy day, a sabbath of rest to the LORD a: whosoever doth work therein shall be put to death.

a This Command of the Sabbath is repeated here, as also Exod. 31. 13. together with the Instructions for the building of the Tabernacle, and its Utensils, to shew that they were made for no other use than the Service of God, which was to be performed as every day, so in an eminent and peculiar manner upon the Sabbath-day, and to teach them the absolute necessity of minding that Precept in and above all their Ceremonial Observations.

3 Ye shall kindle no fire b throughout your habitations upon the sabbath-day.

b This Command seems to be only temporary and extraordinary during the present season and condition, and not extending to succeeding Generations. For 1. There are instances of temporary Precepts both in the Old and New Testament, which yet are not in their places said to be so. Such were some of the Precepts concerning the Passover, Exod. 12. 11. as is confessed. And such was that Law of abstaining from things strangled, and Blood, Act. 15. 2. This Precept is mixedly proposed, and not called a perpetual statute, nor enjoined to be observed in their Generations, as other Precepts are, to whom those, or some like Clauses, are frequently added. 3. The Sabbath is rather a Feast-day than a Fast-day. And the Jews did make Feasts, and invited Guests upon the Sabbath-day, which could not probably be without kindling a fire. And, which is more considerable, Christ himself, who fulfilled all Righteousness, and therefore would not have joined in the violation of the Sabbath, went to one of those Feasts, Luke 14. And the Corinthians, as they received the Lord's Supper upon that day, which none question, so they had their Feasts, as is confessed and apparent from 1 Cor. 11. 21, 22, &c. 4. The kindling of a fire was no greater hinderance to the religious observation of the Sabbath, than other things which were allowed upon that day, such as the washing and dressing of themselves, eating and drinking, &c. 5. This prohibition doth not seem to concern the dressing of meat, as many understand it, by comparing this with Exod. 16. 23. (which place I humbly conceive is misunderstood, as I have there intimated, for that was lawful to be done upon their most solemn days, Exod. 12. 16.) but the service of the Tabernacle, which is the subject of this Chapter, and the occasion of these words; and the sense seems to be this, You shall kindle no fire for any handy-work throughout your habitation; no not for the service of this Tabernacle, for the heating of any Tools, or the melting of any Metals, or other things belonging to it, which being to be made for God's service, and deserving and requiring all expedition, they might probably conceive that such work might be done upon that day. And here also, as oft elsewhere, under one kind, all the rest are comprehended and forbidden.

4 ¶ And Moses spake unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the LORD commanded, saying,

*Chap. 25. 2. 5 Take ye from amongst you an offering unto the LORD: * whosoever is of a willing heart c, let him bring it; an offering of the LORD, gold, and silver, and brass, c For God values not forced or grudged Services, 2 Cor. 9. 7.

6 And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats hair,

7 And rams skins died red, and badgers skins, and shittim-wood,

8 And oil for the light, and spices for anointing oil, and for the sweet incense,

9 And onyx stones, and stones to be set for the ephod, and for the breast-plate.

Chap. 31. 6. 10 And * every wise-hearted d among you shall come, and make all that the LORD hath commanded.

d (i. e.) Skilful Artist; for tho God had prescribed the things, yet it required wisdom and skill to execute what God commanded.

Chap. 26. 1, &c. 11 * The tabernacle e, his tent f, and his covering g, his taches, and his boards, his bars, his pillars, and his sockets:

e (i. e.) The Boards or structure of the Tabernacle, as it appears, because it is distinguished here from its Tent and Curtains; whereas elsewhere the Tabernacle is put for all together. f The inward and finer Curtains which covered the Boards of it. g The outward and coarser coverings.

12 The ark, and the staves thereof, with the mercy-seat, and the vail of the covering h.

h (i. e.) Which was hanged before the Ark and Mercy-seat.

13 The table, and his staves, and all his vessels, and the shew-bread i:

i But neither did God prescribe the making of the Shew-bread amongst the other Utensils, Exod. 25. nor was this made by the Workmen here spoken of, but by others. How then comes this to be mentioned here? Answ. 1. The shew bread may here put for the Vessels for the receiving the Shew-bread, by an usual Metonymy of the adjunct, the thing contained put for the thing containing; as treasures are put for the place where the Treasures are put, Psal. 135. 7. Matth. 2. 11 and 12. 35. and the gifts or offerings of God, for the Treasury where they were put, Luke 21. 4. Hence Tremellius renders this place, and the Vessels of the shew-bread. Obj. All the vessels of the Table are mentioned before, of which this was one. Ans. It is not unusual after a general expression comprehending all distinctly, to name one eminent member of that kind, such as this unquestionably was, the Table being made principally for this use. Thus Mark 16. 7. Tell my disciples and Peter. Like Examples are in 2 Sam. 2. 30. 1 King. 11. 1. Psal. 18. the Title. Acts 11. 4. and in other Authors. And for the Particle You, and, which may seem to imply that these were things of another kind, and not any Vessels of the Table, that is oft put for especially, as Jos. 2. 1. Mark 16. 7. and so only notes an eminent thing of the same kind, as hath been told. Ans. 2. Tho God did not prescribe the making of the Shew-bread, yet he mentions it, together with the Table, Exod. 25. 30. and therefore it is conveniently mentioned with the Table in this place also, where Moses to shew his exactness and fidelity, doth punctually repeat the same things to the People which he had received in command from God. In like manner the Oil, which fed the light of the Lamps, is mentioned here in the next Verse, because the lighting of the lamps was prescribed, Exod. 25. 37.

14 The candlestick also for the light, and his furniture, and his lamps, with the oil for the light,

*Chap. 30. 1. 15 * And the incense altar, and his staves, and the anointing oil, and the sweet incense, and the hanging for the door at the entring in of the tabernacle;

*Chap. 27. 1. 16 * The altar of burnt-offering, with his brazen grate, his staves, and all his vessels; the laver and his foot;

17 The hangings of the court, his pillars, and their sockets, and the hanging for the door of the court;

18 The pins of the tabernacle, and the pins of the court, and their cords;

19 The clothes of service, to do service in the holy place, the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons to minister in the priests office.

20 ¶ And all the congregation of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moses.

21 And they came every one whose heart stirred him up k, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the LORDS offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service, and for the holy garments.

k (i. e.) Whose Heart being desirous and ready to serve God, ingaged his Hand to offer what he had to his service.

22 And they came both men and women, as many as were willing-hearted, and brought bracelets, and ear-rings l, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered, offered an offering of gold unto the LORD.

l Obj. Aaron had got these from them for the making of the Calf, Exod. 32. Answ. Though the generality of the People did then part with their Ear-rings, yet there was a considerable number who did not, as being unsatisfied with that Idolatrous design; and it may seem that the Women would not part with theirs, being more fond of their Ornaments than of their Idols. See the notes on Exod. 32. 3.

23 And every man with whom was found blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers skins, brought them.

24 Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass, brought the LORDS offering: and every man with whom was found shittim-wood for any work of the service, brought it.

25 And all the women that were wise-hearted, did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.

26 And all the women whose heart stirred them up in wisdom m, spun goats hair.

m This word seems better to agree with the following than with the foregoing word, they spun with wisdom, i. e. with skill and art.

27 And the rulers brought onyx-stones, and stones to be set for the ephod, and for the breast-plate,

*Chap. 30. 23. 28 And * spice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense.

29 The children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the LORD, every man and woman whose heart made them willing to bring for all manner of work, which the LORD had commanded to be made, by the hand of Moſes.

30 ¶ And Moſes ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, See, * the LORD hath called by name Bezaleel the ſon of Uri, the ſon of Hur, of the tribe of Judah. *Chap. 31. 2.

31 And he hath filled him with the ſpirit of God, in wiſdom, in underſtanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanſhip,

32 And to deviſe curious works, to work in gold, and in ſilver, and in braſs;

33 And in the cutting of ſtones, to ſet them, and in carving of wood, to make any manner of cunning work.

34 And he hath put in his heart, that he may teach n, both he, and Aholiab the ſon of Ahiſamach of the tribe of Dan.

n To wit, others to work under him; for the work required many hands; and it is a peculiar gift of God to be apt to teach, which every skilful Man hath not.

35 Them hath he filled with wiſdom of heart, to work all manner of work of the ingraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in ſcarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver, even of them that do any work, and of thoſe that deviſe cunning work.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Moſes committeth the work to Bezaleel and Aholiab, 1——4. The liberality of the people is forbid, 5, 6. The curtains of cherubims, 8——13. The curtains of goats-hair, &c. all belonging to the tabernacle, 13——17.

THen wrought Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wiſe-hearted man, in whom the LORD put wiſdom and underſtanding to know how to work all manner of work for the ſervice of the ſanctuary a, according to all that the LORD had commanded.

a Or, Of the holy place, to wit, of the Tabernacle, ſo called by a Prolepſis, and Synecdoche.

2 And Moſes called b Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wiſe-hearted man, in whoſe heart the LORD had put wiſdom, even every one whoſe heart ſtirred him up to come unto the work to do it.

b God had qualified them before, but that is not ſufficient without a call.

3 And they received of Moſes all the offering which the children of Iſrael had brought for the work of the ſervice of the ſanctuary, to make it withal. And they brought yet unto him free-offerings every morning c.

c Which time they choſe as the firſt and beſt part of the day, and therefore fitteſt for God's ſervice.

4 And all the wiſe-men that wrought all the work of the ſanctuary, came every man from his work which they made.

5 And they ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying, The people bring much more than enough for the ſervice of the work which the LORD hath commanded to make.

6 And Moſes gave commandment, and they cauſed it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, ſaying, Let neither man nor woman d make any more work for the offering of the ſanctuary: ſo the people were reſtrained from bringing.

d For the Women did part of this work as well as the Men. See Exod. 35. 25.

7 For the ſtuff they had was ſufficient for all the work to make it, and too much.

8 ¶ And every wiſe-hearted man among them that wrought the work of the tabernacle, * made ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and ſcarlet: with cherubims of cunning work made he them. *Chap. 26. 1, 4.

9 The length of one curtain was twenty and eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: the curtains were all of one ſize.

10 And he coupled the five curtains one unto another: and the other five curtains he coupled one unto another.

11 And he made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain from the ſelvedge in the coupling: likewiſe he made in the uttermoſt ſide of another curtain in the coupling of the ſecond.

12 * Fifty loops made he in one curtain; and fifty loops made he in the edge of the curtain which was in the coupling of the ſecond: the loops held one to another. *Chap. 26. 10.

13 And he made fifty taches of gold, and coupled the curtains one unto another with the taches. So it became one tabernacle.

14 And he made curtains of goats hair, for the tent over the tabernacle e: eleven curtains he made them.

e (i. e.) For the outward covering of the Tabernacle. See Exod. 35. 11.

15 The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and four cubits was the breadth of one curtain: the eleven curtains were of one ſize.

16 And he coupled five curtains by themſelves, and ſix curtains by themſelves.

17 And he made fifty loops upon the uttermoſt edge of the curtain in the coupling, and fifty loops made he upon the edge of the curtain which coupleth the ſecond.

18 And he made fifty taches of braſs to couple the tent together that it might be one.

19 And he made a covering for the tent, of rams ſkins died red, and a covering of badgers ſkins above that.

20 ¶ And he made boards for the tabernacle, of ſhittim-wood, ſtanding up.

21 The length of a board was ten cubits, and the breadth of a board one cubit and an half.

22 One board had two tenons, equally diſtant one from another: thus did he make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

23 And he made boards for the tabernacle: twenty boards for the ſouth-ſide, ſouthward.

24 And fourty ſockets of ſilver he made under the twenty boards: two ſockets under one board for his two tenons, and two ſockets under another board for his two tenons.

25 And for the other ſide of the tabernacle, which is toward the north corner, he made twenty boards, 26 And their fourty ſockets of ſilver: two ſockets under one board, and two ſockets under another board.

27 And for the ſides of the tabernacle weſt-ward, he made ſix boards.

28 And two boards made he for the corners of the tabernacle in the two ſides.

29 And they were † coupled beneath, and coupled together at the head thereof, to one ring: thus he did to both of them in both the corners. † Heb. twinned.

30 And there were eight boards, and their ſockets were ſixteen ſockets of ſilver: † under every board two ſockets. † Heb. two ſockets under one board.

31 ¶ And he made * bars of ſhittim-wood: five for the boards of the one ſide of the tabernacle, * Heb. five for the other ſide of the board.

32 And five bars for the boards of the other ſide of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the tabernacle for the ſides weſt-ward. Chap. 26. 26, &c.

33 And he made the middle bar to ſhoot through the boards from the one end to the other.

34 And he overlaid the boards with gold, and made their rings of gold to be places for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

35 ¶ And he made * a vail f of blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine twined linen: with cherubims made he it of cunning work. *Chap. 26. 31.

f To wit, the ſecond Vail, which ſeparated between the Holy-place, and the Holy of Holies, becauſe the firſt Vail is deſcribed verſe 37.

36 And he made thereunto four pillars of ſhittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold: their hooks were of gold: and he caſt for them four ſockets of ſilver.

37 ¶ And he made an * hanging for the tabernacle door g of blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine twined linen † of needle-work. * Chap. 26. 36. † Heb. work of a needle-worker, or embroiderer.

g Which divided the Holy-place from the Court.

38 And the five pillars of it with their hooks: and he overlaid their chapiters, and their fillets with gold h, but their five ſockets were of braſs.

h Whereas the pillars are ſaid to be overlaid with gold, Exod. 26. 37. that hence appears to be a Synecdochical Expreſſion, in regard the tops and knobs of the Pillars were wholly overlaid with Gold, and the reſt of the Pillars adorned with divers golden Girdles or Hoops; for that place is in all reaſon to be explained by this, as coming after it, and containing the execution of that Preſcript, and that more particularly than is there expreſſed.

21 And a knop under two branches of the ſame, and a knop under two branches of the ſame, and a knop under two branches of the ſame, according to the ſix branches going out of it.

22 Their knops and their branches were of the ſame: all of it was one beaten work of pure gold.

23 And he made his ſeven lamps, and his ſnuffers, and his ſnuff-diſhes of pure gold.

AND * he made the altar of burnt-offering of ſhittim-wood: five cubits was the length thereof: and five cubits the breadth thereof: (it was ſquare) and three cubits the height thereof. Chap. 27. 1.

2 And he made the horns thereof on the four corners of it: the horns thereof were of the ſame, and he overlaid it with braſs.

6 And he made the ſtaves of ſhittim-wood, and overlaid them with braſs.

7 And he put the ſtaves into the rings on the ſides of the altar, to bear it withal; he made the altar hollow with boards.

8 ¶ And he made the * laver of braſs, and the foot of it of braſs, of the † looking-glaſſes a of the women † aſſembling, which aſſembled at the door of the congregation b. * Chap. 30. 18. † Or, brazen glaſſes. † Heb. aſſembling by troops.

See Job 37. 18. Phil. 33. 9. &c. b It ſeems to note a company of religious Women, who in a more peculiar manner devoted themſelves to the ſervice of God in or about his Tabernacle, by faſting, prayer, &c. ſee 1 Sam. 2. 22. and Luke 2. 37. And whereas ſome object, that the Tabernacle was not yet built, it may be replied, either that this is to be underſtood of the Tabernacle ſpoken of Exod. 33. 7. which might ſerve for that purpoſe till this was built; or that here is a prolepſis or anticipation, and that he ſpeaks not of what the Women now did, but of what they did after the Tabernacle was built, which was before Moſes writ theſe words. as 1 Sam. 2. 22.

9 ¶ And he made * the Court: on the ſouth-ſide ſouthward, the hangings of the court were of fine twined linen an hundred cubits. * Chap. 27. 9.

10 Their pillars were twenty, and their brazen ſockets twenty: the hooks c of the pillars, and their fillets were of ſilver.

c Upon which they hanged the Beaſts to be ſacrificed, as the Jews affirm.

11 And for the north-ſide, the hangings were an hundred cubits, their pillars were twenty, and their ſockets of braſs twenty: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets of ſilver.

12 And for the weſt-ſide were hangings of fifty cubits, their pillars ten, and their ſockets ten: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets of ſilver.

13 And for the eaſt-ſide eaſtward fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of the one ſide of the gate were fifteen cubits, their pillars three, and their ſockets three.

15 And for the other ſide of the court-gate on this hand, and that hand, were hangings of fifteen cubits, their pillars three, and their ſockets three.

16 All the hangings of the court round about were of fine twined linen.

17 And the ſockets for the pillars were of braſs, the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets of ſilver, and the overlaying of the chapiters of ſilver, and all the pillars of the court were filleted with ſilver.

18 And the hanging for the gate of the court was needle-work, of blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine twined linen: and twenty cubits was the length, and the height in the breadth d was five cubits anſwerable to the hangings of the court.

d The height relates to its ſtanding or hanging upright, and the breadth relates to the hanging it ſelf, and the height of the hanging was taken in the breadth.

19 And their pillars were four, and their ſockets of braſs four, their hooks of ſilver, and the overlaying of their chapiters, and their fillets of ſilver.

20 And all the * pins of the tabernacle, and of the court round about were of braſs. * Chap. 27. 19.

21 ¶ This is the ſum of the tabernacle e, even of the taber-tabernacle of testimony, as it was counted, according to the commandment of Moses, for the service of the Levites f, by the hand of Ithamar son to Aaron the priest.

e This doth not belong to the following account of Gold and Silver, but to the foregoing particulars of holy things relating to the Tabernacle, for these only were committed to the care of the Levites, as it here follows, but this Gold and Silver was put into other hands. f (i. e.) For those holy uses and services which the Levites administred.

22 And Bezaleel the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the Tribe of Judah, made all that the LORD commanded Moses.

23 And with him was Aholiab, son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver and a cunning workman, and an embroiderer in blue, and in purple, and in scarlet, and fine linen.

24 All the gold that was occupied for the work, in all the work of the holy place, even the gold of the offering, was twenty and nine talents g, and seven hundred and thirty shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

g Every Talent contained three thousand Shekels. See Gen. 23. 15. Exod. 30. 13. It is not said, that all this Gold and following Silver were used about the building of the Tabernacle, for the people brought much more than enough, Exod. 36. 5. And these remains, it is probable, were put into the sacred Treasury, to be used as occasion should require.

25 And the silver of them that were numbred of the congregation was an hundred talents, and a thousand seven hundred and threescore and fifteen shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary.

*Chap. 30. 15. † Heb. a poll. *Num. 1. 46.

26 A * Bekah † for every man, that is, half a shekel, after the shekel of the sanctuary, for every one that went to be numbred, from twenty years old and upward, for * six hundred thousand, and three thousand and five hundred and fifty men.

27 And of the hundred talents of silver were cast the *Chap. 26. 19, 21, 25, 32. * sockets of the sanctuary, and the sockets of the vail; an hundred sockets of the hundred talents, a talent for a socket.

28 And of the thousand seven hundred seventy and five shekels, he made hooks for the pillars, and overlaid their chapiters, and filletted them.

29 And the brass of the offering was seventy talents, and two thousand and four hundred shekels.

30 And therewith he made the sockets to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the brazen altar, and the brazen grate for it, and all the vessels of the altar.

31 And the sockets of the court round about, and the sockets of the court-gate, and all the pins of the tabernacle, and all the pins of the court round about.

CHAP. XXXIX.

The holy garments, 1. The Ephod, 2——7. The breast-plate, with 12 stones therein, 8——14. The robe of the Ephid, 22——26. The coats, mitre, and girdle, of fine linen, 27——29. The plate of the holy crown, 30, 31. All is viewed and approved by Moses, 32——43.

AND of the blue, and purple, and scarlet they made clothes of service, to do service in the holy place, and * made the holy garments for Aaron, as the LORD commanded Moses. *Chap. 31. 10. and 35. 19.

2 And he made the ephod of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

3 And they did beat the gold into thin plates, and cut it into wiers, to work it in the blue, and in the purple, and in the scarlet, and in the fine linen with cunning work.

4 They made shoulder-pieces for it, to couple it together: by the two edges was it coupled together.

5 And the curious girdle of his ephod that was upon it was of the same, according to the work thereof, of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, as the LORD commanded Moses.

*Chap. 28. 9. 6 ¶ * And they wrought onyx-stones inclosed in ouches of gold, graven as signets are graven, with the names of the children of Israel.

*Chap. 28. 12. 7 And he put them on the shoulders of the Ephod, that they should be stones for a * memorial to the children of Israel, as the LORD commanded Moses.

8 ¶ And he made the breast-plate of cunning work like the work of the ephod, of gold, blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 It was foursquare, they made the breast-plate double: a span was the length thereof, and a span the breadth thereof being doubled.

10 And they set in it four rows of stones: the first row was a † Sardius, a Topaz, and a Carbuncle: this was the first row. † Or, b.

11 And the second row an Emeraud, a Saphir, and a Diamond.

12 And the third row a Ligure, an Agate, and an Amethyst.

13 And the fourth row a Beryl, an Onyx, and a Jasper: they were inclosed in ouches of gold in their inclosings.

14 And the stones were according to the names of the children of Israel, twelve according to their names, like the ingravings of a signet, every one with his name according to the twelve Tribes.

15 And they made upon the Breast-plate chains at the ends, of wreathen work of pure gold.

16 And they made two ouches of gold, and two gold rings: and put the two rings in the two ends of the breast-plate.

17 And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breast-plate.

18 And the two ends of the two wreathed chains they fastned in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder-pieces of the Ephod before it.

19 And they made two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breast-plate upon the border of it, which was on the side of the Ephod inward.

20 And they made two other golden rings, and put them on the two sides of the Ephod underneath, toward the fore-part of it, over-against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the Ephod.

21 And they did bind the breast-plate by his rings unto the rings of the Ephod with a lace of blue, that it might be above the curious girdle of the Ephod, and that the breast-plate might not be loosed from the Ephod, as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And he made the robe of the Ephod of woven work, all of blue.

23 And there was a hole in the midst of the robe, as the hole of an habergeon, with a band round about the hole, that it should not rent.

24 And they made upon the hems of the robe, pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twined linen.

25 And they made * bells of pure gold, and put the *Chap. 28. 33. bells between the pomegranates, upon the hem of the robe, round about between the pomegranates.

26 A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate round about the hem of the robe to minister in, as the LORD commanded Moses.

27 ¶ And they made coats of fine linen of woven work, for Aaron, and for his sons, 28 And a mitre of fine linen, and goodly bonnets of fine linen, and * linen breeches of fine twined linen, *Chap. 28. 42.

29 And a girdle of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet of needle-work; as the LORD commanded Moses.

30 ¶ And they made the plate of the holy crown of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the ingravings of a signet, * HOLINESS TO THE LORD. *Chap. 28. 36.

31 And they tied unto it a lace of blue, to fasten it on high upon the mitre, as the LORD commanded Moses.

32 Thus was all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation finished: and the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did they.

33 ¶ And they brought the tabernacle unto Moses, the tent, and all his furniture, his taches, his boards, his bars, and his pillars, and his sockets,

34 And the covering of rams-skins died red, and the covering of badgers skins, and the vail of the covering,

35 The ark of the testimony, and the staves thereof, and the mercy-seat,

36 The table and all the vessels thereof, and the shew-bread,

37 The pure candlestick, with the lamps thereof, even with the lamps to be set in order, and all the vessels thereof, and the oyl for light, 38 And the golden altar, and the anointing oyl, and † the sweet incense, and the hanging for the tabernacle-door, † Heb. incense of sweet spices.

39 The brazen altar, and his grate of brass, his staves, and all his vessels, the laver, and his feet,

40 The hangings of the court, his pillars, and his sockets, and the hanging for the court-gate, his cords, and his pins, and all the vessels of the service of the tabernacle, for the tent of the congregation.

41 The cloaths of service to do service in the holy place, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and his sons garments to minister in the priests office.

42 According to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so the children of Israel made all the work.

43 And Moses did look upon all the work, and behold, they had done it as the LORD had commanded, even so had they done it: and Moses blessed them a.

a (i. e.) Both the People for their liberal Contribution, and the Workmen for their great Care and Industry.

CHAP. XL.

The tabernacle is commanded to be reared, 1——3. and anointed, 9——12. Aaron and his sons sanctified, 14, 15. Moses performeth all things accordingly, 16——33. A cloud covered the tabernacle, 34——38.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 On the first day of the first month a shalt thou set up the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

a To wit, of the second Year after their coming out of Egypt, as is evident.

3 And thou shalt put therein the ark of the testimony, and cover the ark with the vail.

*Chap. 26. *Heb. the partition. 4 And * thou shalt bring in the table, and set in order † the things that are to be set in order upon it b, and thou shalt bring in the candlestick, and light the lamps thereof.

b The Vessels belonging to it, and the Shew-bread, Exod. 25. 29, 30.

5 And thou shalt set the altar of gold for the incense before the ark of the testimony, and put the hanging of the door to the tabernacle.

6 And thou shalt set the altar of the burnt-offering before the door of the tabernacle of the tent c of the congregation.

c (i. e.) The Tabernacle which is covered with a Tent. See Exod. 35. 11. Though elsewhere the words tabernacle and tent are promiscuously used.

*Chap. 30. 18. 7 And * thou shalt set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and shalt put water therein.

8 And thou shalt set up the court round about, and hang up the hanging at the court-gate.

*Chap. 30. 26. 9 And thou shalt take the anointing oil, and * anoint the tabernacle, and all that is therein, and shalt hallow it, and all the vessels thereof: and it shall be holy.

10 And thou shalt anoint the altar of the burnt-offering, and all his vessels, and sanctifie the altar: *Chap. 29. and * it shall be an altar † most holy.

11 And thou shalt anoint the laver and his foot, and † Heb. holiness of holinesses. sanctifie it.

12 And thou shalt bring Aaron and his sons unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and wash them with water.

13 And thou shalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, and anoint him, and sanctifie him, that he may minister unto me in the priests office.

14 And thou shalt bring his sons, and cloath them with coats.

15 And thou shalt anoint them, as thou didst anoint their father, that they may minister unto me in the priests office: for their anointing shall surely be an everlasting priesthood d, throughout their generations.

d (i. e.) A Sign or Seal that their Priesthood shall continue as long as their Polity lasts, till the coming of the Messias. He signifies that this Unction should be sufficient for all succeeding Priests, they should not need to be anointed again, except the successive High-priests. See Exod. 29. 7, 29. Levit. 4. 3. and 16. 32. and 21. 10.

16 Thus did Moses: according to all that the LORD commanded him, so did he.

17 ¶ And it came to pass in the first month, in the second year e, on the first day of the month, that the tabernacle was reared up. *Num. 1. 1. 7. 1.

e After their coming out of Egypt.

18 And Moses reared up the tabernacle, and fastned his sockets, and set up the boards thereof, and put in the bars thereof, and reared up his pillars.

19 And he spread abroad the tent over the tabernacle, and put the covering of the tent above upon it, as the LORD commanded Moses.

*Chap. 25. 16. 20 ¶ And he took and put * the testimony into the ark, and set the staves on the ark, and put the mercy-seat above upon the ark.

*Chap. 25. 12. 21 And he brought the ark into the tabernacle, and * set up the vail of the covering, and covered the ark of the testimony, as the LORD commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And he put the table in the tent of the congregation upon the side of the tabernacle, northward without the vail.

23 And he set the bread in order upon it before the LORD; as the LORD had commanded Moses.

24 ¶ And he put the candlestick in the tent of the congregation, over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle southward.

25 And he lighted the lamps before the LORD; as the LORD commanded Moses.

26 ¶ And he put the golden altar in the tent of the congregation before the vail.

27 And he burnt sweet incense thereon; as the LORD commanded Moses f.

f This is wisely and seasonably added, because this was a work peculiar to the Priest, and not to be done by Moses without God's express command.

28 ¶ And he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle.

29 And he put the altar of burnt-offering by the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation, and offered upon it the burnt-offering, and the meat-offering g; as the LORD commanded Moses.

g For the Consecration of the Altar, this being the first Sacrifice.

30 ¶ And he set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and put water there, to wash withal.

31 And Moses, and Aaron and his sons, washed their hands and their feet thereat.

32 When they went into the tent of the congregation, and when they came near unto the altar, they washed; as the LORD commanded Moses.

33 And he reared up the court round about the tabernacle, and the altar, and set up the hanging of the court-gate, so Moses finished the work.

*Lev. 16. 9. 15. 2. Numb. 8. 10. Isa. 6. 1 Kings 8. Rev. 15. 8. 34 * Then a cloud covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the LORD b filled the tabernacle.

b (i. e.) The glorious Presence of God, which having been forfeited and lost was now returned to them, and took its Habitation among them.

35 And Moses was not able to enter into the tent i of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.

i Partly because of the extraordinary thickness and brightness of the Cloud, which both dazzled his Eyes and struck him with Horrour, as 1 Kings 8. 11. and partly because of his great Reverence and Dread of that eminent and glorious Appearance of God, and partly because he was not called to it, as he was not able to go up into the Mount till he was called, Exod. 24. 16.

36 And when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel † went onward in all their journeys. † Heb. journeyed.

37 But if the cloud were not taken up, then they journeyed not, till the day that it was taken up.

38 For the cloud of the LORD was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire k was on it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys.

k The same Pillar which in the day-time was like a Cloud, in the night-time had the appearance of Fire. See Exod. 13. 21.

Annotations on LEVITICUS.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Book, containing the Actions of about one Months space, acquainteth us with the Levitical Ceremonies used after the Tabernacle was erected, and anointed in the Wilderness, and is therefore called Leviticus: It treats of Laws concerning persons, and things, clean and unclean, by infirmity, or accident; as also purifyings in general once a Year, and divers particular cleansings, with a brief repetition of divers Laws, Chap. 19. together with certain Feasts, of seven Years rest, of the Jubilee, and the redemption of things consecrated to God, &c. but especially of such Ceremonies as were used about Offerings and Sacrifices, which were both expiatory for Trespasses wittingly or unwittingly committed, whether by the People or the Priests; and also Eucharistical, in the owning of God's Blessings. Here are declared also Laws for the regulating of these, and prescribing the lawful time for Marriages; here is set down how several abominable Sins are punishable by the Magistrate; and how these things are to be managed by certain persons appropriated to the tribe of Levi, whose Office is confirmed from Heaven, and the Male-administration of it threatned, and the Judgement particularly inflicted on Nadab and Abihu for an Example. Here are also promises, and threatnings, to the observers, or breakers of this Law.

CHAP. I.

God commands Moses concerning free-will burnt-offerings of bullock or sheep; male without blemish, 1——3. The offerer to lay his Hand on the head of the offering, that it might be accepted for him, 4. The bullock to be slain and its blood sprinkled on the altar, 5. Its parts to be consumed by fire, 7——9. Of goats, 10. Of fowls, as turtle-doves and young pigeons; their blood to be wrung out at the side of the altar, 14——17.

AND the LORD called unto Moses a, and spake unto him out of the tabernacle of the congregation b, saying, a Who stood without, Exod. 40. 35. waiting for God's call. b From the Mercy-seat in the Tabernacle.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, * If any man of you bring an offering c unto the LORD, ye shall bring your offering of the cattle, even of the herd, and of the flock d.

* Chap. 22. 18.

c There are divers kinds of Sacrifices here prescribed, some by way of acknowledgement to God for Mercies either desired or received; others by way of satisfaction to God for Men's Sins; others were meer exercises of Piety and Devotion. And the reason why there are so many kinds of them was, partly, respect to the childish estate of the Jews, who by the custom of Nations, and their own natural Inclinations were much addicted to outward Rites and Ceremonies, that they might have full employment of that kind in God's service, and thereby be kept from temptations to Idolatry; and partly to represent as well the several perfections of Christ, the true Sacrifice, and the various benefits of his Death, as the several Duties which Men owe to their Creator and Redeemer, all which could not be so well expressed by one sort of Sacrifices. d Or, Of the sheep; though the Hebrew word contains both the Sheep and Goats, as appears both from the use of the word, Gen. 12. 16. and 27. 9. and 38. 17. and from verse 10. and other places of Scripture. Now God chose these kinds of Creatures for his Sacrifices, either 1. In opposition to the Egyptian Idolatry, to which divers of the Israelites had been used, and were still in danger of revolting to again, that the frequent destruction of these Creatures might bring such silly Deities into contempt. Or 2. Because these are the fittest representations both of Christ and of true Christians, as being Gentle, and Harmless, and Patient, and most useful to Men. Or 3. As the best and most profitable Creatures, with which it is fit God should be served, and which we should be ready to part with, when God requires us to do so. Or 4. As things most common and obvious, that Men might never want a Sacrifice when they needed, or God required it.

3 If his offering be a burnt sacrifice e of the herd, let him offer a male f without blemish g: he shall offer † it † of his own voluntary will h, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation i before the LORD.

† Or, to be accepted for him.

e Strictly so called, such as was to be all burnt, the Skin excepted, Levit. 7. 8. See Gen. 8. 20. and 1 Kings 3. 15. For otherwise every Sacrifice was burnt, more or less. The Sacrifices did partly signifie, that the whole Man, in whose stead the Sacrifice was offered, was to be intirely and unreservedly offered or devoted to God's service; and that the whole Man did deserve to be utterly consumed, if God should deal severely with him; and directed us to serve the Lord with all singleness of Heart, without self-ends, and to be ready to offer to God even such Sacrifices or Services wherein we our selves should have no part nor benefit. f As being more perfect than the Female, Mal. 1. 14. and more truly representing Christ. g Of which see Exod. 29. 1. Levit. 22. 22, &c. To signify, 1. That God should be served with the best of every kind. 2. That Man, represented by these Sacrifices, should aim at all purity and perfection of Heart and Life, and that Christians should one day attain to it, Eph. 5. 27. 3. The spotless and compleat holiness of Christ, Heb. 9. 13, 14. 1 Pet. 1. 18, 19. and 2. 22. h According to this Translation, the place speaks only of free-will-offerings, or such as were not prescribed by God to be offered in course, but were offered at the pleasure, and by the voluntary devotion of any person, either by way of Supplication for any Mercy which he needed or desired, or by way of Thansgiving for any Favour or Blessing received. But it may seem improper to restrain the Rules here given to free-will-offerings, which were to be observed in other offerings also. And the Hebrew word is by the Seventy, Chaldee, Syriack, and Arabick, and others, rendred to this purpose, for his acceptation, or that he may be accepted with God, or that God may be atoned, as it is verse 4. And so this phrase is used, Levit. 23. 11. i In the Court near to the door, where the Altar stood, verse 5. For here it was to be sacrificed, and here also the People might behold the oblation of it. And this further signified, that men could have no entrance, neither into the earthly Tabernacle, the Church, nor into the heavenly Tabernacle of Glory, but by Christ, who is the door, Joh. 10. 7, 9. by whom alone we have access to God.

4 * And he shall put his hand k upon the head of the burnt-offering l, and it shall be accepted from him to make atonement for him m.

* Exod. 29. 10, 15. Levit. 3. 2. and 4. 4. and 16. 21.

k (i. e.) Both his hands, Levit. 8. 14, 18. and 16. 21. A common Enallage. l Whereby he signified, 1. that he willingly gave it to the Lord. 2. That he did legally unite himself with it, and judged himself worthy of that death which it suffered in his stead; and that he laid his sins upon it in a ceremonial way, and had an eye to him upon whom God would lay the iniquity of us all, Isa. 53. 6. and that together with it he did freely offer up himself to God. m To wit, ceremonially and sacramentally; as directing his faith and thoughts to that true Propitiatory Sacrifice which in time was to be offered up for him. See Rom. 3. 25. Heb. 9. 15, 25, 26. And although Burnt-offerings were commonly offered by way of thanksgiving, Gen. 8. 20. Psal. 51. 16, 17. yet they were sometimes offered by way of atonement for sin, to wit, for sins in general, as appears from Job 1. 5. but for particular sins there were special Sacrifices, as we shall see.

5 And he n shall kill the bullock before the LORD: and the Priests, Aarons sons, shall bring the blood, and sprinkle the blood round about upon the altar o that is by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

n Either 1. the Offerer, who is said to do it, to wit, by the Priest; for men are commonly said to do what they cause others to do, as Joh. 4. 1, 2. Or 2. the Priest, as it follows, or the Levite, whose office this was. See Exod. 29. 11. Levit. 8. 15. Numb. 8. 19. 1 Chron. 23. 28, 31. 2 Chron. 30. 16. and 35. 11. o Which was done in a considerable quantity, as may be gathered from Zech. 9. 15. and whereby was signified, 1. That the Offerer deserved to have his Blood spilt in that manner. 2. That the Blood of Christ should be poured forth for Sinners, and that that was the only mean of their reconciliation to God, and acceptance with him.

6 And he shall flay the burnt-offering p, and cut it into his pieces q.

p Partly for decency, because the Sacrifices being as it were God's food and Feast, it was incongruous to offer to God that which men refused to eat; and partly to signify, that the great thing which God required and regarded in men was, not their outward appearance, but their inside; and that as he doth see all mens insides, (Heb. 4. 13.) so he will one day make them visible to others. q To wit, the head, and fat, and inwards, and legs, ver. 8. 9.

7 And the sons of Aaron the Priest shall put fire r upon the altar, and lay the wood in order upon the fire.

r Or, dispose the fire, i. e. blow it up, and put it together, so as it might be fit for the present work. For the fire there used and allowed came down from Heaven, Levit. 9. 24. and was to be carefully preserved there, and all other fire was forbidden, Levit. 10. 1, &c.

8 And the Priests Aarons sons shall lay the parts, the head and the fat s, in order upon the wood that is in the fire which is upon the altar.

s All the fat; which was to be separated from the Flesh, and to be put together, to increase the flame, and to consume the other parts of the Sacrifice more quickly. Others translate it, the trunk of the body, as distinguished from the head, and joints, and inward parts.

9 But the inwards and his legs, shall he wash t in water, and the priest shall burn all u on the altar, to be a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by fire of a sweet savour x unto the LORD.

t To signify the universal and perfect purity both of the inwards, or the heart, and of the legs, or ways or actions, which was in Christ, and which should be in all Christians. Not only the parts now mentioned, but all the rest, the trunk of the Body, and the shoulders, as is apparent from the practice or execution of these Precepts. x Not in it self, for so it rather caused a stink, but as it represented Christ's offering up himself to God as a sweet-smelling savour, Eph. 5. 2. and to admonish us of the excellent vertue of Divine institution, without which God values no worship, though never so glorious, and by which even the meanest things are precious and acceptable to God.

10 And if his offering be of the flocks, namely, of the sheep, or of the goats for a burnt-sacrifice, he shall bring it a male without blemish.

11 And he shall kill it on the side of the altar northward y, before the LORD: and the Priests Aarons sons shall sprinkle his blood round about upon the altar.

y Here this and other kinds of Sacrifices were killed, Levit. 6. 25. and 7. 2. because here seems to have been the largest and most convenient place for that work, the Altar being probably near the middle of the East-end of the Building, and the entrance being on the South-side; so the Northside was the only vacant place. Besides this might defign the place of Christ's death both more generally, to wit, in Jerusalem, which was in the sides of the north, Psal. 48. 2. and more specially, to wit, on Mount Calvary, which was on the North and West side of Jerusalem.

12 And he shall cut it into his pieces with his head and his fat: and the Priest shall lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar:

13 But he shall wash the inwards, and the legs with water, and the priest shall bring it all, and burn it upon the altar: it is a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

14 And if the burnt-sacrifice for his offering to the LORD be of fowles, then he shall bring his offering of Chap. 5. * turtle doves, or of young pigeons z.

z These Birds were appointed for the relief of the poor who could not bring better. And these Birds are preferred before others, partly because they were easily gotten, and partly because they are fit representations of Christ's Chastity, and Meekness, and Gentleness, for which these Birds are remarkable. The Pigeons must be young, because then they are best; but the Turtle-doves are better when they are more grown up, and therefore they are not confined to that age.

15 And the priest shall bring it unto the altar: and † wring off a his head, and burn it on the altar: and the blood thereof shall be wrung out * at the side of the altar.

† Or, pinch the head with the nail.

Heb. upon the wall.

a To wit, from the rest of the body; as sufficiently appears, because this was to be burnt by it self, as it here follows, and the body afterwards, ver. 17. And whereas it is said Levit. 5. 8. he shall ——wring his head from his neck, but shall not divide it asunder, that is spoken not of the Burnt-offering, as here, but of the Sin-offering, in which there might be a differing Rite.

16 And he shall pluck away his crop with his † feathers b, and cast it beside the altar on the East-part c, by the place of the ashes d.

Or, the filth thereof.

b Or, with its dung or filth, to wit, contained in the crop, and in the guts. c To wit, of the Tabernacle. Here the filth was cast, because this was the remotest place from the Holy of Holies, which was in the West-end; to teach us, that impure things and persons should not presume to approach to God, and that they should be banished from his presence. d The place where the ashes fell down and lay, whence they were afterwards removed without the Camp. See Levit. 4. 12. and 6. 10, 11. and 8. 17.

17 And he shall cleave it with the wings thereof, but shall not divide it asunder e: and the Priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire: it is a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

e Shall cleave the Bird thorough the whole length, yet so as not to separate the one side from the other, and so as there may be a wing left on each side. See Gen. 15. 10.

CHAP. II.

Concerning free-will meat-offerings; of meal-flower with oil and frankincense upon it, 1. for a memorial, 2. The remainder most holy, to be eaten by Aaron and his sons, 3. Of baked and unleavened cakes mixed, and wafers sprinkled with oil, 4. Or dress in the pan, 5. or in the kettle, 7. but without leaven or honey, 11. The first-fruits excepted, 12. Salt of the covenant to be offered, 13. First-fruits how to be offered, 14——16.

Heb. a

AND when † any will offer a meat-offering a unto the LORD, his offering shall be of fine flour b: and he shall pour oil upon it c, and put frankincense thereon d.

a This was of two kinds, the one joined with other Offerings, Numb. 15. 4, 7, 10. which was prescribed, together with the measure or proportion of it: The other, of which this place speaks, was a distinct and separate Offering, and was left to the Offerer's good will both for the thing, and for the quantity. And the matter of this Offering was things without life, as Meal, Corn, Cakes, &c. Now this sort of Sacrifices were appointed, 1. because these are things of greatest necessity and benefit to man, and therefore it is meet that God should be served with them, and owned and praised as the giver of them. 2. In consideration to the poor, that they might not want an Offering for God, and to shew that God would accept even the meanest Services, when offered to him with a sincere mind. 3. These were necessary provisions for the Feast which was here to be represented to God, and for the use of the Priests, who were to attend upon these holy ministrations. b Searced, or sifted, and purged from all Bran, it being fit that the best things should be offered to the best Being. c Which may note the Graces of the Holy Ghost, which are compared to Oil, and anointing with it, Psal. 45. 7. 1 Joh. 2. 20. and which are necessary to make any Offering acceptable to God. d Which manifestly defigned Christ's satisfaction and intercession, which is compared to a sweet odour, Eph. 5. 2. and to incense, Rev. 8. 3.

2 And he shall bring it to Aarons sons the Priests: and he e shall take thereout his handful of the flour thereof, and of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof, * and the Priest shall burn the memorial of it † upon the altar, to be an offering made by fire of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

* Chap. 5. 12. and 6. 15.

† Or, on a pan, or flat plate or slice.

e (i. e.) That Priest to whom he brought it, and who is appointed to offer it. f That part thus selected and offered; which is called a memorial, either 1. to the Offerer, who by offering this part is minded, that the whole of that he brought, and of all which he hath of that kind, is God's, to whom this part was paid as a quit-rent, or acknowledgment. Or 2. to God, whom (to speak after the manner of men) this did put in mind of his gracious Covenant and Promises of favour, and acceptance of the Offerer and his Offering. See Exod. 30. 16. Levit. 6. 15. Numb. 5. 26.

3 And * the remnant of the meat-offering shall be † Aarons and his sons †: it is a * thing most holy g of the offering of the LORD made by fire.

* Chap. 7. 9. Ezek. 42. 13. Numb. 18. 9.

† To be eaten by them, Levit. 6. 16. g (i. e.) Most holy, or such as were to be eaten only by the Priests, and that only in the holy place near the Altar. See Levit. 6. 26. and 7. 6, 9. and 21. 22.

4 And if thou bring an oblation of a meat-offering baken in the oven h, it shall be an unleavened cake of fine flour mingled with oil, or unleavened wafers anointed with oil.

h Made in the Sanctuary for that use, as may seem from 1 Chron. 23. 28, 29. Ezek. 46. 20.

5 And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken † in a pan, it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mingled with oil.

† Or, on a flat plate or slice.

6 Thou shalt part it in pieces i, and pour oil thereon: it is a meat-offering.

i Because part of it was offered to God, and part given to the Priest.

7 And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken in the frying-pan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil.

8 And thou shalt bring the meat-offering that is made of these things unto the LORD, and when it is † presented unto the Priest, he shall bring it unto the altar,

† Or, offered.

9 And the Priest shall take from the meat-offering * a memorial thereof, and shall burn it upon the altar: † it is an offering made by fire of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

* Verse 2. Exod. 29. 18.

10 And that which is left of the meat-offering, shall be Aarons and his sons: It is a thing most holy, of the offerings of the LORD made by fire.

11 No meat-offering k which he shall bring unto the LORD, shall be made with leaven l: for ye shall burn no leaven, nor any honey m in any offering of the LORD made by fire.

k To wit, which is offered of free-will; for in other Offerings it might be used, Levit. 7. 13. and 23. 17. l This was forbidden, partly to mind them of their deliverance out of Egypt, when they were forced through haste to bring away their Meal or Dough (which was the matter of this Oblation) unleavened; partly to signify what Christ would be, and what they should be, pure and free from all error in the faith and worship of God, and from all hypocrisie and malice or wickedness, all which are signified by leaven. Matth. 16. 12. Mark 8. 15. Luke 12. 1. 1 Cor. 5. 8. Gal. 5. 9. m Either 1. because it hath the same effect with leaven in Paste or Dough, making it sower, and swelling. Or 2. in opposition to the Sacrifices of the Gentiles, in which the use of Honey was most frequent. Or 3. to teach us, that God's worship is not to be governed by mens fancies and appetites, to which Honey might have been grateful, but by God's will. The Jews conceive, that under the name of Honey all sweet Fruits, as Figs, Dates, &c. are contained and forbidden.

12 As for the oblation † of the first-fruits, ye shall offer them n unto the LORD; but they shall not † be burnt o on the altar for a sweet savour.

† Or, of the first of the first fruits.

n Or, The offering, or, For the offering of the first-fruits you shall or can may offer them, or either of these, to wit, Leaven or Honey, which were

Exod. 23. 20,

were offered and accepted in that case, Levit. 23. 17. 2 Chron. 31. 5.
o But reserved for the Priests, Numb. 18. 13. Deut. 18. 4.

* Mar. 9. 49. 13 And every oblation of thy meat-offering * shalt thou season with salt p; neither shalt thou suffer the salt of the covenant of thy God q to be lacking from thy meat-offering: with all thine offerings r thou shalt offer salt.

p Either 1. for the decency and conveniency of the Feast, which God would have here represented. Or 2. for the signification of that in corruption of mind, and sincerity of grace, which in Scripture is signified by Salt, Mark 9. 49. Col. 4. 6. and which is necessary in all them that would offer an acceptable Offering to God. Or 3. in testimony of that communion which they had with God in these exercises of his Worship; Salt being the great symbol of friendship in all Nations and Ages. q So Salt is called, either 1. because it fitly represented the durableness and perpetuity of God's Covenant with them, which is designed by salt, Num. 18. 19. 2 Chron. 13. 5. Or 2. because it was so particularly and rigorously required as a condition of their Covenant with God; this being made absolutely necessary in all their Offerings, as it follows; and as the neglect of Sacrifices was a breach of covenant on their part, so also was the neglect of Salt in their Sacrifices. r Not these only, but all other, as appears from Ezek. 43. 24. Mark 9. 49.

14 And if thou offer a meat-offering of thy first-fruits s unto the LORD, thou shalt offer for the meat-offering of thy first-fruits, green ears of corn dried by the fire, even corn beaten out of full ears.

s To wit, of thine own free-will; for there were other First-fruits, and that of several sorts, which were prescribed, and the time, quality and proportion of them appointed by God. See Levit. 23. 10.

15 And thou shalt put oil upon it, and lay frankincense thereon; it is a meat-offering.

16 And the Priest shall burn the memorial of it, part of the beaten corn thereof, and part of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

CHAP. III.

Concerning thank offerings; of bullocks, male or female, without blemish; the manner of this oblation, 1——5. Of small cattle, male or female, without blemish; a lamb, 6——12. A goat, 13——16. All fat the Lord's; the fat and blood not to be eat. 17.

AND if his oblation be a sacrifice of peace-offering a, if he offer it of the herd, whether it be a male or female b, he shall offer it without blemish before the LORD.

a Which was an Offering for peace and prosperity, and the favour and blessing of God, either 1. obtained; and so this was a Thank-offering, as Levit 7. 12, 16. or 2. desired; and so it was a kind of supplication to God, as Judges 20. 26. 1 Chron. 21. 26. b Which were allowed here, tho not in Burnt-offerings, because those principally respected the honour of God, who is to be served with the best; but the Peace-offerings did primarily respect the benefit of the Offerer, and therefore the choice was left to himself.

* Exod. 29. 10. 2 And * he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it at the door of the Tabernacle of the congregation c: and Aarons sons the Priests shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

c Not on the North-side of the Altar, where the Burnt offering was killed, Lev. 1. 11. as also the Sin-offering, and the Trespass-offering, Levit. 6. 25. and 7. 2. but in the very entrance of the Court where the Brazen Altar stood, which place was not so Holy as the other; as appears both because it was more remote from the Holy of Holies, and because the Ashes of the Sacrifices were to be laid here. And the reason of this difference is not obscure, both because part of this Sacrifice was to be waved by the Hands of the Offerer, Levit. 7. 30. who might not come into the Court; and because this Offering was not so Holy as the other, which were to be eaten only by the Priest, when part of these were eaten by the Offerer.

3 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace-offering, an offering made by fire unto the LORD, * Exod. 29. 13, 22. † Or, fat. * the † fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

† Or, mid-riff over the liver, and over the kidneys. 4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks: and the † caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

5 And Aarons sons shall burn it on the altar upon the burnt sacrifice d, which is upon the wood that is on the fire: it is an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the LORD.

d Either 1. Upon the remainders of it, which yet were burning; or rather 2. After it; for the daily Burnt-offering was first to be offered, both as more eminently respecting God's Honour, which ought to be preferred before all things; and as the most solemn and stated Sacrifice, which should take place of all voluntary and occasional Oblations, and as a Sacrifice of an higher nature and use, being for Expiation and Atonement, without which no Peace could be obtained, nor Peace-offering offered with acceptance.

6 ¶ And if his offering for a sacrifice of peace-offering unto the LORD, be of the flock, male or female, he shall offer it without blemish.

7 If he offer a lamb for his offering, then shall he offer it before the LORD.

8 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aarons sons shall sprinkle the blood thereof, round about upon the altar.

9 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace-offering, an offering made by fire unto the LORD, the fat thereof and the whole rump e, it shall he take off hard by the back-bone: and the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards.

e Which in Sheep is fat, and sweet, and in these parts was very much larger and better than ours, as is agreed both by ancient and modern Writers, and therefore was fitly offered to God.

10 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver with the kidneys, it shall he take away;

11 And the priest shall burn f it upon the altar: it is † the food g of the offering made by fire unto the † Heb. bread LORD.

f (i.e.) The parts now mentioned, and for the rest, they fell to the Priest, Levit. 7. 31. g (i.e.) The fewel of the Fire, or the matter of the Offering. It is called food, Heb. bread, to note God's acceptance of it, and delight in it, as Men delight in their food. Chap. 21. 6.

12 ¶ And if his offering be a goat, then he shall offer it before the LORD;

13 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of it, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle the blood thereof upon the altar round about.

14 And he shall offer thereof his offering, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD, the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards.

15 And the two kidneys and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

16 And the priest shall burn them g upon the altar: it is the † food of the offering made by fire for a sweet † Heb. bread savour. All the fat h is the LORD's.

g The Parts mentioned, among which the Tail is not one, as it was in the Sheep, because that in Goats is a refuse Part. h This is to be limited, 1. To those Beasts, which were offered or might be offered in Sacrifice, as it is explained and restrained, Levit. 7. 23, 25. 2. To that kind of fat which is here abovementioned, and required to be offered, which was separated, or easily separable from the flesh; for the fat which was here and there mixed with the flesh they might eat, Deut. 32. 14. Neh. 8. 10.

17 It shall be a perpetual statute for your generations, throughout all your dwellings i, that ye eat neither * Gen. 32. fat k, nor * blood l.

i Not only at or near the Tabernacle, nor only of those Beasts which you actually Sacrifice, but also in your several dwellings, and of all that kind of Beasts. k This was forbidden, 1. To preserve the Reverence of the Holy Rites and Sacrifices. 2. That they might be taught hereby to acknowledge God as their Lord, and the Lord of all the Creatures, who might reserve what he pleased to himself. 3. To exercise them in Obedience to God, and Self-denial, and Mortification of their Appetites, even in those things which probably many of them would much desire. l This was forbidden partly to maintain Reverence to God and his Worship; partly out of opposition to Idolaters, who used to drink the Blood of their Sacrifices; partly with respect unto Christ's Blood, thereby manifestly signified; and partly for moral admonition about avoiding cruelty, &c.

CHAP. IV.

Of sins of errour or infirmity, and their sacrifice, 1, 2. committed by the high-priest; so the guilt of the people; he must offer a perfect young bullock, and sprinkle the blood seven times before the vail of the holy place, and upon the horns of the incense altar, 3——12. or by the whole congregation, when their sins is known, the eldest of the congregation to lay his hand on the head of the offering to be offered in the same manner with that of the high-priest, 13——21. Or by a prince and ruler, he when his sins is made known to him, must offer a he-goat, 22——26. Or by a private person, must offer a he-goat, 27——35. the sin is forgiven him.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, * If a * Num. 15. 24. soul shall sin a through ignorance b against any of the commandments of the LORD (concerning things which † ought not to be done) c and shall do against any † Heb. one of them d:

a This must necessarily be understood of more than common Sins, and daily Infirmities; for if every such Sin had required an Offering, it had not been possible either for most Sinners to bear such a Charge, or for the Altar to receive so many Sacrifices, or for the Priests to manage so infinite a work. And for ordinary Sins, they were ceremonially expiated by the daily Offering, and by that on the great day of Atonement, Levit. 16. 30. b Or, errour, either not knowing his Fact to be sinful, as appears by comparing verse 13, 14. or not considering it, but rashly and unadvisedly falling into Sin through the Power of some sudden Passion or Temptation, as the Hebrew word signifies, Psal. 119. 67. Compare Job 19. 4. Psal. 19. 13. c The words may be thus rendred, in or about every, or any of the commandments of the Lord which should not be done; or, which concern things that should not be done, to wit, in any negative commands. And there is great reason why a Sacrifice should be more necessary for these, than for other Sins, because affirmative precepts do not so strictly and constantly bind Men as the negative do; and if a Man through ignorance have neglected them, he may yet recover his errour, and fulfil them. d Then he shall offer according to his quality, which is here to be understood out of the following verses.

3 If the priest that is anointed e, do sin f according to the sin of the people g, then let him bring for his sin which he hath sinned, * a young bullock h without blemish unto the LORD for a sin-offering i. Chap. 9.

e (i.e.) The High-priest, who only was anointed after the first time. See Exod. 29. 7. and 30. 30. and 40. 15. Levit. 10. 7. Numb. 3. 3. His anointing is mentioned, because he was not compleat High-priest till he was anointed. f Either in Doctrine or Practise, which it is here supposed he may do. And this is noted as a blot and character of imperfection in the Priesthood of the Law, whereby the Israelites were directed to expect another and better High-priest, even one who is holy, harmless, and separate from sinners, Heb. 7. 26. g In the same manner as any of the people do; which implies that God expected more circumspection and care from him, than from the people. But the words may be rendred, to the sin or guilt of the people, which may be mentioned as a reason of the Law, and an aggravation of his Sin, that by it he commonly brings Sin, and Guilt, and Punishment upon the people, who are infected or scandalized by his example. h The same Sacrifice which was offered for all the people, to shew how much his Sin was aggravated by his quality. i Heb. sin, which word is oft taken in that sense, as Exod. 29. 14.

4 And he shall bring the bullock unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD, and shall lay his hand upon the bullocks head k, and kill the bullock l, before the LORD.

k To testify both his acknowledgment of his Sin, and his Faith in God's promise for the expiation of his Sins through Christ, whom that Sacrifice typified. l To wit, by one of the Priests, whom he shall cause to do it; for this Priest is distinguished from the anointed Priest, verse 5.

5 And the priest that is anointed shall take of the bullocks blood, and bring it to the tabernacle of the congregation l.

l Into the Tabernacle; which was not required nor allowed in any other Sacrifice, possibly to shew the greatness of the High-priests Sin, which needed more than ordinary diligence in him, and favour from God to expiate it.

6 And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle of the blood seven times m before the LORD, before the vail o of the sanctuary.

m A number much used in Scripture, as a number of perfection; and here prescribed, either to shew that his Sins needed more than ordinary Purgation, and more frequent and manifest exercises of his Faith and Repentance, both which Graces he was obliged to joyn with that Ceremonial Rite. To wit, the second Vail dividing between the Holy of Holies, which is generally called by the name here used, as Exod. 26. 31, &c. and 35. 12. and 40. 3, 21. Numb. 4. 5.

7 And the priest shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense before the LORD, which n is in the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall pour all the blood o of the bullock at the bottom of the altar of the burnt-offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

n Which Altar; for the Altar of Burnt-offerings was without the Tabernacle. o So also below, verse 18, 30, 34. to wit, all the rest, as it is expressed Lev. 5. 9. for part was disposed elsewhere.

8 And he shall take off from it all the fat of the bullock for the sin-offering: the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards,

9 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away,

Chap. 3. 10 * As it was taken off from the bullock of the sacrifice of peace-offerings: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar of the burnt-offering.

Exod. 22. 4. Num. 5. 5. 11 * And the skin of the bullock, and all his flesh, with his head and with his legs, and his inwards and his dung.

12 Even the whole bullock p shall he carry forth q Heb. to † without the camp r, unto a clean place, where the without the camp. ashes are poured out s, and burn him on the wood Heb. as the pouring out of the fat. with fire: † where the ashes are poured out, shall he be burnt.

p So no part of this was to be eaten by the Priests, as it was in other Sin-offerings, Levit. 6. 26. The reason is plain, because the Offerer might not eat of his own Sin-offering, and the Priest was the Offerer in this case, as also in the Sin-offering for the whole Congregation below, verse 21. of which the Priest himself was a Member. q Not himself, which would have desired him, but by another whom he shall appoint for that work, as may be gathered from Levit. 16. 27, 28. r To signify either, 1. The horrible and abominable nature of Sin, especially in high and holy persons, or when it overspreads a whole people. Or 2. The removing of the guilt and punishment of that Sin from the people, and their duty of keeping such wickedness out of the Camp for time to come. Or 3. That Christ should suffer without the Camp or Gate, as he did. See Heb. 13. 11, 12. s For the Ashes, though at first they were thrown down near the Altar, Levit. 1. 16. yet afterwards they, together with the filth of the Sacrifices, were carried into a certain place without the Camp. See Lev. 6. 10, 11.

13 ¶ And if the whole congregation of Israel t sin through ignorance, * and the thing be hid from the * Chap. 5. 2. eyes of the assembly, and they have done somewhat 3, 4. against any of the commandments of the LORD, concerning things which should not be done, and are guilty:

* The body of the people, or the greater part of them, their Rulers concurring with them.

14 When the sin which they have sinned against it † is known, then the congregation shall offer a young bullock u for the sin, and bring him before the tabernacle of the congregation.

† Against any sort of the said Commandments. u But if the Sin of the Congregation was only the omission of some Ceremonial Duty, a Kid of the Goats was to be offered, Numb. 15. 24.

15 And the elders of the congregation x shall lay their hands upon the head of the bullock before the LORD: and the bullock shall be killed before the LORD.

x (i.e.) The Rulers of the people, of whom see Exod. 3. 16. and 24. 1. who here acted in the name of all the people, who could not possibly perform this act in their own persons.

16 And the priest that is anointed shall bring of the bullocks blood to the tabernacle of the congregation.

17 And the priest shall dip his finger in some of the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD, even before the vail.

18 And he shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar, which is before the LORD y, that is in the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall pour out all the blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

y That is, before the Holy of Holies, where the Lord was in a more special manner present; namely the Altar of Incense, as before verse 7.

19 And he shall take all his fat from him, and burn it upon the altar.

20 And he shall do with the bullock as he did * with * Ver. 3. the bullock for a sin-offering z, so shall he do with this: and the priest shall make an atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.

z To wit, for the Priest's Sin-offering, called the first bullock, verse 21.

21 And he shall carry forth the bullock without the camp, and burn him as he burned the first bullock: it is a sin-offering for the congregation.

22 ¶ When a ruler a hath sinned, and done somewhat through ignorance b against any of the commandments of the LORD his God, concerning things which should not be done, and is guilty:

a To wit, of the People, or a civil Magistrate. b Either not knowing it to be Sin, or not observing and considering it till it be done. See before on verse 2.

23 * Or c if his sin wherein he hath sinned, come * Or, And. to his knowledge, he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a male without blemish.

c The disjunctive, or, is here put for the copulative, and, as it is 1 Cor. 12. 13. and 13. 8. and 15. 11. For it is evident, that he speaks of the same Person, and of the same Sin.

24 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the goat, and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt-offering d before the LORD: it is a sin-offering e.

d So called by way of eminency, to wit, the daily Burnt-offering, of which Exod. 29. 38. of which place see Levit. 1. 11. e And therefore to be killed where the Burnt-offering is killed, as is expressed Lev. 6. 25. and 7. 2. Whereby it is distinguished from the Peace-offerings, which were killed elsewhere, Lev. 3. 2.

25 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out his blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering.

26 And he shall burn all his fat upon the altar, as * the fat of the sacrifice of peace-offerings: and the * Chap. 35.

Priest shall make an atonement for him, as concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him f.

f Both ceremonially and judicially, as to all ecclesiastical censures or civil punishments; and really, upon condition of their repentance and faith in the Messias to come.

*Num. 15. 27. † Heb. any soul. * Or, people of the land.

27 ¶ And * if † any one of the * common people g sin through ignorance, while he doth somewhat against any one of the commandments of the LORD, concerning things which ought not to be done, and be guilty:

g Whether Israelites, or strangers embodied with them and proselites; for both were under one and the same law, Exod. 12. 49. Numb. 15. 16.

* Or, And.

28 * Or if his sin which he hath sinned come to his knowledge; then he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a female h without blemish, for his sin which he hath sinned.

h Which here was sufficient, because the sin of one of those was less than the sin of the Ruler, for whom a male was required, verf. 21.

29 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and slay the sin-offering in the place of the burnt-offering.

30 And the Priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

* Lev. 3. 14. * Chap. 3. Exod. 29 18.

31 And * he shall take away all the fat thereof, * as the fat is taken away from off the sacrifice of peace-offerings: and the Priest shall burn it upon the altar, for a * sweet savour unto the LORD; and the Priest shall make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

32 And if he bring a lamb for a sin-offering, he shall bring it a female without blemish.

33 And he i shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and slay it for a sin-offering in the place where they kill the burnt-offering.

i To wit, the Offerer. k Not by himself, but by the hands of the Priest.

34 And the Priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

35 And he shall take away all the fat thereof, as the fat of the lamb is taken away from the sacrifice of the peace-offerings: and the Priests shall burn them l upon the altar, according to the offerings made by fire m unto the LORD; and the Priest shall make an atonement for his sin that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

l (i. e.) The fat; but he useth the plural number, because the fat was of several kinds, as we saw verse 8, 9. m Heb. upon the Offerings, together with them, or after them; because the Burnt-offerings were to have the first place. See on Chap. 3. 5.

CHAP. V.

If a man heard or knew of blasphemy, and concealed it, he must atone it, 1. Or if he touch any unclean thing, and it made sensible of it; or have sworn rashly, he is guilty, must confess it, and offer a lamb or goat, female; in case of poverty, two turtle doves, or two young pigeons, one for a sin, and one for a burnt-offering, 2——10. But if this were too much, the tenth part of an ephah of fine flower, without oil or frankincense, 11,——13. He that purloineth holy things must offer a ram, and the worth in silver, shekel according to the weight of the sanctuary, 14——16. Sins of ignorance again mention'd, and a perfect ram, with the estimation, for a sin-offering, 17 —— 19.

† Or, adjuration.

AND if a soul sin, and a hear the voice of † swearing b, and is a witness, whether he hath seen * or known c of it; if he do not utter it, then he shall bear his iniquity d.

a And, for that it, as that Particle is often used, as Gen. 13. 15. 1 Chron. 21. 12. compared with 2 Sam. 24. 13. For this declares in particular what the sin was. b Either 1. of adjuration upon oath, when the Judge adjures a Witness to speak the whole truth; of which see Matth. 26. 63. But this seems too much to narrow the sense; and this and the other Laws, both before and after it, speak of private sins committed through ignorance. Or 2. of false swearing before a Judge. But that is expressly forbidden Lev. 6. 3. Or rather 3. of cursing, or blasphemy, or execration, as the word commonly signifies, and that either 1. against ones Neighbour, as 2 Sam. 16. 7. or 2. against God, as Levit. 24. 10, 11. which may seem to be principally intended here, because the Crime here spoken of is of so high a nature, that he who heard it, was obliged to reveal it, and prosecute the guilty. And though God be not here mentioned, yet the general word is here to be understood of the most famous particular, as it is frequently in all Authors, of which there are many instances. * Being present when it was said. c By sufficient information from others. d (i. e.) The punishment of it; as that word is oft used, as Gen. 19. 15. Numb. 18. 1. See of this Phrase Levit. 17. 16. and 20. 20. Isa. 53. 11.

2 Or * if a soul touch any unclean thing e, whether it be a carkass of an unclean beast, or a carkass of unclean cattle, or the carkass of unclean creeping things, and if it be hidden from him f, he also shall be unclean, and guilty g: e To wit, ceremonially. Of which see more fully, chap. 11. 24, &c. and Deut. 14. f If he do it unwittingly, yet that would not excuse him, because he should have been more diligent and circumspect to avoid all unclean things. Hereby God designed to awaken men to watchfulness against, and repentance for, their unknown, or unobserved sins. See Psal. 19. 12. 1 John 3. 20. g Not morally, for the Conscience was not directly polluted by these things, Matth. 15. 11, 18. but ceremonially.

* Or, it

3 Or if he touch the * uncleanness of man, whatsoever uncleanness it be that a man shall be defiled withal, and it be hid from him, when he knoweth of it, then he shall be guilty i.

* Or, any and of it

h As soon as he knoweth it, he must not delay to make his peace with God. And though it was sin before, though not known, yet the knowledge of it made it worse, and therefore required the more speedy repentance. i Not only ceremonially by that touch, but morally for his violation and contempt of God's Authority and Command.

4 Or if a soul swear k, pronouncing with his lips to do evil l, or * to do good m, whatsoever it be that a man shall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him n; when he knoweth of it o, then he shall be guilty in one of these p.

* Psal. 18.

k To wit, rashly, without consideration either of God's Law, or his own power or right, as David did, 1 Sam. 25. 22. l Either 1. to himself, to wit, to punish himself, either in his Body, or Estate, or something else which is dear to him. Or rather 2. to his Neighbour, as 1 Sam. 25. 22. Acts 23. 12. m To wit, to his Neighbour, as Mark 6. 23. when a man either may not, or cannot do it, which may frequently happen. n (i. e.) He did not know, or not consider, that what he swore to do, was or would be impossible, or unlawful. o When he discovers it to be so, either by his own consideration, or by information from others. p Either in the good or evil which he swore to do.

5 And it shall be when he shall be guilty in one of these things q, that he shall confess r that he hath sinned in that thing.

q In one of the three forementioned cases, either by sinful silence and compliance with others in their sin, verse 1. or by an unclean touch, as ver. 2, 3. or by rash swearing, ver. 4. r Before the Lord in the place of publick worship. And this confession is not to be restrained to the present case, but by a parity of reason, and comparing of other Scriptures, to be extended to other Sacrifices for sin, to which this was a constant companion; and as it were signified by the guilty person's laying his hand upon his Offering, so it is probable it was expressed in words. See Numb. 5. 6, 7.

6 And he shall bring his trespass-offering † unto the LORD for his sin which he hath sinned, a female s from the flock, a lamb or kid of the goats, for a sin-offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his sin.

† Quest. How comes confession and a sacrifice to be necessary for him that touched an unclean thing, when such persons were cleansed with simple washing, as appears from Levit. 11. and Numb. 19? Answ. This place speaks of him that being so unclean did come into the Tabernacle, as may be gathered by comparing this place with Numb. 19. 13. which if any man did, knowing himself to be unclean, which was the case there, he was to be cut off for it; and if he did it ignorantly, which is the case here, ver. 2. he was upon discovery of it to offer this Sacrifice. Interpreters dispute much what the difference is between sins and trespasses, and between sin offerings and trespass-offerings. Some make the one for omissions, the other for commissions; the one for greater, the other for lesser sins; the one for known sins, the other for sins of ignorance; in all which there seems to be more curiosity than solidity. Either they seem to be the same, as may be gathered from ver. 6. where those two words, asham, and chata, which they so carefully and critically distinguish, are both used concerning the Trespass-offerings, and from ver. 9. or the difference may be this, that sin-offerings were more indefinite or general, being for any particular sin; and trespass-offerings more restrained and particular for such sins as were more scandalous and injurious either to God by blasphemy, as ver. 1. or to his Sanctuary, by approaching to it in one's uncleanness, ver. 2, 3. as hath been now said; or to one's Neighbour, by swearing to do to them either the good which we afterwards cannot or do not, or the evil which we should not; or to the Priests and holy things of God, ver. 15. s Because those sins were less than others, as being committed ignorantly or unwittingly, and therefore God would accept a meaner Sacrifice for them.

7 And * if † he be not t able to bring a lamb, then he shall bring for his trespass which he hath committed, two turtle doves, or two young pigeons u unto the LORD; one for a sin-offering x, and the other for a burnt-offering.

* Chap. 12. 8. † Heb. his hand is not reaching to the t Through poverty, as ver. 11. and 25, 26. And this exception was allowed also in other Sin-offerings. u Of which see Levit. 1. Numb. 14. x Which was for that particular sin, and therefore is offered first before the Burnt-offering, which was for sins in general; to teach us not to rest in general confessions and repentances for sin, as Hypocrites commonly do, but distinctly and particularly, as far as we can, to search out, and confess, and loath, and leave our particular sins, -sins, without which God will not accept our other religious Services. Note that the Burnt-offering was for the expiation of sin, as well as the Sin-offering, Lev. 1. 4. only that was for sin in general, and this for particular sins.

8 And he shall bring them unto the Priest, who shall offer that which is for the sin-offering first, and * wring off his head from his neck, but shall not divide it asunder.

* Chap. 1. 15.

9 And he shall sprinkle of the blood of the sin-offering upon the side of the altar, and the rest of the blood shall be wrung out at the bottom of the altar: it is a sin-offering y.

y This is added, as the reason why its blood was so sprinked and spilt. See Lev. 4. 7, 18, 30, 34.

10 And he shall offer the second for a burnt-offering, according to the † * manner z: and the Priest shall make an atonement for him a for his sin which he had sinned, and it shall be forgiven him.

Or, ordinance. Chap. 1. 4.

z Or order appointed by God. a Either declaratively, he shall pronounce him to be pardoned; or typically, with respect to Christ.

11 ¶ But if he be not able to bring two turtle doves, or two young pigeons, then he that sinned shall bring for his offering the tenth part of an ephah b of fine flour for a sin-offering: he shall put no oil upon it, neither shall he put any frankincense thereon c: for it is a sin-offering.

b About a pottle of our measure. See Exod. 16. 36. c Either to distinguish these from the Meat-offerings, Lev. 2. 1. or as a fit expression of their true sorrow for their sins, in the sense whereof they were to abstain from things pleasant and delightful. See Num. 5. 15. or to signify that by his sins he deserved to be utterly deprived both of the oil of gladness, the gifts, graces and comforts of the Holy Ghost; and of God's gracious acceptance of his Prayers and Sacrifices, which is signified by Incense, Psal. 141. 2. or to teach them how evil a thing sin was, how hateful to God, and how uncomfortable to themselves.

12 Then shall he bring it to the Priest, and the Priest shall take his handful of it, * even a memorial thereof, and burn it on the altar, * according to the offerings made by fire unto the LORD: it is a sin-offering.

Chap. 2. Chap. 4. 5.

13 And the Priest shall make an atonement for him as touching his sin that he hath sinned in one of these, and it shall be forgiven him: and the remnant shall be the priests, as a meat-offering d.

d As it was in the Meat-offering, where all, except one handful, fell to the share of the Priests. See Lev. 2. 3. and 7. 9. And this is the rather mentioned here, because in the foregoing Sacrifices, Levit. 4. 3, &c. 13, &c. the Priest had no part reserved for him.

14 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

15 If a soul commit a trespass e, and sin through ignorance f in the holy things of the LORD g, then he shall bring for his trespass unto the LORD, a ram h without blemish out of the flocks, with thy estimation i by shekels of silver, after the * shekel of the sanctuary * for † a trespass-offering.

Exod. 30. 13. * Heb. a trespass.

e Against the Lord and his Priests. f For if a man did it knowingly, he was to be cut off, Numb. 15. 30. g In things consecrated to God, and to holy uses; of which see Levit. 22. 2. such as Tythes and First-fruits, or any things due, or devoted, or offered to God, which possibly a man might either wish-hold, or employ to some common use. See Exod. 34. 26. Deut. 12. 17, 18. and 15. 19. Jer. 2. 3. h A more chargeable Sacrifice than the former, as the sin of Sacrilege was greater. i As thou shalt esteem or rate it, thou O Priest, as appears from verf. 16, 18. and Levit. 6. 6. See also Lev. 22. 14. and 27. 2, 3. and at present, thou O Moses, Lev. 27. 3. for he as yet performed the Priest's part. And this either 1. may be referred to the ram, which was to be of such a price and worth as the Priest should appoint. Or rather 2. is an additional charge and punishment to him, which besides the ram, he was to pay for the holy thing which he had with-held or abused, so many shekels of silver as the Priest should esteem proportionable to it; which was as it were another part or branch of his Trespass-offering. * Of which see on Gen. 23. 15.

16 And he shall make amends for the harm that he hath done in the holy thing, and shall * add the fifth part k thereto, and give it unto the priest: and the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering, and it shall be forgiven him.

Chap. 22. 14. and 27. 13, 15. Num. 5. 7.

k So much they were to add to holy things redeemed, Levit. 27. 13, 15, 19.

17 ¶ And if a * soul sin and commit any of these things l which are forbidden to be done by the commandments of the LORD, though he wist it not m, yet is he guilty, and shall bear his iniquity.

Chap. 4. Numb. 5.

l To wit, concerning holy things, of which he is yet speaking, though with some difference and addition as it may seem. The former Law concerns the alienation of holy things from the sacred to a common use; and this may concern other miscarriages about holy things, and holy duties, as may be gathered from ver. 19. where this is said to be a trespass against the Lord, not in a general sense, for so every sin was; but in a proper and peculiar sense. m For if he did it knowingly, he must die, Numb. 15. 30.

18 And he shall bring a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass-offering unto the priest: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, concerning his ignorance wherein he erred, and wist it not; and it shall be forgiven him.

19 It is a trespass-offering: he hath certainly trespassed against the LORD.

CHAP. VI.

Trespass-offerings for sins of deceit, or violence, and perjury; restoration must be made, and a ram offered, 1——17. The lawful manner of this burnt-offering further declared; the fire to be ever burning upon the altar, 8——13. Of meat-offerings for a memorial unto the Lord, and every one that toucheth them is holy, 14——18. Meat-offerings for the consecration of Aaron and his sons, 19——23. Of the sin-offering, 24——30.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 If a soul sin and commit a trespass against the LORD a, and lie unto his neighbour in that which was delivered him to keep b, or in * † fellowship c, or in a thing taken away by violence d, or hath deceived his neighbour e:

* Or, in dealing. † Heb. putting of the hand.

a This sin, though directly committed against Man only, is here emphatically said to be done against the Lord, not only in general, for so every sin against Man is also against the Lord, whose Image in Man is thereby injured, and whose Law, which obligeth us to Love, and Fidelity, and Justice to other Men, is thereby violated; but in a more special sense, because this was a violation of humane Society, whereof God is the Author, and President, and Defender. See Numb. 5. 6. and because it was a secret sin, of which God alone was the Witness and Judge. See Acts 5. 4. and because God's Name was abused in it by Perjury, verse 3. b To wit, in trust. c Heb. Or in putting of the hand. Which may be either, 1. Another expression of the same thing immediately going before, which is very frequent in Scripture; and so the sense is, When one Man puts any thing into another Man's Hand to keep for him; and when he requires it, to restore it to him. Or, 2. A distinct branch, which seems more probable, and so it belongs to commerce or fellowship in Trading, which is very usual when one Man puts any thing into another's Hand, not to keep it, as in the foregoing Word or Member, but to use and improve it for the common benefit of them both, in which cases of Partnership it is easie for one to deceive the other, and therefore provision is here made against it. And this is called a putting of the hand, because such Agreements and Associations used to be confirmed by giving or joyning their Hands together, Jer. 50. 15. Gal. 2. 9. Compare Exod. 23. 1. d To wit, secretly; for he seems to speak here of such sins as could not be proved by Witness. e Got any thing from him by Calumny, or Fraud, or Circumvention; for so the word signifies.

3 Or have found that which was lost, and lieth concerning it, and * sweareth falsly f: in any of all these that a man doeth, sinning therein:

* Numb. 5. 6.

f His Oath being required, seeing there was no other way of discovery left.

4 Then it shall be, because he hath sinned, and is guilty g, that he shall restore that which he took violently away, or the thing which he hath deceitfully gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found:

g This Guilt of his being manifested, either by his refusing to swear when called to it, as in some of the cases alledged; or by his voluntary confession upon remorse, whereby he reapeth this benefit, that he only restores the principal with the addition of a fifth part; whereas if he were convicted of his fault, he was to pay double, Exod. 22. 9.

5 Or all that about which he hath sworn falsly, he shall even * restore it in the principal, and shall add the fifth part more thereto, and give it unto him to whom it appertaineth, * † in the day of his trespass-offering h.

Chap. 5. 16. * Or, in the day of his being found guilty. † Heb. the day of his trespass.

h It must not be delayed, but restitution to Man must accompany repentance towards God. Compare Matth. 5. 23.

6 And he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the LORD, a ram without blemish out of the * flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass-offering unto the priest.

* Chap. 5. 15.

7 And the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD: and it shall be forgiven him, for any thing of all that he hath done, in trespassing therein.

8 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

9 Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the burnt-offering k: (it is the burnt-offering, † because of the burning upon the altar all night unto the morning l, and the fire of the altar shall be burning in it.)

i Hitherto he hath prescribed the Sacrifices themselves; now he comes to the manner of them. k To wit, of the daily one, of which Exod. 29. 38. Numb. 28. 3. as the following words shew. l The meaning is, the evening Burnt-offering was to be so managed and laid on piece after piece, that the fire might be constantly maintained by it. It is to be understood, that the morning Burnt-offerings were to be kept burning all the day from morning to night also; but he mentions not that, because there was so great a number, and such a constant succession of Sacrifices in the day-time, that there needed no Law for feeding and keeping in the fire then; the only danger was for the night, when other Sacrifices were not offered, but only the evening Burnt-offering, which if it had been consumed quickly, as the morning Burnt-offering was, there had been danger of the going out of that fire, which they were commanded diligently and constantly to keep in and maintain here below, verse 13.

10 And the priest shall put on his linen garment m, and his linen breeches shall he put upon his flesh, and take up the ashes which the fire hath consumed n with the burnt-offering on the altar, and he shall put them besides the altar.

m (i.e.) His linen Coat, of which see Exod. 28. 39, 40. n The ashes are said to be consumed improperly, when the wood is consumed into ashes; as meal is said to be ground, Isa. 47. 2. when the Corn is ground into Meal; and the naked to be stripped of their cloathing, Job 22. 6. when by being stripped they are made naked.

11 And he shall put off his garments, and put on other garments o, and carry forth the ashes without the camp, unto a clean place p.

o Because this was no sacred, but a common work. p Where no dung or filth was laid. See Levit. 4. 12. and compare Levit. 14. 40, 41.

12 And the fire upon the altar shall be burning in it: it shall not be put out q; and the priest shall burn wood on it every morning r, and lay the burnt-offering in order upon it, and he shall burn thereon s * the fat of the peace-offerings.

* Chap. 3. 3, 9, 14.

q The fire coming down from Heaven, Levit. 9. 24. was to be perpetually preserved, and not suffered to go out, partly that there might be no occasion nor temptation to offer strange fire, nor to mingle their inventions with God's appointments; and partly to teach them whence they were to expect the acceptance of all their Sacrifices, even from the Divine Mercy and Grace, signified by the fire which came down from Heaven, which was an usual token of God's favourable acceptance. See the notes on Gen. 4. 4, 5. r Though the evening also be doubtless intended, as it appears from ver. 9. and from the nature of the thing; yet the morning is only mentioned, because then the Altar was cleansed, and the ashes taken away, and a new fire made. s (i.e.) Upon the Burnt-offering, which thereby would be sooner consumed, that so way might be made for other Sacrifices, which were many.

13 The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar, it shall never go out.

* Chap. 2. 1. Num. 15. 4. 14 ¶ * And this is the law of the meat-offering t: the sons of Aaron shall offer it before the LORD, before the altar.

t To wit, of that which was offered alone, and that by any of the People, not by the Priest, for then it must have been all burnt. This Law delivered, Levit. 2. is here repeated for the sake of some Additions here made to it; as it is a common practise of Law-makers, when they make additional Laws, to recite such Laws to which such Additions belong.

15 And he shall take of it his handful of the flour of the meat-offering, and of the oil thereof, and all the frankincense which is upon the meat-offering, and shall burn it upon the altar for a sweet savour, even the * Chap. 2. 2. memorial of it unto the LORD.

* Chap. 2. 3. † Heb. It shall be eaten unleavened, chap. 10. 12. 16 And the * remainder thereof shall Aaron and his sons u eat: † with unleavened bread x shall it be eaten in the holy place: in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation y they shall eat it.

u The Males only might eat these, because they were most holy things; whereas the Daughters of Aaron might eat other holy things, Numb. 18. 11. x Or rather, unleavened, for with is not in the Hebrew, and it disturbs the sense; For since the Meat-offering it self was fine flour, Levit. 2. 1. it is not likely that they eat it with unleavened bread. y In some special Room appointed for that purpose. See Levit. 8. 31. 1 Sam. 3. 3. Ezek. 42. 13. and 46. 19, 24. The reason why this was to be eaten only by holy persons, and that in an holy place, is given verse 17. because it is most holy, and therefore to be treated with greater reverence.

*Num. 18. 9, 10. 17 It z shall not be baken with leaven: * I have given it unto them for their portion of my offerings made by fire: it is * most holy, as is the sin-offering, and as * Chap. 2. 3. the trespass-offering.

z That part which remains to the Priest; for the part here offered to God seems not to have been baked at all.

18 All the males among the children of Aaron shall eat of it: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations, concerning the offering of the LORD made by fire: * every one that toucheth them shall be holy a. * Chap. 6. 18, 27.

a It may be understood either 1. Of Persons, that none should touch, on eat them, but consecrated Persons, to wit, Priests. Or this may be an additional caution, that they who eat them should be not only Priests, or their Male-children, but also holy, i. e. living no uncleanness upon them, for in that case even the Priests themselves might not touch them. Or rather 2. of things, as may be gathered by comparing this with ver. 27, 28. Whatsoever toucheth them, as supposde the Dish that receives them, the Knife, or Spoon, &c. which is used about them, those shall be taken for holy, and not employed for common uses. See Exod. 29. 37.

19 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

20 This is the offering of Aaron, and of his sons, which they shall offer unto the LORD, in the day when he is anointed b: the tenth part of an * Ephah of fine flour for a meat-offering perpetual c, half of it in the morning, and half thereof at night d. * Exod. 29. 40. Num. 28. 5.

b When any of them are anointed for High-Priest; for he only of all the Priests was to be anointed in future Ages. This Law of his Consecration was delivered before, Exod. 29. 2, 24, 25. and is here repeated because of some additions made to it. c To wit, whensoever any of them shall be so anointed. d Or, In the evening; the one to be annexed to the Morning-Sacrifice, the other to the Evening-Sacrifice, over and besides that Meat-offering which every day was to be added to the daily Morning and Evening Sacrifices, Exod. 29. 40.

21 In a pan it shall be made with oil, and when it is baken e, thou f shalt bring it in: and the baken pieces of the meat-offering shalt thou offer for a sweet savour unto the LORD.

e Or, Pried, so that it swells and bubbles up. f Who are so anointed and consecrated, verse 22.

22 And the priest of his sons * that is anointed in his stead shall offer it: it is a statute for ever unto the LORD; * it shall be wholly burnt. * Chap. 5. 12. * Exod. 29. 25.

23 For every meat-offering for the priest shall be wholly burnt: it shall not be eaten f.

f No part of it shall be eaten by the Priest, as it was when the Offering was for the People. The reason of the difference is, partly because when he offered it for the People, he was to have some recompence for his pains, which he could not expect when he offered it for himself; partly to signify the imperfection of the Levitical Priests, who could not bear their own iniquity; for the Priest's eating part of the Peoples Sacrifices did signify his typical bearing of the Peoples iniquity, as appears from Levit. 10. 17. and partly to teach the Priests and Ministers of God, that it is their duty to serve God with singleness of heart, and to be content with God's honour, though they have no present advantage by it.

24 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

25 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, saying, This is the law of the sin-offering: * in the place where the burnt-offering is killed, shall the sin-offering be killed before the LORD: it is most holy. * Chap. 3, 5. and 4. 29, 33. & 6. 25.

26 * The priest that offereth it for sin g, shall eat it: * in the holy place shall it be eaten, in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation. * Chap. 6. 26.

g For the sins of the Rulers, or of the People, or any of them, but not for the sins of the Priests; for then its blood was brought into the Tabernacle, and therefore it might not be eaten.

27 † Whatsoever shall touch the flesh thereof, shall be holy *: and when there is sprinkled of the blood thereof upon any garment h, thou shalt wash that whereon it was sprinkled in the holy place i. † Or, shall sanctify.

* Of which see the note on verse 18. h Upon the Priest's Garment; for it was he only that sprinkled it, and in so doing he might easily sprinkle his Garments. i Partly out of reverence to the blood of Sacrifices, which hereby was kept from a prophane or common touch; and partly that such Garments might be decent, and fit for sacred Administrations.

28 But the earthen vessel wherein it is sodden, * shall be broken k: and if it be sodden in a brazen pot, it shall be both scoured, and rinsed in water l. * Chap. 11. 33.

k Because being full of pores, the Liquor in which it was sodden might easily sink into it, whereby it was ceremonially holy, and therefore was broken, lest afterwards it should be abused to prophane or common uses. l And not broken, as being of considerable value, which therefore God would not have unnecessarily wasted. And this being of a more solid substance than an Earthen Vessel, was not so apt to drink in the humour.

29 All the males among the priests shall eat thereof: it is most holy.

30 * And no sin-offering m whereof any of the blood is brought into the tabernacle of the congregation to reconcile withal in the holy place shall be eaten, it shall be burnt in the fire. * Heb. 11.

m Such were the Sacrifices offered for the High-Priest, or for the whole whole Assembly, either severally, Levit. 4. 7, 18. or jointly for both, in the yearly atonement, Levit. 16. 27, 33.

CHAP. VII.

The Law of the trespass-offering, and what fell to the priests, both of this, and some other Sacrifices, 1——10. The Law of the Sacrifices of peace-offerings, of thanksgiving, 11——15. Of vows and free-will-offerings; the unclean person eating thereof, to die, 16——21. But not to be eaten; what fat might be used for other things: he that eats of the fat of the offering to die, and no blood to be eat, 22——27. Another caution concerning thank-offerings, 28——34. The conclusion of the former laws, which are repeated, 35, 38.

LIkewise * this is the law of the trespass-offering: it is most holy. * Chap. 5. 1, 6. Chap. 21.

2 In * the place where they kill the burnt-offering, shall they kill the trespass-offering; and the blood thereof shall he sprinkle round about upon the altar. * Chap. 1, 5, 11. and 4. 24. 29. 33. Exod. 29.

3 And he shall offer of it * all the fat thereof, the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, * Chap. 3, 4, 10. and 4. 9.

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them which is a by the flanks, and the caul that is above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

a Or, and that which is, &c. So this is another Fat, as may seem probable from the mention of the several parts, the Kidneys, and the flanks. For it seems preposterous after a plain and exact description of the very particular place of the Fat, the kidneys, to add another more dark and doubtful description of it from the flanks. And the Hebrew Writers, whose common practice of these things makes them the best Interpreters of it, make these divers kinds or parts of Fat. And so there is only an Ellipsis of the Conjunction copulative, which is Psal. 133. 3. and in many other places, as hath been already shewed.

5 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar, for an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a trespass-offering.

Num. 18. 8, 10. 6 * Every male b among the priests shall eat thereof: it shall be eaten in the holy place: it is most holy.

b Supposing him not to have any uncleanness upon him, verse 20. or other impediment.

Chap. 6. 26. 7 As the sin-offering is, so is * the trespass-offering c: there is one law for them: the priest that maketh atonement therewith shall have it d.

c To wit, in the matter here following, for in other things they differed. d (i.e.) By a Synecdoche; that part of it, which was by God allowed to the Priest. See Levit. 6. 26.

8 And the priest that offereth any mans burnt-offering, even the priest shall have to himself the skin of the burnt-offering which he hath offered.

Chap. 2. 5, 10. Or, in the fat pan, or fire. 9 And all * the meat-offering e that is baken in the oven, and all that is dressed in the frying-pan, and † in the pan, shall be the priests that offereth it f.

e Except the part reserved by God, Levit. 2. 2, 9. f Because these were ready dresst and hot, and not to be presently eaten; and because the Priest, who offered it, was in reason to expect, and have something more than his Brethren who laboured not about it; and that he had only in this Offering, for the other were equally distributed.

10 And every meat-offering mingled with oil, and dry g, shall all the sons of Aaron have, one as much as another h.

g Without Oil, or Drink-offering, as those Levit. 5. 11. Numb. 5. 15. h The sense may be either 1. That every Priest shall have equal right to this, when the course of his ministration comes. But then there was no reason to make so great an alteration of the phrase, nor to make any distinction of the differing kinds of Meat-offerings, if in both they were to be the Priests that offered them, as is expressed verse 9. and here, as they say, intended. Or rather 2. That these were to be equally divided among all the Priests. And there was manifest reason for this difference, because these were in greater quantity than the former; and being raw, might more easily and commodiously be divided and reserved for the several Priests to dress it in that way which each of them best liked.

Chap. 3. 22. 18. 11 And * this is the law of the sacrifice of peace-offerings which he shall offer unto the LORD.

12 If he offer it for a thanksgiving i, then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes mingled with oil, and unleavened wafers anointed with oil, and cakes mingled with oil, of fine flour fryed.

i For mercies received. See Levit. 22. 29. 2 Chron. 29. 31. and 33. 16.

13 Besides the cakes, he shall offer for his offering leavened bread k, with the sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace-offering l.

k Partly because this was a sacrifice of another kind than those in which leaven was forbidden, this being a Sacrifice of Thanksgiving for God's blessings, among which leavened bread was one; partly to shew that leaven was not so strictly forbidden in other Sacrifices, as if it were evil in it self, but to teach us wholly to rest in the will of God in all his appointments, without too scrupulous an enquiry into the particular reasons of them. Obj. Leaven was universally forbidden, Lev. 2. 11. Anſ. 1. That prohibition concerned only things offered and burnt upon the Altar, which this bread was not, but it was offered only towards the Priest's food. 2. That was another kind of Sacrifice, and therefore it is no wonder if it had other Rites. 3. That Leaven was not universally forbidden, appears from Levit. 23. 17. l Or, With the sacrifice of thanksgiving for his peace or prosperity.

14 And of it m he shall offer one out of the whole oblation for an heave-offering n unto the LORD, and it shall be the priests that sprinkleth the blood of the peace-offerings.

m Of it, (i.e.) Either of the Loaves of leavened bread mentioned verse 13. or of the Offering, one of each part of the whole oblation, as it follows: it being most probable and agreeable to the Rules and Laws laid down before and afterward, that the Priest should have a share in the unleavened Cakes and Wafers, as well as in the leavened Bread. n Concerning the Heave-offerings, see Exod. 29. 24, 28.

15 And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings for thanksgiving shall be eaten n the same day that it is offered: he shall not leave any of it until the morning.

n By the Priests and Officers, Levit. 22. 30.

16 But * if the sacrifice of his peace-offering be a vow o, or a voluntary offering p, it shall be eaten the same day that he offereth his sacrifice; and on the morrow also the remainder of it shall be eaten q. * Chap. 19. 5, 6.

o Offered in performance of a Vow, the man having desired some special favour from God, and vowed the Sacrifice to God if he would grant it. p Which a man freely offered to God, in testimony of his faith and love to God, without any particular injunction from God, or design of his own special advantage thereby. See Levit. 22. 23. Ezek. 46. 12. q Which was not allowed for the Thank-offering. The reason of which difference is to be fetched only from God's good pleasure and will, to which he expects our obedience, though we discern not the reason of his appointments.

17 But the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day, shall be burnt with fire r.

r That it might neither putrefy, and thereby be exposed to contempt; nor yet be reserved either for superstitious abuse, or for the Priest's domestick use, which would favour of covetousness, and of distrust of God's care for their future provisions.

18 * And if any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings be eaten at all on the third day, it shall not be accepted, neither shall it be imputed unto him s that offereth it: it shall be an abomination, and the soul that eateth of it shall bear his iniquity. * Chap. 19. 7, 8.

s For an acceptable service to God.

19 And the flesh t that toucheth any uncleanness thing u, shall not be eaten: it shall be burnt with fire: and as for the flesh x, all that be clean y shall eat thereof.

t To wit, of the holy Offering, of which he is here treating; and therefore the general word is to be so limited; for other flesh one might eat in this case, Deut. 12. 15, 22. u After its oblation; which might easily happen, as it was conveyed from the Altar to the place where it was eaten: For it was not eaten in the holy place, as appears, because it was eaten by the Priests, together with the Officers, who might not come thither. x i.e. The other flesh; that which shall not be polluted by any unclean touch. y Whether Priests or Officers, or Guests invited to the Feast. See 1 Sam. 9. 12. and 20. 26. Both the flesh and the Eaters of it must be clean.

20 But the soul that eateth z of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings that pertain unto the LORD, * having his uncleanness upon him a, even that soul * Chap. 19. 8. shall be cut off from his people. Gen. 17.

z Knowingly; for if it were done ignorantly, a Sacrifice was accepted for it, Levit. 5. 2. a (i.e.) Not being cleansed from his uncleanness according to the appointment, Levit. 11. 24, &c. This Verse speaks of uncleanness from an internal cause, as by an Issue, &c. for what was from an external cause is spoken of in the next Verse. 14.

21 Moreover, the soul that shall touch any unclean thing, as * the uncleanness of man b, or any * unclean beast, or any abominable unclean thing, and eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings, which pertain unto the LORD, even that soul shall be cut off from his people. * Chap. 11. 24, 25. and 15. 28.

b Or,

b Or, of women, for the word signifies both; and that there were such things coming from Men or Women, the touch whereof did pollute them and things, may be seen Levit. 15. and elsewhere. Others make it an Hypallage, uncleanness of man, for a man of uncleanness, or, an unclean man. But that seems not necessary here.

22 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Ye shall eat no manner fat of ox, or of sheep, or of goat c.

c The general prohibition of eating Fat, Levit. 3. 17. is here explained of, and restrained to, those kind of Creatures which were sacrificed to God.

†Heb. carcass. 24 And the fat of the † beast that dieth of it self, and the fat of that which is torn with beasts d, may be used in any other use: but ye shall in no wise eat of it.

d He speaketh still of the same kinds of Beasts, and sheweth that this prohibition reacheth not only to the Fat of those Beasts which were offered to God, but also of those that died, or were kill'd at home. And if this seems a superfluous prohibition concerning the Fat, since the Lean as well as the Fat of such Beasts was forbidden, Levit. 22. 8. it must be noted that that prohibition reached only to the Priests, verse 4.

25 For whosoever eateth the fat of the beast, of which men offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, even the soul that eateth it, shall be cut off from his people.

*Gen. 9. 4. Chap. 3. 17. and 17. 14. 26 * Moreover, ye shall eat no manner of blood, whether it be of fowl, or of beast, in any of your dwellings.

27 Whatsoever soul it be that eateth any manner of blood, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

28 ¶ And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

29 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, He that offereth the sacrifice of his peace-offerings unto the LORD, shall bring e his oblation f unto the LORD g, of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings.

e Not by another, but by himself, as it is explained verse 30.
f (i.e.) Those parts of the Peace-offering, which are in a special manner offered to God, to wit, the Fat, and Breast, and Shoulder, as it follows. g (i.e.) To the Tabernacle, where the Lord was present in a special manner. He shews, that though part of such Offerings might be eaten in any clean place, Levit. 10. 14. yet not till they had been killed, and part of them offered to the Lord in the place appointed by him for that purpose.

*Chap. 3. 3, 4, 9, 14. 30 * His own hands shall bring h the offerings of the LORD made by fire i, the fat with the breast, it shall he bring, that the breast may be waved k for a wave-offering before the LORD.

h After the Beast was killed, and the parts of it divided, the Priest was to put the parts mentioned into the hands of the Offerer. See Exod. 29. 22, 23, 24. i So called not strictly, as Burnt-offerings are, because some parts of these were left for the Priest, ver. 31. but more largely, because even these Peace-offerings were in part, though not wholly, burnt. k To and fro, by his hands, which were supported and directed by the hands of the Priest.

31 And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar: but the breast shall be Aarons and his sons l.

l (i.e.) The portion of every succeeding High-priest and his Family; compare Exod. 29. 26.

32 And the right shoulder shall be given unto the priest for an heave-offering of the sacrifices of your peace-offerings.

33 He among the sons of Aaron that offereth the blood of the peace-offerings, and the fat, shall have the right shoulder for his part.

*Exod 29. 28. Chap. 10. 14. Numb. 18. 18. Deut. 18. 3. 34 For * the wave-breast and heave-shoulder m have I taken of the children of Israel, from off the sacrifices of their peace-offerings, and have given them unto Aaron the priest, and unto his sons, by a statute for ever, from among the children of Israel.

m The breast or heart is the seat of Wisdom, and the shoulder of strength for action, and these two may denote that Wisdom, and Vertue, or Power, which was in Christ our High-priest, 1 Cor. 1. 24. and which ought to be in every Priest.

35 ¶ This is the portion of the anointing n of Aaron, and of the anointing of his sons, out of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, in the day o when he presented them, to minister unto the LORD in the priests office.

n (i.e.) Of the Priesthood; the sign put for the thing signified; and the anointing by a like figure is put for the right, or part of the Sacrifices belonging to the Priest by vertue of his anointing, as plainly appears from the words here following; out of the offerings, &c. o This was their portion appointed them by God in that day, and therefore to be given to them in after Ages. Or, from the day, &c. and thence forward; the Hebrew Preposition beth being put for min, as it is frequently.

36 Which the LORD commanded to be given them of the children of Israel, * in the day that he anointed them, by a statute for ever throughout their generations.

*Exod. 29. 9. Levit. 7. 35, 36. Chap. 10. 15. Numb. 18. 8.

37 This is the law of the burnt-offering, of the meat-offering, and of the sin-offering, and of the trespass-offering, and of the consecrations p, and of the sacrifice of the peace-offerings:

p (i.e.) Of the Sacrifice offered at the consecration of the Priests.

38 Which the LORD commanded Moses in mount Sinai in the day that he commanded the children of Israel to offer their oblations unto the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai.

CHAP. VIII.

Moses by God's command calls together Aaron and his sons, and the whole congregation, 1——5. Washes Aaron and his sons, 6. Puts on the priestly garments, 7——9. Anoints the tabernacle, with the altar and laver, to sanctify them, 10——11. Anoints Aaron, 12. Puts the holy garments on his sons, 13. offers sacrifices for them, a bullock for a sin-offering, 14——18. and a ram for a burnt-offering, 18——21. and a second ram for consecration; sprinkles the blood about some parts of their bodies; gives the parts into their hands to wave before the Lord, and sprinkles of the anointing oil and blood from upon the altar, on them and their garments, 22——30. Declares to them God's charge, which they perform, 31——36.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses a, saying, a This is here premised, to shew that Moses did not confer the Priesthood upon Aaron by vertue of his relation or affection to him, but by God's appointment, which also appears from the following Story.

2 * Take Aaron and his sons with him, and the * garments, and * the anointing oil, and a bullock for the sin-offering, and two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread.

*Exod. 29. 1. Exod. 28. 2, 4. Exod. 29. 2.

3 And gather thou all the congregation b together, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

b The Elders which represented all, and as many of the People as would, and could get thither, that all might be witnesses both of Aaron's Commission from God, and of his Work and Business.

4 And Moses did as the LORD commanded him, and the assembly was gathered together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

5 And Moses said unto the congregation, * This is the thing which the LORD commanded to be done.

*Exod. 35. 4.

6 And Moses brought Aaron and his sons, and washed them with water.

7 And he put upon him the coat c, and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod upon him, and he girded him with the curious girdle of the ephod, and bound it unto him therewith.

c The linen Breeches prescribed Exod. 28. 42. are not here mentioned, because they were not to be put on at his Consecration, but afterwards in the execution of his Office.

8 And he put the breast-plate upon him: also * he put in the breast-plate the Urim and the Thummim.

*Exod. 28. 30.

9 And he put the mitre upon his head: also upon the mitre, even upon his forefront did he put the golden plate, the holy Crown *, as the LORD * commanded Moses.

*Exod. 39. 6, &c.

* Of which see Exod. 29. 6

10 * And Moses took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle, and all that was therein, and sanctified them.

*Exod. 29. 26.

11 And

11 And he sprinkled thereof upon the altar seven times d, and anointed the altar, and all his vessels, both the laver e, and his foot, to sanctify them.

d To signify the singular use and holiness of it, which it was not only to have in it self, but also to communicate to all the Sacrifices laid upon it. e Where the Priests washed themselves, and the Sacrifices and Vessels or Instruments of the holy ministration. See Levit. 6. 28.

*Exod. 29. 7. Levit. 8. 12. 12 And he * poured f of the anointing oil upon Aarons head, and anointed him, to sanctify him.

f In a plentiful manner, as appears from Psal. 133. 2. whereas other persons and things were only anointed or sprinkled with it.

*Exod. 29. 5. Heb. mitre. 13 * And Moses brought Aarons sons, and put coats upon them, and girded them with girdles, and † put bonnets upon them, as the LORD commanded Moses.

*Exod. 29. 10. 14 And he brought the bullock g for the sin-offering, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the bullock for the sin-offering.

g There were indeed seven Bullocks to be offered at his consecration, one every day, Exod. 29. 35, 36. But here he mentions only one, either by a common Enallage of number, or because he here describes only the work of the first day, and leaves the rest to be gathered from it; of which see ver. 33.

15 And he slew it, and Moses took the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about, with his finger, and purified the altar, and poured the blood at the bottom of the altar, and sanctified it, to make reconciliation upon it.

16 And he took all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caule above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and Moses burned it upon the altar.

17 But the bullock, and his hide h, his flesh, and his dung, he burnt with fire without the camp, as the LORD * commanded Moses.

*Exod. 29. 14.

h Which in the offerings for the people was not burnt, but given to the Priest.

*Exod. 29. 15. 18 ¶ * And he brought the ram for the burnt-offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

19 And he i killed it, and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

i Either Moses, as in the following Clause, the Pronoun being put for the Noun; or some other person by Moses his appointment; which may be the reason why he is not named here, as he is to the sprinkling of the blood, which was an Action more proper to the Priest, and more essential to the Sacrifice, as the Learned have observed.

20 And he cut the ram into pieces, and Moses burnt the head, and the pieces, and the fat.

21 And he washed the inwards and the legs in water, and Moses burnt the whole ram upon the altar: It was a burnt-sacrifice for a sweet savour, and an offering made by fire unto the LORD, * as the LORD commanded Moses.

*Exod. 29. 18. *Exod. 29. 19. Heb. fillings. 22 ¶ And * he brought the other ram, the ram of † consecration, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

23 And he slew it, and Moses took of the blood of it, and put it upon the tip k of Aarons right ear, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

k The lowest and softest part of the Ear, called the tip or lap of the Ear. See Exod. 29. 20.

24 And he brought Aarons sons, and Moses put of the blood upon the tip of their right ear, and upon the thumbs of their right hands, and upon the great toes of their right feet: and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

25 And he took the fat, and the rump, and all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys and their fat, and the right shoulder.

26 And out of the basket of unleavened bread, that was before the LORD, he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oyled bread, and one wafer, and put them upon the fat, and upon the right shoulder.

27 And he put all * upon Aarons hands, and upon his sons hands, and waved them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

*Exod. 29. 24, &c.

28 And Moses took them from off their hands, and burnt them on the altar, upon the burnt-offering: they were † consecrations for a sweet savour: it is an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

† Heb. fillings.

29 And Moses took the breast, and waved it for a wave-offering before the LORD: For of the ram of consecration it was Moses * part l, as the LORD commanded Moses.

*Exod. 29. 26.

l Who at this time administring the Priest's Office was to receive the Priests Wages; it being most just and reasonable that the Work and Wages should go together.

30 * And Moses took of the anointing oyl, and of the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled it upon Aaron, and upon his garments and upon his sons, and upon his sons garments with him: and sanctified Aaron, and his garments, and his sons, and his sons garments with him.

*Exod. 30. 30.

31 ¶ And Moses said unto Aaron, and to his sons, Boil the flesh m at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and there * eat it with the bread that is in the basket of consecrations, as I commanded, saying, Aaron and his sons shall eat it.

*Exod. 29. 32.

m That which was left of the Ram, and particularly the Breast, which was said to be Moses his part, verse 29. and by him was given to Aaron, that he and his Sons might eat of it, in token that they and only they should have the right to do so for the future.

32 And that which remaineth of the flesh, and of the bread, shall ye burn with fire.

33 And ye shall not go out of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation in seven days, until the days of your confecration be at an end: for * seven days shall he o confecrate you.

*Exod. 29. 30, 35. n In which the same Ceremonies were to be repeated, as the next verse implies; and other Rites to be performed. o Either God; or Moses; for the words may be spoken by Moses, either in God's name, or in his own; Moses speaking of himself in the third person, which is very common in Scripture.

34 As he hath done this day, so the LORD hath commanded to do, to make an atonement for you.

35 Therefore shall ye abide at the door of the congregation day and night seven days, and keep the charge of the LORD p, that ye die not q, for so I am commanded.

p What God hath commanded you concerning your Consecration. q If the threatning seem too severe for the fault, it must be considered both that it is the usual practise of Lawgivers most severely to punish the first Offences for the terrour and caution of others, and for the maintenance of their own Authority; and that this Transgression was aggravated by many circumstances, being committed by sacred and eminent Persons, and that in the presence of the People, which made it a publick Scandal, and in God's Worship, where he is very tender and jealous, and against a plain and easy command of God, and at a time when they were receiving high Favours and Priviledges from God. Nor is Sin to be esteemed or measured by the idle fancies of Men of corrupt Minds and Lives, whose Interests and Lusts easily blind their Minds; but by the Authority, Majesty and Will of the Great, and Wise, and Just Lawgiver.

36 So Aaron and his sons did all things which the LORD commanded by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. IX.

Moses commands Aaron to offer a sin-offering, and burnt-offering, and peace and meat-offering; the congregation drawing near, and so the glory of the Lord should appear to them, to make atonement for himself and the people, 1——7. Aaron's offering for himself, 8——14. For the people, 15——21. whom he blesses, first by prayer to God, and then by solemn declaration to them; the glory of God appears; fire from heaven consumes the sacrifice; the people shout and are amazed, 22——24.

AND it came to pass on the eighth day a, that Moses called Aaron and his sons, and the elders of Israel b.

a To wit, from the first day of his Consecration, or when the seven days of his Consecration were ended, chap. 8. 33, 35. as appears from Exod. 29. 30, &c. Exod. 43. 27. The eighth day is famous mous in Scripture for the perfecting and purifying both of Men and Beasts. See Levit. 12. 2, 3. and 14. 8, 9, 10. and 15. 13, 14. and 22. 27. b All the Congregation were called to be Witnesses of Aaron's Installment into his Office, to prevent their murmurings and contempt, which being done, the Elders were now sufficient to be Witnesses of Aaron's first execution of his Office.

Exod. 29. 1. 2 And he said unto Aaron, * Take thee a young calf c for a sin-offering d, and a ram for a burnt-offering without blemish, and offer them before the LORD.

c Heb. A calf, the son of a Bull or Cow: Which may seem to be added purposely to intimate that it was not a young calf properly so called, but a young bullock, for that was the Sacrifice enjoyned for the High-priest's Sin-offring, Levit. 4. 3. Though it be not material if this be a young calf, and that a young bull, because the grounds and ends of the several Sacrifices differ, that Levit. 4 being for his particular Sin; and this for his own and Family's Sins in general, and therefore no wonder if the Sacrifices also differ. d For himself and his own Sins, which was an evidence of the imperfection of that Priesthood, and of the necessity of another and a better.

Chap. 4. 23. Ezra. 6. 17. 3 And unto the children of Israel thou shalt speak, saying, * Take ye a kid of the goats for a sin-offering e, and a calf, and a lamb, both of the first year, without blemish for a burnt-offering.

e For the People, as it is expressed here verse 15. for whose Sin a young Bullock was required, Levit. 4. 15. but that was for some particular Sin, but this was more general and indefinite for all their Sins. Besides, there being an eye here had to the Priest's Consecration and entrance into his Office, it is no wonder if there be some difference in these Sacrifices from those before prescribed.

4 Also a bullock, and a ram, for peace-offerings to sacrifice before the LORD, and a meat-offering mingled with oyl: for * to day the LORD will appear f unto you.

Ver. 23.

f See the fulfilling of this Promise, verse 24. Heb Hath appeared. He speaks of the thing to come as if it were past, which is frequent in Scripture, to give them the more assurance of the thing.

5 ¶ And they brought that which Moses commanded before the tabernacle of the congregation: and all the congregation drew near and stood before the LORD g.

g Before the Tabernacle where God dwelt.

6 And Moses said, This is the thing which the LORD commanded that ye should do: and the glory of the LORD h shall appear unto you.

h The glorious Manifestation of God's powerful and gracious Presence, verse 24. Compare Exod. 24. 16, 17. and 40. 34, 35. Ezek. 43. 2.

7 And Moses said unto Aaron, Go unto the altar and * offer i thy sin-offering and thy burnt-offering, and make an atonement for thy self, and for the people k: and offer the offering of the people, and make an atonement for them, as the LORD commanded.

Heb. 5. 3.

i Moses had hitherto sacrificed, but now he resigneth his Work to Aaron, and actually gives him that Commission which from God he had received for him. k The Order is very observable, first for thy self, otherwise thou art unfit to do it for the People. Hereby God would teach us, both the deficiency of this Priesthood, and the absolute necessity of an higher and better Priest, Heb. 7. 26, 27. and how important and needful it is that God's Ministers should be in the Grace and Favour of God themselves, that their Ministrations may be acceptable to God, and profitable to the People.

8 ¶ Aaron therefore went unto the altar, and slew the calf of the sin-offering which was for himself.

9 And the sons of Aaron brought the blood unto him, and he dipt his finger in the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar l, and poured out the blood at the bottom of the altar.

l To wit, of Burnt-offerings, of which alone he speaks both in the foregoing and following words; and the Blood was poured out at the bottom of this Altar only, not of the Altar of Incense, as appears from Levit. 4 7. where indeed there is mention of putting some of the Blood upon the Horns of the Altar of Incense, in this case of the Priest's Sacrificing for his own Sins. But there seems to be a double difference, 1. That Sacrifice was offered for some particular Sin, this for his Sins indefinitely. 2. There he is supposed to be compleat in his Office, and here he is but entring into his Office, and therefore must prepare and sanctify himself by this Offering upon the Brazen Altar in the Court, before he can be admitted into the Holy Place where the Altar of Incense was. And the like is to be said for the difference between the Sin-offering for the People here, and Levit. 4. 17, 18.

10 But the fat and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver of the sin-offering he burnt m upon the altar, * as the LORD commanded Moses.

Chap. 8.

m Either 1. Disposed it for the burning, (i. e.) laid it upon the Altar where it was to be burnt by the heavenly Fire, verse 24. Thus Interpreters generally understand the word here, as also verse 13. 17, 20. by an anticipation; or the consequent is put for the antecedent, of which there are Examples in Scripture. Or 2. Properly burnt by ordinary Fire, which was used and allowed until the Fire came down from Heaven, verse 24. though afterwards it was forbidden. And if it had not been allowed otherwise, yet this being done by Aaron at the command of Moses, and consequently with God's approbation, it was unquestionably Lawful. And therefore there seems to be no necessity of departing from the proper sense of the word. Add to this, that there is nothing said to be confirmed by that heavenly Fire, but the burnt-offering with the fat belonging to it, namely, that Burnt-offering mentioned verse 16. which therefore is not there said to be burnt, as it is said of the other Burnt-offering, verse 13. and of the rest of the Sacrifices in their places.

11 And * the flesh, and the hide he burnt with fire, without the camp.

Chap. 11.

12 And he slew the burnt-offering, and Aarons sons presented unto him the blood, which he sprinkled round about upon the altar.

13 And they presented the burnt-offering unto him, with the pieces thereof, and the head: and he burnt them upon the altar.

14 And he did wash the inwards and the legs, and burnt them upon the burnt-offering on the altar.

15 ¶ And he brought the peoples offering n, and took the goat which was the sin-offering for the people, and slew it, and offered it for sin, as the first o.

n Which was to be offered for the People, as the former was for himself, verse 7. o To wit, in like manner as he did that for the Priest, verse 8. and consequently burnt this, as he did the other, verse 11. for which Moses reproves him, Levit. 10. 17.

16 And he brought the burnt-offering p, and offered it * according to the † manner.

Chap. 1. † Or, manner.

p Which also was offered for the People, as the last mentioned Sin-offering was.

17 And he brought the * meat-offering q, and † took an handful thereof, and burnt it upon the altar * besides the burnt-sacrifice of the morning r.

Chap. 2. ‡ Heb. fill his. ‖ Heb. upon.

q Which was always to be added to the Burnt-offering. See Levit. 6. r Which was to be first offered every morning; for God will not have his ordinary and stated service swallowed up by extraordinary.

18 He slew also the bullock and the ram, for * a sacrifice of peace-offerings, which was for the people: and Aarons sons presented unto him the blood (which he sprinkled upon the altar round about.)

Chap. 1.

19 And the fat of the bullock and of the ram, the rump, and that which covereth the inwards s, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver, s The Fat which covereth the Inwards, or the Guts. Which words are here understood, as appears by comparing this place with Levit. 3. 3, 9. and 4. 8. and 7. 3. where they are expressed.

20 And they put the fat upon the breasts t, and he burnt the fat upon the altar.

t Which were reserved for the Priest out of the Peace-offerings, which were offered for the People. See Levit. 7. 30, 31, 34.

21 And the breasts, and the right shoulder, Aaron waved for a * wave-offering before the LORD, as Moses commanded.

Exod. 29. 24, 26.

22 And Aaron lift up his hand u towards the people, and blessed them x, and came down y from offering of the sin-offering, and the burnt-offering, and peace-offerings.

u His right Hand, which the Jews say was lifted up highest; or his hands, according to the other reading, which was the usual Rite of Blessing. See Luke 24. 50. By this posture he signified both whence he expected the Blessing, and his hearty desire of it for them. x In some such manner, as is related, Numb. 6. 24, &c. though not in the same form, as some suppose, for it is not probable that he used it before God delivered it. And this Blessing was an act of his Priestly Office, no less than Sacrificing. See Gen. 14. 18, 19. Numb. 6. 23. Deut. 10. 8. and 21. 5. Luke 24. 50. y To wit, wit, from the Altar; whence he is said to come down, either 1. Because the Altar stood upon raised ground to which they went up by an insensible ascent. Compare Exod 20. 26. Or 2. Because it was nearer the Holy Place, and the Holy of Holies, which was the upper end.

23 And Moses z and Aaron went into the tabernacle of the congregation, and came out, and blessed the people a: and the glory of the LORD b appeared unto all the people.

z Who went in with Aaron to direct him, and to see him perform those parts of his Office which were to be done in the Holy Place, about the Lights, and the Table of Shew-bread, and of the Altar of Incense, upon which part of the Blood of the Sacrifices now offered was to be sprinkled, according to the Law, Levit. 4. 7, 16. a (i. e.) Prayed to God for his Blessing upon the People, as this phrase is explained, Numb. 6. 23, &c. and particularly for his gracious Acceptation of these and all succeeding Sacrifices, and for his signification thereof by some extraordinary Token, which accordingly happened. b Either a miraculous brightness shining from the Cloudy Pillar, as Exod. 16 10. Numb. 14. 10. Or a glorious and visible Discovery of God's gracious Presence and Acceptance of the present Ministry and Service, as it follows.

Gen. 4. 4. King. 18. 38. 2 Chro. 7. 1 Mac. 4. 10, 11. 24 And * there came a fire c out from before the LORD d, and consumed upon the altar the burnt-offering, and the fat: which when all the people saw, they shouted e, and fell on their faces.

c In Token of God's Acceptation and Approbation of the Priesthood now instituted, and the Sacrifices now offered, and consequently of others of the like nature. See the like instances Judges 6. 21. and 13. 19, 20. 1 Chron. 21. 26. And this fire now given was to be carefully kept, and not suffered to go out, Levit. 6. 13. and therefore was carried in a peculiar Vessel in their Journies in the Wilderness. d Or, from the face or presence of the Lord, i. e. from the place where God was in a special manner present, either 1. From Heaven, as 1 Kings 18. 38. 2 Chron. 7. 1. which is oft called God's dwelling place, as Deut. 26. 15. Isa. 63. 15. Or 2. From the Holy of Holies, where also God is said to dwell, 2 Kings 19. 15. 2 Chron. 6. 2. Psal. 80. 1. And what is done before the Ark is said to be done before God, as 1 Chron. 13. 8, 10. and 16. 1, &c. And this may before God, as 1 Chron. 13. 8, 10. and 16. 1, &c. And this may seem more probable by comparing this with Levit. 10. 2. e As wondering at, rejoycing in, and blessing God for this wonderful and gracious discovery of himself, and of his favour to them therein.

CHAP. X.

Nadab and Abihu offering strange fire, are devoured by fire from heaven, 1, 2. For God will be sanctified by them that draw near unto him, 3. Their dead bodies carried without the camp, 4, 5. Aaron and his two other sons forbad to mourn, 6. Also to drink wine or any strong drink, 8, 9. Their duty to distinguish between holy and unholy; and to teach the people all the statutes of the Lord, 10, 11. He declares to them what of the burnt-offerings they might eat, 12——15. is angry that the sin-offering was not eat, nor the blood carried into the holy place, 16——18. He is appeased by Aaron, 19, 20.

Numb. 3. 4. and 26. 61. 1 Chron. 24. 2. AND * Nadab and Abihu the sons of Aaron, took either of them his censer, and put fire therein, and put incense thereon, and offered strange fire a before the LORD b, which he commanded them not c.

a So called, as not appointed for; nor belonging to, the present work; fire not taken from the Altar, as it ought, but from some common fire. b Upon the Altar of Incense. c For seeing Moses himself neither did, nor might do any thing in God's Worship without God's Command, which is oft noted of him; for these to do it, was a more unpardonable and inexcusable presumption. Besides, not commanding may be here put for forbidding, as it is Jer. 32. 35. Now as this was forbidden implicitly, Levit. 6. 12. especially when God himself made a Comment upon that Text, and by sending fire from Heaven declared of what fire he there spake; so it is more than probable it was forbidden expressly, though that be not here mentioned, nor was it necessary it should be.

2 And there went out fire from the LORD d, and devoured them e, and they died before the LORD.

d From Heaven, or rather from the Sanctuary. See chap 9. 24. e Destroyed their Lives; for their Bodies and Garments were not consumed, as it appears from verse 4, 5. Thus the Sword is said to devour, 2 Sam. 2. 26. Thus lightning many times kills persons, without any hurt to their Bodies or Garments.

3 Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is it that the LORD spake f, saying, I will be sanctified g in them that come nigh me h, and before all the people I will be glorified i: and Aaron held his peace k.

f Though the express words be not recorded in Scripture, where only the heads of Sermons and Discourses are contained, yet it is probable they were uttered by Moses in God's name. Howsoever the sense and substance of them is in many places. See Exod. 19. 22. and 29. 43. Levit. 8. 35. g This may note, either 1. their duty to sanctify God, i. e. to demean themselves with such care, and reverence, and watchfulness, as becomes the Holiness of the God whom they serve, and of the Worship in which they are engaged; whence he leaves them to gather the justice of the present judgment for their gross neglect herein. Or, 2. God's purpose to sanctify himself, i. e. to declare and manifest himself to be an holy and righteous God by his severe and impartial punishment of all Transgressors, how near soever they are to him. h (i. e.) Who draw near to me, or to the place where I dwell, and are admitted into the holy place, whence others are shut out. It is a description of the Priests. See Exod. 19. 22. Levit 21. 17. Ezek 42, 13, 14. i As they have sinned publickly and scandalously, so I will vindicate my Honour in a publick and exemplary manner, that all men may learn to give me the glory of my Soveraignty and Holiness by an exact conformity to my Laws. k Partly through excessive grief, which is sometimes signified by silence, as Isa. 47. 5. Lam. 2. 10. and principally in acknowledgment of God's Justice and submission to it. Compare Psal. 39. 10. Ezek. 24. 17. He murmured not, nor replied against God, nor against Moses; wil-fy considering that their sin was directly against God, and in that which is most dear and honourable in God's account, to wit, in his Worship; and that God's honour ought to be dearer to him than his Sons; and that this being the first violation of the Law newly given, and committed by those who should have been the strictest Observers and Assertors of it, did deserve a very severe punishment.

4 And Moses called Mishael and Elzaphan l the sons of Uzziel, the uncle of Aaron *, and said unto them, Come near, carry your brethren m from before the Sanctuary, out of the camp n.

l For Aaron and his Sons had scarce finished their Consecration-work, and were employed in their holy Ministrations, from which they were not to be called for Funeral Solemnities. See Levit. 21. 1, &c. * See Exod. 6. 17. Numb. 3. 19. m (i. e.) Kinsmen, as that word is oft used, as Gen. 13. 8. and 24. 27. n Where the burying-places of the Jews were, that the living might neither be annoyed by the unwholsome scent of the dead, nor defiled by the touch of their Graves.

5 So they went near, and carried them in their coats o out of the camp, as Moses had said.

o In the holy Garments wherein they ministred; which might be done either 1. as a testimony of a respect due to them, notwithstanding their present failure; and that God in judgment remembred mercy, and when he took away their Lives, spared their Souls. Or 2. because being polluted both by their sin, and by the touch of their dead Bodies, God would not have them any more used in his service.

6 And Moses said unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar, and unto Ithamar his sons, * Uncover not your heads p, neither rend your clothes q, lest you die, and lest wrath come upon all the people: but let your brethren, the whole house of Israel bewail the burning which the LORD hath kindled r.

Numb. 6. Deut. 33. 9.

p Either 1. by putting off your Miters and Bonnets, or Ornaments, and going bare-headed, as mourners sometimes did. See Levit. 13. 45. Ezek. 24. 17, 23. Or 2. by shaving off the hair of your heads and beards, as mourners did. See Job 1. 20. Jer. 7. 29. and 41. 5. Ezek. 44. 20. Mich 1. 16. This latter may seem to be principally intended, 1. because this Ceremony of uncovering the head being used by the People as well as by the Priests in case of mourning, as the places now alledged shew; and the other Ceremony here joyned with it, of rending the clothes, being also common to the People, seems to imply that he speaks not of that uncovering of the Head which was peculiar to the Priests, but of that which was common both to Priests and People, especially seeing that which is here forbidden to these Priests, is in the following words allowed to the People, to bewail their Death, which as at other times it was, so now probably might be performed by these same Ceremonies. 2. Because the High-Priest is forbidden to uncover his head in way of Mourning for the Dead, not only at that time when he was in actual Ministration, but at all times, even when he had neither his Miter nor any of the Holy Garments upon him, Levit. 21. 10. q Give no signification of your Sorrow; mourn not for them; partly lest you should seem to justifie and approve of your Brethren, and tacitly reflect upon God as too severe in his Proceedings with them; and partly lest thereby you should be diverted from, or disturbed in your present Service, which God expects should be done chearfully. r Not so much in compassion to them against whom God hath shewed such great and just Indignation, as in Sorrow for the Tokens of Divine Displeasure,

7 And ye shall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of the congregation s, lest you die: for the anointing oil of the LORD is upon you t: and they did according to the word of Moses.

s Where at this time they were, either because this happened within seven days of their Consecration. See Lev. 8. 35. or because they were longer detained there about some other Holy Ministrations. Though the former may seem more probable, because the meat-offering here mentioned, verse 12. and the sin-offering, verse 16 were part of the Consecration-offerings. t You are persons consecrated peculiarly to God's Service, which therefore it is just and reasonable you should prefer before all Funeral Solemnities.

8 And the LORD spake unto Aaron, saying,

'Ezek. 44. 21. 1 Tim. 3 3. 9 * Do not drink wine nor strong drink u; thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: It shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations:

u This is here added, either because Nadab and Abihu had been led to their Ruine by drinking too much, which might easily fall out when they were Feasting and full of Joy for their entrance into so Honourable and Profitable an Employment; or at least because others might thereby be drawn to commit the same Miscarriages which they might now commit from other Causes. Drunkenness is so odious a Sin in it self, especially in a Minister, and most of all in the time of his Administration of Sacred Things, that God saw fit to prevent all occasions of it. And hence the Devil, who is God's Ape in his prescriptions for his Worship, requited this Abstinence from his Priests in their Idolatrous Service.

' Jer. 15. 19. Ezek. 22 26. and 44 23. 10 And that ye may * put difference between holy and unholy x, and between unclean and clean.

x Persons and Things, which Nadab and Abihu did not, mistaking Unholy or Common Fire for that which was Sacred and Appointed by God for their use.

11 And that ye may teach y the children of Israel all the statutes which the LORD hath spoken unto them by the hand of Moses.

y Be apt to teach aright, which drunken Persons are very unfit to do.

12 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar, and unto Ithamar his sons, that were left,

'Exod. 29. 2. Chap 8 2. 'Chap. 21. 22. * Take the meat-offering that remaineth of the offerings of the LORD made by fire, and eat it z without leaven, beside the altar: for it is * most holy.

z Moses repeateth and reinforceth the former Command, partly lest their great Loss and Grief should cause them to forget or neglect their Meat prescribed them by God, which Abstinence would have been both a signification of their Sorrow which God had forbidden them, and a new transgression of a Divine Precept; and partly to encourage them to go on in their Holy Services, and not to be dejected for the late Severity, as if God would no more accept them or their Sacrifices.

13 And ye shall eat it in the holy place a, because it is thy due b, and thy sons due of the sacrifices of the LORD made by fire: for so I am commanded.

a In the Court, near the Altar of Burnt-offerings. See Lev. 6. 26. b See Lev. 2. 3. and 6. 16, 17.

'Exod. 29. 24. Chap. 7. 31, 34. 14 And * the wave-breast, and heave-shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place c, thou, and thy sons, and thy daughters d with thee, for they be thy due, and thy sons due, which are given out of the sacrifice of peace-offerings of the children of Israel.

c In any of your Dwellings, or any place in the Camp, which he supposeth to be kept clean from all ceremonial Defilement, as they ought to be; whence the Lepers were put out of the Camp. See Numb. 5. 1, 2, 3. In any place where the Women as well as the Men might come, for the daughters of the Priests might eat these as well as their Sons, as it here follows. d To wit, if they were Maids, or Widows, or Divorced, Lev. 22. 11, 12, 13.

' Chap. 7. 29, 30. 15 * The heave-shoulder and the wave-breast shall they bring, with the offerings made by fire of the fat, to wave it for a wave-offering before the LORD; and it shall be thine, and thy sons with thee by a statute for ever, as the LORD hath commanded.

16 ¶ And Moses diligently sought * the goat of the sin-offering d, and behold, it was burnt: and he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar e the sons of Aaron which were left alive f, saying,

* Or, 9.3.

d To wit, for the People, mentioned Lev. 9. 15. to know what was done with that part of it which was the Priests. Which he enquired into, more than into the other Sacrifices, because a mistake there was easie and probable, because that matter might seem something doubtful, by reason of two laws concerning it, seemingly contrary, the one Lev. 4. 21. where it is to be burned, the other Lev. 6. 26. where it was to be eaten. But they are thus reconciled: It was to be burnt, when the blood of this sacrifice was brought into the holy place, Lev. 4. 16, 17. and when that was not done, which Aaron this first time could not do, for the reason expressed in ver. 18. it was to be eaten, and here lay their mistake. e He spares Aaron at this time, as overwhelmed with sorrow, and because the rebuking of him before his sons might have exposed him to some contempt; but he knew that the reproof though directed to them, would concern him too, as he also apprehended it. f Preserved from death when their brethren were destroyed, which is here mentioned as an aggravation of their sin.

17 Wherefore have ye not eaten the sin-offering in the holy place, seeing it is most holy, and God hath given it you to bear the iniquity of the congregation g, to make atonement for them before the LORD?

g (i. e.) As a reward of your service and function, whereby you do expiate, bear and take away their sins, by offering those sacrifices, and performing those rites, by which God through Christ is reconciled to the penitent and believing offerers.

18 Behold, the blood of it was not brought in within the holy place h; ye should indeed have eaten it in the holy place, * as I commanded.

* Chap. 6. 26.

h The reason whereof was, because Aaron was not yet admitted into the holy place, whither that blood should have been brought, till he had prepared the way by the sacrifices which were to be offered in the Court.

19 And Aaron said unto Moses, Behold, this day have they offered i their sin-offering and their burnt-offering before the LORD; and such things have befallen me k: and if I had eaten the sin-offering to day, should it have been accepted in the sight of the LORD?

i They have done the substance of the thing, though they have mistaken this one circumstance. k Whereby, having been oppressed with grief, and almost bereft of my reason, it is not strange nor unpardonable if I have mistaken. l Because it was not to be eaten with sorrow, but with rejoycing and thanksgiving, as appears from Deut. 12. 7. and 26. 14. Hos. 9. 4. and I thought it fitter to burn it, as I did other sacred relicks, than to profane it by eating it unworthily.

20 And when Moses heard that, he was content m.

m He rested satisfied with his answer, either because he thought it reasonable, seeing the letter of the law oft-times yields to necessities or great accidents; 2 Chron. 30. 18. Mat. 12. 3, 4. or at least because the things alledged were mitigations of his fault, and he would not add affliction to the afflicted, but rather defer the debate of it to a fitter opportunity.

CHAP. XI.

Beasts clean and unclean, 1——8. Of fishes, 9——12. Of fowls and creeping things, 13——23. In touching of a dead Carcass, 24——28. Other Creatures unclean, 29——43. They are exhorted to purity and holiness from the nature, and his goodness to them in taking them to be his people, 44, 45. The whole repeated, 46, 47.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, and to Aaron a, saying unto them,

From the laws concerning the Priests, he now comes to those which belong to all the people.

a To both of them, because the cognizance of the following matters belonged to both, the Priest was to direct the people about the things forbidden or allowed, where any doubt or difficulty arose; and the Magistrate was to see the direction here given, followed.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, * These are the beasts which ye shall eat b among all the beasts that are on the earth:

* Deut. 14. 4. Acts 10. 12, 14.

b Though every creature of God be good and pure in it self, as appears from Gen. 1. 31. Mat. 15. 11. Rom. 14. 14. yet it pleased God to make a difference between clean and unclean, and to restrain the use of them, which he did in general and in part before the flood, Gen. 7. 2. but more fully and particularly here for many ny reasons, as 1. To assert his own soveraignty over man, and over all the creatures, which men may not use but with God's leave, and to inure that stiff-necked people to obedience. 2. To keep up the wall of partition between the Jews and other Nations, which was very useful and necessary for many great and wise purposes. 3. That by bridling their appetite in things in themselves lawful, and some of them very desirable and delightful for food, they might be better prepared and enabled to deny themselves in things simply and grossly sinful. 4. For the preservation of their health, some of the creatures forbidden being, though used by the neighbouring Nations, of unwholesome nourishment, especially to the Jews, who were very obnoxious to leprosies, which some of these meats are apt to produce and foment. 5. For moral signification, to teach them to abhor that filthiness, and all those ill qualities for which some of these creatures are noted.

3 Whatsoever parteth the hoof, and is cloven-footed c, and cheweth the cud d among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

c To wit, is divided into two parts onely, as in the Coney Swine, &c. whereas the Horse, Camel, &c. have their hoofs entire and undivided. This clause is added only to explain and limit the former, as appears from ver. 26. for the feet or hoofs of Dogs, Cats, &c. are parted or cloven into many parts. d. Heb. and bringeth up the cud, i. e. the meat once chewed out of the stomach into the mouth again, that it may be chewed a second time for better concoction. And this branch is to be joyned with the former, both properties being necessary for the allowed Beasts. But the reason hereof must be resolved into the will of the lawgiver; though Interpreters guess that God would hereby signifie their duties, by the first, that of dividing the word of God aright, and discerning between good and evil, between God's institutions and mens inventions; and by the latter, that duty of recalling God's word to our minds and serious meditation upon it.

4 Nevertheless, these shall ye not eat, of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the hoof: as the camel e, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof f, he is unclean unto you.

e An usual food in Arabia, but yielding bad nourishment, as Galen notes. f To wit, so as to have his foot cloven in two, which being expressed ver. 3. is here to be understood. Otherwise the Camels hoof is divided, but it is but a small and imperfect division, as Aristotle and Pliny observe, and observation shews.

5 And the cony g, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof, he is unclean unto you.

g Some understand by this Hebrew word Shaphan, a mountain Mouse, which were of a much greater size than ordinary Mice, and were used by the Arabians for Food. But for the names of the following Creatures, seeing the Jews themselves are uncertain and divided about them, I think it improper to trouble the unlearned Reader with disputes about them, and for the learned they may have recourse to my Latin Synopsis. I shall therefore take them according to our Translation.

6 And the hare, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof, he is unclean unto you.

Mat. 6. 7. & 7. 15. Isa. 65. 4. and 66. 3. 7 And * the swine h, though he divide the hoof, and be cloven footed, yet he cheweth not the cud: he is * unclean unto you.

h Which the Jews would not so much as name, but called it another, or a strange thing, lest the naming of it should tempt them to eat this meat which was so commonly used, and so much esteemed by others.

See Acts 14, 15. and 15. 29. Rom. 14. 17. Col. 2. 8. 8 Of their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcass shall ye not touch i: * they are unclean to you.

i To wit, in order to eating, as may be gathered by comparing this with Gen. 3. 3. Col. 2. 21. For since the Fat and the Skins of some of the forbidden Creatures were useful, for Medicinal and other good Uses, and were used by good Men. See Matth. 3. 4. it is not probable that God would have them cast away. Thus God forbad the making of Images, Exod. 20. not absolutely and universally, but in order to the worshipping of them, as Christian Interpreters agree. Or, they were here forbidden to touch them, to wit, unnecessarily; and if he that touched them for some necessary use were polluted by it, it was but a slight and transient pollution, ending at evening, as appears from verse 24, 25, &c.

9 ¶ These shall ye eat, of all that are in the waters, whatsoever hath fins and scales k in the water, in the seas, and in the rivers, them shall ye eat.

k To wit, both of them; such Fishes being both more cleanly, and more wholesome Food than others. The names of them are not particularly mentioned, partly because most of them were wanted names; the Fishes not being brought to Adam and named by him as other Creatures were; and partly because the Land of Canaan had not many Rivers, nor great store of Fishes.

10 And all that have not fins nor scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing which is in the waters l, they shall be an abomination unto you:

l (i. e.) Either of the smaller sort of Fishes, or of the greater, which are called here living creatures or beasts, as some of them are called the beasts of the sea by other Authors.

11 They shall be even an abomination unto you m: ye shall not eat of their flesh, but you shall have their carcasses in abomination.

m To wit, for Food. This clause is added to shew that they were neither abominable in their own Nature, nor for the Food of other Nations, and consequently when the Partition-wall between Jews and Gentiles was taken away, these distinctions of Meats were to cease. See Acts 10.

12 Whatsoever hath no fins nor scales in the waters, that shall be an abomination unto you.

13 ¶ And these are they which ye shall have in abomination among the fowls n, they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination, the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray o.

n The true signification of the following Hebrew words is now lost, as the Jews at this day confess, which not falling out without God's singular Providence may intimate the Cessation or Abolition of this Law, the exact observation whereof since Christ came is become impossible. In general, this may be observed, That the Fowls forbidden in Diet, are all either Ravenous and Cruel, or such as delight in the Night and Darkness, or such as feed upon impure Things; and so the signification and reason of these Prohibitions is manifest, to teach Men to abominate all Cruelty or Oppression, and all Works of Darkness and Filthiness. o Which are two peculiar kinds of Eagles, distinct from that which being the chief of its kind, is called by the name of the whole kind, as it usually happens.

14 And the vulture, and the kite after his kind:

15 Every raven after his kind p:

p (i. e.) According to the several kinds of Birds, known by this general Name, which includes, besides Ravens properly so called, Crows, Rooks, Pyes, &c.

16 And the Owl q, and the Night-hawk, and the Cuckow, and the Hawk after his kind:

q Heb. the daughter of the Owl, which he mentions as the best of the kind both for Sex and Age, and therefore more desired for Food than the Elder or Males. And it is hereby implied, that the very youngest and best of all the other kinds are forbidden, and much more the rest.

17 And the little owl, and the cormorant, and the great owl,

18 And the swan, and the pelican, and the gier-eagle,

19 And the stork, the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat,

20 All fowls that creep r, going upon all four s, shall be an abomination unto you.

r That crawl or creep upon the Earth, and so degenerate from their proper Nature, which is to flie, and are of a mungrel Kind, which may intimate that Apostates and Mungrels in Religion are abominable in the sight of God, and in conversation with Men. s Upon four Legs, or upon more than four, as Bees, Flies, &c. which is all one to the present purpose, these pluralists for Legs being here opposed to those that have but two.

21 Yet these may ye eat, of every flying creeping thing that goeth upon all four, which have legs above their feet t, to leap withal upon the earth:

t The truth of this Translation may seem evident both from the following clause, to leap withal, and especially from the next verse, where one of this kind is the locusts, which, as it is manifest, have two Legs wherewith they leap, besides the four Feet upon which they walk. The Adverb lo is here put for the Pronoun he, as it is also 1 Chron. 11. 20. compared with 2 Sam. 23. 18. Others take the words as they lye, and read them negatively, which have not legs upon their feet, and so the sence may be this, That they might eat the locusts, grasshoppers, &c. when they were very young, and therefore more wholesome for food: for they are born without legs, Plin. nat. Hist. 11. 29. or, their legs at first are very small and scarce to be discerned, and in effect none. And the Canon of the Jews in this matter is this, Those which yet have not wings and legs may be eaten, though they be such as afterward would have them.

22 Even these of them ye may eat; * The Locust u after his kind, and the Bald-locust after his kind, and the Beetle after his kind, and the Grashopper after his kind:

* Matth. 3. 4. Mark 1. 6.

u Locusts, though unusual in our food, were commonly eaten by the Æthiopians, Lybians, Parthians, and other Eastern people bordering upon the Jews, which is expressly affirmed by Diodorus, Siculus, Aristotle, Pliny, St. Hierom and others, as well as Matt. 3. 4. And it is certain that the Eastern Locusts were much larger than ours, so it is probable they were of different qualities, and yielded better nourishment; and the familiar use of them made them more agreeable to their bodies; for even poisons themselves have by frequent use been made not only harmless, but nourishing also to some persons.

23 But all other flying creeping things which have four feet x, shall be an abomination unto you.

x (i.e.) All such except those now mentioned; the word other being here understood out of the former Verse, without which there might seem to be a contradiction between this and that Verse. But the words may be, and by the vulgar Latin, are thus rendred, But all flying creeping things which have only four feet; which word only, is to be gathered out of ver. 20, 21. i.e. which have not those legs above and besides their feet mentioned, ver. 21. And so all the Verses agree well together.

24 And for these ye shall be unclean: whosoever toucheth the carcass of them, shall be unclean z until the even a.

z And such were excluded both from the courts of God's house, and from free conversation with other men. a Which possibly might signifie, that even the smallest defilements could not be cleansed but by the death of Christ, who was to come and offer up himself in the evening or end or declining age of the world, as the Prophets signifie, and the Apostle expresseth, Heb. 9. 26.

25 And whosoever beareth b ought of the carcass of them, shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even.

b Or, taketh away, out of the place where haply it may lie, by which others may be either offended, or polluted.

26 The carcasses c of every beast which divideth the hoof, and is not cloven footed, nor cheweth the cud, are unclean unto you: every one that toucheth them, shall be unclean.

c Which word is easily to be understood out of ver. 24. and 25. where it is expressed.

27 And whatsoever goeth upon his paws d, among all manner of beasts that go on all four, those are unclean unto you: whoso toucheth their carcass, shall be unclean until the even.

d Heb. upon his hands; i.e. which hath feet divided into several parts like fingers, as dogs, cats, apes, bears, &c.

28 And he that beareth the carcass of them shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: they are unclean unto you.

29 ¶ These also shall be unclean unto you, among the creeping things that creep upon the earth; the * Isa. 66. 17. Weasel, and the * Mouse, and the Tortois after his kind,

30 And the Ferret, and the Camelion, and the Lyzard, and the Snail, and the Mole.

31 These are unclean to you among all that creep: whosoever doth touch them when they be dead, shall be unclean until the even.

32 And upon whatsoever any of them, when they are dead, doth fall, it shall be unclean, whether it be any vessel of wood, or rayment, or skin, or sack, whatsoever vessel it be, wherein any work is done, it must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the even: so it shall be cleansed.

33 And every earthen vessel, whereunto any of them falleth, whatsoever is in it shall be unclean, and * Chap. 6. 28. * ye shall break it.

34 Of all meat which may be eaten, that on which such water cometh e, shall be unclean: And all drink that may be drunk in every such vessel, shall be unclean.

e The meaning is, that flesh or herbs or other food which is dressed in water, to wit, in a vessel so polluted, shall be unclean; not so, if it be food which is eaten dry, as bread, fruits, &c. the reason of which difference seems to be this, that the water did sooner receive the pollution in it self, and convey it to the food so dressed.

35 And every thing whereupon any part of their carcass falleth, shall be unclean, whether it be oven, or ranges for pots, they shall be broken down: for they are unclean, and shall be unclean unto you.

36 Nevertheless, a fountain, or pit † wherein there is plenty of water f, shall be clean: * that which toucheth their carcass shall be unclean. † Heb. issue. * Or,

f Of which no solid reason can be given, whilst such unclean things remain in them, but only the will of the Lawgiver and his merciful Condescention to Mens necessities, Water being scarce in those Countries; and for the same reason God would have the ceremonial Law of Sacrifices to be offered to God, give place to the moral Law of Mercy towards Men.

37 And if any part of their carcass fall upon any sowing seed which is to be sown g, it shall be clean.

g Partly because this was necessary Provision for Man; and partly because such Seed would not be used for Man's Food till it had received many Alterations in the Earth, whereby such Pollution was taken away. See John 12. 24. 1 Cor. 15. 36.

38 But if any water be put upon the seed h, and any part of their carcass fall thereof, it shall be unclean unto you.

h The reason of the difference is, partly because wet Seed doth sooner receive, and longer retain any Pollution; and partly because such Seed was not fit to be sown presently, and therefore that necessity which justified the use of the dry Seed, which was speedily to be sown, could not be pretended in this case.

39 And if any beast of which ye may eat, die i, he that toucheth the carcass thereof, shall be unclean until the even.

i Either of it self, or being killed by some Wild Beast, in which cases the Blood was not poured forth, as it was when they were killed by Men either for Food or Sacrifice.

40 And * he that eateth of the carcass of it k, shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: he also that beareth the carcass of it, shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even. * Chap. 15. 5, 8, 21, 27. Ezek. 44. 31.

k To wit, unwittingly, for if he did it knowingly, it was a presumptuous Sin against an express Law, Deut. 14 21. and therefore punished with cutting off, Numb. 15. 30. and 4 41 And every creeping thing l that creepeth upon the earth, shall be an abomination: it shall not be eaten.

l Except those before expresly excepted above, verse 29, 30.

42 Whatsoever goeth upon the belly m, and whatsoever goeth upon all four n, or whatsoever † hath more feet o, among all creeping things that creep upon the earth, them ye shall not eat, for they are an abomination. † Heb. multipedes.

m As Worms and Snakes. n As Toads and divers Serpents. o To wit, more than four, as Caterpillars, &c.

43 * Ye shall not make your † selves abominable with any creeping thing that creepeth, neither shall ye make your selves unclean with them, that ye should be defiled thereby. * Chap. 20. 25. † Heb. souls.

44 For I am the LORD your God: ye shall therefore sanctify your selves, and * ye shall be holy p, for I am holy: neither shall ye defile your selves with any manner of creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. * Chap. 19. 2. and 20. 7. 1 Pet. 1. 15, 16.

p By which he gives them to understand, that all these Cautions and Prohibitions about the eating or touching of these Creatures was not for any real Uncleanness in them, all being God's good Creatures, but only that by the diligent Observation of these Rules they might learn with greater care to avoid all moral Pollutions, and to keep themselves from all filthiness of Flesh and Spirit, and particularly from all familiar and intimate converse with notorious Sinners.

45 For I am the LORD that bringeth you up out of the land of Egypt to be your God: ye shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.

46 This is the law of the beasts, and of the fowl, and of every living creature that † moveth in the waters, and of every creature that creepeth upon the earth. † Heb. swimmeth.

47 To make a difference between the unclean and the clean, and between the beast that may be eaten, and the beast that may not be eaten.

CHAP. XII.

Laws touching the uncleanness of women in child-bearing. Of a son, seven days; and her purification thirty three days, 1——4. Of a daughter fourteen days, and her purification sixty six days, 5. Her offering, if rich, a lamb of a year old, a young pigeon, or turtle-dove for a sin-offering, 6, 7. If poor, two turtle doves, or two young pigeons; one for a burnt-offering, and one for a sin-offering, 8.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2. Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a * woman have † conceived seed, and born a man-child, then * she shall be unclean a seven days b: according to the days of the separation for her infirmity c shall she be unclean. * Chap. 15. 19. † Heb. bred. * Luke 2. 21.

From uncleanness contracted by the touching or eating of external things, he now comes to that uncleanness which ariseth from our selves.

a Not for any filthiness which was either in the Conception, or in bringing forth, but to signify the universal and deep Pollution of Man's Nature even from the Birth, and from the Conception. b For so long, or thereabouts, Nature is employed in the Purgation of most Women. c (i.e.) For her monthly Infirmity. And it may note an agreement therewith not only in the time, Levit. 15. 19. but in the degree of uncleanness, which was such that she defiled every thing she touched, &c.

3 And in the * eighth day, the flesh of his foreskin shall be circumcised d. * Gen. 17. 12. Luke 2. 21. John 7. 22. and 59.

d Which Law is here repeated, because the Womans uncleanness lasting for seven Days, was one, though not the only, reason why the Child's Circumcision was put off till the eighth Day.

4 And she shall then continue e in the blood of her purifying f three and thirty days: she shall touch no hallowed thing g, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purifying be fulfilled.

e Heb. sit, i.e. abide, as that word is oft used, as Gen. 22. 5. and 34. 10. or tarry at home, nor go into the Sanctuary. f In her polluted and separated Estate; for the word Blood or Bloods signifies both guilt, as Gen. 4. 10. and Uncleanness, as here and elsew here. See Ezek. 16. 6. And it is called the Blood of her purifying, because by the Expulsion or Purgation of that Blood, which is done by degrees, she is purified. g She shall not eat any part of the Peace-offerings which she or her Husband offered, which otherwise she might have done; and, if she be a Priest's Wife, she shall not eat any of the Tythes or first Fruits, or part of the hallowed Meats, which at other times she together with her Husband might eat.

5 But if she bear a maid-child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her separation: and she shall continue in the blood of her purifying threescore and six days h.

h The time in both particulars is double to the former, not so much from natural Causes, because the Purifications in Female Births are longer and slower; which if it were true, yet doth not extend to any such time as here is mentioned, as for moral Reasons; either to be as a blot upon that Sex for being the first in Mans Transgression, 1 Tim. 2. 14. or to put an Honour upon the Sacrament of Circumcision, which being administred to the Males, did put an end to that Pollution sooner than otherwise had been; or to shew the priviledge of the Man above the Woman, and that the Women were to be purified, sanctified, and saved by one of the other Sex, even by the Man Christ Jesus, without whom they should have still continued in their impurity.

6 And when the days of her purifying are fulfilled for a son, or for a daughter i, she shall bring a lamb of the † first year for a burnt-offering, and a young pigeon, or a turtle-dove for a sin-offering k, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation unto the priest: Heb. son of his year.

i For the Birth of a Son, or of a Daughter: but the Purification was for her self, as appears from the following Verses. k Either because of her ceremonial Uncleanness, which required a ceremonial Expiation; or for those particular Sins relating to the time and state of Child bearing, of which she is justly presumed to be guilty, which might be many ways.

7 Who shall offer it before the LORD, and make an atonement for her, and she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. This is the law for her that hath born a male, or a female l.

l For though there was a difference in the time of her Uncleanness for the one and for the other, yet both were to be purified one and the same way; to note, that though all Sins and Sinners were not equal, yet all were to be cleansed by the same means, to wit, by Christ, and by Faith. See 1 Cor. 7. 14. Gal. 3. 28.

8 * And if † she be not able to bring a lamb, then she shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons, the one for the burnt-offering, and the other for a sin-offering, and the priest shall make an atonement for her, and she shall be clean. * Luke 2. 24. † Heb. her hand find not sufficiency of.

CHAP. XIII.

Laws touching Leprosies; its different kinds how to be known and judged of by the priest, 1——8. Of the swelling, 9——17. Of the Sores or Boils, 18——23. Of the fiery Inflamation, 24——28. Of the scall, 29——37. Of the Blisters, 38, 39. Of baldness, 40——44. The Leper with clothes rent, bare-head, and covered lips, must cry Unclean, unclean, and dwell alone, 45, 46. Of the leprosie in Clothes, Linnen, Woollen, and Skins, 47——59.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying,

2 When a man shall have in the skin a of his flesh a † rising, a scab, or bright spot b, and it be in the skin of his flesh like the plague of leprosy c, * then he shall be brought unto Aaron the priest d, or unto one of his sons the priests. † Or, swelling. * Deut. 17. 8. and 24. 8.

a For there was the Seat of the Leprosy. b Shining like the Scale of a Fish, as it is in the beginning of a Leprosy. c A Distemper most frequent in Egypt and Syria, &c. known also among the Greeks, who note that it was not so properly a Disease, as a Defilement or Distemper in the Skin, whence Christ is not said to heal, but to cleanse the Lepers that came to him. And this Distemper is here provided against, not because it was worse than others, but because it was externally and visibly Filthy, and because of its infectious Nature, that hereby we might be instructed to avoid Converse with such vicious Persons who were likely to infect us. d Not to the Physitian, because, as was now said, it needed not so much healing, as cleansing, and was rather a ceremonial Pollution than a Disease; and because it belonged to the Priest to cleanse him, and therefore to search and discover whether he was defiled and needed cleansing. The Priest also was to admit to, or exclude from, the Sanctuary, and therefore to examine who were to be excluded. And the discovery of this Distemper was not so difficult that it required the Physicians art, but the Priest, by experience, and the observation of those rules might easily make it.

3 And the priest shall look on the plague e in the skin of the flesh, and when the hair in the plague is turned white f, and the plague in sight is deeper than the skin of his flesh g, it is a plague of leprosy: and the priest shall look on him, and † pronounce him unclean h. † Heb. pollute him.

e (i.e.) The sign or appearance of the plague of Leprosy. And it is observable, that the same signs of it are given by Moses here, and by the Learned Physicians in their Works. f And when the Leprosy came to its height, not the Hair only, but also the Skin was turned white, as Exod. 4. 6. Numb. 12. 10. And this change of Colour was an evidence both of the abundance of excrementitious Humours, and of the weakness of Nature, as we see in old and sick Persons. g For the Leprosy did consume both the Skin and the Flesh, as appears from 2 Kings 5 14. h Heb. make him unclean, i e. ministerially and declaratively, in which sense Ministers are said to remit sins, Matth. 16. 19. and to destroy Nations, Jer. 1. 10.

4 If the bright spot be white in the skin of his flesh, and in sight be not deeper than the skin, and the hair thereof be not turned white, then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague i seven days.

i For greater assurance; to teach Ministers not to be rash nor hasty in their Judgments and Censures, but diligently to search and examine all things before-hand. The Plague is here put for the Man that hath the Plague, as Pride is put for a proud Man, Jer. 50. 31. and Dreams for the Dreamers, Jer. 27. 9.

5 And the priest shall look on him the seventh day: and behold, if the plague in his sight be at a stay k, and the plague spread not in the skin, then the priest shall shut him up seven days more.

k This Translation is justified by the following Clause which is added to explain it. Otherwise the words are and may be rendred thus, stand or abide in its own Colour; the Hebrew word being used for Colour as well as for Sight.

6 And the priest shall look on him again the seventh day: and behold, if the plague be somewhat dark l, and the plague spread not somewhat in the skin, the priest shall † pronounce him clean: it is † Heb. cleanse but him.

but a scab: and he shall wash his cloathes m, and be clean.

l Which is opposed to the white Colour of the Leprosy. But the word may be rendred, have contracted it self, or, be restrained or confined to its former place and bigness; and thus the Opposition seems to be most clear to the spreading of its self, mentioned both in the forgoing Verse, and in the following Clause.

m Though it was no Leprosy, but a Scab only: to teach us, that no Sin was so small which did not need to be washed by the Blood of Christ, which was the thing designed by all these washings.

7 But if the scab spread much abroad in the skin, after that he hath been seen of the priest for his cleansing, he shall be seen of the priest again.

8 And if the priest see, that behold the scab spreadeth in the skin, then the priest shall † pronounce him unclean: it is a leprosy. † Heb. cast him.

9 When the plague of leprosy is in a man, then he shall be brought unto the priest;

10 And the priest shall see him, and behold, if the rising be white n in the skin, and it have turned the hair white, and o there be † quick raw flesh p in the rising: † Heb. the quickening of living flesh.

n To wit, with a preternatural and extraordinary Whiteness, as Numb. 12. 14. o Or rather, or, the Copulative put for the Disjunctive, as hath been noted before; for either of these were signs of a Leprosy, and one of these may seem inconsistent with the other; the former sign of white Hair supposing the Skin in which the Hair was to remain, and the latter of live flesh supposing the Skin to be consumed by the Leprosy. p Which shewed that this was not a superficial Leprosy, but one of a deeper and more malign nature, that had eaten into the very Flesh, for which cause it is in the next Verse called an old, or inveterate, or grown Leprosy.

11 It is an old leprosy in the skin of his flesh, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean, and shall not shut him up, for he is unclean.

12 And if a leprosy break out abroad in the skin, and the leprosy cover all the skin of him that hath the plague, from his head even to his foot, wheresoever the priest looketh:

13 Then the priest shall consider, and behold, if the leprosy q have covered all his flesh r, he shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: it is all turned white: he is clean:

q (i. e.) The sign or appearance of the Leprosy; or the Scab is called a Leprosy, because at first view it seemed to be so to the Priest, and to other beholders. r When it appeared in some one part it discovered the ill humour which lurked within, and withal the inability of Nature to expel it, but when it overspread all, it manifested the strength of Nature conquering the Distemper, and purging out the ill Humours into the outward Parts.

14 But when the raw flesh appeareth in him r, he shall be unclean.

r Or rather, in it, i. e. in the place where the sign or appearance of Leprosy was, when the Flesh was partly changed into a whiter Colour, and partly kept its natural Colour, this variety of Colours was an evidence of the Leprosy, as one and the same Colour continuing was a sign of Soundness.

15 And the priest shall see the raw flesh, and pronounce him to be unclean: for the raw flesh is unclean s: it is a leprosy.

s This is repeated again and again, because raw or living Flesh might rather seem a sign of Soundness, and the Priest might easily be deceived by it, and therefore he was more narrowly to look into it, and to observe the place and manner, and other Circumstances in which it appeared.

16 Or if the raw flesh turn again, and be changed unto white t, he shall come unto the priest:

t As it is usual with Sores, when they begin to be healed, the Skin, which is white, coming upon the Flesh.

17 And the priest shall see him: and behold, if the plague be turned into white, then the priest shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: he is clean.

18 ¶ The flesh also, in which, even in the skin thereof was a bile, and is healed:

19 And in the place of the bile there be a white rising, or a bright spot white, and somewhat reddish u, and it be shewed to the priest:

u (i. e.) White mixed with Red, as when Blood and Milk are mixed together. A late Learned Writer renders the words thus, white and very bright or light, which indeed is the true Colour of Leprosy, to wit, when it is in its perfection, as Exod. 4. 6, &c. But here it was only beginning and arising out of a Bile, in which together with the white, which was the Colour of the Leprosy, there might be some mixture of redness arising from the Bile, or that part of it which was not yet turned into the Nature and Colour of Leprosy.

20 And if when the priest seeth it, behold, it be in sight lower than the skin, and the hair thereof be turned white, the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague of leprosy broken out of the bile.

21 But if the priest look on it, and behold, there be no white hairs therein, and if it be not lower than the skin, but be somewhat dark †, then the priest shall shut him up seven days.

† Or, and be contracted; of which see verse 6.

22 And if it spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a plague x.

x Or, the Plague, to wit, of Leprosy, of which he is speaking 23 But if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not, it is a burning bile, and the priest shall pronounce him clean.

24 ¶ Or if there be any flesh in the skin, whereof there is a † hot burning y, and the quick flesh that † Heb. burneth have a white bright spot, somewhat reddish burning or white z: fire.

y Heb. a burning of fire, by the touch of any hot Iron, or burning Coals, which doth naturally and usually make an Ulcer or Sore in which the following Spot is. z (i. e.) Or only White, without any mixture of Red in it. This Clause seems to overthrow that Exposition of the Hebrew word Adamdam which is given by a Learned Man verse 19. because this Colour which is here said to be only White, is distinguished from that which is here called Adamdam, which therefore must be some other Colour than that of Snow, which tho very light or bright, yet is only White.

25 Then the priest shall look upon it: and behold, if the hair in the bright spot be turned white, and it be in sight deeper than the skin, it is a leprosy broken out of the burning: wherefore the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leprosy.

26 But if the priest look on it, and behold, there be no bright hair in the bright spot, and it be no lower than the other skin, but be somewhat dark a, then the priest shall shut him up seven days.

a Or, contracted, i. e. not spreading. See on verse 6.

27 And the priest shall look upon him the seventh day: and if it be spread much abroad in the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean, it is the plague of leprosy.

28 And if the bright spot stay in his place, and spread not in the skin, but it be somwhat dark, it is a rising of the burning, and the priest shall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflamation of the burning b.

b (i. e.) Arising from the burning mentioned verse 24.

29 ¶ If a man or woman hath a plague upon the head or the beard,

30 Then the priest shall see the plague, and behold, if it be in sight deeper than the skin, and there be in it a yellow thin hair c, then the priest shall pronounce him unclean: it is a dry scall, even a leprosy upon the head or beard.

c The Leprosy in the Body turned the Hair white, in the Head or Beard it turned it yellow. And if a Man's Hair was yellow before, this might easily be distinguished from the rest, either by the thinness or smallness of it, which is here noted, or by its peculiar kind of Yellow, for there are divers kinds or degrees of the same Colour manifestly differing one from another, as in green Colours, &c.

31 And if the priest look on the plague of the scall, and behold, it be not in sight deeper than the skin, and that there is no black hair in it d, then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague of the scall seven days.

for had that appeared, it had ended the doubt, the black Hair being a sign of soundness and strength of Nature, verse 37. as the yellow Hair was a sign of unsoundness.

32 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the plague: and behold, if the scall spread not, and there be in it no yellow hair, and the scall be not in sight deeper than the skin, 33 He shall be shaven e: but the scall shall he not shave: and the priest shall shut up him that hath the scall, seven days more.

e For the more certain discovery of the growth or stay of the Plague.

34 And in the seventh day the priest shall look on the scall: and behold, if the scall be not spread in the skin, nor be in sight deeper than the skin, then the priest shall pronounce him clean: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

35 But if the scall spread much in the skin after his cleansing, 36 Then the priest shall look on him, and behold, if the scall be spread in the skin, the priest shall not seek for yellow hair f: he is unclean.

f He need not search for the Hair, or any other Sign, the spreading or running of it being a sure sign of Leprosy, without any other evidence.

37 But if the scall be in his sight at a stay, and that there is black hair grown up therein; the scall is healed, he is clean, and the priest shall pronounce him clean g.

g The Truth of the Thing, and not the Sentence of the Priest, made him clean; and if the Priest had partially pronounced one clean who was not clean, his Sentence had been null. And therefore it is a fond and dangerous Conceit to think that the Absolution given to any Sinner by a Priest, will stand him in any stead if he do not truly repent.

38 ¶ If a man also, or a woman, have in the skin of their flesh bright spots, even white bright spots, 39 Then the priest shall look: and behold, if the bright spots in the skin of their flesh be darkish white d, it is a freckled spot that groweth in the skin: he is clean.

h Or, contracted, or confined to the place where they are, and white.

Heb. and is bald.

40 And the man whose † hair is fallen off his head, he is bald, yet is he clean.

41 And he that hath his hair fallen off from the part of his head toward his face, he is forehead bald: yet is he clean.

42 And if there be in the bald head, or bald forehead, a white reddish sore, it is a leprosy i sprung up in his bald head, or his bald forehead.

i It is a sign that such Baldness came not from Age, or any Accident, but from the Leprosy.

43 Then the priest shall look upon it: and behold, if the rising of the sore be white reddish in his bald head, or in his bald forehead, as the leprosy appeareth in the skin of the flesh,

44 He is a leprous man, he is unclean, the priest shall pronounce him utterly unclean: his plague is in his head.

45 And the leper in whom the plague is, his clothes shall be rent k, and his head bare l, and he shall put a covering upon his upper lip m, and shall cry, Unclean, unclean n.

k To wit, in the upper and former Parts, which were most visible. This was done partly as a token of Sorrow, Ezra 9. 3, 5. Job 2. 12. because tho this was not a Sin, yet it was an effect of Sin, and a sore Punishment, whereby he was cut off both from Converse with Men, and from the Enjoyment of God in his Ordinances; partly as a warning to others to keep at a due distance from him wheresoever he came; and partly, as some add, that it might conduce to his Cure by giving the freer vent to the ill Humours. But the exposing of the affected Part to the cold would rather hinder than further Evaporation. l Another sign of Mourning, as appears from Levit. 10. 6. God would have Men tho not overwhelmed with, yet deeply sensible of his Judgments. m Partly as another badge of his Sorrow and Shame, as Ezek. 24. 17, 22. Micah 3. 7. and partly for the preservation of others from his infectious Breath or Touch. n As begging the Pity and Prayers of others, and confessing his own Infirmity, and cautioning those who came near him, to keep at a distance from him.

46 All the days wherein the plague shall be in him, he shall be defiled, he is unclean, he shall dwell alone, o * without the camp p shall his habitation be. Numb. 5. 2. and 12. 14.

o Partly for his Humiliation; partly to prevent the Infection of others; and partly to shew the danger of converse with Spiritual Lepers, or notorious Sinners. This rule excludes the Society of sound Persons, but not of Lepers. See 2 Kings 15. 5. 2 Chron. 26. 21. p So Numb. 12. 14. and afterward without Cities and Places of great Concourse, whereof we have Examples, 2 Kings 7. 3. Luke 17. 12.

47 ¶ The garment also that the plague of leprosy is in q, whether it be a woollen garment, or a linen garment, q Leprosy in Garments and Houses is unknown in these Times and Places, which is not strange, there being some Diseases or Distempers peculiar to some Ages and Countries, as the Learned have noted. And that such a thing was among the Jews, cannot reasonably be doubted; for, if Moses had been a deceiver, as some have impudently affirmed, a man of his Wisdom would not have exposed himself to the disbelief and contempt of his People by giving Laws about that which their experience shewed to be but a Fiction. r These two sorts are put by a Synecdoche for any other Garments.

48 Whether it be in the warp, or woof s of linen or of woollen, whether in a skin, or in any † thing † Heb. made of skin: work of.

s A Learned Man renders it in the outside, or in the inside of it. If the Signification of these words be doubtful or unknown now, as some of those of the living Creatures and precious Stones are confessed to be, it is not material to us, this Law being abolished; it sufficeth that the Jews understood these things by frequent experience.

49 And if the plague be greenish or reddish in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any † thing of skin, it is a † Heb. plague of leprosy, and shall be shewed unto the vessel or instrument. priest.

50 And the priest shall look upon the plague, and shut up it that hath the plague, seven days.

51 And he shall look on the plague on the seventh day: if the plague be spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any work that is made of a skin, the plague is a fretting leprosy, it is unclean.

52 He shall therefore burn that garment, whether warp, or woof, in woollen, or in linen, or any thing of skin, wherein the plague is: for it is a fretting leprosy, it shall be burnt in the fire.

53 And if the priest shall look, and behold, the plague be not spread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin:

54 Then the priest shall command that they wash the thing wherein the plague is, and he shall shut it up seven days more.

55 And the priest shall look on the plague after that it was washed: and behold, if the plague have not changed his colour t, and the plague be not spread, it is unclean, thou shalt burn it in the fire; it is fret inward, whether it be † bare within, or † Heb. without u. whether it be bald in the head thereof, or in the forehead thereof.

t If washing doth not take away that vicious Colour, and restore it to its own native Colour. u In the outside of the Garment, which is here called the Forehead or Foreside, as being most visible, or in the inside of it. Some of the Jewish Doctors understood it thus, whether the Garment was made thread-bare by the Leprosy, or by former wearing of it.

56 And if the priest look, and behold, the plague be somewhat dark after the washing of it, then he shall rend it out of the garment, or out of the skin, or out of the warp, or out of the woof.

57 And if it appear still in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin, it is a spreading plague, thou shalt burn that wherein the plague is, with fire.

58 And the garment, either warp, or woof, or whatsoever thing of skin it be, which thou shalt wash, if the plague be departed from them, then it shall be washed the second time, and shall be clean.

59 This is the law of the plague of leprosy, in a garment of woollen, or linen, either in the warp, or woof, or any thing of skins, to pronounce it clean, or to pronounce it unclean.

CHAP. XIV.

Rites and Sacrifices for the cleansing of a Leper; the Leprosie being heal'd and judged so by the Priests, who going without the Camp must take two living clean birds, &c. The manner of it: One to be slain, the other to be let loose, 1—9. On the eighth day two male lambs and one ewe-lamb, and meat-offering, 10——20. If poor, 21—32. Of the Leprosie of houses how to be known, 33——48. The manner of cleansing them, 49—53. A repetition of this and the former Chapter, 54—57.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 This shall be the law of the leper in the day of his cleansing: he * shall be brought unto the priest a.

* Mat. 8. 24 Mar. 1. 40, 41. Lu. 5. 12, 14.

a Not into the Priests house, but to some place without the Camp or City, Levit. 13. 46. which the Priest shall appoint.

3 And the priest shall go forth out of the camp, and the priest shall look, and behold, if the plague of leprosie be healed b in the leper, b To wit, by God. For God alone did heal or cleanse him really, the Priest only ministerially and declaratively, as Ministers are said to remit sins, though it be granted that none can truly and properly forgive sins but God, Mark 2. 7.

4 Then shall the priest command to take for him that is to be cleansed, two † birds c alive, and clean d, and * Cedar-wood e, and scarlet f, and hyssop g,

† Or, sparrows. * Numb 19 6 Psal. 51 7.

c The one to represent Christ as dying for his sins, the other to represent him as rising again for his purification or justification. d Allowed for food and for sacrifice. e A stick of Cedar, to which the hyssop and one of the Birds was tied by the scarlet thred. Cedar seems to be chosen, to note that the leper was now freed from that purrefaction or corruption which his leprosie had brought upon him, that kind of wood being in a manner incorruptible. f A thred of wool of a scarlet colour, Heb. 9. 19. to represent both the lepers sinfulness, Isa. 1. 18. and the blood of Christ, and the happy change of the lepers colour and complexion, which before was wan and loathsome, now sprightly and beautiful. g Chosen partly for its fragrant smell, which signified the cure of the lepers ill scent, and partly for conveniency in the use of sprinkling. See Exod. 12. 22.

5 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed h in an earthen vessel, over † running water i.

† Heb. living water. Gen. 26. 19.

h To wit, by some other man. The Priest did not kill it himself, because it was not properly a sacrifice, as being killed without the camp, and not in that place to which all sacrifices were confined; and if it had been a sacrifice, that might be killed by another, so long as the sprinkling of the blood of it, which was the most proper and essential act in the sacrifice, was done by the Priest. i It seems to be a Metathesis or transplacing of words, for over-running water put in an earthen vessel. Thus the blood of the bird and the water were mixed together, partly for the conveniency of sprinkling, and partly to signifie Christ, who came by water and blood, 1 John 5 6. The running water, i. e. spring or river water by its liveliness and motion did fitly signifie the restoring of liveliness to the leper, who was in a manner dead with his leprosie, as was noted before.

6 As for the living bird he shall take it, and the Cedar-wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them, and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water.

7 And he shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosie, seven times k, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose † into the open field l.

† Heb. upon the face of the field.

k To signifie his perfect cleansing and restoration to all his former priviledges. Compare Levit. 4. 17. and 7. 15, 16. and 10. 18, 19 l The place of its former abode, signifying the taking off that restraint which was laid upon the leper, and the liberty which the leper now had to return to his former habitation and conversation with other men.

8 And he that is to be cleansed, shall wash his clothes, and shave off all his hair m, and wash himself in water, that he may be clean: And after that he shall come into the camp, and shall * tarry abroad out of his tent n seven days.

* Numb. 12. 15.

m Partly to discover his perfect soundness; partly to preserve him from relapse through any seeds or relicks of it which might remain in his hair or in his clothes; and partly to teach him to put off his old lusts, and become a new man. n Out of his former habitation, in some separate place, lest some of his leprosie yet lurking in him should break forth to the infection of his family.

9 But it shall be on the seventh day, that he shall shave all his hair o off his head, and his beard, and his eye-brows, even all his hair he shall shave off: And he shall wash his clothes, also he shall wash his flesh in water, and he shall be clean.

o Which began to grow again since it was first shaved, and now for more caution is shaved again.

10 And on the eigth day he shall take two he-lambs † Heb. without blemish, and one ewe lamb of † the first year without blemish, and three tenth deals of fine flour for * a meat-offering mingled with oyl p, and one log q of oyl. † Heb. daughter of the year. * Chap. 2. 1.

p Oyl is added here as a fit sign of Gods grace and mercy, and of the lepers healing. q A measure for liquid things containing six eggshels full.

11 And the priest that maketh him clean r, shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things before the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

r The healing is ascribed to God, ver. 13. but the ceremonial cleansing or making of him clean and fit for society was an act of the Priest using the rites which God had prescribed, whereby the sinner was cleansed.

12 And the priest shall take one he-lamb, and offer him for a tresp*a*s-offering s, and the log of oyl, and * wave them for a wave-offering, before the LORD. * Exod. 29. 24.

s To teach them, that sin was the cause of leprosie and of all diseases, and that these ceremonial observations had a further meaning, even to make them sensible of their spiritual diseases, their sins, and to fly to God in Christ for the cure of them.

13 And he shall slay the lamb in * the place where he shall kill the sin-offering, and the burnt-offering, in the holy place t: for * as the sin-offering is the priests, so is the tresp*a*s-offering: it is * most holy u. * Exod. 29. 11. chap. 7. 2. and 4. 24. * Chap. 2. 3. and 10.

t To wit, in the Court of the Tabernacle. See Levit. 1. 11. 7. 7. and 7. 7. u Both of them are equally holy, and therefore to be offered in the same place.

14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the tresp*a*s-offering, and the priest shall put it upon * the tip of the right ear x of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right x hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot x. * Exod. 29. 20. chap. 8. 23.

x To signifie, that he was now free to hear God's word in the appointed places, from which he was before excluded, and to touch any person or thing without defiling it, and to go whither he pleased.

15 And the priest shall take some of the log of oyl z and pour it into the palm of his own left hand.

z As the blood signified Christ's blood by which men obtain remission of sins, so the oyl noted the graces of the Spirit by which they are regenerated and renewed.

16 And the priest shall dip his right-finger in the oyl that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle of the oyl with his finger seven times before the LORD.

a (i. e.) Before the second vail which covered the Holy of Holies, where God is oft said to dwell, and to be present in a peculiar manner.

17 And of the rest of the oyl that is in his hand, shall the priest put upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the blood of the tresp*a*s-offering b.

b (ie e) Upon the place of that blood, as it is expressed, verse 28. or where that blood was put, verse 14. Or, over and besides the blood, &c. i. e. As the blood was put in those places, so shall the oyl be.

18 And the remnant of the oyl that is in the priests hand, he shall pour upon the head of him that is to be cleansed: and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the LORD.

19 And

19 And the priest shall offer * the sin-offering, and make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed from his uncleanness, and afterward he shall kill the burnt-offering. * chap. 5. 1.

20 And the priest shall offer the burnt-offering, and the meat offering, upon the altar: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 And * if he be poor, and † cannot get so much, then he shall take one lamb for a tresp*a*s-offering † to be waved, to make an atonement for him, and one tenth-deal of fine flour mingled with oyl, for a meat offering, and a log of oyl, * chap. 5. 7. Heb. his hand reach not. † Heb. for his saving.

22 And two turtle doves, or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get: and the one shall be a sin-offering, and the other a burnt-offering.

23 And he shall bring them on the eighth day for his cleansing unto the priest, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the LORD.

24 And the priest shall take the lamb of the tresp*a*s-offering, and the log of oyl, and the priest shall wave them for a wave-offering before the LORD.

25 And he shall kill the lamb of the tresp*a*s-offering, and the priest shall take some of the blood of the tresp*a*s-offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

26 And the priest shall pour of the oyl into the palm of his own left hand.

27 And the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger some of the oyl that is in his left hand, seven times before the LORD:

28 And the priest shall put of the oyl that is in his hand, upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the place of the blood of the tresp*a*s-offering.

29 And the rest of the oyl that is in the priests hand, he shall put upon the head of him that is to be cleansed, to make an atonement for him before the LORD.

30 And he shall offer the one of the turtle doves, or of the young pigeons, such as he can get:

31 Even such as he is able to get, the one for a sin-offering and the other for a burnt-offering, with the meat-offering. And the priest shall make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed, before the LORD.

32 This is the law of him in whom is the plague of leprosie, whose hand is not able to get that which pertaineth to his cleansing.

33 And the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron saying,

34 When ye be come into the land of Canaan which I give to you for a possession, and I put the plague of leprosie in a house of the land of your possession:

35 And he that oweth the house shall come and tell the priest, saying, It seemeth to me, there is as it were a plague in the house;

36 Then the priest shall command that they c ‖ empty the house before the priest go into it, to see the plague, that all that is in the house be not made unclean d: and afterward the priest shall go in to see the house. ‖ Or, prepare.

c (i. e.) The possessours of the house. d It is observable here, that neither the people nor the houshold stuffe were polluted till the leprosie was discovered and declared by the Priest, to shew what great difference God makes between sins of ignorance, and sins against knowledge and conscience.

37 And he shall look on the plague: and behold if the plague be in the walls of the house e, with hollow strakes f, greenish or reddish, which in sight are lower than the wall:

e This was an extraordinary judgment of God peculiar to this people, either as a punishment of their sins, which were much more sinful and inexcusable than the sins of other nations; or as a special mean and help to Repentance, which God afforded to them above other people; or as a document of the mischievous nature of sin, typified by leprosie, which did not only destroy persons, but their habitations also: see Ezech. 5. 4. f Such as were in the bodies of leprous persons, Levit. 13. 3.

38 Then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house, and shut up the house seven days.

39 And the priest shall come again the seventh day, and shall look: and behold, if the plague be spread in the walls of the house:

40 Then the priest shall command that they take away the stones in which the plague is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place g without the city.

g Where they used to cast dirt and filthy things.

41 And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust h that they scrape off, without the city into an unclean place.

h The mortar or other Rubbish.

42 And they shall take other stones, and put them in the place of those stones, and he shall take other morter, and shall plaister the house.

43 And if the plague come again, and break out in the house, after that he hath taken away the stones, and after he hath scraped the house, and after it is plaistered:

44 Then the priest shall come and look, and behold, if the plague be spread in the house, it is a fretting leprosie in the house: it is unclean.

45. And he shall break down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the morter of the house: and he shall carry them forth out of the city into an unclean place.

46 Moreover, he that goeth into the house, all the while that it is shut up, shall be unclean until the even.

47. And he that lieth in the house, shall wash his clothes: and he that eateth in the house, shall wash his clothes.

48 And if the priest † shall come in, and look upon it, and behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plaistred, then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the plague is healed. † Heb. in coming in shall come in

49 And he shall take to cleanse the house, two birds, and cedar-wood, and scarlet, and hyssop.

50 And he shall kill the one of the birds in an earthen vessel, over running water.

51 And he shall take the cedar-wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the slain bird, and in the running water, and sprinkle the house seven times.

52 And he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, and with the running water, and with the living bird, and with the cedar-wood and with the hyssop, and with the scarlet.

53 But he shall let go the living bird out of the city into the open fields, and make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean.

54 This is the Law for all manner of plague of leprosie and * scall, * chap. 13. 30.

55 And for the leprosie of a garment, and of an house,

56 And for a rising, and for a scab, and for a bright spot;

57 To teach i † when it is unclean, and when it is clean: this is the law of leprosie. † Heb. in the day of the uncleans, and in the day of the clean.

i To direct the Priest when to pronounce a person or house clean or unclean. So it was not left to the Priests power or will, but they were tied to plain rules, such as the people might discern no less than the Priest.

CHAP. XV.

Uncleanness by Issues, and their Purrefaction and Expiation, 1——15. Of flowing Seed, its uncleanness, 16——18. Of Women. Their Courses ordinarily, 19——24. Extraordinary, 25——28. Their Expiation, 29, 30. An Exhortation to Cleanness, lest they die, and that they pollute not the Tabernacle, 31. A Repetition of the whole, 32, 33.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, * When any man hath a † runing issue out of his flesh a, because of his issue he is unclean. * Num. 5. 2. † Or, running of the reins a His secret parts, called flesh, Levit. 6. 10. and 12. 3. Ezek. 16. 26. and 23. 20.

3 And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue b, it is his uncleanness.

b Or if it haue run, and been stopped in great measure, either by the grosines of the humour, or by some obstruction in parts that it cannot run freely, as it did, but only droppeth.

4 Every bed whereon he lieth, that hath the issue, is unclean: and every † thing c whereon he sitteth, shall be unclean. † Heb. vessel.

c Heb. vessel, by which the Hebrews understand all sorts of houshold-stuff.

5 And whosoever toucheth his bed shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

6 And he that sitteth on any thing whereon he sate that hath the issue, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

7 And he that toucheth the flesh d of him that hath the issue, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

d That is, any part of his body: the word flesh being taken otherwise here than v. 2. As the same word is frequently used in scripture in differing significations in the same chapter, and sometimes in the same verse, as Matth. 8. 22.

8 And if he that hath the issue spit upon him that is clean, then he shal wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

9 And what saddle soever he rideth upon that hath the issue, shall be unclean.

10 And whosoever toucheth any thing that was under him, shall be unclean until the even: and he that beareth any of those things, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

11 And whomsoever he toucheth that hath the issue, (and hath not rinsed his hands in water) e, he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

e This may be understood, either, 1. Of the person touching, if he that hath an issue toucheth another with unwashen hands. Thus most take it. But why then should it be limited to his hands? for if he had touched him by any other part, as suppose by kissing him, he had defiled him, though his hands had been washed. Or rather 2. Of the person touched, to whom the washing of his hands is prescribed as an easier way of cleansing himself, if speedily used, but if that was neglected or delayed, a more laborious course was enjoyned him. And thus the Syriack interpreter understands it.

12 And the * vessel of earth that he toucheth which hath the issue, shall be broken: and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water. * chap. 6. 28. and 11. 32. 33.

13 And when he that hath an issue is cleansed of his issue f, then * he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing g, and wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean h. * chap. 14. 10.

f When his issue is not only stopped in part or for a season, but hath wholly ceased. g To wit, for the use of the ceremonies prescribed in such cases. See Numb. 19. 11, 12. h i. e. Admitted to converse with men, and with God in publick ordinances.

14 And on the eighth day he shall take to him * two turtle doves, or two young pigeons, and come before the LORD unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and give them unto the priest. * chap. 14. 22.

15 And the priest shall offer them, the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, and the priest shall make an atonement for him i before the LORD, for his issue.

i Not as if this was in it self a sin, but only a punishment of sin; though oft-times it was sinful as being a fruit of a mans intemperance, and immoderate lust. See Levit. 14. 12.

16 And if * any mans seed of copulation go out from him k, then he shall wash all his flesh in water, and be unclean until the even. * Deut. 23. 10.

k Not through weakness of the parts, as that ver. 3. but in his sleep, which is called nightly pollution, which though involuntary, might arise from some lustful Dream or imagination. But if it was voluntary, and by a man's own procurement when awake, it was esteemed abominable, and a degree of murder. See Gen. 38. 9.

17 And every garment, and every skin whereon u the seed of copulation shall be washed with water, and be unclean until the even.

18 The woman also with whom man l shall lie with seed of copulation, they shall both bathe themselves in water, and be unclean until the even.

l Or, The man, to wit, that had such an issue, which is plainly to be understood out of the whole context. For though in some special cases relating to the Worship of God, men were to forbear the use of the marriage-bed, as Exod. 19. 15. and 1 Sam. 21. 4. yet to affirm that the use of it in other cases did generally defile the persons, and make them unclean till even, is contrary to the whole current of Scripture, which affirms the marriage-bed to be undefiled, Heb. 13. 4. to the practice of the Jews, which is a good comment upon their own laws, and to the light of nature and reason.

19 And * if a woman have an issue, and her issue in her flesh be blood m, she shall be † put apart n seven days o: and whosoever p toucheth her, shall be unclean until the even. * chap. 12. 2. † Heb. in her separation.

m Heb. And a woman when she shall have an issue of blood, (and because that might be at her nose or other parts, he adds) and her issue shall be in her flesh, i. e. in her secret parts, as the word flesh is taken, ver. 2. So it notes her monthly disease. n Not out of the camp, as the lepers and some others, but from converse with her husband and others, and from access to the house of God. o For sometimes it continues so long, and it was but decent to allow some time for purification after the ceasing of her issue. p To wit, of grown persons. For the infant, to whom in that case she might give suck, was exempted from this pollution by the greater law of necessity, and by that antecedent law which required women to give suck to their own children.

20 And every thing that she lieth upon in her separation shall be unclean: every thing also that she sitteth upon shall be unclean.

21 And whosoever toucheth her bed, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself, in water, and be unclean until the even.

22 And whosoever toucheth any thing that she sate upon, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water and be unclean until the even.

23 And if it be on her bed, or on any thing whereon she sitteth, when he toucheth it, he shall be unclean until the even.

24. And if any man lie with her at all, and her flowers be upon him, he shall be unclean seven dayes q: and, all the bed whereon he lieth shall be unclean.

q If he did this unwittingly; but if the man and Woman did this knowingly, this was a gross sin, Ezek. 18. 6. and they being accused and convicted were punished with death, Levit. 20. 18. for as there was a turpitude in the action so it was very prejudical to the children then begotten, who were commonly weak, or leprous or otherwise disordered; which was also an injury to the Commonwealth of Israel, and redounded to the dishonour of God and of the true Religion, that the professors thereof gave such publick evidence of their intemperance.

25 And if a woman have an issue of her blood many days out of the time of her separation, or if it run beyond the time of her separation r, all the days of the issue of her uncleanness shall be as the days of her separation, she shall be unclean.

r To wit, the seven days mentioned, Levit. 12. 2. as suppose she had the Emerods, &c.

26 Every bed whereon she lieth all the days of her issue, shall be unto her as the bed of her separation: and whatsoever she sitteth upon shall be unclean, as the uncleanness of her separation.

27 And whosoever toucheth those things shall be unclean, and shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

28 But if she be cleansed of her issue, then she shall number to her self seven days s, and after that she shall be clean.

s From the stopping of her issue, as it is apparent. And this was for trial, whether it was only a temporary obstruction, or a real cessation.

29 And on the eighth day she shall take unto her two turtles, or two young pigeons, and bring them unto the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

30 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, and the priest shall make an atonement for her before the LORD, for the issue of her uncleanness.

31 Thus shall ye separate the children of Israel from their uncleanness, that they die not in their uncleanness, when they defile my tabernacle t, that is among them.

t Which they did both ceremonially, by coming into it in their uncleanness, and morally by the gross neglect and contempt of Gods express and positive command to cleanse themselves.

32 This is the law of him that hath an issue, and of him whose seed goeth from him, and is defiled therewith.

33 And of her that is sick of her flowers, and of him that hath an issue, of the man and of the woman, and of him that lieth with her which is unclean.

See Levit. 4. 6. c For his irreverence and presumption. d Visibly and gloriously: That is as it were my presence-chamber, whither the priest shall not dare to come but when I call him. e Either in that dark place, for there was no light came into it, and clouds and darkness go together, and one may be put for the other: or in a bright and glorious cloud, which used to be over the mercy-seat, or rather in the cloud of incense mentioned afterward, ver. 13.

3 Thus

3 Thus f shall Aaron come into the holy place, with * a young bullock g for a sin-offering h, and a ram for a burnt-offering. * ch. 4. 3.

f In this manner or upon these terms. g (i. e.) with the blood of it, as it is explained ver. 14. So it is a Synecdoche, the whole put for the part. For as for the body of it, that was to be killed and offered without upon the Altar of burnt-offerings. h For his own and families sins, for a goat was offered for the sins of the people.

4 He shall put on the * holy linen coat i, and he shall have the linen breeches upon his flesh, and shall be girded with a linen girdle, and with the linen mitre shall he be attired. These are holy garments k: therefore * shall he wash his flesh in water, and so put them on. * Exod. 28. 39. 43. * Exod. 30. 20.

i It is observable that the High-priest did not now use his peculiar and glorious robes, but only his linnen garments, which were common to him with the ordinary priests. The reason whereof was, either because this was not a day of feasting and rejoycing, but of mourning and humiliation, at which times people were to lay aside their ornaments, Exod. 33. 5. Some conceive, that under the linen garments here named are comprehended his more glorious robes also by a Synecdoche, But that doth not appear neither from hence, nor from other places alledged. Had onely his holy garments been mentioned in general, all might have been understood, but when onely the linen apparel is mentioned here and after ver. 23. and when that is so particularly expressed in four several parts of it, and not a word of the other either here or in the rest of the chapter, it seems presumptuous to add them here without any ground or evidence. Or because it was fit he should not exalt but abase himself, when he was to appear before the divine Majesty, and therefore he was to come in the meanest of his Priestly habits: Or that it might be an evidence of the imperfection of this Priesthood, and of the great difference between the Levitical, and the true High-Priest Christ Jesus, whose prerogative alone it is to go into the true Holy of Holies with his glorious robes, when this must carry thither the characters of his meanness. k Because appropriated to an holy and religious use, for which reason other things are called holy. See Exod. 29. 31. and 30. 25. and 2 Chron. 5. 5.

5 And he shall take of the congregation of the children of Israel two kids of the goats for a sin-offering, and one ram for a burnt-offering.

6 And Aaron shall offer his bullock of the sin-offering, which is for himself, and make * an atonement for himself, and for his house l. * Heb. 9. 7.

l (i. e.) His family, as Gen. 7. 1. to wit, the Priests and Levites. See Numb. 1. 49.

7 And he shall take the two goats, and present them before the LORD at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats: one lot for the LORD m, and the other lot for the † scapegoat. † Heb. Azazel.

m For the Lord's use and service by way of sacrifice. Both this and the other Goat typified Christ; this in his death and passion for us; that in his Resurrection for our deliverance.

9 And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the LORDS lot † fell n, and offer him for a sin-offering. † Heb. went up.

n So the lot is said to fall, Jonah 1. 7. Act. 1. 26. Heb. Went up, to wit, out of the vessel, into which the lots were put, and out of which they were brought up.

10. But the goat on which the lot fell to be the scapegoat, shall be presented alive before the LORD, to make an atonement with him o, and to let him go for a scape-goat into the wilderness.

o In manner hereafter expressed, ver. 21. 22.

11 And Aaron shall bring the bullock p of the sin-offering which is for himself, and shall make an atonement for himself, and for his house, and shall kill the bullock of the sin-offering which is for himself.

p Mentioned in general ver. 6. The ceremonies whereof are here particularly described. This was a differing bullock or heifer from that Numb. 19. as appears by comparing the places.

12 And he shall take a censer full of burning coals of fire from off the altar q before the LORD, and his hands full of sweet incense r beaten small, and bring it within the vail s.

q To wit, of burnt-offering, where the fire was always burning, and whence fire was taken for such uses as these. r Of which see Exod. 30. 34, 35, 38. s (i. e.) Into the Holy of holies, ver. 2.

13 And he shall put the incense upon the fire t before the LORD, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy-seat that is upon the testimony, that he die not u.

t Which was in the censer, ver. 12. * For so gross an errour committed in the highest acts of worship, and that by an High-Priest, whose knowledge and function was a great aggravation to his sin.

14 And * he shall take of the blood of the bullock, and * sprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy-seat x eastward y: and before the mercy-seat z shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times. * Heb. 9. 13. and 10. 4. * ch. 4. 6.

x To teach us, that God is merciful to sinners only through and for the blood of Christ. y (i. e.) With his face east-ward, or upon the eastern part of it, towards the people, who were in the court which lay east-ward from the Holy of holies, which was the most western part of the Tabernacle. This signified that the High-priest in this act represented the people; and that God accepted it on their behalf. z On the ground.

15 Then shall he kill a the goat of the sin-offering that is for the people, and bring his blood within the vail, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy-seat, and before the mercy-seat.

a Either this was done before he entred into the Holy of holies, though it be mentioned after, such transi-placings of passages being not unusual: or rather he went out of the Holy of holies, and killed it, and then returned thither again with its blood, and this agrees best with the text, nor are transpositions to be allowed without necessity. And whereas the High-priest is said to be allowed to enter into that place but once in a year, that is to be understood, but one day in a year, though there seems to have been occasion of going in and coming out more than once upon that day.

16 And he shall make an atonement for the holy place b, because of the uncleannesses of the children of Israel c, and because of their transgressions in all their sins: and so shall he do for the tabernacle of the congregation that † remaineth among them, in the midst of their uncleanness d. † Heb. dwelleth.

b Of which see below ver. 19, 20. and Exod. 29. 36. Levit. 8. 15. Heb. 9. 13. c For though the people did not enter into that place, yet their sins entred thither, and would hinder the effects of the High-priests mediation on their behalf, if God was not reconciled to them. d Encompassed with their sins, being in the midst of a sinful people, who defile not themselves only, but also Gods Sanctuary, as God complains, Ezek. 23. 38, 39.

17 * And there shall be no man in the tabernacle † of the congregation e when he goeth in to make an atonement in the holy place, until he come out, and have made an atonement for himself, and for his houshold, and for all the congregation of Israel. * Luk. 1. 10. † Heb. of meeting Exod. 29. 42.

e (i. e.) In the holy place, where the Priests and Levites were at other times. This was commanded for the greater reverence to the Divine Majesty then in a more special manner appearing, and that none of them might cast an eye into the Holy of holies, as the High-priest went in or came out.

18 And he shall go out unto the altar f that is before the LORD, and make an atonement for it, and shall take of the blood of the bullock, and of the blood of the goat, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about.

f To wit, the altar of incense, where the blood of sacrifices was to be put, Levit. 4. 4. and particularly the blood of the sin-offerings offered upon this day of atonement, Exod. 30. 10. and which is most truly and properly said to be before the Lord, i. e. before the place where God in special manner dwelt, to wit, the Holy of holies. Some understand it of the altar of burnt-offerings, because he is said to go out to it. But that going out relates not to the Tabernacle, but to the Holy of holies, into which he was said to go in, v. 17. Add to this, that this altar which is atoned by the High-priest seems to be in that place where he only might now come, and therefore in the Holy place, called here the Tabernacle, from which all other priests were for this day excluded, whereas the altar of burnt-offerings was without the Holy place or Tabernacle, to wit at the door of it and in the court of the Priests.

19 And he shall sprinkle of the blood upon it with his finger seven times g, and cleanse it, and hallow it from the uncleannesses of the children of Israel.

g To signifie its perfect cleansing, seven being a number of perfection, and our perfect reconciliation by the blood of Christ here represented.

20 And when he hath made an end of reconciling the holy place, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat:

21 And Aaron shall lay both his hands h upon the head of the live goat, and confess over him i all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions in all their sins k, putting them upon the head l of the goat, and shall send him away by the hand of † a fit man m into the wilderness n. † Heb. a man of opportunities.

h See on Exod. 29. 10. and Levit. 1. 4. i Confession of sin being a duty to accompany the sacrifice offered for it, as we see Levit. 5. 5. Numb. 5. 7. k Or, with or according to all their sins: for so the Hebrew particle is oft used. He mentions iniquities, transgressions, and sins, to note sins of all sorts, and that a very free and full confession was to be made, and that the smallest sins needed, and the greatest sins were not excluded from the benefit of Christs death here represented. l Charging all their sins and the punishment due to them upon the goat, which though only a ceremony, yet being done according to Gods appointment and manifestly pointing at Christ upon whom their iniquities and punishments were laid, Isa. 53. 5. 6. it was available for this end. And hence the heathens took their custom of seleeting one beast or man, upon whom they laid all their imprecations and curses, and whom they killed as an expiatory sacrifice for their sins, and to prevent their ruin. m One that knows the wilderness, and the way to it, and what places in it are most convenient for that use. Heb. a man of [illegible] years and dexterity, who who may be trusted with this work. u Which signified the removal of their sins far away both from the people, and out of Gods sight, or from the place of his presence. And here the goat being neglected by all men, and exposed to many hardships and hazards from wild beasts, which were numerous there, might further signifie Christs being forsaken both by God and by men, even by his own disciples, and the many dangers and sufferings he underwent. The Jews write, that this goat was carried to the mountain called Azazel, whence the goat is so called, v. 10. and that there he was cast down headlong, and that the red string by which he was led turned white, when God was pleased with the Israelites, otherwise it remained red: and then they mourned all that year. And the antient Hebrews write that 40 years before the destruction of the Temple, which was about the time of Christs death, this red string turned no more white.

22 And the goat shall bear upon him all their iniquities unto a land † not inhabited: and he shall let go the goat in the wilderness.

† Heb. of separation.

23 And Aaron shall come o into the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall put off the linnen garments which he put on, when he went into the holy place, and shall leave them there.

o Forthwith, not expecting the return of the man who carried the goat away, but securely committing that to Gods providence he shall go on in his work.

24 And he shall wash his flesh with water in the holy place p, and put on his garments q, and come forth, and offer his burnt-offering, and the burnt-offering of the people, and make an atonement for himself, and for the people.

p Either in the laver appointed for that purpose, Or, in some other vessel within the holy place, because after he had washed in it he is said to come forth. q Not his ordinary Priestly linnen garments, for he was to leave them in the Tabernacle, v. 23. but the High-priestly garments, called his garments properly and peculiary, and by way of distinction from the former garments, which are called holy garments, v. 4. and the linnen garments, v. 23. but never his garments, as these are. And this change of his garments was not without cause. For the common Priestly garments were more proper and fit for him in the former part of his ministration, both because he was to appear before the Lord in the most holy place to humble himself and make atonement for his own and for the peoples sins, and therefore his humbleſt and meanest attire was most fit, and because he was to lay his hands upon that goat on which all their sins were put, by which touch both he and his garments would be in some sort defiled, and therefore as we read here that he washed himself or his flesh, so we may well presume his linnen garments were laid by for the washing, as the cloaths of him who carried away the scape-goat were washed, v. 26. And the High-priestly garments were most proper for the latter part of his work, which was of another nature.

*ch.4. 10. 25 And the * fat of the sin-offering shall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for a scape-goat, shall wash r his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward come into the camp.

r Because he had contracted some degree of ceremonial uncleanness by the touch of the goat.

*ch.4.12, 21. and 6. 30. Heb. 13. 11. † Heb. of ‖ Heb. of 27 * And the bullock † for the sin-offering, and the goat ‖ for the sin-offering, whose blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, shall one carry forth without the camp, and they shall burn in the fire their skins, and their flesh, and their dung.

28 And he that burneth them shall wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in water, and afterward he shall come into the camp.

29 And this shall be a statute for ever s unto you, *chap.23. 27. Numb.29. 7. that * in the seventh month t, on the tenth day u of the month, ye shall afflict your souls x, and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger that sojourneth among you.

s See on Exod. 12. 14. t Answering part to our September and part to our October; when they had gathered in all their fruits, and were most at leisure for Gods service: This time God chose for this and other feasts, herein graciously condescending to mens necessities and conveniences, being contented with that time which men could best spare. u Obj. It was on the ninth day, Lev. 23. 32. Ans. It began in the evening of the ninth day, and continued till the evening of the tenth day, as is there sufficiently implied. x i. e. your selves, as the word soul is frequently used, both your bodies by abstinence from food and other delights, and your minds by anguish and grief for former sins, which though bitter, yet is voluntarily in all true penitents, who are therefore here said not to be afflicted, but to afflict themselves, or to be active in the work.

30 For on that day shall the priest make an atonement for you, to cleanse you, that ye may be clean from all your sins before the LORD.

31 It shall be a sabbath of rest y unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls by a statute for ever.

y Observed as a sabbath day by cessation from all worldly and servile works, and diligent attendance upon Gods worship and service.

* chap. 4. 3, 5, 16. † Heb. fill his hand. 32 * And the priest whom he shall anoint z, and whom he shall † consecrate to minister in the priests office in his fathers stead, shall make the atonement, and shall put on the linen clothes, even the holy garments.

z He, i. e. either God, who commanded him to be anointed, as men are oft said to do what others do by their command, or the High-priest, who was to anoint his successour. Or, the third person is here put indefinitely or impersonally, for, who shall be anointed.

33 And he shall make an atonement for the holy sanctuary, and he shall make an atonement for the tabernacle of the congregation, and for the altar: and he shall make an atonement for the priests, and for all the people of the congregation.

34 And this shall be an everlasting statute unto you, to make an atonement for the children of Israel, for all their sins * once a year. And he did as the LORD commanded Moses. *Exod.30. 10. Heb.9.7.

CHAP. XVII.

Sacrifices to be offered only in the temple, 1—6. and not to devils, 7. on pain of death, 8, 9. blood not to be eat: on the same pain: the life being in the blood, and it given for an atonement, 10——14. nor any beast that died of it self, or was torn by beasts, 15.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them, This is the thing which the LORD hath commanded, saying,

3 What man soever there be of the house of Israel that killeth a an oxe, or lamb, or goat in the camp b, or that killeth it, out of the camp b, a Not for common use or eating, for such beasts might be killed by any person or in any place, but for sacrifice, as manifestly appears both from v. 4. where that is expressed, and from the reason of this law, which is peculiar to sacrifices, v. 5. and from Deut. 12. 5, 15, 21.

b In Canaan, the city answered to the camp, and so it forbids any mans doing this either in the city or in the country.

4 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle c of the congregation, to offer an offering unto the LORD before the tabernacle of the LORD, blood shall be imputed unto that man d: he hath shed blood, and that man shall be cut off from among his people e:

c This was appointed, partly in opposition to the heathens, who sacrificed in all places; partly to cut off occasions of Idolatry; partly to prevent the peoples usurpation of the Priests office; and partly to signifie, that God would accept of no sacrifices but through Christ and in the Church; (of both which the Tabernacle was a type. See Heb. 9. 11.) and according to his own prescript. But though men were tyed to this law, God was free to dispense with his own law, which he did sometimes to the Prophets, as 1 Sam. 7. 9. and 11. 15. &c. and afterwards more fully and generally in the days of the Messiah, Mal. 1. 11. Joh. 4. 21, 24. d He shall be esteemed and punished as a murderer both by God and by men. See Isa. 66. 3. The reason is, because he shed that blood, which, though not mans blood, yet was as pretious, being sacred and appropriated to God, and typically the price by which mens lives were ransomed. e By death, either by the hand of God, in case men do not know it or neglect to punish it, or by men, if the fact was publick and evident.

5 To the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices, which they f offer in the open field, even that they may bring them unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation unto the priest, and offer them for peace-offerings g unto the LORD.

f Either 1. the Egyptians and other idolatrous nations, which commonly sacrificed to Idols or Devils in fields or any places: who are not here named but may be defigned by the particle they, in way of contempt, as if they were not worthy to be named, as that particle is used, Luk. 14. 24. and 19. 27. Joh. 7. 11. and 8. 10. Or rather, 2. the Israelites now mentioned, and plainly understood in the following they, who, before the building of the Tabernacle, took the same liberty herein which the Gentiles did, from which they are now restrained. g He nameth these not exclusively to others, as appears from the reason of the law, and from v. 8, 9. but especially, because in these the temptation was more common in regard of their frequency, and more powerful, because part of these belonged to the offerer, and the pretence was more plausible, because their sanctity was something of a lower degree than others, these being only called holy, and allowed in part to the people, when the other are called most holy, and were wholly appropriated either to God, or to the Priests.

6 And the priests shall sprinkle the blood h upon the altar of the LORD, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and burn the fat for a * sweet savour unto the LORD. *Exod.29. 18. ch.4.

h This verse contains a reason of the foregoing law, because of Gods propriety in the blood and fat, wherewith also God was well pleased, and the people reconciled. And these two parts only are mentioned, as the most eminent, and peculiar, though other parts also were reserved for God.

7 And they shall no more offer their sacrifices unto devils i, after whom they have gone a whoring k: This shall be a statute for ever unto them throughout their generations.

i So they did, not directly or intentionally, but by construction and consequence, because the Devil is the author of idolatry, and is eminently served, pleased and honoured by it. And as the Egyptians were notorious for their Idolatry, as appears by the testimony of Scripture, and of all antient writers, so the Israelites were infected with their leaven Jos. 24. 14. Ezek. 20. 7. and 23. 2, 3. And the name of Devils is commonly given in Scripture to Idols, yea even to those which seemed most innocent, as to Jeroboams Calves, 2 Chron. 11. 15. by which he and the people designed and professed to worship the true God, as is manifest from the nature of the thing, and from many places of Scripture, and the worshippers of Idols are esteemed and called worshippers of Devils. See Deut. 32. 17. Psal.

Psal. 106. 37. 1 Cor. 10. 20. Rev. 9. 20. The Hebrew word rendred Devils signifies goats, either because goats were eminently worshipped by the Egyptians, as Herodotus, Strabo, and others note, and diverse of the Idols of the Heathens were of that or a like form; or because the Devil did oft appear to the Heathens in that shape, as their own authors note. k For Idolatry, especially in Gods people, is commonly called whoredom, as Ezek. 16. 16, 26. & 23. 8, 19, 21, &c. and that justly, because it is a violation of that covenant by which they were peculiarly betrothed or married to God. See Hos. 2. 19, 18, 19.

8 And thou shalt say unto them, Whatsoever man there be of the House of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn among you, that offereth a burnt-offering, or sacrifice,

9 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer it unto the LORD, even that man shall be cut off from among his people.

*Gen.9.4. chap.7. 26. & 19. 26. Deut. 12. 16. & 15.23. 1 Sam.14. 33. Ezek. 44.7. Jer. 44.11. † Heb. soul. 10 * And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, that eateth any manner of blood, * I will even set my face against that soul l that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people.

l (i.e.) I will be an enemy to him, and execute vengeance upon him immediately; because such persons probably would do this in private, so as the Magistrate could not know nor punish it. See this or the like phrase, Lev. 20. 3. and 26. 17. Jer. 3. 12. Ezek. 14. 8.

11 For the † life of the flesh m is in the blood n, and I have given it to you upon the altar to make an atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul o.

† Heb. soul.

m (i.e.) Of living creatures. n (i.e.) It depends upon the blood, is preserved and nourished by it, and is extinguished when the blood is gone. And this law was given to the Jews, and hard-hearted people, as they are oft said to be, that by this restraint from the blood of brute creatures they might be wrought to the greater abhorrency of taking away the life of a man. o Typically, and in respect of the blood of Christ which it represented, by which the atonement is really made; Heb. 9. 12. So the reason is double; 1 because this was the eating up of the price or ransom of their own lives, which in construction was the destroying of themselves. 2 because this was ingratitude and irreverence towards that sacred blood of Christ which they ought to have in continual veneration.

12 Therefore I said unto the children of Israel, No soul of you shall eat blood, neither shall any stranger that sojourneth among you eat blood.

13 And whatsoever man there be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, † which * hunteth and catcheth any beast p or fowl that may be eaten, he shall even pour out the blood thereof, and cover it with dust q.

†Heb. that hunteth any hunting.

p He instanceth in this kind, either because persons much given to that exercise are commonly too licentious, and being in haste might easily transgress, or because some might think the former prohibition did reach only to the blood of such creatures as were offered to God in sacrifice. q Partly to beget an honourable respect unto the blood even of beasts, and much more of men; partly lest the beasts should lick it up, and by tasting the sweetness of it be made more fierce and cruel to devour and destroy others; and partly as a licence from God upon this condition giving them a right to kill and eat such creatures, without any fear of the blood being imputed to them; for as the not-covering of the blood portends the punishment which the sin of blood-shedding calls for, Job 16. 18. Ezek. 24. 7, 8. so covering it notes impunity.

14 * For it is the † life of all flesh; the blood of it is for the † life thereof: therefore I said unto the children of Israel, Ye shall eat the blood of no manner of flesh: for the † life of all flesh is the blood thereof: whosoever eateth it, shall be cut off.

r To wit, through ignorance or inadvertency, as appears by the sleightness of the punishment; for if it was done knowingly, it was a presumptuous sin against an expres law here, and Deut. 14. 21. and therefore more severely punished. s Understand of the Proselytes, either of the Proselytes of the gate, who were obliged to observe the precepts of Noah, whereof this was one, or of the Proselytes of righteousness, or converts to the Jewish Religion: for other strangers were allowed to eat such things, Deut. 14. 21.

16 But if he wash them not, nor bathe his flesh, then he shall bear his iniquity t.

t (i.e.) The punishment of it, and therefore must offer a sacrifice for it. See Levit. 5. 1, 2, &c. and 7, 18.

CHAP. XVIII.

Israelites not to live after the Customs of the Egyptians or Canaanites, but according to Gods Institutions, 1——5. To abstain from Incestuous Marriages, 6——18. And Copulation with a menstruous Woman, 19. And Adultery, 20. And Offering Children to Molech, 21. And all Unnatural Copulation with Man or Beast, 22, 23. These things the Nations do: and the Land is defiled, and God it provoked: and they who do those things shall die: but God was their Lord, 24——30.

1 AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the Children of Israel, and say unto them, I am the LORD your God a.

a Your Soveraign, and Lawgiver, This is oft repeated here, because the things here forbidden were practised and allowed by the Gentiles, to whose custom he here opposeth Divine authority, and their obligation to obey his commands.

3 After the doings of the land of Egypt b wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not do; and after the doings of the land of Canaan b whither I bring you, shall ye not do: neither shall ye walk in their ordinances c.

b These two nations he mentions, because their habitation and conversation among them made their evil example in the following matters more dangerous. But under them he includes all other nations, as he elsewhere expresseth it. c Or statutes, either because their laws did indeed allow such things, or because prevailing customs have the force of laws.

4 Ye shall do my judgments, d and keep mine ordinances, d to walk therein: I am the LORD your God.

d Mine universally, Deut. 27. 26. Gal. 3. 10. for though the words be indefinite, the matter is necessary, and mine solely, Deut. 6. 13. compared with Mat. 4. 10. and therefore those that here follow, though you do not see the particular reason of some of them, and though they be contrary to the laws and usages of the nations.

5 Ye shall therefore keep my statutes, and my judgments; * which if a man do, he shall live in them e: I am the LORD. *Ezek.20. 11, 13. Luk.10. 28. Rom. 10.5. Gal. 3.12.

e Not only happily here, but also eternally hereafter, as it is expounded, Mat. 19. 17. Rom. 10. 5. This is added as a powerful argument why they should follow Gods commands, rather than mens examples, because their life and happiness depends upon the one, not the other. And though in strictness, and according to the law or covenant of works they could not challenge life for doing, except their obedience was universal, perfect, constant and perpetual, and therefore no man since the fall could be justified by the law, as the Apostle affirms and proves, Rom. 4. and Gal. 3. yet by the covenant of Grace this life is promised to all that obey Gods commands sincerely, though not perfectly, 1 Tim. 4. 8.

6 None f of you shall approach g to any that is † † Heb. remainder of his flesh. near of kin to him, h to uncover their nakedness i: I am the LORD.

f Heb. No Man. For though the Women also be bound by this law, yet the men alone are mentioned, both because they are most active in the choice of their Yoke-fellows, and therefore most likely to transgress these laws, and because they having authority over the women could have the greater influence upon them by their power, counsel, or example, to oblige them either to the observation or violation of them. g This word signifies the conjugal act here, as it doth Gen. 20. 4. Isa. 8. 3. but because it is ambiguous in it self, it is so limited and explained in the end of the verse. h This is the general rule, which is particularly expounded and applied in the following instances. And these laws are so just and reasonable, that although the barbarous nations did allow of such incestuous marriages, yet wiser and civil heathens by the meer light of nature condemned them, as may be seen in Suetonius, Tacitus, Catullus, and others. i (i.e.) Their secret parts, so called to put us in mind of the fall of our first Parents, whose first fence and shame of their nakedness had its rise from thence. This phrase notes the same thing with knowing, Gen. 4. 1. and with discovering ones skirt, Deut. 22. 30. and 27. 20.

7 The nakedness of thy father, or k the nakedness of thy mother, shalt thou not uncover: she is thy mother, l thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

k Heb. and, put for that is, or to wit, as it is oft used. Here it notes, that the nakedness of the father, and the nakedness of the mother are one and the same thing, because they two are one flesh, and therefore her nakedness is his also. Which further appears because the mother only is mentioned in the following words, which contain the reason of the law. l And therefore even nature reacheth thee to abhor such incest. Yet the Persians used to marry their mother; therein worse than the very Camels, whom no force will drive to that act with their dams.

8 * The nakedness of thy fathers wife m shalt thou not uncover: it is thy fathers nakedness n. *chap.20. 11. Deut. 22.30. & 27.20. Amos 2.7.

m (i.e.) Thy Step-mother. Examples of this are Gen. 35. 22. and 49. 4. 1 Cor. 5. 1. n By intereſt and relation; that which he only may uncover.

9 * The nakedness of thy sister o, the daughter of thy father p, or daughter of thy mother p, whether she be born at home q, or born abroad r, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover. *chap 20. 17. 2 Sam. 13. 12. Ezek.22. 11.

o By both parents. p Thy sister by either of thy parents. q To wit, of thy father by another wife, whom he hath taken into his house. r Either of thy mother, by another, whether a former, or a second husband, in another house and family: or, of thy father by some strange woman: for there might be some doubt in these cases.

10 The nakedness of thy sons daughter, or of thy daughters daughter s, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover: for theirs is thine own nakedness t.

s And consequently of all thy children and childrens children, and all downwards. t They are a part of thy self as coming out of thy loins, and out of thy wife, whose nakedness is thine own.

11 The nakedness of thy fathers wives daughter, begotten of thy father u, (she is thy sister) thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

u Or, being akin to thy father. He seems to speak of the daughter of the fathers brother by his wife, whom the father here spoken of, being brother to the deceased person, married by vertue of that law, Deut. 25. 5. by which marriage there was a neer kindred contracted between the two families, so that the son of the one could could not marry the daughter of the other. Thus this law is differing from that ver. 9. And that seems more probable, than that in so brief a table of laws the same thing should be forbidden both there and here. Obj. The word being the same here and ver. 9. must be understood in the same sense, and therefore here must be rendred begotten or born, as it is there. Anſw. It may be rendred there as well as here, akin, as some render the words there, of domeſtick, or of another, a foreign, kindred: and if the word had been participially put for begotten or born, it is likely the preposition Mem or Lamed would have been prefixed to the Hebrew word, ahicha, as is common in those cases.

* chap. 20. 19. † Heb. fleſh. Gen. 37. 27.

12 * Thou ſhalt not uncover the nakedneſs of thy father's ſiſter x: ſhe is thy fathers † near kinſwoman y.

x Thy Aunt by the fathers ſide, as the next verſe ſpeaks of the Aunt by the mothers ſide. If Amrams example be alledged to the contrary, ſee on Exod. 6. 20. y Heb. thy fathers fleſh, a member and product of the ſame fleſh from which thy father came.

13 Thou ſhalt not uncover the nakedneſs of thy mother's ſiſter: for ſhe is thy mothers † near kinſwoman.

* chap. 20. 20.

14 * Thou ſhalt not uncover the nakedneſs of thy fathers brother z, thou ſhalt not approach to his wife: ſhe is thine aunt ¶.

z (i.e.) Of his wife, as the next words explain it. And as a man may not marry his aunt, ſo neither may a woman marry her uncle, there being altogether the ſame diſtance in kindred, and the ſelf-ſame reaſon of the law. And for the examples of Abraham, Amram, Othoniel, &c. to the contrary, they were before the publication of this law, by which it pleaſed God to reſtrain the liberty allowed formerly when the holy ſeed was in a narrower compaſs, and fewer perſons, which altered the caſe. For in that regard there was a time when God allowed brethren and ſiſters to marry, to wit, when there were no other in the World, which was the caſe of Adams immediate children. We learn from hence, that the ſame degrees are forbidden in conſanguinity or kindred by blood, and in affinity or kindred by marriage. † Some infer from hence, that it is unlawful for couſin-germans, or the children of brethren and ſiſters to marry. But there is not the ſame reaſon, nor the ſame degree of diſtance, for my uncle or aunt are nearer akin to me than their children are. Yet becauſe it ſeems doubtful to many, and may hereafter prove occaſion of grievous perplexities of mind, eſpecially to tender and ſcrupulous conſciences, Chriſtian prudence directs us to chuſe the ſafeſt way, there being ſo great a latitude of unqueſtionable perſons.

* chap. 20. 12. Ezek. 22. 11.

15 * Thou ſhalt not uncover the nakedneſs of thy daughter in law: ſhe is thy ſons wife, thou ſhalt not uncover her nakedneſs.

* chap. 20. 21. Mat. 14. 4.

16 * Thou ſhalt not uncover the nakedneſs of thy brothers wife a: it is thy brothers nakedneſs.

a Neither in his life time, nor after his death, and therefore a woman might not marry her husbands brother, nor might a man marry his wives ſiſter, either before or after his wives death, for ſo all the prohibitions are to be underſtood: which will give light to ver. 18. But God, who can undoubtedly diſpenſe with his own laws, did afterwards make one exception to this rule, of which ſee Deut. 25. 5.

* chap. 20. 14.

17 * Thou ſhalt not uncover the nakedneſs of a woman and her daughter b, neither ſhalt thou take her ſons daughter, or her daughters daughter, to uncover her nakedneſs: For they are her near kinſwomen: it is wickedneſs c.

b To wit, thy ſtep-daughter, and ſo thy ſtep-ſons daughter, &c. c Becauſe they are very near to thy wife by conſanguinity, as coming directly from her; and therefore they are as near to thee by affinity, which binds as much as conſanguinity; the wife, who is only related by affinity, being nearer to a man than any other by conſanguinity, they two being made one fleſh, and therefore the ſame diſtance is to be obſerved in both of them.

‖ Or, one wife to another.

18 Neither ſhalt thou take ‖ a wife to her ſiſter d, to vex her, to uncover her nakedneſs beſides the other, in her life time e.

d The word ſiſter is here underſtood either 1. properly, ſo ſome: whence others infer, that it is lawful to marry ones wives ſiſter after the wives death. Or 2. improperly for any other woman, as not only perſons, but things, of the ſame kind are oft called, ſiſters and brethren, of which ſee plain examples, Exod. 26. 3. and 32. 27, 29. Ezek. 1. 9. and 3. 13. and 16. 45, 48, 49. So the ſence is, thou ſhalt not take one woman to another. And this ſence may ſeem more probable, 1. becauſe elſe here were a tautology, the marriage of a man with his wives ſiſter being ſufficiently forbidden ver. 16. where marriage with his brothers wife is forbidden, as alſo ver. 9. and 11. where he forbids the marriage of ones own ſiſter, and conſequently the marriage of ones wives ſiſter, it being manifeſt and confeſſed that affinity and conſanguinity are of the ſame conſideration and obligation in theſe matters. Nor can this be added for explication, for then the comment would be darker than the text, nay it would deſtroy the text, for then what was ſimply and abſolutely and univerſally forbidden before, is here forbidden doubtfully and reſtrainedly, and might at leaſt ſeem to be allowed after the wives death; which is rejected by thoſe who own the former interpretation. 2. Becauſe the reaſon of this prohibition, which is leſt he ſhould vex her thereby, is much more proper and effectual againſt marrying any other woman than againſt marrying the wives ſiſter, ſo near and dear a relation being moſt commonly and probably a means to induce them rather to love and pleaſe and ſerve, than to vex one another in ſuch a relation. And therefore to take her natural ſiſter to vex her would ſeem a courſe unſuitable to his end or deſign. 3. Some add another reaſon, that Polygamy, which Chriſt condemns, Mat. 19. 5. is either forbidden here or no where in the law. But this may admit of great diſpute. And it is obſervable that Chriſt confutes Polygamy and divorces, not by any of Moſes his laws (which probably he would not have omitted, if they had been to his purpoſe) but by the firſt inſtitution of marriage, Gen. 2. 23. whence alſo Malachi ſeems to fetch his argument, chap. 2. 14, 15. And that law Deut. 21. 15, 16. may ſeem to intimate that God did then, in conſideration of the hard-heartedneſs of the Jewiſh Nation, diſpenſe with that firſt and primitive law, eſpecially if we conſider the practice of divers holy men amongſt the Jews, not only before the law, as Abraham and Jacob, but alſo after it, as Elkanah and David, who would never have lived in the violation of a known law, or, if they had, would have been blamed for it, whereas on the contrary God mentions it as one of his favours vouchſafed to David, that he gave him his maſters wives into his boſom, 2 Sam. 12. 8. and affirms, that David turned not aſide from any thing that he commanded him all the days of his life, ſave only in the matter of Uriah, 1 King. 15. 5. Peradventure therefore it may deſerve ſome conſideration which a learned man in part ſuggeſts, that this Text doth not ſimply forbid the taking of one wife to another, but the doing of it in ſuch a manner or for ſuch an end, that he may vex or puniſh, or revenge himſelf of the former; which probably was a common motive amongſt that hard-hearted people to do ſo, and therefore the forbidding hereof might give a great check to the practice of Polygamy amongſt them. e This clauſe is added to ſignifie Gods allowance to marry one wife after another, when ſhe is dead, and thereby to intimate how the word Siſter is to be underſtood.

19 * Alſo thou ſhalt not approach unto a woman f to uncover her nakedneſs, as long as ſhe is put apart for her uncleanneſs.

* chap. 20. 18. Ezek. 22. 10

No not to thy own Wife. See chap. 12. 2. and 15. 24, 25. This was not only a ceremonial pollution, but an immorality alſo, whence it is put amongſt groſs ſins, Ezek. 18. 6. There is alſo a natural turpitude in this action. And therefore it is now unlawful under the Goſpel.

20 Moreover, * thou ſhalt not lie carnally with thy neighbours wife, to deſile thy ſelf with her.

* Exod. 20. 14. chap. 20. 10. † chap. 20. 2. 2 King. 23. 10. * called Act. 7. 43

21 And thou ſhalt not let any of thy ſeed * paſs through the fire g to * Moloch h, neither ſhalt thou profane the name of thy God i: I am the LORD.

g This was done two ways, either 1. By burning them in the fire, of which ſee 2 King. 3. 27. 2 Chron. 28. 3. Pſal. 106. 37, 38. Eſa. 57. 1. Or 2. By making them paſs between two great fires, which was kind of luſtration or conſecration of them to that God. Which latter ſeems to be here meant. See on Deut. 18. 10. where the word fire, here underſtood, is expreſſed. h Or, Molech; called alſo Milcom, an Idol chiefly of the Ammonites, as appears from 1 King. 11. 7. 2 King. 23. 13. Jer. 49. 1, 3. This ſeems to be the Saturn of the Heathens, to whom eſpecially children and men were ſacrificed. This is mentioned, becauſe the neighbours of Iſrael were moſt infected with this Idolatry, and therefore they are particularly cautioned againſt it, though under this one inſtance all other Idols and acts, or kinds of Idolatry, are manifeſtly comprehended and forbidden. i Either by joining him with, or by forſaking him for, ſuch a baſe and bloody Idol, whereby the name, honour, and ſervice of God would be horribly defiled, and expoſed to the ſcorn of the Heathen, as if he were but one of the ſame kind with their mungrel-deities.

22 * Thou ſhalt not lie with mankind k as with woman-kind: it is abomination.

23 * Neither ſhalt thou lie with any beaſt to deſile thy ſelf therewith: neither ſhall any woman ſtand before a beaſt to lie down thereto, it is confuſion l.

l An horrible confuſion of the natures which God hath diſtinguiſhed, and of the order which God hath appointed, and an overthrow of all bounds of Religion, Honeſty, Sobriety and Modeſty.

24 Deſile not ye your ſelves in any of theſe things: for in all theſe m the nations are defiled, which I caſt out before you.

m To wit, above-mentioned ſins. Whence it is apparent, that the ſeveral inceſts here prohibited are not only againſt the poſitive and particular Law given by God to the Jews, but alſo againſt the general Law and Light of nature. And therefore the Law about theſe things was one of the ſeven Precepts of Noah. And the ſober Heathens condemned ſuch inceſtuous Marriages. The Roman Hiſtorians obſerve, that when Claudius the Emperor had married his Niece, (which is one of the loweſt kinds of inceſt here mentioned) and the Senate in compliaſance with him had made it lawful for any to do ſo, yet there was but one, and he too an obſcure perſon, that followed his example.

25 And the land is defiled: therefore I do viſit m the iniquity thereof upon it, and the land it ſelf vomiteth out her inhabitants n.

m I am now viſiting, or about to viſit, i.e. to puniſh. See Eſa. 26. 21. n As no leſs burdens to the Earth than corrupted food is to the ſtomach. See Jer. 9. 19. Mich. 2. 10.

* chap. 18. 22.

26 * Ye ſhall therefore keep my ſtatutes and my judgments, and ſhall not commit any of theſe abominations, neither any of your own nation, nor any ſtranger o that ſojourneth among you:

o In Nation or Religion, of what kind ſoever. For though they might not force them to ſubmit to their Religion, yet they might reſtrain them from the publick contempt of the Jewiſh Laws, and from the violation of natural Laws, which, beſides the offence againſt God and nature, were matters of evil example and conſequence to the Iſraelites themſelves.

27 (For all theſe abominations have the men of the land done, which were before you, and the land is defiled.)

28 That

Jer. 9. 19. Ezek. 36. 5. 17.

28 That * the land ſpue not you out alſo when ye deſile it, as it ſpued out the nations that were before you.

29 For whoſoever ſhall commit any of theſe abominations, even the ſouls that commit them ſhall be cut off p, from among their people.

p To wit, by death to be inflicted by the Magiſtrates, as it is apparent in caſe of Idolatry with Moloch or other falſe Gods; and, in caſe of the Magiſtrates neglect, by God himſelf. This phraſe therefore of cutting off, is to be underſtood variouſly, as many other phraſes are, either of Eccleſiaſtical, or Civil and Corporal puniſhment, according to the differing natures of the offences for which it is inflicted.

30 Therefore ſhall ye keep mine ordinance, that ye commit not any one of theſe abominable cuſtoms, which were committed before you, and that ye deſile not your ſelves therein: I am the LORD your God.

CHAP. XIX.

Iſraelites muſt be holy, 1, 2. muſt honour their Parents, and keep Sabbaths, 3. Shun Idolatry, 4. Duly to ſlay and eat their Peace-offerings, 5——8. In Harveſt time, leave Gleanings for the poor and ſtranger, 9, 10. Not ſteal, deceive or lie, 11. Nor ſwear falſly, 12. Nor defraud, rob, or detain. 13. But rebuke their Brother for Sin, 17. Not revenge themſelves, but love their Neighbours, 18. Not to mix different things, 19. The puniſhment of a man lying with a bond-maid, 20——22. They muſt not eat of the fruits of Canaan till after four years, 23. To eat no blood: And uſe no Soothſaying, 26. Nor any heatheniſh method of Mourning, 28. Nor proſtitute their Daughters, 29. a Separated from all the forementioned defilements, and intirely conſecrated to God and obedient to all his Laws and Statutes. b Both in my Eſſence, and in all my Laws, which are holy and juſt and good, and in all my actions: Whereas the Gods of the Heathens are unholy both in their Laws and Inſtitutions, whereby they allow and require filthy and abominable actions, and in their practices, ſome of them having given wicked examples to their Worſhippers.

3 * Ye ſhall fear every man his mother, and his father c, and * keep my ſabbaths d: I am the LORD your God.

c The mother is put firſt, partly becauſe the practice of this duty begins there, mothers, by perpetual converſe, being more and ſooner known to their children than their fathers; and partly becauſe this duty is moſt commonly neglected to the mother, upon whom children have not ſo much dependence as they have upon their Father. And this fear includes the two great duties of reverence and obedience. d This is here added, to ſhew, that, whereas it is enjoyned to Parents that they ſhould take care that the Sabbath be obſerved both by themſelves and by their children, it is the duty of children to fear and obey their Parents in this matter, and moreover, that, if Parents ſhould neglect their duty herein, or by their command, counſel, or example, draw them to poſſeſſe the Sabbath, yet the Children in that caſe muſt keep the Sabbath, and in all ſuch caſes prefer the command of God before the commands of their Parents or Superiours.

4 * Turn ye not e unto Idols f, nor make to your ſelves * molten gods g: I am the LORD your God.

e Turn not your hearts and faces from me, whom alone you pretend to reſpect, unto them. He intimates, that their turning to Idols is a turning from God, and that they could not ſerve both God and Idols. f The word ſignifies ſuch as are no Gods, or nothings, as they are called, 1 Cor. 8. 4. many Idols having no being, but only in the fancy of their Worſhippers, and all of them having no virtue or power to do good or evil, Eſa. 41. 23. g Nor graven Gods neither, as appears from Exod. 20. whereby we learn, that ſuch expreſſions are generally to be underſtood Synecdochically.

5 And if he offer a ſacrifice of peace-offerings unto the LORD, ye ſhall offer it at your own will h.

h Or, according to your own good pleaſure, what you think fit: For though this in the general was required, yet it was left to their choice to determine the particulars. See Levit. 7. 16. Or rather, to your acceptation, i. e. in ſuch manner as it may be accepted by God on your behalf, which is explained in the next verſe, and not in ſuch manner as to loſe the end you aim at, to wit, Gods acceptance; for if ye do other wiſe than God hath preſcribed, it ſhall not be accepted, as he adds ver. 7. but on the contrary ſeverely puniſhed, ver. 8.

6 It ſhall be eaten the ſame day ye offer it, and on the morrow i: and if ought remain until the third day, it ſhall be burnt in the fire.

i By which clauſe it appears that he ſpeaks here only of that ſort of peace-offerings, which were offered either by vow or freely for the obtaining of ſome mercy deſired; for the other ſort, which was by way of graticude for mercies received, were to be eaten the ſame day. Levit. 7. 15.

7 And if it be eaten at all on the third day: it is abominable, it ſhall not be accepted.

8 Therefore every one that eateth it, ſhall bear his iniquity k, becauſe he hath prophaned the hallowed thing of the LORD, and that ſoul ſhall be cut off from among his people!

u Who makes it his buſineſs to go up and down from one to another, and divulge evil and falſe reports concerning others, which though many times it proceeds only from levity and talkativeneſs, yet apparently tends to the great injury of our neighbour. See Prov. 11. 13. Jer. 6. 28. and 9. 4. x To wit, in judgment as a falſe accuſer or falſe witneſs: For accuſers and witneſſes uſe to ſtand, whilſt the Judges ſate, in Courts of Judicature.

* 1 Joh. 2. 11. * Mat. 18. 15. ‖ Or, that ſame with neighbour, as it follows, i. e. every man, Matth. 5. 44. thou bear for it is manifeſt, that Gods Law commanded them to love ſtrangers no leſs than Iſraelites. x If thy brother hath done thee or others any injury, thou ſhalt neither divulge it to others as a tale-bearer, nor hate him, and ſmother that hatred by ſullen reſentments, as 2 Sam. 13. 22. nor juſtifie and flatter and encourage him therein, but ſhalt freely and in love, not with hatred, tell him of his fault. b (i. e.) Not ſuffer him to lye under the guilt of any ſin, which thou by rebuking of him, and thereby bringing him to true Repentance, couldſt in ſome ſort free him from. But the phraſe of ſuffering ſin upon him ſeems imperfect and unuſual in Scripture, and I doubt whether the Hebrew verb Naſa be ever uſed for permitting or ſuffering. The words may be rendred thus, And (or ſo) thou ſhalt not bear ſin for him, or for his ſake, thou ſhalt not make thy ſelf guilty of his ſin, as thou wilt aſſuredly do, if thou doſt not perform thy duty of rebuking him for his ſin, which is a likely way, and a courſe appointed by God to remove the guilt of his ſin from him, and conſequently, as it was his fault that he ſinned and contracted guilt, ſo it is thy fault, that his guilt continues upon him. Many things favour this ſence. 1. This is the proper and uſual ſignification of the word Naſa. 2. The ſame words are uſed in this ſence, Levit. 22. 9. Num. 18. 32. 3. The preposition al is oft uſed thus, as Gen. 37. 8, 34. Judg. 9. 9. 1 King. 16. 7. 4. This phraſe of bearing ſin or iniquity is conſtantly uſed in this book for being guilty and lyable to puniſhment. And ſo the ſenſe is here full and compleat, and a very weighty reaſon here given to enforce the foregoing precept.

18 Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge c against the children of thy people, * but thou shalt love thy neighbour d, as thy self e: I am the LORD.

* Mat. 5. 43. and 22. 39. Rom. 13. 9. Gal. 5. 14. Jam. 2. 8.

c Heb. nor keep, either 1. The injury here supposed, in thy memory: So it is opposed to those who say they will forgive, but not forget, an injury. Or 2. Anger or hatred, in thy heart. So this verb is used, Jer. 3. 12. Nah. 1. 2. d By which he understands not the Israelites only, as some would perswade us, but every other man with whom we converse, as plainly appears 1. By comparing this place with verse 34. where this very law is applied to strangers. 2. Because the word neighbour is explained by another man, Levit. 20. 10. Rom. 13. 8 See more on Exod. 20. 16. e With the same sincerity, though not equality, of affection, as to thy self.

19 Ye shall keep my statutes f. Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind g: thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed h: neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woollen come upon thee.

f Either 1. My Laws. So this is fitly premised, because otherwise some of the following commands might seem trifling, and obedience to them unnecessary; Or 2. My Ordinances, to wit, of nature; or the order which I have appointed in creatures, as the word is used Job 26. 10. and 38. 33. Psal. 148. 6. Prov. 8. 29. and therefore they shall not confound those things that I have distinguished, which were in some sort to reproach and correct my works, and which may seem to be done in some of the following instances. g This was prohibited, partly to restrain the curiosity and boldness of men, who might attempt to amend or change the works of God: Partly that by the restraints here laid even upon brute-creatures men might be taught to abhor all unnatural and unlawful lusts: Partly to teach the Israelites to avoid mixtures with other Nations either in Marriage or in Religion: Which also may be signified by the following prohibitions. h See of this and the next, Deut. 22. 9, 10, 11.

‖ Or, abused by any. † Heb. reproached or, for man. ‖ Or, they. †Heb. there shall be a scourging.

20 And whosoever lieth carnally with a woman that is a bondmaid ‖ betrothed to an husband † and not at all redeemed, nor freedom given her, ‖ † she shall be scourged i: they shall not be put to death k, because she was not free l.

† Or, reproached or despised, and therefore forsaken, of her husband. For as his continuance with her in his and her masters family and service, is mentioned as an evidence that he loved her, Exod. 21. 5, 6. So on the contrary his forsaking of her was a reproach to her, and a sign of contempt. i Heb. There shall be a scourging, which may belong, either 1. To her alone, as the Jews understand it, for the mans punishment follows, ver. 21, 22. Or, 2. To both of them, for 1. Both were guilty. 2. It follows, they shall not be punished with death, which may seem to imply that they were to be punished by some other common and considerable punishment, which scourging indeed was, but the paying of a ram was a small penalty and very unsuitable to the greatness of the offence. And the offering of the ram as a trespass-offering for the sin against God, is not inconsistent with making satisfaction other ways for the injury done to men, as we may see Levit. 6. 4, 5, 6. but only added here as a further punishment to the man, either because he only could do this, and not the woman, who being a bond-woman had nothing of her own to offer: Or because his Sex and his Freedom aggravated his sin. k Which they should have been, had she been free, Deut. 22. 23, 24. l The reason of this difference is not from any respect which God gives to persons, for bond and free are alike to him, but because bond-women were scarce Wives, and their Marriages were scarce true Marriages, being neither made by their choice, but by their masters authority, nor continued beyond the year of release, but at her Masters or Husbands pleasure: Of which see Exod 21. 4. &c.

* chap. 5. 15.

21 And * he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the LORD, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, even a ram for a trespass-offering.

22 And the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering before the LORD, for his sin which he hath done: and the sin which he hath done shall be forgiven him.

23 And when ye shall come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food; then ye shall count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised m: three years n shall it be as uncircumcised unto you: it shall not be eaten of.

m (i. e.) As unclean, not to be eaten but cast away, and counted abominable, as the foreskins are. n This precept was serviceable, 1. to the Trees themselves, which grew the better and faster, being early stript of those fruits, which otherwise would have derived to themselves and drawn away much more of the strength from the root and tree. 2. To men, both because the fruit then was waterish, indigested and unwholsome, and because hereby men were taught to bridle their appetites; a lesson of great use and absolute necessity in a godly life. 3. To God, who required and deserved the first-fruits, which must be also of the best, and so they could not be in this time.

† Heb. holiness of praises to the LORD. Numb. 5. 8 Josh. 6. 19.

24 But in the fourth year all the fruit thereof shall be † holy o to praise the LORD withal p.

o Consecrated to the Lord, as the first-fruits and tithes were, and therefore given to the Priests and Levites, Numb. 18. 12, 13. Deut. 18. 4. yet so that part of them were communicated to the poor Widows and Fatherless and Strangers. See Deut. 14. 28. p. To bless the Lord, by whose power and goodness the trees bring forth fruit to perfection.

chap. 23. 20.

25 And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, that it may yield unto you the increase thereof q:

I am the LORD your God.

q That God may be pleased to give his blessing, which alone can make them fruitful.

26 * Ye shall not eat any thing with the blood r, neither shall ye use inchantment, nor observe times s.

* chap. 17. 10. &c.

r (i. e.) Any flesh out of which the blood is not first poured. See 1 Sam. 14. 32. The Jews write, that the Egyptians and other Nations, when they offered Sacrifices to the Devils, did eat part of the sacrifices, beside the blood which was kept in basons for that end, which also they believed to be as it were the special food of the Devils. s To wit, superstitiously, by the observation of the clouds, or stars, or otherwise, by esteeming some days lucky, others unlucky. See Deut. 18. 10, 11. Esth. 3. 7.

27 * Ye shall not round the corners of your heads t, neither shalt thou mar the corners of thy beard.

* chap. 21. 5.

t (i. e.) Your Temples: Ye shall not cut off the hair of your heads round about your Temples. This the Gentiles did, either for the worship of the Devils or Idols, to whom young men used to consecrate their hair, being cut off from their heads, as Homer, Plutarch, and many others write; or in funerals or immoderate mournings, as appears from Esa. 15. 2. Jer. 48. 37. And the like is to be thought concerning the beard or the hair in the corner, (i. e.) corners of the beard. The reason then of this prohibition is because God would not have his people agree with Idolaters, neither in their Idolatries, nor in their excessive sorrowing, no nor so much as in the appearances and outward significations or expressions thereof.

28 Ye shall not * make any cutting in your flesh u for the dead x, nor print any mark upon you: I am the LORD.

* Deut. 14. 1.

u Which the Gentiles commonly did both in the worship of their Idols, and in their solemn mournings, Jer. 16. 6. x Heb. for a soul, i. e. either 1 improperly, for a dead body; as that word is sometimes used, as Lev. 19. 28. and 21. 1. Numb. 6. 6. or 2. properly, for the soul; ye shall not cut your flesh or your bodies, for your souls, or upon pretence of doing your souls any good, either in way of mortification, or in the worship of God, as they did, 1 King. 18. 28. in like manner as others were willing to give to God the fruit of their body for the sin of their soul, Mic. 6. 7.

29 Do not † prostitute thy daughter to cause her to be a whore y, lest the land fall to whoredom, and the land become full of wickedness.

† Heb. pollute.

30 * Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary z: I am the LORD.

* chap. 26. 2.

z. Not presuming to approach it without reverence, or with any kind of uncleanness upon you.

31 * Regard not them that have familiar spirits a, neither seek after wizards b: I am the LORD your God.

* Isa. 8. 19. Acts 13. 16.

a That have entred into covenant with the Devil, by whose help they foretel many things to come, and acquaint men with secret things. See Lev. 20. 27. Deut. 18. 11. 1. Sam. 28. 3, 7, 9. 2 King. 21. 6. b Another name expressing the same thing for substance, to wit, persons in league with the Devil, with some difference only in the manner of their operation.

32 Thou shalt rise up c before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear thy God d: I am the LORD.

c To do them reverence when they pass by, for which end they were obliged, as the Jews say, presently to sit down again when they were past, that it might be manifest they arose out of respect to them. d A reason of the former precept, both because old men in some respect do most resemble God, who is stiled the ancient of days, Dan. 7. 9, 13. and because this respect is due to such, if not for themselves, who may be unworthy or contemptible, yet for Gods sake, who requires this reverence, and whose singular blessing old age is.

* Exod. 22. 21. and 23. 9. ‖ Or, oppressions.

33 And * if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not ‖ vex him e.

e Either with opprobrious expressions, or grievous exactions.

34 * But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born amongst you f, and * thou shalt love him as thy self: for ye were strangers g in the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

* Or, proselyte. * Exod. 23. 9. * Deut. 10. 19.

f Either 1. as to the matters of common right, as it here follows: So it reacheth to all strangers. Or 2 as to Church-privileges: So it concerns only those who were proselytes of righteousness. g and therefore are sensible of the fears, distresses, and miseries of such, which call for your pity, and you ought to do to them, as you would that others should do to you when you were such.

35 Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in mete-yard h, in weight, or in measure i.

h In the measuring of lands, or any dry and continued things, as cloth, ribband, &c. i In the measuring of liquid or such dry things as are not continued, only contiguous, as of corn or wine, &c. Or, the former may note greater, the latter less, measures.

36 * Just balances, just † weights, a just ephah i, and a just hin i shall ye have: I am the LORD your God which brought you out of the land of Egypt.

* Deut. 25. 15. † Or, stones and 16. 11. and 20. 10. † Heb. stones.

i These two measures are named as most common, the former for dry, the latter for moist things: but under them he manifestly comprehends all other measures.

37 Therefore k shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: I am the LORD.

k Because my blessings and deliverances are not indulgences to sin, but greater obligations to all duties to God and men. So that if religion and righteousness were utterly lost in the world, they ought in all reason to be found among you as my peculiar people and freed men.

CHAP. XX.

Israelites must not offer their Children to Moloch on pain of Death, 1——3. Which if not inflicted by the Magistrate, shall be by God himself, 4, 5. The same, against running after Soothsayers, 6. Against Cursers of Parents, 9. Against Adultery, 10. Or incestuous and unlawful copulation with Women, Men, or Beast, 11——21. They must put a difference between clean and unclean, 22——26. Soothsayers to be stoned, 27.

AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 * Again, thou shalt say to the children of Israel a, * Whosoever he be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers b that sojourn in Israel, that giveth any of his seed unto Molech c, he shall surely be put to death: the people of the land shall stone him with stones.

* chap. 18. 21. * Deut. 18. 10. 2 Kin. 17. & 23. 10. Jer. 32. 35.

a Here follow the punishments of the crimes forbidden in the former chapters. b Not only such as were Profelytes, but all others, these being gross immoralities, and such as the precepts of Noah reached to, and such as the laws of nature and nations obliged them to. And therefore the toleration of such actions was not only against reason of state, and the interest of the commonwealth of Israel, and dangerous to the infection and destruction of the Israelites by the imitation of such examples, but also against the light of nature and laws of humanity. c. Or to any other Idol; for the reason of the law equally concerns all. See Levit. 18. 21.

3 And I will set my face against that man d, and will cut him off from among his people e: because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, to defile my sanctuary f, and to prophane my holy Name g.

d (i. e.) Deal with him as an enemy, and make him a monument of my justice, either by punishing him immediately and eminently, when the Magistrate cannot or will not do it, or by adding to his corporal punishments my curse upon his soul and name. See Lev. 17. 10. e From the number of his people, of what nation or kindred soever he was, or, from the land of the living. f Which was done by this wickedness, either because such persons did, for the cover of their Idolatry, come into God's Sanctuary, as the rest did: See Lev. 15. 31. or because the Sanctuary was, and was said to be defiled by gross abominations committed in that city or land where Gods Sanctuary was: or because by these actions they did pronounce and declare to all men that they esteemed the sanctuary and service of God abominable and vile, by preferring such odious and pernicious Idolatry before it. g Partly by defiling it themselves, and partly by disgracing it to others, and giving them occasion to blaspheme it, and to abhor the true religion, because they saw it deserted and condemned by those that best knew it and once embraced it.

4 And if the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes from the man h, when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, and kill him not:

h (i.e.) Wink at his fault, and forbear to accuse and punish him. Compare Act. 17. 30.

5 Then I will set my face against that man, and against his family i, and will cut him off, and all that go a whoring after him, to commit whoredom with Molech, from among their people.

* Exod. 20. 5.

i (i.e.) Either, 1. His posterity, whom God threatned to punish for their fathers Idolatry, Exod. 20. Or 2. his people, as that word is used, Jer. 8. 3. Mic. 2. 3. to wit, the people of that land, who by their connivance make themselves guilty of his sin, ver. 4. Or 3. his disciples and followers, who are oft called the sons or children of their masters. And so it may seem to be explained in the following words, all those go a whoring after him, as the first clause which concerns the head or chief person himself, I will set my face against that man, is explained by these words, I will cut him off.

6 And * the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits and after wizards, to go a whoring after them k, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people.

* chap. 19. 31.

k To seek knowledge or counsel or help from them.

7 * Sanctifie your selves therefore, and be ye holy: for I am the LORD your God.

* chap. 11. 44. & 19. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 16.

8 And ye shall keep my statutes, and do them: I am the LORD which sanctifie you l.

l (i.e.) Who separated you from all nations, and from their impurities and Idolatries, to be a peculiar people to my self, and therefore I will not suffer you to follow their examples. Or, who really sanctifie you, and give you my grace to do what I require, i. e. to keep my statutes. Or the argument is this, Those Idols and Idolatries will defile you and make you worse, but I only and my service will sanctifie you and make you better.

9 * For m every one that curseth n his father, or o his mother, shall be surely put to death: he hath cursed his father, or his mother, his blood shall be upon him p.

* Exod. 21. 17. Deut. 27. 16. Prov. 20. 20. Mat. 15. 4.

m Or, surely, as that particle, chi, is oft used, as Job 8. 6. and 20. 20. So there needs no dispute about the connexion, or what this is a reason of. n Which is not meant of every perverse expression, but of bitter reproaches or imprecations. o Heb. and put for or, as hath been noted before. p He is guilty of his own death: he deserves to die for so unnatural a crime.

10 And * the man that committeth adultery with another mans wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neighbours wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death.

* Deut. 22. 22. Joh. 8. 4, 5.

11 * And the man that lieth with his fathers wife, hath uncovered his fathers nakedness: both of them shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

* chap. 18. 8.

12 * And if a man lie with his daughter in law, both of them shall surely be put to death: they have wrought confusion q; their blood shall be upon them.

* chap. 18. 15. Deut. 27. 23.

q By perverting the ordes which God hath appointed, and mixing the blood which God would have separated, and making the same off-spring both his own immediate child and his grand-child.

13 * If a man lie also with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death r; their blood shall be upon them.

* chap. 18. 22.

r Except the one party was forced by the other. See Deut. 22. 25.

14 And * if a man take a wife, and her mother, it is wickedness s: they shall be burnt with fire, both he and they t, that there be no wickedness among you.

* chap. 18. 17.

s (i.e.) Abominable and extraordinary wickedness, as the singularity of the punishment sheweth. t Either, or both or all of them, if they consented to it.

15 * And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death: and ye shall slay the beast u.

* chap. 18. 23. Deut. 27. 21.

u Partly for the prevention of monstrous Births, partly to blot out the memory of so loathsome a crime, and partly that by so severe a punishment of that creature which was only a passive instrument to mans sin, men might be assured that a more dreadful punishment than corporal death was reserved for them, if they repented not.

16 And if a woman approach unto any beast, and lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman and the beast: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

17 * And if a man shall take his sister, his fathers daughter, or his mothers daughter, and see her nakedness x, and she see his nakedness, it is a wicked thing, and they shall be cut off in the sight of their people y: he hath uncovered his sisters nakedness, he shall bear his iniquity.

* chap. 18. 9. Deut. 27. 22.

x Seeing is here understood, either 1. properly, and so God would cut off the occasions of further filthiness. Or rather 2. improperly, for touching her or lying with her; for 1. the sence of seeing is oft put for other sences, as for hearing, Gen. 42. 1. compared with Act. 7. 12. Exod. 20. 18. Rev. 1. 12. and for touching, as Job. 20. 25, 29. 2. that act is expressed by words parallel to this of seeing, as by uncovering or discovering, and by knowing, Gen. 4. 1. 3. so it is directly explained, in the following words, he hath uncovered his sisters nakedness, which manifestly signifies lying with her. 4. it is not probable that an equal punishment would have been appointed to an immodest sight, and to the highest act of filthiness. 5. nor seems there to be any reason why this crime should be restrained to this rather than to any other relations, when it was as great, yea a greater crime in some other relations. y (i. e.) Publickly, for the terrour and caution of others.

18 * And if a man shall lie with a woman z having her sickness a, and shall uncover her nakedness, he hath † discovered her fountain b, and she hath uncovered the fountain of her blood: and both of them shall be cut off from among their people.

* chap. 18. 19. See ch. 15. 24. † Heb. made naked.

z Wittingly and willingly. See on Lev. 15. 24. and 18. 19. Ked. a (i. e.) her monthly infirmity. b Or her issue. Thus the fountain of blood in Mark 5. 29. is the issue of blood, Luk. 8. 44. the fountain put for the stream; the cause for the effect, which is common.

* chap. 19. 31.

19 * And thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mothers sister, nor of thy fathers sister: for he uncovereth his near kin: they shall bear their iniquity.

* ch. 18. 12, 13.

20 * And if a man shall lie with his uncles wife, he hath uncovered his uncles nakedness: they shall bear their sin, they shall die childless c.

* chap. 18. 14.

c (i. e.) Either shall be speedily cut off ere they can have a child by that incestuous conjunction, that the remembrance of the fact may be blotted out: or, if this seem a less crime than most of the former incestuous mixtures, because the relation is more remote, and therefore the Magistrate shall forbear to punish it with death, yet they shall either have no children from such an unlawful bed, or their children shall die before them, Hos. 9. 11, 12. or shall not be reputed their genuine children, but bastards, and therefore excluded from the congregation of the Lord, Deut. 23. 2.

† chap. 18. 16. † Heb. a separation.

21 * And if a man shall take his brothers wife d, it is † an unclean thing e: he hath uncovered his brothers nakedness; they shall be childless.

d Except in the case allowed by God, Deut. 25. 5. e An abominable thing, like the uncleanness of a menstruous woman, which is oft expressed by this word: Heb. a separation, or removing, i. e. a thing deserving separation or exclusion from society with others; or a thing to be removed out of sight or out of the world.

† chap. 18. 26.

22 Ye shall therefore keep all my † statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: that the land whither I bring you to dwell therein, * spue you not out.

* chap. 18. 25.

23 And ye shall not walk in the manners of the nation which I cast out before you: for they committed
*Deut.9.5 all these things, and * therefore I abhorred them.

24 But I have said unto you, Ye shall inherit their land, and I will give it unto you to possess it, a land that floweth with milk, and honey: I am the LORD your God, which have separated you from other people f.

f By my special grace and favour vouchsafed to you above all people, in glorious and miraculous works wrought for you and among you, and in ordinances and other singular priviledges and blessings imparted to you, all which calls for your special love and service.

* chap.11. 2. Deut. 14.4. 25 * Ye shall therefore put difference between clean beasts, and unclean, and between unclean fowls and clean: and ye shall not make your souls abominable by beast, or by fowl, or by any manner of living thing ‖ Or, moveth. that ‖ creepeth on the ground, which I have separated from you as unclean g.

g (i.e.) As things which by my sentence I have made unclean, and which you must avoid as such.

* Verse 7. chap. 19. 2. 1 Pet. 1.16. 26 And ye shall be holy unto me: * for I the LORD am holy, and have severed you from other people, that ye should be mine.

*Deut.18. 10,11. 1 Sam. 28. 7,8. 27 * A man also, or woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death: they shall stone them with stones: their blood shall be upon them.

CHAP. XXI.

Priests must not defile themselves, in mourning over the Dead: Cases excepted, 1——6. Nor marry with a Whore, Profane, or Divorced Woman, 7, 8. His Daughter, if a Whore, to be burnt with fire, 9. The High Priest must in no case defile himself with the Dead, 10——12. Must marry a Virgin of his People, 13——15. Persons having bodily defects, allowed to eat of the holy things, but not to serve in the Tabernacle, or offer to God, 16——24.

1 AND the LORD said unto Moses, Speak unto the Priests, the sons of Aaron, and say unto *Ezek.44. 25. them, * There shall none be defiled for the dead a among his people:

a To wit, by touching of the dead body, or abiding in the same house with it, or assisting at his funerals, or eating of the funeral feast. The reason of this law is evident, because by such pollution they were excluded from converse with men, to whom by their function they were to be serviceable upon all occasions, and from the handling of holy things, Num. 6. 6. & 19. 11,14,16. *Deut.*26. 14. Hos. 9. 4. And God would hereby teach them, and in them all successive Ministers of holy things, that they ought so entirely to give themselves to the service of God, that they ought to renounce all expressions of natural affections, and all worldly employments so far as they are impediments to the discharge of their holy services. See *Lev.*10.3,7. *Deut.*33.9. Mat. 8. 22. Hereby also God would beget in the people a greater reverence to the Priestly function, and oblige the Priests to a greater degree of strictness and purity than other men.

2 But for his kin that is near unto him b, that is, for his mother, and for his father, and for his son, and for his daughter, and for his brother c.

b Under which general expression his wife seems to be comprehended, though she be not expressed in the following instances, because from the mention of others more remote it was easie to gather that so near a relation was not excluded. And hence it is noted as a peculiar and extraordinary case, that Ezekiel, who was a Priest, was forbidden to mourn for his wife, *Ezek.*24.16,&c. These exceptions God here makes in condescention to humane infirmity, because in such cases it was very hard to restrain the affections. But this allowance concerns only the Inferiour Priest, not the High Priest, as we shall see. c Obj. Eleazar and Ithamar are forbidden to mourn for their brethren, Nadab and Abihu. Ans. 1. That case was singular, both because such a mourning might seem to be a censure of God's severity upon them, and because they were then in the actual execution of their office and in their initiation to it, and they were the only persons, besides Aaron, that could perform that work, and therefore their attendance upon it was more necessary than it would be in after-times and other cases 2. The latter law can either limit or enlarge the former at the pleasure of the lawgiver. And this law may seem to be added, least that prohibition Lev. 10. should be taken for a general rule.

3 And for his sister d a virgin, that is nigh unto him e, which hath had no husband f; for her may he be defiled.

d Either by father, or mother. e (i.e.) By nearness not of relation, (for that might seem a needless addition) but of habitation, i.e. one not yet cut off from the family, as it follows. f For if she was married, she was now of another family, and under her husbands special care in those matters.

4 But ‖ he shall not defile himself, being a chief man among his people g, to prophane himself.
‖ Or, being an husband among his people he shall not defile himself for his wife, &c.

g Or, seeing he is a chief man, &c. or ruler, &c. for such not only the High Priest, but others also of the Inferiour Priests were. And therefore though he might defile himself for the persons now named, yet he, above all others, must take heed so to do it that he do not profane himself by doing as follows. Or, for a chief man, &c. the preposition Lamed being easily understood from the former verse, where it is oft used, such supplements being not unusual in the Hebrew tongue. So the sence is, He shall not defile himself for any other person whatsoever who is not thus near of kin to him, no not for a prince or chief ruler among his people, who might seem to challenge this duty from him, to join with all others in their resentment of the publick loss, much less shall he defile himself for any other. And so the last word, to profane himself, may be added as a reason why he should not defile himself for the prince or any other, except the persons named, because such defilement for the dead did profane him, or make him as a common person and unclean, and consequently unfit to manage his sacred employment, which was an impediment to the service of God, and a publick inconvenience to the people whose concerns with God he negotiated. And it was not meet such great and important affairs should give place to the ceremonies of a funeral for a stranger.

5 * They shall not make baldness upon their head h, * chap.19. 27,28. Ezek. 44. neither shall they shave off the corner of their beard, nor make any cutting in their flesh.

h To wit, in funerals, as the heathens did: q. d. Though I allow them to defile themselves for some of the dead, yet in no case shall they use these superstitious and heathenish rites, which also the people are forbidden to do, Lev. 19. 27. Deut. 14. 1. but the Priests in a more peculiar manner, because they are by word and example to teach the people their duty not to sorrow for the dead as persons without hope.

6 They shall be holy unto their God i, and not profane the Name of their God k: for the offering of the LORD made by fire, and the bread of their God l they do offer: therefore they shall be † holy. † Heb. is linesf.

i Devoted to God's service, and always prepared and fit for it, and therefore shall keep themselves, as far as they can, from all defilement, which makes them unmeet for their masters use. k Which they especially bear: they shall not disparage the service of God by making it give place to such sleight occasions. l (i.e.) the shewbread: or rather, all the other offerings, besides burnt-offerings: which are called bread, either because bread is commonly put for all food, as below, ver. 17, 21. or, because God is satisfied and refreshed with these offerings, as a man is with his bread: or rather, because they, or part of them, are the bread or food of the Priests, and are here called the bread of their God, either objectively because they were offered to God, or efficiently, because they were given by God to the Priests. And these are called bread in opposition to the burnt-offerings, which being wholly consumed gave no food to the Priests. Or, the offerings made by fire are here put Synecdochically for all the rest, the most eminent kind for all, which are here called bread, because devoured by fire to the honour of God. For the particle and is not in the Hebrew, and may be omitted.

7 * They shall not take a wife that is a whore, or pro- * Ezek.44. 22. fane m, neither shall they take a woman put away from her husband n: for he is holy unto his God.

m Or, defiled, or deflowred, though it were done secretly, or by accident, or by force: because the Priest must take care that all the members of his family be free not only from gross wickedness, but from all suspicions of evil, and occasions of reproach or contempt, because this would reflect upon himself, and upon his God and religion also. The word may note one deflowred by any person, though it were by her husband; or a widow, because not only the High-Priest was obliged to marry a virgin, ver. 13. but also the inferiour Priests, as appears from Ezek. 44. 22. and that is either signified by this word, or by none other here. It is true, a widow, and a profane person are distinguished, ver. 14. but the same word may be, and oft is taken in differing fences, both more largely and more strictly, in the same chapter. And there was some reason why it should be more expresly and distinctly set down there, a widow, or one profane or deflowred otherwise, because there was the more need of caution in the High-Priest, and therefore the widow is particularly mentioned, which in the former case might be sufficiently comprehended under a general title. n Tho' not for adultery, but for light causes and by the husbands fault, because tho' the woman might be wholly innocent and free, yet it would leave some blemish upon her.

8 Thou shalt sanctifie him o therefore, for he offereth the bread of thy God: he shall be holy unto thee: p for I the LORD which sanctifie you am holy q.

o Thou, O Moses, and whosoever shall succeed in thy place, to whom it belongs to see those and other of my laws observed, shall take care that the Priest be holy, and do not defile himself by any of these forbidden marriages, though he would do it. p Either, 1. in thy esteem, and therefore shall not give these cause to think meanly and irreverently of him by his defiling or debasing of himself with irregular mixtures: or, 2. to thy use or service, in whose name he is to act with God, and therefore shall preserve himself in a state of holiness and acceptation with God. q And therefore my Ministers must be such also.

9 And the daughter r of any priest, if she profane her self by playing the whore, she profaneth her father s; she shall be burnt with fire t.

r And by analogy his son also, and his wife, because the reason of the law here added concerns all. And nothing is more common than to name one kind for the rest of the same nature, as also is done *Levit.*18. s (i.e.) Exposeth his person and office, and consequently religion, one of whose prime ministers he is, to contempt. t Which was the severest of all the kinds of punishments among the Jews. Whereby God would shew, both the greatness of their sins who stand in nearer relation to God than others, and how far God is from allowing sin in those who are nearest to him.

10 And he that is the high priest among his brethren, upon whose head * the anointing oyl was poured u, and * Exod.32. 30. * that is consecrated to put on the garments x, shall * not uncover his head y, nor rent his clothes z. ‡ Exod.28.

u Levit. 8. 12. Which was only sprinkled upon inferiour Priests, 2. chap. blood also being mixed with it, Lev. 8. 30. x To wit, those holy 16. 32. garments, which were peculiar to him, as well as those common to others. y This being then the posture of mourners, Lev. 10.6. tho' afterwards the custom was changed and mourners covered their heads, 2 *Sam.*15.30. *Esth.*6.12. Or if this custom was now in use, the meaning may be, he shall not put off the Priestly covering or mitre, which which was necessary for him to do if he had put on the mourners covering upon his head, otherwise the holy covering had been defiled, but he shall continue in the exercise of his office, which is signified by keeping on his Priestly garments. z Another expression of mourning.

11 Neither shall he go in a to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father b or for his mother.

a To wit, into the chamber or house where they lie. This and divers other rites here prescribed were from hence translated by the Heathens into their use, whose Priests were put under the same obligations. b Because upon his fathers death he was actually High-priest, having been consecrated to this office in his Fathers life-time.

12 Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary c, nor profane the sanctuary d of his God: for * the ‖ crown of the anointing oyl e of his God is upon him: I am the LORD. * Exod. 28.36. ‖ Or, consecration, or separation, Numb. 6.7.

c To wit, to attend the funerals of any person: for upon other occasions he might and did commonly go out. d Either by making the service thereof give place to the discharge of his passions, or the performance of a civility, or by entring into the Sanctuary before the seven days allotted for his cleansing, Numb. 19. 11. were expired. e (i.e.) The anointing oil, which to him was in stead of a crown, by which he was advanced not only above the rest of his brethren, but even above all the people, whose chief Governour he was in the things of God, tho' subject and accountable to the civil Magistrate, by which also he was made an eminent type of Christ who was to be King and Priest. Or, the crown, to wit, the golden plate, which is called his holy crown, Exod, 29. 6. and the anointing oyl of his God are upon him. So there is only an Ellipsis of the conjunction, and, which is frequent, as Psal. 33. 2. and 144. 9. Isa. 63. 11. Heb. 3. 11. &c. And these two things, being most eminent, are put for the rest, and the sign is put for the thing signified, q. d. for he is Gods High-priest. Or, the consecration (for so nezer signifies) of the anointing oil, which by an Hypallage may be put for the anointing oil of the consecration, i.e. whereby he is consecrated, is upon him, i.e. though that action be past, yet the vertue of it remains still upon him, he is a sacred person in the highest degree, and therefore not to defile himself in any kind.

13 And he shall take a wife in her virginity f.

f Or, a Virgin, partly for the decency of the type, because as he was a type of Christ, so his wife was a type of the Church, which is compared to a Virgin, 2 Cor. 11. 2. Rev. 14. 4. and partly for greater caution and assurance that his wife was not a defiled or deflowred person. This and the following rule belong not to all the Priests, for then this were a gross tautology, these same things or most of them being expresly forbidden to them v. 7. but only to the High-priest, to shew that he also and he especially is obliged to the same cautions.

14 A widow g, or a divorced woman, or profane, or an harlot, these shall he not take; but he shall take a virgin of his own people h to wife.

g Except he were the widow of his predecessor, which some gather from Ezek. 44. 22. But that place speaks only of the common Priest, not of the High-priest. h (i.e.) Either 1. of his own tribe, which is confuted by the examples of holy men. See 2 *Chron.*22. 11. Or 2. of the seed of Israel, as it is explained, Ezek. 44. 22.

15 Neither shall he profane his seed i among his people: for I the LORD do sanctifie him k.

i By mixing it with forbidden kinds, whereby the children would be disparaged and rendred unfit for their Priestly function. k (i.e.) have separated him from all other sorts of men for my especial and immediate service, and therefore will not have that race corrupted.

16 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

17 Speak unto Aaron, saying, Whosoever he be of thy seed l in their generations m, that hath any blemish n, † Or, fool. let him not approach to offer the † bread o of his God.

l Whether the High-Priest, or the inferiour ones. m In all successive ages, as long as your Priesthood and polity indures. n i.e. Any defect or excess of parts, any notorious deformity or imperfection in his body. The reason hereof is partly typical, that he might more fully represent Christ, the great High-priest, who was typified both by the priest and sacrifice, and therefore both were to be without blemish; partly moral to teach all Christians and especially Ministers of holy things, what purity and perfection of heart and life they should labour after, and that notorious blemishes in the mind or conversation render a man unfit for the Ministery of the Gospel, and partly prudential, because such blemishes were apt to breed contempt of the person, and consequently, of his function, and of the holy things wherein he ministred. For which reason, some conceive, that still such persons as have notorious defects or deformities which render them contemptible, are not fit for the Ministery. Which may be true in the general, except where there are eminent gifts and graces, which are sufficient to vindicate a man from the contemptibleness of his bodily presence. The particular defects here mentioned, I shall not enlarge upon because some of the Hebrew words are diversly interpreted, and because the use of these things being abolished, the knowledge of them is not very necessary. o Either the shew-bread, one eminent part being named for the whole: or the food, i. e. all the oblations. See before on ver. 8.

18 For whatsoever man he be that hath a blemish, he shall not approach p: a blind man, or a lame, or he ch.22.23. that hath a flat nose q, or any thing * superfluous, p Unto God, or to serve him in his sanctuary. q Most restrain this word to the nose, and to some great deformity relating to it, either the want of it wholly or in part, or the shortness, flatness, or crookedness of it. But according to others, it signifies more generally, a person that wants some member or members, because the next word, to which it is opposed, signifies one that hath more members than he should.

19 Or a man that is broken footed, or broken handed,

20 Or crook-backt, or a † dwarf, or that hath a † Or, too blemish in his eye, or be scurvy, or scabbed, or hath slender. his stones broken.

21 No man that hath a blemish r, of the seed of Aaron the priest, shall come nigh to offer the offerings of the LORD made by fire: he hath a blemish, he shall not come nigh to offer the bread of his God.

r Any notorious blemish whereby he is disfigured, though not here mentioned.

22 He shall eat the bread of his God, both of the most holy, and of the holy s.

s Which a Priest having any uncleanness upon him might not do. Whereby God would shew the great difference between natural infirmities sent upon a man by God, and moral defilements which a man brought upon himself. What was holy, and what most holy was declared before. See Levit. 2. 3. and 6. 17. and 7. 1. and 14. 13. and 22. 10.

23 Only he shall not go in unto the vail t, nor come nigh unto the altar u, because he hath a blemish, that he profane not my sanctuary x: for I the LORD do sanctifie them y.

t (i.e.) To the second vail which was between the Holy and the most Holy place, Exod. 26. 33. 36. to burn incense, to order the shew-bread, and to dress the lamps, which were nigh unto that vail though without. u (i.e.) The altar of burnt-offering, which was without the sanctuary. The sense is, He shall not execute the priests office, which was to be done in those two places. x Heb. my sanctuaries, in the plural number, as it is also, Levit. 26. 31. Jer. 51. 51. Ezek. 28. 18. For though the Sanctuary was but one, yet there were divers parts, to wit, the Court, the Holy place, and the most holy, each of which was in a large sense a Sanctuary, or an holy place set apart for Gods Worship. y (i.e.) Do set them apart for high and holy uses, to manifest my presence and grace, and to receive my Worship and service in them. And therefore I will not have them polluted or disparaged by the admission of defiled or deformed priests to Minister therein.

24 And Moses told it unto Aaron, and to his sons, and to all the children of Israel.

CHAP. XXII.

A Priest, with any Uncleanness, must not eat of holy things, on pain of Death, till Sun-set, and he be well cleansed, 1——7. Might not eat of a dead Carcass, nor that which was torn, 8. No Strangers nor hired Servants to eat of holy things, 10. Not the Priests Daughter, if Married to a Stranger, 12. Concerning such as eat thereof unwillingly, 14——16. Concerning Free-will Offerings and their Conditions, 17. 24. Not to be received from a Strangers hand, 25. Of what Age, 26. No Beast to be offered with the Dam, 28. Offerings to be eat the same Day, 29, 30. An Exhortation to obedience, 31——33.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and to his sons, that they separate themselves a from the holy things b of the children of Israel, and that they profane not my holy name in those things which they c hallow unto me: I am the LORD.

a To wit, when any uncleanness is upon them, as it appears from v. 3, 4. b (i.e.) from eating of those parts of the offerings, which belong to them. Only of the tithes they might eat in that case. c Either the children of Israel, or the Priests: For both of them did in their kinds hallow, consecrate or offer them to God. But the former seems more probable, both because they are mentioned here, and v. 3. where they are said to hallow, &c. and because this makes the argument stronger, it ill became the Priests to profane or pollute what the people did hallow.

3 Say unto them, whosoever he be of all your seed among your generations that goeth unto the holy things d, which the children of Israel hallow unto the LORD, having his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off from my presence e: I am the LORD.

d To eat them, or to touch them; for if the touch of one of the people having his uncleanness upon him defiled the thing he touched, much more was it so in the Priest. e Either, from the place of my presence and from my ordinances by excommunication: He shall be excluded both from the administration, and from the participation of them. Or, from the people among whom I am present, which commonly is expressed by cutting off from his people. Or, from the land of the living.

4 What man if soever of the seed of Aaron is a leper, or hath * a † running issue, he shall not eat of * ch.15.2. † Heb. the holy things untill he * be clean. And * whoso *running of toucheth any thing that is unclean by the dead, or * a the reins. man whose seed goeth from him, * ch.14.2. and 15.13. * Numb. 19.11.

f (i.e.) Or woman, of Aarons seed: for they were under the same law.

5 Or * whosoever toucheth any creeping thing, * ch.5.2. whereby he may be made unclean, or * a man of whom he may take uncleanness, whatsoever uncleanness he hath: * ch.11.24. * ch.15.7.

6 The soul which hath touched any such, shall be un- 19. clean until the even, and shall not eat of the holy things, unless he wash his flesh with water.

7 And when the sun is down he shall be clean, and shall afterward eat of the holy things, because it is his food g.

g (i.e.) His portion, the means of his subsistence. This may be added, to signifie why there was no greater nor longer a penalty put upon the Priests than upon the people in the same case,

Lev. 11. and 15. because his necessity craved some mitigation: Tho' otherwise the Priests being more sacred persons, and obliged to greater care and exemplariness deserved a greater punishment.

* Exod. 22.31. *ch.17.15. Ezek. 44. 31.

8 * That which dieth of it self, or is torn with beasts, he shall not eat, to defile himself therewith: I am the LORD.

9 They shall therefore keep mine ordinance h, lest they bear sin i for it k, and die therefore, if they profane it l: I the LORD do sanctifie them.

h Either this ordinance here treated of concerning abstaining from holy things when they are unclean: Or more generally, that great ordinance whereby I have made them the Guardians of holy places and things to keep them from all defilement by themselves or others. Heb. my watch, (i.e.) the watch or guard which I have commanded them to keep. i (i.e.) Incur guilt and punishment. k (i.e.) For the neglect or violation of it. l (i.e.) Their charge, or Gods ordinance about it.

*See 1 Sam 21. 6.

10 * There shall no stranger m eat of the holy thing; a sojourner n of the priests, or an hired servant shall not eat of the holy thing o.

m (i. e.) Of a strange family, who is not a priest, as ver. 12. compare Matth. 12. 4. But there is an exception to this rule, v. 11. n One that comes to his house and abides there for a season, and eats at his table. o Of these parts of the offerings, which fell to the priests share, as the breast and shoulder.

† Heb. with the purchase of his money.

11 But if the priest buy any soul † with his money, he shall eat of it, and he that is born in his house: they shall eat of his meat p.

p Because they were wholly his, and as such they were circumcised, Gen. 17. Exod. 12.

* Heb. a man a stranger.

12 If the priests daughter also be married unto † a stranger q, she may not eat of an offering of the holy things.

q (i.e.) To one of another family, who is no priest. Yet the priests wife, though of another family, might eat. The reason of which difference is, because she wife passeth into the name, state and privileges of her husband, from whom the family is denominated and esteemed.

13 But if the priests daughter be a widow, or divorced, and have no child, and is returned unto her *ch.10.14. fathers house, * as in her youth, she shall eat of her fathers meat, but there shall no stranger eat thereof.

14 And if a man eat of the holy thing unwittingly, then he shall put the fifth part thereof unto it r, and shall give it unto the priest, with the holy thing s.

r Over and above the principal, and besides the ram to be offered to God, Levit. 5. 15. s Or, and shall give unto the Priest the holy thing, i. e. the worth of it, which the Priest was either to take to himself or to offer to God, as the nature of the thing was.

15 And they t shall not profane the holy things of the children of Israel, which they offer unto the LORD.

t Either 1. The people shall not profane them, by eating them: Or 2. The Priests shall not profane them, i. e. suffer the people to profane them, without censure and punishment. Both come to the same thing: The people shall not do it, nor the Priests suffer it.

‖ Or, lade themselves with the iniquity of trespass in their eating.

16 Or ‖ suffer them to bear the iniquity of trespass u, when they eat their holy things: for I the LORD do sanctifie them.

u (i.e.) They i. e. the Priests, shall not (the negative particle being understood out of the foregoing clause, as Psal. 1. 5. and 9. 18.) suffer them, i. e. the people, to bear the iniquity of trespass, i. e. the punishment of their sin, which they might expect from God, and for the prevention whereof the priest was to see restitution made, &c. The words may be rendred thus, But (so the Hebrew vau is oft translated) they i. e. the Priests, shall make them, i. e. the people, to bear the iniquity, or punishment of their trespass or sin, i. e. they shall require from them reparations in manner here expressed.

17 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

18 Speak unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all *ch. 1. 2, 3. 10. the children of Israel, and say unto them, * Whosoever he be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers x in Israel, that will offer his oblation for all his vows y, and for all his free-will-offerings, which they will offer unto the LORD for a burnt-offering:

x Such as were Proselytes. y See on Levit. 7. 16.

19 Ye shall offer at your own will a male z without blemish of the beeves, of the sheep, or of the goats.

z For a burnt-offering, which was always of that kind: but the females were accepted in peace-offerings, Lev. 3. 1. and sin-offerings, Lev. 4. 32. and 5. 6.

* Deut. 15. 21. and 17. 1. Mal. 1. 8. *ch. 3. 1. ‖ Or, goats.

20 * But whatsoever hath a blemish, that shall ye not offer: for it shall not be acceptable for you.

21 And * whosoever offereth a sacrifice of peace-offerings unto the LORD, to accomplish his vow, or a free-will-offering in beeves or ‖ sheep, it shall be perfect, to be accepted: there shall be no blemish a therein.

a To wit, none of the blemishes meantioned, v. 22, 24. for some blemishes did not hinder the acceptance of a free-will-offering, but only of a vow, v. 23.

* ver. 20.

22 * Blind, or broken, or maimed, or having a wen, or scurvy, or scabbed, ye shall not offer these unto the LORD; nor make an offering by fire of them upon the altar unto the LORD.

23 Either a bullock, or a ‖ lamb that hath any thing ‖ Or, kid. * superfluous or lacking in his parts, that mayest thou offer b for a free-will-offering: but for a vow it shall not be accepted. *ch.21.18.

b Either 1. To the Priest, who might, according to the rules given by God, either convert it to his own use, or sell it, and lay out the price of it upon the Temple or Sacrifices. But in this sense any of the other kinds, as blind, or broken, &c. might be offered, which yet are forbidden to be offered, v. 22. or rather 2. To the Lord, as is expressed, v. 22. 24. this being put down by way of opposition to those defects, v. 22. and by way of exception from the general rule, v. 21.

24 Ye shall not offer unto the LORD that which is bruised, or crushed, or broken, or cut, neither shall ye make any offering thereof in your land.

25 Neither from a strangers hand c shall ye offer the bread d of your God of any of these e; because their corruption is in them f, and blemishes be in them: they shall not be accepted for g.

c To wit, from Proselytes, from whom less might seem to be expected, and in whom God might bear with some things, which he would not bear with in his own people: Yet even from those such should not be accepted, much less from the Israelites. d (i.e.) The sacrifices. See on Levit. 21. 8. e (i.e.) So corrupted or defective. Which clause limits the sense and kinds of offerings, and cuts off another more general interpretation received by many, to wit, that he forbids the receiving of any offering, whether blemished or perfect, from the hands of a stranger remaining in Heathenism. f (i.e.) They are corrupt, vitious and unlawful sacrifices. g Or, from you, O Priests, to whom it belongs to offer. You shall bear the blame of it, for the strangers might do so through ignorance of Gods Law.

26 And the LORD said unto Moses, saying,

CHAP. XXIII.

Concerning the Feasts of the Lord, 1, 2. The Sabbath, 3. Passover, 4—8. The first Fruits, 9——14. Of Pentecost, 15——22. Of the Feast of Trumpets, 23——25. Of Attonements, 26——32. Of the Feast of Tabernacles, 33——44.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them concerning the feasts of the LORD which ye shall proclaim a to be holy convocations, b even these are my feasts c.

a (i.e.) Cause to be proclaimed, by the Priests. See Numb. 10. 8, 9, 10. b Days for your assembling together to my worship and service in a special manner. c Which I have appointed, and the right observation whereof I will accept.

3 * Six days shall work be done, but the seventh day †Ex. 20.9. is the sabbath of rest, an holy convocation; ye shall and 23.12. do no work d therein: it is the sabbath of the LORD and 34.21. in all your dwellings e.

d So it runs in the general for the sabbath day, and for the day chap 19.3. of expiation, v. 28. excluding all works about earthly occations Deut.5.13. or employments whether of profit or of pleasure; but upon other Luk.13.14. feast days he forbids only servile works, as v. 7, 21, 36. for surely this manifest difference in the expressions used by the wise God must needs imply a difference in the things. e This is added to distinguish the sabbath from other feasts, which were to be kept before the Lord in Jerusalem only, whither all the males were to come for that end; but the Sabbath was to be kept in all places where they were, both in Synagogues, which were erected for that end, and in their private houses.

4 These

4 These are the feasts of the LORD, even holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons f.

f In their appointed and proper times, as the word is used, Gen. 1. 14. Psal. 104. 19.

*Ex.12.18 and 13. 3. and23. 15. and34.18. Num.9. 2. and28. 16. Deut.16.1

5 * In the fourteenth day of the first month at even is the LORDS passeover.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto the LORD: seven days ye must eat unleavened bread.

7 In the first day ye shall have an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

8 But ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD seven days g: in the seventh day is an holy convocation, ye shall do no servile work therein.

g The matter and manner whereof, see Numb. 28. 18. &c.

9 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto *Ex.23.16 them, * When ye be come into the land h which I give Num. 28. unto you, and shall reap i the harvest thereof k, then 26. ye shall bring a ‖ † sheaf l of the first-fruits of your ‖ Or, handful. harvest unto the priest: † Heb. an Omer.

h Therefore this obliged them not in the desert, where they reaped no harvest, &c. i (i.e.) begin to reap, as it is expounded, Deut. 16. 9. So he begat, i. e. began to beget, Gen. 5. 32. and 11. 26. and he built, 1 King. 6. 1. i. e. he began to build, as it is explained, 2 Chron. 3. 1. k To wit, barly harvest, which was before wheat harvest. See Exod. 9. 31, 32. and 34. 22. Ruth 2. 23. l Heb. An omer, which is the tenth part of an Ephah. It seems here to note the measure of corn which was to be offered. For it is to be considered, that they did not offer this Corn in the ear, or by a sheaf or handful, but, as Josephus, 3. 10. affirms, and may be gathered from Lev. 2. 14, 15, 16. purged from the chaff, and dryed, and beaten out, and, some add, ground into meal and sifted into fine flour; though this may be doubted of, because the meat-offering attending upon this was of fine flour, v. 13. and because this offering is said to be of green ears of Corn dried, &c. Lev. 2. 14.

11 And he shall wave the sheaf before the LORD, to be accepted for you m: on the morrow after the sabbath n the priest shall wave it.

m That God may accept of you and bless you in the rest of your harvest. n (i.e.) After the first day of the feast of unleavened bread, which was a Sabbath or day of rest, as appears from v. 7. or upon the sixteenth day of the month. And this was the first of those fifty days, in the close whereof was the feast of Pentecost or Whitsuntide.

12 And ye shall offer that day, when ye wave the sheaf, an he-lamb o without blemish of the first year, for a burnt-offering unto the LORD.

o Besides the daily morning and evening sacrifice, which it was needless to mention here, and besides one of those sacrifices to be offered every day of the seven, v. 8.

13 And the meat-offering thereof shall be two tenth-deals p of fine flour mingled with oyl, an offering made by fire unto the LORD for a sweet savour: and the drink-offering thereof q shall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin r.

p Or, parts, to wit, of an Ephah, i. e. two Omers, whereas in other sacrifices of Lambs there was but one tenth deal prescribed, Numb. 15. 4. The reason of which disproportion may be this, that one of the tenth deals was a necessary attendant upon the Lamb, and the other was peculiar to this feast and occasion, and was an attendant upon that of the sheaf or Corn, and was offered with it in thanks giving to God for the fruits of the Earth. q Drink-offerings were added to all burnt-offerings, as we may see, Numb. 15. 5. r The measure appointed for every Lamb, Numb. 15. 5. This also probably would have been doubled, for the reason now mentioned, had this been a thank-offering for the vintage as it was for the Harvest.

14 And ye shall eat neither bread s, nor parched corn, nor green ears s, until the self-same day u that ye have brought an offering unto your God: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.

s Made of new wheat, as the nature and reason of the Law sheweth. t Which were usual, not only for offerings to God, as Lev. 2. 14. but also for mans food. See Josh. 5. 11. Ruth 2. 14. 1 Sam. 17. 17. Matth. 12. 1. u Good reason God should be first served and owned as the supream Landlord.

* Deut. 16.9. † Or, seven weeks.

15 And * ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath x, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave-offering, † seven sabbaths y shall be compleat.

x (i.e.) From the sixteenth day of the month, and the second day of the feast of unleavened bread inclusively. See on v. 11. y (i.e.) weeks, which are so called, by a Synecdoche, from the chief day of it, both here and Luk. 18. 12. Acts 20. 7. 1 Cor. 16. 2.

16 Even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath z shall ye number fifty days, and ye shall offer a new meat-offering a unto the LORD.

z (i.e.) After seven weeks or forty nine days, the morrow after which was the fiftieth day, called also Pentecost. a To wit, of new Corn made into loaves, as it follows.

17 Ye shall bring out of your habitations b two wave-loaves of two tenth-deals c: they shall be of fine flour, they shall be baken with leaven d, they are the * first- *Ex.23.16 fruits unto the LORD. 19. and 34. 26.

b (i. e.) Out of the Corn of your own land, for which and for Numb.15. the fruits of it you are now to offer praises unto God. And this 20. and also, as well as the former sacrifice, was brought out of the com- 28. 26. mon charge, and in the name of the whole nation; whence it is Deut.26.2 said to be brought out of their habitations in the plural number. Some conceive two several loaves were brought from every family; or, as others, from every City or Town. But this is easily consuted from v. 18. where we read that with the bread, to wit, the two loaves, were to be offered seven Lambs, one Bullock, &c. which doubtless was a common oblation, and in the name of all. c In double proportion, as before, v. 13. d Because these were not offered to God, but wholly given to the Priests for food. See on Lev. 2. 11. and 7. 13.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish of the first year, and one young bullock, and two rams e: they shall be for a burnt-offering unto the LORD, with their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings; even an offering made by fire of sweet savour unto the LORD.

e In Numb. 28. 11, 19. it is two young bullocks and one ram. Either therefore it was left to their liberty to chuse which they would offer, or one of the bullocks there, and one of the rams here, were the peculiar sacrifices of the feast-day, and the other were attendants upon the two loaves, which were the principal and most proper offering at this time. And the one may be mentioned there, and the other here, to teach us, that the addition of a new sacrifice did not destroy the former, but both were to be offered, as the extraordinary sacrifices of every feast did not hinder the oblation of the daily sacrifice.

19 Then ye shall sacrifice * one kid f of the goats * ch.4.23. for a sin-offering f, and two lambs of the first year for 28. a sacrifice of * peace-offerings. * ch. 3. 1.

f In Lev. 4. 14. the sin-offering for the sin of the people is a bullock, but here a kid, &c. the reason of the difference may be this, because that was for some particular sin of the people, but this only in general for all their sins. If it be said, then this should have been the better sacrifice. as being for far more and possibly greater offences, it may be replied, that this is not the only instance wherein the greater sins are expiated by smaller sacrifices, and the smaller sins by greater sacrifices; which was to instruct us, that sins were not expiated by the sacrifices for any worth in them, but only in respect of Christ; and that, though all sins are not equal, yet they are all expiated by one and the same price, even by the blood of Christ.

20 And the priest shall wave them g with the bread of the first-fruits for a wave-offering before the LORD, with the two lambs: * they shall be holy to the LORD, * Numb. † for the priests h. 18. 12.

g (i.e.) Some part of them in the name of the whole; and so Deut. 18. for the two lambs, otherwise they had been too big and too heavy 4. to be waved. So it is a synecdochical expression. h Who had to † Heb. to. themselves not only the breast and shoulder, as in others, which belonged to the Priest, but also the rest which belonged to the offerer; because the whole Congregation being the offerer here, it could neither be distributed to them all, nor given to some without offence or injury to the rest.

21 And ye shall proclaim on the self-same day, that it may be an holy convocation i unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: it shall be a statute for ever in all your dwellings, throughout your generations.

i A Sabbath or day of rest, called Pentecost; which was instituted, partly in remembrance of the consummation of their deliverance out of Egypt by bringing them thence to the mount of God, or Sinai, as God had promised, and of that admirable blessing of giving the Law to them at that time, and forming them into a Commonwealth under his own immediate Government; and partly in gratitude for the further progress of their harvest, as in the Passover they offered a thank-offering to God for the beginning of their harvest.

22 And * when ye reap the harvest of your land, *ch. 19.9. thou k shalt not make clean riddance of the corners * Deut. of thy field when thou reapest, * neither shalt thou ga- 24.19.&c. ther any gleanings of thy harvest: thou shalt leave them unto the poor, and to the stranger: I am the LORD your God.

k From the plural, ye, he comes to the singular, thou, because he would press this duty upon every person who hath an harvest to reap, that none might plead exemption from it. And it is observable, that though the present business is only concerning the Worship of God, yet he makes a kind of excursion to repeat a former Law of providing for the poor, to shew that our piety and devotion to God is little esteemed by him if it be not accompanied with acts of Charity to men.

23 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, in the * seventh month, in the first day of the month, shall ye * Numb. have a Sabbath, a memorial of blowing of trumpets l, 29. 1. an holy convocation.

l (i. e.) Solemnized with the blowing of trumpets by the Priests, not in a common way, as they did every first day of every month, Numb. 11. 10. but in an extraordinary manner, not only in Jerusalem, but in all the Cities of Israel. This seems to have been instituted, 1. To solemnize the beginning of the new year, whereof as to civil matters, and particularly as to the Jubiles, this this was the first day; concerning which it was fit the people should be admonished, both to excite their thankfulness for Gods blessings in the last year, and to direct them in the management of their civil affairs. 2. To put a special honour upon this month. For as the seventh day was the Sabbath, and the seventh year was a Sabbatical year; so God would have the seventh month to be a kind of Sabbatical month, for the many Sabbaths and solemn feasts which were observed in this more than in any other month. And by this sounding of the trumpets in it, beginning God would quicken and prepare them for the following Sabbaths, as well that of atonement and humiliation for their sins, as those of thanksgiving for Gods mercies.

25 Ye shall do no servile work therein: but ye shall offer an offering m made by fire unto the LORD.

m What that was, see Numb. 29. 2, &c.

26 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying.

*ch.16.30. Num. 29. 7. 27 * Also on the tenth day of this seventh month, there shall be a day of atonement; it shall be an holy convocation unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls n, and offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

n With fasting, and bitter repentance for all, especially their national sins, among which no doubt God would have them remember their sin of the golden Calf. For as God had threatned to remember it in after times to punish them for it, Exod. 32. 34. so there was great reason why they should remember it to humble themselves for it.

28 And ye shall do no work in that same day: for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you, before the LORD your God.

29 For whatsoever soul it be o that shall not be afflicted in that same day, * he shall be cut off from among his people. * Gen. 17. 14.

o Either of the Jewish Nation, or Religion. Hereby God would signifie the absolute necessity which every man had of Repentance and Forgiveness of sin, and the desperate condition of all impenitent persons.

30 And whatsoever soul it be that doth any work in that same day, the same soul will I destroy from among his people.

31 Ye shall do no manner of work: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.

32 It shall be unto you a sabbath of rest, and ye shall afflict your souls in the ninth day of the month at even, from even unto even shall ye † celebrate your sabbath p. † Heb. rest.

p This clause seems to be added to answer an objection, how this day of atonement could be both on the tenth day, v. 27. and on the ninth day here. The answer is, it began at the evening or close of the ninth day, and continued till the evening or close of the tenth day, and so both were true, especially if you consider, that the Jews did take in some part of the fixth days evening by way of preparation for the Sabbath, and therefore would much more take in a part of the ninth day to prepare and begin the great and solemn work of their yearly atonement. And this clause may be understood either, 1. Of this particular Sabbath called here your Sabbath in the singular number, possibly to note the difference between this and other Sabbaths: for the weekly Sabbath is oft called the Sabbath of the Lord, because that was in a special manner appointed for the praising, honouring and serving of God and celebrating his glorious works, as also the other Sabbaths here mentioned were, whereas this was principally ordained for their need and for their good, even to seek and obtain the pardon of their sins. Or 2. Of all their Sabbaths, and consequently of this. The Jews are supposed to begin every day, and consequently their Sabbaths, at the evening, in remembrance of the creation, Gen. 1. 5. as Christians generally begin their days and Sabbaths with the morning in memory of Christs Resurrection.

33 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

34 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, * The fifteenth day of the seventh month shall be the feast of tabernacles q for seven days unto the LORD. * Num. 29. 12.

q (i. e.) Of Tents or Booths or Arbours. This feast was appointed principally to remind them of that time when they had no other dwellings in the Wilderness, as it is expressed, v. 43. and to stir them up to bless God, as well for the gracious conduct and protection then afforded them, as for their more commodious and secure habitations now given them; and secondarily to excite them to gratitude for all the fruits of the year newly ended, which were now compleatly brought in, as may be gathered from v. 39. and Exod. 23. 16. Deut. 16. 13, 14. See an instance of this feast, Neh. 8. 16.

35 On the first day shall be an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

36 Seven days ye shall offer an offering r made by fire unto the LORD; * on the eighth day i shall be an holy convocation unto you, and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it is a † solemn assembly s, and ye shall do no servile work therein. * Joh. 7. 37. and 2 Chron. 7. 9. † Heb. day of restraint.

r A several offering each day, which is particularly described Numb 29. 13, &c. s Which though it was not one of the days of this feast strictly taken, nor is it here affirmed to be so, but on the contrary is expresly said to consist of seven days, v. 34, 39. nor did they dwell longer in Tabernacles, yet in a larger sence it belonged to this feast, and is called the great day of the feast, Joh. 7. 37. And so indeed it was, as for other reasons, so because, by their removal from their Tabernacles into more fixed and comfortable habitations, it represented that happy time wherein their 40 years tedious march in the wilderness was ended with their introduction into and settlement in the land of Canaan, which it was most fit and just they should acknowledge with such a solemn day of thanksgiving as this was. t Heb. a day of conclusion, because it was the end of the feast, Joh. 7. 37. or, of restraint, because they were restrained from servile work, and obliged to attendance upon Gods worship; or, of detention, because they were yet detained before the Lord, and kept together for his service, and not suffered to return to their tents, till this was over.

37 These are the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, a burnt-offering, and a meat-offering, a sacrifice u, and drink-offerings, every thing upon his day:

u (i. e.) Another sacrifice, to wit, for a sin-offering, as we shall find it, Numb. 29. 16, 19, 22, &c. called by the general name, a sacrifice, because it was designed for that which was the principal end of all sacrifices, to wit, for the expiation of sin.

38 Beside the sabbaths x of the LORD, and beside your gifts y, and beside all your vows, and beside all your free-will-offerings, which ye give unto the LORD.

x (i. e.) The offerings of the weekly sabbaths, by a Metonymy, as the day is sometimes put for the actions done in it, as Prov. 27. 1. 1 Cor. 3. 13. God will not have any sabbath-sacrifice diminished because of the addition of others, proper to any other feast. And it is here to be noted, that though other festival days are sometimes called sabbaths, as here v. 39. yet these are here called the sabbaths of the Lord, in way of contradistinction to other days of rest, to shew that this was more eminently such than other feast-days, which also sufficiently appears from the fourth Commandment. y Which, being here distinguished from the free-will-offerings made to the Lord, may seem to note what they freely gave to the Priests over and above their first-fruits and tithes or other things which they were enjoyned to give.

39 Also z, in the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit a of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days. On the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the eighth day shall be a sabbath.

z Or, rather surely, as this particle is oft used: For this is no addition of a new, but only a repetition of the former, injunction, with a more particular explication both of the manner and reason of the feast. a Not the corn, which was gathered long before, but of their trees, as vines, olives, and other fruit-trees: which compleated the harvest, whence this is called the feast of in-gathering, Exod. 23. 16.

40 And ye shall take you on the first day the † † boughs b of goodly trees c, branches of palm-trees, and the boughs of thick trees d, and willows of the brook e, and ye shall rejoyce f before the LORD your God seven days. † Heb. fruit.

b Heb. the fruit, i. e. fruit-bearing boughs or branches with the fruit on them, as the word fruit seems to be taken, 2 Kng. 19. 30. Ezek. 19. 12. c To wit, the olive, myrtle and pine, as they are mentioned, Nehem. 8. 15, 16. which were most plentiful there, and which would best preserve their greenness or freshness. d Fit for shade and shelter. e Which might do well to mix with the other, and in some sort to bind them together. And as they made their booths of these materials, as is apparent, Nehem. 8. so it seems they did also carry some of these boughs in their hands, as is affirmed by Jewish and other antient writers. f Which joy they testified by feasting, thanksgiving, &c.

41 And ye shall keep it a feast unto the LORD seven days in the year, it shall be a statute for ever in your generations: ye shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

42 Ye shall dwell in booths g seven days: all that are Israelites born shall dwell in booths;

g Which were erected in their cities or towns, either in their streets, or gardens, or the tops of their houses, Nehem. 8. 16. which were made flat, and therefore were proper and fit for that use.

43 That your generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

44 And Moses declared unto the children of Israel the feasts of the LORD.

a At their common charge, because it was for their common good and service. This command was given before, Exod. 27. 20.

3 Without the vail of the testimony b, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall Aaron c order it from the evening unto the morning, before the LORD

4 He shall order the lamps upon * the pure d candlestick before the LORD continually. * Exod. 31. 8.

d So called, partly because it was made of pure gold, partly because it was to be oft dressed and always kept clean.

5 And thou e shalt take fine flour, and bake twelve * cakes f thereof: two tenth-deals g shall be in one cake. * Exod. 25. 30.

e By the Priests or Levites, whose work it was to prepare them, 1 Chron. 9. 32. f Representing the twelve tribes. g (i. e.) Two Omers. See Levit. 23. 13.

6 And thou shalt set them in two rows h, six on a row, upon the pure table i before the LORD.

h Not one above another, but one beside another, as the frankincense put upon each, ver. 7. shews. i So called because it was covered with pure gold, Exod. 25. 24. and because it was always to be kept very pure and clean by the care of the Priests.

7 And thou shalt put pure frankincense k upon each row, that it may be on the bread l for a memorial m, even an offering made by fire unto the LORD.

k Unmixed and uncorrupted, or of the best fort. l Or, to the bread, or for the bread, to wit, to be burnt before the Lord instead of the bread, which could not conveniently be offered to God in that manner. And this was done every time that the bread was changed. m For that part which properly belonged to God, whereas the rest belonged to the Priests. See on Levit. 2. 2.

8 Every sabbath he shall set it in order before the LORD n continually, being taken o from the children of Israel by an everlasting covenant p.

n Whence it was called the shew-bread, Heb. the bread of faces or of presence, i. e. the bread which was put upon the Table in the Lords presence. o Such supplements are not unusual. Thus in the burdens, 2 Chron. 2. 18. for carrying burdens, 1 King. 5. 15. And these cakes are said to be received from or offered by the children of Israel, because they were bought with the money which they contributed, as may be seen Nehem. 10. 32, 33. as Judas is said to purchase the field, Act. 1. 18. which was purchased by his money, Mat. 27. 7. p By vertue of that compact made between me and them, by which they are obliged to keep this amongst other commands, and, they so doing, I am obliged to be their God and to bless them. And this may be here called an everlasting covenant, not only because it was to endure as long as the Jewish religion and polity stood, but also because this was to stand there everlastingly, or continually as is here said, and therefore the new cakes were first brought before the old were taken away.

*Exod. 29. 33. ch. 8. 31. 1 Sam. 21. 6. Mat. 12. 4. 9 And * it q shall be Aarons and his sons, and they shall eat it in the holy place: for it is most holy unto him, of the offerings r of the LORD made by fire, by a perpetual statute.

q (i. c.) The old bread now to be taken away. r Or, as one or being one of the offerings, &c. in regard of the incense which was offered by fire, and that for or instead of the bread, as was said on ver. 7. and therefore the bread was repured as if it had been so offered.

10 And the son of an Israelitish woman, whose father was an Egyptian s, went out t among the children of Israel: and this son of the Israelitish woman, and a man of Israel strove together u in the camp.

s This circumstance seems noted, partly to shew the danger of marriages with persons of wicked principles or practises, wherein the children, as one wittily and truly observes, like the conclusion, do commonly follow the worse part, and are more easily taught by word or example, to do ten things agreeable to their corrupt natures, than one thing contrary to it; and partly by this severity against him who was a stranger by the father, and an Israelite by the mother, to shew that God would not have this sin to go unpunished amongst his people, whatsoever he was that committed it. t To wit, out of Egypt, being one of that mixed multitude, which came out with the Israelites, Exod. 12. 32. It is probable, this was done when the Israelites were near Sinai. u This is added to shew, that provocation to sin is no justification of it.

† Or, named. Gen. 30. 28. Numb. 1. 17. 11 And the Israelitish womans son † blasphemed the Name of the LORD x, and cursed y, and they z brought him unto Moses a, (and his mothers name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan.)

x The words of the Lord, or of Jehovah, are here conveniently supplied out of v. 16. where they are expressed, but here they are omitted for the aggravation of his crime. He blasphemed the name so called by way of eminency; that name which is above every name; that name which a man should in some fort tremble to mention; which is not to be named without cause and without revererence. For which reason the godly Jews did many times rather understand than express the name of God, as Mark 14. 62. the right hand of power, for of the power of God, as it is Luk. 22. 69. and the blessed for the blessed God, Mat. 26. 63. Mark 14. 61. y Not the Israelite only, but his God also, as appears from ver. 15, 16. z Either the people who heard him, or the inferior Magistrate, to whom he was first brought. a According to the order settled by Jethro's advice, Exod. 18. 26.

* Numb. 15 34. † Heb. to expound unto them according to the mouth of the LORD. 12 And they * put him in ward, † that the mind of the LORD might be shewed them b.

b For God had only said in general, that he would not hold such guiltless, i. e. he would punish them, but had not declared how he would have them punished by men.

13 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

14 Bring forth him that hath cursed, without the camp, and let all that heard him, * lay their hands upon his head c, and let all the congregation stone him d. * Deut. 13. 9. & 17. 7.

c Whereby they gave publick testimony that they heard this person speak such words, and did in their own and in all the peoples names, desire and demand justice to be executed upon him, that by this sacrifice God might be appeased, and his judgments turned away from the people, upon whom they would certainly fall if he were unpunished. d The same punishment which was before appointed for those who cursed their Parents, whereas it deserved a far more grievous death. Thus God in this life mixeth mercy with judgment, and punisheth men less than their iniquities deserve.

15 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, Whosoever curseth e his God, shall bear his sin f.

e (i. e.) Speaketh of him reproachfully and with contempt. They therefore are greatly mistaken that understand this of the heathen Gods, whom their worshippers are forbidden to reproach or curse. But Moses is not here giving laws to Heathens, but to the Israelites, nor would he concern himself so much to vindicate the honour of Idols, nor doth this agree either with the design of the holy Scriptures, which is to beget a contempt and detestation of all Idols and Idolatry; or with the practice of the holy Prophets, who used oft to vilify them. See 1 King. 18. 27. Jer. 10. 11. f (i. e.) The punishment of it; shall not go unpunished. Some say he was to be beaten with stripes: others say with death, which is described ver. 16.

16 And † he that blasphemeth the Name of the LORD g, he shall surely be put to death, and all the congregation h shall certainly stone him: as well the stranger, as he that is born in the land, when he † blasphemeth the name of the LORD, shall be put to death. † Or, he that nameth. † Or, nameth.

g This some make a distinct sin from cursing his God mentioned ver. 15. but the difference they make seems arbitrary, and without evidence from reason, or the use of the words. And therefore this may be a repetition of the same sin in other words, which is common. And as this law is laid down in more general terms, ver. 15. so both the sin and the punishment are more particularly expressed, ver. 16. Or the first part of ver. 16. may be an application of the former rule to the present case. And as for him that blasphemeth, &c. or, is blaspheming, &c. in the present tense, which is fitly used concerning words just now uttered, and scarce yet out of their ears, he shall, &c. And so the following words, as well the stranger, &c. may be a repetition and amplification of the former law. h To shew their zeal for God, and to beget in them the greater dread and abhorrency of blasphemy.

17 * And he that † killeth any man i, shall surely be put to death. * Exod. 21. 12. Num. 35. 31. Deut. 19. 21. † Heb. smiteth the soul of a man.

i This law is repeated here, either to justifie this sentence of putting blasphemers to death, from the same severity executed for a less crime; or, to prevent the mischievous effects of mens striving or contending together, which as here it caused blasphemy; so it might in others lead to murder.

18 And he that killeth a beast, shall make it good, † beast for beast. † Heb. soul for soul.

19 And if a man cause a blemish in his neighbour; as * he hath done, so shall it be done unto him. * Exod. 21. 24. Deut. 19. 21.

20 Breach for breach, eye for eye, tooth for tooth: as he hath caused a blemish in a man, so shall it be done to him again. Mat. 5. 38.

21 * And he that killeth a beast, he shall restore it: and he that killeth a man, he shall be put to death. * Exod. 21. 33.

22 Ye shall have * one manner of law k, as well for the stranger, as for one of your own country: for I am the LORD your God. * Exod. 12. 49.

k To wit, in matters of common right, but not as to Church priviledges.

23 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, that they should bring forth him that had cursed, out of the camp, and stone him with stones: and the children of Israel did as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. XXV.

The Land not to be Tilled, but rest the seventh year: And that which grew of it self in Field or Vineyard, to be meat for them and their Cattle, 1——7. The Jubilee on the day of Atonement: A year of Liberty and Restoration: A year of rest to the Land: Of the peculiar Blessing of God on it, 8——22. Sold Inheritances to be redeemed at any time; but now to be restored: A Dwelling-House in a Walled City only excepted, 23——34. Kindness to the Poor: Usury forbidden: An Israelite must not be a Bondman or Maid, but an Hired Servant till the year of Jubilee: Bond-men or Maids to be taken from the Heathen: An Inheritance for ever, 35——46. Of an Israelite that should sell himself to a stranger, 47——53.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses in mount Sinai a, saying, a (i. e.) Near mount Sinai. So the Hebrew particle beth is sometimes used, as Gen. 37. 13. Jos. 5. 13. Judg. 8. 5. 2 Chron. 33. 20. compared with 2 King. 21. 18. So there is no need to disturb the order of the history in this place.

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, them, When ye come into the land b which I give you, †Heb. rest. then shall the land † keep * a sabbath c unto the *Exod. 23. 10. See ch. 26. 34. LORD d.

b So as to be settled in it; for the time of the wars was not to be accounted, nor the time before Joshua's distribution of the land among them, Jos. 14. 7, 10. c (i.e.) Enjoy rest and freedom from plowing, tilling, &c. d (i.e.) In obedience and unto the honour of God. This was instituted partly for the assertion of God's soveraign right to the land, in which the Israelites were but tenants at Gods will, partly for the trial and exercise of their obedience, partly for the demonstration of his providence as well in the general towards men, as more especially towards his own people, of which see below, ver. 20, 21, 22. partly to wean them from inordinate love, and pursuit of or trust to worldly advantages, and to inure them to depend upon God alone, and upon Gods blessing for their subsistence, partly to put them in mind of that blessed and eternal rest provided for all good men, wherein they should be perfectly freed from all worldly labours and troubles, and wholly devoted to the service and enjoyment of God. See on Exod. 23. 11. and lastly, that by their own straits in that year they might learn more compassion to the poor who were under the same straits every year.

3 Six years thou shalt sow thy field, and six years thou shalt prune thy vineyard, and gather in the fruit thereof.

4 But in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of rest unto the land, a sabbath for the LORD: thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard.

*2 King. 19. 29. †Heb. of thy separation. 5 * That which groweth of its own accord e of thy harvest thou shalt not reap f, neither gather the grapes † of thy vine undressed g: for it is a year of rest unto the land.

e From the grains that fell out of the ears the last reaping time. f (i.e.) As thy own peculiarly, but only so as others may reap it with thee, for present food. g Heb. the grapes of thy separation, i. e. The Grapes which thou hast separated or set apart to the honour of God, and to the ends and uses appointed by God; or, the grapes of that year, which are in this like the Nazarites hair, not cut off by thee, but suffered to grow to the use of the poor.

6 And the sabbath h of the land shall be meat for you, for thee, and for thy servant i, and for thy maid and for thy hired servant, and for the stranger that sojourneth with thee, h (i.e.) The growth of the Sabbath, or that fruit which groweth in the Sabbatical year. See on Levit. 23. 38. where the word, Sabbath, is taken in the like sense. i For all promiscuously, to take food from thence as they need it.

7 And for thy cattle, and for the beast, that are in thy land, shall all the increase thereof be meat.

8 And thou shalt number seven † sabbaths of years unto thee, seven times seven years, and the space of the seven sabbaths of years shall be unto thee forty and nine years. †Or, weeks.

9 Then shalt thou cause the trumpet † of the jubilee k to sound on the tenth day of the seventh month l, † Heb. loud of sounds. * in the day of atonement m shall ye make the trumpet sound throughout all your land. *chap 23. 27.

k Which signified the true liberty from our spiritual debts and slaveries to be purchased by Christ, and to be published to the world by the sound of the Gospel. l Which was the first month of the year for civil and worldly affairs, which were mainly concerned in the Jubilee, and therefore it began in that month; and, as it seems, upon this very tenth day, when the trumpet sounded, as other feasts generally began when the trumpet sounded. m A very fit time, that when they fasted and prayed for Gods mercy to them in the pardon of their sins, then they might exercise their charity and kindness to men in forgiving their debts, which is the true fast, as is noted, Isa. 58. 6. and to teach us, that the foundation of all solid comfort and joy must be laid in bitter repentance and atonement for our sins through Christ.

10 And ye shall hallow the fiftieth year n, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof o: it shall be a jubilee p unto you, and ye shall return every man unto his possession q, and ye shall return every man unto his family r.

n By which it seems most probable, that the year of Jubilee was not the forty and ninth year, as some learned men think, but precisely the fiftieth year. Which may appear, 1. Because the Jews account it so, which is confessed by the adversaries of this opinion, who say, that the Jews err in the computation of the Jubilee, as they do in Christ, the great end and antitype of the Jubilee. But it is not probable that the Jews should universally err in a matter of constant practice among themselves, especially when there was nothing of interest or prejudice in the case, as there was in reference to Christ. 2. Because it is expressly called the fiftieth year here, and ver. 11. that fiftieth year, which was not true, if it was but the nine and fortieth year. It is said, it is called so popularly, and it was so, if you take in the foregoing Jubilee. But it must be remembred, that there was not yet any foregoing Jubilee, but the very first of the kind is expressly called the fiftieth year, which in truth it was not, if the Jubilee was ended ere the fiftieth year began. 3. From the common course of computation. The old weekly Sabbath is called the seventh day, because it truly was so, being next after the six days of the week and distinct from them all: and the year of release is called the seventh year, ver. 4. as immediately following the six years, ver. 3. and distinct from them all. And therefore in like manner the Jubilee must needs be called the fiftieth year, because it comes next after seven times seven or forty nine years, ver. 8. and is distinct from them all. 4. From ver. 11, 12. where it is said, ye shall not sow, nor reap, &c. For it is the Jubilee, &c. which looks like a vain and useless repetition, if this year were but one of the seven years, for this very command was given concerning every seventh year, ver. 4. but if this year of Jubilee was, as indeed it was, a year distinct from, and coming after the seven sevens of years, then this repetition and application of that command to it was highly necessary, because otherwise it might seem hard and unreasonable that they should forbear sowing and reaping two years together, which hereby they are commanded to do. Two things are objected against this, 1. That the Jubilee was only a revolution of forty nine years. But that seems a great mistake, for it is most expressly distinguished from them all, and by way of distinction called the fiftieth year, therefore surely none of the forty nine. 2. The difficulty propounded, v. 20. concerns only the 7th year, whereas it had been a greater difficulty, if it had been extended to the Jubilee, and the Jubilee had been another vacant year coming next after the seventh year. But though the difficulty was greater for the Jubilee, yet it was more frequent for the seventh year: and the resolution of the one made the way plain for the satisfaction of the other. For as God promised so to bless every sixth year, that it should bring forth fruit for three years, ver. 21. so when the case was extraordinary, as in the Jubilee, it was but reasonable to expect an extraordinary blessing from God upon that sixth year which went next before the last of the seventh years, or the forty ninth year, that it should then bring forth fruit for four years.

o Understand such as were Israelites; principally so all servants, even to such as would not and did not go out at the seventh year, and to the poor, who now were acquitted from all their debts, and restored to their possessions. p So called either from the Hebrew word Jobel which signifies first a ram, and then a rams horn, by the sound whereof it was proclaimed; or from Jubal, the inventor of musical instruments, Gen. 4. 21. because it was celebrated with Musick and all expressions of joy. q Which had been sold or otherwise alienated from him. This Law was not at all unjust, because all buyers and sellers had an eye to this condition in their bargains; but it was necessary and expedient in many regards, as 1. To mind them that God alone was the Lord and owner and proprietor both of them and of their lands, and they only his Tenants and Farmers; a point which they were very apt to forget. 2. That hereby Inheritances, Families, and Tribes, might be kept entire and clear until the coming of the Messias, who was to be known as by other things, so by the Tribe and Family out of which he was to come. And this accordingly was done by the singular providence of God until the Lord Jesus did come. Since which time those characters are miserably confounded: Which is no small argument that the Messias is come. 3. To set bounds both to the insatiable avarice of some, and the foolish prodigality of others, that the former might not wholly and finally swallow up the inheritances of their brethren, and the latter might not be able to undo themselves and their posterity for ever, which was a singular priviledge of this Law and People. r From whom he was gone, being sold to some other Family either by himself or by his Father.

11 A jubilee shall that fiftieth year be unto you: ye shall not sow s, neither reap that which groweth of it self in it, nor gather the grapes in it of thy vine undressed.

s Though it come immediately after a seventh year, wherein also this was forbidden to you.

12 For it is the jubilee; it shall be holy unto you t; ye shall eat the increase thereof u out of the field x.

t So it was, because it was sequestred in great part from worldly employments and dedicated to God, and to the exercise of holy joy and thankfulness; and because it was a type of that holy and happy Jubilee which they were to expect and enjoy by and under the Messias. u Such things as it produced of it self: For the year before nothing was sowed. x Whence they in common with others might take it as they needed it; but must not put it into barns. See ver. 5. and Exod. 23. 11.

13 In the year of this jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession.

14 And if thou sell ought unto thy neighbour, or buyest ought of thy neighbours hand, ye shall not oppress one another y.

y Neither the seller by requiring more, nor the buyer by taking the advantage from his brothers necessities to give him less than the worth of it.

15 According to the number of years after the jubilee, thou shalt buy of thy neigbour, and according unto the number of years of the fruits z he shall sell unto thee.

z Or, Of years of fruits, or, of fruitful years; for there were some unfruitful years, to wit, such wherein they were not allowed to sow or reap, &c.

16 According to the multitude of years thou shalt increase the price thereof: and according to the fewness of years, thou shalt diminish the price of it: For according to the number of the years of the fruits a doth he sell unto thee.

a Or, For the number of the fruits. The meaning is, he selleth not the land, but only the fruits thereof, and that for a certain time.

17 Ye shall not therefore oppress one another, but thou shalt fear thy God: for I am the LORD your God.

18 Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments, and do them, and ye shall dwell in the land in safety.

19 And the land shall yield her fruit, and ye shall eat your fill, and dwell therein in safety.

20 And

20 And if ye shall say, What shall we eat b the seventh year? behold, we shall not sow, nor gather in our increase.

b A like objection, see Exod. 34. 23, 24.

21 Then I will command † my blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for three years c.

† (i.e.) Give. Commanding is oft used in Scripture either for the performance of promised blessings, as Deut. 28. 8. Psal. 111. 9. and 133. 3. or for the execution of threatned Judgments, as Isa. 5. 6. Amos 9. 4. both being acts of Gods providential Will, as the command is of his legislative Will. c Not compleatly, but in great part, to wit, for that part of the sixth year which was between the beginning of harvest and the beginning of the seventh year, for the whole seventh year, and for that part of the eighth year which was before the harvest, which reached almost until the beginning of the ninth year, And by this expression we may understand the meaning of that eminent passage of Christ's being three days and three nights in the grave, to wit, one whole day and part of two days: Of which more, if God please, in its proper place. This is added to shew the equity of this command. As God would hereby try their Faith, and exercise Obedience, so he gave them an eminent proof of his own exact Providence and tender care over them in making provisions suitable to their necessities. Albeit it be also probable, that divers of them, especially such as were more solicitous or distrustful of Gods Providence, did lay up something of the fruits of former years against this time.

22 And ye shall sow the eighth year, and eat yet of old fruit d until the ninth year: until her fruits e come in, ye shall eat of the old store.

d Of the sixth year principally, if not solely. e (i.e.) The fruits of the eighth year.

Or, to be quit out of Heb. for cutting off. Psal. 119. 9. Jer. 2. 11. 23 The land shall not be sold ‖ † for ever f: for the land is mine g: for ye are * strangers and sojourners with me h.

f Or, absolutely and properly, so as to become the propriety of the buyer: Or to the extermination or utter cutting off, to wit, of the seller, from all hopes and possibility of Redemption. g Procured for you by my power, given to you by my mere grace and bounty, and the right of propriety referred by me, and to be disposed of by you only to such persons and in such manner as I shall have ordained. h (i.e.) In my land or houses: thus he is said to sojourn with another that dwells in his house. Thus the poor decayed Israelites and the strangers are said to live with them, i. e. with the other Israelites, to wit, in the land or houses here, ver. 35, 36, 40, 45. Or, before me, in my sight, or in my account. Howsoever in your own or other mens opinions you pass for Lords and Proprietors, yet in truth, according to which my judgment always is, you are but strangers and sojourners, not to possess the Land for ever, but only for a season, and to leave it to such as I have appointed for it.

24 And in all the land of your possession, ye shall grant a redemption i for the land.

i (i.e.) A right of redemption in the time and manner following.

25 If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath sold away some of his possession k, and if any of his kin come to redeem it l, then shall he redeem that which his brother sold.

k To wit, in the fields, but not in cities, ver. 29. l Or, If the redeemer come, being near akin to him, to whom the right of Redemption belonged, Ruth 3. 2, 9, 12. Jer. 32. 7. who in this act was an eminent Type of Christ, who was made near akin to us by taking our flesh, that he might perform the work of Redemption for us.

Heb. his hand hath attained and found sufficiency. 26 And if the man have none to redeem it, † and himself be able to redeem it:

27 Then let him count the years of the sale thereof m, and restore the overplus n unto the man to whom he sold it, that he may return unto his possession.

m (i.e.) From the time of the sale to the Jubilee. See above, ver. 15, 16. n (i.e.) A convenient price for the years from this Redemption to the Jubilee.

28 But if he be not able to restore it to him, then that which is sold shall remain in the hand of him that hath bought it until the year of jubile: and in the jubile it shall go out o, and he shall return unto his possession.

o (i.e.) Out of the buyers hand, without any Redemption money.

Heb. days of 2 Sam. 1. 3. and 27. 7. 29 And if a man sell a dwelling house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold; within † a full year may he redeem it.

30 And if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year, then the house that is in the walled city shall be established for ever to him that bought it, throughout his generations: it shall not go out in the jubile p.

p The reason is from the great difference between such houses and lands. The reasons before alledged for lands do not hold in such Houses; there was no danger of confusion in Tribes or Families by the alienation of Houses. The seller also had a greater propriety in Houses than in Lands, as not coming to him by Gods meer gift, but being commonly built by the owners cost and diligence, and therefore had a fuller power to dispose of them. Besides, God would hereby encourage persons to buy and possess Houses in such places, which frequency and fulness of Inhabitants in Cities, was a great strength, honour and advantage to the whole Land.

31 But the houses of the villages q which have no wall round about them, shall be counted as the fields of the country: † they may be redeemed; and they shall go out in the jubile. †Heb. redemption belongeth unto it.

q Because they belonged to and were necessary or very convenient for the management of the lands.

32 Notwithstanding the cities of the Levites, and the houses of the cities of their possession may the Levites redeem at any time.

33 And if ‖ a man purchase of the Levites, then the house that was sold, and the city of his possession shall go out r in the year of jubile: for the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession among the children of Israel. ‖ Or, one of the Levites redeem them.

r Or thus, But he that shall redeem it shall be or must be of the Levites, i. e. No person of another Tribe, though by Marriage near akin to the selling Levite, shall redeem it, but Levites only, and any of them shall have have the same power to redeem it, which in other Tribes only the nearest kindred have: and, in case none of them redeem it, yet the house that was sold, and the city of his possession, i. e. his share or intereſt in the City of his possession, shall go out and return to the Levites without any Redemption.

34 But the field of the suburbs of their cities s may not be sold t, for it is their perpetual possession.

s Of which see on Numb. 35. 5. t Not sold at all, partly, because it was of absolute necessity for them for the keeping of their Cattle, and partly because these were no enclosures, but common fields, in which all the Levites that lived in such a City had an interest, and therefore no particular Levite could dispose of his part in it. Some conceive, that this Law was altered in ensuing ages, which they gather from Jer. 32. 7, 8. &c. and Act. 4. 36. 37. But those examples do not prove it. That sale of Jeremiah's was made by a particular dispensation and command of God, and that in a time when the Levites, as well as the people, were to be destroyed or dispersed, and carried into captivity, and therefore could receive no considerable injury by it: and besides, this sale was only made formally and for signification, as it is explained, ver. 14. 15. And for the land sold by Barnabas a Levite, Act. 4. as it was at a time when the Jewish Church was dissolved, and their State upon the brinks of utter ruine, so it is not evident that it was such Suburb land, which would have yeilded but a small price, but it might be other land, either such as he might have in right of his wife, or such as he might have purchased. For though the Levites in general had no other share of Land, beside this, allotted them by God, yet it is conceived that particular Levites might purchase lands to themselves.

35 And if thy brother be waxen poor, and † fallen in decay u with thee, then thou shalt † relieve him x, yea though he be a stranger, or a sojourner y, that he may live with thee. †Heb. his hand faileth. †Heb.

u Heb. his hand waxeth or faileth or is decayed, so that he hath not power to get or keep wealth as the phrase is, Deut. 8. 18. as on the contrary, when a man is able, his hand is said to attain and find sufficiency, as here above, ver. 26. x Heb. strengthen him, comfort his Heart, and strengthen his Hand. y Understand it of Proselytes only, for of other strangers they were permitted to take usury, Deut. 23. 20. strengthen.

36 * Take thou no usury of him z, or increase a, but * fear thy God, that thy brother may live with thee. *Exod. 22. 25. Deut. 23. 19.

z (i. e.) Of thy brother, whether he be Israelite, or Proselyte. a This some conceive relates to the fruits of the earth, food, &c. as usury doth to money. But here may rather seem to be two words expressing the same thing, (1.) to meet with the subtil evasions of crafty and covetous men, who made gain of their poor brethren (for of such only we speaks here, as is evident from ver. 35.) by lending money or other things; and that they may quiet their consciences, and palliate their sin, they disguise it under other names: and (2.) to shew that all kinds of usury are in this case forbidden, whether of money, or of victuals, or of any thing that is commonly lent by one man to another upon usury, or upon condition of receiving the thing lent with advantage and overplus, as it is said, Deut. 23. 19. *Prov. 28. 8 Ezek. 18. 8 & 22. 12. *Nehem. 5. 9.

37 Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase.

38 I am the LORD your God which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan, and to be your God.

39 And * if thy brother that dwelleth by thee be waxen poor, and be sold unto thee, thou shalt not † compel him to serve as a bond-servant b. *Exod. 21. 2. Deut. 15. 12. Jer. 34. 14. †Heb. serve thy selfe of him with the service &c.

b Neither for the time, for ever, nor for the manner, with the hardest and vilest kinds of service, rigorously and severely exacted from him.

40 But as an hired servant, and as a sojourner he shall be with thee, and shall serve thee unto the year of jubile.

41 And then shall he depart from thee c, both he and his children with him, and shall return unto his own family, and unto the possession of his fathers shall he return. Heb. with the sale of a bondman.

c Thou shalt not suffer him or his to abide longer in thy service, as thou mightest do in the year of release, Exod. 21. 2, 6.

42 For they are my servants d, which I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: they shall not be sold † as bondmen.

d They, no less than you, are members of my Church and People, such as I have chosen out of all the world to serve me here, and to enjoy me hereafter, and therefore are not to be oppressed or abused, neither are you absolute Lords over them to deal with them as you please.

*Eph. 6. 9. Col. 4. 1.

43 * Thou shalt not rule over him with rigor, but shalt fear thy God e.

e Though thou dost not fear them who are in thy power, and unable to right themselves, yet fear that God who hath commanded thee to use them kindly, and who can and will avenge their cause, if thou dost oppress them.

44 Both thy bond-men, and thy bond-maids which thou shalt have shall be of the heathen that are round about you: of them shall ye buy bond-men and bond-maids.

45 Moreover, of the children of the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy, and of their families that are with you, which they begat in your land; and they shall be your possession.

46 And ye shall take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit them for a possession; † they shall be your bond-men for ever: but over your brethren the children of Israel, ye shall not rule one over another with rigor.

† Heb. ye shall serve your selves of them.

47 And if a sojourner or stranger wax rich by thee, and thy brother that dwelleth by him wax poor, and sell himself unto the stranger or sojourner by thee, or to the stock f of the strangers.

f Heb. root, i. e. one of the root or stock. So the word root is elsewhere used for the branch or progeny growing from it, as Numb. 13. 28. 2 Chron. 22. 10. He seems to note one of a foreign race and countrey, transplanted into the land of Israel, and there having taken root amongst the people of God, yet even such an one, though he hath some privilege by it, yet he shall not have power to keep an Hebrew servant from the benefit of Redemption.

48 After that he is sold, he may be redeemed again; one of his brethren may redeem him.

49 Either his uncle, or his uncles son may redeem him, or any that is nigh of kin unto him of his family may redeem him: or, if he be able, he may redeem himself.

50 And he shall reckon with him that bought him, from the year that he was sold to him, unto the year of jubile, and the price of his sale shall be according unto the number of years, according to the time of an hired servant g shall it be with him.

g Allowance shall be made for the time wherein he hath served, proportionable to that which is given to an hired servant for so long service, because his condition is in this like theirs; that it is not properly his person, but his work and labour that was sold.

51 If there be yet many years behind, according unto them he shall give again the price of his redemption out of the mony that he was bought for.

52 And if there remain but few years unto the year of jubile, then he shall count with him, and according unto his years shall he give him again the price of his redemption.

53 And as a yearly hired servant shall he be with him: and the other shall not rule with rigor over him in thy sight h.

h Thou shalt not suffer this to be done, but whether thou art a Magistrate, or a private person, thou shalt take care according to thy capacity to get it remedied.

Or, by this means.

54 And if he be not redeemed ‖ in these years, then he shall go out in the year of jubile, both he and his children with him.

55 For unto me the children of Israel are servants; they are my servants, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.

CHAP. XXVI.

God commands them to shun Idolatry, 1. Keep his Sabbaths, and reverence his Sanctuary, 2. And walk in his Statutes, 3. Promising plenty, peace, victory, fruitfulness, his Tabernacle and Presence, 4——13. Dreadful Threatnings against the Despisers, Haters and Breakers of his Commands: He will give them over to Diseases, their Enemies, Drought, Pestilence, Sword, Famine; they who remain shall fall one upon another, and pine away in their sins, 14——39. But if they confess their sins, and are humbled under Gods Judgments, God will remember his Covenant, and shew them favour in their Enemies Land, 40——45. These Statutes the Lord gave to Israel in Mount Sinai by Moses, 46.

*Exod. 20. 4. Deut. 5. 8. and 16. 12. and 27. 15. Psal. 77. 7.

YE shall make you * no idols, nor graven image, neither rear you up a ‖ standing image a, neither shall ye set up any ‖ † image of stone in your land, to bow down unto it: for I am the LORD your God.

a Or, pillar, to wit, to worship it, or bow down to it, as it follows. Otherwise this was not simply prohibited being practised by holy men, both before and after this Law. Compare Exod. 23. 24. Deut. 16. 22. So Exod. 20. 4. They are forbidden to make images, not simply or for any use, but for worship.

2 * Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary, b: I am the LORD.

b By purging and preserving it from all uncleanness, by approaching to it and managing all the services of it with reverence, and in such manner only as God hath appointed.

3 * If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them; *Deut. 1.

4 Then I will give you rain c in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit.

c Therefore God placed them not in a land where there were such rivers as Nilus, to water it and make it fruitful, but in a land which depended wholly upon the rain of heaven, the key whereof God kept in his own hand, that so he might the more effectually oblige them to obedience, in which their happiness consisted.

5 And * your threshing shall reach unto the vintage d, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing time: and ye shall eat your bread to the full, and * dwell in your land safely. *Amos 9. 13. Job 5. 19.

d. (i. e.) You shall have so plentiful an harvest, that you shall not be able to thresh out your corn in a little time, but that work will last till the vintage.

6 And I will give peace in the land, and * ye shall lie down and none shall make you afraid: and I will † rid evil beasts out of the land; neither shall the sword go through your land f. *Job 11. 19. † Or, cause to cease. Isa. 35. 9. Ezek. 34. 25.

f (i. e.) War, as the sword is oft taken, as Numb. 14. 3. 2 Sam. 12. 10. Otherwise there is the sword of justice. f (i. c.) It shall not enter into it, nor have passage through it, much less shall your land be made the seat of War. † Heb. cause to cease.

7 And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword.

8 And * five g of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight: and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword. *Deut. 32. 30. Josh. 23. 10.

g. (i. e.) A small number; a certain number for an uncertain.

9 For I will have respect unto you, and make you fruitful, and multiply you, and establish my covenant with you h.

h (i. e.) Actually perform all that I have promised you in my covenant made with you.

10 And ye shall eat old store, and bring forth i the old, because of the new.

i Or, cast out, throw them away as having no occasion to spend them, or give them to the poor, or even to your cattle, that you may make way for the new corn, which also is so plentiful, that of it self it will fill up your barns.

11 [th] And I will set k my tabernacle amongst you: and my soul shall not abhor you. *Ezek. 37. 26.

k As I have placed it, so I will continue it among you, and not remove it from you, as once I did upon your miscarriage, Exod. 33. 7.

12 * And I will walk among you l, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people m. *2 Cor. 6. 16.

l As I have hitherto done, both by my pillar of cloud and fire, and by my Tabernacle, which have walked or gone along with you in all your journeys, and staid among you in all your stations, to protect, conduct, instruct and comfort you. m I will own you for that peculiar people which I have singled out of the mass of mankind, to bless you here and to save you hereafter.

13 I am the LORD your God which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, that ye should not be their bond-men, and I have broken the bands of your yoke, and made you go upright n.

n With heads lifted up, not pressed down with a yoke. It notes their liberty, security, confidence and glory. See Exod. 14. 8. Numb. 33. 3.

14 * But if ye will not hearken unto me, and will not do all these commandments: *Deut. 28. 15.

15 And if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhorre my judgments, so that ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant o, Mal. 2. 2.

o. (i. e.) Break your part or conditions of that covenant made between me and you, and thereby discharge me from the blessings promised on my part.

16 I also will do this unto you, I will even appoint † over you p terrour, consumption, and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes q, and cause sorrow of heart: † Heb. on you. and * ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it. *Job 31. 8.

p I will give them power over you, that you shall not be able to avoid or resist them. q By the decay of spirits and affluence of ill humours. & 12. 1.

17 And * I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you, and * ye shall flee when none pursueth you. *chap. 17. 10. Psal. 53. 5. Prov. 28. 1.

18 And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you seven times more for your sins:

19 And I will break the pride of your power q, and I will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass r:

q (i. e.)

q (i. e.) Your strength of which you are proud, your numerous and united forces, your kingdom, yea your Ark and Sanctuary.

r The heavens shall yield you no rain, nor the earth fruits.

20 And your strength s shall be spent in vain: for your land shall not yield her increase, neither shall the trees of the land yield their fruits.

s Spent in plowing and sowing, and tilling the ground.

21 And if ye walk ‖ contrary unto me t, and will not hearken unto me, I will bring seven times more plagues upon you, according to your sins. ‖ Or, at all adventures with me, and so v. 24.

t Or, carelessly or heedlessly with me or before me, i. e. so as to be careless and unconcerned whether you please me or offend me. This is opposed to exact and circumspect walking with God, as Abraham did, Gen. 17. 1. and all are to do, Ephes. 5. 15.

22 * I will also send wild beasts among you, which shall rob you of your children, and destroy your cattel, and make you few in number, and * your high ways shall be desolate u. *Deut. 32. 24. Ezek. 5. 17.

u By reason of the fewness of Travellers and people, and the terrour of wild beasts growing more numerous thereby. *Judg. 5. 6. 2 Chro. 15. 5. Isa. 33. 8. Lam. 1. 4.

23 And if ye will not be reformed by these things, but will walk contrary unto me:

24 * Then will I also walk contrary unto you x, and will punish you yet seven times for your sins. * 2 Sam. 22. 27. Psal. 18. 26.

x Or, carelessly with you or towards you, i. e. I will put you out of my care and protection.

25 And I will bring a sword upon you, that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant y: and when ye are gathered together within your cities, I will send the pestilence among you, and ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy z.

y (i. e.) My quarrel with you for your breach of your faith and covenant made with me. z Because those few that shall be left of the pestilence will be unable to defend you in your cities or strong-holds.

26 * And when I have broken the staff of your bread a, ten women b shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall deliver you your bread again by weight c: and * ye shall eat, and not be satisfied. *Isa. 3. 1. Ezek. 5. 16 & 14. 13. *Micah 6. 14. Hag. 1. 6.

a Either 1. by taking away that power and vertue of nourishing, which I have put into bread or food, which when I withdraw, it will be unable to nourish. Or rather 2. by sending a famine or scarcity of bread, which is the staffe and support of mans present life, Psal. 104. 15. for so this phrase is commonly used, and elsewhere explained, as Psal. 105. 16. Ezek. 4. 16. and so the following words expound it here. b (i. e. Ten or many families, for the women took care for the bread and food of all the family. c This is a sign and consequence both of a famine, and of the baking of the bread of several families together in one oven, wherein each family took care to weigh their bread, and to receive the same proportion which they put in. Compare Ezek. 4. 16.

27 And if ye will not for all this hearken unto me, but walk contrary unto me:

28 Then I will walk contrary unto you also in fury d, and I, even I will chastise you seven times for your sins. d Or, in fury of rashness or carelessness with you or among you, like a raging lion breaking into a multitude of people, and destroying all he meets with promiscuously or without any distinction, both righteous and wicked together, as is threatned, Ezek. 21. 3. Or, in fury of contrariety, or meeting with you, or against you, like a man that meets his enemy in the fury of battel.

29 * And ye shall eat the flesh of your sons e, and the flesh of your daughters shall ye eat. *Deut. 28. 53. Ezek. 5. 10.

e Through extreme hunger. See Lam. 4. 10.

30 And I will destroy your high places f, and * cut down your images g, and cast your carcases upon the carcases of your idols h, and my soul shall abhor you. * 2 Chro. 34. 7. Ezek. 6. 4, 5, 13.

f In which you will sacrifice after the manner of the Heathens See Levit. 19. 26. Numb. 33. 52. g Or, Your images of the Sun, made for the honour and worshipping of the Sun, and having some resemblance to it. See 2 Chron. 34. 7. Under this one kind of Idolatry, famous and frequent in those times and places, he contains all the rest. h So he calls them, either to signifie that their Idols how specious soever or glorious in their eyes, were in truth but lifeless and contemptible carcases, having eyes but see not, &c. Psal. 115. 5. or to shew that their Idols should be so far from helping them, that they should be thrown down and broken with them, and both should lie together in a forlorn and loathsome state.

*Lam. 1. 10. Ezek. 9. 6. & 21. 7.

31 And I will make your cities waste, and * bring your sanctuaries i unto desolation, and I will not smell k the savour of your sweet odours l.

i Either 1. Gods sanctuary, called Sanctuaries here, as also Psal. 73. 17. and 74. 7. Jer. 51. 51. Ezek. 28. 18. because there were divers appartments in it, each of which was a Sanctuary, or, which is all one, an holy place, as they are severally called. And your emphatically, not mine, for I disown and abhor it, and all the services you do in it, because you have defiled it. Or 2. The Temples built by you to Idols, therefore called their Sanctuaries, in opposition to Gods. Or 3. Your Synagogues. But the first is most probable, because he speaks of the place where they used to offer their sweet odours here following. k (i. c.) Not own or accept them. See Gen. 8. 21. Isa. 1. 11, &c. l Either of the incense, or of your sacrifices, which, when offered with faith and obedience, are very sweet and acceptable to me.

32 And I will bring the land into desolation: and your enemies which dwell therein m, shall be astonished at it n.

m Having driven you out and possessed your places. n See Lam. 5. 12.

33 And * I will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you o: and your land shall be desolate, and your cities waste. * Deut. 4. 27. & 28. 62, 64.

o The sword shall follow you into strange lands, and you shall have no rest there.

34 * Then shall the land ‖ enjoy her sabbaths, as long as it lieth desolate, and ye be in your enemies land, even then shall the land rest, and enjoy her sabbaths p. * 2 Chron. 36. 21. ‖ Or, accomplish. See Job. 14. 6.

p Either 1. because it shall be rid of you who were the unprofitable and heavy burdens thereof, under whom it in a manner groaned. Or rather 2. because it shall now enjoy those Sabbatical years of rest from tillage, which you through covetousness oft-times would not give it, as the next verse informs us, though God commanded it, Levit. 25. 4.

35 As long as it lieth desolate, it shall rest: because it did not rest in your sabbaths, when ye dwelt upon it.

36 And upon them that are left alive of you, I will send a faintness q into their hearts, in the lands of their enemies, and * the sound of a † shaken leaf shall chase them, and they shall flee, as fleeing from a sword: and they shall fall, when none pursueth. * Prov. 28. 1. † Heb. driven.

q The word notes a tenderness and softness of mind whereby they are disenabled from bearing the present miseries, and are in continual dread of further and forer miseries.

37 And * they shall fall one upon another r, as it were before a sword, when none pursueth s: and ye shall have no power to stand before your enemies. * Isa. 10 4.

r As soldiers use to do when their ranks are broken, and they forced to flee away hastily from their pursuers. s Your guilt and fear causing you to imagine that they do pursue you when indeed they do not.

38 And ye shall perish among the heathen, and the land of your enemies shall eat you up.

39 And they that are left of you * shall pine away t in their iniquity in your enemies lands, and also in the iniquities of their fathers shall they pine away with them. * Ezek. 4. 17. & 6. 9. & 20. 44. & 24. 23. & 33. 10. & 36. 31. Hos. 5. 15.

t Be consumed and melt away by degrees through diseases, oppressions, griefs and manifold miseries.

40 If they shall confess u their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespass which they trespassed against me, and that also they have walked contrary unto me, u Heb. And they shall confess, where our translation and many others understand the particle if, which is also wanting and understood, Exod. 4. 23. Mal. 1. 2. and 3. 8. So here, And if they shall confess, &c. But there seems no necessity of any such supplement, but these and the following words may be taken as they lye in their plain and proper signification, to this purpose, ver. 40. And through the heavinesse and extraordinariness of their affliction, their consciences will force them to confess their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their trespass which they have trespassed against me, i. e. with their prevarication with me and defection from me to Idolatry, which by way of eminency he calls their trespass: and that also they have walked contrary to me, ver. 41. and that I also have walked contrary unto them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies: i. e. that they are not come into these calamities by chance, nor by the misfortune of war, but by my just judgment upon them. All which confession is no more than Pharaoh made in his distresses, and than hypocrites in their affliction use to make. And therefore he adds, if then their uncircumcised, i. e. impure, carnal, profane, and impenitent hearts be humbled, i. e. subdued, purged, reformed: if to this confession they add sincere humiliation and reformation, I will do what follows.

41 And that I also have walked contrary unto them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies: if then their * uncircumcised hearts be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity x. * Jer. 6. 10. Rom. 2.

x The Hebrew word avon commonly signifies iniquity, but it is oft used for the punishment of iniquity, as here and 1 Sam. 28. 10. 2. 11. 29. Col. Psal. 31. 10. Isa. 53. 6, 11. The meaning is, if they sincerely acknowledge the righteousness of God and their own wickedness, and patiently submit to his correcting hand, and would rather be in their present suffering condition, than in their former sinful, though prosperous estate; if with David they are ready to say, it is good for them that they are afflicted, that they may learn God's statutes, and obedience to them for the future, which is a good evidence of true repentance.

42 Then will I remember my covenant y with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember, and I will remember the land z.

y To wit, so as to perform it, and make good all that I have promised in it. For words of knowledge or remembrance in Scripture, do most commonly connote affection and kindness: of which there are many instances, some given before, and more hereafter. z Which now seems to be forgotten and neglected, and despised, as if I had never chosen it to be the peculiar place of my presence and blessing.

43 The land also shall be left of them, and shall enjoy her sabbaths, while she lieth desolate without them: and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity: because, even because they despised my judgments, and because their soul abhorred my statutes.

44 And yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, * I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them: for I am the LORD their God †.

* Deut. 4. 31. Rom. 11. 26.

† Neither the desperateness of their condition, nor the greatness of their sins, shall make me wholly make void my covenant with them and their ancestors, but I will in due time remember them for good, and for my covenants sake return to them in mercy. From this place the Jews take great comfort, and assure themselves of deliverance out of their present servitude and misery. And from this, and such other places, St Paul concludes, that the Israelitish nation, though then rejected and ruined, should be gathered again and restored.

45 But I will for their sakes ‖ remember the covenant of their ancestors, whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt, in the sight of the heathen, that I might be their God: I am the LORD.

‖ Or rather, to or for them, i. e. for their good or benefit; for surely, if one considers what is said before concerning the wickedness of this people, he cannot say this deliverance was given them for their sakes, but must rather say with the Prophet, Ezek. 36. 22, 32. not for your sake, O house of Israel, &c.

46 These are the statutes, and judgments, and laws which the LORD made between him and the children of Israel in mount Sinai, by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. XXVII.

Laws touching the redeeming of Men, devoted to God, 1—8. Or of Beasts, 9—13. Of Houses, 14, 15. Of Fields or Grounds, 16—25. What things might not be vowed, and being so, what redeemable, and what not, 26—29. Of redeeming the Tenths both of Fruit and Cattel, 30—33.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2. Speak unto the children, and say unto them; When a man shall make a singular vow a, the persons shall be for the LORD b, by thy estimation c.

a Or, an eminent or hard or wonderful vow, not concerning things, which was not strange, but customary, but concerning persons, as it here follows, which he vowed, or by vow devoted unto the Lord, which indeed was unusual and difficult: yet there want not instances of such vows, and of persons which devoted either themselves or their children to the service of God, and that either more strictly and particularly, as the Nazarites, and the Levites, 1 Sam. 1. 11. and for these there was no redemption admitted, but they were in person to perform the service to which they were devoted: or more largely and generally, as some who were not Levites, nor intended themselves or their children should be Nazarites, might yet through zeal to God and his service, or to obtain God's help in giving them some mercy which they wanted and desired, or in freeing them from some evil felt or feared, devoted themselves or their children to the service of God and of the Sanctuary, tho' not in such a way as the Levites, which they were forbidden to do, yet in some kind of subserviency to them. And because there might be too great a number of persons thus dedicated, which might be burdensom and chargeable to the Sanctuary, therefore an exchange is allowed, and the Priests are directed to impose and require a tax for their redemption. b (i.e.) Dedicated to the Lord, and consequently to the Priest. c By whose estimation? Ans. Either 1. thine, O Priest, to whom the valuation of things belonged, and here is ascribed, ver. 12. Or rather 2. thine, O man that vowest, as appears from ver. 8. where his estimation is opposed to the Priests valuation. Nor was there any fear of his partiality in his own cause, for the price is particularly limited. But where the price is undetermined, there, to avoid that inconvenience, the Priest is to value it, as ver. 8, 12.

3 And thy estimation shall be, of the male from twenty years old even unto sixty years old d, even thy estimation shall be fifty shekels of silver, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

d Which is the best time for strength and service, and therefore is priced at the highest rate.

4 And if it be a female, then thy estimation shall be thirty shekels e.

e Less than the mans price, because she is inferiour to him both in strength and serviceableness.

5 And if it be from five years old f even unto twenty years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male twenty shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

f At what age they might be vowed by their parents, as appears from 1 Sam. 1. tho' not by themselves; and the children were obliged by their parents vow, which is not strange considering the parents power and right to dispose of their children so far as is not contrary to the mind of God.

6 And if it be from a month old, even unto five years old, then thy estimation shall be of the male five shekels of silver, and for the female thy estimation shall be three shekels of silver.

7 And if it be from sixty years old, and above, if it be a male, then thy estimation shall be fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

8 But if he be poorer then thy estimation g, then he shall present himself before the priest, and the Priest shall value him: according to his ability h that vowed, shall the priest value him.

g If after his vow he be decayed and impoverished, and not able to pay the price which thou, according to the rules here given, requirest of him. h Which God also considered in other cases, as Levit. 12. 8. Compare 2 Cor. 8. 12.

9 And if it be a beast whereof men bring i an offering unto the LORD, all that any man giveth k of such unto the LORD, shall be holy l.

i To wit, usually and according to Gods appointment. k (i. e.) Voweth to give. l (i. e.) Consecrated to God, either to be sacrificed, or to be given to the Priest according to the manner of the vow, and the intention of him that voweth.

10 He shall not alter it, nor change it m, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good n: and if he shall at all change beast for beast, then it, and the exchange thereof o shall be holy.

m Two words expressing the same thing more emphatically, q. d. He shall in no wise change it, neither for one of the same, nor of another kind. n Partly because God would preserve the sanctity and reverence of consecrated things, and therefore would not have them alienated, and partly to prevent abuses of them who on this pretence might exchange it for the worse, as reserving the judgment to himself. o (i. e.) both the thing first vowed, and thing offered or given in exchange. This was inflicted upon him as a just penalty for his rashness and levity in such weighty matters.

11 And if it be any unclean p beast of which they do not offer a sacrifice unto the LORD, then he shall present the beast before the priest:

p Either for the kind, or for the quality of it, if it were such an one as might not be offered. The Dog only may seem to be excepted, for his price might not be offered. See Deut. 23. 18.

12 And the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad: † as thou valuest it, who art the Priest, so shall it be.

† Heb. according to thy estimation, O Priest, &c.

13 But if he will at all redeem it, then he shall add a fifth part thereof unto thy estimation.

14 And when a man shall sanctifie q his house to be holy unto the LORD r, then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad: as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand s.

q To wit, by a vow, for of that way and manner of sanctification he speaks in this whole chapter. r In which case the benefit of it redounded either to the Priests for their maintenance, Num. 18. 14. or to the Sanctuary for its reparations or expences. s Supposing that the Priests estimation doth not notoriously swerve from the rules of valuation prescribed by God. For if the Priest determined most unrighteously and unreasonably, as suppose an hundred times more than the true value of it, I presume no man is so void of sence as to say they were all bound to stand to the Priests determination in that case. Even as in case a mans leprosie was notorious and unquestionable, if a Priest should through partiality pronounce him clean, this did not make him clean. And therefore all those passages of Scripture which leave things to, and command men to acquiesce in, the determination of the Priest or Priests, are to be understood with this exception, that their determinations be not evidently contrary to the revealed will of God, to whom Priests are subject and accountable. Otherwise if the Priests had commanded men to profane the sabbath, this would have acquitted them from the obligation of God's command of keeping it holy, which is impious and absurd to affirm. And this consideration will give light to many Scriptures.

15 And if he that sanctified it, will redeem his house, then he shall add the fifth part t of the mony of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be his.

t Which he might the better do, because the Priests did usually put a moderate rate upon it.

16 And if a man shall sanctifie unto the LORD some part of a field of his possession u, then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof x: ‖ an homer of barley seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver y.

‖ Or, the Land of an homer, &c.

u (i. e.) Which is his by inheritance, because particular direction is given about purchased lands, ver. 22. And he saith part of it, because it was unlawful to vow away all his possessions, because thereby he had disenabled himself from the performance of divers duties by way of sacrifice, almsgiving, &c. and made himself burdensome to his brethren. x (i. e.) According to the quantity and quality of the land, which is known by the quantity of seed which it can receive and return. y Not to be paid yearly, till the year of Jubilee, as some would have it, but once for all, as is most probable, 1. because here is no mention of any yearly payment, but only of one payment, and we must not add to the text. 2. because it is most probable that lands and all things were favourably and moderately valued, so that men might be rather encouraged to make such vows upon just occasions, than to be deterred from them by excessive impositions. But if this were yearly rent, it was an excessive rate, and much more than the land ordinarily yielded. For an Omer is but the tenth part of an Ephah, Exod. 16. 36. and therefore not above a pottle of our measure, which quantity of seed would not extend very far, and in some lands would yield but an inconsiderable crop, especially in barley, which was cheaper than wheat, and which for that reason, among others, may seem to be here mentioned rather than wheat.

17 If he sanctifie his field from the year of Jubilee z, according to thy estimation a it shall stand b.

z (i. e.) Immediately after the year of Jubilee is past. a Now mentioned, to wit, of 50 shekels for an homer of barley seed. b (i. e. That price shall be paid without diminution.

18 But

18 But if he sanctifie his field after the Jubilee c, then the priest shall reckon unto him the mony, according to the years that remain, even unto the year of the Jubilee d, and it shall be abated from thy estimation.

c (i. e.) Some considerable time after the Jubilee, as appears from the following words. d The defalcation from the full price of fifty shekels being to be more or less as the years are more or fewer. See Levit. 25. 15, 16, 17.

19 And if he that sanctified the field will in any wise redeem it, then he shall add the fifth part of the mony of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be assured to him.

20 And if he will not redeem the field e, or if he have sold the field f to another man, it shall not be redeemed any more g.

e To wit, when the Priest shall set a price upon it, and offer it to him in the first place to redeem it. f He, who? Either 1. the man that vowed it; if he, after such a vow made shall neglect to pay his vow, and shall sacrilegiously sell the same land to another man: or, if he sell it, i. e. suffer it to be sold to another, and will not prevent that by redeeming it to himself. Or rather 2. the Priest, or some in his name, who though not expressed, is sufficiently understood out of the foregoing clause, if he will not redeem or buy again the field, to wit, of the Priest, who is now the seller of it; or, or rather and, for this seems to be added by way of accumulation, if he, i. e. the Priest, of whom he might have redeemed it, upon his refusal, offers it to sale, and have sold the field to another man. Add to this, that none but the Priest could sell this land, after it was once vowed and declared to be so, and offered by the Priest to him again to redeem it, which is apparently the present case. g (i. e.) He shall for ever lose the benefit of redemption.

21 But the field when it goeth out h in the Jubilee, shall be holy unto the LORD, as a field devoted: the possession thereof shall be the priests i.

h (i. e.) Out of the possession of the other man to whom the Priest sold it. i For their maintenance. Nor is this repugnant to that law, that the Priests should have no inheritance in the land, Numb. 18. 20. for that is only spoken of them and the whole Tribe of Levi in general, and in reference to the first division of the land, wherein the Levites were not to have a distinct part of land, as other tribes had; but this doth not hinder, but some particular lands might be vowed and given to the Priests either for their own benefit, or for the service of the Sanctuary.

22 And if a man sanctifie unto the LORD a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of his possession k;

k Which is not his patrimony or inheritance.

23 Then the priest shall reckon unto him the worth of thy estimation l, even unto the year of the Jubilee m, and he shall give thine estimation n in that day, as a holy thing o unto the LORD.

l (i. e.) The price or sum at which thou, O Priest, shalt reckon it. So it is only a change of the person, which is frequent: or, the price which thou, O Moses, by my direction hast set in such cases. m (i. e.) As much as it is worth, for that space of time between the making of the vow and the year of Jubilee: for he had no right to it for any longer time, as the next verse tells us. n Without the addition of the fifth part, which he was to pay for his lands of inheritance, ver. 19. as being of a better and more durable tenure than purchased lands which were his only till the Jubilee. o As that which is to be consecrated to God instead of the land redeemed by it.

24 In the year of the jubilee the field shall return unto him of whom it was bought, even to him to whom the possession of the land did belong p.

p By original right, which no other person by vow or otherwise could give away from him.

25 And all thy estimation shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary: * twenty gerahs shall be the shekel.

* Exod. 30. 13. Num. 3. 47. Ezek. 45. 12.

26 Only the † * firstling of the beast, which should be the LORDS firstling, no man shall sanctifie it q, whether it be ox or sheep r: it is the LORDS.

† Heb. first-born, &c. * Exod. 13. 2, 12.

q To wit, by vow; because it is not his own, but the Lords already, and therefore to vow such a thing to God is a tacit derogation from, and an usurpation of the Lords right, and a mocking of God by pretending to give him what we cannot withhold from him. r Under these two eminent kinds he comprehends all other beasts which might be sacrificed to God, the firstlings whereof could not be redeemed but were to be sacrificed; whereas the firstlings of men were to be redeemed, and therefore were capable of being vowed, as we see 1 Sam. 1. 11.

27 And if it be of an unclean beast r, then he shall redeem it according to thine estimation, and shall add a fifth part of it thereto: or if it be not redeemed, then it shall be sold s according to thy estimation.

r (i. e.) If it be the first-born of an unclean beast, as appears from ver. 26. which could not be vowed, because it was a first-born, nor offered, because it was unclean, and therefore is here commanded to be redeemed or sold. Others understand it of all unclean beasts in general, and not of the first-born of them, because the first-born of such were to be redeemed by a sheep, Exod. 13. 13. without the addition of any such fifth part as is here enjoined. Which is true of the first redemption of them, but then as after they were redeemed they might be again vowed unto God, so when the owners would redeem them a second time, it was but reasonable they should pay a better price for them. And if this were meant of unclean beasts in general, this were the very same law which is mentioned before, ver. 11, 12, 13. which, it is not probable, would after a few verses be unnecessarily repeated again like a distinct law. s And the price thereof was given to the Priests, or brought into the Lords treasury.

28 * Notwithstanding, no devoted thing t that a man shall devote unto the LORD, of all that he hath u, both of man and beast, and of the field of his possession, shall be sold or redeemed: every devoted thing is most holy unto the LORD x.

* Josh. 6.

t (i. e.) Nothing which is absolutely devoted to God with a curse upon themselves or others, if they disposed not of it according to their vow; as the Hebrew word implies. u To wit, in his power or possession. x (i. e.) Only to be touched or employed by the Priests, and by no other persons; no not by their own families, for that was the state of the most holy things.

29 None devoted, which shall be devoted of men y, shall be redeemed: but shall surely be put to death.

y Not by men, as some would elude it; but of men, for it is manifest both from this and the foregoing verses, that men here are not the persons devoting, but devoted. Quest. Was it then lawful for any man or men thus to devote another person to the Lord, and in pursuance of such vow to put him to death? Answ. This was unquestionably lawful, and a duty in some cases, when persons have been devoted to destruction either by God's sentence, as Idolaters, Exod. 22. 20. Deut. 23. 15. the Canaanites, Deut. 20. 17. the Amalekites, Deut. 25. 19. & 1 Sam. 15. 3, 26. Benhadad, 1 King. 20. 42. or by men, in pursuance of such a sentence of God, as Numb. 21. 2, 3. & 31. 17. or for any crime of an high nature, as Judg. 21. 5. Psal. 7. 15. But this is not to be generally understood, as some have taken it, as if a Jew might by virtue of this Text, devote his child or his servant to the Lord, and thereby oblige himself to put them to death, which peradventure was Jephthe's errour. For this is expresly limited to all that a man hath, or which is hit, i. e. which he hath a power over. But the Jews had no power over the lives of their children or servants, but were directly forbidden to take them away, by that great command, thou shalt do no murder. And seeing he that killed his servant casually by a blow with a rod was surely to be punished, as is said Exod. 21. 20. it could not be lawful wilfully and intentionally to take away his life upon pretence of any such vow as this. But for the Canaanites, Amalekites, &c. God the undoubted Lord of all mens lives, gave to the Israelites a power over their persons and lives, and a command to put them to death. And this verse may have a special respect to them or such as them. And although the general subject of this and the former verse be one and the same, yet there are two remarkable differences to this purpose; 1. The verb is active, ver. 28. and the agent there expressed, that a man shall devote, but it is passive, ver. 29. and the agent undetermined, which shall be devoted, to wit, by God, or men in conformity to God's revealed will. 2. The devoted person or thing is only to be sold or redeemed, and said to be most holy, ver. 28. but here it is to be put to death, and this belongs only to men, and those such as either were, or should be devoted in manner now expressed.

30 And * all the tithe of the land z, whether of the seed of the land or of the fruit of the tree, is the LORDS: it is holy unto the LORD.

* Gen. 28. 18, 21, 24. Mal. 3. 8. 10.

z There are divers sorts of Tithes, but this seems to be understood only of the ordinary and yearly Tithes belonging to the Levites, &c. as the very expression intimates, and the addition of the fifth part in case of redemption thereof implies.

31 And if a man will at all redeem ought of his tithes, he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof.

32 And concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever passeth under the rod ‖, the tenth shall be holy unto the LORD.

‖ Either 1. the tithers rod, it being the manner of the Jews in tithing to cause all their cattel to pass through some gate or narrow passage, where the tenth was marked by a person appointed for that purpose and reserved for the Priest. Or 2. the shepherds rod, under which the herds and flocks passed, and by which they were governed and numbred. See Jer. 33. 13. Ezek. 20. 37.

33 He shall not search whether it be good or bad, neither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it, and the change thereof shall be holy, it shall not be redeemed.

34 These are the commandments which the LORD commanded Moses for the children of Israel in Mount Sinai.

Chap. I.

NUMBERS.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Book giveth us an Hiſtory of almoſt forty years travel of the children of Iſrael through the Wilderneſs, where we have an account of their journeys, and what happened to them therein, with their Government, and how they were managed thereby; Called Numbers by reaſon of the ſeveral Numbrings of the people, as at the offerings of the Princes, and at their ſeveral journeys, &c. But eſpecially two, One, Chap. 1. Out of which the Prieſts and Levites were excepted, but numbred by themſelves, viz. In the ſecond year after they were come out of Egypt, in the firſt month whereof the Paſſover was inſtituted; with the order about the Tabernacle both of the Levites, and People, and their ſeveral marches, encampings, and manner of pitching their Tents, the Prieſt's maintenance and eſtabliſhment, by the miraculous budding of Aarons rod, with the ſeveral impediments in their marches, both among themſelves by ſeveral murmurings, ſeditions, and conſpiracies; and from their enemies, viz. the Edomites, Canaanites, over whom having obtained a victory, and afterwards murmuring, they were ſtung with fiery Serpents, and cured by the brazen one; Amorites, whoſe Kings, Sihon and Og, they overcame, and ſlew; and Moabites, where by the allurements of Balaam who was hired by Balak to curſe Iſrael, they joyned themſelves to Baal peor, and are plagued for it; that openly oppoſed them. The other chief numbring is in Chap. 26. where they are found almoſt as many as at the firſt, though among them were none of the firſt numbring, (according to what God had threatned Chap. 14.) ſave Moſes, Joſhua, and Caleb, by reaſon of their deſire to return back into Egypt upon the diſcouraging report of ten of thoſe twelve that Moſes ſent to ſpy out the Land; whereupon they were forced to wander above 38 years in the wilderneſs; where he gave them ſeveral Laws, Civil, Eccleſiaſtical and Military; as alſo particular directions about women's inheriting, occaſioned by the caſe of Zelophead's daughters, and concerning vows; And then brings them back to the borders of Canaan, where, after divers victories obtained againſt their enemies, they were directed how the Land of Canaan was to be divided among the Tribes, and what portion the Levites were to have among them; together with ſix cities of Refuge ſet apart for the Man-ſlayer: At length Aaron being dead, and Eleazar placed in his ſtead, and Moſes alſo having received the ſentence of Death, doth, by God's appointment, deliver up the people unto the charge and conduct of Joſhua.

CHAP. I.

God Commands Moſes and Aaron to number the People that were fit for War, 1——3. Twelve Captains choſe, of every Tribe one: Their Names: The number of each Tribe, 4——45, 46. The Levites exempted: To take care of the Tabernacle: The other Tribes Camping round it, 47——54.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes in the wilderneſs of Sinai a, in the tabernacle b of the congregation, on the firſt day of the ſecond month, in the ſecond year after they were come out of the land of Egypt, ſaying, a Where now they had been a full year or near it, as may be gathered by comparing this place with Exod. 19. 1. & 40. 17. and other places. b From the mercy-ſeat.

2 * Take ye the ſum c of all the congregation of the children of Iſrael d, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, e with the number of their names, every male by their poll:

*Exod. 30. 12.

c This is not the ſame muſter with that Exod. 38. 26. as plainly appears, becauſe that was before the building of the Tabernacle, which was built and ſet up on the firſt day of the firſt month, Exod. 40. 2. but this was after it, to wit, on the firſt day of the ſecond month, as is ſaid ver. 1. And they were for differing ends; that was to tax them for the charges of the Tabernacle; but this was for other ends, partly that the great number of the people might be known to the praiſe of God's faithfulneſs, in making good his promiſes of multiplying them, and to their own comfort and encouragement; partly for the better ordering of their camp and march, for they were now beginning their journey; and partly that this account might be compared with the other in the cloſe of the Book, where we read that not one of all this vaſt number, except Caleb and Joſhua, were left alive; which was an evident diſcovery of the miſchievous nature of ſin, by which ſo vaſt a company were deſtroyed, and a fair warning to all future generations to take heed of rebelling againſt the Lord, for which their anceſtors had been ſo dreadfully plagued even to extirpation. It is true, the ſums and numbers agree in this and that computation, which is not ſtrange, becauſe there was not much time between the two numbrings, and no eminent ſin among the people in that interval, whereby God was provoked to diminiſh their numbers. Some conceive, that in that number, Exod. 30. & 38. the Levites were included, which are here excepted, ver. 47. and that in that interval of time, there were grown up as many more men of thoſe years as there were Levites of the ſame age. d So the ſtrangers mixed with them were not numbred. e The people were divided into twelve Tribes, the Tribes into great Families, Num. 26. 5. theſe great Families into leſſer Families called the houſes of their fathers, becauſe they were diſtinguiſhed one from another by their fathers.

† Heb. every one that goeth out.

3 From twenty years old and upward † all that are able to go forth to war in Iſrael: thou and Aaron ſhall number them by their armies.

4 And with you there ſhall be a man of every tribe f: every one head of the houſe of his fathers.

f To inſpect the work, that it might be faithfully and impartially done.

5 And theſe are the names of the men that ſhall ſtand with you g: of the tribe of Reuben h, Elizur the ſon of Shedeur.

g To wit, with Moſes and Aaron, who were the chief managers of the work. h The Tribes are here numbred according to the order or quality of their birth, firſt the children of Leah, then of Rachel, and then of the handmaids.

6 Of Simeon; Shelumiel the ſon of Zuriſhaddai.

7 Of Judah; Nahſhon the ſon of Amminadab.

8 Of Iſſachar; Nethaneel the ſon of Zuar.

9 Of Zebulun; Eliab the ſon of Helon.

10 Of the children of Joſeph; of Ephraim, Eliſhama the ſon of Ammihud: of Manaſſeh; Gamaliel the ſon of Pedahzur.

11 Of Benjamin; Abidan the ſon of Gideoni.

12 Of Dan; Ahiezer the ſon of Ammiſhaddai.

13 Of Aſher; Pagiel the ſon of Ocran.

14 Of Gad; Eliaſaph the ſon of Deuel i.

i Called Reuel, Numb. 2. 14. the Hebrew letters Daleth and Reſh being very like and oft changed.

15 Of Naphtali; Ahira the ſon of Enan.

16 Theſe were the renowned k of the congregation, princes of the tribes of their fathers, heads of thouſands l in Iſrael.

k Heb. the named or called, to wit, by Moſes and by God's appointment, to manage this affair, and others as there was occaſion. Compare Numb. 16. 2. & 26. 9. l See Exod. 18. 21. Numb. 10. 4.

17 And Moſes and Aaron took theſe men which are expreſſed by their names.

18 And they aſſembled all the congregation together on the firſt day of the ſecond month, and they declared their pedigrees after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, by their poll.

19 As the LORD commanded Moſes, ſo he numbred them in the wilderneſs of Sinai.

20 And the children of Reuben, Iſraels eldeſt ſon, by their generations m, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war; m Heb. to wit, their generations, i. e. the perſons begotten of Reuben's immediate Children, who are here ſubdivided into families, and they into houſes, and they into particular perſons.

21 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Reuben, were forty and ſix thouſand and five hundred.

22 Of the children of Simeon, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, thoſe that were numbred of them, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

23 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Simeon, were fifty and nine thouſand and three hundred.

24 Of the children of Gad, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

25 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Gad, were forty and five thouſand ſix hundred and fifty.

26 Of the children of Judah, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

27 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Judah, were threeſcore and fourteen thouſand and ſix hundred n.

n Far more than any other tribe, in accompliſhing of Jacobs prophecy, Gen. 49.

28 Of the children of Iſſachar, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war.

29 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Iſſachar, were fifty and four thouſand and four hundred.

30 Of the children of Zebulun, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upwards, all that were able to go forth to war.

31 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Zebulun, were fifty and ſeven thouſand and four hundred.

32 Of the children of Joſeph, namely, of the children of Ephraim, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

33 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Ephraim, were fourty thouſand and five hundred o.

o Above 8000 more than Manaſſeh, towards the accompliſhment of that promiſe, Gen. 48. 20. which the Devil in vain attempted to defeat by ſtirring up the men of Gath againſt them; 1 Chron. 7. 21. 22.

34 Of the children of Manaſſeh, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

35 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Manaſſeh, were thirty and two thouſand and two hundred.

36 Of the children of Benjamin, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

37 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Benjamin, were thirty and five thouſand and four hundred.

p. The ſmalleſt number, except one, though Benjamin had more immediate children than any of his brethren, Gen. 46. 21. whereas Dan had but one immediate ſon, Gen. 46. 23. yet now his number is the biggeſt but one of all the Tribes, and is almoſt double to that of Benjamin. Such great and ſtrange changes God eaſily can, and frequently doth, make in families, 1 Sam. 2. 5. And therefore let none boaſt or pleaſe themſelves too much in their numerous off-ſpring.

38 Of the children of Dan, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

39 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Dan, were threeſcore and two thouſand and ſeven hundred.

40 Of the children of Aſher by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old, and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

41 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Aſher, were forty and one thouſand and five hundred.

42 Of the children of Naphtali, throughout their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war:

43 Thoſe that were numbred of them, even of the tribe of Naphtali, were fifty and three thouſand and four hundred.

44 Theſe are thoſe that were numbred, which Moſes and Aaron numbred, and the princes of Iſrael, being twelve men: each one was for the houſe of his fathers.

45 So were all thoſe that were numbred of the children of Iſrael, by the houſe of their fathers, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war in Iſrael.

46 Even all they that were numbred, were * ſix hundred thouſand and three thouſand, and five hundred and fifty. *Exod. 38. 26.

47 But the Levites after the tribe of their fathers were not numbred among them. See Exod. 12. 37. chap. 26. 51.

49 For the LORD had ſpoken unto Moſes, ſaying,

50 Only thou ſhalt not number the tribe of Levi q, neither take the ſum of them among the children of Iſrael.

q Becauſe they were not generally to go out to war, which was the thing principally eyed in this muſter, ver. 3. 20, 45. but were to attend upon the Service of the Tabernacle, and therefore are reſerved to another diſtinct muſter, Numb. 3. 15. and 4. 2. &c. And leſt this ſhould be thought to be deſigned and done through Moſes his ambition to give his own tribe the preeminence, he aſſures them it was done by God's expreſs command.

50 But thou ſhalt appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of teſtimony r, and over all the veſſels thereof, and over all things that belong to it: they ſhall bear the tabernacle, and all the veſſels thereof, and they ſhall miniſter unto it, and ſhall encamp round about the tabernacle.

r So called here, and Exod. 38. 21. becauſe it was made chiefly for the ſake of the Ark of the Teſtimony, 2 Sam. 7. 2. which is oft called the Teſtimony, as hath been obſerved before.

51 And when the tabernacle ſetteth forward, the Levites ſhall take it down: and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites ſhall ſet it up: and the ſtranger s that cometh nigh t, ſhall be put to death.

s The ſtranger elſewhere is one of another Nation, here one of another Tribe, one no Levite. t So as to do the offices mentioned ver. 50.

52 And the children of Iſrael ſhall pitch their tents every man by his own camp, and every man by his own ſtandard, throughout their hoſts.

53 But the Levites ſhall pitch round about the tabernacle of teſtimony, that there be no wrath u upon the congregation of the children of Iſrael: and the Levites ſhall keep the charge x of the tabernacle of teſtimony.

u To wit, from God, who is very tender of his worſhip, and will not ſuffer the profaners of it go unpuniſhed; whoſe wrath is called ſimply Wrath by way of eminency, as the moſt terrible kind of wrath. x (i.e.) Shall ſuffer no ſtranger to approach through curioſity or any other motive.

54 And the children of Iſrael did according to all that the LORD commanded Moſes, ſo did they.

CHAP. II.

Order for the Marches and Camping of the Tribes, 1, 2. Judah on the Eaſt ſide, with Iſſachar and Zebulun, who led the Van, 3——9 Reuben on the South ſide, with Simeon and Gad: then the Tabernacle was to follow, the Levites camping round it, 10——17. Ephraim on the Weſt ſide with Manaſſes and Benjamin, 18——24. Dan on the North Quarter, with Aſher and Naphtali, 25.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, and unto Aaron, ſaying,

2 Every man of the children of Iſrael ſhall pitch by his own ſtandard a, with the enſign of their fathers houſe: † far off b about the tabernacle of the congregation ſhall they pitch. †Heb. over againſt.

a Or, enſign, by that to which he is allotted by the following order. It is manifeſt that there were four great Standards or Enſigns, which here follow, diſtinguiſhed by their Colours or Figures, or otherwiſe; alſo that there were other particular Enſigns belonging to each of their Fathers houſes or Families, as is here ſaid. b Partly out of reverence to God and his worſhip, and the portion allotted to it, and partly for caution, leſt their vicinity to it might tempt them to make too near approaches to it. It is ſuppoſed they were at 2000 cubits diſtance from it, which was the ſpace between the people and the Ark, Joſ. 3. 4. and it is not improbable, becauſe the Levites encamped round about it, between them and the Tabernacle.

3 And on the eaſt-ſide toward the riſing of the Sun, ſhall they of the ſtandard of the camp of Judah pitch, throughout their Armies: and Nahſhon the ſon of Amminadab ſhall be captain of the children of Judah.

4 And his hoſt, and thoſe that were numbred of them, were threeſcore and fourteen thouſand and ſix hundred.

5 And thoſe that do pitch next unto him, ſhall be the tribe of Iſſachar c: and Nethaneel the ſon of Zaar ſhall be captain of the children of Iſſachar.

c He and Zebulon were Leah's two youngeſt ſons, and therefore would more contentedly ſubmit to Judah.

6 And his host, and those that were numbred thereof, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

7 Then the Tribe of Zebulun: and Eliab the son of Helon shall be captain of the children of Zebulun.

8 And his host, and those that were numbred thereof, were fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

9 All that were numbred in the camp of Judah, were an hundred thousand and fourscore thousand and six thousand and four hundred d, throughout their armies: these shall first set forth.

d This was the most numerous camp, because they marched first, as being placed on the East and going towards the East, and because they guarded the Sanctuary.

10 On the south-side shall be the standard of the camp of Reuben e, according to their armies: and the captain of the children of ‖ Reuben shall be Elizur the son of Shedeur.

e Who being the first-born, was the leader of the second camp.

11 And his host, and those that were numbred thereof were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

12 And those which pitch by him, shall be the tribe of Simeon: and the captain of the children of Simeon shall be Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

13 And his host, and those that were numbred of them were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

14 Then the tribe of Gad: and the captain of the sons of Gad shall be Eliasaph the son of Reuel f.

f Called Deuel, Numb. 1. 14. the Hebrew letters Daleth and Resh being very like, and oft changed, as appears by comparing Gen. 10. 3. with 1 Chron. 1. 6. and Gen. 36. 26, 38. with 1 Chron. 1. 41, 50.

15 And his host, and those that were numbred of them, were forty and five thousand and six hundred and fifty.

16 All that were numbred in the camp of Reuben, were an hundred thousand and fifty and one thousand and four hundred and fifty, throughout their armies: and they shall set forth in the second rank.

17 Then the tabernacle of the congregation shall set forward with the camp of the Levites in the midst of the camp g: as they encamp, so shall they set forward, every man in his place by their standards.

g Which is not to be understood strictly or exactly, but largely; for in their march they were divided, and part of that Tribe marched next after Judah, Numb. 10. 17. and the other part exactly in the midst of the camp.

18 On the west-side shall be the standard of the camp of Ephraim h, according to their armies: and the captain of the sons of Ephraim shall be Elishama the son of Ammihud.

h Who is here preferred before his brother, according to the prophesie, Gen. 48. 19. 20.

19 And his host, and those that were numbred of them, were fourty thousand and five hundred:

20 And by him shall be the tribe of Manasseh: and the captain of the children of Manasseh shall be Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

21 And his host, and those that were numbred of them, were thirty and two thousand and two hundred.

22 Then the tribe of Benjamin: and the captain of the sons of Benjamin shall be Abidan the son of Gideoni.

23 And his host, and those that were numbred of them, were thirty and four thousand and five hundred.

24 All that were numbred of the camp of Ephraim, were an hundred thousand and eight thousand and an hundred, throughout their armies: and they shall go forward in the third rank.

25 The standard of the camp of Dan shall be on the north-side by their Armies: and the captain of the children of Dan shall be Abiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

26 And his host, and those that were numbred of them, were threescore and two thousand and seven hundred.

27 And those that encamp by him, shall be the tribe of Asher: and the captain of the children of Asher, shall be Pagiel the son of Ocran.

28 And his host, and those that were numbred of them, were fourty and one thousand and five hundred.

29 Then the tribe of Naphtali: And the captain of the children of Naphtali, shall be Ahira the son of Enan.

30 And his host, and those that were numbred of them, were fifty and three thousand and four hundred.

31 All they that were numbred in the camp of Dan, were an hundred thousand and fifty and seven thousand and six hundred i: they shall go hindmost with their standards.

i The strongest camp next after Judah, and therefore he comes in the rear, as Judah marched in the front, that the Tabernacle might be best guarded where there was most danger.

32 These are those which were numbred of the children of Israel, by the house of their fathers; all those that were numbred of the camps throughout their hosts, were six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty.

33 But the Levites were not numbred k among the children of Israel, as the LORD commanded Moses.

k Because their warfare was of another kind.

34 And the children of Israel did according to all that the LORD commanded Moses: so they pitched by their standards l, and so they set forward, every one after their families, according to the house of their fathers.

l (i. e.) Each of them under his principal standard.

CHAP. III.

The Genealogie of Moses, Aaron, and his sons, Nadab and Abihu, 1—4. The Levites are joyned with them in the Administration of the Tabernacle, 5—10. Instead of all the First-born, 11—13. The three Families of the Levites numbred, 14—39. The First-born numbred, 40—43. Being more than the Levites, some of them are redeemed, and the Money given to Aaron and his Sons, 44—51.

1 THese a also are the generations b of Aaron and Moses, in the day that the LORD spake with Moses in Mount Sinai c.

a Which follow in this chapter. b (i. e.) Either 1. The things done by them; as the word generation is sometimes used, as Gen. 6. 9. and 25. 19. and 37. 2. Or rather 2. The Kindred or Family, for that is the subject of this chapter, and not their events or actions. Obj. Aarons Family indeed is here mentioned, but not Moses his Family. Answ. Moses his Family and Children are here included under the general name of the Amramite, ver. 27. which includes all the Children and Grand-children of Amram, the persons only of Aaron and Moses being excepted. And the generations of Moses are thus obscurely mentioned, because they were but common Levites, the Priesthood being given solely to Aarons posterity, whence Aaron is here put before Moses, who elsewhere is commonly named after him. c This seems to be added, because Nadab and Abihu mentioned ver. 2. were then alive, though dead at the time of taking this account.

2 And these are the names of the sons of Aaron; Nadab the * first-born, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. * Exod. 6. 23.

3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the priests which were anointed, † whom he consecrated to minister in the priests office. † Heb. whose hand he filled. Lev. 8.

4 * And Nadab and Abihu died before the LORD, when they offered strange fire before the LORD, in the wilderness of Sinai, and they had no children: and Eleazar and Ithamar ministred in the priests office in the sight of Aaron d their father. * Lev. 10. 1. chap. 26. 61. 1 Chron. 24. 2.

d In the time of Aarons life, as this phrase is taken, Numb. 3. 4. See also Psal. 72. 5, 17. and under their fathers inspection and direction, and as their fathers servants or ministers in the Priests-office: for servants are oft described by this phrase of being, or standing, or serving in the sight or presence of their master.

5 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Bring the tribe of Levi near, and present them e before Aaron the priest, that they may minister unto him.

e Offer them to the Lord for his special service. This was promised to them before, and now actually conferred upon them.

7 And they shall keep his charge f, and the charge of the whole congregation g before the tabernacle h of the congregation, to do the service of the tabernacle.

f (i. e.) Aarons charge, or those things which are committed principally to Aarons care and oversight, and under him and his direction to the Levites. g (i. e.) Of all the sacrifices and services which are due to the Lord from all the people, and because all the people could not and might not perform them, or at least diverse of them, in their own persons, therefore they were to be performed by some particular persons in their name and stead; formerly by the first-born, Numb. 8. 16. and now by the Levites. See Numb. 1. 53. and 16. 9. h Emphatically; not within the tabernacle, for the care of these things within the holy place was appropriated to the Priests, as the care of the most holy place was peculiar to the High-Priest.

8 And they shall keep all the instruments of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the children of Israel i, to do the service of the tabernacle.

i Those things which all the children of Israel are in their several places and stations obliged to take care of, though not in their persons, yet by others in their stead.

9 And * thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron and to his sons: they are † wholly given unto him k out of the children of Israel. * chap. 8. 19. † Heb. given given.

k To attend upon him and observe his orders and ease him of part of his burden in things hereafter mentioned.

10 And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sons, and they shall wait on their priests office l: and the stranger m that cometh nigh n shall be put to death.

l In their own persons, not by the Levites. m (i. e.) Every one who is of another family than Aarons, yea though he be a Levite. See Numb. 1. 53. & 16. 40. n To wit, to execute any part of the Priests office.

11 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

12 And I, behold, * I have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel, instead of all the first-born n that openeth the matrix among the children of Israel: therefore the Levites shall be mine. * ch. 8. 16. & 18. 6.

n Who were God's propriety by right of Redemption, Exod. 13. 12. and to whom the administration of holy things was formerly committed, which now was taken away from them, either because they had forfeited this priviledge by joining with the rest of their brethren in the idolatrous worship of the calf, or because they were to be mainly concerned in the distribution and management of the inheritances which now they were going to possess, and therefore could not be at leisure to attend upon the service of the Sanctuary: Which made it fit that this work should be committed to other hands. And God would not commit it to some other persons in each Tribe, which might be an occasion of Idolatry, confusion, division, and contempt of sacred things, but to one distinct Tribe, which might be intirely devoted to that service, and particularly to the Tribe of Levi; partly out of his respect to Moses and Aaron, branches of this Tribe; partly as a recompence of their zeal for God and against Idolaters. See Exod. 32. 26, 29. Deut. 33. 9. and partly because it was the smallest of the Tribes, and therefore most likely to find both employment in, and maintenance for the work.

13 Because * all the first-born are mine; * for on the day that I smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, I hallowed unto me all the first-born in Israel, both man and beast; mine they shall be: I am the LORD o. * Exod. 13. 2. Lev. 27. 26. ch. 8. 16. Luk. 2. 23.

o Who may appoint whom I please for my service. * Exod. 13. 12, 15.

14 And the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying, 15 Number the children of Levi, after the house of their fathers, by their families: every male from a month old p and upward, shalt thou number them.

p Because at that time the first-born, in whose stead the Levites came, Numb. 8. 16. were offered to God, Luk. 2. 22. and to be redeemed, Numb. 18. 16. And from that time the Levites were consecrated to God, and were, as soon as they were capable, to be instructed in their work. Elsewhere they are numbred from twenty five years old, when they were entred as novices to part of their work, Numb. 8. 24. and from thirty years old, when they were compleatly admitted to their whole office.

16 And Moses numbred them according to the † word of the LORD, as he was commanded. † Heb. mouth.

17 * And these were the sons of Levi, by their names: Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari. * Gen. 46. 11. Exod. 6. 16. ch. 26. 57. 1 Chron. 6. 1, 2. & 23. 6.

18 And these are the names of the sons of Gershon, by their families; Libni, and Shimei.

19 And the sons of Kohath by their families; Amram, and Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

20 And the sons of Merari by their families; Mahli and Mushi: these are the families of the Levites, according to the house of their fathers.

21 Of Gershon was the family of the Libnite, and the family of the Shimite: these are the families of the Gershonite.

22 Those that were numbred of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, even those that were numbred of them, were seven thousand and five hundred.

23 The families of the Gershonite shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward.

24 And the chief of the house of the father of the Gershonite shall be Eliasaph the son of Lael.

25 And the charge of the sons of Gershon, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall be the * tabernacle q, and the * tent r, * the covering thereof s, and the * hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: * Exod. 25. 9. * Exod. 26. 1. * Exod. 26. 7, 14. * Exod. 26. 36.

q Not the boards, which belonged to Merari, ver. 36. but the ten curtains mentioned Exod. 26. 1. r To wit, the curtains of goats hair. s (i. e.) The coverings, of rams-skins and badgers-skins. See Numb. 4. 25.

26 And the * hangings of the court, and the * curtain for the door of the court which is by the tabernacle and by the altar round about, and the cords of it t, for all the service thereof. * Exod. 27. 9. * ch. 27. 16.

t By which the Tabernacle was fastened to the pins, and stretched out, Exod. 35. 18.

27 And of Kohath u was the family of the Amramite, and the family of the Izharite, and the family of the Hebronite, and the family of the Uzzielite: these are the families of the Kohathite.

u This Family had many priviledges above the others: Of that were Moses and Aaron, and all the Priests: They had the chief place about the Tabernacle, and the care of the most holy things here below, ver. 31. and in the Land of Canaan they had twenty three Cities, which were almost as many as both their brethren received. See Jos. 21.

28 In the number of all the males, from a month old and upward were eight thousand and six hundred, keeping x the charge of the sanctuary y.

x Or, keepers, &c. i. e. appointed for that work, as soon as they were capable of it. y (i. e.) Of those holy things contained in or nearly belonging to the sanctuary, expressed verse 31.

29 The families of the sons of Kohath shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle southward.

30 And the chief of the house of the father of the families of the Kohathite, shall be Elizaphan the son of Uzziel.

31 And their charge shall be the * ark, and the * table, and the * candlestick, and * the altars, and the * vessels of the sanctuary wherewith they minister, and * the hanging z, and all the service thereof a. * ch. 25. 10. * ch. 25. 23. * ch. 25. 31. & 30. 1. * ch. 27. 1. & 38. 1.

z Which covered the most holy place, for all other hangings belonged to the Gershonites. a (i. e.) All the other furniture belonging to it, of which see Numb. 4. 7, 9, 14. * ch. 26. 37.

32 And Eleazar the son of Aaron the Priest shall be chief b over the chief of the Levites c: and have the oversight of them that keep the charge of the sanctuary.

b Next under the High-priest; whence he is called the second Priest, 2 King. 25. 18. and in case of the High-priests absence by sickness or other necessary occasions, he was to perform his work, 1 King. 4. 4. and he had a superiority over all the rest of the Priests and Levites. c (i. e.) Over those three persons, who were each the chief of their several families; of whom see here, ver. 24, 31, 35.

33 Of Merari was the family of the Mahlite, and the family of the Mushite: these are the families of Merari.

34 And those that were numbred of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were six thousand and two hundred.

35 And the chief of the house of the father of the families of Merari, was Zuriel the son of Abihail: these shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle northward.

36 And † under the custody and charge of the sons of Merari, shall be the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and the sockets thereof, and all the vessels thereof, and all that serveth thereto: † Heb. the office of the charge.

37 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords d.

d Therefore these were for another use than those mentioned, ver. 26.

38 But those that encamp before the tabernacle toward the east, even before the tabernacle of the congregation eastward, shall be Moses and Aaron, and his sons, keeping the charge of the sanctuary for the charge of the children of Israel e: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

e Either in their stead, that charge which they were obliged to keep either by themselves or by others appointed by them, if God had not committed it to those: or for their good and service, and benefit; for their preservation, as the word may be rendred.

39 * All that were numbred of the Levites, which Moses and Aaron numbred at the commandment of the LORD, throughout their families, all the males, from a month old and upward, were twenty and two thousand f. * See chap. 26. 62.

f Obj. But if the particular numbers, mentioned ver. 22, 28, 34. be put together, they make exactly 22300. Answ. The odd 300 are omitted here, either according to the use of the Holy Scripture, where in so great numbers small sums are commonly neglected, or, because they were the first-born of the Levites, and therefore belonged to God already, and so could not be given to him again instead of the other first-born. See Levit. 27. 26. If this number of first-born seem very small to come from 22000 Levites, it must be considered, That only such first-born are here named as were males, and such as continued in their parents Families, not such as had erected new families of their own. Add to this, that God so ordered things by his wise providence for divers weighty reasons, that this Tribe should be much the least of all the Tribes, as is evident by comparing the numbers of the other Tribes, from twenty years old, Numb. 1. with the number of this from a month old; and therefore it is not strange if the number of their first-born be less than in other Tribes. Although if the other Tribes had been computed from a month old, as this was, their number of 600000 had probably been double or treble to that, and consequently the number of their first born being 22273 ver. 43. would have been as unproportionable to their whole sum, as this of 300 first-born Levites seems to their whole number. And some add, that only those first-born are numbred both in this and in the other Tribes, which were born since they came out of Egypt, when God challenged all the first-born to be his.

40 And the LORD said unto Moses, number all the first-born of the males of the children of Israel g from a month old and upward, and take the number of their names.

g That they may be compared with the number of the Levites for the reason here following.

41 And thou shalt take the Levites for me (I am the LORD) in stead of all the first-born among the children of Israel h, and the cattle of the Levites i in stead of all the firstlings among the cattle of the children of Israel.

h To wit, such are now alive of them, but those which should be born of them hereafter are otherwise disposed. i Not that they were to be taken from the Levites, or to be sacrificed to God, any more than the Levites themselves were, but that they together with the Levites were to be presented before the Lord by way of acknowledgment, that the Levites might be set apart for God's service, and their cattle for themselves as God's ministers, and for their support in God's work.

42 And Moses numbred, as the LORD commanded him, all the first-born among the children of Israel.

43 And all the first-born males by the number of names, from a month old and upward, of those that were numbred of them, were twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.

44 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

45 Take the Levites k in stead of all the first-born among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites in stead of their cattle, and the Levites shall be mine, I am the LORD.

k To wit, the 22000 reckoned up, ver. 39. of which see the notes there.

46 And for those that are to be redeemed of the two hundred and threescore and thirteen of the first-born of the children of Israel, which are more than the Levites;

47 Thou shalt even take five shekels a piece l by the poll, after the shekel of the sanctuary shalt thou take *Exod. 30. 13. Lev. 27. 25. them: * the shekel is twenty gerahs.

l Which was the price to be paid for the redemption of a first-born a month old, Numb. 18. 15, 16. but this money though paid
ch. 18. 16. for these 273 persons was probably paid out of the common stock Ezek. 45. 22. of all, except lots were cast who should pay, which is not probable in so small a concern accompanied with so much trouble.

48 And thou shalt give the number wherewith the odd number of them is to be redeemed unto Aaron and to his sons m.

m To whom all the Levites were given, and therefore the money which came in their stead.

49 And Moses took the redemption money, of them that were over and above them that were redeemed by the Levites.

50 Of the first-born of the children of Israel took he the money, a thousand three hundred and threescore and five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

51 And Moses gave the money of them that were redeemed, unto Aaron and to his sons, according to the word of the LORD, as the LORD commanded Moses.

CHAP. IV.

God Commands the Levites to be numbred from 30 till 50 years old; fit for the service of the Tabernacle: Their Charge, 1——16. Of the Kohathites, 17——21. Of the Gersbonites, 22——28. Of the Sons of Merari, 29——33. The number of each, 34——45. Of all in general, 46——49.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers:

3 From thirty years old a and upward, even until fifty years old b, all that enter c into the host d, to do the work of the tabernacle of the congregation.

a This age was prescribed, as the age of full strength of body, and therefore most proper for their present laborious work of carrying the parts and vessels of the Tabernacle, and of maturity of judgment, which is necessary for the right management of holy services. Whence even John and Christ entred not upon their Ministery till that age. And it may still seem to be the fittest season for mens undertaking the Ministery of the Gospel, except in case of extraordinary abilities, or the Churches pressing necessity. Object. They might enter upon this work at their 25th year, Numb. 8. 24. and in David's time and afterward at their 20th year. Answ. 1. Their first entrance upon their work was at their 25th year, when they began as learners, and acted only under the inspection and direction of their brethren; but in their 30th year they were compleatly admitted to a full discharge of their whole office. 2. David, being a Prophet, and particularly directed by God in the affairs of the Temple, might and did make a change in this matter, which he might the better do, both because it was but a change in a circumstance, and because the magnificence of the Temple, and the great multitude of sacred utensils and sacrifices, required a greater number of attendants than formerly was necessary. b When they were exempted from the toilsome work of carrying burdens, but not discharged from the honourable and easie work done within the Tabernacle, Numb. 8. 26. c (i.e.) That do and may enter, having no defect, Levit. 21. 17. nor other impediment. d The society of sacred Ministers he calls an host, because of that excellent order which was among them, as to persons, place, time, the matter and manner, of their services.

4 This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation, about the most holy things e.

e Hereafter mentioned, as the Ark, Table, Altar, &c. Compare Numb. 3. 31.

5 And when the camp setteth forward, Aaron shall come, and his sons, and they f shall take down the covering veil g, and cover the ark h of testimony with it:

f For upon this necessary occasion the inferiour Priests are allowed to come into the Holy of Holies, which otherwise was peculiar to the High-priest, Heb. 9. 7. g The second veil, of which see Exod. 26. 31, &c. Levit. 4. 6. Heb. 9. 3. wherewith the Ark was covered while the Tabernacle stood, Exod. 40. 3. h Because the Levites, who were to carry the Ark, might neither see, nor immediately touch it.

6 And shall put thereon the covering of badgers-skins i, and shall spread over it a cloth wholly of blue, and shall put in the staves thereof k.

i Whereby the Ark was secured from the injuries of the weather. k Object. How could these staves be put in, when they were never to be taken out, Exod. 25. 15. compared with 1 King. 8. 8. 1. Answ. These places may speak of the staves while the Ark and Tabernacle stood, but when they were to be removed the posture of all things was altered. 2. The Hebrew verb doth not signifie putting in, but barely putting or placing or disposing, and may be understood not of putting the staves into the rings, wherein they constantly remained, but of the putting of them either upon their shoulders to try and fit them for carriage, or into the holes or receptacles which probably were made in these coverings for the receiving and covering of these gilded staves, to keep them both from the touch of the Levites, and from the inconveniences of bad weather.

7 And upon the * table of shew-bread l they shall spread a cloth of blue, and put thereon the dishes m, and the spoons, and the bowls and covers to ‖ cover withal: and the continual bread n shall be thereon.

l Heb. Of faces or presence, for of the bread of faces or presence, i.e. of the bread which was continually standing in the presence of the Lord. m Upon which the shew-bread was put. n (i.e.) Shew-bread; so called because it was continually to be there, even in the wilderness; where though they had only Manna for themselves, yet they reserved corn for the weekly making of these loaves, which they might with no great difficulty procure from some of the people bordering upon the wilderness in the innermost parts whereof they were.

8 And they shall spread upon them a cloth of scarlet, and cover the same with a covering of badgers-skins, and shall put in the staves thereof.

9 And they shall take a cloth of blue, and cover the * candlestick of the light, * and his lamps, and his
*Exod. 25. 31.
tongs, and his snuff-dishes, and all the oil-vessels there-‖ Exod. 25. 37, 38.
of, wherewith they minister unto it.

10 And they shall put it, and all the vessels thereof within a covering of badgers-skins: and shall put it upon a bar n.

n So contrived that this cloth containing the candlestick, &c. might be either laid upon it, or some other way fastened to it.

11 And upon the golden o altar they shall spread a cloth of blue, and cover it with a covering of badgers-skins, and shall put to the staves thereof.

o All covered with plates of gold.

12 And they shall take all the instruments of ministery p, wherewith they minister in the sanctuary, and put them in a cloth of blue, and cover them with a covering of badgers-skins, and shall put them on a bar.

p The sacred garments used by the priests in their holy ministrations. See Exod. 31. 10.

13 And they shall take away the ashes from the altar q, and spread a purple cloth thereon:

q Of burnt-offerings. Whereby it may seem probable, though it be denied by most, that they did offer some sacrifices in the Wilderness, though it may not be so frequently nor orderly as afterwards they did. Whence else were these ashes? And there are some undeniable instances of their sacrificing there, as Exod. 18. 12. & 24. 4. Numb. 7. &c. from which it seems rational to conclude, that they did offer sacrifices at other times, though not so constantly and diligently, as they did in Canaan. And for the argument against it from Amos 5. 25. that may be easily dissolved, as we shall there see, if the Lord please. Moreover the taking away of the ashes only doth sufficiently imply that the fire was preserved, which as it came down from Heaven, Levit. 9. So it was by God's command to be continually fed and kept burning, and therefore doubtless was put into some vessel, which might be either fastened to the altar and put within this covering, or carried by some person appointed thereunto.

14 And they shall put upon it all the vessels thereof r wherewith they minister about it, even the censers,

‖ Or, basins. fers, the flesh-hooks, and the shovels, and the ‖ basins, all the vessels of the altar; and they shall spread upon it a covering of badgers skins, and put to the staves of it.

r Amongst all these vessels here and abovenamed there is no mention of the brazen laver, though that be elsewhere reckoned among the holy things, as Exod. 35. 16. and 38. 8. and 39. 39. and 40. 30. whereof possibly the reason may be because it was not covered, as not being capable of much hurt by the weather. Though some antient translations of the Bible do here add these words. They shall take a purple covering, and cover the laver, &c.

15 And when Aaron and his sons have made an end of covering the sanctuary, and all the vessels of the sanctuary, as the camp is to set forward; after that the sons of Kohath shall come to bear it s: but they shall
*ch. 3. 31.
not touch any holy thing s lest they die u. * These things are the burden of the sons of Kohath, in the tabernacle of the congregation.

s To wit, upon their shoulders, not upon carts or wagons, as appears from Numb. 7. 9. the neglect of which order did provoke the Lord, 2 Sam. 6. 6, 7. 1 Chron. 13. 7. and 15. 12, &c. Afterward the Priests themselves, being multiplied, carried these things, as appears from Deut. 31. 9. Jos. 3. 6. and 8. 33. 1 Sam. 4. 4. though the Levites also were not excluded, 2 Chron. 5. 5. t Immediately, or before they be covered. u As some did for that sin. See 1 Sam. 6. 19. 2 Sam. 6. 6, 7.

16 And to the office of Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, pertaineth x * the oyl for the light, and the in the vessels thereof.

x (i.e.) He himself is to carry these things, and not to commit them to the sons of Kohath. y Of fine flour, which was to be offered every morning and evening with the daily burnt-offering. See Exod. 29. 38, 39. z (i.e.) The care that all the things abovementioned be carried by the persons and in the manner expressed.

17 And the LORD spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

18 Cut ye not off a the tribe of the families of the Kohathite from among the Levites.

a (i.e.) Do not by your neglect provoke God to cut them off for touching the holy things.

19 But thus do unto them, that they may live and not die, when they approach unto the most holy things, Aaron and his sons shall go in and appoint them every one to his service b, and to his burden.

b To that which is peculiarly allotted to him, the services and burdens being equally distributed among them.

20 But they shall not go in to see when the holy things are covered, lest they die.

21 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

22 Take also the sum of the sons of Gershon throughout the houses of their fathers by their families:

23 From thirty years old and upward, until fifty years old shalt thou number them: all that enter in † to perform the service, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

24 This is the service of the families of the Gershonites, to serve, and for ‖ burdens.
‖ Or, carriages.

25 And * they shall bear the curtains of the tabernacle c, and the tabernacle of the congregation d, his covering e, and the covering of the badgers-skins that is above upon it, and the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

c (i.e.) The curtains or covering of goats-hair. d (i.e.) The ten curious curtains which covered the boards of the Tabernacle; for the boards themselves were carried by the Merarites. e (i.e.) The covering of rams-skins which was put next over those ten curtains.

26 And the hangings of the court, and the hanging for the door of the gate of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar f round about, and their cords, and all the instruments of their service, and all that is made for them: so shall they serve.

f (i.e.) Which court compassed both the Tabernacle and the Altar, Exod. 27. 16.

† Heb. mouth.
27 At the † appointment of Aaron and his sons, shall be all the service of the sons of the Gershonite, in all their burdens, and in all their service: and ye shall appoint unto them in charge all their burdens.

28 This is the service of the families of the sons of Gershon in the tabernacle of the congregation: and their charge shall be under the hand g of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

g Under his conduct and direction. Thus the hand of Hege, Esth. 2. 3. is his care and custody.

29 As for the sons of Merari, thou shalt number them after their families by the house of their fathers.

30 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old shalt thou number them, every one that entreth into the † service, to do the work of the tabernacle of the congregation.

31 And * this is the charge of their burden, ac-

* Ex. 26. 15.
the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and sockets thereof b, h Which were as the feet upon which the pillars stood; of which see Exod. 38. 27.

32 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords with all their instruments, and with all their service: and by name i ye shall reckon the instruments of the charge of their burden.

i Every part and parcel therefore shall be put in an inventory: which is required here rather than in the forgoing particulars; partly because these were much more numerous than the former; partly because being meaner things and such as might easily be supplied, they might otherwise have been neglected; and partly to teach us, that God esteems nothing small in his worship and service, and that he expects his will should be observed in the minuteſt circumstances.

33 This is the service of the families of the sons of Merari, according to all their service in the tabernacle of the congregation under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

34 And Moses and Aaron, and the chief of the congregation numbred the sons of the Kohathite, after their families, and after the house of their fathers.

35 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entreth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

36 And those that were numbred of them by their families, were two thousand seven hundred and fifty.

37 These were they that were numbred of the families of the Kohathites, all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation, which Moses and Aaron did number, according to the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

38 And those that were numbred of the sons of Gershon, throughout their families, and by the house of their fathers.

39 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entreth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation:

40 Even those that were numbred of them, throughout their families, by the house of their fathers, were two thousand and six hundred and thirty.

41 These are they that were numbred of the families of the sons of Gershon, of all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation, whom Moses and Aaron did number, according to the commandment of the LORD.

42 And those that were numbred of the families of the sons of Merari, throughout their families, by the house of their fathers:

43 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entreth into the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation,

44 Even those that were numbred of them after their families, were three thousand and two hundred k.

k Here appears the wisdom of Divine providence, that whereas in the Kohathites and Gershonites, whose burdens were fewer and easier, there were but about a third part of them which were fit for service, the Merarites, whose burdens were more and heavier, had above one half of them fit for this work.

45 These be those that were numbred of the families of the sons of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron numbred, according to the word of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

46 All those that were numbred of the Levites, whom Moses, and Aaron, and the chief of Israel numbred, after their families, and after the house of their fathers:

47 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that came to do the service of the ministery, and the service of the burden in the tabernacle of the congregation:

48 Even those that were numbred of them, were eight thousand and five hundred and fourscore l.

l Which number was much inferiour to any other Tribe, for the reasons mentioned on, Numb. 3. 39.

49 According to the commandement of the LORD they were numbred by the hand of Moſes, every one according to his ſervice, and according to his burden: thus were they numbred of him, as the LORD commanded Moſes.

CHAP. V.

God Commands to put away all unclean Perſons from the Camp: it is executed, 1——4. Reſtitution Commanded, and an Offering, eſpecially of Hallowed things, which belong to the Prieſt, 5——10. Laws in caſe of Jealouſie, bitter Water Ordained, 11——31.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,
2 Command the children of Iſrael, that they
*Lev. 13. 3, 46. put out of the camp a every * leper, and every one that Lev. 15.2 hath an * iſſue b, and whoſoever is defiled by the * dead c.
* ch. 9. 6, 10. and 19. 11. and 31. 19. a In which the people dwelt; as afterward out of the cities and towns, that they might not converſe with others and infect them. b To wit, of genital ſeed in men, or of blood in women in their ſeaſons. c (i.e.) By the touch of the dead. See Levit. 21. 1. Num. 6. 6.
3 Both male and female ſhall ye put out; without the camp ſhall ye put them, that they defile not their camps d, in the midſt whereof I dwell e.

d By which caution God would intimate the poſſibility and danger of mens being made guilty by other mens ſins, and the neceſſary duty of avoiding intimate converſe with wicked men. e By my ſpecial and gracious preſence; and therefore the permiſſion of ſuch impurities is the greater injury and provocation to me, as being done in my ſight, and reflecting diſhonour upon my Name.

4 And the children of Iſrael did ſo, and put them out without the camp, as the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſo did the children of Iſrael.

5 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,
6 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, * when a man
*Lev. 6. 3. or a woman ſhall commit any ſin that men commit f, to do a treſpaſs againſt the LORD g, and that perſon be guilty h:

f Heb. any ſins of men, i. e. either 1. of common infirmity, or ſuch ſins as men commit through human frailty, for if this were done knowingly and willingly, a greater puniſhment was appointed. See Lev. 6. 5, 6. Or rather 2. ſins againſt men, or belonging to men, to wit, deceits or wrongs, whereby other men are injured, of which he manifeſtly ſpeaks, as appears from v. 7, 8. ſo this is a Genitive caſe of the object, as Mat. 12. 31. Bluſphemy of the ſpirit, (for ſo it is in the Greek) is bluſphemy againſt the holy Ghoſt, as it is called Mark 3. 28. Luk. 12. 10. and power of all fleſh, Joh. 17. 2. is power over all fleſh, and power of ſpirit, Mat. 10. 1. is power over or againſt ſpirits, Luk. 9. 8. and prayer of God, Luk. 6. 12. is prayer directed unto God: and the ſpoil of the poor, Iſa. 3. 14. is the ſpoil taken from the poor: and violence of the children of Judah, Joel 3. 19. is violence againſt them, as we tranſlate it. g Which words may be added, either 1. to expreſs a new ſin, of prevaricating or dealing falſly with God, either by a falſe oath, which is a ſpecial injury to God, or by a lie or ſimple denial that he hath taken any thing of his neighbours, which alſo God takes as a ſin eſpecially concerning himſelf, who in ſuch caſes is the only judge of what is falſly ſaid or ſworn. See Act. 5. 3, 4. Or 2. to aggravate the former ſin, and to ſhew that ſuch injuries done to men are alſo ſins againſt God, who hath commanded juſtice to men as well as religion to himſelf. But the former is more probable, both becauſe here is a ram of atonement to be offered to God for the ſpecial injury done to him, as well as ſatisfaction is to be made to the man whom he injured; and eſpecially by comparing this with the parallel place, Lev. 6. 2, &c. h (i.e.) Shall be ſenſible of his guilt, or be convicted in his conſcience of his ſin; for otherwiſe this might ſeem a meer tautology, if it were only meant of being really guilty of ſin, which was expreſſed before in thoſe words who ſoever ſhall commit any ſin, i. e. be guilty of any ſin.

7 Then they ſhall confeſs their ſin i which they have
*Lev. 6. 5. done, and he ſhall recompenſe his treſpaſs * with the principal thereof k, and add unto it the fifth part thereof l, and give it unto him againſt whom he hath treſpaſſed.

i They ſhall not continue in the denial of the fact, as ſuch perſons uſe to do, but ſhall give glory to God, and take ſhame to themſelves by acknowledging their ſin, with grief and remorſe. See Lev. 5. 5. and 6. 4. k (i.e.) The thing he took away, or what is equivalent to it. l Which is added both as a compenſation to the injured perſon for the want of his goods ſo long, and for his trouble for the ſuppoſed utter loſs of them, and as a penalty upon the injurious dealer to diſcourage others from ſuch attempts. Qu. How doth this agree with that law, Exod. 22. 1? Anſ. That law was made againſt notorious and obſtinate thieves, who were legally convicted of their crime, and this againſt more modeſt thieves, whoſe neceſſities might induce them to ſteal, and whoſe conſciences are affected with their ſin.

8 But if the man have no kinſman m, to recompenſe the treſpaſs unto, let the treſpaſs be recompenſed unto *Lev. 6. 6. and 7. 8. the LORD, even to the prieſt n: beſide the * ram of the atonement, whereby an atonement ſhall be made for him.

m Which might be the caſe commonly with Proſelytes, if not with Iſraelites. This alſo ſuppoſeth the perſon injured to be dead or gone away into ſome unknown place, and the perſon injured to be known to the injurer. n Whom God appointed as his deputy to (Or, heave-offering.) receive his duer, and take them to his own uſe, that ſo he might more chearfully and intirely devote himſelf to the miniſtration of *Lev. 6. 18 holy things. This is an additional explication to that law, Lev. 6. 2. 26. and 7. and for the ſake thereof it ſeems here to be repeated.
6. 32. 9 And every ‖ * offering o of all the holy things of chap. 18. 8. the children of Iſrael, which they bring unto the prieſts Deut. 18. 3. p ſhall be his q.

o Heb. every heave-offering, the heave-offering being here taken largely, ſo as to comprehend alſo the wave-offering, for both theſe were Aarons portion. See Exod 29. 26, 27, 28. p To wit, to offer unto the Lord by his hands. q (i.e.) the Prieſts. See Levit. 6. 16.

10 And every mans hallowed things r ſhall be his:
whatſoever any man giveth the prieſt, it ſhall be * his.
* Lev. 18 13. r Underſtand this not of the ſacrifices, no not of ſuch of them as were voluntary or vowed, as moſt underſtand it, becauſe theſe were not the Prieſts peculiar, but a good part of them was offered to God, and the remainder was eaten by the offerer as well as by the Prieſt, as is manifeſt; but of ſuch other things as were devoted to God, and were ſuch as could not be offered in ſacrifice; as ſuppoſe a man conſecrated an houſe, or rent of it to the Lord, this was to be the Prieſts. And this reſtriction may be eaſily collected from the nature of the thing, becauſe he ſpeaketh in this and the other branches here of ſuch things as were appropriated to the Prieſts, as his portion, which none of the ſacrifices were.

11 And the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,
12 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, If any mans wife s go aſide t, and commit a treſpaſs againſt him, s This law was given partly to deter wives from adulterous practiſes, and partly to ſecure wives againſt the rage of their hard-hearted huſbands, who otherwiſe might upon meer ſuſpicions deſtroy them, or at leaſt put them away. Queſt. Why was there not the ſame law for the trial of the huſband, when the wife was jealous of him? Anſ. This might be either 1. becauſe the womans ſin is greater, becauſe there is not only filthineſs and falſneſs in it, which is alſo in the mans ſin, but alſo peculiar unrighteouſneſs in diſhonouring his name and family, and tranſferring his eſtate to ſtrangers and other mens children: or 2. becauſe there was not like fear of inconveniencies to the huſband from the jealouſie of the wife who had not that authority and power, and opportunity for the putting away or killing of the huſband, as the huſband had over the wife. Or 3. becauſe being the inferiour and the weaker ſex, and more ſubject to jealouſieſand groundleſs ſuſpicions it was not thought expedient to truſt them with ſuch a power or priviledge. t From the way of religion and juſtice, or from her faith given to her huſband, or to the by-paths of falſhood and filthineſs, and that either in truth, or in appearance, and in her huſbands opinion.

13 And a man lie with her carnally, and it be hid from the eyes of her huſband, and be kept cloſe u, and ſhe be defiled, and there be no witneſs againſt her x, neither ſhe be taken with the manner;

u She utterly denying it, Pro. 30. 20. and none being able and willing to diſcover it. x For if it was witneſſed, ſhe was to die for it. Lev. 20. 10. Deut. 22. 22.

14 And the ſpirit of jealouſie y come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and ſhe be defiled: or if the ſpirit of jealouſie come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and ſhe be not defiled:

y (i.e.) A ſtrong opinion or ſuggeſtion or inward motion of that kind, whether from a good or evil ſpirit. Thus we read of the ſpirits of wiſdom, Iſa. 11. 2. of perverſneſs, Iſa. 19. 14. of fornication, Hoſ. 4. 12. of fear, 2 Tim. 1. 7. of ſlumber, Rom. 11. 8.

15 Then z ſhall the man bring his wife unto the prieſt, and he ſhall bring her offering a for her, the tenth part of an Ephah of barley meal, he ſhall pour no oyl upon it, nor put frankincenſe thereon b; for it is an offering of jealouſie, an offering of memorial, bringing iniquity to remembrance c:

z She perſiſting in her denial, and her husband requiring her ſubmiſſion to this way of trial. a Which was partly becauſe none were to appear before God empty, Exod. 23. 15. partly by way of ſolemn appeal to God, whom hereby ſhe deſired to judge between her and her husband; and partly by way of atonement to appeaſe God, who had for her ſins ſtirred up her husband againſt her, and ſent an evil ſpirit between them. See 1 Sam. 26. 19. b Both becauſe it was a kind of ſin-offering, from which theſe were excluded, Lev. 5. 10. and to teſtifie her ſorrowful ſence of the hand of God, and of her husbands diſpleaſure, and becauſe ſhe came thither as a delinquent, or one ſuſpected of delinquency, and under an ill fame, and unpleaſing both to God and men; as one that wanted that grace and amiableneſs and joy which oyl ſignified, and that acceptance with God which frankincenſe deſigned, Pſal. 141. 2. c Both to God before whom ſhe appeared as a ſinner, and to her own conſcience, if ſhe were guilty, and, if ſhe were not guilty of this, yet it reminded her of her other ſins, for which this might be a puniſhment.

16 And the prieſt ſhall bring her d near and ſet her

d (i.e.) The woman: But of her he ſpeaks, ver. 18. or it, i. e. the offering, which is laſt ſpoken of, ſo the feminine gender is put for the maſculine or the neuter, of both which we have inſtances. e (i.e.) Before the Sanctuary where the Ark was.

17 And the prieſt ſhall take holy water f in an earthen veſſel g, and of the duſt h that is in the floor of the tabernacle i the prieſt ſhall take, and put it into the water k:

f Either water out of the holy laver, Exod. 30. 18. or rather the water of purification appointed for ſuch kind of uſes, Numb. 19. 9. This was uſed, that if the were guilty, ſhe might be afraid to add profaneneſs and the pollution of holy things to her other crime. g Either to ſignifie that frailty and vileneſs of which ſhe ſtood accuſed, or expreſs her ſorrowful and ſhameful condition, or becauſe, after this uſe, it was to be broken in pieces, that the remembrance of it might be blotted out as far as was poſſible. and ſtruck the greater terrour into the woman, if ſhe were guilty. k To make it more unpleaſant and bitter, which was ſuitable to one in that ſorrowful ſtate.

18 And the prieſt ſhall ſet the woman before the LORD l, and uncover the womans head m, and put the offering of memorial in her hands n which is the jealouſie-offering: and the prieſt ſhall have in his hand the bitter o water that cauſeth the curſe p.

l Before the Tabernacle with her face towards the Ark. m Partly that ſhe might be made ſenſible how manifeſt ſhe and all her ways were to God, and that ſhe might be more viſible to the congregation, that her ſhame might be greater if ſhe were guilty; partly in token of her ſorrow either for her ſin, or at leaſt for any cauſe of ſuſpicion which ſhe had given; partly as a ſign that ſhe was after a ſort deprived of the help and protection of her huſband, which the covering of the womans head ſignified, 1 Cor. 11. 5, 6, 7, 10. and that ſhe was neither virgin nor loyal wife, for the heads of both theſe uſed to be covered. n That ſhe her ſelf might offer it, and therefore call God to be witneſs of her innocency. o So called either from the bitter taſt which the duſt gave it, or from the bitter effects of it upon her, if ſhe were guilty. Compare Exod. 32. 20. p Not by any natural power, but by a ſupernatural efficacy ordained and wrought by God for her puniſhment, and for the terrour and caution of others.

19 And the prieſt ſhall charge her by an oath q, and ſay unto the woman, If no man r have lien with thee, ‖ Or, being in the power another † inſtead of thy huſband, be thou free from of thy huſband. this bitter water that cauſeth the curſe.

q To anſwer truly to his queſtion, or to declare by oath whe-† Heb. under thy huſband. ther ſhe be guilty or no, and after ſuch oath ſhall ſay as follows.
r To wit, except thy huſband, as is manifeſt from the whole context, or no other man, the word another being underſtood here, as it is thought to be alſo, Gen. 14. 1. and 36. 6. Exod. 22. 20. s Or, with him, i. e. the man now mentioned. So it is an Elliptis eaſily ſupplied out of the Text.

20 But if thou haſt gone aſide to another in ſtead of thy huſband, and if thou be defiled; and ſome man have lien with thee beſide thine huſband;

21 Then the prieſt ſhall charge the woman with an oath of curſing, and the prieſt ſhall ſay unto the woman, The LORD make thee a curſe, and an oath t among thy people, when the LORD doth make thy thigh u † Heb. to fall. to † rot x and thy belly to ſwell y.

t (i.e.) A form of curſing or imprecatory oaths, that when they would curſe a perſon, they may wiſh that they may be as curſed and miſerable as thou waſt upon this occaſion. See the phraſe, Iſa. 65. 15. Jer. 29. 22. and compare Gen. 48. 20. Ruth. 4. 11, 12. u A modeſt ſignification of the genital parts, uſed both in Scripture, as Gen. 46. 26. Exod. 1. 5. and other authors, that the ſin might be evident in the puniſhment. x Heb. to fall, i. e. to die or waſt away, as the word is uſed, 1 Chron. 21. 14. compared with 2 Sam. 24. 15. y Suddenly and violently till it burſt, which the Jews note was frequent in this and like caſes, as Exod. 32. 20. And it was a clear evidence of the truth of their religion.

22 And this water that cauſeth the curſe ſhall go into thy bowels, to make thy belly to ſwell, and thy thigh to rot: and the woman ſhall ſay, Amen, amen z.

z (i.e.) So let it be if I be guilty. The word is doubled by her as an evidence of her innocency, and ardent deſire that God would deal with her according to her deſert.

23 And the prieſt ſhall write theſe curſes a in a book b, and he ſhall blot them out with the bitter water c.

a Wherewith he curſed her ſelf, to which peraventure her name was added. b (i.e.) In a ſcroll of parchment, which the Hebrews commonly call a book, as Deut. 24. 1. 2 Sam. 11. 14. Iſa. 39. 1. c Or, raſe or ſcrape them out and caſt them into the bitter water. Whereby it was ſignified, that if ſhe was innocent, the curſes ſhould be blotted out and come to nothing, and, if ſhe were guilty, ſhe ſhould find in her the effects of this water which ſhe drunk, after the words of this curſe had been ſcraped and put in.

24 And he ſhall cauſe the woman to drink d the bitter water, that cauſeth the curſe: and the water that cauſeth the curſe ſhall enter into her, and become bitter.

d To wit, after the jealouſie-offering was offered, as is affirmed, v. 26.

25 Then the prieſt ſhall take the jealouſie-offering out of the womans hand, and ſhall wave the offering before the LORD, and offer it upon the altar.

26 And the prieſt ſhall take an handful of the offering, even the memorial thereof e, and burn it upon the altar, and afterward ſhall cauſe the woman to drink the water.

e Of which, ſee Lev. 2. 2.

27 And when he hath made her to drink the wa-
* Deut. 28. 37. Pſal. 83. 9. 11. Jer. 24. 9. and 29. 18, and 42. 18. ter then it ſhall come to paſs, that if ſhe be defiled, and have done treſpaſs againſt her huſband, that the water that cauſeth the curſe, ſhall enter into her, and become bitter, and her belly ſhall ſwell, and her thigh ſhall rot: and the woman ſhall be * a curſe among her people.

28 And if the woman be not defiled, but be clean, Zech. 8. 13 then ſhe ſhall be free f, and ſhall conceive ſeed g.

f To wit, from theſe bitter curſes and miſeries. g (i.c.) Shall bring forth children, as the Jews ſay, in caſe of her innocency, infallibly ſhe did, yea though ſhe was barren before: or ſhall be as capable of bearing children, as other women.

29 This is the law of jealouſies, when a wife goeth aſide to another in ſtead of her husband, and is defiled.

30 Or when the ſpirit of jealouſie cometh upon him, and he be jealous over his wife, and ſhall ſet the woman before the LORD, and the prieſt ſhall execute upon her all this law.

31 Then ſhall the man be guiltleſs from iniquity h, and this woman ſhall bear her iniquity i.

h Which he ſhould not have been, if he had either diſſembled or indulged her in ſo great a wickedneſs, and not endeavoured to bring her either to repentance or puniſhment: See Mat. 1. 19. or cheriſhed ſuſpicions in his breaſt, and thereupon proceeded to hate her or caſt her off. Whereas now, whatſoever the conſequent is, the husband ſhall not be blamed or cenſured either for bringing ſuch curſes and miſchiefs upon her, or for defaming her, if he appear to be innocent. i (i.e.) The puniſhment of her iniquity, whether ſhe was falſe to her huſband, or by any light and fooliſh carriage gave him occaſion to ſuſpect her to be ſo.

CHAP. VI.

The Law of the Nazarites: From what they ſhould abſtain: How becoming Unclean they were to be purified, 1——12. The Vow of Separation being fulfilled, the Ceremonies to be uſed by the Prieſt in the Congregation, 22——27.

1 AND the LORD ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,
2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael and ſay unto them, When either man or woman a ſhall ‖ ſeparate ‖ Or, make themſelves to vow a vow of a Nazarite b, to ſeparate them- themſelves ſelves unto the LORD: Nazarites.

a For both ſexes might make this vow, if they were free and at their own diſpoſe, for otherwiſe their parents or husbands could diſanul the vow, Numb. 30 4. and in that caſe they ſinned in taking Gods name in vain, and vowing what they could not perform. ‡ Whereby they did ſequeſter themſelves in a great part from worldly employments and enjoyments, that they might intirely confecrate themſelves to Gods ſervice, and this either for their whole life time, of which ſee Judg. 13. 5. and 16. 17. 1 Sam. 1. 11. Luk. 1. 15. or for a leſs and limited ſpace of time, of which in this chapter.

3 He ſhall ſeparate himſelf from wine and ſtrong drink c, and ſhall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of ſtrong drink, neither ſhall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moiſt grapes, or dried c.

b Leaſt they ſhould either inflame or diſpoſe him to luxury, and conſequently to the breaking of his vow: or cloud his reaſon and thereby occaſion ſome miſtake or miſcarriage in the rules to which he had bound himſelf. Compare Levu. 10. 9. c Which was forbidden him for greater caution to keep him at the further diſtance from wine.

4 All the days of his ‖ ſeparation d ſhall he eat no-
‖ Or, Nazaritesſhip. thing that is made of the † vine-tree, from the kernels † Heb. of the wine of the wine. even to the huſk.

d Which were ſometimes more, ſometimes fewer, as he thought fit to appoint.

5 All the days of the vow of his ſeparation, there ſhall no * raſor e come upon his head, until the days be
* Judg. 13. 5. 1 Sam. 1. 11. fulfilled, in the which he ſeparateth himſelf unto the LORD, he ſhall be holy f; and ſhall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

e Nor ſciſſars, or other inſtrument to cut off any part of his hair. This was appointed, partly as a ſign of his mortification to worldly delights and vain affectation of outward beauty, which is promoted by the polling or cutting off the hair; partly as a teſtimony of that purity which hereby he profeſſed, becauſe the cutting off the hair was a ſign of uncleanneſs, as appears from v. 9. and Lev. 14. 8, 9. partly that by the notorious length of his hair he might be conſtantly minded of his vow, and the exquiſite holineſs it required, and that others might thereby be admoniſhed and ſtirred up to the imitation of his holy example; and partly that he might reſerve his hair entirely for God to whom it was to be offered, v. 18. f (i.e.) Wholly conſecrated to God and his ſervice, whereby he ſhews that inward and ſubſtantial holineſs was the great thing which God required and valued in theſe, and conſequently in other rites and ceremonies.

6 All the days that he ſeparateth himſelf unto the LORD, he ſhall come at no † dead body.
† Or, dead ſoul.

7 He ſhall not make himſelf unclean for his father, or for his mother g, for his brother, or for his ſiſter, when they die: becauſe the † conſecration h of his God is † Heb. ſeparation. upon his head.

g Wherein he was equal to the High-prieſt, Lev. 21. 11. being, in ſome ſort, as ſacred a perſon, and as eminent a type of Chriſt, Heb. 7. 26. and therefore juſtly required to prefer the ſervice of God to which he had ſo fully and peculiarly given himſelf before the expreſſions of his affections to his deareſt and neareſt relations. h (i.e.) The token of his conſecration, to wit, his long hair. i (i.e.) Whereby he hath devoted himſelf to his God in an eminent manner. The Genitive caſe of the object.

8 All the days of his ſeparation he is holy unto the LORD.

9 And if any man die very ſuddenly by him, and he hath defiled the head of his conſecration; then he ſhall ſhave his head k in the day of his cleanſing, on the ſeventh day l ſhall he ſhave it.

k Because his whole body, and especially his hair was defiled by such an accident, which he ought to impute either to his own heedlessness, or at least to Gods providence so ordering the matter possibly for the punishment of his other sins, or for the quickening of him to more caution and purity and detestation of all dead works whereby he would be defiled. l To be reckoned from the time of his pollution, for uncleanness contracted by the dead continued for seven days, and the seventh day was the day of cleansing for it, Lev. 15. 13. Numb. 19. 11, 12.

* Lev. 5. 7. and 14. 22. 10 And on the * eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons m to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

m As in the case of him that had a running issue, Lev. 15. 14.

11 And the priest shall offer n the one for a sin-offering o, and the other for a burnt-offering, and make an atonement for him, for that he sinned p by the dead, and shall hallow q his head that same day.

n Heb. make: which is oft put for sacrificing or offering, as Exod. 29. 36. 1 Chron. 21. 23. compared with 2 Sam. 24. 22. o Because such a pollution was, though not his sin, yet the chastisement of his sin, and had an appearance of sin, to wit, of negligence in not standing sufficiently upon his guard, which in such persons was in a manner equivalent to a sin. p (i. e.) Contracted a ceremonial uncleanness, which is called sinning, because it was a type of sin, and a violation of a law, though through ignorance and inadvertency, as many other sins were. q Begin again to hallow or consecrate it.

12 And he shall consecrate unto the LORD the days of his separation r, and shall bring a lamb of the first year * for a trespass-offering: but the days that † Heb. fall. were before shall † be lost s, because his separation was defiled:

* Lev. 5. 6.

r As many days as he had before separated or vowed unto God. s (i. e.) Not reckoned or imputed to him. Heb. fall, to wit, to the ground, i. e. be void or of none effect.

13 And this is the law of the Nazarite: when the days of his separation are fulfilled, he shall be brought t unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

t By the Priests appointment and direction.

14 And he shall offer his offering unto the LORD, one he-lamb of the first year without blemish for a burnt-offering, and one ew-lamb of the first year without blemish, for * a sin-offering u, and one ram without blemish for * peace-offerings x:

* Lev. 4. 2. 17, 32. * Lev. 3. 6.

u Whereby he confessed and bewailed his frailties and miscarriages notwithstanding the strictness of his vow and all the diligence and care which he could use, and consequently acknowledged his need of the grace of God in Christ Jesus the true Nazarite. x For thankfulness to God, who had given him grace to make and in some measure to keep such a vow. So he offered all the three sorts of offerings, that he might so far fulfill a 1 righteousness and profess his obligation to observe the will of God in all things.

* Lev. 2. 4. 15 And a basket of unleavened bread, * cakes of fine flour mingled with oyl, and wafers of unleavened bread anointed with oyl, and their meat-offering, and their drink offerings y.

y Such as did generally accompany the sacrifices; of which, see Lev. 2. 1. and Numb. 28.

16 And the priest shall bring them before the LORD, and shall offer his sin-offering, and his burnt-offering.

17 And he shall offer the ram for a sacrifice of peace-offerings unto the LORD, with the basket of unleavened bread: the priest shall offer also his meat-offering, and his drink offering.

* Act. 21. 24. 18 * And the Nazarite shall shave the head of his separation z at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation a, and shall take the hair of the head of his separation, and put it in the fire b, which is under the sacrifice of the peace-offerings.

z Or, of his Nazaritehip, i. e. in which the chief of his Nazaritehip or separation to God consisted. a Publickly, that it might be known that his vow was ended, and therefore he was at liberty as to those things from which he had restrained himself for a season, otherwise some might have been scandalized at his use of his liberty. See Act. 21. 26. b Either 1. the fire of the Altar. But why then is this restrained to the peace-offerings, seeing it was common to the burnt-offerings, and to the sin-offerings? Or rather 2. to the fire of the kitchin, upon which the flesh of the peace-offerings was boiled.

19 And the priest shall take the sodden shoulder c of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and shall put them upon the hands of the Nazarite d, after the hair of his separation is shaven.

c The left shoulder, as it appears from v. 20. where this is joined with the heave-shoulder, which was the right-shoulder, and which was the Priests due in all sacrifices, Lev. 7. 32. and in this also. But here the other shoulder was added to it, as a special token of thankfulness from the Nazarites for Gods singular favours vouchsafed unto them. d That he may give them to the Priest, as his peculiar gift.

* Exod. 29. 27, 28. 20 And the priest shall wave them * for a wave-offering e before the LORD: this is holy for the priest with the wave-breast, and heave-shoulder: and after that the Nazarite may drink wine f.

e Of the wave-offering and heave-offering, see Lev. 7. 30. f And return to his former freedom and manner of living, he is discharged from his vow.

21 This is the law of the Nazarite who hath vowed, and of his offering unto the LORD for his separation, besides that that his hand shall get g: according to the vow which he vowed, so he must do, after the law of his separation.

g (i. e.) Besides what he shall voluntarily promise and give according to his ability.

22 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto Aaron, and unto his sons, saying, On this wise h ye shall bless the children of Israel i, saying unto them, h Heb. Thus, in this manner, or in these words: yet so as that they were not tied to these very words, because after this we have examples of Moses and David and Solomon and others blessing the people in other words. i To wit, in the publick assembly.

24 The LORD bless thee k, and keep thee l:

k (i. e.) Bestow upon you all manner of blessings, temporal and spiritual. Compare Gen. 12. 2. l (i. e.) Continue his blessings to thee, and preserve thee in and to the use of them; keep thee from sin and its bitter effects.

25 The LORD make his face shine upon thee m, and be gracious unto thee:

l (i. e.) Smile upon thee: this is opposed to the hiding of his face, and to the covering himself or his face with a cloud; and it is explained by the following words, be gracious unto thee. Others expound it of illumination or direction, and the revelation of himself, and of his will to them.

26 The LORD lift up his countenance upon thee n, and give thee peace o, n (i. e.) Look upon thee with a chearful and pleasant countenance, as one that is reconciled to thee, and well pleased with thee and thy offerings and services. See of this phrase, Psal. 4. 6. Prov. 16. 15. To this is opposed the falling and the casting down of the countenance, of which see Gen. 4. 5, 6. Job 29. 24. Or, Regard, Protect, and help thee. Compare Psal. 33. 18. o Peace with God and with thy own conscience and with all men, and all prosperity, which is comprehended under this word.

27 And they shall put my Name upon the children of Israel p, and I will bless them q.

p (i. e.) Shall call them by my name, shall recommend them to me as my own people, and bless them and pray unto me for them as such: which is a powerful argument to prevail with God for them, and therefore hath been oft used by the Prophets interceding for them, as Jer. 14. 9. Dan. 9. 18, 19. Compare 1 Sam. 12. 22. q I will ratifie their blessings, and give those blessings to the people which the Priests pray for.

CHAP. VII.

The tabernacle being fully finished, the twelve Princes offer Gifts: which are delivered to the Gersonites and the Merarites, 1.——11. what they offered in particular of Silver, Gold, Vessels, and Beasts, 12.—83. The sum thereof, 84.——84. God spake to Moses from the Mercy-Seat, 85.

1 AND it came to pass on the day a that Moses had fully * set up the tabernacle, and had anointed it b, and sanctified it, and all the instruments thereof, both the altar, and all the vessels thereof, and had anointed them, and sanctified them; * Exod. 40. 18.

a Either 1. precisely, and so this history, as many others, is put out of its proper place, and this chapter and the 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th, should follow next after Exod. 40. and this day is the same on which the Tabernacle was erected, which was the first day of the first month of the second year, Exod. 40. 17, 18. Or 2. largely, day being put for time, and on the day, for about the time, or, a little after the time. And thus it seems to be taken here, because all the princes did not offer these things upon one and the same day, but on several days, as here it follows. And so there is no disorder in the history, and this chapter comes in its proper place, and those things were done in the second month of the second year after the Tabernacle and Altar, and all other instruments thereof were anointed, as is here expressed; and after the Levites were separated to the service of the Tabernacle, and appointed to their several works, as is manifest from v, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. which was done about a month after the Tabernacle was erected, &c. and after the numbering of the people, Numb. 1. when the Princes here employed in the offerings were first constituted; and after the disposal of the Tribes about the Tabernacle, the order of which is here observed in the time of their offerings. b Lev. 8. 10.

2 That * the princes of Israel, heads of the house of their fathers (who were the princes of the tribes, † and were over them that were numbred) offered c: * ch. 1. 4 † Heb. who stod.

c To wit, in the manner and days hereafter mentioned.

3 And they brought their offering before the LORD, six covered wagons d, and twelve oxen: a wagon for two of the princes, and for each one an oxe: and they brought them before the tabernacle.

d For the more convenient and safe carriage of such things as were most cumbersome.

4 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,

5 Take it of them, that they may be to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation, and thou shalt give them unto the Levites: to every man according to his service e.

e (i. e.) More or fewer of them, as the nature of their service and of the things to be carried required,

6 And

6 And Moses took the wagons, and the oxen, and gave them unto the Levites.

7 Two wagons and four oxen he gave unto the sons of Gershon, according to their service:

8 And four wagons and eight oxen he gave unto the sons of Merari, according unto their service, under the hand of Ithamar f the son of Aaron the priest.

f (i. e.) Under his care and inspection. See Gen. 39. 22. And it must be noted that these words belong both to the Merarites here, and to the Gershonites, ver. 7. because both of them were under his hands, as is affirmed, Numb. 4. 28, 33.

9 But unto the sons of Kohath he gave none: because the service of the sanctuary belonging unto them, was that they should bear upon their shoulders g.

g Because of the greater worth and holiness of the things which they carried. See Numb. 4. 6, 8, 10, 12, 14. 2 Sam. 6. 6, 13.

10 And the princes offered for dedicating of the altar h, in the day i that it was anointed, even the princes offered their offering before the altar.

h To wit, of burnt-offerings, and incense too, as appears from the matter of their offerings. The singular number for the plural. Not for the first dedication of them, for it is apparent they were dedicated or confecrated before this time by Moses and Aaron for diverse days together, Numb. 8. & 9. but for a further dedication of them, these being the first offerings that were made for any particular persons or tribes. i (i. e.) About the time, as soon as it was anointed. See on ver. 1.

11 And the LORD said unto Moses, They shall offer their offering each prince on his day k, for the dedicating of the altar.

k As well for the greater solemnity and splendor of the work, as for the prevention of confusion. And in this offering they follow the order of their camp, and not of their birth.

12 And he that offered his offering the first day, was Nahshon the son of Amminadab, of the tribe of Judah l.

l In whose name and behalf, this offering was made, and so in the rest.

13 And his offering was one silver charger m the weight thereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one † Or, Vial. silver † bowl of seventy shekels after * the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them were full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a * meat-offering. * Exod. 30. 13. * Lev. 2. 1.

m A large dish or platter; of which see Exod. 25. 29. to be employed about the altar of burnt-offering, or in the court, not in the Sanctuary, for all its vessels were of gold.

14 One spoon of ten shekels of gold o full of incense:

o And therefore belonging to the altar of incense.

* Lev. 1. 2. 15 * One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

* Lev. 4. 23 16 One kid of the goats for a * sin-offering:

* Lev. 3. 1. 17 And for a * sacrifice of peace-offerings p, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

p Which are more numerous, because the Princes and Priests, and some of the people did make a feast before the Lord out of them, and celebrated it with great rejoycing.

18 On the second day Nethaneel the son of Zuar, prince of Issachar, did offer:

19 He offered for his offering one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering.

20 One spoon of gold of ten shekels, full of incense:

21 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

22 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

23 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings five oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

24 On the third day Eliab the son of Helon, prince of the children of Zebulun did offer.

25 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

26 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

27 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

28 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

29 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Eliab the son of Helon.

30 On the fourth day Elizur the son of Shedeur, prince of the children of Reuben, did offer:

31 His offering was one silver charger of an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oyl, for a meat-offering.

32 One golden spoon of ten shekels full of incense:

33 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

34 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

35 And for a sacrifice of peace offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Elizur the son of Shedeur:

36 On the fifth day, Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai, prince of the children of Simeon, did offer:

37 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oyl for a meat-offering.

38 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

39 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

40 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

41 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

42 On the sixth day Eliasaph the son of Deuel, prince of the children of Gad, offered.

43 His offering was one silver charger, of the weight of an hundred and thirty shekels, a silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oyl, for a meat-offering:

44 One golden spoon of ten shekels full of incense:

45 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

46 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

47 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs. This was the offering of Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

48 On the seventh day Elishama the son of Ammihud, prince of the children of Ephraim, offered.

49 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

50 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

51 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

52 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

53 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Elishama the son of Ammihud.

54 On the eight day offered Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur, prince of the children of Manasseh.

55 His offering was one silver charger, of an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

56 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

57 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

58 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

59 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

60 On the ninth day Abidan the son of Gideoni, prince of the children of Benjamin, offered.

61 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, a silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

62 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

63 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

64 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

65 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Abidan the son of Gideoni.

66 On the tenth day Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai, prince of the children of Dan, offered.

67 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

68 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:
69 One bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:
70 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:
71 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Ahiezer, the son of Ammishaddai.
72 On the eleventh day, Pagiel the son of Ocran, prince of the children of Asher, offered.
73 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:
74 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:
75 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:
76 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering.
77 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Pagiel the son of Ocran.
78 On the twelfth day, Ahira the son of Enan, prince of the children of Naphtali, offered.
79 His offering was one silver charger the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:
80 One golden spoon of ten shekels full of incense:
81 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:
82 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering.
83 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Ahira the son of Enan.
84 This was the dedication of the altar, (in the day when it was anointed q) by the princes of Israel: twelve chargers of silver, twelve silver † bowls, twelve spoons of gold:

† Or, vials.

q This is again repeated, to shew why it is called the dedication of the Altar, because it was the first offering made by any particular persons or Tribes.

85 Each charger of silver weighing an hundred and thirty shekels, each bowl, seventy: all the silver vessels weighed two thousand and four hundred shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary:
86 The golden spoons were twelve, full of incense, weighing ten shekels a piece after the shekel of the sanctuary: all the gold of the spoons was an hundred and twenty shekels.
87 All the oxen for the burnt-offering were twelve bullocks, the rams twelve, the lambs of the first year twelve, with their meat-offering r: and the kids of the goats for sin-offering twelve.

r Which was not mentioned before, because it was sufficiently understood from the Law which required it, Numb. 15. 3, 4, 5. but for greater assurance is here expressed.

88 And all the oxen for the sacrifice of the peace-offerings were twenty and four bullocks, the rams sixty, the he-goats sixty, the lambs of the first year sixty. This was the dedication of the altar after that it was anointed s.

s Which words are very conveniently added to explain in what sense he had so oft said that this was done in the day when it was anointed, to wit, not exactly, but in a latitude, to wit, a little after that it was anointed, as is here said.

89 And when Moses was gone into the tabernacle of the congregation t to speak with ‖ him u, then he heard the voice of one speaking unto him from off the mercy-seat x that was upon the ark of testimony, from between the two cherubims: and he spake unto him.

‖ That is, God.

t Into which Moses, though no Priest, was permitted to enter by God's special licence. u (i. e.) To consult God upon occasion. x Which Moses standing without the veil could easily hear. And this seems to be added in this place, to shew that when men had done their part in the dedication of the Tabernacle, Altars, &c. God was not wanting in the performance of his part, and promise made, Exod. 25. 22.

CHAP. VIII.

How the Lamps are to be lighted, 1——4. God commands the Levites to be cleansed, 5——15. That they may serve with Aaron and his Sons instead of the first-born, 16——22. Their Age and Service, 23——26.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
2 Speak unto Aaron, and say unto him, When thou * lightest the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light over against the candlestick a.

* Exod. 25. 37. & 40. 25.

a (i. e.) Either 1. On every side of the candlestick. So the candlestick is here put for the bulk or shaft of the candlestick, as Exod. 25. 34, 35. and the lamps, when they were lighted were put into the branches of the candlestick, and taken out upon occasion. Thus the meaning is, that all the lamps were to be lighted on that part which was towards the middle, looking that way whence they had their light; for the middle lamp was lighted with the fire of the altar, and from that the other lamps received light. But against this sense it is objected, that the lamps could not be otherwise ordered, but that they must give light round about the candlestick, and therefore that sense seems to make this direction idle and frivolous. Or 2. On that part which is before the candlestick, Heb. over against the face of the candlestick, i. e. in that place towards which the candlestick looked, or where the candlestick stood in full view, i. e. upon the Northside, where the Table of Shew-bread stood, as appears from hence, because the candlestick stood close to the boards of the Sanctuary on the South-side, Exod. 26. 35. And thus the lights were on both sides of the Sanctuary, which was fit and necessary, because it was wholly dark in it self, and had no window in it.

3 And Aaron did so: he lighted the lamps thereof over against the candlestick, as the LORD commanded Moses.
4 * And this work of the candlestick was of beaten gold b, unto the shaft thereof, unto the flowers thereof was * beaten work: according unto the * pattern which the LORD had shewed Moses, so he made the candlestick.

* Exod. 25. 31.
* Exod. 25. 18.
* Exod. 25. 40.

b Not hollow, but solid and massie gold, beaten out of one piece, and not of several pieces joined or sodered together. See Exod. 25. 18, 31. & 37. 17.

5 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
6 Take the Levites from among the children of Israel, and c cleanse them.

c Or, wash or purifie them, which was also done with the Priests and others when they were to approach to God and his service. See Exod. 19. 10, 15. Levit. 14. 9.

7 And thus shalt thou do unto them, to cleanse them: sprinkle water † of purifying d upon them, and † let † Heb. fire them shave all their flesh e, and let them wash their cloths, &c. and so make themselves clean.

d Heb. of sin, (i. e.) for the expiation of sin. This water was mixed with the ashes of a red heifer, Numb. 19. 9. which therefore may seem to have been prescribed before, though it be mentioned after; such kind of transplacings of passages being frequent in Scripture. e Which external rite signified the cutting off their inordinate concupiscences of earthly things, and that singular purity of heart and life which is required in the Ministers of God. See Isa. 52. 11. 2 Tim. 2. 21.

† Heb. let a razor to them come, ch. 19. 9.

8 Then let them take a young bullock with his * meat-offering, even fine flour mingled with oil, and another young bullock e shalt thou take for a sin-offering.

* Lev. 2. 1.

e The same sacrifice which was offered for a sin-offering for the whole congregation, Levit. 4. because the Levites came in the stead of all the first-born, which did in a manner represent the whole congregation.

9 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the tabernacle of the congregation, and thou shalt gather the whole assembly of the children of Israel together.
10 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the LORD, and the children of Israel f shall put their hands upon the Levites g.

f Not all of them, which was impossible, but some in the name and stead, and by the appointment of all, to wit, either the first-born, or rather the Princes or Chiefs of each Tribe, who used to transact things in the name of their Tribes. g Whereby they signified their transferring of that right of Ministring to God from the first-born in whose hands it formerly was, unto the Levites, and their renouncing of their interest in the Levites, from whom they might otherwise have expected help by their persons or purses, as they did from other Tribes, in their common concernments, and their intire resignation and dedication of them to God's service; as the person offering by laying his hand upon the head of his sacrifice, (Levit. 1. 4.) signified his transfation of his guilt upon the beast, and his dedication of it unto God.

11 And Aaron shall † offer the Levites before the LORD for an ‖ offering h of the children of Israel, that † they may execute the service of the LORD.

‖ Heb. wave-offering.

h Heb. For a wave-offering. Of which see Exod. 29. 24. Not that Aaron did so wave them, which he could not do, but that he offering, caused or commanded them to imitate that motion, and to wave † Heb. themselves towards the several parts of the world: whereby they may might signifie their readiness to serve God, according to their calling wheresoever they should be. Though the word may be taken more generally for any offering made to God, as Exod. 35. 22.

12 And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks i: and thou shalt offer the one for a sin offering, and the other for a burnt-offering unto the LORD, to make an atonement for the Levites.

i To signifie, that they were offered by them and for them. See Exod. 29. 16, 19. Levit. 1. 4. & 3. 2. & 4. 4.

13 And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron and before his sons k, and offer them for an offering unto the LORD l.

k (i. e.) Put them into the power of Aaron and his sons, to employ them in holy ministrations: for so that phrase is sometimes used, as Gen. 13. 9. the land is before thee, i. e. in thy power, to use or enjoy it. Or, setting the Levites before them, did signifie the giving the Levites to them, or to their service. l For to him they were first properly offered, and by him given to the Priests in order to his service.

14 Thus

14 Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from among the children of Israel, and the Levites shall be * mine.

* ch. 3. 45.

15 And after that shall the Levites go in m, to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation: and thou shalt cleanse them, and offer them for an offering.

m To wit, into the Court, where they were to wait upon the Priests at the Altar of burnt-offering; and, at present, into the Tabernacle, to take it down and set it up.

16 For they are wholly given unto me n from among the children of Israel: instead of such as open every womb, * even instead of the first-born of all the children of Israel have I taken them unto me.

* ch. 3. 13. Exod. 13. 2 Luk. 2. 23.

n By the peoples consent, as well as taken (as it follows) by my choice and command. See Numb. 3. 9.

17 * For all the first-born of the children of Israel are mine, both man and beast: on the day that I smote every first-born in the land of Egypt, I sanctified them for my self.

* Exod. 13. 2, 12, 15. ch. 3. 13. Luk. 2. 23.

18 And I have taken the Levites for all the first-born of the children of Israel.
19 And * I have given the Levites as a † gift to Aaron, and to his sons, from among the children of Israel, to do the service of the children of Israel o, in the tabernacle p of the congregation, and * to make an atonement for the children of Israel q: that there be no plague r among the children of Israel, when the children of Israel come nigh unto the sanctuary.

* ch. 3. 9.
* ch. 1. 53.

o (i. e.) To serve God in their stead and behalf, to do what otherwise they had been obliged to do in their own persons. p How in it, see on ver. 15. q Not by offering sacrifices, which the Priests alone might do, but by assisting the Priests in that expiatory work, and by a diligent performance of all the parts of their office, whereby God was pleased both with them and with the people. r This is added as a reason why God appointed them to serve in or about the Tabernacle, that they might watch and guard it, and not suffer any of the people to come near it, or meddle with holy things, which if they did, it would certainly bring a plague upon them.

20 And Moses and Aaron, and all the congregation of the children of Israel, did to the Levites according unto all that the LORD commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did the children of Israel unto them.
21 And the Levites were purified s, and they washed their clothes: and Aaron offered them as an offering before the LORD, and Aaron made an atonement for them, to cleanse them.

s Which was done by washing and sprinkling and sacrifices. See Levit. 15. 13, 14, 15. Numb. 19. 11, &c.

22 And after that went the Levites in, to do their service in the tabernacle of the congregation, before Aaron, and before his sons t: as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they unto them.

t In their presence, and by their direction and appointment.

23 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
24 This is it that belongeth unto the Levites: from * twenty and five years old u and upward, they shall go in † to wait upon the service of the tabernacle of the congregation.

* 1 Chron. 23. 24. Num. 1. 3.
† Heb. to war the warfare of, &c.

u See on Numb. 4. 3.

25 And from the age of fifty years they shall † cease waiting upon the service thereof x, and shall serve no more:

† Heb. return from the warfare of the service.

x (i. e.) Upon the difficult and cumbersome part of their work.

26 But shall minister with their brethren y in the tabernacle of the congregation to keep the charge, and shall do no service: thus shalt thou do unto the Levites, touching their charge.

y By way of advice, and assistance in lesser and easier work.

CHAP. IX.

The Passover kept in the Wilderness on the 14th day of the first month, 1——5. By those who were then Unclean or Journeying the 14th day of the second month, 6——12. They who otherwise neglect it to be put to Death, 13. Proselytes are to observe the same, 14. God manifests himself to Israel in a Cloud by Day and Fire by Night, by which they knew when and where to Camp, 15——23.

1 AND the LORD spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year a, after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying, a And therefore before the numbring of the people, which was not till the second month, Numb. 1, 1, 2. But it is placed after it, because of a special case relating to the Passe-over, which happned after it, and which is here related, upon occasion whereof he mentions the command of God for the keeping of the Passe-over in the Wilderness, which was done but once, and without this command they had not been obliged to keep it at all till they came to the land of Canaan. See Exod. 12. 25.

* Exod. 12. 1, &c. Lev. 23. 5. ch. 28. 16. Deut. 16. 2

2 Let the children of Israel also keep * the passeover at its appointed season.

3 In the fourteenth day of this month † at even, ye shall keep it in its appointed season: according to all the rites of b it, and according to all the ceremonies thereof shall ye keep it.

† Heb. between the two evenings.

b So far as concerned the Lamb and the unleavened bread, &c. for there were some things peculiar to the first Passe-over in Egypt, as that they were to eat it in haste, with their loins girded, their shoes on their feet, and their staffs in their hand, which were not properly Rites or Ceremonies of the Passe-over, but circumstances of their present condition, being then Travellers and ready to depart, &c. Qu. Whence had they meal to make unleavened bread? Answ. They were not now in haste, and so had time enough to procure it out of the land of Midian by the help of Moses his Father-in-law who lived there, which land was not far from Horeb or Sinai, as appears from Exod. 3. 1.

4 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel that they should keep the passe-over.
5 And they kept the passe-over on the fourteenth day of the first month at even, in the wilderness of Sinai: according to all that the LORD commanded Moses, so did the children of Israel.

* ch. 5. 3.
† Or, the soul of a man, ch. 6. 6.

c By the touch of a dead body, or something belonging to it. See Numb. 19. 11. d Because unclean persons were prohibited to eat of holy things. See Levit. 7. 20. and 22. 3. e For resolution of their difficulty.

7 And those men said unto him, We are defiled by the dead body of a man: wherefore are we kept back, that we may not offer f an offering of the LORD g in its appointed season, among the children of Israel?

f Which if we neglect, we must be cut off, and if we keep it in these circumstances, we must also be cut off. What shall we do? g (i. e.) The Passeover, so called, because it was both killed and eaten in obedience to God's command, and to God's honour, and as a thank-offering to God for his great mercies.

8 And Moses said unto them, Stand still, and I will hear what the LORD will command concerning you h.

h God having promised to answer and direct him upon his address to him in difficult cases.

9 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying,
10 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If any man of you, or of your posterity, shall be unclean by reason of a dead body, or be in a journey i afar off k, yet he shall keep the passeover unto the LORD.

i Under these two instances the Hebrews think that other hinderances of like nature are comprehended; as if one be hindred by a Disease, or by any other such kind of uncleanness; which may seem probable both from the nature of the thing, and the reason of the Law which is the same in other cases, and from the application of this rule to other cases, 2 Chron. 30. k In some remote country, whence he cannot return sooner.

11 The * fourteenth day of the second month at even they shall keep it, and eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

* 2 Chron. 30. 2, 15.

12 * They shall leave none of it unto the morning l, * nor break any bone of it: according to all the ordinances of the passeover, they shall keep it.

* Exod. 12. 10.
* Exod. 12. 46 Joh. 19. 36.

l But either eat or burn it before that time.

13 But the man that is clean, and is not in a journey, and forbeareth to keep the passeover m, even the same soul shall be cut off from his people, because he brought not the offering of the LORD in its appointed season: that man shall bear his sin.

m Through contempt or neglect, without these or any other just impediments, as before.

14 And if a stranger n shall sojourn among you, and will keep the passeover unto the LORD, according to the ordinance of the passeover, and according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: * ye shall have one ordinance, both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land.

* Exod. 12. 49.

n To wit, a Proselyte.

15 And * on the day that the tabernacle was reared up, the cloud o covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony p: and at * even there was upon the tabernacle, as it were the appearance of fire q, until the morning.

* Exod. 40. 34.
* Exod. 13. 21. & 40. 38.

o Of which see Exod. 13. 12. p Or, The Tabernacle towards or above the Tent of the Testimony, i. e. that part of the Tabernacle in which was the Testimony, or the Ark of the Testimony; for there the cloudy pillar stood, Levit. 16. 2. This was an evident token of God's special presence with and providence over them. See Exod. 14. 20, 24. Psal. 105. 39. And this cloud was easily distinguished from other clouds, both by its peculiar figure and by its constant residence in that place. q That they might better discern it and direct themselves and their journeys or stations by it.

16 So it was alway: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

17 And when the cloud was taken up r from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitched their tents.

r Or, Ascended on high, above its ordinary place, by which it became more visible to all the camp.

18 At the commandment of the LORD s the children of Israel journeyed; and at the commandment of
* 1 Cor. 10.1. the LORD they pitched; * as long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle, they rested in the tents.

s The motion or stay of the cloud is fitly called the command of God, because it was a signification of God's will and their duty, which a command properly is.

† Heb. prolonged. 19 And when the cloud † tarried long upon the tabernacle many days, then the children of Israel kept the charge of the LORD t, and journeyed not.

t (i.e.) The command of God mentioned before, that they should stay as long as the cloud stayed, as the same phrase is manifestly taken below, ver. 23. And this, saith he, they did, tho' it were long in one place, which was tedious to them, who desired to change places, and to make haste to Canaan, yet they obeyed God herein against their own inclinations. Which because it was remarkable in so obstinate a people, it is so largely and particularly mentioned here, as an instance of their obedience, and as an aggravation of the many following instances of their Apostacy and Disobedience.

20 And so it was when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the LORD they abode in their tents, and according to the commandment of the LORD they journeyed.

† Heb. was ch. 11. 35. 21 And so it was when the cloud † abode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed.

22 Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year, that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, re-
* Exod. 40. 36, 37. maining thereon, the children of Israel * abode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed.

23 At the commandment of the LORD they rested in the tents, and at the commandment of the LORD they journeyed: they kept the charge of the LORD, at the commandment of the LORD by the hand of Moses.

a For Aaron's two Sons: though afterwards the number of the trumpets was much increased, as the number of the Priests also was. See 2 Chron. 5. 12. These trumpets were ordained, both for signification of the great duty of Ministers, to wit, to preach the word; and for use, as here follows. b A metal pure and precious, and giving a clear sound. c See Exod. 25. 31. Numb. 8. 4.
